

Several Towns Being Considered

Service Unit Looking for New Home

Education Service Unit 1 is looking for a new home and Wayne is one of the towns being considered.

Ken Olds, Wayne attorney who has been associated since the unit was first started eight years ago and is presently serving as its president, explained the unit and its personnel are now spread out to the point where the board feels it might be efficient if the offices were all under one roof.

"We recently visited and looked over possible sites in Wayne, Wakefield, Laurel, Belden, Randolph and Coleridge as they are located near the center of the six county area served by the unit," Olds explained.

He said no decision has been made but expects that one will be forthcoming this summer.

"We looked over an architect's drawing of a central plant Tuesday night," Olds explained.

He said the plans call for a building with about 5,000 square feet with a price tag in the neighborhood of $250,000.

Olds said presently there are two offices located in Wakefield and one in Wayne. "The one in Wayne is located in the Education building at Wayne State College. The building is going to be remodeled and we are going to lose our office by July 1, 1980."

Olds said there are some 55 employees in the unit but pointed out that if the central office were to be located in Wayne, many of the unit's specialists would not be living in Wayne.

The unit serves Wayne, Dakota, Thurston, Dixon, Cedar and Knox Counties. Olds explained that even now some of the employees serving the northern counties are living in Yankton.

Olds said the purpose of the unit is to provide supplemental education services to the schools in the six county area. He said many of the services are those which small districts cannot afford.

Hearing testing, speech therapy, psychological services, nursing services (for those districts that do not have a school nurse) and curriculum, are some of the areas covered by the unit.

Olds said in many instances, the specialists will go to the schools to provide the services while in other instances, such as hearing testing, the students will be brought to a central location in this instance, Wayne.

The president said each of the counties are authorized to levy up to one mill to help support the unit. However, he said none of the counties are taxed the limit.

He also pointed out that the schools served by the unit reimburse the unit for the services performed so the costs are passed on.

Olds said the unit has a large film library which is used extensively by the schools in the unit area.

AN APRIL FOOL, turkey! Tom Burney, Wayne State College sophomore, was ready for a weekend of spring sports when Old Man Weather moved in and thwarted his efforts with snow and rain. The wet snow was kicked along by a gusty wind, causing some drifting on country roads. The snow didn't stay long as warmer temperatures Monday and Tuesday turned it into streams of water. The sun was out Wednesday but the weather forecast called for more moisture later on in the week.

Agency Serves 14 Counties

Family Planning Services are Widespread

The Northeast Nebraska Family Health Services (NENFHS) agency, whose headquarters are located in Wayne, gives family planning advice to those who seek it as well as making educational presentations to student groups.

Mrs. Ann O'Donnell, program director for the past seven years, said the agency, which covers some 14 Northeast Nebraska counties, serves women and men of child bearing age with family planning services.

The planning services include medical examinations, counseling, methods of birth control and education with special emphasis placed on serving the low income segment of the agency service area.

Mrs. O'Donnell said the agency has kept a fairly low profile so that persons needing and seeking help will not be reluctant to do so because they feel they might be exposed to the public.

"Our counseling and records are strictly confidential," Mrs. O'Donnell stated. "We are on a one-to-one basis with our clients and we will not in any way betray any trust placed with us by our clients."

Because of the non-publicity aspect of the service, there are some misconceptions about the agency and its work, Mrs. O'Donnell explained.

"We are hosting a Wayne Chamber of Commerce coffee Friday and we urge all Chamber members to attend so they can see and learn for themselves what we are all about. Mrs. O'Donnell said. The coffee will be from 10 to 11 a.m."

Mrs. O'Donnell said the agency is open to the public daily and she welcomes persons who have questions about the work of the agency and the services that it offers.

Relating to services, Mrs. O'Donnell said that because of the continuing incidence of teenage pregnancies and abortions, services for youth are being increased with special programs on family planning and subjects related to family planning.

"Promoting health care through family planning is the main objective of our agency," Mrs. O'Donnell pointed out. She said the agency services are offered to a minimum of 1,200 persons with counseling and information on family planning and related subjects, to each person for sound judgment determining a method of family planning.

The program director also said the agency presents educational programs to 1,600 college students, 900 high school students and 400 adults. The presentations range in number from 5 to 20 per month.

The staff of NENFHS at the present time consists of Mrs. O'Donnell as program director, a registered clinical nurse, a secretary and five Outreach counselors who live in five different areas, plus CETA personnel.

There are currently 13 physicians and 2 physician assistants who work with the program on a regular basis, according to Mrs. O'Donnell. "Also, interns from the University of Nebraska Medical Center, Omaha, help staff the Norfolk clinic."

Nine clinics are held monthly at Norfolk, South Sioux City, Pender and West Point. Other fee-for-service medical sites are Creighton, Hartington, Laurel, Oakland, O'Neill, Lynch, Atkinson, Winnebago, West Point, South Sioux City and Pierce.

Mrs. O'Donnell pointed out that additional physicians help with medical resupplies, referrals and information. "This organization is a part of the health services provided to the communities," Mrs. O'Donnell explained. "We work directly with other health, social and medical agencies."

NENFHS is under the Nebraska Health department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The agency operates on a budget which this year is $103,200. Mrs. O'Donnell said $85,200 of the budget is funded through federal and state

Award-Winning Showband To Demonstrate Talents

Spring is being welcomed in next Tuesday, April 10 by one of Nebraska's elite marching groups, the Benson High School Showband from Omaha, according to Wayne Chamber of Commerce Manager, Gary Van Meter.

Scheduled to arrive at 11 a.m., the band will assemble in Wittig's parking lot and march from there down Main Street to First Street.

The Benson Bunnies' school mascots, the Bunny and Carrot will be on hand as well, with the Rabbit doing double duty as the Easter Bunny for the kiddies in downtown Wayne that morning, handing out candy and entertaining them along the way.

All-School Play Set at Winside

Students of the Winside Public School will present an all-school play Tuesday evening, April 10, at 8 o'clock in the elementary multi-purpose room.

The band's stop in Wayne is just a part of an overall tour throughout Northeast Nebraska including stops in Norfolk, Schuyler, North Bend, Columbus, Pierce, Hartington, Laurel, South Sioux City, and several other communities.

Band Director John Kieffer explained that the tour serves as a means for Omaha students to get out and see what outstate Nebraska and its people are really like.

"These kids are paying their own way to come see your communities," commented Kieffer, Chamber manager Van Meter expressed hope that Wayne area citizens reciprocate by coming downtown to review the crack performance the band will offer.

Made up of 140 students from the 10th, 11th and 12th grades, the band's complement includes 18 flag corps men and a pom pom line of 18. This year's band was awarded the first place trophy as "Most Outstanding" high school

See TALENTS, page 12

The three-act play, entitled "Where the Lilies Bloom," is under the direction of Jean Dederman.

A spokesman for the school said that a salad bar will be served preceding the play, at 6:30.

Tickets for the play and salad bar are on sale at the school. Ticket sales are limited to 125, and a very limited number of tickets for the play only will be available the night of the performance at the door. Tickets can be purchased from Fine Arts students or by calling the school.

American Cancer Society volunteers from Wayne County including Mrs. Lou Luft Sr., youth education chairman; Mrs. Nell Sandahl, rural chairman; Mrs. Lester Hansen, county president; and Mrs. Rudy Longe, adult education chairman, joined nearly 150 volunteers from across Nebraska in Lincoln Saturday to kickoff the 1979 state crusade.

Principal speakers during the day were Dr. Leonard Lee and Scott Hiett, both of Lincoln. They told of Helt's personal fight with leukemia from diagnosis through treatment and remission.

Helt shares his cancer experience with fellow vocational rehabilitation counselors and its oncology resource coordinator for Lincoln General Hospital.

Dr. George Veomett, researcher at the University of Nebraska Lincoln, described his latest finding with interferon. Interferon is a natural body substance known for its antiviral activity in both animal and human systems.

A panel of four physicians were present during the kickoff meeting to answer questions about the latest in diagnosis and treatment of cancer.

State crusade chairman Paul Bodenslab of North Platte emphasized that volunteers must promote this year's educational message: "You Do Make a Difference."

Volunteers also had the opportunity to attend mini-sessions on residential, special gifts, special events and planned giving.

The annual crusade in Wayne County got underway Tuesday. Two hundred and twenty-five volunteers in the county are working during the month of April to reach this year's goal of $5,39,000.

Beth Baier Wed in Omaha

A bouquet of dried light, dark blue and white cordone puffs and spray leaves decorated the altar of the First United Methodist Church in Omaha for the March 24 candlelight wedding of Beth Ann Baier and Gary Lee Kaufman.

Candles decorated with greenery and light blue pew bows lined the aisle.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Baier, of Wayne, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kauffman of Omaha.

The Rev. Roger Bourland, senior minister of the church, performed the couple's double ring ceremony.

The bride appeared at her father's side in a white A-line silhouette gown designed with an empire waistline. The bodice featured a high stand-up collar of Cluny lace and a sheer yoke with a re-embroidered cameo insert. Matching lace trimmed the full bishop sleeves which were caught at the wrists by a wide cuff. The skirt was edged with matching Cluny lace, which swept into a chapel train.

For her veil, the bride fashioned a finger-tip illusion net held in place by a Camelot cap and trimmed in matching lace. She wore her great grandmother's pendant, and carried a silk bouquet of light blue roses accented with white stephanotis and greenery.

Mrs. Kathy Morris of Omaha was maid of honor. Mrs. Lori Kuhn and Sheri Dirks, also of Omaha, were bridesmaids.

They wore long, flowing gowns of baby blue Quiana knit, drawn at the shoulders by spaghetti straps. The fashions featured long-sleeved V-neck blouses waisted jackets trimmed with mauve feathers at the neck and sleeves. They carried muffs of white fur designed by the bride.

Mark Raders of Norfolk served as best man, and groomsmen were Jack Hulett and Greg Hulett, both of Omaha.

The bridegroom wore a baby blue tuxedo and matching ruffled shirt. His boutonniere was a white rose surrounded by baby's breath. His attendants wore silver gray tuxedos with baby blue ruffled shirts.

Mrs. Roberta Siebart, church organist, played "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring" as the bridal party entered the church. Mrs. Dennis Smith, church soloist, sang "One Hand, One Heart," as candles were lit by Kyle McVane of Littleton, Colo. and Wendy Kauffman of Lincoln.

Other wedding music included "The Lord's Prayer," "Psalm 19" and "Colour My World."

Ushers were Tom Kauffman and Marlin Kauffman of Omaha, both brothers of the bridegroom, and Ron Kuhn and Brad Kromling, also of Omaha.

Special guests for the wedding ceremony were the bride's grandparents, Mrs. Oscar Hoeman and Alfred Baier Sr. of Wayne.

The mother of the bride selected a mint green blouson dress, and the bridegroom's mother chose a pink chiffon dress. Both wore corsages of purple orchids.

All of the corsages were designed by the bride.

Lynn Kauffman of Council Bluffs, Ia. was personal attendant and pinned on corsages. Guests were registered by Yolanda Kauffman of Omaha.

Gift carriers were Mrs. Jodene Henschke of Wakefield, Mrs. Julie Hans of St. Helena, and Lori Grunke and Carol Peterson, both of Lincoln.

A reception was held in the church parlors following the wedding ceremony. Guests were greeted by the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Carol McVane, and Kevin McVane, a nephew, both of Littleton, Colo.

Dianne Murphy of Bellevue served punch. Mrs. Jim Suber of Fremont and Mrs. Lee Anderson of Winside cut and served the cake and Mrs. Jan Kauffman of Lincoln poured.

A champagne party later at Royalwood Clubhouse was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Willis Meyer of Wayne. Kris Bohlmann of Omaha was at the champagne fountain. She also served the light lunch and groom's cake, which was designed as a winter ski scene.

A pre nuptial dinner was served March 23 in the Harold Kauffman home and was hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado the couple are at home at 11520 Westwood Lane in Omaha.

The bride is employed at University Medical Center, Omaha, and the bridegroom is assistant manager of Minnesota Fabrics of Omaha.

The Rev. Frederick Cook officiated at the six-thirty double ring service.

Guests, registered by Cathy Papenhausen, sister of the bridegroom, were ushered into the church by Jerry Schroeder, Terry Krie and Terry Wilkerson.

MR. AND MRS. RANDY PAPENHAUSEN

The altar was decorated with two flower arrangements of white pompons and deep pink carnations. The candelabra held ivory candles and was adorned with greenery and a large pink bow. Candles were lighted by Julie and John Schutte.

For her wedding day, the bride chose an ivory Quiana gown with an attached Watteau train. Appliques of Venice lace adorned the basque bodice and jewel neckline, and re-embroidered lace edged the long skirt and narrow sleeves. The bride wore an ivory bridal hat with Venice lace, pearls and illusion veiling, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath accented with pink and ivory ribbon.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Susan Schroeder, who wore a pink embroidered knit with a gathered waistline and long, full sleeves. She wore a small flowered comb in her hair and carried a nosegay of pink roses and ivory baby's breath.

The bride's personal attendant was her sister, Mrs. Connie Schutte. Flowers were pinned on by Kris Schroeder.

Serving as best man was Kevin Krie. The men were attired in business suits with pink and ivory rose boutonnières and baby's breath.

A reception followed at the Coleridge Community Building. Host and hostess were Dr. and Mrs. John Schroeder.

Carroll, Goeden No-Hitter Devils Open With NEN Win

When Tom Ginn injured his pitching arm last baseball season, Jerry Goeden approached Wayne High coach Mike Mallette and asked if he could tryout for pitcher. Mallette told Goeden that anyone could tryout but advised him that he'd have to practice during the fall.

Goeden practiced all fall and returned in January and February, hoping to gain a position on the Wayne roster as a pitcher. Tuesday, all the practice paid off, as Goeden teamed up with Dennis Carroll to pitch a no-hitter against Ponca. Carroll opened the game for Wayne by holding Ponca hitless through the first three innings. Then, Goeden took over in his pitching debut and pitcher Tim Pfeiffer warmed up in the bullpen as a precautionary measure. Pfeiffer never set foot on the mound.

Goeden pitched four hitless innings, striking out eight batters and walking only one. The lone Ponca runner scored on two passed balls and a squeeze bunt in the sixth inning. Following Wayne's pitching was a bright spot, the batting was not. The team collected only four hits in the seven inning game, led by Jeff Zeiss with a double and triple.

Zeiss doubled with one out in the third inning, advanced to third base on a ground ball by Carroll and scored on a passed ball to give the Blue Devils a 1-0 lead. Paul Calvert scored Ponca's only run on a fine bunt by Bruce Lowe in the sixth inning.

Tim Thomas and Jere Morris drew walks to open the top of the seventh, advanced on a passed ball and Dave Schwartz drove the pair in with a base hit. Zeiss followed with a triple to give Wayne a 4-1 lead. Then, Goeden brought Zeiss home for the final run and a 5-1 lead.

Wayne was scheduled to play Laurel Wednesday afternoon. If field conditions were satisfactory, both Ponca and Laurel are members of the new Northeast Nebraska Baseball League, along with Wayne.

Returning to this year's squad for Mike Mallette are leading hitter Tom Ginn, who batted .436 last season, pitchers Carroll, Pfeiffer, Zeiss and Goeden, and leftfielder Dan Mitchell.

According to Randy Hascel

THE WINTER WEATHER just won't surrender to spring but spring sports have continued despite low temperatures and precipitation.

After watching most of the Laurel Corners Relays at Wayne State last Thursday, I journeyed over to WSC's baseball diamond to watch a game between Wayne State and Jamestown, N.C. The fog was so bad that on deep fly balls, the outfielders lost sight of the ball.

It was somewhat less than ideal weather for playing baseball, to say the least. It couldn't have been too enjoyable for Jamestown. After all they tell me this was their southern tour. Maybe next year they can tour a little bit farther south — like Texas perhaps.

We watched part of the Wayne State Bellevue College baseball game, so I let him run the camera for some experience.

Assistant photographers like that sure lighten the photography load.

The outdoorsy kept busy during much of the game, directing the outfielders left or right and up or back to get the fly ball. Once positioned where the infielders mistook them, the outfielders waited for

'Which One's Mom?'

THE 24 STUDENTS in Mrs. JoAnne Benschoff's fourth grade class at Wayne's West Elementary School last week became mothers (and fathers) to three baby chicks. The youngsters received a dozen eggs from Shrader and Allen Hatchery in Wayne and kept them under an incubator in the classroom until last week when the chicks made their appearance under the delighted eyes of the youngsters, who were gathered around for the occasion. The chicks were nicknamed Klutz and Lazy because of their inactivity. Jodi Ditman, at left, gently prods one of the newborns. In the photo above, from left, Brian Schmidt, Jodi Ditman, Jon Stollenberg and Bill Liska set the chicks amid a display of bird nests which the students made or brought to class.

Households who have received emergency assistance in the past are eligible for additional assistance, Taylor explained. The maximum amount of money available to each household is $250, he said. Taylor said those who apply for the emergency money are asked to bring income verification and due bills with them when they attend the clinics. Persons wishing further information are asked to contact Betty King, 375-1657.

Cats Beat Jamestown, Lose To Bellevue

BY BRAD WIELAND
The Wayne State College baseball team upped its record to 4-8 over the weekend, with victories at home over Jamestown College of Jamestown, N.C., 12-4 and Augustana College of Sioux Falls, S.D., 9-8. Mike Meyer sparked the Wildcats in Saturday's opening game against Jamestown with a perfect day at the plate. Meyer hit three singles and a home run to help the Cats to their third victory of the year. Also figuring in on WSC's 14-hit attack were Bob Hegge of Crafton and Bill Schwartz of Wayne. Hegge went 2-4 and hit two doubles in four appearances while Schwartz added a double and a single. Lenny Klaver of Kamrar, Ia. went the distance to even his record at 1-1 for the season. Dean Richardson was tagged with the loss for Jamestown. Saturday's game concluded a three game series with Jamestown College with WSC winning two out of three of the contests. Chico Mason of Pittsburg, Penn., drove in two runs in the sixth inning to break a 7-7 tie which enabled the Wildcats to squeak out a 9-8 victory over Augustana College in the second game played Saturday at Wayne. The victory for the Cats improved their record to 4-8 on the season. Bernie Minarik of Elkhorn caught fire for WSC in the second inning and blasted a three-run homer over the left field fence to put the Cats on top 3-2 after two innings of play. Augustana came back in the top of the third and scored two runs to retake the lead. Mason's two RBIs in the sixth, put the game on ice for WSC. Augustana had one more chance in the top of the seventh to tie the game but came up one run short. The Wildcats played Bellevue College at Wayne Tuesday and were scheduled to host Buena Vista of Storm Lake, Iowa, Wednesday. The visitors slipped by the Wildcats by identical 2-1 scores in a doubleheader. Wayne is now 4-10. The Cats outlit Bellevue 4-4 in the first game but were unable to group their hits. Mike Meyer picked up half of WSC's hits with three singles in three appearances at the plate. Brian Blatchford put Wayne on the scoreboard in the sixth inning with a solo home run, making the score 2-1 going into the top of the seventh inning. Darrell Mueller struck out nine batters and went the distance in the losing cause, as his record dropped to 0-3. The second game featured another defensive battle when neither team could generate much offense. Bellevue scored its runs in the fifth and sixth innings, to take a 2-1 lead. The seventh inning went scoreless and Bellevue left town with a sweep of the doubleheader. Wayne State got its only run in the second inning when Blatchford tripped and Bernie Minarik

BY DARWIN RUBECK
The Wayne State softball team has really warmed up, even though the weather has not. The Wildcats ended a busy week with their fourth and fifth wins in a row, by sweeping a double header with Nebraska Wesleyan, 11-0 and 9-5 at Wayne, Saturday. Pat Lemhan of Council Bluffs, Ia. scattered three hits and notched six strikeouts in route to the 11-0 shutout in the opener. Saturday, Lemhan had plenty of help as the Kittens sounded out 11 hits. The Wildcats' bats produced 12 base hits to score nine times, allowing Cindy Stella of Bellevue to pick up her second win in the second game of the double header.

their liking Friday, taking both games of a double header over Peru State at Peru, 11-1 and 14-10. Robin Walsh of Mapleton, Ia. and Ann Hamling of Columbus provided the firepower in the second game at Peru Friday, to give Stella her first win of the season. Walsh scattered three hits in four appearances, including a grand slam home run. Lynne Larson of Irwin, Ia. forced the bats of the Lady Bobcats to be as cool as the weather with her first no-hitter of the year while picking up 10 strikeouts in her second win 11-0 over Peru State. In Wednesday's action, Lynne Larson was again in the lime light, allowing only four UNO hits in blanking the Lady Mavericks 5-0 in the second game of the season opening double header at Omaha.

Abortion law under attack

CAPITOL NEWS
BY MELVIN PAUL
STATEHOUSE CORRESPONDENT
THE NEBRASKA PRESS ASSOCIATION
LINCOLN — Nebraska's new abortion law, adopted by the Legislature on March 19 and signed by Gov. Charles Thone several days later, is under attack by U.S. District Court Judge Warren K. Urbom about the constitutionality of the 1977 Nebraska abortion statute.

Urbom late last year issued an injunction, which precluded the state from enforcement of several sections of the 1977 law.
He made the ruling in a lawsuit brought by Women's Services, P.C., an Omaha professional corporation that offers outpatient facilities for abortion, and Dr. G. William Orr, an Omaha obstetrician and gynecologist.
Those same two parties brought the latest class action suit, claiming the law passed and signed this year violates the constitution in restricting abortions.
Among their allegations was one that some sections of the new law inflict "grave and irreparable injury upon women and physicians" because they burden, limit and in many instances preclude access to elective and medically necessary pregnancy termination procedure."

Sought in the suit are a temporary restraining order and a permanent injunction against implementation of the law, which is slated to go into effect April 22.
The suit says the new legislation also gravely curtails the traditional and vital privacy of the doctor-patient relationship by having the state attempt to dictate that a decision on an abortion by an unmarried woman under the age of 18 cannot be made without the consent of her parents or guardian.
Other claims are that the law interferes with the right of a physician to practice medicine, constitutes enactment into law of one religious belief concerning abortions and the nature of the fetus.
When the abortion bill was being debated in the Legislature, Sen. John DeCarnegay of Neligh said it was at least "outrageously constitutional."
The legislation, which passed easily after final reading, was an attempt to make Nebraska's law as restrictive as possible while addressing objections Urbom had raised to the 1977 law.
The bill included a savings clause, meaning that if one or several sections were found unconstitutional, the rest of it would remain in the statutes.

Defendants in the court action are Thone, Attorney General Paul Douglas and Douglas County Attorney Douglas Knowles.
Federal Regulations Are Expensive
A legislative committee was told recently that proposed federal regulations for nursing homes could prove so expensive that nursing home operators would be unable to pay them.
According to James Brown, executive director of the Nebraska Health Care Association, several of the proposed rules would cost Nebraska operators millions of dollars.
Under present regulations, Brown said, a nursing home must have at least one nurse on duty eight hours a day. A proposed change would require the hiring of a second nurse who would work a second shift.
Hiring the additional help could cost the state's more than 200 nursing homes $3 million, Brown said.
Another proposed change would require homes of 100 beds or more to have a dietitian. Current regulations are concerned solely with the sanitary conditions in which food is prepared, not its nutritional value.

Forty-six nursing homes would be affected by the suggested dietitian rule, William Page, director of licensing and standards for the state Health Department said.
Some of the regulations "just aren't practical," according to Brown. He said one answer might be to increase the number of physician assistants in the state since some of the problems stem from the rural nature of the state.
The state Health Department scheduled hearings on nursing home problems at Omaha, Lincoln and North Platte in order to hear from persons who could be affected by the problems.
Deputy sheriffs could engage in political activities under provisions of a bill that has received first-round approval in the Legislature.
The measure would prohibit the deputies from participating in such activities while in uniform and during working hours. The deputies also could not identify themselves as law enforcement officials.
Sen. David Newell of Omaha said the current law is unfair and discriminatory, but Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said the deputies should be protected from coercion by their superiors and from coercing others. Supporters of the legislation countered by saying Nebraska law prevents such coercion.

Chambers was unsuccessful in getting approval of an amendment to forbid political activities by deputy sheriffs unless they were campaigning for themselves.
The bill, unlike present law, would impose a penalty of up to three months in jail or a $500 fine, or both, for violators of the statute.
Juror Age Lowered
Persons 19 years old could serve on juries if a bill that is being debated by Nebraska's lawmakers wins final approval.
During early discussion of the wisdom of lowering from 21 to 19 the age of eligibility for jury service, Sen. Dave Landis of Lincoln noted 20 states allow 18-year olds to be jurors and two permit those 19 years old to serve.
Most opponents said they did not believe those below 21 were mature enough to address the serious cases jurors are asked to decide.

Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, who is leading the attempt to raise the drinking age from 19 to 21, said he opposed lowering the age for jury service solely because of its relationship to his legislation.
The lawmakers rejected an amendment from Sen. Howard Lamb of Anselmo who wanted to authorize employers to deduct from the salary of an employee the amount received for jury service.
An important feature of the measure is that it would make many more persons eligible to be on juries. This would be accomplished by eliminating the many exemptions now in the statutes. The exemptions cover a variety of occupations and professions, including doctors, dentists, embalmers and many others.
An attempt was made to expand the pool from which jurors are selected by including holders of driver licenses. But a majority of the senators turned down that idea.
Jurors are selected from voter registration lists.
Several of the legislators said some persons do not register simply to get out of being on the list from which members of juries are chosen.

Energy costs forecast change

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU
FEDERATION
BY E.M. VAN KIRK,
DIRECTOR OF INFORMATION
The impending prospects of higher and higher petroleum-based fuel costs forecast some changes in American farming techniques and planning.
The mechanical revolution which has distinguished U.S. farming operations since World War II has been based primarily on relatively inexpensive and plentiful petroleum supplies. It has enabled American farmers to spiral their productivity to the point that one farmer produces on average enough to feed himself and from 56 to 58 other people, the number dependent on how recent the statistical source may be.
Low cost energy encouraged farmers to greater and greater mechanization as a means of coping with inflation and providing a better income and higher living standards for their families. Larger, more efficient, more expensive equipment encouraged farmers to expand their acreage to justify such capital investments. To quote from a 1978 General Services Administration survey report: "It is difficult to determine whether the new technology was necessitated by increased farm size or whether the farms expanded to fit the available machinery."

A University of Minnesota agricultural economist has described the situation as a "technology treadmill." He says the technology-oriented U.S. society encouraged farmers to adopt new technology, thus reducing costs per unit of land, enabling expansion, increasing the return rate, and starting of the process again. With pressures from other expanding farmers and increasing input prices, farmers found they had to expand simply to maintain their income status.
The technological revolution in the last 30 years has included new petroleum-derived products. Fertilizer use has shown a 500 percent increase in that time. Herbicides and pesticides have made possible continuous one-crop farming and encouraged displacement of such proven practices as crop rotation, use of legumes and organic fertilizer.
In the mid 1960's some agricultural "experts" were depreciating the use of manure and tilling farmers. "It doesn't even pay for hauling it to the field." Higher fertilizer prices have changed that tune and organic farming and standard conservation practices are regaining rightful respectability.
Nebraska's vast expansion of pump irrigation to more than 7 million acres and widespread use of center pivot irrigation systems has been generally dependent on moderately priced energy costs. Now the emphasis is on reducing pumping costs and many farmers are finding that by improved management they can cut their water use as much as 50 percent without loss of yield.

Low cost energy has encouraged some developers to install wells and put poor quality land to intensive crop production, lowering water tables and threatening aquifers and streamflows in watershed areas. Perhaps the costs of energy and fertilizers alone will halt such speculative and destructive practices.
If and when fuel shortages develop, U.S. agriculture must and will get its share because those who allocate available supplies will recognize that people would rather eat than drive. But just as Americans must turn to small cars and one-car families and find ways and means of reducing their gas and electric bills, so farmers will find that they will no longer be able to farm in some of the ways to which they have become accustomed. Conservation and preservation of natural resources has always been good business but energy costs are going to make it more so.

Unicameral Review

SENATOR ELROY M. HEFNER
District No. 19
The Revenue Committee, of which I am a member, held several hearings on amendments to certain tax bills this past week. These bills were heard earlier by our committee and not advanced to general file. It is unusual to hold hearings on only amendments to a bill, but our committee felt that the amendments to these bills changed the concept of the entire bill.
One of the bills, LB 487, would shift the burden of property taxes to sales and income taxes. It would create a $280 million fund to replace the current funding from the state to counties and other local government entities. The introducer said the plan, if enacted, would mean increases in the sales and income tax rates as follows: one-half percent in sales tax, three percent in personal income tax, and one and one-half percent in corporate tax.

The bill requires that all real property be valued at 100 percent and sets a seven percent spending limitation on local government that is authorized to levy a tax. Cities would not be able to levy additional sales tax. Of the $280 million fund, 50 percent would go to schools, 21 percent would go to counties, 16.5 percent to villages and cities and 12 1/2 percent to cities that now levy an additional sales tax.

LB 285 was introduced by the Revenue Committee to correct some problems that have surfaced since the passage of LB 1 (lid bill) in last year's special session. Another hearing was held recently on more amendments to LB 285. Our committee feels that the lid is now law and we must be careful that we do not adopt amendments that would weaken it, but rather strengthen it.
Currently with the lid applying to only the property tax portion of the budget, total budgets of some local governments are limited to lower increases. Proponents said that in certain cases they could only increase it by 3.8 percent. These proposed amendments would cover total budget or at least the state and local receipts portion of it.
Another hearing was also held on the amendments to LB 144. This bill originally removed sales tax on home utilities. The amendments would keep 1 1/2 percent on home utilities and add the 1 1/2 percent to agriculture and business.
The committee has not taken any action on the proposed amendments or the bills as of this date.

April 14, 1949: When Emil Hogelen was plowing a garden plot for Mr. and Mrs. Emil Swanson, Tuesday, he unearthed a hill of last year's potatoes. The potatoes were of good size and do not appear to have been frozen. An attempt was made to break into the Hofeldt tavern early last Thursday morning. A screen was prised loose from one of the back windows. The intruders were frightened away by the H.W. Kugler family, who were aroused by noise around the building near their apartment. E.C. Iverson, state fire marshal, conducted a routine inspection of several buildings in Wayne last Friday. Among those mentioned as "hazardous" were the old elevator building on the east side of Main Street and the old Boyd hotel building. The elevator however is in the process of being torn down.

Early fire fighters of Omaha

Fire fighting in Nebraska towns and cities before 1900 was exciting but risky. Primitive fire fighting equipment and the lack of an adequate water supply often hampered the efforts of early firemen, most of whom were volunteers and often endangered their lives. But the profession had a magnetic appeal, which encouraged pride in the skills necessary to be a successful fireman. The Feb. 25, 1906, Omaha Bee, on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society, contains an account of some early Omaha fire fighters.
"The early volunteer fire department was known as the Pioneer Hook and Ladder Company No. 1. Along in 1860, when the little colony of people making up the village (of Omaha) was agitating (for) the establishment of a fire department. Ben Stickle, James W. Vanstrand and W. J. Kennedy constituted a committee to circulate an agreement, the signers of which pledged themselves to support the proposed volunteer fire department. In a few hours the committee secured thirty-three signers. On the second of May, 1860, Mr. Stickle called a meeting at the office of J. S. McCormick, on Farnam street where the Postal Telegraph office is now located. The company was organized two days later under an explicit charter from the legislature, which empowered the company to own $2,000 worth of apparatus. The certificate of incorporation was signed by the late J. Sterling Morton, then territorial governor...

streets. Not long after that fire the city council was induced to build cisterns with capacity of 1,000 gallons each, at various intersections.
"In 1866 the citizens began to feel the need of more fire protection, so A. J. Simpson was delegated to go to Davenport, Ia., where he bought a hand fire engine, known as the 'Fire King.' The engine was received by steamboat and was welcomed with much acclaim. 'Fire King' was placed in the fire house on Twelfth street, between Farnam and Douglas streets. During 1867 another steamer was secured to replace the first steam engine, old 'Fire King.' The second steamer was (also) called the 'Fire King' and it was placed in a house on Tenth street between Farnam and Douglas streets. In 1870 the third steamer, called 'Nebraska,' was bought and located at 20th and Izard streets. In 1870 the apparatus consisted of two steamers, one hand engine and one hook and ladder truck....
"For a long time all the fire apparatus was moved about by the firemen, except on days when the roads were muddy or other special occasions, when any passing team could be pressed into service and no questions asked. The firemen had police authority and occasionally pressed bystanders into the service, although the rule was there were many willing hands about whenever a fire was on."
The article also explained the steps necessary to become a fireman in early Omaha:

"To get on the membership roll required passing an examination, not so severe in itself, but sufficiently exacting to lend dignity to the organization. When the city could afford to pay some of the firemen, the engineers and stokers received an honorarium and lived in quarters over the (fire) houses. The paid hands devised an initiation which consisted of taping a heavy iron wheel up a flight of steps and to the center of a room. If that feat was performed without stops on the way, the applicant was recorded for strength. The next test was climbing a

Top Spellers

Wayne
Dear Editor:
The April 2, 1979 edition of The Wayne Herald had a very nice picture on the front page of the five top spellers of Wayne County. My sincere congratulations are given to these young people.
I am very sorry, however, that no recognition was given to the teachers who surely helped the young people achieve these honors.
Personally, I wish to congratulate Morris Jacobsen, Laurel, who had three students place first, second, and third in District 51. Mrs. Virginia Koli, Wayne, in District 57, and Mrs. Twila Maxon, Laurel, in District 76.
May both students and teachers continue the excellent work that is being done. — Blanche Collins.

Agriculture Consumes Minor Portion of Energy

accomplished with only modest increases and possibly decreases in fossil fuel energy. Utilization of non-traditional energy sources to replace agricultural dependence on fossil fuels has not become widespread because of economics. In addition, most non-traditional energy sources such as wind or solar power are primarily restricted to stationary power units. Although wind and solar energy collection methods are becoming more efficient, costs for site to produce electricity are still prohibitively high. Also, wind and solar energy collection units are ineffective on calm and cloudy days. Better, inexpensive storage units are needed to make these systems viable alternatives to current energy demands.

require all of the nation's unemployed plus another 18 million that are employed outside of agricultural production. Another idea calls for a return to labor intensive agriculture using human labor to plant and harvest crops. A human can produce approximately one tenth of a horsepower continuously. This is equivalent to the power required to light a 75-watt lightbulb. With current electricity costs, a 75-watt lightbulb can be lighted 10 hours for three cents. The equivalent labor cost for a man to generate this electricity manually would be approximately $30.

Only three percent of the nation's energy is used in production agriculture while transportation and other industries consume over 70 percent of the total. However, it is imperative that energy for agricultural production be available when needed to ensure adequate production levels.

Even though agricultural production uses only three percent of the energy, the returns are substantial. In 1976, the United States imported $34 billion of crude oil while exporting $27 billion of agricultural products. In a sense, agriculture actually paid for two-thirds of the nation's energy imports while using only a fraction of the total energy consumption.

The escalating costs for crude oil and the continuing increase in world population are placing a greater demand on efficient energy utilization in agriculture. To maintain the current dietary levels for the world population, we must produce five percent more agricultural products per year compounded annually. This increase in production must be

The earth's surface is constantly gaining weight because of a steady dustfall of small meteoritic particles.

Wind and solar energy to power irrigation systems, dry crops or provide electricity for the farmstead are being investigated by many private and public research units including the IANR.

Critics of current energy utilization in agriculture often suggest that we should return to the "good ol' days" of horses and humans to produce agricultural products. If we were to produce 1974 levels with 1918 technology, it would require 61 million horses. With our current numbers of horses and mules, it would take 20 years to develop this herd population. These 61 million horses would eat the production from 180 million acres of nearly one-half of the U.S. cropland.

Consequently, we cannot return to the "good ol' days." The current agricultural labor force is approximately four million. If we returned to horse-powered agriculture, the agricultural labor force would need to be over 26 million. A labor requirement of this magnitude would

What happens to the dead animals and the surviving live stock in an accidental poisoning episode to ensure that chemical residues haven't entered the animal human food chain?

This question has been asked by concerned persons several times recently, according to Dr. Alex Hogg, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension veterinarian.

Meat Guarded From Poison

The answer is that several government agencies — including the Nebraska Department of Environmental Control, the Federal Food and Drug Administration and the Food Safety and Inspection Service, USDA — be come involved, Dr. Hogg said.

"Dead animals are properly disposed of by burying or burning. Live animals are quarantined, usually for several months, until all danger of pesticide residues is gone," Dr. Hogg emphasized.

Addressing himself to consumers, the animal health specialist said "you can see there is little danger, with current surveillance procedures designed to ensure a safe and wholesome meat supply."

TREE PLANTING SEASON

The spring tree planting season is rapidly approaching. This year more than three million Clark-McNary tree and shrub seedling will be distributed to approximately 3,000 Nebraska landowners. Several species of trees and shrubs are still available, but the selection is limited. Eastern Redcedar, Jack Pine, and Silver Maple still can be ordered. Landowners who plan to plant (or replace losses) in their windbreak, woodlot, wildlife, or similar planting should order trees immediately. Clarke-McNary tree and shrub seedlings are sold for $14.75 per hundred plus $2.50 for mailing. Orders should be placed at the Extension or SCS Offices.

ROOTS IN SEWER LINES

Difficulty with roots entering sewer lines can be anticipated if trees or shrubs are near the sewage disposal system. Copper sulfate crystals flushed down the toilet bowl will destroy roots that the solution comes in contact with, but will not prevent new roots from entering. Some time must elapse before the roots are killed and broken off.

Recommended dosage rates are two pounds per 300 gallon tank capacity. No more than two applications per year are recommended. The application of the chemical should be done at time, such as late in the evening, when the maximum contact time can be obtained before further dilution occurs.

Copper sulfate will corrode chrome, iron, and brass, hence it should not be allowed to come in contact with these metals. Used in the recommended dosage, copper sulfate will not interfere with operation of the septic tank. Roots in sewer line also can be removed mechanically, and most communities have this service available commercially. However, this method does not prevent further root growth problems unless the trees or shrubs are removed.

BROWNED EVERGREENS

Don't be in a hurry to cut down evergreens that browned this past winter — give them until the last part of May to see if they'll come out of it.

Those browned evergreens should recover to some degree. Even though the foliage may be brown, the buds may be alive. The buds are the parts of the tree that will put out this year's new growth and green foliage. In five years or less, the bad effects will not be readily noticeable.

The browning is due to drying of needles caused by drying winds during winter when the ground is frozen and trees can't absorb moisture. In severe cases, the buds could be killed and no recovery will be made. If the tree hasn't budded out or if new growth isn't noticed by late May, removal and replanting may be necessary. Needle browning may also be a disease or insect problem. If disease or insect damage is suspected, bring a sample into the Extension Office.

Construction Planning Saves Money

Some energy-conserving construction features can do just as good a job as conventional systems while saving fuel and money, an extension agricultural engineer told participants in the Dairy Fieldmen's Conference in Lincoln.

Gerald Bodman, extension livestock systems specialist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said that good design is essential in construction an energy-efficient dairy building. Dairymen need to remember some basic principles when planning and erecting an energy-conserving building, he noted.

By keeping in mind the fact that warm air rises, for example, a dairy building can be ventilated by non-mechanical means, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialist pointed out. "Natural" ventilation, while energy-efficient, also is healthier for the cattle, he said.

Allowing the warm air to exit through the peak of the roof, rather than using fans to force air out, can ventilate just as well as a well-designed mechanical system, Bodman explained. "Non-mechanical ventilation can improve cattle performance and reduce herd health problems and dependence on drugs," he said. "It also can reduce heat stress in the summer and increase milk production."

Variations on another standard in dairy buildings, concrete block construction, also offer increased utility and energy conservation, Bodman said. Concrete blocks traditionally have been used in building construction because of their durability and low maintenance. But modifications of concrete block construction can be just as durable and conserve energy as well, he said. Placing foam insulation between the blocks and the interior finished surface will lessen the amount of heat lost or gained through the walls, yet remain durable and easy to clean, he said. An alternative is to sandwich a fiberglass or other type of insulation between an outer frame construction and an interior fiberglass-reinforced plastic or other durable easily-cleaned surface.

Energy bills also can be cut by using solar energy and heat exchangers, the specialist added. Heat exchangers can use the heat given off by cooling milk to heat water which, in turn, can be used to wash equipment or to heat the building's interior.

Time To Prevent Garden Diseases

Home gardeners should take advantage of early spring warmth to nip foliage diseases in the bud, according to John Watkins, extension plant pathologist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Watkins said that applying lime sulfur before buds on trees and shrubs begin to swell will help protect these plants from later damage.

"A dormant spray of lime sulfur helps to prevent foliage diseases from occurring during the growing season by killing spores that over-winter on buds, twigs and bark," the University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialist said. "In addition, it provides a protective covering for the buds before they open in the spring."

This method of dormant spray is the only way to control peach leaf curl and also is helpful in controlling brown rot in peach trees, Watkins said. A single application before the buds begin to swell will do the job.

The same single application in early spring will control leaf blight, boxwood canker, powdery mildew, anthracnose and Nectaria canker in shade trees, shrubs and hedges, he said. It also will control powdery mildew in roses.

"For grapes and raspberries, use a delayed dormant spray," Watkins added. "Spray grapes when new shoots are four to six inches long to control powdery mildew and anthracnose."

When using the delayed dormant spray on raspberries, apply before the new canes reach eight inches in length to prevent anthracnose. Follow the initial application with two additional cover sprays using Zineb, he said, beginning when the canes are eight inches long and repeated in 10 days.

NPPD says... Play it SAFE

Here's what to remember about KITES and MODEL AIRPLANES

Electricity is both powerful and beneficial. Used properly, electricity can bring about a more comfortable, better world. Treated foolishly, it can bring disaster. NPPD wants to help keep you safe when you're flying kites or model airplanes.

Stick to the wide open spaces
Fly your kite or plane in areas where there are no power lines, trees or buildings.

Never climb a pole or tree to try and free your kite or plane. If it gets caught in a power line and doesn't come down by itself, call NPPD.

Be a weather watcher
Remember, flying kites or planes in an open field during stormy weather makes you a perfect target for a lightning bolt. Sunny days are safer.

Electricity moves best through metal Never have metal on your kite, string or tail.
