Advanced Drivers Program Approved by Wayne Board

A summer program to make better drivers out of teenagers was given formal approval by the Wayne Carroll board of education at its regular meeting Monday night. Ron Carnes will be the instructor for the course which will be limited to 12 students. It will be held from June 4 to June 19 from 9:15 to 10:45 a.m.

The advanced driving course, which has been developed by the Nebraska Department of Education and the Nebraska Safety Center, requires drivers education as a requisite and will afford two credit hours.

The program will put emphasis on alcohol and its relationship to the driver, personality factors related to the driver and skill development in emergency situations. The emergency situations will include off road recovery, evasives, braking and braking failure, acceleration and steering experiences.

There will be six hours of classroom work and approximately one and one-half hours of behind-the-wheel experience. The driving will take place in the high school or college parking lots.

The goals of the program is to reduce the potential for collisions and injuries through an educational process, assist drivers in a decision-making process where value judgments are necessary in order to reduce the potential for injuries, expose drivers to alternative courses of action in order to avoid collisions and to provide additional training and skill development for drivers.

Carnes received special instruction to be qualified to teach the course

Regarding NPPD Transmission Line

Condemnation Appraisers at Work

Condemnation proceedings initiated by Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) against some 46 Wayne county land owners, got underway last week in county court.

Exercising its right of eminent domain, NPPD is seeking easements for a 345,000 volt transmission line which will run across Wayne county.

The line will run from Hoskins east to a sub-station near Raun. Construction is underway on the east end of the $3,438,000 project.

The condemnation petitions were filed by NPPD when the utility was unable to come to an agreement with landowners in Wayne county regarding easements for the line.

Three appraisers, appointed by the county court, heard Thursday from representatives of five landowners as well as officials of the district. They also made on-site visits.

The appraisers will assess any damage which might be caused by the transmission line to the property and to the environment and then attempt to come up with a fair and equitable figure.

Officials said the landowners petitioned have been offered an easement settlement by NPPD. They said the appraisers may stick with the NPPD offer or they may offer an alternative figure. Either party has the right to appeal the decision to district court.

The five parcels of land in question Thursday are owned by Victor O. Knesche and others, Adolph and Irene M. Meyers, LeRoy L. and Ione R. Rubeck, Alvin and Hilda Bergstadt and Adeline D. Timperley and others.

In remarks made Thursday, money and the environment were both in question by landowners. Some said they were not satisfied with the offer of NPPD and others said the line would interfere with their lifestyle. Victor Knesche and his son, who have a Grade A dairy operation, were apprehensive about what the line might do to their dairy business.

They referred to an NPPD transmission line which was constructed across their land in 1973 and said "stray voltage" from the line caused uneasiness to the cows in their herd, many of which developed mastitis.

Knesche said because of the "stray voltage" the steel buildings and stalls were receiving a small electric charge, making cows uneasy when they were in the building being milked.

He said he grounded the building and the stalls. He said the cows still stand uneasy but the mastitis has disappeared.

An attorney representing one or more of the land owners, pointed out that while the transmission line is rated at 345,000 volts, "surges" could cause the voltage to be doubled.

LeRoy Rubeck was disturbed about the line to be constructed as well as the one constructed in 1973 and which also runs across his land.

"The line (1973) cut out my near picture-perfect television signal from Omaha stations," he stated. "I didn't raise too much fuss because I could still receive stations from Sioux City. But now the new line will cut out the Sioux City stations," Rubeck explained.

Officials of NPPD said they would do everything possible to eliminate interference but conceded the line would interfere with citizen band radio signals, business band radio, AM radio and other communication devices in close proximity to the line.

Rubeck also said his land was not restored to its original condition following construction of the 1973 line.

The attorney for some of the landowners (not Rubeck) asked the appraisal board to stipulate that the damage amount be made after the line was constructed.

NPPD officials said the line will take a little more than a year to construct and that it conceivable go through two growing seasons which would be taken into consideration in the final settlement.

Other appraisal proceedings have been set for April 19 and 26 and May 3 and 17.

A ROUNDTABLE DISCUSSION by landowners, attorneys and officials of Nebraska Public Power District was held Thursday with a board of appraisers appointed for condemnation proceeding initiated by the power district to gain easements for 345,000 volt transmission line which will be constructed across Wayne county.

Festival Aimed At Children

The necessity of a child's understanding and appreciation of the arts will be emphasized during the Wayne Regional Arts Council's Spring Festival, slated later this month at the city auditorium in Wayne.

Jane O'Leary, chairman, said the Festival will be held Saturday, April 28, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Among activities during the day will be performances and art displays by children in the Wayne region.

Mrs. O'Leary said communities across the country have been supporting activities for children during 1979, which has been designated the International Year of the Child by the United Nations.

The Arts Council in Wayne echoes President Carter's hopes that "all the world focuses its attention upon children, all of us could become much more knowledgeable about their needs, much more willing to assume responsibility for correcting and meeting those needs, and we might, in a positive way, assess this unique opportunity to broaden the horizons of growth, enjoyment, and productivity of our children's lives, both now and in the future."

RICHARD L. LESHNER, PRESIDENT
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF THE UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON — During the two days following the signing of the Egyptian-Israeli peace accords, the United States Chamber of Commerce, assisted by the U.S. section of the American-Egyptian and American-Israeli Business Councils (formed and operated by the National Chamber), hosted a dinner in Washington for President Sadat and a luncheon for Prime Minister Begin.

Both were historical moments of great honor for the American business community. And they were much more. I listened to these two leaders with profound respect, knowing that history was taking an important turn because of their personal initiatives and courage.

And I was struck by the wisdom and conviction in their words when they each spoke of the need for a dynamic, free and prosperous economy as the necessary foundation for genuine human progress.

How ironic it seemed! At the very time our own leaders were blasting profits here at home (when, actually, profits per unit of output last year declined by 1.3 percent, while federal spending was up nine percent and federal taxes were up 20 percent), here were two of the world's leaders pleading for American industry to create the same economic miracle in their countries as it has done in our own.

Sadat emphasized this point, noting that his country does not lack land, water or human hands. What Egypt needs most, he stressed, is investment, technology and skilled management. And then, in inviting American industry to become his partner in progress, he said to us with eloquence and emotion: "I want you to be pioneers like your great grandfathers who opened the west and built in 200 years the most powerful country... the richest country... the United States of America."

The following day in New York, Prime Minister Begin used words that could have actually been taken from the mission of the Chamber. That mission reads: "To advance human progress through an economic, political and cultural system based on individual freedom, incentive, initiative, opportunity and responsibility."

Listen to Prime Minister Begin's own words: "Now in Israel, we have a system of free private initiative... You will be free to invest in any field you want. The government officials will help you, not only with information, but in any other field so that your investment is preparatory and profitable. There is no shame in it! This is the secret of human progress for all walks of life, because those profits make it possible to reinvest and again to develop the economy. This is the wisdom of the free private initiative system."

Others who have not always known a society conceived in liberty sometimes understand it... and hunger for it... with greater clarity and conviction than people who have never known anything else. A few months ago, the popular CBS newsmagazine program, "60 Minutes," interviewed a writer named Ted Morgan. Morgan had grown up in France in an aristocratic family, but he later moved to the United States and became an American citizen when he could no longer resist the opportunities on these shores.

In his book, "On Becoming American," he describes what he finds unique about this country. And during the "60 Minutes" interview, CBS correspondent Mike Wallace asked him: "Ted, you write, 'this country is a success in the same way a Broadway show is a success.'"

Morgan replied, "That's right, because everybody is standing in line waiting to get in. It's a box office smash."

Just why is it that so many people are still standing in line trying to become American citizens? Why do foreign leaders like Sadat and Begin look to the United States as a country they admire and want to emulate?

Is it not because in this republic, which only a fraction of the world's population and with no monopoly on natural resources, we have created more new wealth than all of the people in the world, and distribute that wealth more widely than in any other country in history?

And so why is it that the secret ingredient of that success — the possibility of rewards for those most willing to work, save and invest continues to be attacked by so many in government who are reaping the benefits of other people's risks?

The American experiment in freedom remains the most inspiring, exciting, progressive, and indeed, the most revolutionary idea in the world today. But what enduring wisdom rendered such a sweet success, the folly of ignorance could just as easily destroy.

BarneStorming

With Chuck Barnes

Our moonshiner friends down south may be the salvation of the energy crisis.

A midwestern farmer has been operating his farm equipment and vehicles with fuel generated through a government-approved still. He uses solar power to make the thing work and the left overs can be used to feed livestock.

If the idea catches on and goes public, traffic officials may have to write a new law for "vehicles operating under the influence of alcohol."

So much for the mesh. We are continuing our efforts to condition ourself to last through a set of tennis. Our main thrust has been through jogging. We have learned jogging is easier to read about than doing.

There are an estimated ten million joggers puffing their way to a better way of life (it says). That is in the United States. This particular health form has gone continental.

England, France, Scandinavia, Holland, Germany and yes even the People's Republic of China whose blue Mao jackets and black sneakers contrast sharply with the "Big Red" of Nebraska, are taking to the parks and paths.

Some health care recommendations include eating three balanced meals a day with special emphasis on breakfast, exercise moderately two or three times a week, get plenty of sleep, don't smoke, keep up immunizations, maintain moderate weight, drink in moderation.

Two out of seven ain't bad.

Those who traveled during the Easter holiday found gasoline prices higher than last year and some of the station's closed.

We are somewhat disturbed by the price of gasoline. And we don't fake much solace in the American Petroleum Institute's figure manipulation that the gasoline bill takes a smaller chunk out of the American wage-earner's paycheck now than it did 22 years ago.

The Institute states that in 1955, a manufacturing worker had to work 2.3 hours to pay for a 15-gallon tank of regular gasoline. In 1977, it took him only 1.7 hours of work to fill the same 15 gallon tank.

And that, we state with a start and a splutter, is that!

YOU AND YOUR CAR

By the Automotive Information Council

Van pooling growing

Van pooling's popularity has mushroomed over the past few years and it's now due for another push because of the current petroleum situation, says the Automotive Information Council.

Van pool numbers have been doubling every year for the past five years, AIC added.

The practice is based on the old idea of car pooling, formed by several individuals to share the ride. The idea hit the "big time" in the past few years and it's no longer just station wagons full of Little Leaguers or Scouts. At least 150 companies in the United States have organized fleets of van pools to transport their employees to and from work. Employees pay a set monthly fee.

The U.S. Department of Energy estimates the average van pool makes a daily round trip of 50 miles and can save a minimum of 5,000 gallons of gasoline a year by keeping at least six cars off the road.

Van pools, besides saving fuel, have other benefits to both the sponsoring company and the employee.

They can be attractive financially for a sponsoring company. Federal legislation makes it possible for an employer to claim a 10 per cent investment tax credit on some van pool operations.

Benefits to employees include saving money on travel expenses by reducing fuel costs and reducing wear and tear on the family car. The employee also can benefit through savings on parking and reduced insurance premiums.

Besides saving the van-riders money, the van pool can have social benefits as well. Van pools provide companionship as a long commuter ride. Some groups of van poolers have grown so close they maintain their friendships after work. Several employees have reported meeting their spouses while participating in a van pool program. Other van-riders have formed softball teams and tennis tournaments to compete against other van pools.

While riders usually pay a monthly fare for the convenient door-to-door service, the driver rides for free and in many companies gets use of the vehicle on weekends and evenings. The driver is responsible for gasping up the van, keeping it clean and making sure it gets the proper maintenance.

Rising gas prices, possible fuel allocation and continuing government incentives to companies may make van pools even more popular in the years to come, says AIC.

Legislative Look

SENATOR JOHN ROBERT MURPHY
District No. 17
110 East 37th Street
South Sioux City, Nebraska 68776

How does the Legislature determine how much of your money will be spent each year in the operation of state government?

The first step requires that each of the 77 agencies submit specific requests for funding for the next fiscal year. This request is submitted to the Governor and to the Appropriations Committee of the Legislature separately.

The second step consists of the Governor and his staff preparing the state budget which is then submitted to the Legislature. The Appropriations Committee, consisting of nine members of the Legislature, proceeds independently to fashion its own budget recommendation after hearing testimony from each of the agencies which request funds.

The committee then compiles its report, showing the agency request, the Governor's recommendation and the committee's recommendation. This proposal is then discussed by the members of the Legislature in full floor debate and various amendments may be offered.

When the Legislature's final decision has been reached, it is returned to the Governor as an amendment to his proposal.

The Governor may then veto or reduce any item the Legislature has proposed. He then will return the bill to the Legislature which has the final option of overriding or altering the Governor's final changes. This then becomes the basis for appropriating monies to operate the state agencies.

If then becomes the duty of the Board of Equalization to determine what the sales and income tax rates must be in order to produce enough revenue to fund this budget.

The Board of Equalization consists of the Governor, the Director of the Department of Revenue, the State Treasurer, the State Auditor and the Secretary of State.

Their success depends on their ability to project any economic changes in the state's economy for the upcoming year.

As a protection factor, they are allowed to levy an additional 3 to 5 percent. Additionally, they contract with national consulting firms for assistance in making these estimates for the upcoming year.

The Chairman of the Appropriations committee arranged for a preview of the budget bill for those who were interested. We met Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 7:30 and the discussions lasted until 11:00 p.m.

A very abbreviated presentation of the budget consisted of 62 pages of data relating to the funding of the individual agencies. We were allowed to question and ask for further details on any of the agencies' budgets listed.

It is a long and tiring procedure, but gives you a far better concept of what is being discussed when we proceed to adopt the final budget. It also makes for some darned short nights.

Check-up for your car

Get a check-up for your car. GET '79 — Gas Economy Testing — is the theme for the American Lung Association of Nebraska's Clean Air Week celebration from April 29-May 6.

This year during Clean Air Week '79, Lung Associations all over the United States are concentrating on informing the public about ways they can make their cars operate more efficiently and pollute less. Chief offenders are lathpiles of gasoline-burning motor vehicles, especially private automobiles.

In Nebraska, the Lung Association, AAA Carmaker Motor Club and Arby's Roast Beef Restaurants are combining their efforts to promote gas economy testing across the state. Testing will take place in Omaha May 1, and in Lincoln May 4-6. Other cities all over the state will also be sites of testing throughout the spring and summer. Dates, times and locations will be announced at a later date.

By having regular maintenance checks on their cars, motorists can have more gas efficient vehicles and help fight to curb air pollution. To further their efforts, they can also support regulations limiting auto and industrial emissions; development of alternate sources on nonpolluting energy and more and better nonpolluting public transportation.

Unicameral review

SENATOR ELMROY M. HEFNER
District No. 19
Box 34
Coleridge, Nebraska 68727

Recently I spent several hours in Crofton visiting and discussing legislative concerns with people in the area. I also attended the farm and home show and was very impressed by the many interesting displays being viewed by a large crowd.

Last Friday night I met with area school board members and administrators in Laurel to discuss educational and tax bills before the Legislature. I am always happy to meet with any person or group on weekends during the session to discuss legislative issues.

The controversial drinking age bill, LB 221, will be debated before the full legislative body. The bill would raise the legal drinking age in Nebraska to 21 was pulled out of the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee by a 27-12 vote. The committee had voted four times on motions to either kill or advance LB 221, but spill 4.4 on each vote.

The bill had been held by the committee for 20 days following public hearing and so it took only 25 votes for the motion to pass. Had the committee voted to indefinitely postpone the bill, 30 votes would have been needed to bring it directly to the floor. Many senators argued that the drinking age question deserves full legislative debate. The introducer said that the measure is needed to stop the tragedies on our highways that result from young people drinking. He stated that last year alcohol was a factor in the highway deaths of 28 teens in the state compared to a comparable figure of 12 in 1977 when the legal age was 21, also that he could offer only statistics, not the dead, mangled bodies and wrecked cars the figures represent.

He argued too that when the age is returned to 21, there will be less social interaction between those of legal-drinking age and younger high school and junior high students. Consequently there will be a decrease in alcohol consumption by young people and a corresponding decrease in liquor-related problems. He stated that 144 organizations are supporting the bill.

Opponents said that raising the drinking age will not stop teenagers from drinking, and rather than drinking in controlled establishments, they will be forced to drink in cars and other dangerous circumstances. Also, the alcohol education and treatment hold the answer to the problem and that responsible and irresponsible drinkers can be found at any age.

Another opponent argued that problem drinking among teens can be helped only by their families and schools and will not be solved by raising the drinking age. In other remarks he said if a teenager is old enough to fight and defend his country, he should be old enough to purchase liquor.

The Speaker of the Legislature agreed to place the drinking age bill on the priority list to be debated in the near future.

WSC Trainer Swanson Chosen To U.S. Swim Staff

By DARWIN BEUCK
Wayne State SIA

With weather remaining cool in the Midwest, one Wayne State College faculty member will be heading west for the warmer climate. Regg Swanson, in his second year as head athletic trainer at WSC, has been chosen to serve on the training staff in the Amateur Athletic Union sanctioned U.S. West German swim meet April 21-22 at Long Beach State in California.

AAU director Ray Essick recently made the announcement of Swanson's selection. Essick became aware of Swanson through Ortolani, who is the head trainer for Pittsburg State University, Pittsburg, Kan. Ortolani also has served on training staffs for many U.S. international meets and with Olympic staffs in the past.

Swanson, too, has had Olympic team affiliations, serving on the staff for the Olympic trials held at Eugene, Oregon in 1976.

"It's really great working with such fine athletes," Swanson said.

After graduating from WSC in 1975 with a B.S. in physical education, Swanson moved on to the University of Oregon for graduate work in athletic training. While at Oregon he received his athletic training certification.

Friends and family ties drew Swanson back to WSC where, in addition to being head athletic trainer, he will receive his Masters degree in physical education.

Swanson's duties with the U.S. swim team were limited mainly to muscle injuries. "Swimmers generally don't get severe injuries, but are prone to pulled or strained muscles," Swanson said.

The U.S. swim team consists of 14 men, 14 women, two coaches, two trainers and one doctor.

"Someday I would like to work with the main Olympic games," Swanson said. "I am looking forward to working with the team and my future goal is to be on the staff for the 1984 Olympics."

Wayne State Wildcats Lose Doubleheader

The Wayne State baseball team yielded 18 runs in two games and likewise lost both ends of a doubleheader to Dana College 5-0 and 13-3 Friday afternoon in Wayne.

WSC pitcher Darrell Mueller pitched a good game in the opener, allowing seven hits and only one earned run while striking out eight Dana batters. Two Wayne errors allowed the other four Dana runs. Mike Meyer laced a double and Kevin Ashberg went two for three at the plate to lead the Wildcats in batting.

Dana's Mike Wyskowski hurt Wayne by earning three hits in four trips to the plate, including a double and a triple for three RBIs. Another strongpoint for the winners was Dan Prusha who went two for three. The five Dana runs came in the final three innings.

Dana broke a 3-3 tie after five innings in the second game by scoring 10 runs in the top of the sixth for a 13-3 win by the 10-run rule. Pitcher Al Voigt held Dana to three runs in the first five innings and it looked as though the Cats might break up the sweep by scoring in the late innings.

Then, Don Sainro led off the sixth inning with a home run to start the surge. He collected four hits in four at-bats and made three RBIs. Prusha and Steve Daeges were also key to the late scoring. Doug Carroll of Wayne pitched in relief of Voigt for the final two outs.

Wayne State's three runs came in the third inning when Brian Blatchford drove a three-run double with bases loaded to tie the game. The Wildcats' record falls to 7-14.

WSC Spring Football Slowed By Weather

Spring football practice for the Wayne State College Wildcats has been sporadic due to bad weather this spring.

"We've only been able to go outside three or four times, and so we don't know really how well we are progressing," coach Del Stoltenberg said. "We haven't had much chance for any serious hitting."

Bob Barry, a senior fullback from Battle Creek, heads the list of 32 returning lettermen from the sophomore and junior laden 1978 Wildcats. Barry set a new single season rushing record at Wayne State last season with 1181 yards, and needs only 198 yards to break the career rushing record set by Sam Singleton (1968-71) of 3003 yards.

"We have strong performers back in the key positions," Stoltenberg said. "In addition to Bob (Barry) we have veterans returning at quarterback and wide receiver."

Rick Lade is back at quarterback after setting a new WSC single season passing record of 1236 yards last season. Lade, a junior, needs 326 yards to set a new career passing record at WSC.

Another record setting performer, returning from 1978, is senior wide receiver Jeff Ingram from St. Louis City. Ingram caught 44 passes last season which broke the single season pass receiving record of 41 catches by Maurice Mintken in 1975.

"The weakest spot seems to be the defensive backfield," Stoltenberg said. "But we have a couple of new people that are looking good."

The Cats are preparing for their annual spring game, to be played April 28.

AAU Powerlift Here April 28

world class lifters. World class lifters will include Ed Nellor of Omaha, who is approaching the world deadlift record of 600 pounds (145 weight class). Roger Benjamin, Lincoln, Dean Belling, Scottsbluff and Dave Sochor, Donaphin.

Trophies will be awarded in 10 weight classes at the competition. The first four places in each class will receive trophies. Two outstanding lifter trophies, two team trophies and two outstanding teenage lifter trophies will also be awarded.

The event is open to the public.

According to Randy Maschal

CSIC STATISTICS SHOW

that Wayne State's Mike Meyer was the second leading batter in the conference while he was hitting .331. His average has dropped some since then so I don't know how he stands as of today. The leader was Ron Martinek of Washburn who was batting .545 earlier in the week. However, Martinek played in only four games while Meyer had played in 14 when the statistics were figured. Fere Villacausa of Emporia State ranks third at .460 and WSC's Bill Schwartz was fourth with a batting average of .410.

Meyer also stood sixth in the RBI category with 12 and second in home runs with three. Schwartz ranked sixth in doubles with four. Brian Blatchford of Wayne State was tied with Meyer with three home runs and WSC's Lenny Klaver had the fifth lowest earned run average for pitchers at 1.17.

PROBABLY

few people remember the name Craig Michehl. Craig was a basketball player for Wayne State College during the 1976-77 season and isn't as well remembered as some of his teammates because he didn't receive the playing time that the starters received.

The 23 year old was killed about two or three weeks ago near Fort Dodge, Ia. An article in the Fort Dodge Messenger reports that Craig and his wife Pamela were driving home in the fog on Iowa 413 when their car stalled. The couple left the car and began walking east toward the oncoming traffic, heading toward his parents nearby home.

A car, eastbound in the westbound lane struck Craig and grazed his wife at the same time. Michehl's body hit the windshield, was thrown against a traffic sign which broke and landed lifeless in the ditch. His wife suffered leg injuries in

Don't ask me how I did it because the two girls are hardly look alike. I guess I was in too much of a hurry. Anyway, my apologies to Kris and Lisa.

PATTI JOHNSON
WSC PLAYERS OF THE WEEK this week are Patti Johnson and Marilyn Strate of the women's softball team and Mark Westergaard of the baseball team.

Patti was selected offensively for her .350 batting average and for hitting three triples in three games at the Husker Tourney. She is a freshman. Marilyn, a junior, was selected defensively for her play at the shortstop position. She has made 44 plays and only four errors. She is from Hoskins.

Mark was selected for what coach Steve Anson described "a super game at Morningside". As a pitcher, he has allowed four earned runs in four games. He was not at the Second Guesstaker meeting to receive his award, so is not pictured at this time.

The Rev. and Mrs. Neil Peterson recently went on a trip to the Holy Land and other areas of the Middle East. The trip was a gift from the congregation of the Evangelical Covenant Church of Wakefield.

They met the tour group in Chicago and there boarded a jet bound for Zurich, Switzerland. From there they went to Cairo where they visited the pyramids, the Cairo Museum and the King Tut Exhibit.

In Jordan, they visited Magda, the traditional home of Ruth and Orpah, and then the Rock city of Petra. About seven days were spent in the Jerusalem area seeing all of the traditional sites, including the Mount of Olives, Gethsemane, the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, the Via Dolorosa, Gordon's Calvary and the Garden Tomb, Bethany, Bethlehem, the Dome of the Rock and the Walling Wall.

From there they traveled south to Hebron, Beersheba and visited Masada and many other places.

From Jerusalem, the tour went north to Tiberias on the Sea of Galilee and from there to Capernaum, Nazareth, and the Mount of Beatitudes, and then south to Caesarea, Haifa, Joppa and Tel Aviv. The remaining two days were spent seeing the ancient Roman ruins and visiting the Vatican, St. Peter's Basilica, the Sistine Chapel and other sites.

They returned to Sioux City on March 31.
