

Gates Open on Wayne County Fair '78

It's "County Fair Time" in Wayne County with the gates on the 1978 edition opening this morning (Thursday).

Marilyn Koch, county fair secretary, said the buildings and the grounds are in tip-top shape for this year's fair, thanks to the help of 4-H members and community and county residents. The fair headliner in the front of the grandstand is country-western singer Margo Smith whose current best-seller "Don't Break the Heart That Loves You" has climbed to number seven on the country charts.

She will appear Friday at 8:30 p.m. Not only has she taken her place among the country stars as a singer, but she has an added talent of yodling. The petite singer from Carlisle, Ohio, is expected to present a big evening of entertainment to area fair-goers. Today (Thursday) is Winslow, Hoskins and Altona Day with judging of exhibits in the 4-H building, the judging of the 4-H and Open Class dairy entries, the judging of 4-H horses, the judging of poultry, rabbits and pigeons, the judging of Open Class economics.

The exhibits and booths will be open to the public beginning at 6 p.m.

MARGO SMITH

Also today is a water fight contest to be held near the Wayne fire hall with team competition in an "Anything Goes" contest. Teams competing include those from Winslow, Hoskins, Carroll, Wayne, and Wakefield.

There is a full day Friday which is Wayne County Day. It will begin bright and early with the judging of the 4-H and Open Class hogs, the judging of the 4-H and Open Class sheep, the judging of 4-H beef, the judging of Open Class horses.

The annual barbeque will be held at 6 p.m. with the 4-H Livestock parade set for 7:30 p.m. Also on tap is the presentation of Pioneer awards and Special awards to be followed by Margo Smith show.

Saturday, which is Carroll,

Sholes and General Day will feature the Market Hog Show, the judging of the Open Class beef, a horseshoe pitching contest, a tractor pull and a sanctioned pickup pull.

Saturday will also be Children's Day on the Midway. A $3 ticket will allow youngsters to ride on all rides from 1 to 6 p.m. The fair will carry over to Sunday with a 4-H Pen of Three Market Beef show, the 4-H Livestock Bonus auction and a Demolition Derby to get underway at 7 p.m.

Admission to the four-day fair is 12.15 years, general admission $7.50, season pass, $2; 16 years and older, general admission, $1.50; season pass, $4. Children under 12 years of age will be admitted free.

Those attending the fair are urged to visit the special commercial exhibits of the State Game and Parks Commission and the State Highway Patrol.

A blood pressure clinic will be held all four days. It is being sponsored by the Wayne Kiwanis Club.

Fair Political 'Hunting Ground'

County fairs are "hunting grounds" for politicians and this year's Wayne County Fair is no exception.

Two candidates for congress from the First District will attend the fair. There is a possibility that Gov. J. James Exon, candidate for U.S. Senate, will be on the political trail this week with a stopover at the Wayne County Fair.

State Sen. Doug Bereuter, Utica, First District Congressional candidate, will spend Friday afternoon and evening at the fair where he plans to visit with fair-goers about issues of local concern.

Hess Dyas, also a candidate for Congress in Nebraska's First District, will interrupt a 73-mile walk across the district to visit the county fair on Friday.

He is expected to arrive about 4:30 p.m.

Dyas said "the walk along with visits to county fairs are providing me with tremendous insight with regard to the problems facing the First District."

Henry Ley, Wayne banker, is co-chairman of Dyas for Congress committee.

SPRUNGING UP the Main Gate area of the Wayne County fairgrounds are volunteers on tractors. Marilyn Koch, fair secretary, oversaw the work as they opened today (Thursday).

Less Than One Percent Increase

Council Passes Appropriation Bill

The city council Tuesday night passed an "Annual Appropriation Bill" ordinance after holding a public hearing on the 1978 city budget. The total budget of $5,019,687.77 represents three tenths of one percent increase over the 1977 budget. The appropriation bill sets out the necessary expenses and liabilities of the city for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1979 and specifies the objects and purposes for which the appropriations are made.

The mill levy, which is 14.33 mills representing a cut of nearly half of that which was levied last year, is based on a total valuation of $18,000,000 which is substantially more than last year because of reassessment.

The funds, appropriation and the mill levy for each are: General fund, $140,134.21; Police fund, $176,448.31; 5.43; Senior Citizens fund, $5,690.29; 0.0; Street fund, $702,522.12; 41; See BILL, page 12

City Grants

6% Increase

Despite the city council agenda being chopped by a third, the council members Tuesday night found plenty of business to which they had to address themselves. They agreed to give Wayne city employees a six percent cost of living increase for fiscal 1979, effective Aug 1.

The increase would amount to about $600 per year for the average employee as City Clerk Bruce Mordhorst said the average annual salary would be about $10,000.

Most of the council members agreed the percentage increase was a better basis than a figure increase. Employees last year got a 25 per cent increase in pay and that figure did not measure to the cost of living index.

Voting against the increase were Sam Hepburn, Vernon Russell and Larry Johnson.

Station Passes

'Rights' Test

The nearly completed Compactor Transfer Station without its first test of constitutionality Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the city council.

Councilman Sam Hepburn raised the question of the city testing a citizen where he has to dump his garbage as being a violation of his civil rights.

After discussion, Bob Ensz, representing the city attorney's office, determined there was no constitutional problem.

He said a city could exercise its police powers in determining See STATION, page 12

Decker Breaks

Council Tie

Mayor Freeman Decker broke a tie vote by the city council Tuesday night, allowing the city attorney to draw up a proposed ordinance to rezone lot 10, block 1, Cecil Wried's Addition, from residential to commercial.

Voting for the measure were council members Cliff Ginn, Carolyn Filter, Darrel Fuelbert and Larry Johnson. Voting against were Keith Mosley, Sam See DECKER, page 12

Weatherwise

June-The Month That Was

June will go down in the record books as "the month that was" as far as weather is concerned.

Temperatures were near normal or just a little above normal but the precipitation was far below normal in all divisions in Nebraska.

The first seven to ten days of the month were cool, but in most areas, the remainder of the month was filled with hot, humid days interspersed with a few cooler days.

In the Wayneland area, the average daily maximum temperature for June was a little above 84 degrees. The average high for the month was approximately 71 degrees which represents about 1 1/2 degrees above normal.

The average daily minimum was about 58 degrees which was just a smidge over normal.

The hottest day of the month was 98 degrees on June 30. The lowest temperature recorded during the month was 42 degrees on June 8.

Precipitation — or the lack of it — was more vividly demonstrated in the preliminary climatic summary of June, 1978 as prepared by the conservation and survey division of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

June, 1978, was the third driest June in the last 48 years in Northeast Nebraska which was 17 to 27 percent below normal. See JUNE, page 12

Now Comes

The Cutworm

Corn producers in Wayne County should be on the lookout for a build up of the western bean cutworm, according to Dr. David Keith, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Extension entomologist.

The egg-laying moths are now emerging, and should reach their peak of activity within the next few days. Keith said that one mature cutworm can reduce a farmer's grain yield from two to five percent.

Dr. Keith, who is a professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, suggests that farmers take action immediately to prevent future problems with the pest. Upper sides of corn leaves must be examined for egg masses, and tassels and leaf axils examined for small worms. These examinations See CUTWORM, page 12

Liquor License

Given Approval

The city council Tuesday night went against strong arguments to recommend the approval of a Class C liquor license for a proposed new restaurant in Wayne.

Council members Cliff Ginn and Leo Hansen voted against approval. The recommendation will be forwarded to the State Liquor Commission which will make the final determination.

The new restaurant will be located in the building now occupied by Wittig's Super Market. It will be owned and managed by Lamar and Preston Olson of Norfolk.

The facility would be a family type restaurant open from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m., seven days a week. It would have a small lounge, dining area and meeting rooms, and would seat about 200 persons, according to Lamar See LICENSE, page 12

The Allen Future Farmers of America chapter reminds every one to be careful this week and every week of the year in the interest of farm safety.

Joni Kraemer, reporter, pointed out this week — July 24-28 — has been declared National Farm Safety Week. She explained research and progress have made farm practices easier and less dangerous than ever before, but there is still need for caution.

Chapter members offer the following safety suggestions to be used around a farm.

1. Don't allow "passengers" on a tractor or on the equipment hitched to the tractor. The extra person could be thrown off the tractor or lose his balance very easily.

2. Don't give rides in mounted loaders. The loader could "trip" and the rider be run over by the See TIPS, page 12

Carlos Frey of Mid-America Art Studio, Wayne, holds a clay "life mask" of himself to show what Wayne Chamber members can expect when they visit the studio workshop located one mile east of Wayne, and three buildings south of Ofte Construction. A Chamber coffee will be held Friday at 10 a.m. at the newly located studio area where a pottery workshop is ending this week. A Chamber member will have a chance to have a "life mask" made of him (or her) by putting names in a hat. One name will be drawn and the mold will be made during the one-hour coffee period. A clay "life mask" will be made from the mold. This is strictly volunteer participation, according to Gary Van Meter, Chamber executive.

Teacher Takes 'Trip of Lifetime'

A "trip of a lifetime" was taken during June and July by a teacher of English for the past 12 years in the Wayne-Carroll school system.

Ann Meyer of Allen hopes to show her junior and senior high school students the pictures she took this summer while visiting several areas in the Mediterranean, including Egypt, Syria, Jordan, Israel and Greece.

"This was the pilgrimage I have always wanted to take," she said. "The ancient world is a fascinating place."

Mrs. Meyer left from New York's Kennedy Airport June 19 and arrived back in the states on July 10. Before returning to her home in Allen she visited her daughter, Roni Ann Meyer Force, at Narragansett, R.I. for four days.

In Egypt, Mrs. Meyer visited the Egyptian Museum to see the golden treasures from Tutankhamen's tomb and the "remarkable" Mummies Room, the Sphinx and the Great Pyramids of Giza at Cairo.

Traveling via plane to Luxor, the site of ancient Thebes, she was taken by decorated horse-drawn carriage along the Nile to the 3,500-year-old temple complex of Karnak, and along the two-mile Avenue of the Sphinxes, which led past the Temple of Luxor and the massive statue of Ramesses II.

The day ended with a sunset sail on the Nile in a taluka (an ancient boat of the Egyptians). The next morning, crossing the Nile by ferry, the Allen woman toured the ancient burial grounds of Egypt's greatest Pharaohs at the Valley of the Kings.

At Aswan near the Sudanese border, she viewed the unfinished Obelisk and the power full Aswan Dam, and took a boat ride around Elephantine Island past the Aga Khan's Mausoleum to visit the Botanic Gardens on Kitchener Island.

After a short morning flight, she toured Abu Simbel, a site which was carved out of a single rock face around 7,000 B.C. The original site was completely submerged by the Nile in 1964. Since then, the entire 300,000-ton complex, including four 60-foot figures of Ramesses II, has been moved 200 feet up the hill side.

That evening, Mrs. Meyer flew back to Cairo for a last evening in Egypt, and the next day went through three custom inspections, at Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

Other highlights of the trip included a day long tour of the world's oldest continually inhabited city, Damascus, Syria, a view of the 6,000-seat Roman amphitheatre, rased-red Petra, and the river Jordan.

The purchase of real estate requires a relatively high capital investment. You can buy a U.S. Savings Bond for $18.75 on common stock at a few dollars a share, but real estate takes a larger initial investment as a rule. Furthermore, if you own real estate and you move to a distant place, you can't take your investment with you.

However, real estate has many advantages which more than offset any such disadvantages. One of these advantages is the basic soundness of real estate as an investment. In depressions, other investments may turn out to be totally worthless. Lifetime savings can be lost if a company goes bankrupt but it is almost impossible for real estate to become worthless.

Young Players Show Talent And Promising Future

Cars from Omaha, Lincoln, Sioux City, Grand Island and other places filled Rice parking lot Friday, Saturday and Sunday as over 200 tennis players turned out for the Wayne Open Junior Tennis Tournament this past weekend.

Omaha players dominated the tournament winning more matches than all other cities combined. Matches were delayed by rain Friday, but tournament coordinator Tom Roberts juggled matches around on Saturday and Sunday to complete the tourney.

Jim Becker and Peter Storch of Omaha defeated Rich Prochaska and Mike Yager of Omaha 4-6, 6-1, 6-2, Sunday afternoon in one of the best matches of the tournament. Backer played a sharp net game to force some bad shots from Yager and Prochaska in the final two sets.

Prochaska caught on to Backer's net game and started placing the ball down the side line catching Backer out of position but solid team work prevailed and Backer and Storch put their opponents away.

The Swanson girls from Grand Island went home with a car-load of trophies when the tournament was over. Stacey Swanson won the 14 year-old singles division and placed second in the 16 singles. Then, she teamed up with Deb McNamara of Crete to win the 16 doubles. Her older sister Ann won the 18 year-old singles and teamed up with Laura Dodge of Omaha to win the 18 doubles.

Perhaps the best match of the day, involved Jeff Fredrick and Brian Edwards, both of Grand Island. Fredrick defeated Edwards 2-6, 7-6 (with a 5-3 tie-breaker), 6-3 in the 18 year-old singles.

The best girls' match was the last one played in the tournament. In the 14 singles, top seeded Mimi Magiera of Omaha defeated Stacey Swanson in a three set match.

Swanson handily won the first set 6-0 but Magiera came back in the heat to win the second 6-2. The third set saw sawed back and forth down to the last shot. Magiera's volley game proved to be more consistent as the match wore down and she outlasted Swanson 7-6 with a 5-1 tie-breaker to claim championship honors.

Barry Accepts Post at USDS

Doug Barry, financial aids director and assistant football coach at Wayne State College has been named athletic director and head football coach at the University of South Dakota at Springfield. He replaced Tom Long, who has taken over coaching duties at Dakota Wesleyan University in Mitchell, S.D.

Barry received bachelor of science in education and master of science in education degrees from Wayne State. He spent four years as head football coach at Winside High School, before taking over the job at Wayne State for four years.

Barry also played football for Wayne State and was All-Conference two years. Regarding his move to USD, Springfield, Barry said, "I'm really excited about the school. It is unique, and I think we have a good recruiting base with the types and variety of courses offered here."

Barry said he will probably be building his team around Bill Pinkelman, Springfield's stand-out fullback. Pinkelman received All SDIC recognition and was voted Most Valuable Player by his teammates as a junior last year.

A healthy mix of running and passing is Coach Barry's plan for the coming season, along with special emphasis on defense. Returning lettermen, and good freshman recruits could

Blair Shuts Out Juniors In Class B Area 3 Play

The Wayne Juniors made some costly mental errors Tuesday night and dropped the opening game of the Class B, Area 3 tournament to Blair 5-0.

After Mark Gansborn opened the game with a single, the Juniors couldn't get a hit until the fifth inning. Seefus, the pitcher for Blair, struck out seven consecutive batters and retired 13 in a row as Wayne was frustrated at the plate.

The Juniors made a couple of mental errors in the fourth inning, dropping a fly ball with base runners and dropping a throw with a player trapped between third and home. Coach Overin said his players were trying to make the plays before catching the ball and look their eyes off of it. Two runs scored for Blair in the fourth.

Blair came back with three more runs in the fifth on two singles and two errors to gain a 5-0 lead. Dean Carroll relieved starting pitcher Vic Sharpe the fifth.

With only three hits and 11 strikeouts the Juniors couldn't buy a run and lost the game 5-0. Mark Gansborn had two of Wayne's hits and Kevin Murray hit the other one.

The Juniors were scheduled to play Schuyler in the loser's bracket of the double elimination tournament Wednesday night at 8:15.

Midgets Move To Round Two With District Win Over Blair

Led by the three-hit pitching of Dennis Carroll, and a three run rally in the fifth inning, the Wayne Midgets won their first round game of the Class B, area three baseball tournament in West Point Monday.

The Midgets slipped past Blair 5-1 and now advance into second round action against Elkhorn Saturday at 4 p.m. Carroll led off the game for Wayne reaching first base on an error. After stealing second and third bases, Tim Pfeiffer singled to bring him home.

Blair earned two of its hits in the second inning but couldn't score and Wayne held on to a 1-0 lead. Blair scored one run in the third inning on one hit and two walks.

A disputed infield fly rule resulted in a double play for Wayne and ended the inning. With bases loaded and one out, Mallette popped up to first baseman Jeff Dion. Dion backed up to make the catch but couldn't handle it.

Mallette was called out on the infield fly rule and the runners all attempted to advance. One run scored but Jeff Sperry quickly scooped up the ball and made the throw to second base for the final out.

Both Blair coaches furiously disputed the infield fly call but were overruled, and the call stood, with the score 1-1.

The Midgets broke the game open in the fifth inning with three hits, and three runs. Tim Thomas led off with a single down the right field line and Kevin Nissen followed by reaching base on an error.

STRIKING OUT 10 batters, Dennis Carroll allowed only three hits in an opening round district victory over Blair.

Jeff Sperry knocked a base hit down the third base line to score Thomas, and Carroll sacrificed the runners. Jeff Zeiss then hit a RBI single to right-center field bringing home Nissen. Sperry later scored from third base when the Blair catcher couldn't handle a wild pitch.

With a 4-1 lead, Carroll retired the next three Blair batters. Wayne padded its lead with another run in the sixth inning. Rick Metteer singled, but Thomas hit into a double play for the first two outs of the bottom of the sixth.

Nissen beat out a short grounder for a base hit and Tod Heier came into the game to run for him. He advanced to second when Sperry drew a base on balls. Heier stole third and Sperry stole second to get set up in scoring position.

Carroll singled in Heier for the final run making the score 5-1. In the seventh Carroll struck out three of four Blair batters to end the game.

Park Relocated

Niobrara State Park has been the subject for much discussion over a period of many years. A rising water table there, resulting indirectly from the construction of Gavins Point Dam, has killed trees, damaged cabin foundations, and floated septic tanks right out of the ground.

Last spring, high water and ice jams combined to cause flooding of the park. In fact, the entire park was inundated with the exception of the swimming pool and the superintendent's residence.

Several years ago, the Corps of Engineers, the agency responsible for Gavins Point Dam, agreed to purchase the land where Niobrara State Park is located. With that money, the Commission intends to purchase a replacement location for the present park.

According to Jack O'Keefe, Chief of the Commission's realty section, negotiations are almost complete on a new site for the park. That site is just west of the present park on high ground.

The present landowner has offered to sell the land to the Game and Parks Commission. That offer has been much discussed and will be considered at the July meeting of the Game and Parks Commission. O'Keefe was confident that the Commissioners would accept the offer.

The new parcel of land is perhaps a bit larger than the present site. Niobrara State Park is now 492 acres. The new site is 394 plus accretion. According to O'Keefe, the accretion land will bring total acreage up to about 500 acres.

Of course, once the land is acquired, if it is in fact to be involved for some time in developing the site to the level of the present park.

In the meantime, flood damage from last spring has been mostly repaired, and the park is open for the 1978 season. Two facilities will not be open, however. The first of those is the golf course.

Flood waters dropped a heavy silt load there, and the course had to be regraded. It will be reseeded in the fall. The other facility to remain closed is the group camp building which sustained extensive damage.

Activities that are part of the Niobrara picture this year are swimming, trail rides, camping, hiking, picnicking, and fishing both in the area's lagoon and in the Niobrara River. Cabins are in good repair and summer reservations are being honored.

Can't Harvest Set-Aside Acres

More than 700 out of 1,233 farms in Wayne county have been certified under the program. Aug 31 is the final date to certify. Spokesmen said this includes all farms, not just participating farms. Those farms not certified will not be eligible for next year's program.

Acres included in the Set-Aside program cannot be harvested in any manner, according to government officials.

A spokesman for the Wayne County ASCS office said if crops on the set-aside acres are windrowed, this is considered to be harvesting.

They said they are now spot-checking farms which have been certified under the program. They explained they have received complaints from producers about other producers not establishing a cover on set-aside acres, not controlling weeds and even harvesting set-aside acres.

They said a good cover of corn stubble is accepted as an approved cover, however the weeds have to be controlled. If weeds are not controlled, a penalty of $15 per acre will be assessed, they said.

DENNIS "BIG FOOT" SCHLINES now wears a cast after his latest injury sidelined him.

Schlines Now Hobbles The Bases

Dennis Schlines, softball player for Surber's may just be the most injury prone player in the Wayne County League. In three years of softballs, Schlines has suffered a broken knee cap, black eye and now a broken bone in his leg, not to mention other accidents he has had on the field without being hurt badly.

In his most recent injury, he got it in the leg by a softball which evidently cracked a bone. A week later, when he was running, the bone broke.

"It's very discouraging," Schlines said. "I thought about switching sports, to something like horseshoes. My teammates kidded me that I ought to give the sport up but I think I'll stick with it."

Schlines said that the injury is rough and the fields do need work done to level and fill holes, but says that the league is fun and successful.

"Everybody seems to enjoy it. The arguing is nothing serious, the players usually show pretty good sportsmanship. I would like to see the sponsors put a little more money into the league for shirts though," Schlines replied.

Then looking at his cast, Schlines added, "Maybe a group insurance program would be a good idea for a continued league, or more rules for protection."

Suggests Bait For Hoppers

Farmers who want to use grasshopper bait on corn could prepare a mixture according to directions supplied by Dr. David Keith, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources associate professor of entomology.

He said to prepare the bait by first mixing one and one-third gallons of foxaphene 4E (Farmland Industries, Reg. No. 1990-15) with 150 pounds of wheat middlings of bran and three times this amount of sawdust in a concrete mixer.

Add a sufficient amount of water to make a wet mash. Scatter the mixture with an end gate seeder at the rate of 12-20 pounds per acre. Use the higher rate for controlling larger, winged grasshoppers. Don't use the foxaphene on dairy farms or on corn to be harvested for ensilage, however, he warned.

Siren Test Friday

The City of Wayne will conduct its monthly testing of Civil Defense sirens at 1:00 p.m. this Friday, according to assistant Civil Defense Directors Vern Fairchild.

Sirens will run one minute, with a three minute pause between each siren test.

The testing will go as follows:

- Alert (used for tornado or other natural disaster warning) — both high and low siren on for one minute.
- Pause — three minutes.
- Attack — both high and low on and off at ten second intervals, continuing for one minute.

If an actual attack occurred, the sirens would run for three minutes instead of the one minute used in the test. In the event of an attack, Fairchild advises that the public take shelter immediately upon hearing the Alert or Attack signals.

Parts of the Arabian Desert have only been seen from the air. Its name in Arabic means "the empty place."

Many Activities Make Up Laurel Celebration

Laurel was the center of three days of fun during the Laurel Summer Celebration Days held July 17-19. Activities included a dunking tank, men's and women's tug-of-war, and a free drawing. Downtown Laurel was the set-up place for rides, games of skill, and other activities. The Laurel-area Jaycees set up their dunking tank in the middle of town, and local men and women received a free cooling off when dunked.

According to the Jaycees president, Tom Anderson, money received from the dunk-ings is going toward the development of a new softball field. The tug-of-war was sponsored by T.J.'s Bar of Laurel Wednesday night. Eight men's and four women's teams competed in the event. Men were 1,500 pounds per team and women 1,200.

In the men's division, Friendly Tavern won first, followed by Well's Blue Bunny, and T.J.'s. T.J.'s won first place in the women's division and the Friendly Tavern team came in second. The Laurel Chamber of Commerce sponsored a drawing, giving away a Polaroid camera, a watch, and gift certificates valued at $20 and $15. The winners of these gifts, respectively were Mathilda Anderson, Ella Eike, Wallace Magnusen, and Sally Harring-

Winside Budget Pushes 15%

Streets and lighting take up the major requirements of a proposed $86,405 1978-79 budget for the Village of Winside.

Streets and lighting are budgeted for $42,000 for fiscal 1978 as compared with $27,156.27 for 1977-78. Streets and lighting accounted for $49,717.42 during the 1976-77 fiscal year.

The proposed budget, which will be presented at a public hearing to be held Aug. 7 at 7:30 p.m. at the clerk's office in Winside, represents approximately a 15 percent increase over the operating budget for 1977-78.

According to the proposed budget, the general fund asking is $16,500, nearly $7,000 over the previous budget. Revenue sharing will take up $11,980, also representing an increase.

The proposed expenditures for the auditorium, amusement, social security and library are up slightly while the fire and equipment fund is down nearly $1,000 from last year.

Village taxpayers will be accountable for $17,496.48 of the budget if it gains final round approval. The budget anticipates miscellaneous revenue of $27,736.29.

The miscellaneous revenue is expected to come from $20,589.29 in state funds, $4,000 in federal funds and $8,147 in local funds.

The breakdown on miscellaneous revenue shows $6,880.22 to the general fund, $14,741.42 in streets and lighting, $4,200 in revenue sharing, $500.05 to auditorium, $2,766.80 to fire and equipment, $61.76 to amusement and $3,124.52 in social security and $661.52 to the library.

It was pointed out the property tax requirement does not exceed an increase of more than seven percent of the previous year's budget.

Leslie Lassies

The Leslie Lassies 4-H Club met July 19 at the home of Kelly Boeckenhauer. Songs for the 4-H contest were practiced.

The 4-H singing contest held at Wayne State College in the evening was entered and the group won a blue ribbon. However, members are not old enough to enter the state contest.

Modeling clothing in the style show following the singing contest were Lori Anderson, Kelly Boeckenhauer and Barb Svoboda.

Plans were made to have a swimming party and picnic Aug. 8 in the afternoon at the Wakefield Park.

Ron Wreidt appeared before the council to explain the lot would be used for a radio retail sales and service store. He said the building would be such as to blend in with the residential buildings.

Walt Tolman, property owner in the area, made an appeal against rezoning, stating the rezoning was not advantageous to the area and by rezoning it commercial, placed no prohibitions as to what kind of business would be located there.

He also said the "spot zoning" would cause citizens to lose confidence in the present comprehensive plan which will be updated; will cause traffic problems and will increase pressure for widening Seventh Street to four lanes.

Louie Meyer, another landowner in the area, also appeared in opposition to the rezoning.

The ordinance will have to gain three-fourths majority before it can be made into law because of a petition presented by Tolman containing signatures of 20 percent or more of the property owners in the area which expressed opposition to the rezoning.

Egg masses are about a quarter inch in diameter and consist of a number of individual eggs. The eggs are white at first, but darken as the small worm develops inside.

The hatched worms will move to the tasseled corn, where they feed on the developing tassel, or leaf axils. When the tassel emerges completely, they move on to the green silks, and feed shortly at the tip of the ear before they begin to penetrate the silk channel. Eventually, he noted, they reach the developing grain.

Kelth said, "remember, corn variety differences, and special differences in maturity may play an important role in determining the degree of infestation, so each variety needs to be tested as a separate field."

"If, after scouting, you find an average of 13 percent of the plants infested, you probably need to treat. Wait until one tassel emergence is completed and have 2.0 pounds of actually carbarbyl (Sevin) applied aerially." High clearance ground equipment could also be used if available.

Railroad car shortage

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
LINCOLN — A task force has been named to investigate the persistent shortage of railroad cars at harvesting time in Nebraska.

Senator Warren Schmitz, of Bellwood, chairman of the Legislature's Agriculture Committee, said he will head the task force and will be joined on it by Senators Bill Burrows of Adams and Martin Kahle of Kearney.

The action came following a hearing by Schmitz's committee during which grain industry and railroad representatives testified the state is experiencing perhaps the worst boxcar shortage in history.

Both sides expressed considerable concern but neither had any quick solution. Railroad spokesmen said they are doing their level best to allocate cars for the movement of Nebraska grain, and farmers and elevator operators said they were beset with problems resulting from the shortage.

A Union Pacific official from Omaha, Hank May, said he does not believe any railroad can afford the amount of equipment necessary to satisfy demand during the peak grain shipping period.

William Doney, transportation director for the Burlington Northern's Denver region, which includes Nebraska, said the railroad is trying "every angle" in an attempt to meet elevator demands for grain cars.

Doney said there isn't any answer that would please everyone.

The railroad officials said there are a variety of reasons for the rail-car pinch. Formerly, they said, much of Nebraska's grain was shipped to nearby Kansas City, making the turn-around time of the cars much more rapid.

Currently, much of the state's grain winds up in Gulf and West Coast ports.

Small county elevators are also hurt by the trend to much wider use of covered hoppers and unit trains for grain shipments. That system makes it less profitable to allocate cars to the small elevators, the committee was told.

Some elevators received about half as many cars the first half of this year, compared with the corresponding periods in the past several years.

Lack of cars when they are needed results in lower prices farmers receive, according to testimony that was repeated several times before the committee.

Bob Anderson, secretary of the Nebraska Co-Operatives Council, said such expenses can amount to several hundreds of dollars a day at some elevators. Robert Anderson of the Nebraska Grain and Feed Dealers Association suggested that having the Interstate Commerce Commission supervise the distribution of rail-cars might be of some help.

It was suggested several times during the hearing that railroads might be allocating too much of their equipment to the coal-hauling business. Schmitz said he wondered whether there should be "another look" at continuing the railroads' monopoly on coal.

He was referring to legislation that would permit transportation of coal through a slurry pipeline. Bills calling for such legislation have been killed in committee during recent legislative sessions.

Schmitz said he will invite representatives of railroads, the trucking industry, grain and railroad associations and grain elevator operators to furnish ideas and data to the task force.

He said the task force will report its findings to the 1979 Legislature, along with alternatives for streamlining grain transportation.

Comments on University Budget
Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan, the Democratic nominee for governor, said recently that if he is elected, he may ask the University of Nebraska to get along with its current budget for one more year.

At the same time, he said it is next to impossible he would advocate a reduction in the university's budget next year.

Whelan said he would want, as chief executive, to meet the legitimate needs of all state agencies, including the university.

He said his immediate budget target would be to hold state budget increases within five percent, noting that taxpayers seem to be demanding that type of frugality. He cited the apparently successful petition drive to place before the voters a five percent ceiling on increased property tax expenditures by local units of government.

Whelan said he was not taking an anti-university position. But he added as the receiver of more state tax funds than any other agency, the university is a logical place to look for budgetary economy. He also noted the institution has experienced considerable growth in its tax support base in recent years.

Whelan said he believes the university could increase the faculty classroom teaching load, cut travel expenses and perhaps even do away with some new programs.

The Board of Regents, he added, would have to make the cost control decisions. Whelan suggested thought be given to tying tuition rates to a percentage of the total cost of education. Implementation of that proposal would mean tuition would go up every time the university budget was increased.

Quits PSC Staff

Patsy Mullenix, the Nebraska Public Service Commission staff attorney who Commissioner Jack Romps wanted to fire for the way she handled telephone rate cases, has resigned.

She said she quit to consider opportunities as a trial attorney in utility rate cases in Washington, D.C.

Ms. Mullenix joined the commission staff in 1977. Since then, she said, there has been some progress in more effectively regulating the telephone industry. But she added the progress has been "limited" and very slow.

"Unfortunately, any progress at all in effective regulation will have to struggle against the opposition of at least two commissioners," she said.

She identified the two as Romans, who is from Elwood, and Duane Gay of Columbus.

Early this year, Romans tried to fire Ms. Mullenix for what he said was "unprofessional conduct" in the manner she handled a Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Company rate application.

Ms. Mullenix said another reason she was resigning was the large turnover of the commission staff. Four attorneys have resigned during the past 18 months, she said.

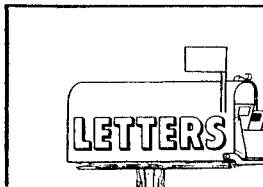

Seek Use of Stronger Chemicals

The effort by Nebraska officials to receive permission to use a restricted chemical in the battle against grasshoppers is continuing at this writing.

Gov. J. James Exon said he has been assured by the White House that the Environmental Protection Agency will give the matter prompt attention.

What Nebraska officials want is authorization to use Heptachlor, and that their request for its utilization not be delayed by a hearing. If a hearing would postpone application of the chemical to a time when it would not be as effective.

State Agriculture Director Roger Sandman told federal officials new data on the scope and economic impact of the grasshopper problem outweighs considerations used when it was determined Heptachlor should be banned.

Dear Editor:
Winside baseball uniform information: Donations, $334.52; June sale, $192.80; items sold on rummage at Wayne, $10.15; Total $537.47.
Twenty full uniforms, $13.30; Ten Pee Wee shirts and caps, $92.25; advertising and thank you ads., $15.30. Total: $520.85 (paid in full)

Balance left, $14.62, for baseball teams. These uniforms were entirely paid for by the people of the community through donations and the "Junque Sale." The money DID NOT come from the Community Club or Summer Youth Program treasury and the money WAS NOT collected under their names. It was given to "Baseball Uniforms." The coach, Dick Munter, fully approved this project and asked us to see to the ordering and delivery of the uniforms, as he was too busy to do so himself, and would appreciate the help.

Regardless of the ruckus kicked up by this effort, we should take pride in how our community looks. — Marge Farrens and Sharen Haller.

Praise and pride

Wayne
Dear Editor:
It takes a bit of motivation to move me to let writing of any kind, let alone one addressed to "Letters to the Editor." The last such letter I wrote was, I believe, in 1967 in Rochester, Minnesota, expressing my appreciation for the marvelous care provided at St. Mary's hospital, where I first underwent cancer surgery.

Now, more than ten years later, I write in praise of another hospital, and this time appreciation is mingled with pride, for the hospital is our own Providence Medical Center.

I am sure that the people of this community are proud of the attractive facility of the hill we call Providence—the lovely private rooms, the carefully decorated lounges and dining area, spacious, warmly carpeted corridors, convenient laboratories, and well-equipped operating rooms. The facility is indeed an outstanding one.

But a hospital, like a school, is more than a building. Its essence is people—people like nurses and doctors, lab technicians, dieticians and cooks, cleaning personnel, and business support staff. It is in the human realm that Providence is most impressive.

The quality of care in our hospital goes beyond professional competency. It is expressed in the motto "We Care." Under the leadership and example of people like Louise Jensen, Sister Gertrude and Carol Sheldon, the staff at Providence DOES care. Every day, and night, that staff translates the motto of Providence into individual expressions of support, service, and concern for the patient's well being, not only physical needs but for spiritual and psychological ones as well.

During my ten year battle with cancer I have spent extensive time in two of the top-ranked hospitals in the country, St. Mary's and Methodist of Rochester. Without hesitation I rank the care received at Providence on par with both—and in some ways even exceeding them—for at Providence you enter as a patient, and you leave as part of a Family. That is indeed a unique gift of Love that will warm my heart and sustain my being as long as I live. — Dorothy Ley.

Fact of death

Wayne
Dear Editor:
Contrary to what Mrs. Hagemann would lead us to believe, abortion is a fact of death not life. In an abortion at least one living human being is killed. Many of her comments on Planned Parenthood and Family Health Services are not true.

Planned Parenthood was founded in 1922 by Margaret Sanger who firmly opposed abortion. In an official P.P. pamphlet dated Aug. 1963, the question "Is birth control an abortion?" is answered "Definitely not. An abortion kills the life of a baby after it has begun. It is dangerous to your life and health. It may make you sterile so that when you want a child you cannot have it. Birth control merely postpones the beginning of life."

Yes, since 1963 we have seen a drastic reversal of the P.P. concept when life begins and the safety of abortion. Today P.P. is undoubtedly the most powerful and aggressive force in the world pushing free abortion-on-demand for any woman — for any reason.

Throughout the 1975 publication of "A Five Year Plan 1978-1980 for the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, Inc.," reference is made to the fact that Family Planning Services and related Health Services are affiliates of Planned Parenthood. It is noted on page three that one of the purposes of the PFPA is to make "effective means of voluntary fertility control, including contraception, abortion and sterilization, available and fully accessible to all." One of the objectives listed on page four of this same P.P. plan is "reaffirming and protecting the legitimacy of induced abortion as a necessary back-up to contraceptive failure."

Mrs. Hagemann states "our Family Service agencies are doing a great service to humanity." Abortions rose 50 percent in Wayne County in 1977. In the seventeen counties serviced by the North East Nebraska Family Health Services, Inc. (headquartered in Wayne) the 1977 abortion statistics reported by the Nebraska State Health Department, are as follows: Knox: 3; Pierce, 10; Stanton, 3; Cedar, 12; Wayne, 18; Cumming, 11; Dixon, 4; Madison, 20; York, 8; Antelope, 6; Thurston, 26; Holt, 9; Dakota, 22; Rock, 7; Keya Paha, not listed; Brown, 12; Boyd, 1. Total of 225 abortions for 17 counties.

In the same five year plan by P.P. services to be made available at all clinics include (among others) "Abortion Services for local referrals."

A few years ago the NENFHS of Wayne distributed the Fourteen Basic Facts About Abortion. The first fact is "Abortion is a method of birth control. (by definition)." The third fact states "Abortion is the most widely used single method of birth control today." And the fourth fact informs us "Even a small contraceptive failure rate produces a large need for abortion."

The North East Nebraska Family Health Service is just one of a network of such agencies throughout the U.S. They are privately operated but funded by the federal government through H.E.W., which incidentally spends a total of $500 million dollars every day! Mrs. Jerry Dorcey, Wayne County Right to Life.

Unrealistic in Midwest

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By W.M. Dan Kinsinger
Director of Information

The five regional conference sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture headed by Secretary Bob Bergland and the Community Service Administration directed by Ms. Graciela Olivarez to hear complaints from small farmers and to surface ways to help them would appear to offer little for farmers in the Midwest. The original list of conference sites did not include the Midwest and the Iowa location Aug. 15-16 was added later. Each agency is reported to have budgeted $45,000 to pay the travel and overnight expenses for a delegation of eight small farmers from each state. These are to be selected by a committee made up of USDA representatives and farm groups in each state.

The original announcement was skimpy on details, but indicated that emphasis would be on farmers who sell less than $20,000 worth of farm commodities per year. Bergland said something about the delegates being chosen by local people who really know what the appropriate definition of "small" is in a given area.

Which is made over the census statistics that of 2.8 million farms in the U.S., almost 2 million marketed less than $20,000 worth of products in 1976, but that the 28 percent marketing over $20,000 per year accounted for about 90 percent of the farm commodities sold in the U.S.

Statistics can be misleading and there has long been argument over the definition of what constitutes a "farm" in the every-five year Census of Agriculture. The definition for the last four censuses runs like this:

"A farm is any place from which $250 or more of agricultural products were sold, or normally would have been sold, during the census year, or any place of 10 acres or more from which $50 or more of agricultural products were sold, or normally would have been sold during the census year."

The University of U.S. agriculture causes great variations in the intangible concepts of what constitutes a "small farm." Right here in Nebraska there are distinct variations. The 1974 Ag Census listed 68,973 farms in the state with 6,732 of them with gross sales under $2,500. The average size of farms with gross sales of $1,000 and over was projected at 685 acres. The average gross sales for all Nebraska farms in 1974 was $53,533. In terms of production in our state, a concentration on farms with less than $20,000 in annual sales is unrealistic.

Midwest farmers and ranchers are mostly "full timers." They should not be tossed in the same basket with farmers near industrial areas who hold off-farm jobs and in their spare time operate small acreages for extra money or as a hobby and a nice place to live. It's also hard to compare the needs and wants of a Nebraska farmer with a southern "tobacco patcher" or a Californian with a small citrus or nut grove which he is inclined to refer to as a "ranch." Inflation and rising production costs, modern farming equipment and changing lifestyles have made the 160-acre farm in the Midwest a rarity. Farm and ranch families want more than small farm and ranch operations can provide in economic returns and future opportunities. That's the main reason farm sizes have been growing so rapidly.

It's a common touch of humor among farmers to define a "big farmer" as "anyone who farms more land than I do." It is also common to hear farmers of some sort of social uplift land reform scheme. Bergland is a Minnesota farmer with some 600 acres and is qualified to understand the facts of life about Midwest agriculture firsthand. Hopefully he does.

Farmers in the Wayne area this week are reminded once again the many dangers from farm accidents and the need for farm safety programs.

Being a realist, we know that farm accidents will be a part of agriculture. Also, being a realist, we know that many farm accidents can be prevented. The industrial sector of the nation has been making inroads into preventing on-the-job accidents. These safety programs have paid off in fewer injuries and property damages.

We believe the farmer can take a lesson from industry and consider building an effective on-the-farm safety program. Vincent L. Tofany, president of the National Safety Council, said "this means a program designed to minimize hazards and human errors on farm operations." He pointed out that "in this day of big investment, but often low-margin farming, he simply cannot afford not to have a safety program."

Today's farmers wear many hats. Depending upon his operation, he is a buyer, seller, economist, laborer, chemist, animal nutritionist, soil chemist, crop specialist, soil specialist, engineer, mechanic, machine operator and electrician.

One of these hats, we believe, should be a "hard hat" for safety purposes.

Because of the many roles of a farmer, he should consider initiating programs which will save him time, money and perhaps his life. Successful managing of thousands of dollars worth of land, machinery, building and animals requires broad knowledge skill, resources and hard work. Not only that, he has to

The industrial sector of the nation has been making inroads into preventing on-the-job accidents. These safety programs have paid off in fewer injuries and property damages.

We believe the farmer can take a lesson from industry and consider building an effective on-the-farm safety program. Vincent L. Tofany, president of the National Safety Council, said "this means a program designed to minimize hazards and human errors on farm operations."

He pointed out that "in this day of big investment, but often low-margin farming, he simply cannot afford not to have a safety program."

Today's farmers wear many hats. Depending upon his operation, he is a buyer, seller, economist, laborer, chemist, animal nutritionist, soil chemist, crop specialist, soil specialist, engineer, mechanic, machine operator and electrician.

One of these hats, we believe, should be a "hard hat" for safety purposes.

Because of the many roles of a farmer, he should consider initiating programs which will save him time, money and perhaps his life. Successful managing of thousands of dollars worth of land, machinery, building and animals requires broad knowledge skill, resources and hard work. Not only that, he has to cope with bad weather, lack of competent help, disease and a cost-ric squeeze.

We grant that a farmer can't do anything about the weather but he certainly can do something about the prevention of accidents. In fact, accident prevention must be a major farm management goal.

Each farming operation is different. Therefore an accident safety program must be tailored to the individual operation. To bring this about, a farmer must keep informed about safety and know the applicable safe practices as well as the requirement of laws concerning safety and health of all employees.

He should routinely inspect all requirements and facilities for hazards and faults and then make needed corrections as quickly as possible. He should also make certain that all employees are trained to perform their assigned jobs competently and safely.

He should see that everyone working on the place takes needed safety precautions before starting their work. For example, he should make certain that proper equipment is in hand and in good working order; that safety shields are in place and needed personal protection equipment is worn.

All of this is important. But the most important aspect of all in combating farm accidents is to use good common sense. It all boils down to the individual to make farming as safe as possible. Elsewhere in today's Wayne Herald, is a list of "do's" and "don'ts" contributed by the Allen Future Farmers of America chapter. We recommend this as required reading and to follow the suggestions. You can never be too safe. — Chuck Barnes.

Plans Meeting

Various beef research and promotion projects, home economics education, and beef check-off participation will be the leading agenda items when the Nebraska Beef Industry Foundation (NBIF) board of directors meets in Lincoln August 11.

The meeting will be held in conjunction with the Nebraska Livestock Feeders-Feeders' Auxiliary summer meetings to be held in the afternoon. The NBIF meeting will begin at 8:00 a.m. at the Villager Motel, 5200 "O" Street and will adjourn at 1:30 p.m. All interested cattlemen are welcome to attend.

Those attending the meetings will also see a slide show which explains the National Live Stock and Meat Board's 1978-79 national advertising and promotion program. This program involves advertising and promotion in national publications and on national media networks as well as in professional journals of doctors, nutritionists, dietitians, and home economists. The Meat Board is the national affiliate of the NBIF.

"Cattlemen or cattiewomen who are interested in the procedures the beef industry uses to squeeze the most benefit from their money are invited to sit in with us," M.D. Shepherd, NBIF President said. "We will discuss some of our efforts in nutrition education and beef cookery, as well as hear reports on recently completed projects. Those who would like to ask questions about the new Quarter Check-off are urged to attend."

A slide show explaining the basic role of the U.S. Meat Exports Foundation will also be discussed, Shepherd said.

HOW TO TREAT TREE WOUNDS

The best treatment for tree wounds is to prevent as many of them as possible. Many wounds, such as those from lawnmowers and other equipment, can be prevented if a little care is taken.

Even small wounds can eventually have a drastic effect on the tree. Wounds start the process that can lead to decay. Decay is the major cause of damage to trees.

Pinkeye Can Be Prevented

The onset and spread of pink eye in cattle is increased by the presence of a large number of flies. Proper control of the fly population is necessary in a well-managed disease control program. Feeding in tall grass which also cause an eye irritation from grass seeds getting into the eyes of cattle. Dry, dusty conditions and bright sunlight are other factors in increased susceptibility to pinkeye.

According to Stan Starling, Dixon County Extension Agent, now is the time to pay close attention to fly control. Proper management reduces the chances of healthy animals being infected by the bacteria which cause pinkeye.

Viral forms of pinkeye also exist and cannot be controlled by antibiotic therapy. Both types can be spread rapidly by flies. Control of flies not only reduces the incidence of disease, but results in more active feeding and increased growth. Also, cattle blinded by pinkeye may be greatly reduced in sale price.

If cattle become infected by pinkeye, treatment must be started immediately to avoid spread and blindness. When possible, not only the affected animal, but all herdmates should be treated once. Then the affected animal should be treated once daily for four more days. Infected animals will be easier to catch after the first time if an antibiotic is used which does not irritate animals' eyes, rather than a preparation which burns.

A single treatment with antibiotic may prove effective if the eye patch is glued over the eye to exclude flies and sunlight. In some severe cases, a veterinarian may be needed to give special care, such as sewing the eyelid shut. As with most diseases, prevention is easier than cure, and good management increases profits.

FmHA Sets Insulation Standards

New insulation standards on homes financed by the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) in rural areas are "ultra-conservative," according to Gerald Bodman, Extension agricultural engineer in the Institute of Agricultural and Natural Resources.

The standards, which became effective July 1, vary according to climatic zones. In Nebraska, the standards are a minimum R value of 33 in ceilings, 20 in walls and 22 in floors, he said. The standards are significantly higher than what has been recommended for the state previously.

The new standards will apply to newly built homes and apartments financed by FmHA and, when economically feasible, to existing housing purchased or repaired with loans under the agency's rural housing credit program.

"The University of Nebraska Lincoln specialist said the motivation behind the standards—to help families reduce high fuel consumption that jeopardizes their ability to afford housing—is good, but they went too far..."

In effect, the standards will "force us into non-traditional types of construction which will increase construction costs and make homes less affordable to those people they're trying to help," noted Bodman.
Because of the insulation requirements for walls, traditional 2 by 4 wall construction will not be possible, he said. Slaggered 2 by 4 or 2 by 6 construction or 2 by 4 construction with insulation plus a foam sheathing on the outside instead of plywood will be necessary.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Anna Marie Kreifels

Use The Right Canner

When canning fruits and vegetables, heat them long enough so the internal temperature of the food gets high enough to stop growth of enzymes and destroys spoilage organisms.

The kind of canner used to destroy spoilage organisms depends on the kind of food which is being processed.

For fruits, tomatoes, and pickled vegetables, use a boiling water bath canner. Foods with acid can be safely processed in boiling water.

For all common vegetables, use a steam pressure canner. To safely process low-acid foods in a reasonable length of time it takes a temperature higher than that of boiling water. The boiling water bath method is not recommended for processing low-acid foods.

Use The Right Canner

If you don't have a pressure canner available, a pressure saucepan, equipped with an accurate indicator or gauge for controlling pressure at 10 pounds (240 degrees F.) may be used as a steam pressure canner for vegetables in pint jars. If you use a pressure saucepan, add 20 minutes to the processing time given for the pressure canner.

Don't mistake pressure canner processing time for water bath processing time. Underprocessing can cause jar lids that have sealed to unseal and allow food spoilage.

Never can in the oven. The temperature of the food in the jars during processing does not get high enough to insure bacteria destruction. You also risk the chance of jars exploding when using the oven to can.

No "Swarm" Here "Swarming"

The so-called "killer bees" are not a threat to beekeepers or garden-tending homeowners in the United States, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist.

Dr. David L. Keith, Extension entomologist, said the bees — often called "Africanized" bees are the result of crossbreeding between European honeybees and wild honeybees from Africa. Bees in the United States are generally the European type, he added.

The experimental crossbreeding, done in Brazil, was an attempt to produce a bee more suited to semi-tropical climate, Keith explained. The experimenters were trying to combine the superior pollinating and honey-producing abilities of the African bee with the gentler temperament of the European bee. The crossbred bees were accidentally turned loose and spread rapidly in the wild.

Keith emphasized that the sting of the Africanized bee is no more deadly than the common European honeybee. But the Africanized bees tend to be more aggressive toward intruders than their European counterparts.

"They're a more aggressive bee and are more likely to sting," he said, "but their sting is no more venomous than the European honeybee's. Also, as the Africanized bees migrate northward, the more temperate climates such as that of the United States are expected to curb the bees' aggressiveness." So far the bees have migrated only as far north as Venezuela, the specialist noted.

Keith said Americans don't have to be afraid of Africanized bees now or in the future, but advised persons to face encounters with all bees calmly and carefully.

Screaming, slapping or running from bees only stimulates their defensive instinct, he added. Since bees tend to ignore motionless objects, a better tactic is to freeze, check around to see if their hive is nearby, and if so, move gently away, putting an object such as tree or bush between you and the hive.

"If you're going to be working near bees," he said, "wear light-colored, fuzzy clothing and avoid heavy perfumes and sudden motions."

"If you are stung by a honeybee, scrape off the stinger and apply an antiseptic," Keith advised. "Although extreme sensitivity to bee venom is uncommon, at least be aware of the symptoms: shortness of breath, nausea and abdominal cramps are signs that you should see a physician."

Extinguishers Fit Classes

A seemingly harmless spark could result in the destruction of a home, severe personal injury or death if proper fire extinguishing equipment were not available.

According to Rollin Schneider, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Extension safety specialist in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, "fires are divided into four general classes, and it is important that people know the proper extinguisher to buy for the class of fire they might have to fight."

Various extinguishers are designed for specific types of fires, "and improper use could lead to personal injury or failure to extinguish the fire," he emphasized.

Extinguishers are constructed to deprive fires of heat or oxygen sources. Water pump and air charged loaded stream devices cool and smother while dry chemical and carbon dioxide (CO2) extinguishers smother the flame. CO2 also has a cooling effect, he said.

Some new halogenated extinguishing agents — a hydrocarbon agent in which one or more hydrogen atoms has been replaced by halogen atom which results in a flame extinguishing characteristic also are now being used. The device produces a chemical reaction which interferes with the combustion process, he said.

Extinguishers should be easily accessible and located in kitchens, basements, barns, garages and near farm equipment.

Fires are divided into four categories — A, B, C and D — according to the type of combustible material involved. "Class A fires include combustible solids such as buildings, hay, feed, straw, trees, brush and many types of furniture," Schneider said. Foam, pump tank and dry chemical extinguishers are available as dousing agents, but water also may be needed to aid dry chemical extinguishers, he said. Halogenated extinguishers also are effective on Class A fires. Homemade devices like garden hoses, pails, brooms and wet sacks can also be useful.

Dry chemical, carbon dioxide, halogenated and foam extinguishers may be used for Class B fires which include flammable liquids such as gasoline, kerosene, paints, paint thinners and some solvents and specific agricultural chemicals, he said.

Water must not be used on Class C fires — electrical equipment fires or any fire involving danger of electrical shock. Schneider said. Dry chemical, carbon dioxide extinguishers and some halogenated extinguishers are effective, but baking soda and dirt also may be useful.

"All extinguishers must be inspected and recharged periodically," Water and air charged loaded stream extinguishers also should be refilled and inspected after use, and winterized by adding approved antifreeze to the water and chemicals.
