just a few hours away from his instrument rating; David Lay, Wayne Airport Authority and Stanley Morris, Wayne Airport Authority.

New Navigational Aid Wayne Airport Easy to Find

The Wayne Airport Authority took another big step toward keeping the municipal airport as functional as possible.

A Non-Directional Radio Beacon (NDB) has been installed and is operational now although it will not be announced officially until May 18.

The beacon is a navigational aid to help pilots locate the Wayne airport in all types of weather.

The NDB is primarily for an instrument approach to Wayne.

It entails a transition area at or above 700 feet above the ground within which aircraft are provided air traffic control service.

The intended effect of the new service is to ensure segregation of aircraft using the new approach procedure under instrument flight rules (IFR) and other aircraft operating under visual flight rules (VFR).

Al Robinson, airport manager, said the new facility is a valuable service to make an airport do what it is designed to do — aid the flying public.

Robinson said he is "tickled to death that the Wayne Airport Authority has the insight to make available aids such as the NDB."

Robinson said not all airports are granted a NDB. The Federal Aviation Administration looks at the master plan for the area and pinpoints those areas where the navigational aids can be of most service."

The Authority furnished the building and the tower for the NDB. It leases the radio and other equipment from the Nebraska Department of Aeronautics for $50 per month.

The transmitter and the service equipment are kept under lock and key in the building at the airport. Trained service personnel from the state check the beacon every month to make certain that it functions properly.

Waldon Tonjes, a pilot from Pender who has just received his instrument rating, said he used the NDB during a flight in bad weather Saturday.

"It (NDB) turned a touchy flight into an easy one," he explained.

There are several pilots who are on their way toward picking up an instrument rating.

Marvin Grindvold, Hartington, is just a few hours away from his instrument rating.

Mini-Courses Set for 7th Alley Improvement Program Announced Board Okays Teacher List

Seventh Grade Mini Courses have been outlined and the approach and topics were presented to the Wayne-Carroll School Board of Education Monday night.

Richard Mettler, Middle School principal, said the 1978-79 courses would be available to 7th grade students selected from a central "pool."

The basic study curriculum would include speech, reading, writing, research skills and study skills.

Topics to be covered would include personal awareness, value clarification, etiquette, consumer skills, career education, Nebraska studies, aviation and aerospace, health, geography, first aid and safety, photography and literature.

Mettler said the first semester would be more of a developing stage for the courses with a full schedule the second semester.

Alley improvements and approximate costs are now available to Wayne homeowners, according to Street Superintendent Vern Schulz.

Schulz said that as in the past, the city will pay half of the cost on public alleys and streets for either crushed rock or road gravel, in addition to blading and filling.

Schulz said the other half of the cost will be billed to the property owners who have signed a petition requesting the improvement.

Property owners may pick a petition from the city clerk's office and circulate it in their block for signatures, Schulz explained.

After the petition is turned back to the city clerk, the city will begin necessary blading, filling and placement of material.

If eight or more residents sign a petition requesting the improvement, the cost could run as low as $350 for gravel and $1,100 for crushed rock per resident, Schulz said.

He pointed out that even though residents might not use the alley, where improvements are requested, their sewer, garbage pickup, telephone, cable television electricity, soft water and all other deliveries are delivered from that alley.

Francis R. Haun, superintendent of the Wayne-Carroll community school district, Monday night recommended teachers for positions in the district for the 1978-79 school year.

Haun reported 26 teachers are recommended in the high school system. Twenty-one teachers are recommended for the Middle School staff and eleven on Elementary School staff in Wayne and two on the Elementary School staff in Carroll.

There is one second grade position yet to be filled.

Two fulltime staff members are recommended for the SLD Reading program and math program. Two fulltime aides will be needed for the SLD Reading program, according to Haun, and one fulltime aide for David Thompson in the first grade.

Haun told the board the recommendations were made subject to assignment by him, with such assignment contingent upon class enrollments being adequate to justify a class or program.

He added that appointment of positions funded by Title I shall be contingent upon renewed funding for the 1978-79 school year.

The annual Wayne Elementary School Open House will be held Thursday, April 20, from 7 to 9 p.m. Principal David Lutt issued an invitation to visit the classrooms during the open house.

He said "coffee and cookies will be served."

Open Bids For Bucket Truck

The bids were taken under advisement so they could be studied and discussed with persons acquainted with the equipment.

City Administrator Fred Brink was instructed to have recommendations ready for the next city council meeting.

A conference dealing with various dimensions of the world's energy problems and possible alternative energy sources will be held Wednesday, April 19, in Ramsey Theatre of the Val Peterson Fine Arts Building at Wayne State College (WSC).

The afternoon session, beginning at 1:15 p.m., will cover

Other panelists for both sessions will include John Kyi, vice president of Occidental Petroleum Company and former Iowa Congressman and assistant secretary of the interior; Tod Sneljar of the Nebraska Agricultural Products Industrial Utilization Committee and Clifton Ginn, WSC associate professor of political science.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Vogt selected a shaded brown jersey gown featuring a pleated skirt and ruffled collar. Mrs. Wacker wore a light blue sleeveless knit with lace accent at the waistline and a long-lace overcoat.

A reception was held at the El Toro in Wayne following the wedding ceremony. Gifts were arranged by Kathy Virgil and Cindy Skovsvede.

We realize that we're lucky to be in a profession that lets us perform a worthwhile service for those who need us.

There's much to learn before you qualify as an expert and there are lots of misunderstandings, too. So, we've thought of one more way that we can be of service to you... by sponsoring a weekly "column" on real estate.

We'd like to meet you here each week and "Talk Over" various aspects of real estate, your ideas and suggestions will be most welcome.

Seek Better School Menus

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has published interim regulations that will establish a new nutrition education and training program in the nation's schools, according to Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman.

"Children, teachers, and school food service personnel will be given training that emphasizes the vital relationship between nutrition, good food and health, and that helps them become informed, food-ledgeable consumers," Ms. Foreman said.

"Legislation passed in November authorized states to operate this program in 1978. To help them begin operations immediately, we are issuing interim regulations to provide states guidance for starting the program.

Under the new program, USDA will make grants to states so they can:

- educate students about the nutritional value of food, and develop food and nutrition attitudes and practices to improve students' health and well-being throughout life;
- train school food service workers in principles and practices of food service management, including menu planning, food preparation, nutrition and food procurement;

"Additional regulations will be issued soon to give states guidance on assessing nutrition education and training needs and developing operating plans. Final regulations are expected June 1.

The interim regulations appeared in the March 24 Federal Register.

Comments and suggestions on the interim regulations will be considered before final regulations are adopted. They should be submitted to the Acting Director, Nutrition and Technical Services Division, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Closings Hurt Producers

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

By M.A. Van Kester
Director of Information

Every time a meat packing plant is closed down by strike action or forced to terminate operations for various economic reasons, the competitive loss is felt by livestock producers.

The number of packing plant closings in Nebraska and neighboring Iowa in recent years has been alarming. Omaha, once the largest terminal livestock market in the world, long ago gave up that ranking. The meat packing industry that was once a major source of employment in the Omaha community today represents only a fraction of its former importance.

In 1977, the closing of the Swift and Co. plant at Scottsbluff brought dismay to the local community because of loss of jobs, equally important, it represented a loss of a market for livestock feeders in that area. As plants go, it was not obsolete and run down. It was built and opened as the Cook Packing Co. in 1938 and a source of local pride as one of the few federally-inspected plants in that area at that time.

meet those demands, their buyers conduct their activities accordingly, in close touch with overall market conditions, and supplies and, incidentally, on how much competition they are getting from buyers from other plants.

This is over-simplified of course, because the meat packing business is much more complex and fast-moving than this. It is a world of professionals, in which buyers readily will admit, "We have to pass an examination every day when the cattle we buy are slaughtered and go on the rail and we find out how they actually grade and yield."

It is reality that when a major packing plant closes down, the buying competition is lessened. One of the severest setbacks the cattle market sustained came in late-1973 after feeders held back cattle and fed them to over-weights.

Waiting for the government to lift its freeze on wholesale beef prices would keep the plants open, operating efficiently and bidding daily for the livestock that producers have ready for market.

money close down voluntarily. Many of the closings of smaller plants appear to be traceable to labor problems and excessive labor demands and disruptions.

The Iowa Beef Processors plant at Dakota City was closed for more than a year in a strike situation and recently opened with non-union labor. It has had a long history of labor strife and violence largely because of union opposition to its innovative assembly line processing methods and promotion of boxed beef.

The shut-down of over a year has employees millions in lost wages and cattle feeders the services of a major market.

In recent months there have been reports of farmers picketing packing plants in attempts to shut them down. That's counter-productive. They should be demanding prompt reasonable labor settlements that would keep the plants open, operating efficiently and bidding daily for the livestock that producers have ready for market.

It was acquired by Swift and Co. in 1948 and several million dollars were expended for improvements, expansion and modernization within the last 10 years. During its years of operation, it provided a dependable, important market for cattle feeders and lamb feeders in that area. In this day of direct packer buying, yet they had a choice of selling to buyers from outside their immediate area.

The Scottsbluff-Gering business community has been participating in negotiating arrangements to find another reliable packer to acquire and reopen the plant and hopefully this will be accomplished soon.

As most farmers and ranchers know, every packing plant has a daily capacity of operation. Certain numbers of livestock needed to keep the plant operating at an efficient level. To

Congressman's Wife Says 'Charlie Offers Leadership'

Conference —

Ginn said the conference, sponsored by the WSC Public Affairs Institute, is designed to bring together as much information as possible on the energy problem to help regional citizens further understand the problem and to examine the feasibility of alternative energy sources.

"This is something that should be of interest to the general public as well as students," he said. "The energy issue is one we all face in our every day lives, not only today, but in the years to come as well."

The event is open free to the public.

Council —

said the schedule presented to the council was a starting place for establishing a workable rate schedule.

He said the schedule was born out of studies of other transfer stations in Oakland, Nellig, Alton and other towns.

Mayor Freeman Decker suggested the council study the schedule and acquaint themselves with it so they may have constructive suggestions and discussion when the council meets in two weeks.

Brink said he hopes to have rules and regulations governing the transfer station ready by the next council meeting.

Because of the anticipated discussion, the council meeting will begin at 7 p.m. rather than the usual 7:30 p.m. time.

Leadership was indicated Tuesday as the main theme of Congressman Charles Thone's bid for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Mrs. Thone, during a brief campaign stop in Wayne Tuesday, cited her husband's record as Nebraska's First District Congressman for the past seven years as evidence of the type of leadership he will provide Nebraskans should he be elected to fill the seat being vacated by Governor J.J. Exon.

The Congressman's wife visited several area towns this week in behalf of her husband, who returned to Washington Tuesday to support the farm bill on the floor of the House.

About 35 local and area Republicans turned out to visit with Mrs. Thone during a salad luncheon in the Women's Club room at the Wayne city auditorium.

Mrs. Thone said her husband's decision to run for the Governor's seat was rooted in his belief that people should have control of their own lives.

"Charlie wants to be a part of the movement in which states make final plans for programs, as opposed to federally planned programs," said the exuberant Mrs. Thone.

Although recent polls indicate that Thone is leading the race for Governor, Mrs. Thone said her husband is concerned about the campaign operations of the other three Republican candidates — Vance Rodgers, Bob Phares and Stan Jueliff.

Phares said Mrs. Thone, is turning out to be a strong contender. We are surrounded by evidence of Jueliff's money, she said, adding that she doesn't feel a candidate can put a lot of money into a campaign without having some prior public-service experience.

Jueliff is reportedly using $300,000 of his personal funds to run his campaign.

"It's up to counties like Wayne, where Charlie is well known, to carry the load of votes for Governor," announced Mrs. Thone.

"Charlie wants to provide leadership for the state's number one industry — agriculture — and his years of experience admirably equip him to offer that leadership," Mrs. Thone said. "Persons must base their judgement on my husband's past record."

Congressman Thone's previous record includes: 1950-51 — Deputy Secretary of State; 1951-52 — Assistant-Nebraska Attorney General and field man for U.S. Senator Dwight Griswold; 1952-54 — Assistant U.S. District Attorney; 1954-59 — Administrative Assistant to Senator Roman Hruska; 1959-70 — private law practice in Lincoln; 1971-78 — First District Congressman.

MRS. CHARLES THONE, at right, discussed ideas which she will take back to her husband with County Republican Chairman Mrs. Mahlyn Koch, center, and Mrs. Fred Mann, at left. Mrs. Thone made a short campaign stop in Wayne Tuesday for First District Congressman Thone, who is running for the Governor's seat being vacated by J.J. Exon.

New Concept In Combines

Larger capacity, easier servicing and few moving parts are three reasons listed by an Australian grain harvest expert as to why the axial combine eventually will replace the conventional grain combine.

Dr. Graege Quick, a Mid-America State University Association (MASUA) foreign scholar award recipient, said the new combines also have a "tremendous advantage over the conventional ones because they reduce the amount of damage to corn kernels that can occur during harvest."

Quick, of Victoria, Australia, visited the University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural engineering department as the first stop in a five-week tour of the central United States. He also will speak in Kansas, Oklahoma, and Iowa, which along with Nebraska have member institutions in MASUA.

He explained that the term "axial" means the machine's rotor runs along the axis of the combine.

"In a conventional combine, the rotor is at a 90-degree angle to the axis," he said. "In this type of machine, the only way of increasing capacity is to widen the rotor. Sooner or later, the machines become too wide to ship easily by truck or rail."

The Commonwealth Scientific Industrial Research Organization engineer added that the axial rotor may be as much as 10 feet long, while the conventional rotor can be only about five feet long.

He pointed out that in the axial combine, the oscillating straw walker, usually present in the conventional combine, is unnecessary. The main rotor does both jobs, thus reducing the number of moving parts.

"Because of this, the machines are much easier to clean," he said.

He pointed out that Australia especially needs easy-to-clean machinery, because of the country's climate.

"We don't have grain winter-kill," he explained. "Therefore insects that are picked up by the combines at the end of one season stay alive until they are deposited in the fields the next season unless the machines are thoroughly cleaned."

He said there is a national campaign underway to eliminate insects in grain at the farm level. Since Australia promises insect-free grain for export, the axial combine is one way to make it easier to combat the insects at a local level.

Quick said that Sperry-New Holland produced the first North American axial combine in June, 1975, which created a "terrific amount of interest."

Since then, International Harvester released its line of axial combines in September, 1977. It has a series of three axial-flow combines and, according to Quick, the company plans to eliminate production of conventional combines in the future.

He noted that the new type machines work well for most normally combined crops, except rice, because of the latter's long straw.

Another area Quick said he is interested in is soybean harvest. He pointed out that prior to 1970, about 10 percent of the soybean crop was lost during harvest.

While working for White Farm Equipment in Canada, he performed research for new headers that would move faster and cut down on the loss.

"Now a farmer can operate at only a three percent loss," Quick said. "In some cases, it can get as low as one percent, while traveling at 6-7 m.p.h., which is almost twice as fast as before."

He said that White and other companies have produced such headers and the harvesting situation has "improved tremendously."

Quick's hobby of studying the history of grain harvesting has led to the publication of a book entitled, "The Grain Harvesters," which will be published by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers in late 1978.

"I first became interested in the subject when I read that all the harvest inventors came out of North America," he said.

He added that his research has shown that Cyrus McCormick did not invent the first reaper. It actually was invented in Scotland in about 1826. A complete reaping machine also came out of Scotland in 1826, six years before McCormick introduced his machine.

MRS. JOCELL BULL

Wayne Woman
Wins $25 Prize

Mrs. Jocell Bull of rural Wayne is the latest winner in the weekly Birthday Bucks promotion.

She received $25 in Bucks as a result of being the shopper with the birthday closest to the winning date announced last Thursday night.

Her birthday of Aug. 10, 1927 was just eight days away from the winning date of Aug. 2, 1927. No one else with a birthday closer to that day and year was present in a participating Wayne store to claim the money.

Had he or she been born on that day and in a participating store, the lucky shopper would have won $750.

As a result of no one winning the amount stays the same for the drawing tonight (Thursday) at 8:15 p.m.

Drawing the winning date last week was Paul Koplin of Koplin Auto Supply.

Exon urges lawmakers to slim down spending

CAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Puel
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — Even as Nebraska lawmakers were heading into the final stretch of their 60 day session, Gov. J. James Exon was urging them to do everything they could to keep state spending within limits that can be accommodated by the current sales and income tax rates.

"If we are to have any chance to keep our pledge of maintaining the sales and income tax rates which were reduced effective January 1, 1978, you must realize where you are and where you are going in spending," the governor said in a message to the Unicameral.

He added that it is a time for great restraint on your part. I strongly recommend your careful planning before you proceed with spending authorizations.

Exon suggested the legislators return generally to the recommendations he outlined to them in his February 10 budget address. He said nothing has significantly changed since that time "either in my requests or anticipated receipts."

It would be wise, the governor said, to keep in mind the variance of the economy and the impact on the sales and income tax receipts.

At the moment, pending the Legislature's scaling down of its expenditure patterns, the state is in sound fiscal condition with a general fund balance of $31.6 million, compared with $1.8 million a year earlier, he said.

Exon said the revenue projection of $420.5 million remained about the same and was off about $7.7 million, or 1.8 percent for the fiscal year to date.

"No one could expect a closer call than that on anticipated receipts," he said.

But he cautioned no one can predict with certainty what the future holds for collections because that type of forecasting is not an exact science.

He said the over-levy of the current year and the recommended 5 percent over-levy for the next fiscal year "should provide the cushion needed to maintain fiscal soundness and cash flow requirements at present tax rates if you will heed my spending restraints and recommendations."

Exon was aware many of the spending proposals before the Legislature are attractive to certain groups and are difficult for some of the senators to oppose.

"Nevertheless, you must start now to move away from the want list for everybody and realistically face those hard spending decisions which confront you," he said.

On the matter of appropriations from the general fund for the state's institutions of higher education, the legislators and the governor were in close agreement.

The bill to provide about $140 million for the University of Nebraska, the state colleges and the technical community colleges was passed with only two dissenting votes.

Override Governor's Objections
Members of the Legislature recently overrode the governor's veto of a bill that will require the governor to order governmental agencies to carry out laws of the state.

Thirty-one senators, or one more that was required to override the veto, thought the bill was a good idea, even though Exon strongly objected and the attorney general said it would pose difficult or even impossible legal dilemmas.

The legislation would excuse the governor from acting when:

— An act had been ruled unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court.

— A court order had enjoined an agency from implementing a law.

— An action challenging the validity of an act was pending in a court of competent jurisdiction.

Sponsor of the bill was Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City. During debate on the measure he made no bones about the fact that he was deeply disturbed that some bills passed into law were disregarded by some agencies because their administrators believed or had been told the laws might be unconstitutional.

Exon said he was concerned the legislation would upset the balance of powers among the three branches of government.

If the governor or attorney general failed to follow the dictates in the law, they would be guilty of misdemeanors and would be subject to impeachment and a $100 fine.

According to Exon, the new law still set the stage for "the worst executive-legislative confrontation this state has ever experienced."

Moratorium on Building
Nebraska lawmakers are taking steps to halt what some of them believe are grandiose capital construction plans by the boards governing some of the technical community colleges.

Nearing final consideration at this writing is a bill that would impose a capital construction moratorium on the colleges which are over-obligated as far as revenue from their one-mill building levy is concerned.

Sen. Sam Cullen of Hemlingford and Richard Marvel of Hastings sponsored the amendments to a tech college bill that would also require a vote of the people on building projects costing more than $100,000.

The schools would be permitted to proceed on construction projects of land was acquired and the plans and specifications for the structures were prepared before April 1.

That language was incorporated into the legislation to accommodate Omaha's Metro Tech, which will erect facilities costing $3 million on its Elkhorn campus. The colleges are permitted to levy three mills, but a maximum of one for capital construction.

The Legislature refused to adopt an amendment that proposed redistribution of the $15 million in state aid to the tech schools so those in lightly populated areas would receive a larger slice of the pie next fiscal year.

Also turned down was an amendment that would have eliminated the local property tax support of the schools after June 30, 1980.

Won't Lead Drive
Sen. Donald Dvorak of Columbus will not lead a petition drive to submit to voters a constitutional amendment that would place a lid on spending by local governments.

Earlier this year, the Legislature killed Gov. Exon's proposal that would have placed a lid on local spending unless the voters authorized a budget that exceeded a specified ceiling.

Dvorak, a co-sponsor of the governor's bill, then said he would lead a petition campaign for a constitutional amendment. But last week the Columbus lawmaker said he would be unable to do so because of his campaign for re-election, family and business reasons.

He said he had received overwhelming response to the lid idea. He added Jack Halloran of Hastings and S. H. Brauer of Lincoln may still lead a statewide petition drive to establish a spending ceiling.

Safety Center Proposed

For the second year in a row, Sen. Ron Cope of Kearney is trying to sell his colleagues on the merits of establishing a state safety center in Kearney.

His bill to provide such a facility in his hometown recently received first round approval in the Unicameral. Similar legislation sailed to passage last year before running into a gubernatorial veto.

Cope said the "major thrust" of the safety center at the beginning would be directed against cutting traffic accidents which last year resulted in economic losses of $258 million in Nebraska.

He said a reduction of one-tenth of 1 percent in such accidents would more than offset the expenses of establishing the center, which would provide training for a broad range of other activities, including industrial, agricultural, home and recreational safety.

Cope said state funding for the first two years would be $600,000 but the total support the three years after that would amount to $150,000.

He said Kearney would be the ideal site for the facility because of its centralized location and the availability at Kearney State College of laboratory and classroom space.

According to Cope, there is considerable sentiment for his proposal but the support is not very great.

He said the Nebraska Safety Council, a private organization, has backed the safety center concept since 1974 and that many other individuals and organizations also favor it.

Myths and the tax code

WASHINGTON — Would you be surprised to hear that:

— The "richest" half of America's taxpayers pay 93 percent of the personal income tax?

— Loopholes and fringe benefits are of most value to the low-to-mid income group?

— Americans owe more to their government than a medieval serf owed to his overlord?

It's all true. These are just a few of the iconoclastic revelations contained in a mind-blowing article on tax policy, appearing in the March, 1978, edition of Harper's magazine.

The article was written by Paul Craig Roberts, who is both college professor and Senate staffer. His simple thesis is that we are all being taken by a parasitic government in unholy alliance with good-hearted tax "reformers" who place their faith in a few simplistic slogans without ever checking the figures.

Roberts first demolishes the myth that the low income group is most heavily taxed, while the rich escape. All you have to do, he points out, is examine the data published by the Internal Revenue Service. You learn that taxpayers in the bottom 50 percent, by income, pay only 7 percent of the personal income tax, while those in the top 50 percent pay 93 percent. Is this a fluke caused by heavy taxes on the low-middle group? No. The highest 25 percent pays 72 percent of the tax. The highest 10 percent pays almost half — 49 percent. And the highest 1 percent pays 19 percent. This hardly sounds like soaking the poor for the benefits of the rich.

Furthermore, he says, if you counted untaxed aid to the "poor," such as food stamps, housing subsidies, and other forms of welfare, you would find that "their real income exceeds that of many taxpayers."

Tax "cuts" to "help the poor" are popular with the government for two reasons, he says. First, because the poor don't pay any taxes, so it costs the government nothing. And second, because inflation soon moves people out of the lower brackets and into the range where they do owe taxes.

What about those famous "loopholes" that are said to allow the rich to avoid paying their fair share? "Fringe benefits are a larger percentage of a $150,000 salary than they are of a $100,000 salary, and so are itemized deductions," Roberts points out. "Deductions are the primary income shelter for those in the middle to lower tax brackets, where most of the income is," he says. And that is why the government wants to eliminate the deductions, so it can get its greedy hands on more of your money.

"The greatest loophole of all in our income-tax system," Roberts says, "works for the benefit of government. It is the loophole that allows government to use inflation to increase taxes on a constant and even declining level of purchasing power without having to legislate higher tax rates."

Over the last 10 years, wages have just kept even with inflation. But wages plus taxes have not, because "the government's revenues don't simply rise by the amount of the inflation, they rise by 1.65 times the rate of inflation" thanks to the progressive tax code.

Worst of all, says Roberts, those who feed at the public trough are not even worried by the prospect of taxes so high that they wreck the economy, because that would call for new government aid programs and more government employees to run them.

What can be done? A flat, across-the-board tax cut large enough to compensate for inflation plus the push into higher brackets would help temporarily.

Another possible solution being discussed is "indexing" the tax code for inflation, so taxes remain the same on the same purchasing power. Still another is a constitutional limit on the total amount of national income that may be taken by the government.

These alternatives are worth a lot of thought and discussion. One thing I can guarantee you: If we don't save ourselves, no one else will do it for us.

OBSERVATIONS

Just a reminder

Many of the things in life that are taken for granted, often times ought not be taken for granted.

Spring is a joyful time of the year, what with the advent of Easter, the warming weather, the blooming of flowers, the urge to get out of doors and do something and the tendency to forget the fundamentals of safety.

We aren't throwing this klunker into an otherwise rosy picture, just for the sake of stating it. It's a proven fact that come spring, motorists tend to forget some of the safety precautions they have followed during the winter.

We sometimes wonder if we're not jousting at windmills with this yearly reminder that certain rules of safety have to be followed even though it is spring. But by the same token, we feel we would be remiss if we left it unsaid.

The traffic fatality count so far this year is more than 50 percent below that of last year. We want to keep lowering this figure and the only way to do it is through common-sense safety precautions.

If only takes a little more effort and a smidgeon longer to practice safe driving.

We don't have to remind you that you have to be a little extra-cautious in the springtime. People are enjoying the wonders of nature. They are exercising

Study Explores Farm Noise Danger

a farm machine operator is exposed.

Speaking at the mid-central meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers held last Friday and Saturday, Rollin D. Schneider, Extension safety specialist and Neil Sullivan, research assistant, presented data from a one-year study. They measured the intensity, duration and causes of the noise to which Numerous reports of alleged hearing injuries in agriculture have raised recurring questions as to whether specific noise standards for the agricultural industry are needed.

The Nebraska study evaluated exposure of agricultural employees to noise in their work and to identify agricultural operations in which exposure standards exceed the current standards in other industries.

The study involved more than 100 operations by 65 employees and six cooperating employers. Employers ranged from large operations (one had four ranches and 40 employees) to a family operation with less than one full-time employee.

The agricultural engineers used a sophisticated array of scientific electronic equipment including noise monitors, noise level meters, dosimeters and calibration equipment.

They concluded that although it is not practical for today's farmer or rancher to have expensive noise testing equipment, he can buy equipment that is well within the noise standards set by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). Most tractor with cabs fall well below the upper limits of noise set by that agency.

Tractors without cabs, however, still fall in the 90 dbA refers to the A scale for measuring noise intensity by means of decibels, a unit named for Alexander Graham Bell).

The researchers recommend that hearing protection such as ear muffs and/or ear plugs be worn with any equipment with a noise rating exceeding 90 dbA.

Forage harvesters were found to be the worst offenders of all agricultural equipment tested. Though used for a relatively short portion of the year, they are usually operated at full power and load and produce noise levels between 90 and 100 dbA.

While the Nebraska researchers found that manufacturers are making considerable progress in controlling noise in farm machinery, they warned that hearing protection should be worn by operators of all tractors without cabs (particularly old equipment), forage harvesters used for prolonged periods or any other noisy equipment.

May Pay To Spray

Even sorghum varieties that are "resistant" to greenbugs may benefit from spraying if infestation reaches too high a level.

Professor S.D. Kinder, USDA entomologist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, made this recommendation at the North Central Branch of the Entomological Society of America meeting at Madison, Wis., recently.

Working with R. Staples, L.L. Peters and P.T. Nordquist, UNL entomologists, Kinder tested the effects of spraying to remove greenbugs on both resistant and susceptible varieties of sorghum in two crop years, 1976 and 1977.

Resistance to greenbugs was measured in both the seedling stage and later during growth including effects on yield.

Some strains differed in their resistance shown in the seedling stage and that during the later growth.

Greenbug feeding significantly reduced the production of lateral shoots on the resistant hybrids but yield losses were not correlated with the difference in leaf damage caused by greenbugs.

Kinder concluded that their two-year study showed that yields of some resistant grain sorghum hybrids may be economically reduced and that such losses in yield are associated with the reduction in the formation of lateral shoots which result in fewer seed heads.

The researchers recommend that resistant hybrids be planted but that infestations be carefully watched and sprayed applied if high levels are reached.

Keep Close Check On Stored Grain

Market discounts for damage caused by mold, insects and heating in stored grain can be substantial. Careful, regular checking is necessary to note changes in the condition of the grain to protect the investment, said Duane Foote, Extension agronomist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Storage problems must be detected and corrected to minimize losses, he said, emphasizing that grain bins should be checked now and regularly thereafter. In warm summer months, grain should be checked every two to four weeks. In the cooler fall and winter months, it should be checked every four to six weeks.

"If signs indicate a problem developing, weekly checks are suggested," he stressed. Examination of the top of the bin will give an indication of the grain's condition. Crusting caused by increased moisture, mold or insect activity calls for a more complete examination. The bin also should be checked for roof leaks, odors and grain moths and evidence of entry by rodents or birds, he said.

Foote recommended keeping records of what is found during each inspection to note changes in the grain's condition. "Reports indicate that some bins may be so full of grain that entry would be difficult or impossible. If this is true, enough grain should be removed to allow entry for the purpose of checking the grain adequately at regular intervals," Foote said. Sampling with a scoop shovel as the grain surface is leveled will give an additional assessment of the grain's condition. Leveling also is necessary for effective fumigation if needed. Samples from the surface layer of grain will indicate changes in moisture content caused by outside moisture entry, moisture migration, mold development or insect activity, he noted.

Deep bin probes can be purchased from grain equipment companies for sampling the grain at depths below the surface. Representative samples should be obtained by probing at least 5 to 7 different locations in the bin. Foote advised, A bin thermometer is also a good investment in checking grain temperatures. Extensions are available for both the probe and the thermometer for checking depths below the surface. Temperature readings in all places are desirable, but are particularly important in the center of the bin at a depth of not less than 5 feet. Temperature indicates the condition of the grain. Significant changes in grain temperature have a cause which must be determined before problems can be corrected, Foote said.

Farmers should contact local ASCS offices for information on buying or borrowing grain sampling and testing equipment. If evaluation of the grain's condition beyond an initial check is needed, samples can be submitted to a grain inspection office for evaluation. A representative sample composited See GRAIN, page 7

Farm Land Values Slide

While farmland values increased an average of 9 percent for the year ending Feb. 1, 1978, Nebraska was the only state showing a decline for the year — four percent.

U.S. Department of Agriculture figures released in late March showed the national average for farmland has risen from $490 to $499 per acre. The report said although the rate of increase nationwide has slowed, "land markets still can generally be characterized as strong." South Dakota was among a group of nine states posting the steepest gain over the year — 13 percent. Kansas registered a one percent decrease during the period between Nov. 1, 1977 and Feb. 1, 1978.

Among other adjacent states, the following increases for the year were recorded: Missouri, 14 percent; Iowa and Wyoming, 4 percent and Colorado, 7 percent.

STORED 2,4-D

Cold temperatures will not deteriorate the active ingredient in any of our commonly used herbicides including 2,4-D. Low temperatures may cause separation of the ingredients through crystallization or separation of liquids. If this has occurred placing the container in sunlight at room temperature and rolling the container periodically will reconstitute the formulation. The herbicide will not have lost its effectiveness as a result of the low temperature storage.

NUTRITION FOR THE BEEF COW

The calving and rebreeding period is probably the most critical time of year for nutrition for the beef cow. The cow's work load peaks at 2-6 weeks after calving.

After she calves, her nutrient needs soar. Her total daily feed intake should be about 26no. or more and it should include 2.2no. of crude protein and about 14/100 of total digestible nutrients. Her phosphorous level goes to 23 grams a day. Her calcium and vitamin needs nearly double.

Why does this happen? She must produce milk for the calf and rebuild her reproductive tract back to normal so that she will be in condition to cycle and conceive. This shouldn't take longer than 90 days after calving.

If the cattle are on low quality from several locations in the bin plus a sample from one or two spots that are suspected to be problem areas are suggested, he said.

"A 5 pound sample is required for the submitted sample. A modest fee is charged which will give you information on such factors as test weight, moisture, damage and foreign material on the samples and indicate odor or live insects if present," Foote noted.

"If examination or other evaluation of the grain's condition indicates problems, steps must be taken immediately to correct the situation," he stressed. If the moisture content of the grain is above that required for safe storage, the moisture will have to be reduced or equalized especially for long-term storage. Insect activity means fumigation must be considered for safe storage... A dockage sieve and bottom pan will aid in the insect check. A No. 10 wire mesh screen can also be used for sifting into a pan or onto a piece of cloth or canvas to detect the smaller insects.

Grain that shows extreme damage and is no longer storable must be used as quickly as possible to prevent further loss. There are provisions for emergency release from the reserve if the grain's condition has deteriorated badly or bins have been damaged by flood or fire.

Foote advised the use of safe practices in checking grain bins and in taking the necessary control measures. "Work in pairs in case there is a problem. Use commercial exterminating or pest control firms for applying dangerous chemicals unless you have taken the training and have been certified to apply the materials," Foote said.

ABOUT OUR COVER

© HWI
Mr. Friendly

One of the oldest American tools was the wooden frame saw. Early American carpenters enjoyed using—and making—wooden tools, and metal was not always readily available. Frame saws had only very narrow blades which enabled the carpenter to cut straight or around corners, and to always see where the blade was cutting. A fine piece of furniture like this elegant satinwood dressing table with carved legs and skirt required a carefully designed saw. The finer the work, the finer the saw, which was also considered a piece of art.

CHANGES IN AVAILABILITY OF ADVERTISED GOODS AND IN QUOTED PRICES

Due to the fact that this piece is not prepared by this retail dealer, but by our wholesaler, who has warehouses at Fort Wayne, Indiana; Cape Girardeau, Missouri; Dixon, Illinois and Medina, Ohio, and because this piece is prepared several months in advance of the actual sale period, all of the items advertised may not be immediately available on demand at our store, due either to sales above reasonable demands, or other circumstances beyond this retailer's control. Also, unforeseen circumstances may cause a price to change without notice; certain items may not be available at all, or a substitution will be suggested. All the prices stated, both regular and sale, are HWI suggested. Each HWI store sets its own prices. Its sale prices are frequently lower and never higher than shown.

This store and our warehouses endeavor to avoid all such changes whenever possible, but sometimes we have no control over manufacturers and their problems. Therefore, this retailer will gladly issue a "raincheck" for any advertised item not available on demand, which will be good for purchase of the particular item at the advertised price, when additional inventories of the item are received. ## VEGETABLE GARDEN FERTILIZER

Provides a good balance of essential nutrients, including both fast-release nutrients to get young plants off to a strong start, and slow-release nitrogen for prolonged feeding during the growing cycle. One feeding per crop is usually enough (some other brands suggest two or three feedings per crop). It can be used on all vegetables, and can be applied at planting time or soon afterwards.

Scotts

GROW FLOWERS

Provides the prolonged feeding that produces generous beautiful blooms on roses and other annual and perennial flowers, such as geraniums, marigolds, dahlias and chrysanthemum. Grow Shrub & Tree, Grow Transplants, and Grow Acid-Loving Plants available also. Each developed for a specific purpose. Now available in new sizes — 2.5 pound and 10 pound.

TURF BUILDER PLUS HALTS

EARLY SPRING — THE ONLY TIME
YOU CAN PREVENT CRABGRASS
IN THIS YEAR'S LAWN

©HWI
Mr. Friendly

Dandelions not only make a lawn look bad, they also crowd out good grass. So every year as the seeds spread, there are more dandelions and less grass. There's an easy answer. It's Scott's TURF BUILDER PLUS 2. You spread it just like ordinary fertilizer — but it's far from ordinary. Plus 2 goes right to work controlling dandelions and 40 other kinds of lawn weeds. Makes them curl up and gradually disappear. Plus 2 also supplies a full feeding of Scott's Turf Builder. So your good grass spreads out, filling in those places where the weeds used to be.

SCOTT'S POLICY: NO QUIBLE GUARANTEE

If for any reason you are not satisfied with results after using any Scott's lawn or garden products, you are entitled to your money back. Simply send evidence of purchase to us at Marysville, Ohio 43040, and we will mail a refund promptly.

Crabgrass can be very frustrating. When it is most visible, in summer and fall, there's not much you can do about it. The only time you can successfully defeat it is when it isn't there, or more precisely, when you can't see it. And that's in winter or spring.

The remedy. Break the life cycle of crabgrass by preventing its seeds from developing. This can be done with a little foresight and the use of TURF BUILDER PLUS HALTS, Scott's crabgrass preventer. Use a good spreader to get accurate and complete coverage.

A dividend. Scott's crabgrass preventer also contains a hearty meal of lawn feed for desirable grasses, which is why many lawn-owners now use it as their first feeding of the year, thereby doing two jobs with one spreading. It is an especially wise treatment if crabgrass was a problem in your lawn last summer. In southern areas, Super Halts Plus is available for crabgrass control plus fertilizer.

SCOTT'S LAWN CALENDAR

EARLY/MID SPRING

- If you plan to seed: 1) Fertilize with STARTER FERTILIZER.
2) Plant the seed brand of your choice, the same day if you wish. For seeding in, sow on top of frozen ground if you wish.

If spring seeding is not planned: If concerned about crabgrass, spread TURF BUILDER PLUS HALTS, which keeps crabgrass from coming up as it provides a full feeding of Turf Builder. If not concerned about crabgrass, spread TURF BUILDER.

LATE SUMMER/EARLY FALL

- If you plan to seed: 1) Fertilize with STARTER FERTILIZER.
2) Plant the seed brand of your choice, the same day if you wish.

If fall seeding is not planned: Fertilize lawn with TURF BUILDER to help it bounce back from summer. Or if damaging lawn insects are a problem, use LAWN INSECT CONTROL. Or if broadleaf and vining weeds, use TURF BUILDER PLUS 2.

LATE SPRING/EARLY SUMMER

Give lawn a second spring feeding to replenish nutrients needed to keep lawn thick and better able to deter weeds from sprouting. Use TURF BUILDER FERTILIZER. Or if dandelions or other broadleaf weeds have already invaded, spread TURF BUILDER PLUS 2 instead. (If you seeded last fall or this spring, delay use of Plus 2 until the new grass has been mowed at least 4 times.) If insects invade or are threatening, spread LAWN INSECT CONTROL.

MID/LATE FALL

Give lawn a final feeding of TURF BUILDER so it can thicken up more during one of the best grass development periods of the year, and to extend green color through fall into winter.

FOR A BEAUTIFUL LAWN, BUY QUALITY

Seed prices vary considerably, but so does quality. While the lower package price is always a temptation, it may be a very false economy. So-called "bargain" seed not only may have a relatively high percentage of worthless chaff and filler (there goes part of the "bargain") but it probably hasn't gone through a seed-cleaning process thorough enough to remove problem weed seeds (there comes lots of trouble). Worst of all, the seed may produce less robust grass plants, simply because the genetic strengths aren't there in the first place. Scotts grass seed is selected, cleaned, blended and packaged to give the user the best planting start he can possibly get — and the best value, dollar for dollar.

FOR GOOD LOOKS AND GOOD WEAR

FAMILY seed combines both attractive appearance and excellent wearability. It's the general purpose blend that performs well in sun or light shade. Ideal for seeding a new lawn or "seeding into" an established lawn to thicken it.

FOR LAWNS THAT HAVE SHADE PROBLEMS

SHADY AREA is Scotts best blend for those problem shade areas. It produces a standout lawn wherever there is enough sun for grass to grow. It is also resistant to diseases that frequently hit grass growing in shaded areas. Now available in shaker box for your convenience in seeding small areas under trees, etc.

FOR AN OUTSTANDING APPEARANCE

PICTURE grass seed. A blend of all bluegrasses to give outstanding appearance in full sun or light shade. It's the ideal choice for those who want a lawn that's "picture perfect."

FOR LAWNS THAT GET HEAVY WEAR

PLAY blend is formulated to stand up to kids and the games they play. Sturdy perennial grasses which develop a lawn that never needs pampering. PLAY is the ideal blend for any lawn that gets heavy traffic, in full sun or partial shade.

OTHER BLENDS TO SUIT YOUR NEEDS

QUICK COVER — For new lawns and bare soil seeding to get the kids out of the mud and dust quickly. Now in a plastic bag.

SCOTTS GRASS SEED MIXTURE — A fast developing mixture of perennial grasses. For a hardy utility lawn. Ideal for repairing problem areas. 99.9% weed free. Also in plastic bag.

CHOOSING GRASS SEED

Unless you're a golf superintendent, a blend beats a straight anything. Teas, coffees and tobaccos are blended to improve the taste. But why blend grass seed? The plain answer is that the ideal lawn grass, one that performs to perfection in every condition found in every part of every lawn, doesn't exist.

A turf professional or hobbyist can plant a single variety, and with a very watchful eye, maintain a fine lawn or putting green. But the typical lawnmower can't take that much time.

A blend, by contrast, combines the virtues of its varieties while spreading the risk. Should one of its components become susceptible to disease or insect invasion, the other varieties take up the slack. Should it be too hot or too cold, too dry or too wet, the more tolerant varieties mask over the poorer performers. Needless to say, the mere fact that a box of seed contains a blend is, by itself, not criterion. Nothing is gained by putting two or more weak performers together.

A desirable blend has to contain varieties of established superiority. Putting them together then becomes a matter of how the combination will perform — and that takes years of testing.

SOME OF THESE BLENDS ARE AVAILABLE ONLY IN NORTHERN CLIMATES.

AVAILABLE AT  STORES

WHY THIS SPREADER WILL LAST LONGER

Its extra-sturdy construction holds normal wear and tear to a minimum. And a spreader's biggest threats, rust and corrosion, are checked by a new resistant epoxy finish.

SAVE DURING OUR SPRING SALE!

USE THE SPREADER DESIGNED TO COVER EVERY SQUARE FOOT OF LAWN WITH PRECISELY THE RIGHT AMOUNT — NOT TOO MUCH, NOT TOO LITTLE

The principle is simple. A lawn is made up of millions of individual grass plants. Each plant needs the benefits of whatever fertilizer you're applying. To be sure all get an equal share, you have to spread the product uniformly on every square foot of lawn. Not too much here, and too little there — but precisely the right amount everywhere. (The principle is similar when spreading a control product or sowing grass seed.)

That takes a precision spreader. One with a flow rate that's uniform from its left side to its right side. And which stays consistent in spite of the spreader hitting bumps, changing direction or being turned off or on.

Being able to get that kind of precision out of a spreader requires a lot of precise built-in engineering. Scott's spreaders, benefitting from decades of experience and improvements, have uniquely designed parts, including the hopper, agitator, discharge portholes, shut off plate, and on-off control spring. Just examining and pushing a Scott's spreader in a store gives a feeling of sturdiness and precision. Try it!

On top of that, the PF-1 has a new rust-retarding epoxy finish, which means years of extra service. This makes its purchase price quite nominal, pro-rated over its useful life. And even that is offset by the cost of the lawn product materials it can save with its waste free, precision-flow design.
