Third Quarter in 1977

County Taxable Sales Slide

Net taxable retail sales in 1977 for the third quarter in Wayne County were down 4.2 percent as compared with the same quarter in 1976.

The third quarter decline was representative of all of the six counties in Region 11. The total retail sales in the Region were $66,046,000 for 1977 and $69,743,000 for 1976. This represented a drop 5.3 percent.

Statewide, the net taxable sales were $1,672 million during the third quarter of 1977. On a dollar volume basis, sales were 3 percent above the third quarter of 1976, but $57 million or 3 percent below the second quarter of 1977.

According to Bureau of Business Research, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, this was the third consecutive quarter of declining retail sales statewide. The Bureau said the decline signals a potential weakness in the Nebraska economy which may be a harbinger of difficult days ahead.

Sales gains were confined largely to the state's urban areas. Metropolitan Omaha, Region 1 (10.7 percent); the Lincoln SMSA, Region 2 (8.1 percent); along with Region 5, Dodge and Washington counties, (6.5 percent) and Region 20, the McCook area (3.2 percent) were the only regions to record increased (comparing third quarter 1977 results with third quarter 1976 sales).

The average number of January days when minimum temperatures in Nebraska are zero degrees or lower ranges from 5 to 10 days. The extreme minimum temperature of 30 degrees below zero was recorded at the North-east Experiment Station in Dixon County on the morning of Jan. 11. Minimum temperatures of 4 degrees or lower were recorded at all stations.

Panhandle and the Southwest recorded maximum temperatures in the mid-50's. Temperatures in the 40's were recorded in the Central and the Southeast. The extreme maximum was 57 degrees at Bridgeport on Jan. 5.

Winside Grappler Makes It Nine Straight Wildcat State Champions

Svoboda Wins Class C 185-Pound Title

By BOB BARTLETT
When it comes to winning a state title, Winside's Class C 185-pound champ Bryan Svoboda doesn't believe that credit for the victory should go to one person. True, he outdueled Tekamah-Herman's Randy Saxton 6-3 on Saturday night in the final of the 17-year-old senior became a champ, Svoboda said. "Credit for the victory in the finals of the state tournament in Lincoln Saturday has to go to coach Randy Humpal, teammates LaVerie Miller and Mitch Pfeiffer, and 'the great fans,' who made the win possible, Svoboda emphasized. "The coach got us all psyched up. He was up so we were up," the senior grappler pointed out. As for Miller, Svoboda went on, "he kept telling me it was our last shot at it (winning a state title) because we were seniors." And Pfeiffer added, "No matter what happens you can beat a guy who has beaten you." Svoboda had all this going through his mind as he went onto the mat for the second time this year to face Saxton in a door-die fight for the Class C title. Svoboda, who went into the meet with a 26-2 record, was very much aware that Saxton already owned a 7-4 win over him in Class C district finals at Wayne State. But that was his story. At the beginning of the match, Svoboda had Saxton down on his back for a quick two points. His confidence grew even stronger when Humpal protested with wrestling officials that his man should have had two more points as a result of Svoboda puffing Saxton on his back. Although the argument didn't result in any extra points, it was just what Bryan needed to keep his blood stirring.

"When the coach came over and started yelling, I knew I could have him (Saxton) then," Svoboda smiled. At the end of the first period, the Winside wrestler led 3-2. Svoboda got two more points in the second period to one for Saxton to remain ahead, 5-3, going into the final two-minute period. There, Svoboda held Saxton scoreless while picking up a point for the final 6-3 victory. Two other Winside grapplers, Miller and Pfeiffer, claimed second place to anchor the team's third-place showing in Class C. Competing in the 155-pound class, Miller took a quick 2-0 lead over undefeated Scott Minnitt of Franklin. In the closing seconds of the first period, Minnitt got one point for an escape to make the score 2-1 going into the second period. The Franklin grappler, who went into the finals owning 29 straight wins, took the lead with a three-point near fall for a 4-2 score. The roof fell in on Miller in the last period where Minnitt pitted up nine more points for a 13-2 decision. In the heavyweight division, Pfeiffer and Oakland-Craig's Scott Lindstrom were face to face again. Both met in the Oakland Tournament finals, where Lindstrom prevailed. Lindstrom (28-0) kept his win streak alive over Pfeiffer, this time with a pin in 1:37 of the first period. Tom Koll, the only other Winside matman who survived the first round, nailed down fourth place after he dropped a 2-1 decision to Jay Schroeder of West Point in semifinals. The four placing gave Humpal's Wildcats a total of 716 points to finish behind team winner Franklin with 111 and second-place Tekamah with 104. For the Tigers, this year is the first in five that they haven't won a state title. The last two seasons Tekamah was the defending Class C kings and two years before that reigned as the B champions. Miller finished his senior year with the second-best record on his team, 30 wins against three losses. Pfeiffer recorded 29 wins and two losses while Koll finished with 23 victories and 11 defeats.

For the rest of the Wildcats who were knocked out of the first round in state, their records were: 105-pound Rick Bowers, 20-10; 112-pound Brian Foote, 18-13; and 138-pound Eric Vahlkamp, 15-5. "I was really proud of the Winside fans. It's the most I've ever seen," Svoboda concluded, adding that the fantastic job of all eight Winside cheerleaders plus the help of "the best student" manager in the business, Peg Langenberg, made this one of the best years in wrestling for Winside.

PLACING at the state Class C for coach Randy Humpal's Wildcats were, clockwise from left, LaVerie Miller, Mitch Pfeiffer, Tom Koll and 185 state champ Bryan Svoboda. Humpal, center, pointed out that it was Svoboda's confidence that got him through the state meet, especially in the finals. About Miller, who finished second in 159, the coach noted that he worked hard all year and did a lot better than the 12-2 score reflected in the finals. Pfeiffer's quickness enabled him to beat many heavyweights. Humpal said, adding that his opponent in the finals was a tough man to beat. About Koll, the coach said he was a darkhorse in the meet, but proved himself a contender with his desire to finish fourth in the 126-pound division.

Blue Devils Face Wisner In District

Wayne will take its 6-12 record into the third game of the Class B district basketball playoffs Saturday against third-seeded Wisner-Pilger at Platte College in Columbus. The Blue Devils, who already hold a victory over the Gators earlier in the season, will play at 6:30. Other pairings in the tournament are top-seeded Madison against Columbus Lakeview, second-seeded Pierce against Scotch Scotus and fourth-seeded Schuyler against Harrington Cedar Catholic. Pierce will go into that meet owning a topside 69-59 victory over Wayne in the final season game for both teams Friday night. Playing on their own court, the Blue Devils got off to a slow start and had to play catchup ball. Going into the final quarter the 7-8 Bluejays held a 58-29 command. The Jays, led by Andy Anderson with 16 points, cashed in at the free throw line in the second period to convert nine of 10 attempts and six baskets for 21 points and a 40-18 halftime margin. Brad Emery and Dean Carroll, who each had 12 points for coach Bill Sharpe, couldn't connect in the second period to rejuvenate their teammates. Scoring the only points in that frame were senior John Keating, playing his last game, with three of his 10 points, and junior Tom Ginn who made half of his four-point total. "We didn't play, with any intensity — no fire," said Sharpe about his team's defeat. To correct the situation in district play the head man plans to speed up his offense and go back to a press. "We haven't done that for a while," he pointed out, adding that in the Devils' first meeting with Wisner the press was effective. The story was different for See BLUE DEVILS, page 10

Allen Freshman Doesn't Fold Under Pressure of Districts

Freshman Lisa Erwin came through when the pressure was on Saturday night, pouring in a season-record 24 points to lead Allen High girls to the district championship in Class D finals at Pender. Erwin, who was called on to take over leadership in the second period when sister Susie picked up her third personal guided her club to a 17-8 first period lead, then rallied the Eagles with 15 points in the last two stanzas as coach Steve McManigal's crew posted its 14th win in 16 games. Erwin poured in eight of Allen's 10 points in the third period and half of the team's 14 in the last stanza to help her club pull away from Decatur. The freshman guard hit three straight baskets in the opening of the last period to give Allen a 10-point cushion. Sophomore Stacey Koester added 14 points to round out double-figure scoring for McManigal's club. Decatur, which was led by Sherri Haefner's 21, came back from the first-period deficit with 13 points in the second stanza to close the game to 23-21. Decatur look advantage in the absence of Susie Erwin in the second period to break inside. "Our defense simply wasn't as versatile. As a result they scored easy buckets on the press," McManigal noted. Lisa Erwin also was the leader on the boards with 14 of the team's 40. In the turnover department, Allen committed 17 to 25 for Decatur. The victory put the Eagles into regional play against Cedar Bluffs at Lyons High School, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. A win Wednesday would advance Allen to the state Class D tournament in Lincoln, March 2-4. Cedar Bluff's big plus, it has experienced and it works well together. The coach noted that a big factor in Allen's win over Decatur had to be the large crowd which supported his club. He estimated that three-fourths of the Pender gym was filled with Eagle roots. That kind of support Wednesday night sure would help the team, he added.

Pender Coast Past Wildcats

Top-seeded Pender waltzed to a 65-38 first-round victory over Winside Monday night in Class C district play at Wayne High School. Senior Doug Jasa and teammate Ed Hastings combined for 45 points, helping the Penderons coast to a 20-2 first quarter lead and a 36-18 halftime margin. Jasa led the duo with 34 points while as a team Pender connected on 41 percent of its shots. "When you shoot 23 percent there's not much you can do," said Wildcat coach Sam Colvin after his club closed the basketball season with a 1-12 record. Paul Roberts and Chuck Peter led Colvin's club with 10 points each. Top rebounder was Peter with 14. There's Still Time to Sign Up

Although the deadline has passed for golfers to sign up for the Wayne Country Club's Wednesday night men's golf league, club "treasurer" Dave Schulte said there are still openings available if members contact him immediately. The number of men signed up is rapidly approaching the 152-player limit, Schulte added. League action will begin either the 19th or 26th of April. Complete team rosters are expected to be released about the middle of March, he said.

There is a fine line between weightlifting in the Olympics, and powerlifting, which is becoming one of the fastest growing sports in the country, said Dan Helgenberger, president of the Wayne State Barbell Club. Basically, Olympic lifting consists of two lifts, the clean and jerk, and the snatch. Powerlifting, on the other hand, consists of three lifts — deadlift, squat and bench press. But the big difference, Helgenberger went on, is that powerlifting is more of a strength sport which requires technique and form. "Strength is the key," he reiterated. Strength also is required in Olympic lifting, but the emphasis is on speed, quickness and agility, he added. Helgenberger hopes to show how powerlifting can help develop a person's muscle coordination as well as muscles when he presents a clinic Saturday, March 4, at Wayne State's Rice Auditorium. The clinic, which will feature two of the state's top lifters, will concentrate on the use of powerlifting in high school and college football programs. Demonstrating the different techniques in lifting will be Mike Kennedy, former Cornhusker linebacker, and Eddie Nellor, Beemer, a premeier lifter in Nebraska. The day-long program will begin at 10 a.m. with a film on powerlifting and what it has done for the sport of football. Kennedy and Nellor then will give demonstrations. Following a noon break, the program will continue with a slide presentation and question and answer session. Helgenberger is hoping to attract a large gathering. He's already sent out information to 170 high schools and plans to place ads in newspapers as well as on radio and television. Not long ago powerlifting was one of the safest sports going. Like all sports, a

Fourth-Period Scramble Lifts Walthill

At the outset of the second game of the Class C district tournament Tuesday night, it looked like powerhouse Walthill was going to blow Wakefield off the court. But coach Joe Coble's Trojans wouldn't give up. The Blue Jays, who held a 16-point margin early in the first half, wasted away that lead for an eight-point margin at the half before finally putting their game together in the last eight minutes for a runaway 62-62 victory. The win put the 17-3 Jays up against 13-8 Laurel tonight (Thursday) at 8 o'clock in the second showdown for both clubs. Walthill, which had six players scoring in double figures, literally coasted to a 23-15 first-period lead and used its last break game in the early minutes of the second stanza to forge a 16-point cushion. However, the Trojans came back on near-perfect free throw shooting (making 8 of 10) to trail by eight at the half, 41-33.

Coble's crew, led by Brad Jon with a team-high 16 points, and Doug Starz with 13, cut Walthill's lead to seven points at the start of the fourth before Walthill spread out its offense and patiently looked for the open plays.

Jay Bellar led coach Tom Carney's Jays with 18 points. He was followed by Donnie Archer with 14, Eddie Stansberry with 13, Russell Stansberry with 11 and 10 each for Mike Samson and John Miller. The Trojans ended their campaign with a 12-9 record.

Wacker Leads Wayne Matmen

Wayne High's 145-pound grappler, junior Ward Wacker, finished his 1977 campaign with a respectable 22-9 record, including a pair of wins in the state tournament last week.

The Class B matman, who was the only one of four Blue Devils to win in the first round of the Class B state meet in Lincoln, lost his second match but came back to win another, coach Don Koenig pointed, before his man was eliminated Friday.

Also finishing the season with respectable records were Wayne's 98-pounder, Larry Hank with 22 wins and seven defeats; 105-pound Rick Lutt with a 16-13-1 record, and 138-pound Kelly Hansen with a 15-6-1 mark.

Hansen is the only one of the four who will graduate this year.

Loss of Martin Could Change Laurel's Plans

Without the services of forward Mike Martin, Laurel coach Joel Parks may have to dig into his bag of tricks to pull out what very few teams have done this year — beat Walthill.

The 6-5 senior exited the game in the second quarter of Tuesday night's shootout with Ponca and was taken to Providence Medical Center for a routine check for any broken bones. Fortunately, the preliminary reports showed only a sprained ankle, but the question still remained: Will Martin be ready for the semifinal battle against the Blue Jays tonight (Thursday).

If not, Parks plans on using either Dale White or Phil Weidenfeld to fill Martin's shoes. With a 72-67 loss to Walthill still lingering in Parks' mind, the coach said that his Bears may have to rely more heavily on their outside shooting to pull them through the second tussle this season with the 17-3 Walthill clan.

Any thoughts of facing Walthill in the semifinals took a backseat during first half action where a fired up Ponca clan had the favored Bears trailing by as many as 12 points.

Behind junior Brian Voss' 14 points, the Indians took a 33-25 halftime command during the second night of Class C district action and stretched the lead to 39-29 midway through the third period.

But late in the third Laurel ignited on the shooting of guard Don Dalton with six and center Bob Dahlquist with eight to pull within one, 43-42, going into the final stanza.

Laurel took command for the first time in the game when Steve Anderson hit a 20 footer from the top of the key with 7:21 remaining for a 44-43 edge.

Two minutes later Dahlquist hit a two-pointer for a three-point Laurel cushion, 48-45, before the Bears gradually pulled out their 12th win against eight losses.

"We played a poor first half, but we made up for it with a good second half," the coach reflected. The main reason for the turn around, Parks added, was due to the play of Dalton who finished the night as the third leading pointmaker with 10.

Anderson, who poured in 16 points in the first half, led Laurel with 20 while Dahlquist scored most of his 13 points in the second half.

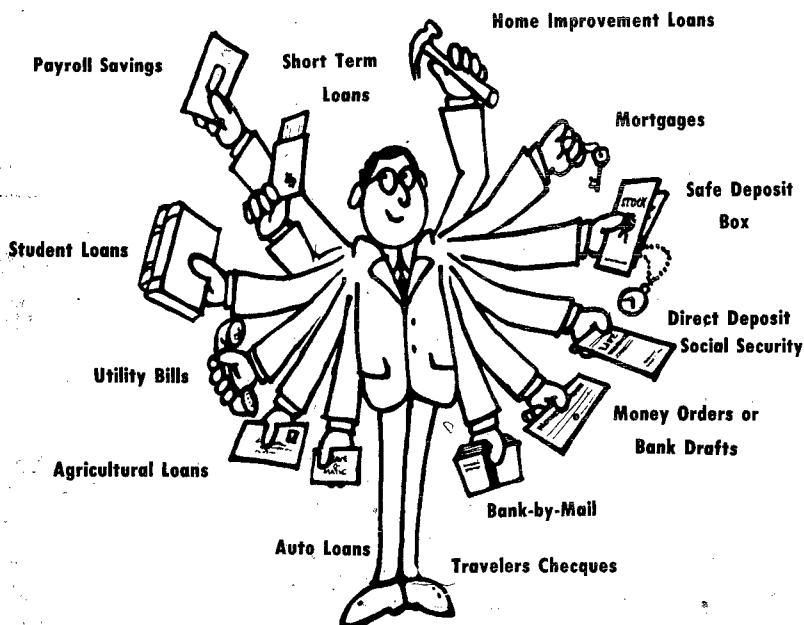

Ponca, which recorded four straight wins going into district play at Wayne High, finished the season with an 8-8 record under new head coach Terry Flynn.

Voss was the top scorer for Ponca with 26 points. He was followed by Don Bourn with 13 and Sheldon-Koeppel with 10.

WAKEFIELD'S Val Johnson (31) finds that there's a lot of contact under the boards when the 6-6 Trojan goes in for a layup in second half action Tuesday night at Wayne High's auditorium. Walthill ran to a 16-point lead in the second quarter but saw that lead whittled down to eight at the half. Wakefield continued to stay within striking range of the speedy Blue Jays until the final period when Walthill outran coach Joe Coble's club.

We're MORE than just a place to save money ...

Wayne Gals Trip Cedar In B Meet

Balanced scoring throughout four periods of Class B district play powered Wayne High girls to an easy 51-35 conquest of Hartington Cedar Catholic at Platt College in Columbus.

Led by junior Peg Pinkelman with 16 points and sophomore Susie Proett with 14, the 12-4 Blue Devils of coach Curt Frye burned the nets from the outside.

Also contributing to the big victory, Frye pointed out, was another guard, Lesa Barclay, who tallied nine markers to help her team gain a berth in the semifinals tonight (Thursday) at 8 o'clock against Wisner-Pilger. "We didn't have any big quarters," Frye explained. "We just played good defense against an awfully tall Hartington club."

Wayne's strategy was to keep Hartington from penetrating the middle, forcing the Trojans guards to shoot from the outside. As a result, Wayne was able to grab the missed shots and fire the ball down court to the breaking guards for the quick points.

Wayne already owns a victory over Wisner, that coming in the West Husker tournament. But the coach cautioned his team and fans from becoming too overconfident that his girls will find the Gators an easy ticket to the finals Friday night.

St. Mary's Tourney Opens Sunday

The first of five weeks of tournament bowling opens this Sunday at Melodee Lanes in Wayne where St. Mary's Men's Club will hold its 10th annual tourney.

In past years over $4,000 in prize money has been awarded to the top kettlers in team, singles, doubles and all-events, and if all goes well this year said tournament secretary Harold Murray, the total could be higher if the tournament is filled. Last year the meet averaged 45 teams, 360 singles, 180 doubles and 100 all-event bowlers during the five weeks of action.

This year the tournament will run six weeks, taking a break for Easter, March 26th.

Entry forms are available at Melodee Lanes. The fees are $40 per team, $16 doubles, $8 singles and $2 all events.

Corn Borers' Unpredictable'

It's impossible to accurately forecast the European corn borer situation for the 1978 growing season, according to Dr. David Keith, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension entomologist. Although a lot of borers went into the winter, many of them won't survive the cold weather.

"Long, cold winters are hard on them," the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said, and in addition, a fungus disease attacking borers last fall should help to further reduce their numbers. "The disease killed nearly 50 percent of the pests in some fields surveyed last October," he said.

Conditions have to be just right for heavy corn borer infestations, Keith said. Warm, calm evenings in June are ideal for the flight of moths which produce the first generation of corn borers. The eggs are usually laid in masses of 15 to 25 near the midrib on the undersides of corn leaves, overlapping like fish scales.

"The farmer should keep an eye on fields through June and early July," Keith said, and be prepared to treat for borers. It is important to control borers before they have entered the stalks, as control is impossible after that time.

The need for insecticide treatment for the first generation corn borers is determined by examining early planted corn 36 inches or taller for evidence of whorl feeding. The young larvae feed first on the leaf near the hatched egg mass. As the larvae grow, they move to the whorl or leaf sheath area to feed. When leaves emerge, the shothole feeding signs and borer excrement become obvious.

Treatments with insecticides should be started if shotholes in whorl leaves are seen on 50 percent of the corn plants in dryland fields, 35 percent in irrigated fields, 25 percent in popcorn or 15 percent in seed fields, Keith said. Heaviest first generation activity is expected in the earliest planted fields, he said.

It is often difficult to tell when control of second generation borers will be profitable. Late-maturing fields that have green silks during the second brood moth flight in late July and August are most attractive to moths for egg laying. When late developing fields have an average of one egg mass per plant, or most plants have small borers feeding on leaf axils, controls may be feasible. Heavily infested fields should be harvested early to prevent field losses, he said.

"Cultural practices and natural controls may reduce crop losses due to borer activity," Keith said. Certain practices can be used to help reduce the need for insecticide applications. "Beneficial insects and diseases of the borer may also play important roles in reducing problems with the pest," he added.

Keith said stalk shredding can destroy up to 50 percent or more of the overwintering larvae, thus reducing the number of larvae that can change to moths and lay eggs. However, unless this is done on an area-wide scale there is little chance of reducing the borers significantly. Burning corn stalks is also not recommended, as it causes loss of nitrogen and water-holding organic matter, Keith said.

Clean plowing is not a recommended practice due to the energy, required and potential wind erosion problems, but turning the stalks under does prevent many of the moths from emerging, he said.

Some commercial hybrids See CORN, page 7

EUROPEAN CORN borers can reduce corn yields significantly if untreated. They bore into the corn stalks, interfering with movement of plant nutrients within the stalk and reducing yield potential an average of three percent per borer. The pests also bore into and feed within stalks, tassels, ears and ear shanks, causing losses due to broken stalks, dropped ears and difficulties in mechanical harvesting. WINTER FEEDING OF BIRDS

Winter is the most difficult of all seasons for wildlife. Most food sources are scarce, the air temperatures are low, and nights are much longer than days. The decreased availability of wildlife foods during the winter presents an annual hazard to most wildlife. Succulent green plants are gone and the insect eaters must turn to other foods.

The lessing of cover is caused by losses of leaves from deciduous trees and shrubs and the matting of grass by the pressure of snows. This decrease in available cover causes animals to concentrate in the best cover spots. The result of this grouping causes some species to become easy prey for predators. Low temperatures are detrimental to the well being of wildlife from the standpoint of heat generation. Fuel for heat production in wildlife is food - lots of palatable high energy food. Since each animal's consumptive capacity is limited, the quality is of great importance.

The feeding of game birds in insulate places is possible and feasible. Ear corn is probably best for pheasants, quail and rabbits. Impaling the ears on sticks or nails driven into sticks

LAMB MANAGEMENT

Start good lamb management by identifying the ewe and the lamb before they are taken out of their small lambing pen and returned to the flock.

Castration and tail docking should be done when lambs are 3 to 10 days old, the sooner the better, because there's less shock and set back. Use a knife, an "all-in-one" docker, and emasculator, or rubber bands, and be sure to disinfect all equipment.

To dock lambs, cut the tail off 1 1/2 inches from the body. Push the skin on the tail towards the body before cutting. This lets the loose skin cover the stub so the bone is not exposed.

Provide lambs with an attractive, warm dry area for creep feeding. This area should include heat lamps, a palatable grain ration and good, leafy alfalfa hay.

Getting ewes to accept lambs - either their own or an orphan - sometimes requires special attention. Keep the ewe and the lamb in the same pen. If the ewe refuses a lamb, hold her so the lamb has a chance to nurse a few times. Squirt milk over the lamb's head and back and over the ewe's nose.

Ewes claim lamb by scent and can sometimes be fooled by rubbing strongly-scented vaporizer jelly on their noses. Another possibility is to skin the ewe's own dead lamb and put the skin on the lamb you want her to adopt.

Big Power from Small Dams

By Cecil D. Andrus
Secretary of the Interior

I'm sure everyone realizes by now that this Administration is not promoting more and bigger dams. But few are aware that we are designing and seeking funds for increasing power generation from existing sites. This involves rewinding and upgrading older power plants. In addition, there are literally thousands of low dams and other water-control structures (such as canal drops) where small generating plants could be installed.

A recent study found more than 16,000 recreation reservoir dams, 7,000 flood-control dams, an equal number of water-supply dams and 6,000 irrigation dams with sufficient water volume and "head" (a measure of water drop) to power small turbines. That's a lot of potential power. Enough, in fact, to raise our present hydroelectric supply by one-third to one-half. And that's a truly significant boost, when you consider that hydroelectric now furnishes nearly 16 percent of our total electric needs.

An obvious question at this point is: "If small dams are so great, why haven't we tried them before?" The answer is that we have, that's how electric power first appeared in this country; from thousands of small, local dams built to meet the local needs of communities, factories and so forth.

But we abandoned this approach in the 20th Century with the advent of larger dams, and with the coming of vast quantities of cheap petroleum. For a time, it was inefficient and uneconomical to rely on small power plants. But there are significant advantages to smaller structures. Let's examine some of those advantages: First of all, hydroelectric power is the least expensive to produce, using a renewable, free-flowing resource - water. Costs range from $600 to $1200 per kilowatt of installed capacity.

These are small beginnings, and much more needs to be done. See POWER, page 7

Obviously, larger dams, with their greater head pressures, are more efficient than smaller ones. But even the "minis" can produce electric power in the range of $1200 per kilowatt. In contrast, thermal and nuclear plants, which use costly and non-renewable fossil fuels, may cost up to $2400 per kilowatt of installed capacity.

Small dams can also be the cleanest source of power, and have the least impact on fish, wildlife and environmental quality. Giant dams create problems in the passage of anadromous fish, such as shad, steelhead and salmon. Fish ladders and other structures to aid in fish migration can be expensive and often less than satisfactory. But these same refinements are relatively easy to build and operate on smaller structures.

Big dams also require huge reservoirs, which can be ecologically harmful, while hydro generation added to existing small dams has little additional impact on the environment.

These and other considerations are already prompting a handful of utility companies to use abandoned sites, or dams originally built for other purposes, as alternatives to investing in large nuclear or coal-fired plants. In Springfield, Vermont, for example, officials plan to use seven old mill dams to supply the electrical needs of the town's 10,000 residents.

These are small beginnings, and much more needs to be done. See POWER, page 7

Fence Proves Coyote-Proof

Plans for construction of an effective anti-coyote electric fence are described in a new U.S. Department of Agriculture leaflet, No. 565.

The new Piesse predator fence is successful where previous fences have failed, and costs at least 25 to 35 percent less than conventional fencing to construct.

Invented by Australian fencing contractor Robert Piesse, it consists of 12 alternating ground and charged wires. An additional charged trip wire is placed eight inches from the fence around the outside perimeter, about six inches from the ground. The shock from the fence repels, but does not injure coyotes; thus, it is safe for dogs or sheep that accidentally touch the wire. The installation also includes a non-electric coyote-proof gate.

Free copies of leaflet no. 565 can be obtained from Publications, SEA Information Division, Room 344, Federal Building 1, Hyattsville, Md. 20782.

Can Control Blowing Snow

Recent snows blowing from the southeast in addition to earlier snows blowing from the north and northwest have caused some farmers and homeowners to renew their thinking about trees and fences arranged for natural snow control.

According to Stan Starling, Dixon County Extension Agent, much labor can be saved by giving thought to new improvements and alteration of existing tree stands.

This is a good time of the year to observe snow patterns and get out your paper and pencil to think about new designs.

There is no set design for snow and wind barriers; the best design will vary for different building and road arrangements, often requiring some individual experimenting, and may change as trees grow taller. A few general guidelines will aid planning. For example, free plantings should not butt up to a road. A minimum of 100 feet of space should be allowed between the end of a wind barrier and the road fence.

to reestablish the network of small dams that once flourished. American companies, for instance, now make only large generators for large dams, so we may have to look initially to Europe where the technology still flourishes for this equipment. But I am confident that as demand rises, American firms will respond to the need.

As Secretary of the Interior, I look forward to playing a lead role in this exciting challenge. In the coming fiscal year, the Department's Bureau of Reclamation, under the leadership of Commissioner R. Keith Higinson, is requesting $22 million for investigations and research emphasizing increased hydroelectric generation. By setting the example and demonstrating the feasibility of low-head power generation, I believe we can encourage State and local governments (which control the use of a vast majority of small dams) to follow suit.

carry a chemical resistance factor to first generation borers, so variety selection is important. By the time the tassels emerge, however, this resistance disappears. Keith said seed dealers can give information on which varieties are best able to withstand borer infestation. "Several seed companies are working hard to develop good levels of resistance to both first and second generation borers," he noted.

"Direct-resistance varieties help a lot in reducing pest problems and farmers shouldn't have to use insecticides as often due to the improvements," he said, however, before selecting a hybrid for borer resistance make sure it is a proven performer in your production area, he warned.

Early harvest is critical in reducing damage from the second generation, he stressed, because the longer corn remains in the field after maturity, the greater the amount of stalk lodging, breakage and ear dropping, especially with heavy infestations.

"Early harvest and drying is usually more profitable, especially for late planted fields when second generation borers are numerous," he said.

Warm, humid nights are more favorable for egg laying, Keith said. Cool nights—below 60 degrees F.—reduce or eliminate egg laying. Hot, dry weather will dry the egg masses so they fall from the leaf and, if the eggs should hatch successfully, many small borers will not survive. Heavy rainfall just after a hatch will also kill many young borers, he added.

Disease organisms sometimes account for much of the decrease in borer activity, he said. In addition to the aforementioned fungus disease, another disease organism infects all stages of the borer, resulting in fewer eggs being laid by the moths and fewer larvae surviving.

Predators and parasites also decrease borer populations. Birds, for example, feed on overwintering borers, he said. Larvae and adults of lady beetles and lacewing larvae feed on the eggs and newly hatched larvae. A parasitic fly occasionally kills a small percentage of the corn borer larvae.

If cultural and natural controls fail, properly timed and properly applied insecticides are needed, Keith said.

Corn borer insecticides may be applied as granules or sprays, but granular types generally have been more effective, he said.

Protect Pets Too!

Just as you and your family are protected by vaccinations, so should your pets be protected against equally serious diseases—rabies, distemper and hepatitis. Do name just a few! Puppies are usually given "mummy shots" to provide temporary immunity until they reach vaccination age, and kittens can be safely vaccinated after weaning. Be sure that your animals have had their shots... because you love your pets... and because you love your family.

Rural Dixon Woman Cited

A rural Dixon woman was honored as the 1977 Woman of the Year earlier this month by the Rural Northeast Deaneary Council of Catholic Women. Mrs. Vincent (Jeannie) Kavanaugh received the award during a Day of Recollection held at St. Joseph's Church in Ponca. She was selected from 13 nominations representing 14 parishes in the Rural Northeast Deaneary.

A celebrated mass was held during the day at St. Joseph's Church. Celebrating the mass were the Rev. Dan Solitsy of St. Joseph's Church and the Rev. Tom Adams of St. Anne's Church in Dixon.

The award was presented to Mrs. Kavanaugh by Father Adams at the conclusion of the mass. Mrs. Kavanaugh, who is the mother of four children, was cited for her kindness towards others and her charitable work within her community, church and family.

Father Adams, commenting on this year's recipient, said "Much has been asked of her by the Lord, and much has been given."

Mrs. Kavanaugh was introduced by Mrs. Joan Walsh of Hubbard, president of the North-east Deaneary Council of Catholic Women. Mrs. Walsh described the activities which earned Mrs. Kavanaugh the award.

Mrs. Kavanaugh and her husband farm near Dixon. Their children are Vincent, 17, Pam, 13, Tammy, 11, and Jan, six.

Gotch Leads Allen Quint

Allen boys chalked up their second win in a row and their fourth of the season Tuesday night with a 58-54 come-from-behind decision over Rosalie during Class D district play at Wakefield.

The Eagles, now 4-12, were scheduled to play Decatur Wednesday night at 6 for the right to go on in tournament action.

To keep alive in the district meet, coach Cliff Jorgensen said his team would have to play a better ball game, both offensively and defensively, than it did against Rosalie.

The Eagles, led by three players in double figures, had no trouble taking a 16-12 first-period lead, but couldn't keep the momentum going in the second stanza.

Rosalie took an eight-point halftime lead with the assistance of Lee Novak, who finished with a team-high of 24 points. Allen slowly started to change the tempo of the game in the last two quarters and finally took the lead in the last period.

Leading the Eagles' charge were Bart Gotch, who sank a bucket in the closing seconds of last week's 51-49 victory over Wynot. Gotch dropped in 11 of his team-high 19 points while Greg Carr and Brent Chase each contributed eight.

Table with 5 columns: Name, FG, FT, P, PTS. Rows include Allen, Rosalie, Allen, Bart Gotch, Greg Carr, Fred Elms, Fred Chase, Mar Cremer, Richard Stewart, Terry Stewart, ROSALIE, Wynot 43.

Allen 51 Wynot 43 Allen gave new head coach Cliff Jorgensen his first taste of victory Friday night when the 2-1 Eagles roared back in the final quarter to nip Wynot in the 16-13 and Clark Conference play.

Allen trailed 18-7 after the first period and 32-24 at the half. The Eagles closed the gap to 38-34 after three periods before they staged their rally.

Senior Todd Ellis led Jorgensen's crew with 16 points.

A thank you was read from Mrs. Kenneth Gustafson. It was decided to visit the Care Center in Wakefield three times this year, the first to be in April. An announcement was made that a Health Conference will be held April 18 at the Villa Inn in Norfolk. Mrs. Rudy Longe presented the lesson "On Your Own."

Wrestling Tournament

Weekend Guests

The Gary Sorensons, Kearney, were weekend guests in the Don Dolph home. Joining them for dinner Sunday were the Dan Dolphs and Mrs. Mike Sievers and girls.

Now young Corey is just one of the family. "It seem's hard to believe that we've only had him for three years. Seems more like seven," the proud father added.

Three of the Angels are sidelined by injuries received in a practice session last Sunday. Ray Murray, Angel coach, resigned as the injuries nearly wiped out his backshop force. Al Pippitt has been named as replacement coach.

And what does Corey think about life in these United States? "I love football. Me and dad play it all the time," he laughed. Corey also is a boxing fan who likes to spar with his dad.

Bob Bartlett, highly respected basketball prognosticator, gave the firepersons a 100-1 edge. He is playing for the Angels.

And how does his sister, six-year-old Kelli, feel about having a brother? Outside of the good times and companionship, she shrugged her shoulders and whispered, "It's better than nothin'."

The City of Wayne will conduct its monthly testing of Civil Defense sirens at 1 p.m., Feb. 24.

Normal time sequence for each of the sirens would be a full three minutes. Since this is for testing purposes only, they will be shut off after one minute so the public can quickly determine the difference between test and actual warning.

Sirens will be allowed to run only one minute with a three minute pause between each siren test. Sirens will be tested in the following sequence: Alert - Used for tornado or other natural disaster warning; both high and low siren on for one minute. Attack - Both high and low on for ten seconds, off for ten seconds, continuing for one minute.

"Same song, eighth verse"

CAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Paul

Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — There were no major surprises in Gov. J. James Exon's budget recommendations to the Legislature.

In fact, some of the legislators characterized the governor's appropriations proposals as "the same song, eighth verse."

Exon did not deviate from his philosophy of fiscal restraint, which has been expounded to the lawmakers frequently during the more than eight years the governor has been in office.

Despite serious problems in the agricultural sector, Nebraska is in overall good financial condition, Exon said. Because 1978 will not be a good financial year for farmers and ranchers, this is one important reason for "extreme prudence in spending and the launching of any substantial new programs that fuel expenditures," he added.

On the bright side, the governor cited Nebraska's low 4.1 percent unemployment rate and a General Fund balance of $44 million on January 31.

He proposed providing $552 million for General Fund obligations and reserves and said he will do "all in my authority" to prevent any increases in the sales and income tax rates.

Exon told the Legislature he could forego no cash flow problems or tax increases "provided you accept my recommendations and restrictions."

The governor suggested an expenditure of $2.4 million to begin a gradual assumption of county Medicaid costs. If that were coupled with an effective lid on spending, taxpayers could be assured of some property tax relief, he said.

If the legislature refused to go along with that approach, Exon said, "Pouring further millions of state-collected dollars to subdivisions without seriously addressing the probability of real estate tax relief is meaningless and fiscally irresponsible."

A couple of days later, the lawmakers refused to heed his plea for a ceiling on local governmental spending and killed the governor's spending lid bill.

Exon said he trimmed budget requests from the various state agencies by $62 million in order to keep the sales tax at 3 percent and the state income tax at 14 percent.

The governor's total budget, including revenue from all sources calls for spending of some $977 million during the fiscal year starting July 1.

Exon said his budget would allow the state to meet its legitimate needs without higher taxes.

A spot check of the legislators immediately after the speech showed them agreeing the governor had not said anything very much new. Several Accused Exon of fashioning a "politically pragmatic" budget during a year when he is seeking election to the U.S. Senate and half the lawmakers are up for re-election.

"The speech generally echoed what the senators have been saying about the need to hold taxes at their existing rates," said Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

He added there will not be a "wide variance" in the total amount of expenditures advocated by the governor and the amount his committee will propose.

Lid Bill Killed

After Gov. J. James Exon learned the Legislature had killed his bill that would have placed a lid on local government spending, he said he would endorse an initiative petition to submit the proposition to the voters.

He also said he was surprised by the legislative action and by the margin of the 29-16 kill vote.

The bill was at the heart of the governor's program to give some measure of relief from constantly spiraling property taxes.

Exon said he would not have time to lead a petition drive but would endorse the idea and sign an initiative petition.

The kill effort was led by Jack Mills of Big Springs, who said the measure was impractical and would erode local control of local government.

Sen. J. R. Murphy of South Sioux City claimed the bill was politically motivated and should be passed to put the governor on the spot. Senator Loran Schmit of Bellwood agreed while pointedly noting Exon's budget recommendations proposed spending three times as many dollars as when Exon first took office.

One of the governor's complaints has been that local officials keep coming to the state to seek more money but that many refuse to guarantee any form of property tax relief in return.

Pro-Life Amendment Debated

A legislative resolution designed to help lead to a national constitutional convention for consideration of a pro-life amendment to the federal constitution attracted about 200 persons to a hearing before the Legislature's Public Health and Welfare Committee.

The resolution was sponsored by Sens. Bernice Labez of Omaha, Patrick Venditte of Omaha and Frank Lewis of Bellevue.

Those favoring the resolution said the pro-life issue is national in scope and could best be dealt with at a constitutional convention. Some told the committee grassroots efforts to change the constitution historically have been effective in getting Congress to act on national issues.

Venditte said this country is in its fifth year of condoning "prenatal homicide." His reference was to the 1973 U.S. Supreme Court decision that allowed women a choice in having abortions before the third trimester of a pregnancy. Venditte said the abortion issue is "at least as important as the slavery issue was at the time of the Civil War."

Barbara Gathier, executive director of the Nebraska Civil Liberties Union disagreed. She urged the committee to defeat the resolution, arguing that a pro-life stance takes away a woman's right to privacy and her right to choice.

Anne Wilson of the Nebraska League of Women Voters said that the organization was concerned about the possible consequences of a constitutional convention because other subjects could be injected into the proceedings.

Mrs. Wilson said the league has not taken a stand on the abortion issue.

No Reconsideration

Nebraska lawmakers refused to reconsider their action in killing a bill that would have abolished the death penalty, but the sponsor of the measure says he is not giving up.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha had been trying to convince his colleagues they should declare a moratorium on executions until after the people have had a chance to ballot on a constitutional amendment that would strip the State Pardon Board of the power to reduce mandatory prison sentences for those convicted of first degree murder.

But a resolution proposing that such an amendment be placed before the people was also killed recently. Chambers himself made the kill motion, after several senators offered amendments he said would only "clutter" the constitution.

Legislative observers did not know what Chambers next move would be, but they did not expect him to drop the issue.

Asks for RSVP Cut

This week the Legislature started having full day sessions. Most of the bills have now been heard in committee. If it is necessary to schedule more hearings, these will be heard over noon hour or after we have adjourned for the day.

Last week the Legislature's Public Health and Welfare heard their own bill that they introduced, LB 788. This Committee bill would allow the manufacture, prescription, and distribution of Laetrile in Nebraska. Laetrile is an extract of apricot pits believed by some to help control cancer. The 3 1/2 hour hearing prompted both tears and accusations from both sides on the controversial issue. At times the room was silent when victims explained to the committee their experiences and tragedies. Witnesses on both sides talked of court cases, statistics and studies.

Proponents for the use of Laetrile said that one federal court decision makes the drug's sale and distribution legal over the entire country and that the FDA does not have the right to stop the distribution of this drug. Others told the committee that the American Cancer Society was sitting back and smirking while the deadly concoction lies before us. Also, that Nebraska's should have the freedom of choice to determine if they want to use Laetrile. Another person said he would continue to use the Laetrile therapy he began some time ago and that this is the only hope he had left.

Among the opponents was a woman who had used Laetrile in trying to control her cancerous condition but returned to the traditional treatment of chemotherapy. Her husband said he wondered how much her chances were cut by delaying the proven method. A University of Nebraska Medical Center Doctor testified that the proposed legislation is most undesirable and Laetrile is still unproven. He could see no benefit at all.

The director of the State Health Department's Bureau of Examining Board emphasized that drug laws must be viewed by the Federal government to ensure that there is a proper testing and adequate protection and Laetrile does not meet this test. A spokesman of the Food and Drug Administration called the Laetrile movement a major fraud and said it constitutes a serious public health problem in this country. When asked about freedom of choice, he replied, "I think the only free choice is an informed choice." Fourteen states have now legalized Laetrile.

I am not on the Public Health and Welfare Committee but I'm sure it will be a hard decision for them to make on whether to move the bill to general file, to indefinitely postpone or hold for further study.

Costs keep increasing

Every month, the Bureau of Labor Statistics released from Washington its report on the cost of living. It usually shows an increase and invariably the increase reflects a rise in the cost of food.

Buried in the cost of food that is being put on the table is the rising cost of energy, not only the energy needed to produce food but the considerable amount needed for processing, shipping, storing and marketing the food.

Energy costs on the farm are going up for basically the same reason you find your fuel bills increasing: We have become too dependent on imported oil. In fact, 48 percent of the petroleum we consume comes from overseas and the pricing of that oil is out of U.S. hands. It is set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

Farmers depend heavily on petroleum to operate their equipment, to run their irrigation pumps and for use in fertilizers and pesticides. In addition, many farmers use natural gas for irrigation and drying their crops. This fuel resource is expensive and in short supply in some parts of the country.

There are many instances of farms throughout the country where the costs of natural gas for irrigation and crop drying have gone up as much as 300 percent over the last several years and that cost continues to rise. In a telephone survey conducted by the Agricultural Council of America and other government agencies, farmers reported that their overall fuel costs have gone up 12 to 20 percent in the past year and they expect this trend to continue through the next farming cycle.

Since fuel expenditures on the farm run to at least 20 percent of the farmer's total operating costs, annual fuel increases as large as 12 percent constitute a very heavy burden which the farmer cannot absorb by himself — it is passed on to the consumer.

Nevertheless, the farmer has been very innovative in conserving energy. One Texas farmer reported that he built a $750 solar grain dryer to replace one that burned natural gas. Now his costs to dry grain are one-tenth of what they were. Another farmer is switching to diesel burning equipment as rapidly as his gasoline operated machines wear out.

More and more windmills are appearing on the farm — where historically the first practical use of these wind-driven devices was made — for pumping water, and in some instances generating electricity for the farm household. But there is a limit to the amount of corner-cutting a farmer will do. Some, no longer willing to bear the increasing energy costs, are now farming less land. Rather than tilling, they are turning much acreage over to cattle grazing, a lesser strain on their costly energy resources.

Actually only three percent of the nation's energy is consumed on the farm. The real kicker comes in the overall energy costs in the total food industry. Agribusiness — farming, processing, shipping, storing, marketing, etc. — accounts for an estimated 16 percent of all the energy consumed in the U.S. So it figures that when energy costs go up, grocery costs go up, grocery bills also climb.

So long as the cost of energy used in agribusiness continues to rise (and that includes the increasing costs of gasoline and diesel fuel in the 18-wheelers that bring the food to the market), these increases will be reflected in the costs of food and fibers which come from Farmland U.S.A.

And the costs do not end at the checkout counter at your friendly neighborhood supermarket. If you drove to the market to pick up your groceries, there is the cost of gasoline for the round trip. When you begin the final cycle of meal preparation from refrigeration to table,

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786.

Debate Use of Laetrile

Volunteer programs involving the elderly are in for a sizable cut if President Carter's recommendations are accepted, according to Charley Thone, Representative 1st district.

President Carter is asking for a large increase for some volunteer programs. Thone noted, "but he wants a sizable cut in volunteer programs that involve the elderly."

"A 52 percent increase in funds for volunteers in services to America (VSITA) is requested in the President's budget for the next fiscal year."

"In contrast, the President's budget asks for a seven percent cut in funds for Older American volunteer programs. These include Foster Grandparents, Senior Companions and the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP)."

"Both the older American and VISTA volunteer programs are administered by ACTION, the federal agency coordinating voluntary service."

"The President's budget recommends about $4 million increase for administrative costs in Washington, regional and state offices of ACTION, an $11 1/2 million hike for the Peace Corps and a $13 million boost for VISTA. The President requests that older American volunteer program funding be cut by $4 million.

"The Administration indicates that all of the cut in the older American programs will be borne by RSVP. If figured this program costs less per person served than any other ACTION program."

"The RSVP volunteers receive no pay. The average RSVP program in Nebraska has less than two full-time employees."

"RSVP volunteers are serving hospitals, institutions, schools, and nursing homes in Alliance, Chadron, Crawford, Falls City, Grand Island, Hastings, Henderson, Kearney, Lincoln, North Platte, Ogallala, Omaha, Rushville, Seward and Winnebago. Four other Nebraska communities want to start RSVP programs."

"If the Carter Administration recommendation is allowed to stand, it's likely that four of the Nebraska RSVP programs would be discontinued. I'm very hopeful that Congress will ignore the President's recommendations and provide for the volunteer programs that give the most help per dollar invested."

Thought for Today
By Brian McBride
"Genius is only great patience."
Buffon
Perhaps it would be too presumptuous to amend this by saying "much of genius is only great patience." It must have been patience... dedicated, unswerving patience... that contributed so greatly to mankind's advances down through the centuries.
Proving the unknown and piecing together infinitely complex jigsaw patterns to find the answers to life's problems has been a generally slow but ultimately rewarding endeavor. Patience alone cannot do much, but step by step with genius the horizons are limited only by time.
During the years we have served this community, we have made many friends through our uniformly high standards of service. Wiltse Mortuaries have served this area since 1909 through three generations of owners.
