

Dan Sherry

Kiwanian with a Capital 'K'

Dan Sherry, immediate past Lt. Governor of Division 4 of the Iowa Nebraska District of Kiwanis, is going to take it easy after a year of conspicuous activity, trumpeting the cause of the international organization.

Sherry's untiring efforts as Lt. Gov. of Division 4 have been made conspicuous by the recognition he received during his tenure.

His latest recognition came Monday during the installation of officers in the Wayne club by the new Lt. Gov. of Division 4, Warren Widorg, Norfolk. Leon Meyer, new president of the Wayne club, presented to Sherry a lifetime membership in Kiwanis, a gift from all of the clubs in Division 4.

The membership came in the form of an engraved plaque and an engraved bill fold membership card.

The recognition is just desserts in Sherry's case. He worked hard as Lt. Gov. and his work paid off as he chartered two new clubs on his own and helped with a third.

The two clubs are located in Elgin and the "Golden K" club in Sioux City, Ia. For being the guiding hand in chartering the two new clubs, Sherry received the Mory Gladman award which is presented to those persons chartering two or more clubs during a one year period. Sherry was the only one in the Iowa Nebraska district to receive the award. The district includes all of the clubs in the State of Iowa except for those in the eastern sector and all of the clubs in Nebraska except those in the Panhandle.

He also received an award from the Kiwanis International Foundation for 100 percent participation by clubs in the district in a single project — hearing. Sherry was presented the Bell Ringer award for outstanding service to the clubs in the division. He also was presented three certificates for his hand in helping with the chartering of three new clubs last year.

The former Wayne city clerk said his interest in Kiwanis is sparked because of the organization's participation in community projects which are not tax supported. He mentioned as examples, a new shelter house in a Wayne park, sponsoring a Boy Scout troop and purchasing equipment for the troop and providing bleachers at the municipal swimming pool.

Sherry said the Wayne Kiwanis club has made a successful effort in working with the youth in the Wayne area through a Wayne area golf tournament for young See SHERRY, page 14

Council Agrees To Apply For Industrial Funds

The Wayne city council Tuesday night gave further evidence of its faith in the future of Wayne by approving a motion to apply for funds necessary for an additional 60 acres to the Wayne industrial park, along with improvements.

Gary Van Meter, secretary for Wayne Industries, appeared before the council with a four-fold presentation regarding the industrial park, and industrial prospecting.

Van Meter said the remaining 13 acres of the city's original industrial park is all but filled. "A current prospect of Wayne Industries currently is in the process of purchasing the remaining eight acres in the park."

The secretary pointed out there are currently five light manufacturing or agricultural commercial entities in the industrial park. "An estimated 75 to 100 people are engaged in gainful employment thanks in a large part to past city councils and their foresight to see the need for this type of facility."

"In addition," Van Meter explained, "another 85 persons are now employed at the new Heritage Homes of Nebraska, Inc."

"All of this," he said, is due to our community's commitment to industrial development. Van Meter said the city council, the city clerk, the late Fred Brink (city administrator), the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, Wayne State College and "other individuals and organizations too numerous to mention have been instrumental in making these things happen."

Van Meter said to insure that this activity continues, Wayne Industries has complemented these efforts by providing development planning necessary for future growth. "Through a two-year option on 60 acres directly north of the present park, Wayne Industries will endeavor to provide manufacturing with the careful planning and adequate facilities needed for relocation and growth."

The secretary explained the tract is "just a cornfield without careful planning." He referred the council to folders passed out to them detailing the necessary planning to "make this development go."

The development plan was prepared by Robert W. Shively, formerly of Wayne and a certified industrial planner with the Nebraska Public Power District. Van Meter explained the NPPD picks out one or two communities each year to provide this planning at no cost to the community. He said the planning survey would have cost the city "between $10,000 and See FUNDS, page 14"

Major speakers for the event will be television personality Hugh Downs of ABC News; Summers White, management consultant and former Arizona State Senator; and Dr. Donald Clifton, president of Selection Research, Inc. of Lincoln.

In addition, Nebraska and Iowa Extension agents, which are co-hosting the convention, will be conducting tours both before and after the formal meeting, introducing home economists and their families from all 50 states to life in the Midwest.

Antelopes Extend Streak To Seven Years With 39-0 Rampage Over WSC Wildcats

By SUE MICHALSKI
WSC Sports
Information Director

The weather was about the only thing that cooperated with the Wayne State Wildcats Saturday as they were handed a 39-0 thrashing by the Kearney State Antelopes before a packed WSC homecoming crowd in Memorial Stadium.

Wayne State, now 1-3-1 on the season, never had control of the game as the Wildcats offense which had averaged 350 yards total offense entering the game. Wayne accumulated only 91 yards in total offense, while allowing 360.

Wildcat quarterback Rick Lade of Tekamah, who has led WSC with 709 total yards offense this fall, was held to 45 yards passing and 11 yards rushing.

Tailback Bob Barry of Battle Creek, who only last week rushed for 159 yards against Missouri Southern, had trouble finding running room Saturday against the Antelopes, gaining only 26 yards rushing in the game.

The Wildcat defense was overwhelmed from the very beginning as Antelope tailback Jim Bolin scored the first Kearney touchdown only 5:14 into the first quarter.

The Paul Waggoner PAT kick was good, making the score Kearney 7, WSC 0. Minutes later Wildcat Pat Maxwell of Tekamah fumbled the ball as he attempted to return a kick-off. Kearney re-

The Wildcat defense again had trouble controlling the Antelopes as they exploded for two more touchdowns in the third quarter. The PAT kick was good for an extra point after the third touchdown and Antelope kicker Dirk Altman gained an additional two points on a conversion after the fourth touchdown. The Wildcats found themselves down 32-0 at the end of the third quarter.

Midway through the fourth quarter the Antelopes added a final touchdown and a Waggoner PAT, making the final score Kearney State 39, Wayne State 0. The Kearney victory marks the seventh consecutive year the Antelopes have defeated WSC.

The Wildcats, now 0-11 in Central States Conference play, will be looking to better their season average next Saturday when they meet Missouri Western for a 1:30 p.m. game in Memorial Stadium.

Wayne, Ne.

This week's contest was the tightest one so far. Five entries tied for the top spot with 17 correct picks. The tie-breaker game was used to select the winner. Mr. Lee Tietgen of Wayne chose Kearney over Wayne State 38-7 (actual score was 39-0), the others with their tie breaker selections were Jerry Echtenkamp of Wakefield 31-7, Kyle Black of Wayne 20-15, Brachan Butler of Wayne 21-14 and Jodi Olson of Carroll 13-21. (+Note: The Winside-Wynot game ended in a tie so all predictions were counted wrong unless a tie was predicted.)

Sixteen prognosticators had 16 right. They are Roger Frank of Norfolk, Lefty Olson of Wakefield, Marvin Wickett of Laurel, Kris Duering and Dallas Schellenberg of Winside, David Creamer and Sharon Olson of Carroll, Vernon Herman of West Point, and from Wayne are Kevin Cuvelier, Marly Hansen, Tona Harder, Greg Paesi, Penny Paige, Merlin Frevert, and Raymond Nelson.

This week's contest looks like another toughie with games such as Missouri at Iowa St., Columbus Lakeview at Wayne, Wakefield at Winside, Pender at Laurel, and Pittsburg at Notre Dame. The deadline for this week's contest is 5 p.m. THURSDAY, October 12 at The Wayne Herald or entries must be postmarked by 5 p.m. THURSDAY. NO ENTRIES will be accepted after the deadline. Dust off that crystal ball and Good Luck.

Randy's RECAP

According to Randy Hascall

A Lakeview win would give them the division title hands down, by my calculations. However a Blue Devil win would put them in the driver's seat with a 3.0 record. As to riding on this game.

TWO LOCAL RIVALRIES will also square off on the 13th. Wakefield, unblemished in the Clark Division of the Lewis and Clark Conference, meets conference foe Winside on Wildcat turf. Winside is 3-0-1 following a tie with Wynot last week.

This game is a real baffle and could easily decide the division title. Wakefield will play Coleridge to complete division play next week and Winside will meet Hartington.

I have to predict that the winner will also win the Clark Division, although Hartington and Wynot still have a shot at it.

Independent Laurel (4-2) is at home against Pender this week in another good contest! Pender is a good, strong team and both teams will be looking for an important victory. Allen (2-4) will play Homer in a battle for third or fourth in the Lewis Division of the Lewis and Clark Conference.

PARENTS DAY is scheduled for Saturday at Wayne State College. The Wildcats will play Missouri Western at 1:30 and the stands will be full of parents of WSC students.

The Cats are hoping to redeem them selves after a tough loss to Kearney State last Saturday.

STOP BY THE CITY ball park some Tuesday and I think you'll enjoy what you'll see. The fall recreation football program is now in full swing and I think the games on Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m. will interest anyone.

There is no admission and I'm sure the players and coaches would appreciate a show of support.

FRIDAY THE 13TH is going to be a big night for the local high school football teams. Wayne High will host Columbus Lakeview in a big conference tilt for the Blue Devils' homecoming.

Lakeview (5-1) is 3-0 in conference play with only Wayne and Madison remaining on its conference schedule. Wayne (4-1-1) is 2-0-1 in West Husker play and will meet Emerson Hubbard next week to wrap up divisional play.

Recreation Football '78

The recreation football league is in full swing as it enters its 18th year of existence. About 100 players are out for the recreation teams this year.

Third and fourth grade teams play after school while fifth and sixth graders play after school and on Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m., and seventh and eighth graders after school and on Tuesdays at 8 p.m.

Games are played at the city field and are free to the public.

The recreation program will continue through November 14 or 21 weather permitting.

Assisting Hank Overin this year are Mark Brandt, Dean Carroll, Dave Schwartz and Earle Overin. These assistants alternate because they are attending school. They also referee games on Tuesdays.

Parents, friends and interested persons are invited to watch the teams compete during the season, and watch the players improve.

Northwestern Drops Tennis Team 5-4

By SUE MICHALSKI
The Wayne State College women's tennis team suffered a defeat 4-5 Tuesday on the courts of Northwestern at Orange City, Ia. bringing its dual record to 2-3 for the season so far.

In singles action, Wildkittens Shari Bradix, WSC number one player, won 10-2. Number two seeded Vicki Carsey also won her match defeating her Northwestern opponent 10-8.

The remaining four Wildkittens Judy Janick, Sue Mayberger, Christi Marco and Patti Whetstone suffered losses, but not before some tough court action was seen on their part.

In doubles action, Wildkittens Bradix and Carsey teamed to win their match 11-9 and Wildkittens' Janick and Mayberger dual efforts also proved satisfying as they defeated Northwestern 10-7.

The Wildkittens saw action Tuesday on home court as they faced Westmar at 3 p.m.

Friday and Saturday, Coach Stu Glendenning and his Wildkittens will host the Central States Tournament with matches starting at 10 a.m. on both days.

E.T.V. Features Wayne Family

Darrell Doescher of Wayne, and his two sons David and Doug, will be the star performers on the "Outdoor Nebraska" E.T.V. Show tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. A dove hunt at the Ed Fahrenholtz farm near Allen will be featured on the second fall show of the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission's new series.

The script and portions of the filming and editing were done by Noethy "Butch" Ison, a former Allen teacher and area farmer. According to Ison, the quality of the film reflects the tremendous cooperation he received from the Doescher and Fahrenholtz families.

"Outdoor Nebraska" will be on the air Thursday evenings for the next 25 weeks. This year's format will include several call in question and answer shows.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Anna Marie Kretzels

VITAMIN AND SODIUM CONTENT OF FROZEN VEGETABLES
 Commercially frozen vegetables are packaged so soon after harvest that they may retain more vitamins than those purchased as "fresh" in the supermarket.

Meet at Villa
 Members of the Villa Wayne Tenants Club held a crazy swap party last Thursday. There were eight guests. Gifts were exchanged and game prizes were awarded.

The Rev. Mark Webber of the First Church of Christ in Wayne conducted Bible study at Villa Wayne Oct. 4. The regular weekly meeting and potluck luncheon was held Oct. 3.

There's a difference between plain blanched, frozen vegetables and the frozen prepared vegetables in cheese sauce or butter sauce. Prepared products have salt added, as do canned vegetables. But there are only four plain blanched, frozen vegetables in which salt is used as part of the processing procedure.

Many consumers are also concerned about the salt content of frozen vegetables, especially those on restricted diets. Many "convenience" vegetables, for example, have salt added, and these may be difficult to avoid.

There's a difference between plain blanched, frozen vegetables and the frozen prepared vegetables in cheese sauce or butter sauce. Prepared products have salt added, as do canned vegetables. Broccoli is one of the best sources of vitamins, iron, potassium and riboflavin. And it has few calories.

Auxiliary Meets During October

Fourteen members of the American Legion Auxiliary met Oct. 2 at the Vets Club with president Mary Kruger. Following the advancement of the colors by Marguerite Hofeldt and Emma Soules, chaplain Linda Grubb read the opening prayer. Members recited the flag salute in unison and sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

A report was given by treasurer Eveline Thompson. District 111 president Mrs. Beverly Herbolzheimer of Wakefield heralded members in a project of the district president's letter of this year, which is to purchase a new kiln for the Veteran's Home in Norfolk.

A letter also was read from department membership chairman Marion Chaloupka concerning turning memberships into department as soon as possible. A thank you card was received from the Norfolk Veterans Home for tray favors made by the Wayne unit.

President Kruger read the service committee. Leadership development chairman Marie Brugger read an article, entitled "ABC for Members," and American chairman Martha Steckmann read an article on flag etiquette.

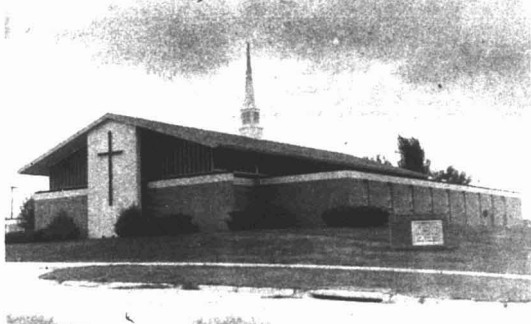

A report on this year's Christmas assignment was given by rehabilitation chairman Eveline Thompson.

The charter was draped in memory of Ruby Haglund. Marie Brugger had memorial scripture.

Linda Grubb read the prayer for peace followed with the singing of "America," accompanied by Hazel Smith.

On the serving committee were Marguerite Hofeldt, Mrs. Lora Dion, Mrs. Harry Kay and Mrs. Floyd Hupp.

Next meeting is Nov. 6 at 8 p.m. at the Vets Club.

At It Again

WITH THE new school year, another Building Construction class gains first-hand experience by building a roofed deck enclosure at the Jim Hummel home. The class built the deck, the roof, two sets of stairs, shingled, installed rain gutters and down spouts, added a sitting bench and finished the project with paint and red wood stain. The class, made up of Wayne High seniors works for twohours each class period. The property owner pays for the cost of materials and the school is reimbursed for 20 percent of the material cost. The next project for the students is insulating, sheetrocking, paneling, building closets, suspended ceiling and hanging doors at the Bud Froehlich home. From left to right above are Bob Lamb, Jay Stollenberg, Dennis Carroll, Dave Schwartz, Bob Kenny. At right are Larry Hank, Mark Gansembom, Duane Smith, Keith Clausen, Scott Kay, Al Nissen. Instructing the class is Mike Mallette.

Corn May Be Placed In Reserve

Farmers may turn their corn under Commodity Corporation (CCC) loan early or to the Government early or place it in the farmer owned grain reserve if they choose, according to Alden Johnson, chairperson of the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee.

In addition to permitting early delivery or forfeiture for corn loan, ASC is authorized to assist farmers participating in the reserve in getting their storage facilities in order to make way for the 1978 crop.

ASC can assist the farmer with transportation costs for moving the 1977 reserve grain a reasonable distance. The amount is added to the loan and is repaid when the farmer withdraws his grain from the farmer owned grain reserve.

Johnson said ASC offices nationwide have been surveying the storage and transportation situation to locate available facilities to help farmers where there are critical shortages, Johnson noted.

The early delivery option should help farmers move 1977 crop corn and free up farm storage space for the record-breaking 1978 crop, Johnson said. Corn forfeited or delivered to CCC — Government Corporation staffed by ASC personnel — will be personnel — will be moved as soon as possible to areas where grain storage space is available.

ASC expects about one-fourth of the 418 million bushels of 1977 crop corn now under loan will be turned over to CCC, Johnson indicated.

ASC will be notifying all producers holding 1977 corn loans that they have 10 days from receipt of the notice to inform the ASC office whether or not they wish to take advantage of the early delivery option. Interested farmers should contact the local ASC Office.

Van Meter said thanks to the hard work and months of study by the NPPD planning staff, Wayne Industries is able to present to you (the council) a workable plan. He added that the NPPD planning staff provided only to those communities showing initiative and progressive effort in industrial development.

Van Meter explained that while the planning report does not contain the detailed engineering of road and utility plans, it does include the necessary plans for landscaping, streets, water and sewer, zoning and deed restrictions, and a detail plat of the area being considered.

As you can imagine, the cost of purchasing and developing land is enormous," Van Meter stated. "Without outside assistance, it would be impossible for Wayne Industries by itself to acquire the necessary capital."

"However," he said, "through a grant from the department of Housing and Urban Development, we believe that we have found a workable solution to the question of funds acquisition."

Van Meter explained that a pre-application has been made and has been approved, "giving us the go ahead for formal application." He said urban development action funds will be used to purchase and develop this site for industry. He pointed out that development plans call for some site preparation and the installation of water and sewer lines and streets. "With the council's approval, we will complete the 4 page application and submit it as soon as possible."

The Wayne Industries representative said this summer Wayne Industries has initiated an active "prospecting" campaign for industry. "During the first seven months of 1978, we hosted four prospects, courtesy of either the Department of Economic Development or NPPD. Since July, after starting our own program, we have averaged one prospect per week for seven weeks, four of them contacted through our local program."

He said in order to continue this level of activity through 1979, increased funds to supplement the program must be sought. He explained that through an assistance program sponsored by the Old West Regional Commission, Wayne Industries can very possibly be eligible for these needed funds.

"But they can be obtained only through the City of Wayne," Van Meter said that City Clerk Bruce Mordhorst and himself have filled out the application and after some preliminary checking, "we feel we have a good chance to obtain assistance necessary to continue our program in this area."

He pointed out that through the guidelines and encouragement of both the department of economic development and the NPPD, "our increased prospecting measures will do much to foster the necessary traffic we feel we need to land more industry in our community."

Van Meter said projections of population shows a decline from the 1970 census, which was placed at about 5,300 residents in Wayne. He said this figure will not be reached again until the year 1995, "unless we can attract more industry for continued growth of the City of Wayne."

Mayor Freeman Decker said he has faith in the future of Wayne and was happy that the council saw fit to approve the motion to apply for the funding. He mentioned that he feels the LID Proposition will do more to discourage industrial growth than anything the legislature has done in the past. "It is a travesty," he stated.

Mordhorst said the funding will probably be on a two-thirds, one-third basis, with the city paying the one-third. "But we can recover this outlay of money when the land is purchased for industry."

barbering. Whatever the profession interested in the student would become involved with his interests through observation and learning within the community. The school board approved the proposal with Frye appointed career education director.

Frye also presented a comparison of Wayne High ACT college aptitude tests results with scores of the nation. Wayne ranked above the national average in all categories. They also ranked above the state average in all areas except math.

A breakdown of the scores showed that the Wayne High mer averaged well above the state and national averages in math, social studies and natural sciences while equalling the state mark in English.

The women's mean was above the state level in English but fell below the state mark in the other areas. In other business, the board approved all bills and accepted the low bids for a bus chassis and body. Coryell Auto received the contract on the bus chassis with a bid of $7,893.35 plus freight. The contract for the bus body was awarded to Superior Company with a low bid of $8,299.47.

The school board accepted the low bid on refuse pick-up from Frank Wray Sanitary Service. The bid of $1,316.40 is about a 90 percent increase over last year.

Proposals attracting attention

CAPITOL NEWS

Statehouse Correspondent
LINCOLN—As the November General Election draws near, ballot proposals appear to be gaining almost as much attention as the candidates.
 One such ballot proposal that seems to keep making news is the proposed constitutional amendment to limit budget increases of local governments. Specifically, there seems to be growing concern over who would be covered by the proposal and exactly what impact it would have on local budgeting.
 A key issue in a recent debate on the lid amendment was whether the proposal pertained to municipal electric systems. And if so, what the consequences would be.
 Paul Belz, executive director of the Nebraska State Education Association, notes the possibility that the lid proposal might force municipalities to sell their systems to the Nebraska Public Power

District.
 Not to worry said Sen. Donald Dvorak of Columbus.
 The Nebraska Press Association called a Lincoln recently to reassure municipalities the possibility mentioned by Belz would not come about. Or at least not if he had his way.
 Dvorak said he would sponsor legislation next year to guarantee the exemption of municipal electric systems from the provisions of the proposed constitutional amendment.
 Although Dvorak said he doubted the amendment would force the sale of municipal electric systems, he says he has ordered legislation drafted to avoid the possibility—just in case.
Whelan Edging Thone?
 Political polls predictably are becoming more frequent these days, and political candidates are becoming more visible. That's why you'll see a lot of them.
 And although many pollsters remind readers their surveys are just a sampling of voters, politicians seem to place considerable weight on the survey results.

 A recent telephone poll, conducted for the Lincoln Sunday Journal Star by Selection Research Inc., had some interesting things to say about the gubernatorial race.
 The poll of 941 Nebraskans, taken in September, showed Republican Charles Thone leading Democrat Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan 44 to 32 percent statewide. Twenty-two percent were undecided, the poll showed.
 Selection Research said Thone, an eight-year Congressman from the 1st District, was ahead only because of a 36-point lead in his home district.
 But despite Thone's statewide lead in the Journal Star poll, Selection Research showed the Republican hopeful was tied at 36 percent with Whelan in the 2nd Congressional District.
 Predictably, Thone said he was pleased with his showing in the 2nd District and indicated he would beef up his campaign in that area.

 Whelan, however, questioned the 2nd District poll results.
 "Nobody else's poll showed us tied in the 2nd district. If it doesn't seem reasonable to me."
 SRI's Journal Star poll also showed Thone leading Whelan 58 to 22 percent in the 1st District and 43 to 37 percent in the 3rd.
State to Market Gasohol
 The administrator of the state Gasohol Committee says a Nebraska City firm has agreed to aid in starting a statewide gasohol marketing campaign.
 Administrator Randy Fricke also says a Beatrice firm has agreed to step up gasohol sales to promote the campaign.
 Gasohol, a 90/10 blend of unleaded gasoline and grain alcohol, already has been sold in various parts of Nebraska. But Fricke says the new marketing campaign will be just that—a campaign to market gasohol statewide.
 Fricke says Dawson Oil and Transport of Nebraska City will be the initial importer to start the gasohol campaign. Purchasing grain alcohol from an Illinois firm, Dawson will supply other outlets around the state.

 Fricke said Nebraska City firm has been selling gasohol at its local Mobile station for several months.
 In addition, Fricke has announced that Bob Barnard and Barnard Oil Co. in Beatrice will step up gasohol sales and will buy its grain alcohol from Dawson Oil.
 "The Gasohol Committee staff already discovered a large demand for gasohol while working at the gasohol booth at the Nebraska State Fair," Fricke said. "The staff was swamped by hundreds of requests as to where they could purchase gasohol in Nebraska."
 Fricke also announced that Dawson will supply the Meadow View, Waco Interstate 80 station with gasohol where the fuel extender has been sold since early spring.

Perry Appeal Rejected
 Convicted murderer Wesley Perry has lost his bid to have his first degree murder conviction and death sentence appealed in the nation's highest tribunal.
 The U.S. Supreme Court recently let Perry's death sentence stand, even though two justices who oppose capital punishment said they would have overturned the sentence.
 But Perry's attorneys have said they will ask the Nebraska Supreme Court to continue their appeal of the conviction, which was granted pending the U.S. high court's ruling on the appeal.
 Although the court rejected the appeal of Wesley, convicted in the 1975 murder of Lincoln coin shop operator Marianne Mitzner, the former Wesleyan University employee still may appeal to a federal district court judge.
 Perry also was convicted of robbing the Mitzner Rare Coin Shop in Lincoln on June 6, 1975, the day of Mrs. Mitzner's death.

OBSERVATIONS

Nothing to smile about

Wayne farmers are once again looking at a bumper crop but most aren't smiling about it.
 The reason, of course, is that according to present market prices, most farmers are going to have difficult time showing a reasonable profit margin. There is keen competition for foreign markets, so area farmers are showing signs of another "worry line" on their faces.
 Many possible solutions to the farmers' dilemma are being researched but even if a workable plan is formulated, it will be too late to help with the immediate problems.
 We believe that if agricultural policy makers and farm leaders again look to solving the U.S. farm income problem by applying parity, the mistakes of the past are likely to be repeated.
 The parity issue came to the fore again early in 1978 when a group of farmers—protesting their financial difficulties—advocated parity as a solution to their problems. These farmers were saying that the prices they receive for their products should change in step with changes in the prices of goods and services they purchase.
 After peaceful demonstrations by farmers in tractor-cades failed to bring the response they sought, the leaders of the farm movement agreed to accept less than parity. They haven't given up their cause as some 200 bushels of corn were dumped near the department of agriculture in our nation's capital.
 While they are agreeable to accept a workable solution which will be less than parity, they are still using parity as a basis for solving their problem.
 The parity price for a farm commodity is that price which would give a unit of that commodity the same relative purchasing power—in terms of goods and services bought by farmers—as it had during 1910-14. However, this concept does not take into account the dramatic changes in agriculture since 1910-14 base period. And, in particular, it does not take account for the substantial changes that have occurred in agricultural productivity.

 Parity, with its connotations of fairness and equality, has considerable appeal as a precept of farm policy, but it has many shortcomings as a working tool. For one, parity prices would virtually guarantee profits to many farmers, especially the larger, more efficient ones. This would mean that most of the small and medium-sized farms might ultimately disappear, since they would be at a competitive disadvantage in bidding for resources.
 Furthermore—in considering the use of parity—it should be remembered that farm prices were supported at artificially high levels in the 1950's and 1960's, with the result that too many resources were committed to the production of too much food. The stockpiles were finally reduced but only at a substantial cost to the taxpayer.
 So some other route must be followed because we cannot afford to lose the small or medium sized farmers. They are the backbone of our economy in the Wayne area. Whether or not they are able to make a profit is of vital concern to us in an economic sense. And, perhaps even more importantly, they represent a major portion of our country which has endured because of its unique quality of "togetherness." It is a "one for all, all for all" situation.

Wide disparity

Norfolk
 Dear Editor:—Someone called a recent reader letter to the Herald to our attention, relating to reader's desire for "music for adults."
 First, Broadcasters must always recognize the wide disparity in definitions of music. What is "good music" to some, is trash to others of different age groups. Each is free to apply his own definition.
 WJAG FM intends to continue to program carefully blended, melodic, easy listening, music for adults. Soon, we will be 100.000 watts, and stereo which will high light and strengthen our music sound—Bob Thomas, Radio Station WJAG.

Sounds of music

Wayne
 Dear Editor:—In response to the letter to the editor from "A Radio Listener" in your Oct. 5 issue, I submit this reply.
 Dear "Radio Listener,"
 It is unfortunate that your life is so cluttered that you believe that you are the only "rock" and whatever it is that you call "adult music." KTCB does play some music for the kids—generally at night, a time when most adults are in the tube. With 1800 high school age youngsters and 2600+ college students in this area, we feel some contemporary music is certainly warranted.
 The daytime is a whole different ballgame. KTCB is programming much more than "rock" for the kids. We provide daily local news, weather, sports and the most complete farm markets available, as well as public affairs programs and free public service announcements in addition to our blend of easy listening, country, "oldie," and standard music. We may not be "adult" radio in your eyes, but we're a long way from being swept away by the label "rock" for the kids.
 Your comments can be content to stay wrapped up in your content "adult" world, but we can't. We do try to program something for all people, you might enjoy Sunday mornings on KTCB-FM, when we are mostly "beautiful music."
 Welcome to the real world, "radio listener." Maybe you've been missing something. Dean Craus, General Manager, KTCB AM & FM.

Ten proposals for voters

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
 By M.M. Van Kirk, Director of Information
 Nebraska voters at the Nov. 7 general election will have opportunity to cast their ballot preference on 10 proposals, eight of which represent changes in the Nebraska Constitution and two apply to statutory issues.
 Best known of the proposals, naturally, are the three which made it to the ballot by the petition route: Proposition 300 which would approve or reject L.B. 31 passed by the 1977 Legislature to increase state aid to the public schools; Proposition 301 which would approve a bill to require a minimum five-cent refund on all beer and soft drink containers; and Proposition 302, the so-called "tid" limit on annual budgets of local subdivisions of government, to be placed in the State Constitution.
 The several constitutional amendment changes proposed by the Nebraska Legislature through passage of legislative bills are as follows:
Proposition 1 — This proposed amendment would permit cities and villages to acquire and redevelop substandard and blighted property, issue bonds or other evidence of indebtedness for the redevelopment and pay off such bonds by receipt of additional property taxes from new valuations on property in such a project. The proposal would add a new mechanism to the Community Development Act of 1951 called "tax increment financing."
 The distinction between "tax increment financing" and other types of debt financing is that the difference between the taxes assessed on the old valuation of the property and those assessed on the new valuation would be used to finance the retirement of the bond issue. Omaha senators generally were the chief backers of this proposition.

Proposition 2 — This constitutional amendment would permit expansion of the Industrial Development Act of 1961 by which cities and counties have attracted and financed facilities for new and expanded industries. If approved, the amendment would permit provisions of that act to include nonmanufacturing enterprises, those of a service nature such as computer facilities, warehouses, office buildings, grain storing and handling facilities, etc. If specifically would exclude such industrial revenue bond financing for commercial or business enterprises engaged in direct retail sales.
 The question for the voter has to be how far should government go in financing private ventures.
Proposition 3 — This amendment would permit the Legislature to exempt solar energy systems, direct wind-generating systems from assessment when made as improvements to residential, commercial or industrial real property. Intent is to encourage such installation and use of alternative sources of energy.
Proposition 4 — This amendment would leave the salary of members of the Legislature at $400 per month but would permit the Legislature to set a per diem allowance for each senator and an amount equal to actual and necessary expenses incurred in performance of their duties.
 The salary of the state senators is generally recognized as much too low and expenses are limited to one round trip per session to Lincoln. This amendment proposes, however, is an open-ended, unlimited expense feature. Life styles of senators vary and unlimited expense recovery is place of a more legitimate salary is what is at issue in this proposal.
Proposition 6 — This amendment would make "sexual offenses involving penetrative force or against the will of the victim" a non-bailable offense, a limitation that is currently applied only to treason and murder. This amendment for the redemptive care of the Community case in which two sex murders were committed by a person who had been charged in sex offenses earlier.
Proposition 7 — This amendment would permit the State Board of Equalization to adjust tax levies between counties in multi-county taxing districts (such as Natural Resources Districts and Community Technical College Districts) until January 1, 1981, at which time all counties are to have completed property reappraisals and be using up-to-date valuation figures. This amendment was proposed by Resolution No. 1 at the June special session. Opponents argue that it was unnecessary and the Board of Equalization already has that authority if it would exercise it. If passed the Legislature with the attitude that it would do no harm and it might be helpful.

 The other constitutional amendment, presented by petition as Proposition 302, would require that beginning in the 1979-80 fiscal year, all political subdivisions would be required to limit their annual budgets to no more than a five percent increase over the previous year. Such limitation could be suspended by a four-fifths vote of the Legislature or by approval at a special election in the political subdivision.
 Opponents argue that it is dangerous to lock such a limitation into the State Constitution when it can only be changed by a vote of the people. Arguments presented against such a limitation during the special session stressed that it would apply to all local agencies of government and in the case of those with very small budgets might prevent the purchase of a very necessary piece of equipment without holding a special election.

Should Make Inspection For 'Unwelcome Visitors'

Homes and farm buildings may have unwanted visitors this time of year. Rats and mice are beginning to seek shelter in structures with the arrival of cool weather, according to Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources wildlife specialist, Dr. Robert Timm.

Now is the time to inspect buildings and take action to ensure that these rodent visitors don't become permanent residents, Dr. Timm said.

A successful rodent control program should include structural improvement and sanitation as well as direct action to reduce rodent numbers, he adds.

Homeowners and farmers should inspect structures to find places where rodents may enter.

The Gingham Gals 4H Club met Oct. 3 in the Nell Sandahl home with eight members, five mothers and three guests present.

Terri Melena, the president called the meeting to order. The treasurer, Francine Gross, called roll call.

It was then explained to the group how to apply for a county award. Discussions were held on having a Halloween party and about what should be done with money earned at the fairs.

Named as "Her" of the year was Terri Melena.

Officers elected for the new year were Diane Lindsay, president; Anita Sandahl, vice president; Shelly Emy, secretary; Francine Gross, treasurer; and Lesa McDermott, news reporter.

Projects for the coming year were reviewed and lunch was served by the Sandahls.

The date and time for the next meeting will be announced at a later date.

Lesla McDermott, news reporter.

Removing rodents' sources of food and shelter will discourage them from establishing residence. Rubbish and debris around or inside buildings are very inviting to rats and mice. Keep stored grains and other foods well above floor level and away from walls where rodents prefer to travel.

Homeowners with dogs or cats should not leave excess food in the animal's dish, as rodents will eat available pet foods," Dr. Timm said.

Where rodents are known to be present, a trapping or poison program may be needed to get immediate results and prevent further damage.

Set traps where rodents are most active—where droppings, tracks, gnawing or other signs are present. Some poison baits are available at retail stores, but all such materials should be used with caution. The label directions on these products must be followed carefully to minimize hazards to pets, live stock, and other animals.

Carcasses of dead rodents should be disposed of properly since rodents carry many diseases. Burning, burial or discarding in a sealed container are recommended. Poisoning and trapping are unlikely to be permanent solutions to a rodent problem unless accompanied by good sanitation and rodent proofing of buildings, the IANR specialist said.

According to Dr. Timm, the choice of particular methods of rodent control will depend upon the individual situation and the kind of rodents present. Methods which would work well in one place will be unsuccessful or even hazardous elsewhere.

For more information on rodent control, Dr. Timm can be contacted at the Department of Forestry, Fisheries and Wildlife, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Information and assistance with animal damage problems also can be obtained from the Division of Animal Damage Control, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service office in Lincoln.

WAYNE COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

PREVENTING WINTER INJURY

Winter injury to evergreens is often the result of excessive desiccation (drying) during February and March when extreme and rapid temperature fluctuations occur. Evergreens growing in dry, sunny, exposed locations are most subject to winter injury. Evergreens lose water continually during the winter months as part of their normal growing processes. Although water loss is greatly reduced during the winter, an excessive amount is lost during warm periods. When water in the trunk of a tree or in the soil around roots is frozen, an insufficient amount is absorbed by the roots to replace that lost by the needles and the needles then turn brown and die.

STEPS FOR PREVENTION OF INJURY

Even though the weather can be even, there are some steps that can be taken which reduce winter injury.

1. Following dry summer and fall months, soak thoroughly around the trees before freezing weather sets in. This helps replace the subsoil moisture lost during the summer drought.

2. Mulching in early fall increases moisture retention during winter months and prevents deep freezing. Saw dust, wood shavings or chips, straw, peat moss, ground-corn cobs or leaves may be used for mulch as these will not mat. Mulch as far out as the drip line, but keep the base of the tree free of any moist material. Alice may nest in the mulch and chew on the bark.

3. Soil aeration will increase root growth and tend to increase deep rooting. This can be accomplished by shallow spading around the tree in the fall. This also improves water drainage. Surface roots should not be injured.

4. When winter injury occurs, remove dead branches and twigs in late afternoon.

5. Protect trunks of young, thin barked trees from sunscald and frost cracks by wrapping with a suitable tree wrap. Burlap or slat screens placed two feet away on the south and southwest sides will protect evergreens from drying winter sun and winds.

6. Less hardy trees and shrubs are subject to direct low temperature injury. Winter tender trees and shrubs require special precautions to insure against damage. The hardness and adaptability of the tree or shrub being planted should be determined and protected locations selected. Certain trees and shrubs may require additional protection such as hilling around the base of the plant with several inches of soil or providing winter covering with burlap plastic or canvas.

7. High nitrogen fertilizers that promote soft, tender growth should not be used in the fall.

Cattle Prices Likely to Rise

Prices for feeder cattle are likely to rise to new record levels in the future, an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Extension agricultural economist said this week.

Dr. Al Wellman said feeder cattle prices, on the rise during 1978 and sharply higher than a year ago, are expected to remain strong this fall and relatively high in the longer range outlook.

Late summer prices were more than double the levels of early 1975. Wellman said, when feeder cattle price hit the lowest point since 1968.

The number of cattle available for either feeding or for slaughter, or as non-grained steers or heifers or as calves is down substantially from a year ago, Wellman explained, one reason for the sharp price increase.

The inventory reflects the sharp liquidation of breeding stock by cattlemen over the past 3 1/2 years, the IANR economist said.

But while the July 1 estimate of about 50 million head of young cattle on feed or held for herd replacement was 10 percent fewer than last year, this does not necessarily mean a 10 percent drop in the number of cattle placed on feed, he said.

The process over the past two years of reducing the number of calves on the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Extension economist said this week.

Leslie F. Sheffield said large size combines, high speed harvesting equipment lack of capacity of local elevator, grain drying and storage facilities to handle corn in a particular territory and the difficulty in obtaining rail cars have combined to force much corn to be dried and stored on the farm.

As much as two to three times as much energy is required for corn drying as compared to total energy use for all other field operations in corn production, Sheffield stressed, and the sharp increase in energy prices during the past four to five years has escalated the cost of drying corn.

The normal field harvest moisture content in the 18 to the mid 20 percent range to safe moisture levels for storage from 13 to 15 percent Sheffield urged corn producers to look at the results of a University of Minnesota study published in July 1978, which analyzed seven different farm situations, ranging from 10,000 to 200,000 bushels harvested annually. Drying systems were generally of three types: High temperatures systems relying on large amounts of fossil fuel, low temperature systems relying on electricity to power operation fans and to provide supplemental heat, and systems which combine the high and low temperature methods.

The study used 1977 prices for energy costs and costs of different grain drying facilities, but anticipated increases in costs of equipment due to inflation and the rising costs of energy were plugged in to reconstitute different situations over the 20 year investment life of the drying and storage facilities.

Sheffield said corn farmers could look at their own production, harvest, storage and marketing situation with corn and relate it to the most appropriate of the following "case farms" where a clear advantage was shown in the study for a particular system.

Case farm with 10,000 bushels with either "modest" or "high" stockmen probably holding back heifers in increasing numbers for the breeding herd, he said.

A combination of factors should stimulate and encourage cattle feeding, Wellman said, including prospects for smaller supplies of beef and thus higher prices during the 1979-80 period, the likelihood of relatively large supplies of feed grains and feed costs considered moderate in relation to cattle prices.

Wellman said he foresees choice 400-500 pound steer calves to sell in the mid $10 range and very possibly higher this fall. Choice yearling steers weighing 500-700 pounds may sell from the high $50 to the mid $60, and heifers likely will sell at discounts of from $3 to $5 per hundredweight.

Because feeder cattle prices are expected to be higher in 1979 and 1980, the profit potential for beef cow operations—which has improved substantially this year—should be relatively good for the next five years, Wellman analyzed.

Cattle feeders' profit prospects are less certain, the economist warned, because of the dependence upon relationship between prices on feeder and slaughter cattle as well as feed costs.

Wellman prophesies that fed cattle prices will trend higher during the 1979-80 period, with feed costs expected to remain at moderate levels through next year.

For feeder cattle prices, this fall, after a reasonable chance for a modest profit for the feeder, choice steer prices need would be in the mid to high $30 range, he noted.

Farmers Should Look For Alternate Fuel

With a relatively large part of the total fossil fuel (Petroleum) energy used in corn production consumed in drying grain, farmers need to look for different drying systems for advantages in achieving lowest cost per bushel, an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Extension economist said this week.

Leslie F. Sheffield said large size combines, high speed harvesting equipment lack of capacity of local elevator, grain drying and storage facilities to handle corn in a particular territory and the difficulty in obtaining rail cars have combined to force much corn to be dried and stored on the farm.

As much as two to three times as much energy is required for corn drying as compared to total energy use for all other field operations in corn production, Sheffield stressed, and the sharp increase in energy prices during the past four to five years has escalated the cost of drying corn.

The normal field harvest moisture content in the 18 to the mid 20 percent range to safe moisture levels for storage from 13 to 15 percent Sheffield urged corn producers to look at the results of a University of Minnesota study published in July 1978, which analyzed seven different farm situations, ranging from 10,000 to 200,000 bushels harvested annually. Drying systems were generally of three types: High temperatures systems relying on large amounts of fossil fuel, low temperature systems relying on electricity to power operation fans and to provide supplemental heat, and systems which combine the high and low temperature methods.

The study used 1977 prices for energy costs and costs of different grain drying facilities, but anticipated increases in costs of equipment due to inflation and the rising costs of energy were plugged in to reconstitute different situations over the 20 year investment life of the drying and storage facilities.

Sheffield said corn farmers could look at their own production, harvest, storage and marketing situation with corn and relate it to the most appropriate of the following "case farms" where a clear advantage was shown in the study for a particular system.

Case farm with 10,000 bushels with either "modest" or "high"

lowest energy price increases, lowest per bushel costs are clearly realized with a low temperature at an average cost of 15.2 cents a bushel.

Case farm with 20,000 bushels with a "modest" energy price increase. The "Batch In bin" with annual costs of 12.8 cents (about .06 cents a bushel) has a slight edge over the low temperature and the drieration system with an automatic batch drier as the lowest cost system.

Case farm with 40,000 bushels in creases prevail, drieration with a continuous flow system also could be used with annual costs of 12.3 cents a bushel, however, over a 20 year period with a 7 percent annual inflation rate, the added cost would total $3,400.

Case farm with 60,000—the lowest cost system is drieration with a continuous flow drier with a real average annual cost of 11 cents a bushel.

Case farm with 80,000 up to 200,000 bushels for this range in sizes of operation with a bucket elevator, the lowest cost system is the drieration with continuous flow drier ranging from 12.3 cents a bushel for 80,000 bushel capacity to 12 cents a bushel for 100,000 bushel capacity to 10.9 cents a bushel for 200,000 bushel capacity.

Cattlemen Tod Time to Weigh

Now is the time to weigh calves, according to Stan Starling, Dixon County Extension agent.

In the rush to complete fall work, livestock producers sometimes overlook an important management tool—accurate weaning weights. This can have results as serious as culling the wrong cow, Starling said.

The additional time taken to get calf weights may be richly repaid in improved management. Selecting heifers for herd replacements is done best by careful consideration of production records.

Superior records include information on the lifetime production of each cow. They include birth weights as well as weaning weights. They also include special notations on factors affecting production. For example, such things as some animals being on poorer pasture, pinkeye infection, or other environmental influences.

Weaning weights are perhaps the most important of the records taken. Properly adjusting for environmental influences, knowing the calf's age and the age of its dam. This allows accurate adjustment of determining the most productive cows and those which should be culled. Guessing is poor management.

Starling plans to offer some special programs for Dixon County cow-calf herd owners. If they already have records of birth dates and weaning weights, they will be able to use these in the clinics planned, even if they are not presently using these records to adjust weaning weights.

Starling's aim is to assist Dixon County livestock producers in organizing a cow-calf or feeder calf association. Through the organization, he feels that a continuing program can be maintained in which producers encourage one another in good record keeping, meet together to keep up with changes, and improve their marketing. Through planned programs of speakers and discussions, they will be able to keep abreast of changes affecting their operations.
