During Fiscal 1978-79

Hwy 15 North to Get Face-Lifting

One of the area's most troublesome highways will get a $2.2 million facelift during fiscal 1978-79. State Roads Director David O. Coolidge Thursday announced that Highway 15 north of Wayne is included in a $119.6 million statewide road improvements program slated for the present fiscal year (July 1, 1978-June 30, 1979).

Some 10 1/2 miles of Highway 15 north of Wayne will be reworked. The project includes grading, structures and surfacing. The total cost of the project has been estimated at $2,820,000. Highway 15, which carries a large amount of heavy truck traffic, has been a perennial road patching project for the state roads department.

In dollars, the $119.6 million program is the largest highway improvement program in the state's history. There are some 88 projects included in the program. Coolidge said the program is based on $65.2 million in federal highway funds, $49.7 million in state funds and $4.7 million from cities and counties for work within their boundaries.

The state funds are based on Department of Roads projections that highway revenues in fiscal 1979 from the state gasoline tax will be about 1.5 percent above the past fiscal year. The increase reflects the additional one-cent per gallon increase passed by the 1977 legislature. The director explained.

Some $17.4 million is scheduled for use in Northeast Nebraska (district 3). Coolidge said the program anticipates passage of the 1978 Federal Aid Highway Act now pending congress. The new bill may increase the present 70-30 federal funding participation to 80-20 for highways on the federal aid system except for the interstates. The department expects a ten percent increase in growth rate for the state sales tax levied on motor vehicles, because of price increases on trucks and cars. A three percent increase in income for motor vehicle registration fees is anticipated. Overall, the department projects a 4 1/2 percent increase in state highway revenues for fiscal year 1979.

Advises Check For Hoppers

While end-of-the-week showers provided needed precipitation for area crops, they are far from being "made." Area extension personnel said the crops are looking excellent at this time but said the moisture will have to keep coming if they are to be better than average. Sub-soil moisture has been depleted because of less than average rainfall in June. Timely rains during the first part of July have brought the crops back to a normal stage of growth. Officials said corn borer infestation may take its toll because of the weather which was favorable for the laying of first brood eggs. They pointed out it is too late to treat for the borer as it has eaten its way into the stalk.

Western Nebraska is baffling an invasion of grasshoppers and an extension entomologist has advised farmers to check fence rows, field margins, pastures, row crops and alfalfa fields for the next several days. Dr. David Smith said there is not much evidence of hoppers in Northeast Nebraska but advised farmers to take precautionary measures by checking for the damaging grasshoppers.

While the hoppers normally breed in unfilled lands and then move to adjacent cropland, alfalfa fields also prove to be good breeding grounds. Keith advised farmers to estimate the numbers of hoppers per square yard to determine the need for control. On cropland, eight nymphs, or young hoppers, per square yard after See HOPPERS, Page 10

A Wayne County Fatality

ROGER ROHDE, 17, rural Randolph, was killed Wednesday morning when his car which he reportedly was driving was in collision with a car being driven by Michael Polenske, 18, Randolph. The accident on a Wayne county road four miles southeast of Randolph occurred about 8 a.m. Nebraska Highway Patrol trooper, who investigated the accident, said the Rohde vehicle was northbound when it was in collision with the southbound car being driven by Polenske. Polenske was taken to a Sioux City hospital where he underwent an emergency operation for head injuries. He was reported to still be in critical condition following the operation. Funeral services for Rohde, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Rohde, were held Friday at St. Francis Catholic church.

At Providence Medical Center

New Emergency System

When Providence Medical Center encounters a medical problem they can not handle, they can summon help by telephone without long distance hassles, and without worrying about encountering a busy signal. This is due to a new telephone service the hospital had installed in June. The service is Medical Consultation System (MCS) and it is a part of Northern Nebraska Emergency Medical Services (EMS).

According to Marcella Thomas, Administrator of the center, the system can also be used as a WATS line for hospital business. The line runs through a switchboard at the Norfolk Police Station, and then to the party the caller is trying to reach. The switchboard operator makes a record of all calls, which will help to catch and prevent misuses of the system. The system operates on three codes & code one for life threatening emergencies, code two for non life threatening emergencies, code three for administrative, medically related, and business calls. If a code one call comes through the switchboard, the operator will override any other calls on the needed line. Head nurse, Louise Jenness, said that code one has been used to send and receive EKGs. So far 13 of the 23 hospitals in the Northern Nebraska EMS are connected to the system.

Work Session Tuesday

Council to Fine-Tune Budget

The Wayne city council and mayor will meet in special session Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the council chambers. The purpose of the meeting is a work session to examine the proposed city budget which is expected to be presented at a public hearing set for July 25. The proposed budget, which was given to council members Tuesday night, was not released for public examination because of last-minute amendments caused by an additional $13,000 in state funding. However, City Administrator Fred Brink said the tentative budget is designed to "hold the line" on expenditures while not cutting back on services. The proposed budget amounts to $5,014,687 which represents a $14,213 increase over this year's budget. Brink at first speculated the tentative plan would represent a decrease of some $60,000 but re-examination pointed out the slight increase. The budget is based on a mill levy that is just about half of that on which this year's budget was based. The proposed mill levy is 14.22. The mill levy for See BUDGET, Page 10

Can List Concerns At Public Meeting

Wayne County residents will have a chance to list their concerns about the natural resources of the state and nation during a public meeting to be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in the McClay building at Northeast Technical College, Norfolk, according to Arnold Marr, district conservator.

The public meeting will also have TV sets available to view the program. The meetings offer an extra opportunity for people to become involved in the discussion before and after the TV. See CONCERNS, Page 10

The information gathered from the public meeting will be used to design the future resource conservation programs of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District. The information is being gathered as part of the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977. President Carter signed the Act into law last November. This is the first time in history that all the people nationwide, at the grassroots level of America, will have a chance to express their concern about the environment," said Marr. "People who are unable to attend the meeting will still have a chance to contribute their resource concerns. There will be an hour television program also on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. on the Nebraska Educational Television Network which will explain the Act. The TV program will give examples of many resource conditions and ask for the people's comments on the environmental concerns. In a similar fashion to the recent

Walk-Through of Downtown Project

TAKING A GOOD look at a sidewalk in the downtown improvement district are representatives of the construction and engineering firms for the project and a representative of the city. The group spent Thursday afternoon following up complaints received in letters which pointed out alleged deficiencies in materials and workmanship. Each of the property owners were contacted and problems were discussed. Many of the problems will be corrected by the construction company, a spokesman for the city said. The project, which has been under fire for some time, was the victim of untimely weather which resulted in construction being done under adverse conditions. However, the contractor and engineer responded to the letters and showed good intent by their willingness to correct many of the deficiencies. The men are (left to right) a representative (name unavailable) of Gill Construction company, the project contractor; Vern Schaefer, Wayne city street commissioner who represented the city in the walk-through; Barney Weiman, Bruce Gilmore and Associates, engineer for the project; Bruce Gilmore and Leonard Gill of Gill Construction.

According to Carroll Budget

Plan City Improvements

An intensive street sewer and water program for the City of Carroll for fiscal 1979 has resulted in a proposed budget of $63,889 with a necessary cash reserve of $16,388. However, because of accumulated funds in the three areas, Carroll taxpayers aren't going to feel much of a pinch for the improvements.

Proposed is a $16,950 street program, a $17,134 sewer program and a $12,915 water project. Estimated cash on hand in the street fund is $15,197, $16,493 in the sewer fund and $8,340 in the water fund. Some $30,869 is anticipated in miscellaneous revenue with a breakdown of $10,857 from state funds, $800 from federal funds and $19,212 from local funds. The general fund is asking for $10,815 as compared with actual and estimated expense for the current year of $16,500. Revenue sharing will amount to $1,380 with an allocation to the city auditorium of $3,175 which is almost the same as the current year's estimated expenditure of $3,180.

Resources Conservation Act Public Meetings July 20, 1978

Public meetings will be held July 20, 1978 at Leigh, Nebraska in the Leigh Community School Building and the Maclay Building at Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk, Nebraska. These meetings will begin at 7:00 p.m. and anyone interested in conserving our natural resources is encouraged to attend. The Resources Conservation Act will be explained to those in attendance and a one hour program will be aired on the Nebraska Educational TV. The program will highlight various natural resources issues and problems. Those attending the meeting will fill out questionnaires while viewing the program. The questionnaire lists many resource problems and asks if each one is a major or minor concern in your local area. After the program, time will be left for discussion of conserving natural resources.

The meetings and TV program are a part of the effort to carry out Public Law 95-192, better known as the Resources Conservation Act, which was passed by Congress in 1977. The act calls for an appraisal of soil, water and related natural resources of every county in Nebraska and the Nation. It also calls for local public comments in forming programs for meeting the conservation needs and to report these to the Congress. In this way, federal agencies such as the Soil Conservation Service can fit their programs to solving the local resources problems. This appraisal procedure will be repeated in five years, to keep the conservation programs current.

For those persons who will not be able to attend one of the public meetings, you will still be able to express your opinions. Questionnaires and brochures explaining the Resources Conservation Act may be picked up at your local Soil Conservation Service office and can be filled out while watching the program on your TV at home. The questionnaire should then be returned to the Soil Conservation Office before July 31, 1978. Those attending the meetings will have the advantage of discussing the program before and after the TV show. Your participation either way is strongly encouraged by the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District.

LIMITED IRRIGATION

Research in several midwestern states, including Nebraska and Kansas is accumulating evidence that the timing of irrigation is of major importance to corn and soybean yields. University of Nebraska researchers at the Sandhills Agricultural Laboratory have found that scheduling irrigations to put back only part of the water that the crop uses will slowly bring the crop under stress. This in turn, produces shorter plants than crops with unlimited water. However, if adequate water is applied at critical times, yields are maintained at the same level as those with unlimited water. In other words, the water you apply early in the season, goes for growing taller stalks, not for increasing yields. The critical times to have adequate moisture for corn is during tassling, silking and milk stage. The critical time for soybeans is during pod formation. For sorghum and alfalfa, there is no critical time for applying water.

Even in vegetative stages, soil moisture should be allowed to drop much below 50 percent available moisture. Irrigation scheduling is essential to obtain this kind of management. For more information, contact your local Cooperative Extension Agent or the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District.

RURAL WATER TESTS

Rural drinking water is currently being tested in several counties in a four state region, including Dodge and Madison Counties. This testing is part of a study funded by the Environmental Protection Agency, to gather information on the quantity and quality of water available to residents of rural America. The study is required by Congress in the Safe Drinking Water Act.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS?
This is at the South edge of Wayne on Highway 15 — looking Northwest along the Logan Creek in June, 1969.

FERTILIZING THROUGH IRRIGATION SYSTEMS

Applying fertilizer through irrigation systems can make more efficient use of the fertilizer, especially nitrates, plus protecting groundwater quality. Nitrates are very soluble in water and therefore can easily be carried down past the root zone of corn, if it is not taken up by the plants in a short time. Corn uses most nitrogen during the pollenation and kernel formation. 80-85 percent of the total nitrogen used by corn is used in July and August. Therefore, if a large amount of nitrogen is applied in fall or pre-plant, there is more time for leaching to occur.

By applying small amounts of nitrogen until tassling time, the crop can use it more efficiently. Better utilization of nitrogen means less leaching, and consequently less pollution of groundwater.

Anyone applying chemicals with an irrigation well must have check valve to keep the chemicals from entering the groundwater through the well.
