"Exciting New Development" — Governor Exon

'Heritage' Home Earns Approval

"A good thing being made better" seemed to be the general impression of those attending a premier showing Sunday of a model modular home manufactured by Heritage Homes of Nebraska, Inc.

Rod Tompkins, president of Heritage Homes, expressed his gratitude to the public for its response to the showing. "The reaction has been super," he said, "and we want the people to know that we appreciate their interest."

persons took advantage of the premier showing Sunday. The model home provoked the same reaction Saturday when Gov. J. James Exon was in Wayne to tour the model home and the factory located in the Wayne industrial park east of the city.

Governor Exon, who was delayed in his arrival because of unstable weather conditions which prevented him from flying, told a crowd of some 100 persons in downtown Wayne Saturday that the modular home concept of home building is destined to play a very important part in the future of rural America.

"I congratulate Rod Tompkins, the other officers of Heritage Homes, the community leadership to attract the industry to Wayne, for the foresight to see the distinct need for a quality home at a reasonable cost because of its unique construction," Governor Exon explained.

CCC Ratifies Crop Loans

The Board of Directors of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) has ratified the previously announced 1978 crop average loan and purchase rate for several small grains.

The per-bushel rates are $1.03 for oats and $2 for corn. Following the CCC's action, Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agriculture and Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), announced 1978-crop county loan and purchase rates for oats.

Rates for oats reflect the national rate of $1.03 per bushel, unchanged from 1977. County rates also are unchanged with the exception of a one cent per bushel increase in seven states — Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania.

This was done, according to ASCS officials, to bring loan rates more in line with the prices received by farmers in these states. No change was made in the schedule of discounts and premiums.

Cement Factor In Project Bids

Cement is becoming a "critical" item in city construction projects as evidenced by a bid opening Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the city council.

Four contractors submitted bids for three projects in the city and all contractors qualified their bids subject to the availability of cement.

Gill Construction Company of Jackson submitted the apparent low bid of $119,475.29 for the three projects with a proposed starting date of May, 1979 subject to the availability of cement.

The breakdown of the bid for three district project was $56,981.31 for Street Improvement-See CEMENT, page 9

Letters Given To Engineer

City Clerk Bruce Mürdhorst Tuesday night presented 19 letters from property owners in the downtown Improvement district to Engineer Bruce Gilmore.

The letters were in response to a request by the city for property owners to point out deficiencies in workmanship or materials in the new sidewalks. Gilmore will review the letters and contact the owners.

At Press Conference

Exon Endorses Willow Creek

Gov. J. James Exon at a press conference Saturday following his tour of the Heritage Homes plant, commented on the pending bills, California's "Proposition 13" and endorsed the Willow Creek project.

Governor Exon said he hopes a spending bill such as LB 1 will be passed and the five percent initiative referendum will be placed on the ballot so the people will have a choice.

change in thinking since LB 199 was acted upon," Governor Exon stated. "The legislators thought they thought the measure too strict but they now seem more receptive to the idea of a seven percent lid."

Governor Exon explained that many people in the state are not aware that the state agencies are funded from monies received from sales and income tax. "We are one of the few states that does not have a property tax."

to local governments and area agencies. "The state government receives about 24 percent of the total tax package to run its various agencies."

Governor Exon said Tuesday he will sign LB 1 into law but is holding counsel on what action he would take on other measures involving government spending limitations.

He added he does not want to see seven percent spending bill. "More than likely, the bill will have amendments and I will have to wait and see what they are before I can make any sort of decision."

Referring to California's response to "Proposition 13" Governor Exon said it reflects the peoples' dissatisfaction with the way government money is being spent.

Mayor Decides To Reconsider

Mayor Freeman Decker Tuesday night said he has reconsidered asking for the resignation of Jociell Bull, director of the Wayne Senior Citizens Center.

Mayor Decker said Mrs. Bull would have to agree to certain restrictions before she would be allowed to continue as director. He did not stipulate the restrictions.

The Wayne mayor said his decision was based on the preponderance of citizen response asking that Mrs. Bull be allowed to continue as director.

"I found myself in a 'hell if you do and hell if you don't' situation last week," Mayor Decker explained. He said he got reaction both pro and con on the matter but he said the majority seemed to favor Mrs. Bull.

He pointed out, however, that if "things don't smooth out, I will recommend closing the center at the end of my term."

Fair Meeting Set June 29

A meeting of all Wayne County 4-H Fair superintendents and 4-H leaders will be held Thursday, June 29 at 8 p.m. in the Student Center at Wayne State College.

The meeting will begin with a general discussion of the fair and then divide into Home Economics and Agriculture sections for more detailed discussion.

The fair superintendent, Marilyn Koch, and additional livestock superintendents in open class are also being asked to attend this important meeting.

Brink Advises New Contract

City Administrator Fred Brink Tuesday night advised the city council to consider a 25-year firm power agreement with NPPD, which according to Brink, will benefit the city's financial coffers.

Brink said he did not think NPPD would enter into another 10 year contract because of increased generating capacity through the completion of John A. Gentleman Generating plants One and Two.

For Transmission Line Begin Easement Talks

Officials of the Nebraska Public Power District told city council members Tuesday night that negotiations for easements for a transmission line beginning near Hoskins, are not getting underway.

Ron Bagus, NPPD public relations and Rick Green NPPD construction engineer, said the 45 miles of the route have been surveyed and the $10 to $12 million project is now at the easement contract stage.

Green said the route of the line has been paid out so as to minimize using crop land. The line route runs along perpendicular to or parallel with section, half-section, and quarter-section lines.

He said the 345,000 volt line will be carried on steel towers placed about a quarter of a mile apart along the route.

Green said NPPD officials are optimistic in dealing with property owners on a one-to-one basis in getting the easements. He said the power line is needed not only for urban areas but for rural use as well.

He said construction is expected to start in October of this year with an ending date the latter part of 1979 or early 1980.

depending upon the weather. He said one of the "windfalls" of the project for Wayne County is the survey that was needed to locate section corners in the county.

Green said NPPD spent approximately $65,000 in locating the corners and that survey is on file at the courthouse for public use.

The engineer said the survey was difficult in that a survey had not been made in Wayne County since 1880.

The line will be connected with a sub-station near the Iowa Public Power Neal Generation station near Dakota City.

Three Repeat

Kerry McDermott of Grand Island and Larry Rugg of Lincoln may have regained a little lost pride as well as two nice trophies when they won the men's open doubles title in the eighth annual Wayne Open Tennis Tournament Sunday.

Rugg was ousted from the open singles bracket in the semifinals by Jim Rathe of Lincoln and McDermott lost to Rathe in the finals 5-7, 1-6, but the two Nebraska University tennis stars teamed up in doubles to defeat Rathe and his partner Bill North of Lincoln 6-7 (5-5), 6-3, 7-6 (5-2) in the blistering heat.

Rathe defeated McDermott to gain the singles title as the temperamental McDermott lost his cool in the humid 95 degree weather. North had earlier won the men's 35 singles zipping Merle Brand of Omaha, 6-0, 6-0. Both North and Rathe are former NU tennis players.

Rugg and McDermott finished second in the open doubles event last year but took home the first-place trophies this year with fine net play and hard-to-handle slams.

Duane Prorok of Valley and Jim Johnson of Fremont successfully defended their 35 doubles title defeating Tom Roberts of Wayne and Merle Brand 6-4, 6-3. The only other successful defending champion was Anna Otwell of Bellevue who outplayed Jane Miner of Norfolk 6-0, 6-2. Ms. Otwell consistently placed the ball to Ms. Miner's backhand forcing her to make mistakes in the finals match.

Ms. Otwell also won a share of the mixed doubles championship, teaming up with Merle Brand to defeat Jim Hegendefter and Pat Damino of Omaha 6-4, 6-4.

Wayne State tennis player Craig Buford was edged in the finals of the men's A singles by Van Bachtle of Tekamah 1-6, 6-1, 6-3. Vicky Carsey, a member of Wayne State's women's team, teamed up with another Fremont resident, Tami Jackson to win the women's doubles title over Becky Maulding and Jean Miner of Norfolk 6-4, 6-7, (3-5) 6-1.

Despite the temperatures, a record number of players from Oklahoma, Iowa, South Dakota and Nebraska competed in the tournament and some of the ambitious ones played in singles, doubles and mixed doubles. Tournament chairman Tom Roberts said he was pleased with the turnout and is beginning to plan the Junior Tournament scheduled for July 21.

Ginn Silences Laurel Lumber 10-0

Tom Ginn displayed some powerful pitching as he struck out 11 Laurel batters in a no-hit Legion shutout Monday night. In a stretch from the second inning through the fourth, Ginn threw eight consecutive strikeouts. Only two men reached base for Laurel, both in the first inning. Dan Dalton walked to lead off the game and Mike Martin walked with two outs but that was as far as it got. Not one ball was hit out of the infield against Ginn the whole night. The Juniors backed Ginn's pitching with four runs in the second inning. Laurel pitcher Ron Gadeken ran into some trouble early when he walked Vic Sharpe and Al Nissen. hit Jerry Goeden with a pitch, and walked Dave Schwartz and Mark Ganseboom to score a run. Mike Martin came into the game as relief pitcher and gave up a triple to Dean Carroll which scored three quick runs for Wayne. Doug Carroll scored in the third inning when he walked, stole second, reached third on a passed ball, and came home on Kevin Murray's sacrifice to the third baseman. Dave Schwartz, Dean Carroll and Ginn scored runs to pad the Wayne lead 8-0. The final two runs gave Wayne a victory by the 10-run rule after five innings. Goeden and Schwartz singled and both players scored on an error and passed balls by Laurel to end the game 10-0.

BLUEGILLS, CATFISH and even a snapping turtle were caught at the Izaak Walton fishing contest which brought out the best fishermen of all ages.

"Good Fishin" At Izaak Walton

While some fishermen were searching for the elusive great white shark off the coast of Rhode Island without much luck, 62 fishermen—between the ages of 3 and 80 enjoyed a successful day of fishing at the Izaak Walton fishing contest Sunday, catching 1627 fish.

The main reason for the tournament was to thin down the number of blue gills in Ike's lake according to Steve Hall, chairman of the contest. Hall said he was pleased with the tournament and termed the fishing, "super."

Winning $10 for first place in eight years and under division was Jeff Stuve with 37 fish. Cheryl Jeffrey placed second with 33 fish and won $5. Rod Lutt caught 209 fish which was more than good enough to win the 9-15 year-old division, and $15. Mike Lutt won $10 for second place.

In the 16 and up division, Roger Wortman took home the $25 first prize with a total catch of 233 fish. Ivan Jensen placed second and won $10. Darrell Moore won a reel donated by Sherry Brothers for his guess of 1605 fish in the tank at the end of the day.

When the contest was over the question came up of what to do with all the fish. One official told a young fisherman that he could have 140 fish to take home. His mother quickly snapped, "No, tell him he can't have any."

Randy's RECAP

According to Randy Hascall

WHAT A BUSY WEEK in sports this has been! The weekend began with a big open tennis tournament Friday. Despite the extremely hot weather, and the huge number of entries, the tournament went pretty smoothly. Some of the players who entered singles, doubles, and mixed doubles played 9 or 10 matches over the three day tourney. Multiply that by two or three sets a match and you've got a lot of tennis.

As temperatures reached into the middle 90's the tennis courts were much hotter and it made me melt just to watch the players compete. Probably the most exciting match of the tournament was the very last one played, in men's open doubles. Kerry McDermott and Larry Rugg edged Jim Rathe and Bill North in a thrilling match.

McDermott is a fiery player, similar to Ilie Nastase in some ways. At times he would throw his racket down after making a bad shot and yell at the top of his voice at himself. The two younger players showed more stamina and outlasted the veterans in a three set final winning the last set 7-6 with a 5-2 tie-breaker.

FISHERMEN crowded around Ike's Lake Sunday for the Izaak Walton fishing contest and pulled over 1600 fish out of the water. The children especially enjoyed themselves and if gave them a chance to get away from all the routine things kids do to keep busy.

Some of the children had never been fishing before and the contest gave them an opportunity to learn. The others just plain enjoyed themselves, sitting in the hot sun at the edge of the peaceful lake and casually pulling in some fish.

THE ALL-STAR GAMES between the East and West Midgets and Juniors of the Raleigh Bishop League was scheduled to be played Wednesday night in Wakefield at 5:45 p.m.

THE TOP TWO teams in the league will vie Saturday afternoon when the Wayne Midgets meet the Wakefield Midgets at 3 p.m. in the Norfolk Holiday Tournament. It's too bad the teams have to meet in the single elimination tourney because one of them will be knocked right out of the competition.

The Wayne Legion team will play Norfolk in the same tournament Saturday at 8 p.m. Wayne will be out to avenge an early season loss to Norfolk 7-4.

This July 4th we celebrate the anniversary of our Declaration of Independence. What we have come to realize is that liberty and freedom cannot be guaranteed by a Constitution, but must be cherished and safeguarded by an ever-alert citizenry. To maintain our freedom and democracy requires continuing discussion and watchful protection.

Boxed Beef Cuts Costs

Boxed beef offers retail savings a potential economic savings of $39 a head compared to the cost of cutting carcasses at the supermarket, according to an official of Iowa Beef Processors Inc. of Dakota City, Neb.

Passing those savings on to consumers would help make with Tompkins in unlocking the door of the new modular home. State and local dignitaries joined him on a tour through the home.

Prior to going to the home, Governor Exon was presented a key to the City of Wayne by Mayor Freeman Decker. Mayor Decker pointed out to the governor that usually the key is presented and then retrieved to be used at another time. "But we're going to let you have this one," he said.

Val Peterson, former governor of Nebraska and U.S. Ambassador to Finland and Denmark, presented a gift from the Wayne State Foundation to Governor Exon.

Peterson took advantage of the time to let Governor Exon know that he was pleased that he had to drive to Wayne. "Now you know what kind of shape our highways in this area are in," he said. "The same thing happened to me when I was governor."

Chuck Elliott, director of industrial development for the Department of Nebraska Development, was on hand for the premier showing Saturday and said he was very impressed with the Heritage Homes product and plant.

"I had opportunity to see the Wausau Homes production plant and if (Heritage Homes) was as good as or better than the Wausau plant... Heritage has a unique production line and from all appearances should be very successful. I join in with the governor in congratulating the Community of Wayne and the officers of Heritage Homes," he said.

Roy Landis, certified land developer for NPPD, also had good things to say about Heritage Homes. He said the people of the Wayne area should be aware of what the new industry is doing in the home building concept and at the same time, be aware of what it is doing for the community of Wayne and the entire Northeast Nebraska area.

The fourth home by Heritage was just off the production line when the governor made his visit Saturday. The production line is at full capacity (seven and one-half homes at one time) and homes have been sold through September, according to Tompkins.

Tompkins said the plant is still hiring personnel. He said he hopes to have a work force of some 180 persons in a year's time. There are approximately 50 persons working at Heritage Homes at the present.

beef prices more palatable while at the same time allowing the industry to "perform better by providing full meal cases, greater variety and better customer services," said Lou Havrilla, assistant vice president for customer education.

Havrilla made the remarks here Friday (May 26) during a meeting of the Nebraska Council on Public Relations for Agriculture at the Stuhr Museum.

Beef, which accounts for $1 of every $8-$10 in retail grocery sales, is the "single largest deviation from the overall supermarket operating philosophy of low margins and high volumes," he said.

"At the back door of many of today's supermarkets one still can find beef carcasses coming in just as they did some 30 to 40 years ago," Havrilla said. Other than the increasing sophistication of equipment and use of refrigeration and trays in mass display and self-service, he said, "there has been little change in the handling and merchandising of beef for many retailers, and in the management of the meat department as a whole."

Boxed beef — in which carcasses are "disassembled" at the processing plant by deboning and trimming them into primal and subprimal cuts before shipment to the retailer — currently accounts for 74-78 percent of all beef shipped into grocery stores, Havrilla said. That figure should increase to 90 percent by 1980, he predicted.

Currently, he said, boxed beef sales are prohibited in the major markets of Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo., because of fears from meatcutter unions that the process will reduce employment possibilities.

About 16 percent of the total U.S. population was denied availability to boxed beef last year because of union objections, according to a report by the National Cattlemen's Association read during the meeting. The NCA study said that amounted to more than $3 billion worth of lost sales.

"Many persons in the political arena have reluctantly failed to move forward on boxed beef marketing in the past," said Bruce Marcue, manager for agricultural relations at IBP. "But it appears that — by increasing tonnage and sales while performing a vital service for the consumer," he said.

Havrilla said boxed beef offers retailers an opportunity to — initially eliminate carcass shrinkage and minimize contamination because of vacuum packaging. — Provide fresh weekend inventories and carry over products.

Devote more space to meat sales because less back room and cooler storage space is required. — Extend the marketing life of products to at least 21-28 days if cuts are maintained at a proper temperature of 28-32 degrees, F.

there really isn't a consumer demand for."

Although it has many advantages, he said, boxed beef should not be viewed as a panacea for eliminating "all of the skeletons in the beef marketing closet."

"Boxed beef, as such, will not turn an unsuccessful meat department into a successful one, or vice versa," Havrilla warned. "There are many do's and don'ts that must be followed because boxed beef is a totally different ball game than swinging (uncut) beef carcasses."

"Boxed beef will, however, allow the retail meat departments to function — by increasing tonnage and sales while performing a vital service for the consumer," he said.

Havrilla said boxed beef offers retailers an opportunity to — initially eliminate carcass shrinkage and minimize contamination because of vacuum packaging. — Provide fresh weekend inventories and carry over products.

Devote more space to meat sales because less back room and cooler storage space is required.

Extend the marketing life of products to at least 21-28 days if cuts are maintained at a proper temperature of 28-32 degrees, F.

Eliminate the need for a "distressed, sale" of old meat because the product is protected in a vacuum bag and "the grocer buys what he will sell," and reduce marketing losses because carcasses are cut nearer the time of sale.

Properly utilize skilled meatcutters, "having them do what they were really hired to do — cut, merchandise, sell and service the customer, not spend time breaking and boning swinging cattle."

Make intelligent marketing and sales decisions by knowing and understanding the "true value" of all meat cuts.

Increase sales because of more buying and merchandising flexibility.

Reduce "out-of-stocks," employ a meat recovery program and apply modern meat management principles.

But Havrilla said one of the benefits of boxed beef — savings of time — if not "managed or utilized properly, is reduced substantially."

Bob Fraizo, director of meat sales and merchandising at the Hinky Dinky Stores of Omaha, called boxed beef "a real boon to the industry." He said 15 of Hinky Dinky's 45 stores in Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota currently are selling the product, a number that will increase as more store personnel are trained in its retailing.

IBP's Marcue said the company now is selling boxed beef in 48 states, with most of the sales coming in the Southeast and Northeast part of the country.

Music Camp July 23-30

The prestigious Wayne State College Summer Music Camp to be held July 23 to 30, has attracted high school students from a three state area.

The event, which is in its 34th year, is open to all high school students and 8th grade string players. Camp classes range from beginning guitar and voice to advanced ensemble singing and private instrument lessons.

Participating students will attend full rehearsals and classes each day, taught by WSC faculty and public school music instructors.

any legislation that would cut down services.

Governor Exon, who is a candidate for the U.S. Senate, said he is not considering his political future when it comes to making a decision regarding any bill passed by the legislature. "I am going to base my decision on the facts and let the chips fall where they may."

Regarding the controversial Willow Creek project which received approval of the board of directors of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD), Governor Exon said projects such as Willow Creek make more sense than do the much larger and most costly projects. He said he was familiar with the project but to him the approval represented a "positive step forward."

The Willow Creek project, which will cost nearly $10 million calls for the construction of a dam that would create a 65 acre reservoir on a 1,700 acre area located two miles southwest of Pierce.

The project is for flood control with recreation being a secondary benefit.

Director Robert Jordan voted against the project because he believes the district does not have the financial ability to carry the project.

Val Peterson urged the members to put a one-year freeze on local funds because of statewide efforts to put a lid on taxes. He was voted down. He voted for the project, however, when it came before the board.

Women's Club Names Winners

She is a member and served as secretary of the Wakefield National Honor Society chapter.

Miss Roberts will be a freshman this fall at WSC.

Suggestions

The annual awards have been increased from $125 to $250 this year. The Women's club awards the grants to two outstanding female high school graduates from Wayne County.

About City Plan

Walt Tolman appeared before the city council in its meeting Tuesday night to make suggestions that might be incorporated in the pending revamp of the comprehensive plan.

He suggested that because of the traffic situation, the council should consider using the old railroad right-of-way as a connecting link between highways 35 and 15.

He was told that part of the highway has been sold to a private owner.

Tolman also suggested making a part of the land south of the airport zoned for heavy commercial.

The council told him they would consider the suggestions.

Council Says

No to Closing

The city council Tuesday night turned down closing the east end of an alley north of the Gay Theatre.

The vote was seven against with Darrel Fuelberth of the Second Ward casting the only "aye" vote.

In another action, the council unanimously voted to close the west end of the alley near the city ball park.

To Reach the Heart of Nebraska

Use Its Pulse

The community newspaper reaches the heart of Nebraska. That's because weeklies are written by Nebraskans for Nebraskans. There's no better way to find out what's happening locally.

The regular beat of a weekly paper covers people's business like no other medium. 95.8% of Nebraskans read one or more newspapers regularly. Nebraskans depend on newspapers more often than radio or TV for local news. And equally important, newspapers are unmatched as aids in making purchase decisions.

A recent survey revealed 78.3% find out where to shop from newspapers, 76.5% turn to newspapers to check the cost of products and 58.6% use newspapers to discover what new products are locally available. Nebraskans give their newspapers more attention than any other medium when it comes to local advertising.

The same research indicated that readership of newspaper ads topped 90%. Over 63% could remember a recent purchase influenced by newspaper advertising. It's clear, Nebraskans overwhelmingly look to weekly papers when searching for shopping information.

When advertisers use weekly newspapers, they reach the heart of Nebraska.

CAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Paul
Staffhouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
LINCOLN — Although they were called into special session originally to correct what some legal authorities thought was a flaw in the new criminal code, Nebraska lawmakers spent just about all of the opening days of their meeting to discuss government spending limits.
Gov. J. James Exon did expand the scope of the call to include spending limitations and didn't take the senators long to think up bills and proposed constitutional amendments dealing with that topic.
Exon had hoped the legislators would act favorably on his bill designed to limit increases in local budgets financed by property taxes. The measure survived a kill attempt after it was heard by the Revenue committee.
Before advancing the proposal to the full Legislature, several committee members said they would offer amendments aimed at limiting state budget increases.
The governor's bill proposed restricting local governments to maximum seven percent increases in those parts of their budgets funded by property taxes. But that ceiling could be exceeded if authorized in an election.

The Revenue committee also sent to the floor a bill that would require local governments to establish spending priorities. If legislation to limit government spending is enacted.
One of the first things the lawmakers did was overrule Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan, presiding Unicameral officer, after he claimed the special session could not consider constitutional amendment proposals.
Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly immediately challenged the ruling, saying a constitutional amendment resolution of his was well within the scope of Exon's special session call.
Warner and Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln also cited previous legislative actions they said established precedent on the question.
Warner's resolution is aimed at avoiding penalizing counties in overlapping taxing districts because they have reappraised their property.

The resolution would place before the voters in the November election a provision that the State Board of Equalization and Assessment could establish separate tax levies to handle inequities that might occur if not all counties with a taxing district had reappraised their property.
The measure received 27-6 first round approval.
Warner also is sponsoring a bill that would allow residents to vote on restricting the amount of property taxes that could be levied to support local governmental units.
The bill would also permit local governing board — by resolution — to place spending limitation proposals before the voters.
Among constitutional amendment proposals that were killed in committee were four sponsored by Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh. One of the four was identical to the 1972 proposal being circulated among Nebraskans.
It appeared most of the senators expect the petition drive will be successful. A number of legislators said they should be concentrating their efforts on devising an alternate proposal so finely tuned it would erode the support for the petition proposition.

The petition measure would, with some exceptions, hold local government spending increases to five percent annually.
Code Bill Advances
There was no doubt the repeal date of current criminal laws would be crystal clear when the work of the special session was completed.
Even though several of the senators continued to insist there really wasn't any need for clarifying legislation, they agreed they might as well amend the statutes to remove any doubt that the state might be left without criminal laws after July 1.
At least some of the lawmakers believed the repeal of current criminal laws was handled satisfactorily last spring when the Senate postponed the starting date of the new criminal code to next Jan. 1.
A number of lawmakers claimed the special session was politically motivated and being used to enhance the candidacies of several persons seeking higher political office.

Perhaps the most vocal on this point was Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue.
He said he suspected there was a considerable effort on the part of the code legislation — that prompted the governor to call the senators back to Lincoln.
"We may have been suckered in on the part of someone misleading the public," Lewis said.
Whelan Speaks Out
After the first day of the special session, Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan, charged many of the legislative actions of the day were "all part of an obvious attempt to thwart and frustrate the initiative petition which is currently being circulated throughout the state."
The actions, Whelan told a press conference, indicate there is "no intention or desire on the part of the Nebraska Legislature to address the issue of spending limitations."
He added: "All of the discussions taking place now are designed by those who originally and still do oppose any type of a spending limitation on government budgets."

Whelan said the "lack of sincerity and concern" from previous opponents to spending bill legislation who proposed various bills is so evident it is "a slap in the face of the concerned taxpayers of this state."
Whelan, Democratic gubernatorial nominee and presiding Unicameral officer, said he felt he had an obligation to report his preceptions of the special session to the people.
He accused the lawmakers of wasting time and playing games, mentioning Sen. Frank Lewis and Speaker Roland Luedtke as "major offenders."
Whelan said he personally would prefer a statutory spending limit over one locked into the constitution. But in view of what is going on, he added, he will not ask people to sign the initiative petition proposal.
He said he might back off from that position if "convincing evidence" emerged of "legislative sincerity."
If such evidence isn't shown, "I will circulate a petition myself in Adams County," he said.
Whelan's legal address is Haslings in Adams County.

OBSERVATIONS

Bikers! Use your heads

If you're going to ride a bicycle on the city streets and highway, you must assume a certain responsibility in order to prevent serious injury or perhaps death.

We have received several reports of bike riders not observing the "rules of the road" which have resulted in "close encounters" some of which could have been the "final encounter."

Wayne City Police each year conduct a bicycle safety program to make bike riders aware they must obey the same rules as apply to most motor vehicles while traveling on streets and highways.

We don't know if the present offenders are "graduates" of the bike safety course or not. If they are, they should know better and be penalized for bicycle riding infractions. If they did not attend the safety course, they should have because its sole purpose is to prevent biking accidents.

Because we feel irresponsible bike riding has become a problem, we are printing those rules which apply to bicycle riders. We advise not only those who ride bikes to read or re-read these rules, but we strongly urge those who supervise bike riding to make themselves aware of the rules and make certain their charges follow the rules.

Rules for safe bicycle riding: ride single file, give signals, keep speed down, keep head up, light up at night, never hitch rides, one person to a bike — the rider, park your bike right, keep your eyes on the road, wear white at night, stay on the right, obey traffic laws and signals, exercise caution, yield the right-of-way, walk bike across heavy traffic, have a good horn or bell.

If unsafe bicycle riding practices continue, we feel city police should make an all-out effort to see that offenders are made aware of their riding infractions and that proper action be taken to make certain the practices do not continue.

Wayne recently was awarded a plaque for not having a traffic fatality in the city for the past five years. We want to earn a plaque for ten years without a fatality in Wayne. It's up to the bikers. We can only advise. — Chuck Barnes.

Washington Monument "ploy"

RICHARD L. LESHER
President Chamber of Commerce
Of the United States
WASHINGTON — It is axiomatic in Washington that when a federal agency is under pressure to trim its budget, the cuts it proposes will affect the most popular programs under its jurisdiction. Then the agency sits back to await the inevitable outcry, secure in the knowledge that the funds will soon be restored.

The classic illustration of this process is threatening to close the Washington Monument to tourists. Consequently, the general term for the tactic is the "Washington Monument Ploy."

The wave of tax-cut legislation sweeping the country in the wake of California's Proposition 13 threatens to generate many local and state equivalents of the Washington Monument Ploy, starting with California.

I'm very firmly in favor of tax cuts and government spending limits. I've been predicting a "conservative revolution" for the last three years, and it is sweet vindication to see it arrive. But as an ardent supporter of the revolution in principle, I do not want to see it discredited in practice. And the potential for that is uncomfortably large.

Proposition 13 itself has some glaring loopholes: It puts too much emphasis on reducing the property tax and not enough on controlling all the other ingenious schemes the politicians will try to come up with to replace their lost revenue. It makes the cuts so sudden and so drastic that it invites Washington Monument Ploys. And by focusing on the local property tax alone, it fails to get at one of the worst areas of governmental waste: welfare, which in California is a responsibility of the state and national governments.

Other states are experimenting with other — and in several cases, better — kinds of spending (or taxing) limits. Tennessee, for example, has amended its constitution to limit increases in total state spending to the rate of growth of the state's economy. Another, similar, method is to limit the growth of total taxes either to increases in personal income, or to increases in total economic activity, or to the rate of inflation. Such limits leave politicians the freedom to move funds from one budget category to another and allow for reasonable growth of government to keep up with the growth of the society, while still establishing a firm ceiling on total government activity.

It will be better for all concerned if it's the Tennessee-type limit that spreads, rather than the California kind. Something along Tennessee lines may even be needed at the federal level, since nothing else seems very effective in trimming the federal deficit.

For now, be on guard for the Washington Monument Ploy, and don't take the politicians' crocodile tears too seriously.

So far, I've heard a lot of them wailing. "The people should love these decisions to us," or words to that effect.

But that, of course, is precisely the problem. We did leave the spending decisions to the politicians, and the politicians ducked that responsibility. They found it was easier to increase the budget — through borrowing, higher taxes, inflation, or all of the above — than to make the tough decisions on how to allocate a limited amount of revenue among competing interest groups.

Politicians may find that constitutional spending ceilings are actually a blessing in disguise. A firm limit gives them something to stand on when denying largess to all of those people who think they have a better claim to your money than you do.

Correct position

Dear Editor:

Your correct position on the costs of postal service merits support. Last week we were informed that the billion dollar package-sorting machine purchased by the Post Office Department is not being used because of the competition of United Parcel Service. And the propaganda for the machine was efficiency (translation, beneficial to cronies in manufacturing, damaging to the parcels and putting many people who could do the job manually out of work). How many people begging for jobs could be hired by $1 billion? United Parcel is (repeal, is) in the private sector; do they use a sorting machine? We would like to know, so please ask your U.S. Chamber of Commerce president. You deserve your readers' thanks for his informative articles in your pages. One little mystery: why did the Washington bureaucracy pay only one billion for the machine? Why not ten billion? One billion is that why the cost of a stamp went up? Prediction: the babies in the Washington bureaucracy do not play their game to lose, and they will punish all supporters of actual efficiency. — John Violette.

Myth vs. reality

By JOHN Q. JENNINGS
President Carter's plea for voluntary wage restraints is doomed by Wayne's rejection unless the Administration can "jambone" the unions into voluntarily accepting pay increases of less than 3% percent over 3 years (with no increase in productivity and no decrease in wildcat strikes). These are the terms which Carter "jamboned" the coal companies into granting to the defiers of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Carter might well consider the method used by Prime Minister Fraser of Australia who had been extricating that country from an even worse situation than that which now faces our President. In September, 1976, when I was invited to confer with Fraser, he was faced with the worst strike-inflation problem in the world. During the preceding three years, pay had gone up over 70 times more than the increase in man-hour productivity. . .

At my suggestion, Fraser and his Administration embarked on a nationwide "educational campaign," during which they "jamboned" employers not to surrender to excessive union demands — quite the opposite from what Carter did with the coal companies! Instead Fraser urged executives to remove the veil of secrecy from their companies' financial operations and to give their employees in precise, simple and graphic format "the arithmetic" of the business. Over two hundred corporations, in that nation of only 13 million people, complied with this request. As a result, the rank and file employees were able to figure out for themselves that any pay increase in excess of corresponding increase in productivity would inevitably push up costs and prices, thereby wiping out the purchasing power of the increased pay. At the same time it would also destroy the ability of their employers to compete in Australia and world markets. With a consequent increase in unemployment. (Ed. This is happening to many U.S. Industries — radio-TV manufacture is just one example.) So well has the Australian initiative succeeded that now, only about 18 industries in the National Bank of Australia have been able to announce that . . . over the last year there has been a significant improvement in the inflation rate, a slowdown in wages growth and an upsurge in private business investment. . .

Meanwhile, here in the U.S. nothing effective has been done, either by Carter or by most businessmen to correct the monumental disparity between facts and opinions concerning the factors which determine how much pay can increase without pushing up costs, prices, taxes and deficits. This disparity is by no means confined to union workers; it exists almost universally, up to and including the heads of corporations. . .

In March, I conducted a seminar on Inflation during "Private Enterprise Week" at Campbell College in North Carolina, under the chairmanship of Dr. William H. Peterson. Industrialists and businessmen were invited to participate. We conducted an economic opinion survey among those employers, which was a real "eye opener." We found that these business men had a very sketchy idea about business finance. After the educational program in Australia, the workers "down under" know more about basic business money, than do the managers in America. . .

When the businessmen were asked: "What portion of the entire National Income is received by both public and private employees in total pay plus benefits, whereas the Conference Board had reported 46 percent, the correct answer was 76.2 percent according to the U.S. Department of Commerce. Less than one dollar out of every four went to everybody else, i.e. to investors, to savers, to lawyers, doctors, self-employed businessmen in taxable income, and even to the government in corporate income taxes. . .

When these employers were asked: "What portion of the two-way split of available corporate income do you believe went to employees in combined pay and benefits?" their average answer was 70.1 percent, with the remaining 29.9 percent having gone to corporate net profits, after the payment of corporate income taxes. The facts, according to official statistics of the U.S. Department of Commerce, were that employees of all U.S. corporations got 90.1 percent of this "two-way" split in 1976, net profit taking the remaining 9.9 percent. . .

These employers estimated the percent of Profit Margin on Sales, after taxes, in the Food Chains to be an average of 9.4 percent, whereas the Conference Board had reported 0.6 percent. Six cents profit on each ten dollars of sales. In the Petroleum Production and Refining Industry, they guessed 12.8 percent, whereas the correct figure was 5.1 percent. . .

Finally, these employers were asked "By what percentage could total pay plus benefits be increased annually on a national average basis without causing pay-cost, price-push inflation?" Their average answer was 5.0 percent. Negotiated wage increases are already twice that amount. Productivity has increased only 1/2 of one percent (the businessmen had incorrectly guessed the figure to be 4.6 percent), therefore average pay increases should only have been of one percent so as to avoid the pay-cost-price spiral. . .

When a group of top level businessmen and industrialists have opinions so far different from the facts concerning pay, productivity, capital investment, profits, and inflation, is it any wonder that the general public, including rank and file union members, and even politicians, can so blithely accept such flagrantly inflationary increases in the cost of living? . . . Is it any wonder that other union members, in both government and private industry, should make so clear to Meany that they want him to reject the President's plea for "wage restraint"?. . .

The Australians have proven that union members will respond favorably and cooperatively when such information is conveyed to them. Isn't it about time that Carter and U.S. businessmen learned the facts and shared them with the workers?

Corn Hall Workshop Slated

Updated research information, instruction and field work will highlight a Corn-Hall Workshop at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus July 17-18.

The workshop, sponsored by the National Crop Insurance Association, is a supplementary adjusting course for approximately 90-100 Midwest adjusters in corn-hall damage assessment and field experience, according to Dr. A. Dale Flowerday, professor of agronomy and crop technology in the UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Lectures concerning recent research developments regarding corn diseases, insect recognition, damage and control and herbicide damage will be presented by IANR specialists, he said. The adjusters will use the information as background material when assessing damaged crops to ensure a fair and qualified adjustment, Flowerday said.

In addition to classroom work, the adjusters will assess field corn which has been artificially hulled at different severities and stages of growth.

The workshop should result in uniform corn-hall adjustment methods. "Procedures for adjusting must be uniform from New York to Alabama and from Colorado to California," Flowerday said.

Sheep Producers Meet July 11

The Northeast Nebraska Sheep Producers Association (NENSPA) now being organized will be meeting at the Northeast Station at Concord at 8 p.m. on July 11. Anyone rearing sheep in Northeast Nebraska is invited to attend.

An informational meeting is being planned by Steve Gramlich, NENSPA President. Charter membership enrollment is still open and those who wish to enroll at the meeting. The proposed constitution will also be presented.

SPOTLIGHT ON WEEDS

DO NOT SPRAY WEEDS WITH 2,4-D UNTIL AFTER SEPTEMBER 15

HEMP DOGBANE
Description
Hemp dogbane is a member of the milkweed family and may be confused with common milkweed during the vegetative growth stage. It is a perennial and reproduces by roots and seeds. Hemp dogbane initiates growth each year from crown buds or from roots. The above ground portions are the results of one year's growth.

The foliage is bright green in color during the growing season changing to a yellow-brown in the fall. The tough, smooth stems are erect and branches near the top give the plant a bushy appearance. Smooth, oblong leaves are opposite on the stem, and have very short petioles.

Small, greenish-white bell shaped flowers are produced in dense clusters which generally are at the end of the branches.

Flowering occurs from late June through August. Each flower produces two brown, slender, sickle-shaped pods which may be two and one-half to four inches in length. The pods produce about 200 small, spike-shaped, reddish-brown seeds which have a tuft of soft, silky hairs at one end.

Control
In corn fields, use one quart of 2,4-D plus 1/2 pint of Banvel after September 1st until Dogbane leaves turn yellow. Dogbane in small grain stubble can also be treated in September.

Special Remarks
Dogbane is difficult to kill so plan to treat two or three years in a row. 2,4-D is much more effective with the banvel. When dogbane leaves have turned yellow, treatment will be of little value.

- Roundup may be used as a spot treatment for Hemp Dogbane in barley, corn, oats, sorghum and wheat.
1. It is a "spot" treatment only. Roundup will kill the crop in the treated area also. Take care to avoid drift outside target area.
  2. Treatment must be made prior to headings of small grain and sorghum, initial pod set on soybeans, and silking of corn. Do not apply when the crop has set seed.
  3. For control of perennials, the weeds should be treated in the optimum stage of growth. The best time to treat Hemp Dogbane is in late June or when plants are in early bud stage. Weeds should be growing actively, but prior to drought stress.
  4. Roundup should be applied at the rate of 2 gallons per 100 gallons of spray solution. According to the label only hand held and gun equipment can be used.
  5. A copy of the label must in the possession of the user at the time of Roundup application for spot treatment.

Space-Age Technology Aids Today's Dairymen

Today's dairymen is a far cry from his predecessor who trudged to the milking barn with only a pail in hand.

Space-age technology has resulted in such aids as the computer, television monitor, remote identification systems and other electronic gadgetry that have taken over much of the drudge and strenuous, disagreeable tasks previously associated with dairying," said Dr. Foster G. Owen, Extension Dairyman at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The result, he said, has been no less than a minor revolution in dairying.

"The modern dairymen using his technology has much better control than ever before over his herd's genetic makeup, breeding schedule, feeding program, milking procedures, diseases and even budgetary and inventory matters," Owens said.

And the production and management practices spawned by that technology "undoubtedly will have an ever greater impact in the years ahead providing the nation's consumers with a continual supply of dairy products at reasonable prices," he said.

"At the same time, though, such rapid changes present a challenge to dairymen to keep pace in the race for more efficient production," he warned.

Perhaps the most far-ranging impact will come from the use of the computer, Owen said. Ration formulation and sire selection via the computer already is available nationwide, he said.

Although computerized ration formulation "provides the best means available to balance rations and select the most economical available feed," Owen said. "Only a small percentage of dairymen currently are taking advantage of it."

As the formulation service becomes available through more systematic and routine programs, undoubtedly it will be used more extensively, he said.

"But since feed constitutes more than half of the cost of production milk, the economic value of this technology is highly significant because it serves as a guide to economic purchases," he said.

Owen called the national computerized bull proving program, which allows dairymen to select and use semen from the world's outstanding bulls, "the envy of the world's livestock groups."

The program provides computer-generated data on the bull's ability to transmit desirable genes for milk production, milk fat percentage; type characteristics and calving ease, he said. Dairymen even can obtain an individualized breeding program tailor-made through computerized selection of bulls based on their own specifications.

Farm-based computer terminals have been used in cow inventory and management control programs, he said. These are used for keeping abreast of reproductive data such as fresh dates, heat periods, breeding dates, and time required to dry off cows, he said.

In the milking parlor, dairymen have been bolstered by the "highly significant" development of the automatic take-off milking machine, Owen said. Using the new equipment in parlors where it is well suited could result in a 30 to 50 percent labor savings in milking.

"This is a major advance because the cost of farm labor has risen markedly recently and milking cows accounts for about 80 percent of the dairy farm's labor need," he said.

This equipment automatically removes the milking unit from the cow's udder when the milk-flow rate drops to a specified level.

Although such units have been used for keeping abreast of reproductive data such as fresh dates, heat periods, breeding dates, and time required to dry off cows, he said.

However you figure it

...our dollar spent at home does a $4 or $5 job for our community (all of us)

Some dollars that get into our local moneystream will pass through ten or a dozen hands before getting swapped for something or some service somewhere else. Others get carried away sooner. Money experts say the average turnover of dollars in a community like ours is four or five times.

Which means that $1 which is carried off somewhere else before its time will take away with it $4 or $5 in trade, wages, local taxes, bank deposits and other enrichment.
