

Crop Forecast Looks Good

Wayne county area residents may have said some unkind words about the weather this winter, but an extension agricultural climatologist states Eastern Nebraska has prospects for producing high corn yields. Dr. Ralph E. Neild directed his remarks at dryland corn farmers, stating above average pre-season precipitation amounts are the reason for his prediction.

Under average normal weather conditions, Neild said, Eastern Nebraska receives about 12 to 14 inches of precipitation from September through mid-May, when corn is planted. The region also normally averages ten days when temperatures top 95 degrees. So far, an average of nine to ten inches of precipitation — 15 to 25 percent above normal — has accumulated in the soil profile of Eastern Nebraska, where 84 percent of the dryland corn crop is grown, Neild said. Neild said the increase could quite possibly be in the 30 to 40 percent range because of the normal fall and winter moisture with prospects for a wetter spring and cooler summer. With above normal precipitation in mind, Neild said even under normal weather conditions average dryland corn crops could increase by 20 to 25 percent.

The yield forecast is based upon a statistical crop model that evaluates all factors, such as precipitation and temperatures, affecting crop yields throughout the plants' growth cycle. "What essentially has happened is that the driest area of the state last year now is the wettest," he said. "Some parts of Eastern Nebraska have had as much as 15 inches of pre-season precipitation, and the average figure for the area could reach the 16 to 20-inch mark." If the Eastern part of the state should have a wet spring and hot summer, Neild said, yields would be average, ranging from 15 to 25 percent below normal. With a dry spring and cool summer, yields would average 15 to 25 percent above normal, he said.

Under the worst possible conditions — a dry spring and hot summer — yields for dryland corn would be about 15 percent below average, the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said. "We can tolerate a little dry weather in the spring, especially if the summer is cool, because we've had an above normal precipitation accumulation during the fall," Neild said. "It also has given us a little bit of a buffer in case of a hot, dry summer."

Under the best weather conditions, we could have as much as a 30 percent increase in yield," he said. "It's much more likely to be up than down." Under normal weather conditions, dryland corn in Eastern Nebraska averages about 75 bushels per acre, although the range varies greatly, Neild said. He advised farmers to make individual yield adjustments based on the figures for their respective farmers.

In 1973, one of the best recent years for dryland corn yields, the Eastern part of the state received 20 to 22 inches of pre-season moisture and had five days of above 95 degree temperatures, he noted. One of the worst years was 1936, when the region had seven inches of pre-season moisture and 26 days of 95 degree-plus weather. If this year's weather conditions continue to be favorable, Neild said, it could reduce the amount of irrigation needed on corn in Eastern Nebraska. But irrigated acreage is not spared from heat stress, according to CROP, page 5.

ALLEN O'DONNELL, Wayne, Democratic candidate for First District Congress, Tuesday afternoon paid his filing fee to County Treasurer Leon Meyer. The filing fee is required by law and is one percent of the salary of the office for which the candidate is filing. On hand for the procedure were (left to right) Henry Ley, Wayne, campaign chairman; Julie Spatz, Plainview, campaign treasurer; Ken Olds, Wayne, former Wayne County Democratic chairman; Robert Jordan, Wayne, Wayne County Democratic treasurer and Mrs. O'Donnell.

Weather Cause Of Two Mishaps

The Wayne County Sheriff's Office investigated two accidents which were caused by icy roads and blowing snow.

A car being driven by Constance E. Franklin, a student at Wayne State College, received extensive damage to its left front end after it went out of control and smashed into a guard rail.

Sheriff's officers said the accident happened about 3:30 p.m., approximately three miles south of Wayne on Highway 15.

They said the driver was attempting to pass another vehicle when the car hit an icy patch on the road and went out of control.

There were no injuries and the guard rail was not damaged. Michelle Nieman, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Nieman, RR 2, Wayne, received a bump on her head when the car in which she was riding hit another vehicle March 2.

Officers said the accident happened during a blowing snow storm on a county road 7 miles southwest of Wayne.

Officers said a vehicle being driven by James L. Nieman was hit by a vehicle being driven by his wife, Mary. They said the vehicle being driven by James Nieman was southbound and hit a snowbank, throwing it cross-ways in the road. His wife, Mary, could not see the stalled car because of blowing snow and smashed into its side.

Officers said there was more than $250 damage to each of the vehicles.

Skeptical Concern Zoning Proposals Aired

An estimated 75 persons Tuesday night expressed skeptical concern about proposed land use controls but the general feeling seemed to be acceptance of the need for county zoning.

The meeting in the county courtroom was the first public hearing on the proposed regulations which represent two and one-half years of work by the County Joint Planning Commission.

Public testimony ranged from zoning being unnecessary to a commendation to the Commission for its work.

Orval Lage suggested the final draft of the regulations be put to a vote of the people. He said a new state law regarding zoning changed the language from "required" to "encouraged" county zoning.

Robert Vakoc said the zoning would mean giving up a "basic freedom" and the regulations "are totally unnecessary." Glen Olson complimented the Commission for its work.

The recorded testimony will be reviewed by the Commission and will be taken into consideration when drafting the final recommendation to be presented to the County Board of Commissioners.

The Commission heard formal testimony for approximately one hour and then the meeting was open to informal discussion. While the discussion was not a part of the record, the Commission said it "would weigh" the remarks when making a final decision.

The Commission went on record as stating the purpose of the rural zoning is to preserve agricultural land and to insure orderly growth.

As expected, most of the discussion centered around agricultural use of land. One of the topics concerned the size of feedlots and the regulations regarding their location and the location of residences in relation to the feedlot.

Another item which held the floor was the minimum acreage for residential construction. It was pointed out the purpose of the minimum acreage is to discourage residential building in the country as another protection of land for agriculture.

Space Age Around Corner

The space age may come to Wayne if a request from the Mutual Broadcasting System is approved.

Radio Station KTCH, Wayne, AM-FM, is 1 of 500 radio stations selected out of 780 applications to have a ten-foot satellite earth station.

If approved, the service would start this fall at KTCH. KTCH General Manager Ted Storck explained the system. He said a signal will be sent from Washington, D.C. to the Westar 1 satellite in stationary orbit above the equator and then to Wayne.

Storck said Mutual at first will have three channels on the satellite, enabling KTCH to select any one of three programs, or to broadcast different network programs on AM and FM. He said there will be times when programs will be broadcast in stereo.

Allen O'Donnell Proposes Ag Council

The plight of the family farmer because of depressed farm prices was singled out as a major issue of the First District by Democrat Candidate for Congress Allen O'Donnell of Wayne.

O'Donnell made the statement Tuesday as he paid his filing fee to Wayne County Treasurer Leon Meyer.

O'Donnell said he wants to see the family farmer-rancher become "politically strong" so that he can "compete with the other major interest groups in Washington, D.C."

Directing his attention to agriculture, O'Donnell called for the creation of a "National Agricultural Council."

The council would represent every farm group in America.

O'Donnell said the proposed council would be responsible for advancing the programs that the "producers of food and fibre need and want and to provide support for those politicians who support agriculture."

The candidate noted "this is the way labor, business and all major interest groups operate and they usually get what they need from our government."

O'Donnell said his proposed council would correct this problem. He added that if the problem isn't corrected there would be more empty farm homes across the district, more farmers being forced to the cities with the result being larger farms.

He said the farmers' political voice must be strengthened. "A National Agricultural Council can do this. The farmer has to solve his own problem by bringing the right amount of pressure on Congress."

The candidate said he believes "The USDA does not represent the farmer. It represents the processor and the consumer."

O'Donnell said that "I'm not a farmer, but I know politics. And I am running to become a politician, not a farmer. The President and the Secretary of Agriculture are farmers. . . and that is interesting."

Wayne Students Checking Shot Records

An immunization census of students in the Wayne Carroll Community School district is now underway by Mrs. Mary Black, district school nurse.

The immunization initiative campaign is being conducted to ensure that all school children are protected against Polio, Diphtheria, Tetanus, Pertussis (Whooping Cough), Measles, Rubella and Mumps.

One of the campaign's major components involves a one-time assessment of the immunization levels of students kindergarten through high school and follow-up to ensure that those inadequately protected students are provided an opportunity to be immunized.

Mrs. Black said the Nebraska State Department of Health and the Nebraska State Department of Education this spring will cooperate in the campaign by conducting a one-time immunization assessment and follow-up program of all Nebraska school children.

Recommended general guidelines for determining adequately immunized students are: Akeasles, Mumps, Rubella, one dose which can be given in a combination (3 in 1) dose. Students who received a dose prior to age one should receive an additional dose; Oral Polio, Diphtheria, Tetanus and Pertussis, a basic series of three. See CHECKING, page 5

Square Dancing Proves Popular Pasttime

By CHUCK BARNES

If square dancing can be called old fashioned, there are a lot of old fashioned people in the world today.

Wayne students in physical education classes this week learned the basics of square dancing under the watchful eye of Jerry Junck of Carroll, one of the leading square dance callers.

Junck, a 1966 graduate of Wayne High School, last year called 200 square dances. And he is booked up for another 200 this year.

Junck devotes full time to calling square dances. He first became interested in square dancing during his senior year. Dave Chambers called square dances as a hobby and organized a club in Carroll. Junck was a member of the club.

Since that time, he has been a part of the popular growth of square dancing which has spread to nearly all points of the world.

"Square dancing is typically American but because of a recent resurgence in the dance, it has grown to an international pastime," Junck explained. He is a member of the International Callers Association.

Square dancing evolved from traditional dances from England and France. Junck said Texas seems to be the "birthplace" of square dancing as it is now performed.

MIDDLE SCHOOL students circle to the left as a part of a square dance lesson taught by Jerry Junck, well-known square dance caller from Carroll.

Looking For Mayoral Bid

There is some concern about the lack of a mayoral candidate for the City of Wayne as the filing deadline nears.

Mayor Freeman Decker said he will not run for re-election. As of Wednesday, no candidate had filed for the post.

County clerk Norris Weible said he received an interpretation of the state statutes in the event there are no candidates by the deadline, 5 p.m. Friday.

Weible said if there isn't anyone filing, a petition can be circulated to put a candidate's name on the general election ballot. Deadline for filing the petition is 5 p.m. Aug. 29.

If there are no petitions filed and the general election ballot is without a candidate, the person who receives the largest number of write-in votes will be mayor.

Weible said this could result in an unqualified person being elected to the post or one who doesn't want the post.

Program Set For March 23

Planning Promotion

THESE WOMEN WERE AMONG members of the Northeast Nebraska Feeder's Auxiliary which met in Wayne last week to begin plans for a Red Meat promotion in Wayne later this month. Pictured from left are auxiliary board members Mrs. Darrel Rahm of Wayne; Mrs. Melvin Morrison of Wakefield, who is also treasurer for the auxiliary; Mrs. Art Grove of Wakefield; and Mrs. Mark Lander of Pender. Others who attended the meeting were auxiliary president Mrs. Leon Bruns of Pender and board member Mrs. Vernon Krause of Wayne. Activities during the three-day promotion, slated for March 30 through April 1, include a recipe contest and live weight judging of sheep, swine and steer. Red meat certificates, which will be redeemable in Wayne grocery stores, will be given away during the event. The promotion is jointly sponsored by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

'Play Ball' at Wayne High

The Wayne Blue Devils baseball squad this week began indoor workouts as they prepare for what could be a very successful but demanding season.

Coach Mike Mallette said he has 11 lettermen returning for this season. There were 32 candidates out for the start of practice.

Coach Mallette based his optimistic prediction on experience and a strong pitching corps. There are four pitchers from last year's squad working out. Steve Bodenstedt, senior, worked six innings last season, allowing seven hits, two runs and picking up two wins.

Vic Sharpe, the other senior and workhorse for the Blue Devils, is setting out early season drills because of a major knee operation last December.

"We are hoping that Vic will be able to begin getting his knee and arm in shape in the near future," Coach Mallette said. "The knee is still a little tender, as he only has been out of a cast for two weeks."

Sharpe worked a total of 36 innings last season, winning five games and taking two losses. He gave up 28 hits and had 22 runs scored against him.

Next in line in pitching for the Blue Devils is Tom Ginn, a junior, who worked 15 and two-thirds innings last season. He had 23 runs scored against him and gave up 25 bases on balls.

Rounding out this year's returning pitchers are Dennis Carroll, a junior and Jeff Zeiss, a sophomore. Carroll worked two innings last year and Zeiss saw one inning of action from the mound.

The pitching crew held their own in the hitting department last season. Bodenstedt, who also doubles as an infielder, had a .343 batting average. Sharpe ended the season at .395. Ginn, who also sees action at shortstop, had a .333 average with Carroll ending the season at .389 and Zeiss .250.

The average for the team last season was .323 as they came up with 112 hits in 347 times at bat. Others who could lend to the Blue Devil cause are senior Dean Carroll, who works both as a catcher and outfielder, had a .316 average last season. Al Nissen, another senior, will see action as an outfielder. He had a .258 average last season.

Letterwinner Jeff Dion, a sophomore outfielder, came up with a .250 batting average last season with Dan Ahlvers, another senior veteran working as an outfielder, had a .333 average.

Kevin Murray, senior catcher, will not see action until mid-season.

Other Blue Devils who gained experience last season were Dan Mitchell, a sophomore catcher; Jerry Goeden, a sophomore infielder; Peter Manes, a senior outfielder and Jeff Sperry.

Out for the first time this season are Kirk Echtenkamp, senior; juniors Larry Hank, Mark Gansebaum and Cal McCallister. Sophomores include Rick Metteer, Tim Thomas, Dee Johnson and Steve Sorenson. Freshmen are Tim Pfeiffer, Jere Morris, Kevin Nissen and Doug Proett.

Coach Mallette said the schedule this season is a tough one. He singled out Bancroft in a pre-season game with regular season powers in Wakefield, Lincoln East and Lincoln High.

The Blue Devils play a 13-game schedule with Decatur on April 10 being added to the lineup since the schedules have been announced.

District Tournament action will begin May 8. Wayne has qualified for the state tournament 9 out of the last 11 years. They won the state title in 1969, 1970 and 1976.

Coach Mallette said that if the Blue Devil pitching staff matures, "we will be able to compete with anyone."

VIC SHARPE, veteran Wayne High School baseball pitcher, watched as the Blue Devils went through indoor practices earlier this week. Sharpe is sidelined for the time being because of a knee operation last December. He is expected to be able to see action later in the season.

Wayne State College women's indoor track team captured two first places in earning second place at the UNO triangular Saturday at Omaha.

UNO won the meet with 89 points, followed by Wayne, 37 and Concordia, 12.

als in Wichita later this season, easily won the event at UNO, tossing the shot 37-1, over six feet farther than her nearest competitor.

Lana Buckles won the long jump with an effort of 15-1 1/2. Buckles headed a list of three Wayne State girls that finished their events in second place. She came up with a 4-6 result in the high jump. Other second place finishers for Wayne were Kim Krutz in the long jump (14-10 1/2) and Mary Jo Christen in the 60 yard hurdles (9.1).

Two Gym Classes Set

Northwest Technical Community College and Wayne State College, in conjunction with NEWUS (Northwest Technical Community College, Wayne State College, University of Nebraska, and the public schools), have scheduled two gymnastics classes beginning Tuesday, March 14th in the wrestling room at Rice Auditorium on the Wayne State campus.

The two classes will meet for a total of six hours. The first section, taught by Peg Niewohner and Sandy Perry, will meet from 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., and the second section, taught by Gale Salmon and Lindy Atwood, will follow from 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Cost of the class is $4. Interested persons may register at the first class meeting. For more information, contact Cheryl Boomer, Extended Campus, Wayne State College.

Allen Earns State Title

While the Allen girls didn't bring home a first place trophy from the state tournament, they did earn one which is almost as prestigious.

Coach Steve McManigal said the Allen girls won the Sportsmanship Award for Division D. The trophy will be presented to the team at a sports banquet to be held in April.

Coach McManigal said he is proud of the award because it testifies to the type of play of the Allen girls and it points up the demeanor of the students and fans while at the state tournament.

Coach McManigal said the support by Allen fans was "super." "There were between 400 and 500 Allen fans at the tournament and that isn't too bad for a town of 310."

Matt Hillier Ties In Shamrock Swim

At NAIA Meet Two WSC Matmen Place

Only two Wayne State wrestlers were able to win matches at the NAIA National Wrestling Tournament that ended in Whitewater, Wis., Saturday.

Kirk Hanson at 167 pounds and Don Schernikau at 126 pounds were the only winners of the eight grapplers that WSC coach Jim McDougal took to the tournament.

Hanson won two matches and lost two, ending his final season with a 14-8 record. Hanson won his first two matches, then lost to Mark Mongeon of Simon Fraser, who went on to win the titles in the 167 pound class for the second straight year. Mongeon came into the tourney with a 42-0 record.

Coach McDougal said he felt Hanson gave Mongeon the toughest fight of any match the champion had.

"Kirk did a good job," McDougal said. "He was shooting for number 1 but he lost to a very fine wrestler. I think Kirk can wrestle with anybody."

Wayne's Don Schernikau pinned Pederson of Graceland, the number 2 seed in the 126 pound class in 6:25. Schernikau was pinned himself by Cenero of Fort Lewis in the second round. McDougal said although the team didn't come up with more victories, his wrestlers performed well at the tournament.

"Guys like Gubbels (Bill) and Dave Ulrich fought some tough opponents for being only freshmen," McDougal said. "They were going up against juniors and seniors and they gave them a good fight."

The results of Wayne State wrestlers:
126 — Don Schernikau, WSC, pinned W. Pedersen, Graceland, 6:25; was pinned by A. Cernerro, Fort Lewis, 6:26.
134 — WSC, was pinned by Tony Tippolito, Biola College.

Set Meeting On Sheep

A sheep industry development meeting has been scheduled here for Friday (March 10) at 1:30 p.m. at the Wayne County Courthouse courtroom, according to Dr. Ted Doane, Extension sheep specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Among topics on the program will be a forecast for sheep production in the next 25 years and methods to increase sheep production by 100 percent in the next decade, he said.

Such a goal has been set by the National Blueprint for Expansion, a program started in 1975 that envisions revitalizing the sheep industry in the next decade by doubling lamb production and increasing wool output by 50 percent. The plan was formulated by members of the American Sheep Producers Council and its Sheep Industry Development Program Inc., the National Wool Growers Association and the National Lamb Feeders Association.

The possibility of establishing a local organization to encourage sheep production in northeast Nebraska also will be discussed, Doane said.

The nutrition of ewes, lactating ewes and creep feeding of lambs will be addressed by Dr. Vernon Krause, district Extension livestock specialist at UNL's Northeast Station at Concord.

Peoples Announces Plans

People Natural Gas has announced plans for connection of new residential customers during 1978.

A major item included in this program is a provision for providing service beyond the presently existing gas mains. Peoples said it would begin extending gas mains to connect homes and serve residential subdivisions after the ground thaws this spring.

Peoples' plans are to implement the proposed program effective at once. The connection of new customers and extension of gas mains provisions will also apply to Peoples' service area in Iowa and Minnesota. Peoples serves 44 communities in Nebraska, 111 communities in Iowa and 93 communities in Minnesota.

Under terms of its new policy, Peoples would connect new residential customers in all communities. Certain small volume interruptible users would also be eligible for service if permitted under the terms of the pipeline suppliers' tariff as approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

The addition of new customers is made possible as the result of continued energy conservation efforts by existing customers. Energy conservation enabled Peoples to approve service to approximately 4,000 new residential customers in the three states during 1977. In 1977, however, customers were required to have direct access to an existing main. Because of the continuing impact of conservation of supplies of natural gas are now adequate to warrant extending gas mains.

According to Peoples President, Stan Jervis, Peoples will continue to closely monitor its gas supply situation. "If additional reserves become available through increased conservation or from our wholesale suppliers, the new Connection Policy would be extended beyond 1978," said Jervis.

Persons wanting gas service still need to make written application at their local Peoples

Crop

The model indicates that every day above 95 degrees reduces irrigated corn yields by two bushels an acre. The model also shows that:

— The time corn ears begin forming until the kernel dents is also very sensitive to heat.

— For every inch of precipitation falling between tasseling and the dent stage, dryland corn yields are increased by one bushel per acre.

— For every inch of rain falling between tasseling and the dent stage, dryland corn gains 2.5 bushels per acre.

Neild presently is developing a statewide network to assess critical soil moisture conditions for dryland crops with Dr. Phillip Harlan, UNL extension land use specialist, and Donald Wihite, UNL water resources management specialist.

doses plus a booster at school entrance is adequate. Most students will have had 4 or 5 doses for these diseases. However, for the assessment program the three doses will be considered adequate. It was pointed out high school students who have not received a Pertussis vaccination within ten years are reminded a booster dose is due.

Parents of those students whose records at school show an incomplete immunization record are being notified by the school nurse. Mrs. Black said phone calls will not be accepted as proof of immunization.

She asks that parents please fill in the appropriate information and include specific dates. A week will be allowed for a written notice. Parents who have any questions are asked to call 375-3150 (Wayne High School) and make an appointment to see Mrs. Black.

Zoning

He pointed out another important aspect of rural zoning is to protect a tax base for rural school funding. He explained community growth can creep into the country if there isn't appropriate regulations.

Wright said the Southwest section of Wayne County is being threatened by expansion from Norfolk. He said zoning regulations could prevent infringement.

Wright outlined the procedure by the Commission in drafting its final recommendation to the Commissioners. He said written testimony will be accepted by the Commission until 5 p.m. April 4. This testimony, plus that given at the meeting Tuesday night, will govern the language of the final draft.

The Commission will hold another hearing in about a month and then go back to work to incorporate the wants of the citizens into the regulations. The final draft is expected to be completed in four to five months, Wright said.

He said the proposed land use controls will be recommended to the County Board of Commissioners who will review them and hold another hearing. The Commissioners will have the option of approval or disapproval.

Wright countered a question about zoning being put to a vote of the people with "the county commissioners are the elected representatives of the people of Wayne County. They are held accountable for their decisions when acting in public interest."

Lawmakers override Exon's veto

CAPITOL NEWS

Nebraska lawmakers chose to disregard Gov. J. James Exon's first veto of the current session and override his refusal to sign a bill dealing with the budget-making process.

The measure will require future governors to submit their executive budget recommendations to the Unicameral by Jan. 15. An exception will be made for a new governor during his first year in office when the deadline will be extended to February 1.

Acting on a motion by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, the legislators voted 31-11 to override the veto.

In his veto message, Exon claimed the legislation would diminish a governor's ability to "preserve sound and conservative budgeting." He also noted he had always submitted his budget before the statutory deadline—the 30th legislative day of each session.

According to the governor, the Legislature was "unnecessarily and unwisely further attempting to invade executive authority and options by unhitching the budget presentation from 30 legislative days to 15 calendar days."

That would only make sense, the governor added, if the Legislature would also agree to meet on a calendar day basis.

Warner, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said the bill was a necessary safeguard. He said the 30th legislative day this year was March 1. If the governor had elected to wait until then to present the executive budget, it would have been nearly impossible for the Appropriations Committee to deal with the spending proposals realistically, Warner said.

Exon presented his budget message to the lawmakers on February 10 this year.

No Penalties Planned

Counties that failed to revalue their property by the first of this year, as they had been ordered to do by a 1977 law, probably won't be penalized.

State Tax Commissioner William Peters said recently he does not plan to utilize the penalty section of the law.

His comment was made after the State Justice Department issued an opinion that said the penalty provisions are probably unconstitutional.

Under the statute, a county that failed to revalue faced the loss of part of its money from the State Property Tax Relief Fund.

Several months ago, Peters said he had been warned by several counties they would take him to court if he tried to impose penalties on them.

Last week Peters said the attorney general's opinion "removed any sanctions for failure to comply and removed the time frame for telling counties (when) to do it."

The opinion, which was requested by Peters, said the language of the statute was vague and also did not include the emergency clause, meaning it did not go into effect until Jan. 2.

The tax commissioner said he would review the opinion to determine if there are new sanctions, which would satisfy constitutional question, that could be imposed.

Will Seek Re-election

State treasurer Frank Marsh, who has the longest Capitol tenure of any of Nebraska's constitutional officers, will seek re-election to another four year term.

Marsh, who some months ago was rumored as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for governor or lieutenant governor, ruled out any chance of running for either of those offices.

He noted there are four GOP gubernatorial candidates and said this fact is "splitting" the financial support of those seeking the nomination.

Marsh, who served one four year term as lieutenant governor before becoming state treasurer, was the secretary of state from 1952 through 1970.

Pulled From Committee

Members of the Legislature voted 26-11 to pull from the Judiciary Committee a bill that would mandate a minimum 25 year sentence for every first degree sexual assault conviction.

Sen. Herb Duis of Gothenburg, sponsor of the bill, asked his colleagues to force the measure to the floor because it could not muster enough strength for committee approval.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln, chairman of the committee, said the legislation was unnecessary because laws already provide the penalties Duis was proposing.

Currently anyone guilty of first degree sexual assault can be given a 1 to 50 year sentence. A second conviction mandates a minimum 25 year sentence, without hope of parole.

Barnett said the law is adequate but that prosecutors are not utilizing it to the fullest extent.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said passage of the bill could not be itself force a prosecutor to file a first degree sexual assault charge.

Tech College Bill

The Education Committee has sent to the floor a bill that would bring technical community colleges back under state control.

If there was almost immediate speculation that the measure, sponsored by Sens. Sam Cutler of Hemingford and Richard Marvel of Hastings, would be revised to provide only for a moratorium on tech school construction funded by local property taxes.

It is known some senators believe too much construction has been done or is being planned by some of the community colleges.

The Education Committee also reported to the full Legislature a bill that would establish a public radio network across the state.

The legislation would create the Nebraska Public Radio Commission, which would have the same membership as the Nebraska Educational Television Commission.

The measure is sure to touch off heated debate because a number of the lawmakers have said this is not the time for the state to embark on still another project that could make further demands on the state treasury.

Gov. J. James Exon has also voiced opposition to public radio, especially during a period when dollars are not plentiful.

In other action, the committee has reported to the floor a bill that proposes creation of a $40 million bond fund just in case the voters decide in the general election to retain the state aid to schools bill that was passed by the Unicameral last year. The law, which was suspended through a petition drive, provided for raising state aid by $20 million annually for three years.

OBSERVATIONS

For the good of all

J. Sterling Morton, father of Arbor Day, had a dream... the perpetuation of the natural beauty of the State of Nebraska through replanting of native trees and the cultivation of new species. The Community of Wayne, the County of Wayne and Wayne State College are doing what they can to keep this dream alive.

Last week we touched on the tree program in the Wayne Downtown Beautification project. Some 40 trees will be planted in the downtown area thanks to progressive Wayne business and professional people.

The County of Wayne, through the extension service, encourages windbreaks as energy-saving protection and to prevent erosion. Wayne State College is one of eight sites of Nebraska Statewide Arboretum, Inc. (NSA).

An arboretum is a place where many kinds of trees and shrubs are grown for exhibition or study. It is the hope of the NSA to have an arboretum in each of the 93 counties in Nebraska. We feel this is a realistic, worthwhile goal which should be adopted and embellished upon to surpass even the maximum expectations of the NSA.

Nebraska's Regent Kermit Hansen, speaking at the first annual meeting of the NSA, said that Nebraskans should try to establish a planting of outstanding trees and shrubs in as many towns and villages as possible—at least in those areas of 1,000 or more in population.

The Regent said Nebraska has "the most attractive rest stops I've ever seen." He added, however, that one acre of arboretum added to each of the rest stops would be a beautiful addition to the roadsides.

The current objectives of the NSA are to promote knowledge, appreciation and use of indigenous and introduced flora of Nebraska; to encourage cooperation among public agencies and associations, as well as private firms and individuals, in giving people and support to its activities; to support efforts to enhance Nebraska flora and introduction, evaluation, improvement and dissemination of useful plants.

Wayne and the Wayne area would rate high in measuring up to the objectives. The real concern is that the NSA banner should be waved to attract statewide attention.

The NSA also encourages the preservation of wild plants within the state. A photographer friend of ours spent his Sunday afternoons with his family walking the countryside looking for blooming native wild flowers. He would photograph them and add the pictures to his collection.

During the winter months, he would entertain friends by showing them his latest additions. Many of the expressions we heard centered on "We didn't know those grew in our area." A walk in the country in the summertime is all it would take to discover for themselves there is much more to Mother Nature than the dramatic exhibits. The small flowering plant tucked away in an undergrowth is just as beautiful only on a smaller scale.

We applaud the work and objectives of the NSA because through an organized effort, generations from now will stop and exclaim: "Nebraska is truly a beautiful state." — Chuck Barnes.

Farm Cost Survey Made

In 1976, U.S. farmers paid out over $89 billion to produce crops, livestock, and poultry. The report, issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting service, noted that the expenditure averaged more than $32,000 per farm, nationally.

The major expenditure was for feed, which accounted for over $14 billion; next came rent at $8.1 billion; followed by wages at $7.4 billion; fertilizer, lime and soil conditioners at $7.2 billion; and purchases of livestock and poultry at $7.1 billion.

Jack Aschwege of the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting service points out that farm production outlays need to be closely watched if there is to be a reliable measure of farmers' well being compared with other groups in the Nation's economy.

Aschwege's office will interview a cross section of Nebraska farmers during February and March as part of a nationwide survey to determine 1977 farm production expenditures. Along with questions concerning outlays for equipment and services and other production needs, other farmers will be asked about their marketing practices for livestock and field crops.

Aschwege stated that farmers' responses will be confidential and only state and national summaries will be published.

Ag Honor Society Sets Dinner Date

by DON C. SPITZE
WAYNE COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

I'VE DONE IT AGAIN
I've managed to again arrange for bad weather to arrive on the same day we scheduled our county wide beef weigh-in at the Wayne Sales Barn. If this was the first year this had happened I wouldn't feel so badly, but it happens every year as regularly as clockwork. So next year don't plan anything on our first scheduled beef weigh-in day because it will storm for sure.

The weigh day does serve some very practical and useful purposes in our 4-H beef program. Each market beef is weighed and tagged. The ear tags are used for future identification and in addition the tags are of a special type that when the animals are slaughtered sometime after County Fair complete carcass evaluation information is sent back to the packing plant to each 4-H'er for a small fee.

Rate of gain is also important as we know that rate of gain is one of the most important characteristics we look for in feedlot cattle. Another example of 4-H being a practical and educational program for boys and girls.

LOOKING BACK

One thing that sometimes startles me is when I read about a former 4-H'er that has done very well in this adult world. Started, not because they have succeeded, but because they have grown older while I didn't think I had.

An example of this is when I recently read in a national publication about Dr. Robert Lewis of Larned Kansas and his work in futures trading. He has built a national reputation for his work as a consultant on commodity futures.

Bob was an outstanding 4-H livestock member when I was County Agent in Pawnee County Kansas over 20 years ago. Bob was quite a showman in both beef and sheep as I recall. I'm sure that many of his experiences as a 4-H'er have helped him succeed as an adult and that is what 4-H is all about.

INSECT SCOUTS

A new 4-H program called Insect Scouts is eliciting a lot of interest among 4-H'ers. The program trains 4-H'ers to make surveys of farm corn fields for potential insect problems.

Jon Jacobmeier, member of the Wayne Winners Boys 4-H Club told me at the 4-H A to Z exhibit at the Kiwanis Pancake supper that he was definitely interested in the new project and Blaine Johs told me the same thing. Incidentally both of these 4-H'ers live in town, but I'm sure some farmer with corn near town would let them scout their fields for them.

Gonnie Robertis commented at 4-H Council meeting that her twin brothers Keith and Kent were really excited about this new project even though their interest previously had only been in beef.

OVER ONE HUNDRED

Which brings up the point that 4-H is not just cows and cooking, but actually includes well over 100 different projects. The fact that the two Robertis boys have a chance to participate in an entomology project, or town boys such as Blaine Johs and Jon Jacobmeier, could scout corn fields on a farm shows the flexibility and versatility of 4-H.

SMALL CLUB

Sam Schroeder, leader of the Wayne Winners Boys, told me that all of his members were also officers in his 4-H club. One of the reasons for this is that there are only five members, but I'm sure they will grow in the future. Members include Robbie Allen, Jon Jacobmeier, Richard Roland, Tom Sherry and Bob Berry. All five of the boys had a project exhibit at the recent A to Z program. The projects exhibited included goldfish, landscaping, hatching eggs, plants and insects. Another example of the many different projects available to boys and girls regardless of where they live.

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?

I'd like to quote from Dianne Puls', Springbranch 4-H Club, record book on her feelings about 4-H. "4-H has helped me grow up and mature over the years and it has also taught me a lot of things. But the thing that I feel is most important is all the friends that I've made over the years."

That is what 4-H is all about!

Modify Utility Rule For Food Stamp Users

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is modifying its new rule assuring lower food stamp costs for families with high winter utility bills. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman said recently.

The original utility rules were issued November 30, and required states to inform people using food stamps that they may pay less for their food stamps if their utility bills have increased. The rule also required states to certify people applying or re-applying for food stamps within 10 days if they could document increases of more than $25 in their utility bills.

According to Ms. Foreman, the 10-day limit caused problems. "Comments from state administrators convinced us that the rule placed a burden on local food stamp workers that could result in inequitable treatment of food stamp applicants.

Applications from people with high utility bills would be given higher priority than those from people whose utility bills had not risen significantly, but who might be in greater actual need of assistance." This provision had been dropped under the amendment published January 11 and the time limit for certifying people applying or re-applying for food stamps will remain 30 days.

Ms. Foreman said another amendment to the utility rule gives states greater flexibility in sending notices on the utility rule to people using food stamps.

"States must make every effort to include this notice with their regular mailing to food stamp households the beginning of January," Ms. Foreman said. States unable to do this, however, may include the notice in their next regular mailing to food stamp households later in January or on February 1, she explained.

States who don't have regular mailings to food stamp households must hand out the utility notice at food stamp issuance points starting no later than January 15 and continuing through the end of February.

Additionally, states capable of identifying and notifying only those households that pay their own utility costs may do so.

According to Ms. Foreman, USDA published the utility rule in final rather than proposed form in November because the department wanted to act quickly. "Winter was upon us," she said, "and we wanted to avert unnecessary hardships for households burdened by higher utility bills." USDA sought comments from the public on the final rule, the Assistant Secretary added, "and we are responding to the concerns expressed by amending the rule."

Deer Creek Valley

A covered dish supper at the Carroll Firehall preceded the meeting of the Deer Creek Valley 4-H Club the evening of Feb. 25. The Clay Heydon family were hosts.

Dennis Anderson conducted the business meeting and Amy Finn gave a report of the last meeting. Roll call was to name a favorite 4-H project. The group discussed having a roller skating party April 28 at the Wakefield roller rink. The junior leaders were reminded of the 4-H bake sale and the roller skating party to be held in Norfolk March 6.

The members decided to have See 4-H, page 9

Reasons For Lax Signup

Why aren't more Nebraska dairy herds enrolled in DHIA (Dairy Herd Improvement Association)?

Because there are definite economic gains through DHIA participation, in more milk and butterfat produced than in non-tested herds. "It is sometimes difficult to understand why only about 20 percent of dairy cows in Nebraska are on test," remarks P.H. Cole, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension dairyman.

Cole cites these major reasons for many dairymen not signing up in a DHIA:

- Some producers are not aware of DHIA.
- A much larger group is aware of DHIA but have not been convinced DHIA would be profitable for them.
- A small group of dairymen are definitely interested in DHIA, but don't have an association in their area or their association's membership is at capacity.
- Over much of Nebraska, dairy herds are widely scattered and it is difficult to organize DHIA's and operate them economically.

As of Jan. 1, 1978, 486 herds and 30,963 cows were enrolled in DHIA programs around the See REASONS, page 9

Balanced Diet Stressed

"Eat a Balanced Diet Every Day" is the message that Nebraska dieticians and nutritionists are emphasizing during the sixth annual National Nutrition Week, March 5-11.

National Nutrition Week is sponsored by the American Dietetic Association and its state and local affiliates.

Recently, congress and health professionals have focused much attention on nutrition and its relationship to health, obesity, diabetes, arteriosclerosis, cancer and high blood pressure.

National nutrition goals call on Americans to reduce their intake of foods high in sugar, fats and salt, and to increase their consumption of fruits, vegetables and whole grain products.

To help meet these national goals, say nutritionists, home-makers may have to introduce some changes in menu planning and food preparation patterns.

Each person's food intake for one day should include foods from the Basic 4 Food Groups, including fruits and vegetables; milk and milk products; cereals and whole grain products; meat, egg or fish products.

cows were producing about 13,356 pounds of milk and 491 pounds of butterfat, earning their owners $560 above feed cost. In 1977, the average cow in Nebraska produced about 10,150 pounds of milk, 382 pounds of butterfat and earned her owner about $380 above feed cost.

"That difference amounts to about $180 per cow, or $9,000 for a herd of 50 cows," Cole says.

The cost of testing varies considerably, by association, Cole said, but on an average, standard or official DHIA testing costs 85 to 90 cents per cow per month; owner-sampler or official DHIA testing costs 45 to 50 cents per cow per month.

County Extension agents or DHIA supervisors or testers should be contacted for more information about enrolling a dairy herd, Cole concludes.

The team received floral bouquets from Puckett Florist in Pender, the Country Girl Bridal Salon and the Newcastle team. Letters were read from the Newcastle School, the Ponca City Board, the Ponca Bank, and the Allen Village Board.

The girls were presented a monetary gift from the Security State Bank for a dinner in Lincoln, and their mothers gave them a decorated cake, banners and special hats. It was also noted that the Newcastle team was sending them a banner.

The girls and coaches expressed their thanks to the school and area fans for their great support. The Rev. Bill Anderson then spoke and led the group in a pep yell.

The girls were greeted Saturday evening on their return from Lincoln with a 25-car caravan of fans. Although they played only one game at the tournament, the girls, coaches, student managers, cheerleaders, band and fans were a sight to behold.

A Home of Your Own Is Still Your BEST INVESTMENT
COLUMBUS FEDERAL Can Help You
If you were to seek advice to buy your next home now or wait for "better" financial conditions, chances are most people would tell you "buy now."
There are several reasons. For one thing interest rates are not expected to drop significantly in the foreseeable future. Those who wait may find the home they want has increased in cost several thousands of dollars. . . or become totally out of range. (Over the last several years, local real estate prices have increased more than twice the rate of inflation.)
Then, too, when you pay on a mortgage, the portion of the principle you pay each month (amortization) increases your equity!
Uncle Sam assists in home ownership, by allowing an income tax deduction for interest paid on home mortgages, as well as real estate taxes. And if you buy your home now — any increase in value will become your gain!
It's an established fact that home owners have hundreds of dollars more per year to spend or SAVE than the renter earning the same income with the same size family.
So while the cost of money in today's market is an important point to consider, it is far outweighed by the many advantages of owning your own home. Don't Wait — See One of our Loan Officers Today. You'll Be Glad You Did!

Thought for Today
By Brian McBride

"Jesus said, 'I am the resurrection and the life: He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.'"

John 11:25

The promise of eternal life, voiced by the Son of God, is the core of Christian faith. By itself, it is vastly significant for believers but subject to the doubts of skeptics.

The resurrection of Jesus on that first Easter dispelled all doubt. His return from death provided incontrovertible proof of His own divine origin. It also demonstrated that all of us, through faith, may achieve immortality. Without Easter, the Christian faith is merely another philosophy.

Easter means the promise of eternal life. We wish you a joyous and significant Easter, whatever your faith or denomination. Attend the church of your choice this Easter.

Wood, Coal Stoves Can Be Fire Hazards

Recent increases in home fires can be partially attributed to the growing popularity of wood and coal stoves, according to Ardis Hutchins, Extension housing specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Wood and coal stoves are being resurged in many Nebraska homes as homeowners look for ways to reduce fuel bills, she notes. "Stoves are one good way to do this, especially if used instead of a fireplace," she says.

While a conventional fireplace has only 10 percent combustion efficiency, an airtight stove does about four times better, with a 45 to 60 percent efficiency rating.

Although wood and coal stoves may offer a good source of home heat, they can be dangerous if improperly installed or used, according to the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist.

"Furnaces, cooking and heating stoves are the third largest cause of fire in the country," she says. "Last year, there were 89,000 such fires and 20,000 more were traced to faulty chimneys and flues."

Besides being a fire hazard, an improperly installed stove can waste as much or more heat than it produces.

Hutchins says that the safest of the many types of stoves on the market may be the cast-iron stove lined with firebrick. "These are durable and spread heat well," she says.

"Unlined sheet metal stoves are fine for the quick heating needed in a cabin, garage or for emergency use, but sometimes even a wood fire can get too hot for an inexpensive stove," she adds.

Firebrick-lined stoves are the only kind that should be used for burning coal. Burning coal in a stove meant for wood can weaken the metal, break through the stove and dump burning coals onto the floor, she warns.

When unlined sheet metal stoves are used, a layer of sand should be kept in the bottom of the stove. "Regulate the fire carefully with the dampers and don't let it get too hot," she suggests.

Anytime the color of the stovepipe changes, the fire is too hot, and it should be cooled immediately by closing the stove's dampers, she adds.

Additional dampers on the stove collar or the stovepipe should be installed if there aren't any according to Hutchins. "Coupled with the dampers on the stove, this will give good control of your fire," she says. "After you get used to your stove, you'll know exactly where to set the dampers to get the amount of heat you want."

Most wood or coal stoves should be vented through a fire-clay thimble into a flue-lined chimney. Otherwise, the specialist recommends purchasing a heavy Class A all-fuel chimney with the U.L. (Underwriters Laboratory) seal. These provide either double or triple pipe thickness, with asbestos or an air gap between pipes.

"Never use a pipe labeled 'vent' as a chimney," she warns. "These are only a single thickness of metal and can get extremely hot and start a fire in combustible walls and ceilings."

Hutchins also warns against hooking up a stove to the same flue used by a furnace or appliance. Sparks from a wood or coal fire can explode small pockets of unburned gas in stovepipes and chimneys, crack the flue and render the chimney unsafe.

Equally important as proper venting is correct placement of the stove, according to the specialist. Although double-lined stoves may be placed close to a wall, most stoves and pipes should be installed at least three feet from any combustible surface.

"If you don't have the space for this type of installation, you can shield the wall with a sheet of asbestos or 28-gauge metal, she says. "Special protective panels are another alternative."

To protect the floor when adding a wood stove to your home, it should be placed on a brick platform or fireproof asbestos stoveboard, she says. "Even a fireproof stoveboard might conduct too much heat for safety if the stove's fire chamber is closer than 6 to 12 inches from the floor."

Brick and stone are popular decorative materials for flooring, but if used, they should be mortared in place with no gaps between them, she advises. Or, an asbestos pad can be placed under the stoves, using both forms of protection.

There also are some stoves on the market that have an "air jacket" that cuts the amount of heat that is radiated, and these can usually be placed closer than three feet from the wall, she says.

"If you have doubts about the way your stove is installed, ask your local fire department to inspect it," she suggests.

2½ cups Flour, sifted
1 teaspoon Salt
½ cup Shortening
1 stick Margarine
1 Egg, separated
5 cups Apples, peeled and sliced
1 teaspoon Cinnamon
1 teaspoon Vanilla
Sugar to sweeten (about ¾ cup)
½ cup chopped Pecans

Cut shortening and margarine into flour and salt. Beat egg yolk slightly and add water to make 1 cup. Stir egg yolk and water into flour mixture. (It makes a very soft dough). Sprinkle on nuts. Roll out other half of dough and place on top, sealing edges. Make slits for steam!

Beat eggs whites until frothy and brush over top of crust. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake at 375 degrees until brown (about 50 minutes).

Drizzle while warm with 1 cup powdered sugar and 3 tablespoons Milk.
