

Ann Perry Visitor 3,000 at Museum

By CHUCK BARNES

Ann Perry chipped out her niece in Wayne County history Thursday when she visited the Wayne County Historical Museum.

Ann, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Perry, Wayne, was the 3,000th visitor to sign the register at the museum. She visited the museum Thursday evening.

The Wayne County Historical Society presented a bicentennial collector's plate to Ann for being visitor number 3,000. The plate is now a collector's item.

Collector's item or not, Ann promptly turned the plate over to her great aunt Maude Auker, a resident of the Wayne Care Centre.

The gift was appropriate as Mrs. Auker, who will be 100 years old Nov. 22, was one of the guiding lights to organize a museum for Wayne County.

Mrs. Auker joined forces with Jesse Reynolds 25 years ago and persuaded the Wayne County commissioners to give them some room in the court house to display Wayne County historical items.

The room was on the third floor of the courthouse and really wasn't large enough to adequately display the items," Mrs. Auker explained. "But we didn't look a gift horse in the mouth and we set about doing what we could."

The idea of a museum slowly spread and soon there were enough women to make a museum committee. The committee functioned until 1954 when the Wayne County Historical Society was formed and has grown to what it is today.

Mrs. Auker expressed deep pleasure and appreciation in receiving the plate. The plate shows the six original towns of Wayne.

"If there is any truth to 'age is only as old as you feel,'" Mrs. Auker should be about 25 years younger than her chronological age. She is surprisingly agile, has a quick mind and a bright sense of humor.

She recounted the high points of her life with vivid and exacting detail. She was born in Red Oak Ia Nov. 22, 1878. She and her family left the Southwestern Iowa community when she was four years old. "It was the first time I had ever seen a train and it scared me," she recalled. "I cried."

Her father, William Benshoof, purchased a half section of land for $7 an acre. Mrs. Auker said she paid $11 an acre some years later for a quarter section of land across the road. Mrs. Auker explained. "Everyone said that William Benshoof is See VISITOR, page 7."

Wayne's Noch Less' Monster?

RESIDENTS WONDERED if welcome rains last week spawned this "monster" which was up to its hubcaps in water following 1.5 inches of precipitation which broke the "drought" Thursday night. Extension agent Don Spitze said the rain came at a good time, as corn is nearing its critical pre-harvesting stage. This stage is one of three that corn goes through where water use peaks. Spitze said the corn would probably use up the rain water in 3-4 days, possibly longer if cool temperatures prevail. The rain came nice and easy compared to other parts of the area where high winds and heavy rains caused damage. The Wayneland area was under a tornado watch for two consecutive nights, but the storms stayed to the north of the area.

For First Quarter — 1978

County Records Sales Gain

Wayne County showed a booming 18.7 percent increase in net taxable retail sales for the first quarter of the year. During the first three months of the year, the county had $8,107 in net taxable retail sales as compared to $6,828 for the same period the previous year. The retail sales figures compiled by the bureau of business research, University of Nebraska-Lincoln show Nebraska's net taxable retail sales were $1,539 million in the first quarter, representing a state-wide increase of 4.1 percent above the $1,479 million recorded for the same three-month period in 1977. The five-county Region 1 of which Wayne County is a part remained about the same with $6,994 net retail sales reported in 1977 with $6,191 recorded in 1978. The picture is encouraging but not quite so rosy when retail sales are adjusted for price changes and population changes. Commodity prices increased an estimated 5.9 percent under the new all urban workers' budget for the period under consideration. Population in Nebraska was estimated to have increased seventh tenths of one percent. Taking into consideration the two areas of changes, there was a decline in real retail sales for the period. Economists said the depressed nature of retail sales reflects the abnormally severe winter and depressed grain prices and a tendency to move less volume during the winter period. Higher grain and livestock prices during the balance of 1978, economists stated, should have a favorable impact upon retail sales in the remaining three quarters of 1978. However, they said it is unlikely that retail sales will expand in 1978 to the extent it did during 1975 or 1976 which are classed as two exceptionally good years. While many of the regional trade centers traditionally showed increased, the entire Panhandle recorded gains above the state average for the first time in several quarters. Region 25, which includes Knox, Cedar and Dixon Counties and Region 3, Dakota County, recorded sales gain above the state average.

Visit by Dyas Set Thursday

Hess Dyas, candidate for congress in Nebraska's first district, will be in Wayne from 8 to 11:30 a.m. Thursday. He will also be in Winside and Carroll Thursday in conjunction with his 73rd mile walk across the first district.

The Wayne Chamber of Commerce issued an invitation to all concerned members of the business community and citizens of Wayne to attend a coffee in the banquet room of Jeff's Cafe where they can meet Dyas. Dyas is expected to discuss upcoming issues facing Nebraskans and the nation as a whole. See DYAS, page 7.

Two Earn State Posts

Six Wayne County 4-H'ers competed in the Agriculture and Engineering Demonstration Contest held at the Wayne County fairgrounds on Thursday. Marilyn Low, Madison County extension agent, was the judge. Kristy Bull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldron Bull of Wayne and Blaine Johns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilbert Johns of Wayne received purple ribbons and will compete in the State 4-H Demonstration Contest held during the state fair. Other demonstrators were Debby Bull, purple ribbon; and Sandra Utecht, Jennifer Utecht and Julie Anderson, all of which received a blue ribbon.

Suggests Options To 'Problem Areas'

A Wayne property owner and candidate for mayor this week pointed out possible solutions to what he termed, two problem areas in Wayne.

Walt Tolman, 712 Walnut Drive stated in an open letter to the Wayne city council, the two problem areas. He added, however, that zoning East 7th Street to commercial at this time would "limit such options."

Tolman was referring to council's action to rezone lot 10, block 1, Cecil Wreidt subdivision to Wayne from residential to commercial. The council took the action after the Wayne Plan See OPTIONS, page 7

Langvardt, dean of the college. Students to be eligible for the Dean's list for academic achievement must be registered for a minimum of 12 hours.

Judge Orders

New Examination

Sentencing for William G. Hill, who was convicted of sexual assault on a Wayne County girl has been postponed. In District Court Wednesday, Hill's lawyer brought up Nebraska's sexual sodomy law and held that Hill should be examined to determine whether or not he (Hill) is a sexual sociopath. Judge Eugene McFadden See JUDGE, page 7

A Sticky Mess

WITH BUBBLE gum all over her face, Susie Lutt eyes the judges to see if her bubble was big enough to win the Gibson bubble blowing contest Tuesday. Connie Smith blew the biggest bubble and won $25 worth of merchandise — of her choice from the toy department.

Don't Delay; May Have to Pay

Beginning July 16, motorists in Wayne are going to pay for parking violations. Wayne Police Chief Vern Fairchild said effective 8 p.m. July 16, Wayne police officers will begin issuing "pay" parking tickets. Chief Fairchild said vehicles parked in violation of the city ordinances will be tagged with new tickets which will require paying a parking penalty at the police department in city hall. If the ticket is paid within the first five days, the penalty will be $2 per violation. If the ticket is paid within 6 to 15 days, the penalty will be $4 per violation. After 15 days, a complaint will be filed in Wayne County Court. Chief Fairchild said the new ticketing procedure is being instituted to crack down on violators.

But Badly Undermanned

Wayne Guard Stands Ready

By MARK CRAMER

When disaster strikes, when power failures cause looting and employees refuse to work, and if there should be an attack on the U.S. by a foreign power, there is a service designed to help and protect. That service is the National Guard, but in Nebraska the guard is short-handed. Wayne is a good example of this shortage. According to 1st Sgt. Dennis Spangler, NCO in charge of the Army, Wayne is authorized to have 85 members in its unit; it has 30. The Wayne unit is a member of 1st Battalion, 134th Ins. Division. Spangler, who has been in Wayne ten years, said the guard was operating full strength during the Vietnam action, but declined in number toward the end of that conflict. Spangler attributed the Guard's diminishing numbers to the country's strong anti-war movement, and growing apathy. The army now has more equipment than men. Spangler says that having the guard only operating at 40 percent strength makes it difficult to maintain it all. When the men are on duty, they can only spend a fraction of their time on maintenance for, they are required to spend much of their time in training. There are two types of guard units, "support" and "combat. Support units consist of administrative, medical, cooking, and other background personnel.

Combat units are "the guys up front who get wet and cold," says Spangler. It is the combat units that are the most lacking. Benefits for those National Guardsmen are good. Personnel are required to serve one weekend (two days) a month, but receive four days pay. The weekend duty consists of 16 hours of drills. Each year, Guard members spend 15 days at an active duty training post where they are paid for each day of duty. Members are all eligible for a $20,000 life insurance policy which costs them $3.40 a month. College students attending state supported schools get 25 percent of their tuition paid.

Spangler added that most of his unit's members are college students. There are also some instances where some members may be eligible for a $100 a year bonus. In case of an emergency, members must come on duty if called, but in the ten years Spangler has been administrative supply technician, the only time the Wayne unit has been called on duty was during the flooding in Pender a few years ago. Spangler mentioned that the Fremont and Omaha units are also opened-to-females. There is a possibility of the Wayne unit closing down because of being under strength. See-GUARD, page 7

OBSERVATIONS

Telling it like it is

Economic news during this quarter has been glum to say the least. There is seemingly run-away inflation, a cattle market that is up and down to the point that even the most seasoned sailor would be seasick, a spiralling cost-of-living and reluctance on the part of the consumer to believe reports from the business world.

Probably one area of drabness that could be cleared up is that of semantics used by the nation's business and so-called economic forecasters. The facts are being communicated but they aren't understood. And for good reason. There is a mumble-jumble of rhetoric concerning the business world that is confusing and misleading.

We base our premise on polls (which are themselves misleading) which seem to prove our point. We agree that it's true that people seem to have a greater mistrust of government than of business. But at the same time, people repeatedly say things in their response to polls that show they don't understand business as it is conducted in this country. This is not a healthy situation. Business and the consumer must be on common ground.

There are other indicators. A survey conducted by the Joint Council on Economic Education showed that only 29 percent of 15,000 junior high students could correctly identify a simple description of our economic system. And worse still, only 50 percent could tell the difference between the economics of the United States and the Soviet Union.

There is a definite communications gap. Semantics used by the business element are poor, but that, in our estimation, is not the basic issue. Many times business isn't talking about those areas in which the public is interested. The free-market system gives the consumer what they want. It doesn't really matter if the buying public knows how much or how little profit a business makes — so long as it understands that if it doesn't live in a country where profit making is possible, it may have to wait two years to find a pair of shoes to buy.

The so-called new economists — neo-conservative — aren't concerned with the concepts of "free enterprise," the "virtue" of competition or the "evil" of big government, or the "value" of private property. They're concerned with practical fact, not ideology — with science, not propaganda.

The real issue in business is "what will work?" As a result of mathematics and computer language of modern economics, the result of their studies are viewed with awe, even by the liberal economists. For example, these economists have been able to make sophisticated tests of the conservatives' constant charge that government intervention in business affairs costs the American people money. The charge, they find, is correct. Government intervention causes large distortions in the economy and those distortions carry big price tags.

Some of these economists have looked closely at Social Security. They've shown that one of the great problems of Social Security is that it cuts into private savings and substantially reduces gross national product, not to mention the impact it has on capital formation through savings reduction.

We thought we might catch your attention with Social Security. Social Security leads people to stop saving and start drawing down their savings earlier than they would otherwise and this tends to reduce savings — by nearly the full amount of the tax.

Applying this reasoning to the most recent year the economists were able to study (1974), it was found that capital accumulation would have been nearly $20 billion, or 55 percent greater if there had been no Social Security. Extending this reasoning over a longer period of time, it was shown that without Social Security the capital stock would be 55 percent larger and gross national product 14 percent higher.

Even now, we're muddying up the water with dull rhetoric. But understanding our economic system is high priority for our form of government: the last test of time. We don't underrate the American public. They understand and appreciate facts. They have a canny ability to sift through the foggiest linguistics to the truth. It may take them a while, but eventually they do it. We hope this vignette grows.

One of the jobs of business is to talk to the American people about the things in which they are interested. They should talk about consumer issues in language the public understands, using facts that means something to them.

We'll prove the value of our economic system. In other words, by proving what it does for real people in the real world. — Chuck Barnes.

With Chuck Barnes

We never cease to be amazed at the awesomeness of "Mother Nature" when it rains.

—CHB—

The unusually hot weather during the July 4th holiday triggered some staggering storms. Most of the Wayne land area escaped the first round of the storms. But there was enough area activity to keep most of us near a radio or a teevee set.

—CHB—

We happened to be caught in front of the tube and we watched as the weather news was updated, recapitulated, re-narrowed, re-updated and then dealt a deadly blow as time ran out on the various watches and warnings.

—CHB—

We don't demean the effort by the weather persons. They did their job. The way in which they did it was interesting. We didn't mind when they cut away from regular programming to spread the word for people in certain sectors to take cover and to others to "prepare to take cover when the situation warrants it," meaning that if they happen to spot a tornado bearing down upon them, it might be wise to get the heck out of wherever they are.

—CHB—

However, it seemed more than just "regular programming." It was just after the punch line had been delivered or we got a commercial in tolo. We might be pressing our luck, so we're going back to our usual nonsense.

—CHB—

But before we do, this message: "Area persons should take time to tour the Wayne County Museum Wayne Chamber of Commerce members. Friday were taken on mini-tours of the museum. We highly recommend it as a family outing."

—CHB—

In conjunction with the museum, we had the pleasure of meeting Maude Auker, one of the prime movers behind the founding of the museum 25 years ago.

—CHB—

Mrs. Auker will be 100 years old in November of this year. Age hasn't slowed her down much, in body or spirit. She remembered in detail the highlights of her life and is a real delight to listen to and to talk with.

—CHB—

She takes her age lightly, but not her flowers which are blooming in a small garden outside of her window at the Wayne Care Centre. "I don't care what you say about me, but don't forget to mention my flowers!" Sometimes we don't appreciate simple beauty because we are too busy to look for it.

—CHB—

Ann Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Perry, was the 3,000th visitor to the Wayne County museum because her brother, Tom, nudged her out of line to sign the guest register first. Ladies first, Tom always.

—CHB—

And that is that!

Dear Editor and Anyone Concerned,
Words cannot express my feelings as recipient of the 1978 Outstanding Farm Woman Award. So I'll say it best I can.

First of all, I'd like to thank the Wayne Chamber of Commerce for the lovely luncheon and program, the men's quartet and Addie were just great. But, I too know how much planning and time is put into these activities, so I'd like to say a special "thanks" to the businessmen's wives who so graciously waited tables and the ladies who made the favors and little hens. They were so cute.

A big "thank you" to my daughter, Eliene, who nominated me and to all my friends who without them my world would not be complete. I guess I could sum it up quite short by saying, "thanks everyone" — Mrs. Eldon (Bonnie) Loetscher.

Honorable Mention All-American Named Top Employee At Region IV

Rick Anderson came from Chicago to Wayne almost four years ago to attend college and play basketball. Now, a year after graduating from Wayne State College where he was an Honorable Mention All-American basketball player, Rick was voted "employee of the year" at Region IV services in Wayne, where he is residential coordinator.

"Being voted 'employee of the year' has given me a great amount of incentive, and working with Region IV has given me added experience working with individuals who are developmentally disabled, interviewing and communicating with people," Rick said.

Rick's job at Region IV is one of dual purposes. He sees to it that his clients' needs are being met residentially and programatically. He must make sure that residential areas are up to standards set by state and federal regulations and that a least restrictive environment is exhibited. "It's a lot of work and I've seen a lot of changes. I guess that's what keeps me going," Rick added.

"I can identify with my clients because it's hard for them to be accepted in the community and it's just as hard for me because I'm black," Rick said. "I am pleased with the attitude of the community with accepting our clients because it's important for us that they're socially accepted."

Region IV's main philosophy is normalization. They provide wide range assessment services for individuals. Some of the services include sensori-motor, cognitive, affective, social and communicative development, just to name a few, Anderson said.

"People have been institutionalized. It's a big change. It costs taxpayers about $10,000 per person in Beatrice and only $7,800 in most community-based programs for citizens with disabilities or handicaps," Rick replied. "I currently hope to promote and recruit adult family home sponsors. This simply involves placing someone in a regular home setting with family involvement and a normal home atmosphere."

"I've been interested in people all my life. There are four things I base life on — knowledge, wisdom, power and love. A person has to have those to exist in life, and working with these people has helped me develop these qualities," Rick said.

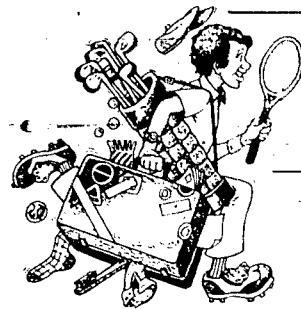

"In light of the hardships I had within myself, there have been people to keep my head above water, people who realize who I am. Mrs. Roberta Wette and Mrs. Henry Ley have a permanent place in my heart and have played a big role in my life," Anderson added.

Rick added that it is the simple things in life that attract most people and he's no exception. He's willing to work for anything that involves truth and honesty not an assumption or pre-judgment he said.

Rick plans to further his education at Vanderbilt University in the future and hopes to play some basketball in the well known Eastern League, a semi pro farm league.

DEMONSTRATING HIS basketball techniques for Verl Winstchester and Mike Tobin. Region IV "employee of the year" Rick Anderson works hard to see that his clients needs are being met.

Randy's RECAP

According to Randy Hascall

I HAD THE PLEASURE this week of talking with a friend I made while attending Wayne State College. Rick Anderson, who was one of the most exciting basketball players, in my opinion, to play for WSC, visited with me in an interview after he was selected "employee of the year" at Region IV recently.

Rick lived in Morey Hall while he attended college and living in the same dormitory. I got to know him well. He is one of the friendliest persons I know and he always went out of his way to speak to people.

At Region IV, Rick is helping people, and has become more than just an authority to his clients. To many of them he is a personal friend and he often goes out of his way during his off hours to visit them and even shoot a few baskets with one of them.

It's really encouraging to see someone become so involved and be accepted by his clients as Rick is. And Rick has one handicap in this community — he's black.

their seats just to exercise the rights given to them in the First Amendment.

These are the people who have an officially reserved seats directly behind home plate so they can see and dispute every call the umpire makes. The only differences between these fans and the ump are that the fans are 50 feet behind the plate and have to look through chicken mesh to see the action.

Yet they know the umpire is wrong and that's what's so funny. It's almost turns my stomach — "put on some glasses ump." The umpire has a difficult job and gets little credit for the job he does compared to the criticism directed at him. It's a job not just anyone wants. For instance, ask the arguing fans and see if they'd like to volunteer for the job.

Persons allergic to insect bites should avoid perfumes, hair sprays, and suntan lotions which attract insects. Wear shoes, long trousers, and long sleeves — avoid flower prints that attract bees. Keep picnic food covered until the moment it is served. Any person with a known allergic reaction should carry prescribed drugs for his immediate use.

Golfers Prepare For Wayne Open

Some local golfers are touching up on their strokes in preparation for the Wayne Open Golf Tournament to begin at 7 a.m. Sunday, July 16. A few of them will be hoping to knock off defending champion Bob Reeg for first place in the championship flight.

Reeg fired a three-over par 111 to win last year's open and will be shooting for first place again this year. A set of 'Hot Irons' will be given to the winner of the championship flight, and merchandise prizes will be given to other flight winners.

In addition to the $2,500 in merchandise to be awarded to winners, Coryell Auto will give away a new recreational van to anyone who records a hole-in-one on the eighth hole. The format will be identical to the Memorial Day Tournament, with all golfers playing 18 holes and the low 24 scores will qualify for a final nine hole round. Over 200 golfers are expected.

Pheiffer's 2nd No-Hitter Tops Winside Friday

Tim Pheiffer pitched his second no-hitter of the season, shutting out Winside in Midget action 10-0 Friday night. Pheiffer allowed only four base runners, three on errors and one on a walk while striking out eight Winside batters.

Zeiss started out the game with a home run to give his team an early jump. Jeff Dion reached first base on an error and Tim Thomas walked to set up an attack following Zeiss' home run. Dion scored on an error and Dan Mitchell came through with a triple to score Thomas and give Wayne a 3-0 lead.

Dion tripled in the third and Thomas singled to bring him in. Rick Metteer doubled in Thomas, stole third base and came home on a sacrifice fly by Jere Morris. Zeiss continued his hot streak with a triple scoring Kevin Nissen and Dennis Carroll-singled to score Zeiss and up the score to 8-0 in the third inning.

Steve Sorenson walked, stole second and third and scored when Doug Proett laid down a sacrifice bunt. Jeff Brandt scored the final run on a sacrifice fly by Todd Skoken.

In One-Hitter Sharpe Paves Way For 8-0 Win

Vic Sharpe pitched five innings, giving up only one hit to Bill Thomas in the fourth and got out of a bases-loaded jam in that inning to shutout the Winside Juniors 8-0 Friday night. Doug Carroll pitched the last two innings to pick up the save.

Dean Carroll scored the first run in the first inning. He walked, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Tom Ginn's single to left field.

Sharpe doubled down the left field to lead off the second inning and Al Nissen clubbed a two run in the park homer to give Wayne a 3-0 lead.

Mitch Pfeiffer and Bruce Smith provided Winside with a scoring opportunity with one out in the second inning when both walked and pitched second and third bases. The next two batters struck out to end their hopes though.

After holding Wayne in the third and fourth innings, Winside gathered an attack in the bottom of the fourth. Thomas singled, Smith gained first base on an error and Todd Hoemann walked to load up the bases with two outs but Tom Wills' ground-er toward first base wasn't good enough for a single.

A big fifth inning broke the game open for Wayne. Jerry Goeden, Mark Gansbom, and Dean Carroll all reached base and Ginn poked his second single of the night to score Goeden. Gansbom scored when Kevin Murray grounded out, and both Carroll and Ginn added runs when Sharpe singled, making the score 7-0. Doug Carroll scored the final run in the seventh inning ending the game 8-0.

Fun in the Sun During Rec Program

Projects ranging from story-book record listening for kindergarten to various crafts for advanced classes are just part of the summer recreation program offered by the city of Wayne and supervised by Mrs. Erna Karel.

Presently, 187 youngsters are enrolled in the summer recreation program and anyone who is interested can register at any time. Students sing, play games, and get to know one another through their activities. The six week program will end July 21. Mrs. Karel, in her 18th year as recreation coordinator, says she enjoys it as much as ever because the children take such pride in their projects. "The projects must be made right though, I won't let them take home a project that isn't made right, because tax dollars pay for them."

The recreation program is funded through city recreation funds, tax funds and a community chest. Instructors at the recreation program are: Julie Ahlvers, Julie Maben, kindergarten; Beth Ostendorf, first grade; Tracy Keating, Sherry Workman, second grade; Terri Thomas, third grade; Julie Creighton, fourth grade; Joni Coan, fifth grade; Chris Brink, sixth, seventh, and eighth grade; Gwen Preston, singing.
