Helps Feed Grain Program Signup

Wet Weather Slows Oats Planting

April showers may bring May flowers but they aren't doing the oats planting any good. Don Spitzer, Wayne county extension agent, said the wet weather is delaying oats planting. "Ideally, oats should be planted as soon as possible after April 1," said Spitzer. He said the oats crop is the only one that is being hindered by the wet conditions. "There is still plenty of time to get ground work done for the corn and bean planting," he explained. The unpredictable weather conditions and increasingly hectic work schedules is forcing a growing number of corn and soybean farmers in the Wayne land area to have their herbicide custom applied by a professional applicator. According to a market research conducted for a local applicator by an agriculture products manufacturing company, there has been a seven percent increase in the total number of custom applied corn and soybean acres over the past two years. It was pointed out that custom applied soybean acreage has increased from 15 to 19 percent, representing a two-year rise of 27 percent. Based on current costs, a farmer's planting time is worth up to $400 an hour which accounts for many farmers turning to professional applicators to save time and save money. Research has established that more growers are choosing to custom apply because they understand that putting down chemicals is an applicator's specialty. It was further established that by utilizing the latest custom application methods and the most accurate equipment available, professional applicators generally can get the job done quickly and efficiently.

In another area, participation in the ten acre feed assistance program has reached about 21 percent in Wayne county, according to officials in the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office.

They said the sign up has been slowed because farmers have been taking advantage of good weather during the first part of last week to get some field work completed. However, they said the wet weather Thursday and Friday prompted an influx of farmers to sign up in the 1979 feed grain program.

Participating in the program makes a producer eligible for possible deficiency payments for corn, disaster payments if crops can't be replanted or are severely damaged, or are disaster, price supports loans and the three year grain reserve if the government opens it up to 1979 corn.

If a producer also takes another ten percent of his corn ground out of production, for example, he will receive a disaster diversion payment and also qualify for the benefits under the ten percent option.

The deadline for sign up in the program is April 30. The feed grain sign up was the priority item of a regular meeting of the Madison County ASCS committee which was attended by Carl Stratton, ASCS district director from Wayne. All those present seemed to be in agreement that favorable growing conditions during the past couple of years had been a factor in the slow sign up.

They said farmers could beat the program the last three years, but they voiced concern that 1979 might be a "bad year."

"We just hope there's participation in case we have a disaster," Stratton said. "Another record crop (this year) could bring another depressed market. Everyone will fertilize for a 150-bushel yield and hope that moisture conditions are favorable."

Speculating about what the prices will be this fall, they said the deficiency payments will be the selling factor of this year's program.

Deficiency payments will be the difference between the U.S. average farm price for corn through October, 1979, through February, 1980 and the $2.20 target price or 20 cents per bushel, whichever is smaller.

Transportation, namely the boxcar shortage, is also causing concern, the man said. With the surplus of grain in storage, they said the producers "were already in a bind" for the 1979 crop.

Vakoc Names Former Resident

Vakoc Construction company, Wayne, Friday announced that Gerald C. Schaffer, a former Wayne resident who now lives in Minneapolis, Minn., has been the firm's operations coordinator.

John Vakoc, vice president of Vakoc Construction, said Schaffer will fill a new position necessitated by the firm's growth and diversification into varied facets of the housing industry.

Schaffer, a 1959 graduate of Jamestown College, Jamestown, N.D., plans to assume his new duties about the second week of May. He will be joined by his wife, Judy, and their son and daughter, Bruce and Beth, following the close of school.

Schaffer lived in Wayne from 1968 to 1970 while serving as manager of the Standard Oil Farm and Home center which was purchased by the Terra Western corporation.

Survey Seeks Local In-Put

A survey to determine whether or not a Day Care center is needed in Wayne is being conducted by the welfare office.

According to the survey, the center is defined as a licensed facility serving about 20 children, providing a safe environment and adequate staffing with educational activities being a part of the care.

The center would be open those hours needed to cover most work schedules and would serve full and part-time clients at all income levels.

The survey is being conducted to obtain information for some interested groups in the community. The center is only in the "idea stage" and there are no definite plans at this time by anyone, according to spokesmen.

A form is included in today's Herald for persons interested in a day care center to fill out for informational purpose only.

Area Counties Receive Funds

Three counties in Wayneland received $54,982.32 in five percent gross revenue tax payments from the Nebraska Public Power district (NPPD).

The total distributed by NPPD amounted to more than $2 million.

In addition, some $4,110.39 was distributed to the three counties in lieu of tax payments.

Wayne county received $3,354.32 in gross revenue tax and $29.90 in second half in-lieu-of-tax.

Dixon county received $2,294.95 in gross revenue tax and $1,265.94 in lieu-of-tax payments.

Cedar county received $29,333.06 in gross revenue and $2,814.61 in lieu-of-tax payments. Money from the payment is distributed by county treasurers to the county, cities and villages and school districts according to a prescribed formula relating to mill levies.

Public Forum On Abortion, Cloning And More Wednesday

Humans are living in a scientific age when terms and practices such as cloning, genetic engineering, abortion, artificial insemination and other technologies are becoming increasingly common in their use. A conference designed to provide a public forum for discussing these matters is scheduled for Wednesday in Ramsey Theatre of the Fine Arts Building at Wayne State College.

The conference, beginning at 1 p.m., entitled "Science, Ethics and Social Change," is sponsored by the WSC Public Affairs Institute and funded in part by the Nebraska Committee for the Humanities.

Recent Supreme Court decisions have changed 200 years of American tradition in its judgments relating to abortion. Medical science can now determine the sex of an unborn child, or whether or not the child is deformed, shortly after a woman realizes she is pregnant. The first test tube babies are now realities. A panel of experts from the fields of medicine, law, science, philosophy and theology will discuss these topics in the conference, which is open free to the public.

Participating will be Dr. Daniel Callahan, founder and current director of the Hastings Center; Institute of Science, Ethics and Life Science, located in New York. He is author of over 200 medical-science articles and 16 books, including "The Tyranny of Survival," a Study of "Technology" and "Abortion: Law, Choice and Morality." Also participating will be Dr. Susan A. Salladay, professor of biomedical ethics and associate See FORUM, Page 12

Member of Wayne High Class of '69

Lad from "Down Under" Tells His Philosophy of Life

A ten-year reunion is being planned by a committee made up of members of the Wayne High class of 1969. The reunion will be held Saturday, July 14, at Ron's Steakhouse and Lounge, Carroll.

An invitation was sent to all classmates. One was received by Stephen A. DeKalb who is assistant to the Group General Manager of Sydney and Melbourne's Health Services Group, Toombago, Australia.

DeKalb has been in Australia since 1971. He was home for Christmas in 1974. He married a "lovely Australian blond" named Denise. They have an eight-month-old son, Lincoln Anthony.

Since DeKalb will be unable to attend the reunion, he sent the following which gives insight into his philosophy of life as it is lived in Australia.

lets, teach Lincoln to enjoy Japanese and French cuisine, and probably take him to the rock pools and build sand castles so Lincoln can smash them to smithereens.

We used to sleep late, eat mangoes and cream in bed and read the Sunday papers. Now we go to bed early, eat toast in the bathroom and can name at least five of the Muppets.

We stayed out late because we knew we could sleep in the next morning. Now we stay out late and insist it's the other's turn to get up and feed Linc.

We gave dinner parties and invited clever, sophisticated people who talked brilliantly and drank too much. Now we give barbecues and invite people who still drink too much but leave earlier.

I used to see parents screaming at their children in the stores and feel sorry for them. Now I feel sorry for the parents, too.

I wouldn't have believed it possible for two intelligent businessmen to spend an evening discussing the excretory habits of small children. Now it's still hard to believe — but it's true.

I used to look at kids like they were a part of the scenery. Now they look a lot like people.

Denise and I used to be almost perfect. We had the right ideas on the export of Australian uranium, drugs, violence on the telly and pornography. Now we both know we're only human.

We had an organized home with carefully arranged pinewood furniture, magazines and books on reincarnation, philosophy and earth sciences. We had a docile dog, loads of friends who like to

I always wanted a MGB. Now I cannot decide how a baby car seat is going to look in a candy-apple red sports coup.

CHUCK STILES
A. A. SOUTH FARMER & BREWER

BarneStorming

With Chuck Barnes

We had some business last week in our hometown in the State of Kansas and we haven't revised our opinion of the "Sun-flower State."

Try as we can, we can't cope with the weather of Kansas. And right out in front, we want to make it clear that it is the weather and climate of Kansas which we dislike. . . (not the people.)

The wheat seems to be coming along, the pastures are greening up and the "horse-type" oil pumps continue to help the energy crisis. It would seem every thing is hunky-dorey in the wheat state. But not so.

A strong southern wind kicked up clouds of dust in 80-plus degree temperatures. The wind silently moved some clouds from the south to the north and before we knew it, we were in a "tornado warning" situation.

We are most happy the funnel fizzled out, but then came the hail, rain and cold breezes. A drop of nearly 40 degrees. Typical. Our opinion was reinforced.

But to offset the weather were the people. It's difficult to find people who express such genuine care about others. They are far enough south where they tend to live life as it comes and don't comment too much about the weather. It's an easy-going atmosphere. The life style is that of concern and not complexity.

We renewed acquaintances and laughed along as our childhood "hell-raiser" was reviewed. After a long couple of hours we were able to change the topic, one of which concerned our present off-hours occupation. . . logging.

Eddie Miles, one of the stalwarts of our hometown community, is into solar heat and logging. He covers about six miles a day and when the weather (another instance of our dislike) is bad, he has an indoor treadmill to keep his logging blood flowing.

He looked great and said he felt the same. He attributes it all to logging. We felt he summed it up when he stated: "I'll probably live to be 95 years old and then be run over by a truck. . . while logging."

And that, he said as he plugged in his weather-warning device, is that!

Who's going to regulate the regulators?

RICHARD L. LESHER, PRESIDENT
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF THE UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON — Have you ever stopped to consider that runaway regulations threaten much more than your pocketbook — that they could also wipe out America's technological leadership, lower your standard of living and actually lead to a loss of life? Sound exaggerated? Believe me, it's not. It's all ready happening.

To get a clearer picture of just why this is true, consider how excessive regulations have restricted our ability to compete in international trade. Last year, the United States — the country we like to believe is the leader of the free world — experienced the lowest rate of productivity increase in the industrialized west, the second lowest rate of investment (through the second quarter); the lowest number of patents issued in any year since 1964; a currency whose value was rapidly declining, and a rate of inflation which was rapidly climbing. And all that, I might venture, was more than a coincidence.

What we've been witnessing is no less than an attack on the very essence of progress. As the magazine, Nation's Business, recently noted "If innovation had stopped 10 years ago, we'd be without small computers, home smoke detectors, widebody jets, and synthetic heart valves.

Even with those developments and others more esoteric, U.S. innovation during the past decade has lagged." Indeed it has.

The sad, but undeniable fact is this. Each year, we are transferring more and more of our national wealth and best intellectual talent from the pursuit of progress to the satisfaction of regulatory requirements. Money being spent on research and development today is lower in real dollars than it was 10 years ago. And now, this sustained smothering of invention is bearing a bitter fruit.

Listen to the words of Dr. Ivar Giaever, a Nobel laureate in physics, who says "The SST is French and British, the fast breeder reactor is French and Russian and the cassettes we listen to are Japanese. It's no wonder we're all worried."

Unfortunately, that's just the beginning. America's technological leadership has either been, already overtaken, or is being severely challenged in many other areas: in optics, electron microscopes and stainless steel by the Japanese, in man-made fibers by Korea and Taiwan, and in the development of nuclear energy by Sweden, France and West Germany.

And consider what's happening in two areas traditionally considered our strongest — broadcasting and chemical. Syndicated writer Allen Brownfield recently reported that while the sale of video tape recorders in the United States doubled and approached $1 billion in 1978. . . "Not one of the 12 machines sold in the U.S. was made in the U.S. even though the American broadcast industry pioneered the device. They are produced in Japan, under those trademarks RCA, GE, Zenith, Magnavox and Sylvania.

"In the chemical field, the three largest chemical companies in West Germany last year introduced more new products than the five largest chemical companies in the U.S. This is the first time that has happened since World War II."

Nation's Business recently featured a special report analyzing the dilemma in which the chemical industry finds itself.

On the one hand, we want the industry to develop new products like: chemical pesticides to control weeds and insects that destroy food crops; synthetic fibers specially designed to keep us warm; pharmaceuticals to improve and prolong life, and plastics for example, in auto grilles, dashboards and body parts to reduce weight and increase gasoline mileage.

On the other hand, the Congress has passed so many laws limiting chemical exposure in the environment, workplace and marketplace — the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act, the Clean Air Act, the Federal Water Pollution Control Act and the Toxic Substances Control Act — and the industry must spend so much money complying with regulations from the Environmental Protection Agency, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and the Consumer Product Safety Commission, that it finds its ability to compete in world markets has been severely eroded.

The same is true for pharmaceutical companies. Gaining FDA approval for a drug product that has already been exhaustively tested for safety is now so difficult, so costly, that many firms simply give up and establish manufacturing units abroad. That way they don't lose their foreign sales. But what about the health of the American citizen who might be gravely ill, but who does not have the money to travel overseas to be treated? Many doctors genuinely doubt that if submitted today, penicillin, digitalis, and insulin could be approved by the FDA and sold to the American public.

The problem of runaway regulations now affects our lives in almost every imaginable way. It is much too serious a problem to be left to the regulators alone. In fact, the real question now is, who is going to regulate the regulators?

Legislative look

SENATOR J.R. MURPHY

A recent editorial in the Lincoln Paper contained the following statement:

"Nebraskans don't know how lucky they are to have in their State Legislature, a person like Senator J.R. Murphy of South Sioux City. Murphy is not alone in paying attention to and asking questions about the fine print in so called controversial bills, a practice particularly difficult for him because of his greatly impaired vision. But, no one now on the scene is superior in digging out the inconsistencies, finding the doors, and pointing out potential long term consequences."

That is a handsome compliment, and I would not be human if I did not take a considerable amount of pride in it. However, let's give credit where credit is due. Without my aid, it would be totally impossible. Best not only makes my day begin, she makes the sun continue to shine in what might otherwise be a dreary life.

For example, her week begins Sunday afternoon when, of necessity, she chauffeurs me to Lincoln. Sunday night she does. Without my aid, it would be totally impossible. Best not only makes my day begin, she makes the sun continue to shine in what might otherwise be a dreary life.

Each day of the week she sits with me at my legislative desk reading from the amendments placed upon the desk by Senators who wish to amend the bill being considered. Each time she must read them into the context of the bill. As votes are taken and the red and green indicator lights appear on the board, I must inquire of her as to how the vote is going, and how those Senators who are knowledgeable about the particular issue are voting.

At about 4:30 p.m., she will leave and do her shopping and return to our room apartment and prepare dinner, just as she did at lunch. Then she reads the evening paper to me and then it is back to the office at about 7:30 p.m. to prepare for tomorrow's bills. As she reads, she raises questions and makes suggestions. By 9:30 or 10:00 p.m. we have both just about had it and it's back to the apartment.

Late Friday afternoon, we will close up shop in Lincoln and head for home and once more, she is my pilot. We will arrive sometime between 8 and 9 in the evening. All day Saturday she has to herself. She can do anything she wishes, like the laundry, clean house, haul me to various appointments, etc. Lucky girl! For the past several years, she had dedicated a great portion of her life to the Legislature.

If accolades are to be given for our work in the Legislature, then let them be hers along with all of my love.

The other side

Wayne
Dear Editor:
You've heard the story, in the April 19 Herald, from someone who has graduated. Now hear it from someone who has seen it, first hand.

I am a student at Wayne High and I have both of the teacher's in question for my classes.

You've heard one thing that convicted the vocal teacher. Now hear some good things that she has tried to get done, but for some reason it was spoiled by a certain person.

The vocal department has made a great deal of improvement. For the past three years the school has had to hire a new vocal teacher. Why? The answer is because of the students.

They finally find a good instructor and now they let some spoiled kid cause a major commotion. This is the first teacher that has made any progress with Wayne High's music department. She tried to get the vocal department to perform a great, difficult, musical, but the students didn't feel they were responsible for the musical, even though they wanted to perform it, so our yearly musical was dropped. Swing choir — the students wanted it because it made them feel important, but they felt they were too good to practice. The best thing she did was, for the first time in ten or twelve years the Girls Glee has gone to contest, and it's about time. It's her first year, she's made terrific progress and with a little encouragement from the students and parents they would have all been successful.

Why do "hot shots" try to spoil it for everyone else?

The "hot shot" is also a student at Wayne High. She thinks she's the best person to ever walk the face of the earth. Well I got news for her. She's no better than anyone else. "In the beginning, God created us all equal, men as well as women."

She thinks that because she is in sports, has a parent on the faculty, and is the most "beautiful" girl in school, she is top "dog."

The other teacher has a special relationship with the student, they are related. The teacher has taught in Wayne for some time. The first day I attended her class I noticed this choice of profanity. I never heard the other teacher swear to her students but to her self unlike this teacher, she swears at the class and in his lectures. Nobody pays any attention to the complaints about him because he is a male.

The threat was made and carried out. Why do they always make it hard on women? In other schools they don't have male teachers. I'd like to see a male Home Economics teacher.

I've heard another faculty member swear but you can't complain because there is nowhere to turn.

It is not fair to not renew the vocal teachers contract, but is it fair to renew the other teachers contract. This is some thing for the school board to think about.

The way that most teachers conduct their class is by discipline. The vocal instructor conducts her class by using psychology. Maybe that's why the students try to get away with "murder."

I wonder if the "big shots" are going to make a big deal out of this like they did the sex thing.

If this teacher doesn't get her contract renewed, I know a lot of people who are going to be upset, more than they are right now, not so much with her but with the head honchos on the faculty.

It's only fair that both teachers and the other administrator should all get fired.

Make something better of our local school, now and for the future. Be fair! Think of all the future children and what they will go through. Let's straighten out our school system. — A very concerned student (name withheld by request).

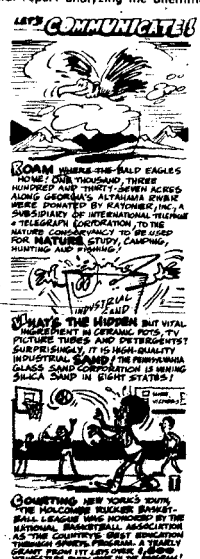

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786.

Blue Devils Take Conference Lead With 4 - 3 Win Over Trojans

In a battle for the lead in the newly formed Northeast Nebraska High School Baseball Conference, the Wayne Blue Devils remained undefeated as they handed the Wakefield Trojans their first loss of the season, 4-3 in Wayne.

They have all season by retiring the first three opposing batters. Wakefield threatened in the top of the second inning when Guy doubled, Scott Hallstrom sacrificed him to third and Barry Jones walked and stole second but no runs scored.

balls. He stole second base and Al Nissen drove him home on a solid single. Tim Pfeiffer was hit by a pitch and Mark Gansbom moved him to second with a sacrifice. Dave Schwartz brought home Nissen and Pfeiffer with a single, making the score 3-0 at the end of the inning.

Wakefield put a run on the scoreboard in the fourth inning as they put together a strong threat. Doug Starzl singled to open the inning, followed by a hit by Guy and a bunt single by Scott Hallstrom. With bases loaded, Barry Jones drew a walk to score the first Trojan run.

With no outs, Carroll got himself out of the jam by striking out Mark Starzl and forcing Jody Sharer to hit into a fielder's choice. Guy was forced out at home plate for the second out. Amer struckout ended the threat with the score 3-1.

The Trojans were rolling again on the fifth inning as Tom Preston reached first base on an error and Larry Soderberg singled. Doug Starzl grounded into a fielder's choice forcing Soderberg out at second. Starzl stole second base to get into scoring position just before Guy lined out for the second out.

Preston scored on a wild pitch to put Wakefield within one run. Hallstrom walked and stole second to double the threat. Then, Jones laced a single into left field, scoring Starzl. Hallstrom tried to score from second base, but a perfect throw from outfielder Jerry Gooden allowed pitcher Dan Mitchell to make the tag for the third out. Gooden made another fine defensive play as he caught a fly ball just as he tumbled over the left field snow fence.

With the game still tied at 3-3 in the bottom of the sixth, Ginn drew a walk. Gooden sacrificed him with a bunt and Al Nissen moved to first base when he was hit by a pitch. Pfeiffer drove a hard line shot to left field for the second out but Gansbom collected the game winning single to score Ginn for a 4-3 lead.

Carroll retired the next three Wakefield batters to collect his second win of the season in two decisions.

TAGGED OUT while attempting to steal third is Wayne's Tom Ginn as Wakefield's third baseman Doug Starzl takes the throw from catcher Todd Swigart in the Wayne-Wakefield game Wednesday.

SAFELY BACK to first base is Laurel's Shannon Hopkins as Barry Jones takes the pickoff throw from pitcher Doug Starzl, Wakefield won the conference game 8-1, Thursday. A story will be included in Thursday's edition of The Wayne Herald.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Husco

THE WEATHER HAS finally cleared up (it seems) and spring sports should no longer be damped by low temperatures. Rain did, however, cause postponement of the Wayne-Laurel baseball game scheduled Friday.

Wayne and Wakefield are doing well in baseball as predicted. The Blue Devils hold a 6-0 record while the Trojans are 5-1, losing a close game to Wayne. On Friday, both teams travel to Lincoln to play tough Lincoln East and Lincoln High.

Wayne is scheduled to play East at 1 p.m. while Wakefield is playing Lincoln High. Then, the two teams will exchange opponents for 3 p.m. games. Wayne also gets a shot at another southern team today, when the Blue Devils host Boys Town. When Wayne and Wakefield play their potential, they can play with anyone in the state.

WAYNE COACH MIKE MALLETTE has batting averages and pitching statistics figured for his team after six games. The Blue Devils are batting .290 as a team and have outscored opponents 48-5. Jerry Goeden is the team's leading batter with a .429 average. Despite an early season slump, Tom Ginn has come on for a .385 average-second best.

Dan Mitchell is hitting .364, Jeff Zeiss .357 and Al Nissen and Mark Ganseborn at .333. On the pitching charts, Dennis Carroll pitched 15 innings, allowing eight hits and three runs for a 2.0 record. Tim Pfeiffer was on the mound for 9 2-3 innings, allowing four hits and one run for a 3.0 record.

Jeff Zeiss pitched 4 1-3 innings, giving up one hit and no runs and Jerry Goeden pitched six innings, allowing one hit and one run for a 1.0 record.

THE NEBRASKA CORNHUSKERS will not be playing benefit basketball in Laurel after all. The benefit game originally scheduled for Saturday has been called off because of schedule conflicts of the football seniors.

JUST A REMINDER THAT Wakefield's athletic banquet is scheduled for tomorrow (Tuesday) night. UNL Coach John Melton is the scheduled speaker.
