

Steps Down as Chief

THE UNSUNG heroes of any small community is its volunteer firemen. Allen is no exception. Bill Kjer, who recently stepped down as chief of the Allen volunteers, stands beside one of four fire-fighting rigs which are a part of the 22-man department. The department also has an emergency ambulance and a station wagon which is used by the chief. George Menkerf, owner of a cafe in Allen, is not a member of the department but he is a vital part of it. He takes all of the fire calls on a 24 hour basis. The department had 10 EMTs.

- Protective Barriers
The wearing of the green came to Wayne Saturday now a group of Wayne businessmen are working on the "bearing of the green."
Gary Van Meter, executive vice president of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, reported the still active Downtown Improvement committee, appointed by the city council, has worked out the details of replicating and protecting trees in the business district of downtown Wayne.
The fine tuning of the tree replacement program came about during a meeting of the committee Friday.
Earlier, the committee agreed that replacement trees would be "canned trees" which are similar to ball and wrap trees whose roots are still shrouded in dirt. Committee members pointed out they fell "canned trees" had a better chance of surviving than bare root trees which were planted last May.
Speaking of surviving, the committee said they did not have an accurate count but not too many of the trees planted last year made it through the winter.
They said many of the trees were lost to the weather and growing conditions while many others were lost to plain vandalism and they are taking steps to prevent trees being vandalized after they are planted this year.
Dr. Howard Schmidt of Wayne State College has been contacted to design and help build protective tree barriers for the downtown trees.
The barriers will be made out of one-half steel rod with a 24-inch hoop at the top with four triangular legs embedded in the ground. The barrier will be about four feet tall.
The committee has estimated that each of the barriers will cost $10. Most of the money will go toward materials as high school and college students will be used to build them.
The committee is asking for donations for the barriers. They will build 42 of them with 40 of them to be put around the See TREE, page 10

County Court Being Flooded With Condemnation Petitions

Wayne county court is being inundated by a deluge of petitions for condemnation proceedings. The petitions are being filed by the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD), Columbus, naming property owners across whose land a proposed 345,000 volt transmission line is to be constructed. The court has received about 24 petitions and are expecting more than 50 before the filing is completed. However, a spokesman for NPPD told the Herald Friday many of the petitions may yet be settled out of court. The district county court judge will appoint three qualified appraisers to make determinations regarding the petitions. The first hearing regarding the petitions is set for April 12. While the appraisers will attempt to come to a fair and equitable decision in each of the petitions, either of the parties may appeal the county court's decision to district court. The NPPD pointed out in the petitions they have been unable to come to an agreement with the property owners regarding right-of-way for the construction of the $3,438,765 line which will run from Hoskins in Wayne county to a sub-station located near Rauli, Ia. Richard Greene previously stated the route selected for the line is one of six studied. He said many things were taken into consideration when selecting the final route. "We attempted to select a route which would cause the least disruption and inconvenience to the landowners, directness of route and terrain crossed cost of construction and time to construct, location of dwellings and other structures as well as environmental conditions," Greene stated. He further explained that as far as NPPD is concerned, it doesn't know of any adverse environmental effects of a transmission line of the size now under construction. The line will consist of 257 steel lattice towers. Greene went on to add: "I think the most adverse environmental impact will occur during the construction phase which will take about a year." He said the construction company, Seaward Construction company, Kittery, Maine, will work with NPPD to restore property to original conditions. As mentioned, Greene anticipates further negotiations with property owners in Wayne county so all of the petitions may not end up in court. "We always try and make an equitable settlement. We actually review on site the total impact of the line with the property owners." He pointed out, however, that NPPD realizes that it is not possible to see "eye-to-eye" with all of the property owners which necessitates the condemnation proceedings. Greene called the line an "extremely important line." He said many people realize the need for adequate power, "the sole reason NPPD exists."

Norfolk Lawyer Appointed Judge

A Norfolk attorney has been appointed to the 9th Judicial District judgeship. Gov. Charles Thone Friday named Richard Garden as district judge, filling the vacancy caused when his predecessor, Judge Eugene McFadden, died in a car-train accident Jan. 29. Garden, 43, is a veteran and a 1963 graduate of the University of Nebraska Law College. Since he was graduated, he has practiced law in Norfolk and has served as Madison County Bar Association president and special county attorney for Stanton, Madison and Cumming counties. No date has been set for the swearing in ceremony. State statutes set the salary of district judges at $39,500 annually.

Wayne County In District

Sen. Edward Zorinsky said this week that the Economic Development Administration has named 17 counties in northeastern Nebraska an "economic development district," targeting them for special jobs creation efforts. The counties are Antelope, Boone, Burl, Cedar, Colfax, Cumming, Dixon, Dodge, Knox, Madison, Nance, Pierce, Platte, Stanton, Thurston, Washington and Wayne. The designation has two effects. It makes the 17 eligible for bigger Economic Development Administration grants to attract new industry and provide jobs. The EDA now pays between 50 and 80 percent of the cost of jobs projects, the larger amount in areas with high unemployment, sizeable outmigration and low family incomes. The federal share will now increase by ten See DISTRICT, page 10

Spring Concert At Winside

Winside school students will present their annual spring concert this week. Lance Bristol, Winside's vocal director, said the public is invited to the program at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 26, in the Elementary multi-purpose room. In addition to vocal selections by each grade, Bristol said there will also be square dancing, juggling, parachute activities, and lummie stick routines. "We hope these added routines will help emphasize our excellent physical education program and show the obvious correlation between music and physical education," said Bristol.

Allen Woman Asks for Help

An Allen woman is appealing to Iowa officials to help her obtain marijuana, claiming she would use it to relieve pain caused by cancer chemotherapy treatment. Elva Emry, 50 said she has applied through the Iowa Department of Substance Abuse for federal permission to purchase marijuana in pill form. She said the marijuana helps relieve nausea that usually accompanies chemotherapy. She appealed to Gov. Robert Ray. Ray's response was included in material used last week by a group trying to legalize marijuana in the state. At a news conference Tuesday, members of the Iowa Branch of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, presented Bob Randall of Washington, D.C. as the only person in the country who legally uses marijuana as a medicine. Randall, who is a victim of glaucoma, said if he did not smoke about 70 marijuana cigarettes a week, he would go blind. Randall said the use of marijuana cannot cure or retard the growth of cancer. Mrs. Emry said she would like to take marijuana in pill form because she doesn't smoke. She said she is seeking help in Iowa because her home is closer to Sioux City than any large See HELP, page 10

Legislative Look

SENATOR JOHN R. MURPHY
District No. 17

This week certain members of the press were critical of a vote cast by a member of the Legislature, claiming that a conflict of interest was involved. This is not the first time such an issue has been raised and it will not be the last. There are 49 members sitting in the Legislature, all of whom are generally accepted as reasonably intelligent and capable people. Somewhere, sometime, each of those members will be voting on an issue in which they have a direct or an indirect interest, either through ownership, investment or family relationships. The Legislature must, of necessity, deal with a thousand different subjects.

Normally, I look to those who have background and experience in a particular area of concern, for advice and suggestions relative to proposed legislation. No man can be an entity unto himself under these circumstances. To suggest that a person with background and experience in a particular subject should refrain from consulting with his colleagues or should abstain from expressing what he believes to be the more meritorious position with regard to a piece of legislation is foolish, to say the least. Surely, the state is better off because of input into a particular subject by one so knowledgeable than it would be if limited knowledge or ignorance were to prevail because of a refusal to become involved.

That isn't what lawmakers are sent to Lincoln to do.

It is indeed strange that the press should choose to criticize on the basis of self-interest — prominent among those testifying on issues relating to the press are those self-same members of the press and yet they would deny this privilege to another. It was a position that was inappropriately taken and which merits no particular praise.

If such criticism is valid, then the electorate should seek out a bunch of turkeys who grew up under a rock and have no interest in nor knowledge of, anything and install them in all our public offices. This would preclude any possibility of a conflict of interest.

Unicameral Review

SENATOR ELOY M. HEFNER
District No. 19

The Legislature was not in session last Thursday and Friday to allow some of the state senators to attend the National Conference of State Legislatures in Washington, D.C. Twelve of us attended and were delegates on various committees. I was recently appointed to serve a two-year term on the Government Operations Committee.

The Conference is a non-partisan organization and is governed by a 45-member Executive Committee. The objectives are to improve the quality and effectiveness of state legislatures, to assure states a strong voice in the federal decision making process and to help with interstate communication and cooperation.

On Thursday morning U.S. Senator Muskie, Chairman of the Senate Budget Committee spoke to us on balancing the federal budget. He said that it is of great importance that this be done, but we need to be careful that we do not cause a deep recession or even a depression. People are tired of federal deficit spending and we need to force spending cuts. He went on to say that the economy shapes the federal budget and that a recession has a great impact on deficit spending. A one percent drop in gross national product means a $20 billion loss to the U.S. Government.

One of the ways to help balance the budget would be to cut state and local revenue sharing. Later our committee voted that the states would be willing to take a cut in federal revenue sharing if other parts of the federal budget were slashed accordingly.

At the present time 28 states have passed resolutions calling for a constitutional convention to balance the federal budget. Thirty-four states are needed to accomplish this. Nebraska adopted the resolution several years ago.

Thursday evening we attended a special briefing by the State Department on the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT) between the United States and the Soviet Union. Also, we heard remarks on what the SALT II agreement will mean for American security.

We met with U.S. Senator John Glenn, Chairman of the Subcommittee on Nuclear Waste. He talked on the disposal of this waste in the coming years. This was very interesting to me as we have two nuclear power plants in Nebraska.

Also, I was able to visit with the Nebraska Congressional Delegation about various problems that we have in Northeast Nebraska.

It was a very interesting and informative trip for me.

St. Pat's Day in Western Nebraska

Irish immigrants to frontier Nebraska did not forget their patron saint or neglect the celebration of St. Patrick's Day. Newspapers on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society record March 17 festivities during the 1890s in many of the state's towns and villages. The March 21,

1890, Chadron Advocate reported:

"Ireland's patron saint certainly has no reason to complain that the way his natal day was observed in this city. Green ribbons and green flags greeted the eye in every direction. High mass was celebrated at the Catholic church. In the evening the entertainment at the rink was greeted by a crowded house.

"The chairman of the evening, Mr. John Maher, came out resplendent with a classic Jeffersonian smile on his features and a program in his hand. John had evidently not rehearsed his little impromptu speech sufficiently, but managed to get through it and announced that the opening number was music by St. Patrick's choir, which was very well rendered."

Subsequent entertainment included a "brilliant oration" by Father Brophy, exhibiting "all the traditional love of an Irishman for the land of his birth"; a "bright and entertaining address" by D. B. Jencks on the "outlook for home rule in Ireland"; piano solo; and recitations.

"The final address of the evening was by A. Bartow, who made a first-class speech, blending wit, patriotism and pathos in a peculiarly happy style. As an illustration of the way the common people of Irish birth reverence the champions of her cause, he told a little story about Conductor Mahoney. 'Jerry don't like an Irishman as you are all aware; but the boys told the woman at a section house between here and Valentine where the trains sometimes stop for dinner that Jerry was an own cousin of Parnell (Charles S. Parnell, Irish nationalist leader), but not to speak to him about it or he would be mortally offended. After that Jerry would be surprised at the vicarious he would get. Two eggs at his plate while the rest got but one; two pieces of pie; in fact a Benjamin's portion throughout, and while he was filled with astonishment and gratification because of this manifest partiality, it was not Jerry at all, but the cause of Irish liberty represented in the cousin of Parnell which was being fed by the worshipping Irishwoman. This was well received. The entertainment concluded with the 'Gloria in Excelsis' by St. Patrick's choir."

St. Patrick's Day festivities in Alliance in 1895 included, besides the usual musical and dramatic entertainment, a parade. The Alliance Pioneer Grip, March 22, 1895, reported:

"A better day could not have been wished for than Monday was for celebrating this occasion — foremost in the heart of every true Irishman. The parade, the route of which was published in these columns last week, was indeed a good one for a city of the size of Alliance, and the presence of the corn band made it possible for the Hibernians and others in line to keep step.

"After the services in the church which consisted of the offering of high mass, and a sermon by Rev. P. T. Haley, the procession marched to Hibernian hall, where speeches were made by Mayor Hampton, W. A. Hampton, F. M. Broome, F. W. Smith, and A. J. Friel, being introduced by Secretary O'Connor.

"The afternoon was enjoyed by all. There were quite a number of strangers in the city, both from the country and the neighboring towns up and down the railroad. Everything passed off smoothly, good humor and a good time generally followed. Every other man or woman one would meet on the street was 'wearing of the green,' it being Shamrock's tinge — a gala day — while all seemed to say, 'Remember, boy, you're Irish.' 'Toward evening the celebration only closed long enough for supper, and at 8 o'clock the opera house was almost filled with an eager crowd, anxiously waiting for the curtain to rise on the first scene of the panorama. At 8:15 it was estimated that six hundred people were in the opera house. Some of the late comers were compelled to stand up during the performance," which consisted of stereoscopic views of Ireland and the customary presentation of Irish songs, poems, and skills.

"Just before the audience was dismissed, the Rev. Father Haley pleasantly remarked that as the day and evening had been spent in praises of Ireland, 'We would now share our praises on our own country, the one we love best and her flag.' When the entire company, assisted by the audience, sang, 'My Country, 'Tis of Thee,' with three cheers."

Dedication

Dear Editor:
As chairman of the Arts and Crafts Committee of the Wayne Woman's Club, I wish to thank all those who worked to make our Show of March 10 a success. The time given and the effort made by all who contributed are much appreciated.

Careful planning as well as constant checking of details as show time drew near kept the committee occupied for months. Postponement of one week because of bad weather added to the difficulties of all concerned. The successful outcome was possible only because of increased effort and dedication on the part of my co-workers.

We are grateful to the many who helped us. We thank all those who demonstrated their skills and displayed the results of their handiwork. We could not have had a show without them. We appreciate the cooperation of club members who permitted us to display their work.

We thank the exhibitors of special collections, especially Mrs. Robert Zahner for showing choice items of German art and crafts. The African Violet Club of Hoskins who brought dozens of their colorful prize plants on a wintry day for our visitors' enjoyment certainly merit our thanks. And we are sincerely grateful to the instructors of student art in both rural and city schools whose entries brightened and enlivened our show.

Thanks are due the Wayne Greenhouse for the floral centerpiece on the tea table and to Station KTCH for announcements of our show and its postponement.

We thank all who made the excellent coverage afforded by the Wayne Herald and thank you for it. — Mrs. J.S. Johar, Arts and Crafts Chairman, Wayne Woman's Club.

RICHARD L. LESHNER, PRESIDENT
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

WASHINGTON — For years, the liberal message to the black community has been one blaring and unending commercial for more government as a cure to any and all black complaints. Those of us in the business community have sent a different message — free enterprise is the true philosophy of those struggling to get ahead. For while the wealthy usually have the influence to live well under any system, an ambitious poor person can only succeed in a climate of freedom which provides individual opportunity, rewards achievement and places a premium on dynamic economic growth.

It has become customary to believe blacks are, and will always remain in the liberal camp. Even if that perception was correct, it isn't anymore. Several factors have recently combined to increase the receptivity of blacks to business: The undeniable failure of so many supposedly compassionate federal programs; the willingness of liberals to take black support for granted and to oppose the repeal of laws which actually keep blacks pinned to the bottom of the economic ladder; the recognition by business of the special economic and social needs of the black community, and the growing commitment by business to marshal the resources of private enterprise and promote genuine economic change — these are all reasons why more blacks are increasingly looking to business for new leadership and a possible new partnership.

Americans are by nature a compassionate people. During the past decade they have voluntarily given billions of dollars in taxes to the federal government thinking the money would be used to help those who cannot help themselves. But much of that money never reached the poor, because championing the disadvantaged has now become more than an inspiration, it is an occupation. Thomas Sowell, a black economist, describes this cruel hoax with these words: "To be blunt, the poor are a gold mine. By the time they are studied, advised, experimented with and administered to, the poor have helped many a middle-class liberal to achieve affluence without government aid."

Some liberal business liberals who believe they alone know the real needs of the poor, have pushed a series of policies which keep the poor down. For example, the quest for a new future of no growth, soft technology and lowered expectations has become very chic for many career liberals who are already members of the leisure class. But just think what that would mean for poor families struggling to break out of the ghetto? No growth would freeze them into a permanent position of poverty and dependence.

Liberals are also fighting repeal of a whole series of laws and regulations which blatantly discriminate against poor working people. Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the NAACP, was recently quoted in Time Magazine saying unnecessary regulations were killing black neighborhoods because "nobody, but nobody is buying into a decaying black ghetto except blacks themselves. So the effect of some regulations is almost 100 percent to exclude blacks."

But that's just the beginning. Eminent black economists like Walter Williams have pointed out that the minimum wage law results in higher black unemployment because it often makes hiring unskilled workers too expensive for only marginally profitable businesses. Yet despite the pleading of black economists, Congressional liberals refuse to support a youth-wage differential, while they continue to favor an unrealistically high minimum wage.

But what about blacks who already have a skill to sell construction — and are hoping to get work under a federal contract? Chances are they'll be disappointed, too. If, like many blacks, they're non-united, they could easily be zinged by the Davis-Bacon Act which requires all workers on federal construction projects to be paid at high prevailing levels. The Administration's economists favor repeal of Davis-Bacon, but labor doesn't, so President Carter is leaving it alone.

Or what about black persons, for example, who would like to purchase a taxi? Sorry, even they face tremendous roadblocks. Some cities have tremendously expensive licensing fees. So many blacks who could become small taxi businessmen, end up collecting welfare.

I believe the business community is approaching these very real problems with genuine solutions. Last year, U.S. corporations voluntarily bought $1.8 billion in goods and services from minority-owned business enterprises. It is also trying to help straighten out the scandalous situation in the private sector training program where blacks can learn real skills for productive jobs.

Obviously, we must all do more. But I believe, along with Benjamin Hooks and an increasing number of other black leaders, that real progress can only come from a stronger private economy and more private jobs. In the words of Hooks himself, "at the national level, and in every local Chamber of Commerce and Better Business Bureau, black leaders and business leaders should be sitting down to deal on the points on which we agree."

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

AN AMUSING STORY comes to us from Colorado during a recent ski weekend. A Wayne resident and his wife traveled to Colorado with the Sioux City Ski Club for a weekend of skiing.

On the final day, the Wayne resident was making one last swing down the slopes when he apparently fell and broke his ski. When he reached the bottom of the slope after hobbling along with a broken ski, he discovered the Sioux City bus had left.

Fortunately for him, his wife left his shoes behind with directions of their route and the name of the restaurant where the skiers would be eating. The Wayne resident was able to hitch a ride some 70 miles to the restaurant and when he entered he was greeted by an ovation from the Sioux City Ski Club. The Wayne resident — Bill Carlson!

chance the Lions could win the Class C title. If they should claim this title, I'm curious where the prep raters will place them in the post-season Top 10.

Entering the state tourney, Lyons was ranked third in one ranking and fourth in another. The top four Class A schools lost in opening round play.

So where do the raters place Lyons? Would they move up above Lincoln East which dropped its last two games? Would they remain above giant killers Omaha Northwest and Lincoln Southeast? It looks like a jumbled picture puzzle but IF Lyons won Class C, this weekend the Lyons MIGHT have a shot at the Top 10 title. Could be.

LET'S HOPE THAT WSC coach Bill Ivey can lure Jeff Hayes to play in a Wildcat uniform after he graduates from a Lion uniform. The 6-6 senior has been impressive in both first round games at state for Lyons and Coach Ivey is hoping to make him a Wayne State player Ivey has the support of a large area following which would be pleased to watch Hayes play for Wayne. Let's hope the Class C standout likes the idea as well.

I NEVER LIKE to second guess coaches, especially successful ones. But ... I am a little perturbed when a team holds a 20-30 point lead in state action and still the starters stay in, until the final minutes.

I am really surprised that a coach would leave his starters in the game that long. It doesn't make sense to me.

For each added second that the starters remain in the game, there is a chance one of them will sustain an injury. With 12 players on the team, I'm sure four or five of them would jump at a chance to play in the state tourney. Playing at state is something every basketball player in the state would love to experience and treasure for years. And why humiliate the other team?

Region IV Public Relations Discussed In Norfolk

A Public Information Interview concerning Region IV Services was attended by 25 persons in Norfolk, March 12. The evening meeting was part of a survey being conducted the week of March 12-16 by the Accreditation Council for Services for Mentally Retarded and Other Developmentally Disabled Persons.

The Council is one of five comprising the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, a private accreditation agency based in Chicago. Four surveyors are touring the eight area agencies to collect information pertaining to Region IV's compliance with "Standards for Services for Developmentally Disabled Individuals."

At the Norfolk meeting, survey team leader William Harrison described accreditation as a technique of accountability. "It is a way of designing services and ways of training services to the individual to determine if the client or consumer is getting what he needs from the agency." He stressed that agencies such as Region IV voluntarily request a survey and submit to scrutiny by the Council's surveyors. According to Harrison, "It is quite a feather in the hat of an agency to be accredited. Only around 100 agencies in the country have been accredited."

There are approximately 800 different standards which apply to the Region IV Office of Developmental Disabilities and its area agencies in Bloomfield, Columbus, Lyons, Norfolk, O'Neill, Sioux Sioux City, Wayne and Valentine. To become accredited, Region IV must conform to 85 percent of the standards.

Lincoln of the interview. He stated, "We feel strongly that accreditation is the best way to make sure that services are of the highest quality. Hopefully in the next six months we will have accreditation across the entire state."

Half of U.S. Traffic Deaths Alcohol-Related

Following is the second in a series of articles dealing with alcoholism. The articles have been submitted by the Wayne County 4-H Junior Leaders as part of their "Alcohol Impact 1979" program. Consecutive articles will appear each month in The Wayne Herald.

You know Bob. He's the life of the party. He always drinks too much and talks too much. And some people think he's a funny guy.

But when Bob gets in his car, he isn't funny anymore. Last year drivers like Bob killed more than 27,000 men, women and children.

They injured more than 2,350,000 others, and they were responsible for a daily economic loss in this country of nearly $20 million.

Bob is not necessarily an alcoholic. He may only be a heavy "social drinker." However other drinkers like him, including some who have only had a few drinks, cause more than half of all the traffic accidents in America. One reason the drinking problem is so difficult to control is because it is rooted in American culture. Today the social life of many Americans primarily involves drinking to a place where alcohol is consumed and then driving back home.

Even when drivers are arrested for driving while intoxicated, the public's attitude toward drinking and driving is very tolerant. This attitude is reflected in administrative policies and legislation.

In Nebraska, for example, as in most of the states, drivers' blood alcohol concentrations must be at least .10 percent before they can be arrested for driving while under the influence of alcohol. However, in Norway, the legal limit has been .05 percent for 40 years.

In Scandinavian countries such as Finland, drivers caught with a detectable trace of alcohol in their blood are jailed. Even with no accident involved, they face up to five months imprisonment. Hard labor is added to the sentence if a drunk driver injures or kills someone.

Sweden and Norway also have tough penalties for drinking and driving. Sweden's highway death rate is half that of the United States.

However, in America, leniency is still shown to the drinking driver by law enforcement officials and judges, and even by jurors who too often identify with the drinking drivers.

Alcohol has always played an important role in America's history. During America's "dry" period from 1919 to 1933, Al Capone grossed $60 million a year by selling liquor in Chicago's speakeasies.

In spite of serious efforts to curb alcoholism and the drinking driving problem, the number of alcoholics is increasing. Nine million Americans are alcoholics, and eight million of them are "high volume" social drinkers

Three fourths of the more than 88.6 million drivers in America drink.

Although many Americans use alcohol when entertaining and having fun, they also use it for negative reasons. It is often used as a "medicine" for troubles, an escape from problems, a cure for fears and doubts, or a substitute for relationships.

After some Americans drink, they may become assaultive, aggressive drivers. According to many American teenagers, masculinity, drinking and driving go together. The extremely high number of young American males killed in car accidents proves this attitude is typical of many. As long as such myths prevail, alcohol-related traffic fatalities will keep increasing.

In general, basic attitudes need to be changed before drinking and driving will be less of a problem. For a start, the commonly used expression "one for the road" should be changed to "none for the road."

MICROWAVES SAVE

Does a microwave oven save energy?

Recent research conducted by the College of Home Economics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University provides some insight.

The study compared energy consumption and time for cooking one week's meals for a four-member family with three types of electric ranges: conventional, and each of the two types of smooth-top ranges — with thermostatically controlled units and without. All three were used in conjunction with a countertop microwave oven.

It was shown that the microwave oven used with the conventional range can save electric energy. The combined use of these two appliances produced a total savings of 4,625 kilowatt hours for the week's cooking. In terms of operating costs, the savings would be 13.9 cents per week or $7.23 over a year's time, based on a three cent charge a kilowatt hour.

The time savings from the use of the two appliances together can be even more substantial — about nine hours a week or 468 hours per year for just cooking operations.

TAX

WAYS TO REDUCE RATES

We Americans pay nearly $155 billion individual income tax to the federal government alone.

The federal government collects some $1,500 in taxes from every man, woman and child in the country.

Some people say one way to ease our tax burden is to stop the government from spending our money on lost causes. One of these, experts say, is the Amtrak system that has so far cost us over $4 billion.

When Amtrak was created in 1971, it was with the expectation that it could become self-sufficient. The Department of Transportation, however, believes that, as currently operated, Amtrak will have cost taxpayers approximately ten billion dollars by 1982.

According to the Committee to End Government Waste of the National Taxpayers Union, the taxpayer is paying for two-thirds of the cost of the average trip, yet the entire 27,000-mile Amtrak system handled less than one-third of one percent of the nation's intercity travel in 1977.

If such drains on our tax dollars as that are removed, some of the nearly 130 million tax returns filed every year might be a little smaller.

year ago to encourage more local involvement in health planning for the area.

The committee, which meets every other month, advises the agency's 30 member governing board on health matters related to the area. It is one of four subarea committees operating in the 71 county area of rural Nebraska served by the agency.

Each county is entitled to have one or more representatives on the subarea committee. Louise Jenness represents Wayne County on the committee as the provider member.

In order to maintain the required balance of health care consumers and providers on the committee, nominees should be health care consumers. A health care consumer is someone who does not obtain monthly income from the health care industry.

The Northern Subarea Committee plans to take action on the Wayne County vacancy during its April 9 meeting. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in Norfolk at the Northeast Technical Community College, East Benjamin Avenue, at the Community Services Room.

Wayne County residents interested in representing the county on the subarea committee can receive more information by contacting: Bonnie Nickle, Northern Subarea Coordinator, Greater Nebraska Health Systems Agency, P.O. Box 1247, Norfolk, Nebraska 68701.

The Boy Scouts and area 4-H clubs are becoming involved with the project. The Scouts will take over the watering of the trees until June 1. Gail Korn will supervise the planting and work up a water schedule. Four-H clubs will take over the watering operating after June 1.
