Board Announces 6 WSC Promotions

Coupled with an announcement of preliminary plans for a combination greenhouse and botany laboratory at Wayne State College, the Nebraska State Colleges' Board of Trustees also approved the promotion of six WSC faculty members.

The board authorized the development of further specifications for the greenhouse structure, which is tentatively scheduled to be completed before the start of the 1979 fall semester.

The Nebraska State legislature, in their last session, approved the use of up to $40,000 for the structure. The building calls for a 28 x 40 foot equipment storage area.

The structure will be located between Anderson Hall and the Val Peterson Fine Arts center. It will be used as a plant-science instructional laboratory. Regarding the faculty promotions, the board announced that Gerry Conway, instructor in business, be raised to assistant professor; Art Dirks, instructor in humanities, be raised to assistant professor; Dr. C. Don Keck, associate professor in education, be raised to full professor; Dennis Linster, instructor in applied science, be raised to assistant professor; Doug Livermore, instructor in business, be raised to assistant professor and Marlene Mueller, instructor in fine arts, be raised to assistant professor.

The board accepted the resignation of John Reidelbach, a WSC technical services acquisitions librarian.

They awarded a contract of $9,571 to Gerald's Decorating, Wayne, for the caulking and painting of windows and frames in several WSC buildings.

Another board approval allows WSC to apply for a $3,000 grant through the Sperry Hutchinson foundation and House Neihardt. The grant would fund a WSC conference on general education and public values.

The board also approved a request by Wayne State which allows the college to accept nearly $3,000 in non-state funds.

Some $2,300 of the funds were used Wednesday for a conference on science, ethics and social change held at Wayne State. The grant was from the Nebraska Committee for the Humanities.

The board approval also allows WSC to accept a $444 grant from the Nebraska Arts Council to further a guest artist program which is designed to promote the existing educational art programs at WSC.

Another WSC request approved by the board allows Wayne State to apply for funds through the Nebraska Arts Council. The funds, if approved, will be used for an acrylic art workshop which would provide information on innovative acrylic paint techniques.

ASCS Set-Aside

Program has Slow-Down in Sign-Up

Wayne county farmers are, for the most part, ignoring the feed grain program sign-up which ends today (Monday).

County ASCS officials Saturday reported 295 farms enrolled in the program as of April 24. They said this figure represents 24 percent of all eligible farms in the county, which is about 5 percent higher than the national sign-up.

Officials said the figure also indicates intentions to set-aside and voluntarily divert 5,412 acres of cropland.

The program this year has not been accepted as in the past. Officials said farmers are hedging a bet on having another bumper crop this year and are staying out of the program.

Nebraska as a whole shows more acceptance with 39,275 of the 93,833 eligible farms enrolled in the 1979 program. This represents 42 percent of all eligible farms have signed intentions to participate. This would divert some 1,043,339 acres of cropland.

Some 681,379 acres will be set aside and diverted under the feed grain program state wide. This would include 523,266 acres from the corn acreage.

Farms enrolled have indicated planting intentions of 1,799,571 acres of wheat for harvest, 2,949,574 acres of corn and 987,187 acres of grain sorghum in Nebraska.

Nationally, there were 450,500 of the 2,387,929 eligible farms enrolled at the end of the first eight weeks of the 1979 program. This represents 18.9 percent.

Signed up farmers intend to set aside or otherwise divert 11,237,334 acres of cropland, according to Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Fitzgerald said farmers have indicated they intend to set-aside some 2,925,729 acres under the feed grain program.

Feed grain producers will divert an additional 1,532,657 acres of corn cropland and 338,518 acres of grain sorghum acreage. Under the special wheat acreage grazing and hay program, producers have signed up 388,484 acres.

On the national scale, feed grain acreage planted for harvest on participating farms totals 56,632,556 acres including 17,895,646 acres of corn.

The participating farms have 90,198,398 acres of the 280,150,640 total normal crop acreage (NCA) established on farms.

Participating in the set aside program is voluntary. Only participants are eligible for price support loans, disaster payments or deficiency (target price) payments, however, final figures will be available after farmers have "certified" their acreage later this year.

'Find Fuel Somehow,' Dealers State

Diesel Fuel Crunch Being Felt Locally

By CHUCK BARNES

A diesel fuel crunch is being felt in the Wayneland area by dealers, according to a spot survey made by The Wayne Herald.

While all dealers are in short supply at the present time and look for a substantial cut in their diesel allocation for the month of May, most of them said they would be able to "scrounge" enough diesel fuel to see Wayneland producers through the planting season.

One supplier described the situation as "not good" as he said he is going to cut to 75 percent of the diesel gallonage he received in May, 1978.

He said his pumps are just about dry at the present time and he won't be able to get any more until May. He added that he is 15 percent over his allocation for the month of April.

However, he said one way or the other he would have diesel fuel for his customers. "They may not like the price, but they will have fuel to get their crops in the ground."

Another dealer said it was "rip-and-fuck" as far as diesel fuel is concerned. He said he will not know what his May allocation will be, but expects it to be cut to 80 percent.

"I'm going to take care of my customers some way," he said, but added they are going to have to take care of themselves through good farming practices such as minimum tillage.

A dealer, who has been out of diesel fuel for two weeks, said he received a shipment Friday. He explained the pipeline in Norfolk has been out of fuel for the past two weeks accounting for the local shortage. However, he expects 100 percent allocation in May.

The same dealer said he was running "close" on unleaded gasoline which is causing some concern.

Referring to the pipeline, two of the dealers said the allocation doesn't mean much when the pipelines at Norfolk and South Sioux City are empty.

One dealer said he has been in the business all of his life and I learn less about it each day."

On the regional level, the diesel fuel situation has been described as "serious" and it would affect crop production.

One oil company official said the shortage of diesel fuel is "the most acute supply problem we've ever had."

Another Iowan has shed the stalks of the "Tall Corn Country" for the bright "Big Red Country."

Dan Field, a native Iowan, will be the new editor of the Herald, as announced on the front page of today's Herald. The search for an editor has been a long and tedious one, but we're happy that a fellow Iowan is going to occupy the editor's chair.

After an interview with the new editor, Publisher Al Cramer told us that he (Dan) knew us, "but that he was coming anyway."

We are trying something new with the front page of the Herald. The column widths have been widened to six columns rather than eight. The line length has been determined as the optimum the eye will most easily travel while reading. We hope you like it.

The stories about our tennis prowess are, we are sorry to report, true. In fact, we just learned that the term "love" was not one of affection on the tennis courts, but one of affliction. Our affliction is creeping old age.

We have been on this athletic kick for some weeks now and we have mentioned it from time-to-time. But we hasten to add that those 40 years and older should exercise with caution. If persons 40 years and older, or those of any age with a family history of heart disease, should contact their family physician for a check-up to determine just how much exercise they can tolerate.

Farmers in the area are taking to the fields. If and when the weather lets them. An anxious farmer near Carroll tried discing recently and stuck both the tractor and the disc. After three broken log chains and a broken cable, the rig was dragged out by a wrecker.

If you want to find that life's not worth living, visit a nursing home. We were handed a nursing home resident's "Bill of Rights" which we think is worthy of consideration. I am a resident in a nursing home. I am a human being, who through my contribution to society during my productive years, helped to mold a decent place in life for my generation and the generation that followed me.

I like to be treated with respect and dignity just as I have always tried to treat others. I am and have been "somebody" over the years to many people, such as:

My sweetheart, my wife, my husband, my mother, my father, my daughter, my son, my many friends.

If the waning years have been unkind to me, please don't blame me if: I don't see too well, I don't hear too well, I spill my food, I am incontinent, I need help often, I am cranky (though I don't want to be).

I could be your: Mother, father, grandmother, grand-father. Someday, you may be a "me." A little kindness, a soft word, some acknowledgement by you that I am still a person, not a "thing."

This is all I ask. Is it too much? And that, he said as he touched up his gray hairs, is that!

regional veterinary medical college at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Authorization of such a facility depends on approval by the Nebraska Legislature in this session of LB 357 which would authorize the University of Nebraska Board of Regents to enter into agreement with the governing regents bodies of North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana to construct and operate such a facility on the University of Nebraska's East Campus. LB 357 conditions the construction of such facilities on participation by at least 3 of the states on federal funding of at least 50 percent of the construction costs.

Total construction costs have been estimated at $28,302,610 and Nebraska's share is estimated at $4,202,000. The University of Nebraska's recently completed new facilities of its Animal Health Research Center and Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory with their superb programs lend themselves well to location of the proposed veterinary medical college at Lincoln.

Consideration of the need for a program of veterinary medical education in Nebraska has been a topic of discussion for over 25 years. It received renewed emphasis during the last 5 years as a result of a series of studies supported by the Old West Regional Commission.

The State of Nebraska through the UN Board of Regents presently contracts with Iowa State University, Kansas State University and the University of Minnesota for acceptance of Nebraska residents into their programs of veterinary medicine. Also, a reciprocity agreement exists with the University of Missouri for exchange of students in certain programs. During recent years, an average of about 25 Nebraska students per year have been accepted on either contractual arrangements or through the reciprocity agreement with these colleges. Nebraska currently has a total of 88 students paid for by contractual agreements and 10 others are at the University of Missouri under the reciprocity agreement. During the current year, the cost to the State has been around $904,000 and for the next fiscal year the cost is expected to be in excess of $900,000. Each student accepted to an existing institution pays resident tuition and fees, costs of books and instruments and living expenses.

Contractual agreements are of a relatively short-term nature. Contracts with Colorado State University and Oklahoma State University for receiving students for Nebraska were terminated by those institutions 3 years ago. Nebraska's $2.9 billion per year livestock industry and the major livestock industries in the other Old West states together would seem to justify establishment and operation of a regional medical college accepting their qualified students and turning out trained veterinarians to serve their needs. The general farm organization, the Nebraska Farm Bureau, the Veterinary College Task Force have been supporting the proposal and working for its enactment. The Veterinary College Task Force has launched a private campaign to raise $3 million to apply toward the capital construction costs.

Supporters of the regional veterinary college see the proposal as an opportunity to assure that there will be adequate numbers of practicing "large animal" veterinarians to serve the expanding livestock populations in the 5-state region where great distances and time factors are always problems in providing essential services, particularly in emergency situations. The opportunity exists now and should not be lost through inaction.

Legislative Look

By JOHN R. MURPHY For the last several years, the county officials have asked that the state pick up their share of the cost of medicare. Currently the county funds 20 percent, the state funds 23 percent and Federal Taxes account for the balance.

They protest that they are unable to truly control the program at county levels, in as much as it is readily appealed to the state. The state, of course, has the same problem in that any state denied is readily appealed to Kansas City, which is the regional office of the Federal Government for this program. It is the county's position that they cannot afford the ever increasing costs of this program.

I cannot answer the following questions.

Will this move in any way reduce the cost of the program? Obviously not.

Will this move create better service to the recipient? Obviously not.

Can this program be more efficiently and effectively administered by the state, rather than by the county? Obviously not.

The true fact of the matter is that if the state absorbs the cost of this program by raising your sales and income tax, the county will then use these funds for other county programs under their Statutory Mill Levee Lid of 14.28 mills. So in effect, all this will accomplish is to raise your taxes, those imposed by sales and income tax, and allow the county to continue to its current level of expenditure for other percent increase in salary. Most of the income debate has been on the University of Nebraska and capital construction portion of the budget. I can assure you that both of these budgets will be kept in the seven percent guideline.

One of the bills that was passed on final reading was LB 187. This bill eliminates the mill levy method of computing property taxes.

It would make the real estate tax system easier to understand because it eliminates the "assessed value" mill levy system applied to 35 percent of the property's actual value, changing to a dollars and cents system applied to each $100 of actual value.

The introducer says the change would not lower any taxes, but the present assessed value system confuses people and makes them think they are getting a tax break.

This bill contained 311 pages, amends 259 sections of state statutes, and required over two hours to read on final reading. The emergency clause was added to the bill; which means it would become law immediately upon being signed by the Governor.

Few like tax provision

SENATOR EDWARD ZORINSKY (D.-Neb.)

One issue, about which people have been writing rather steadily recently, is the so-called "carry-over basis" tax provision.

Few like it. It requires taxpayers to report more profit—and, therefore, pay higher taxes—on sales of inherited property.

One letter-writer called it "a tax on inflated value." Another said it amounts to double, even triple, taxation. Others claim it will hasten the demise of the family farm.

The provision is terribly complex. The federal government has long taxed profits from the sale of property. When you sell a house, for instance, you pay capital gains tax on the money you make (unless you re-sell it in a new house within 18 months). When you inherit your parents' house and sell it, you also pay tax.

But how much do you profit when you sell inherited property? This is, at heart, the "carry-over basis" issue. Until now, you profit has been the amount the house increased in value since you inherited it—almost nothing if the house is sold quickly.

The "carry-over" provision defines profit as the increase in value since December 31, 1976, or since your parents purchased it, whichever is less. The result is that you must report more profit and pay more taxes. The provision applies to property acquired from decedents dying after this year.

Congress cut federal estate taxes in 1976. The "carry-over basis" provision, enacted the same year, was to have made up for lost revenue, but its very complexity produced problems almost from the start.

Erwin Griswold, former dean of Harvard Law School and for six years until 1973 Solicitor General of the United States, told a Senate subcommittee that he has been collecting stamps since 1913, both as a hobby and for purposes of investment. It would be impossible at this late date, he said, to take each of the more than 10,000 stamps in his collection and determine when he bought it, how much he paid for it, and what its market value was on December 31, 1976. Yet, such calculations would be required by the "carry-over basis" provision.

"I have worked in the field of taxation most of my life," Griswold said, and "have argued many federal taxation cases for the government before the Supreme Court. I understand what Justice Holmes meant when he said 'Taxes are what I pay for civilization.' I have no objection to paying my share." But he could not help feeling that he has been "caught rather badly," he said, and that the effect of this provision "may be unfair."

Stamp collectors' problems are extreme, but they will be shared, to some extent, by all who inherit property for which in the words of the American Farm Bureau—"a decent failed to keep adequate records or leave such records where they can be found."

Artwork, securities—stock in closely-held corporations especially—real estate, and other properties are often difficult to value and trace. Each will cause headaches.

For this reason, and others, Congress delayed the effective date of the "carry-over basis" provision for three years, until 1980. A further effort will be made this year to repeal it—and properly so. Federal tax law must be made less, not more, complex. We must eliminate rules that increase paperwork far out of proportion to their worth.

Legislation setting aside the provision will definitely be brought up in the Senate. Its prospects have been helped tremendously by the liberal's promise not to filibuster it. I have no doubt it will pass by a comfortable margin.

But its probable fate in the House is less clear. Al Ullman (D.-Ore.), powerful chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, was the provision's principal proponent. While he is said to favor it less strongly now than he did earlier, there may not be enough votes in the House, both for repeal and to override a possible Presidential veto. We shall know, definitely, by fall.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Huscall

IT HAS REALLY BEEN a short track season. Just sit back and think, the season really opened about March 30. Here it is late April and the season is coming to a close. The same with golf and baseball to perhaps a lesser degree.

State tournaments are scheduled in girls' track on May 11 and 12 with the boys meet set for the following weekend. State golf will be May 18 while state baseball is scheduled for May 22.

Bad weather hampered many of the track meets and practices this year and hardly gave golfers a chance to get on the greens.

JOHN MELTON, University of Nebraska's assistant football coach delivered an interesting talk at the Wakefield Athletic Banquet Tuesday, while plugging the Big Red football program when he had the chance. He told the audience that Tom Osborne is the greatest coach in the country, as he said many people realized after the incident with Colorado University. Awards will be presented at an honors convocation, Monday, May 14.

WHEN AN NCAA baseball team wins 40 of its 47 first games of the season and is unrated, an injustice is taking place. That's the case with the Nebraska University baseball which was leading the Big Eight with a 12-2 conference record as of Saturday, and wasn't listed in the top 30.

Wayne's Carroll Earns Save Wildcats Boot Briar Cliff

Non-conference foe Briar Cliff of Sioux City was hardly a match for Wayne State Baseballers in the opener, but the townies came close in the nightcap as the hosts extended their longest winning streak to six straight in make-up action Thursday.

Wayne blanked The Cliff 11-0 in the opener stopped after five innings due to the 10-run rule. Darrell Mueller (1-6) pitched his first win of the season for the Wildcats, a two-hitter. He got plenty of support from Bob Hegge with a double and triple and three-run homers from both Jeff Williams and Kevin Mahlberg.

In the nightcap, Wayne had to rally from a one-run deficit in the fifth frame to edge Briar Cliff 5-4 behind Al Voigt, the winner (2-2), and Wayne's Doug Carroll, who came on in the sixth inning to gain the save.

Wayne scored three runs in the opening frame, but Briar

Cliff rattled for four in the top of the fifth before WSC picked up its final two runs in the bottom half of the same frame. Williams got a double as one of only four WSC hits.

Now 17-18, Wayne traveled west to Chadron for two games Saturday in District 11 action.

CLOSE PLAY at home plate as Wayne State's Jeff Williams slides in safely for a run. Teammate Bernie Minerik and the umpire both watch closely as Williams avoids the tag.

AIN'T LOAN MONEY CONFUSING?

FHA; FmHA; FLB; PCA; Savings & Loans; Purchase Money Mortgages; Private Loans; Bank Loans; Contract Sales????

CAN YOU TELL WHO WILL LOAN HOW MUCH ON A FARM OR HOME?

- DO YOU KNOW THAT —
- Banks are NOT a prime source for real estate loans.
 - Insurance companies make farm loans.
 - FHA applies to one type of loan and FmHA to another.
 - Some governmental loans have deferred funding or delayed closings.
 - One farm loan lender will also make home loans in certain towns.
 - That savings and loan associations still make the bulk of the home loans.
 - That rates and terms vary on all of the above loans.

REMARKS

The table is a summary of water level changes for wells monitored by the Lower Elkhorn NRD. Only parts of Burt, Cedar, Colfax, Dixon, Dodge, Knox, Platte, and Thurston Counties are included within the Lower Elkhorn NRD. In all but two of the thirteen counties, average water levels were lower in the Fall of 1978 than in the Fall of 1977. Platte County was the only county to show a rise in the average water level, while Stanton County showed no average water level change. Eighty-two percent of the wells monitored showed declines from the Fall of 1977 to the Fall of 1978, the average being a drop of .72 feet. Fifty-three percent of the wells had lower water levels in the Fall of 1978 than in the Fall of 1976, but the average water level change was a rise of .08 feet. Although seasonal declines occur, water levels throughout the district have generally been quite stable since 1976. It should be noted that hydrogeologic conditions may vary over short distances in much of northeast Nebraska. Wells within a county may vary substantially as to depth and conditions of water yielding materials. Therefore, individual wells within a county will not necessarily show the same groundwater level change as the average for that county. Well monitoring is done before and after each irrigation season to determine the effect of pumping on the water level and the rise of water levels throughout the winter months.

Besides using these figures to evaluate groundwater level changes, the Lower Elkhorn NRD has other long range goals in mind. The data, when collected for several years, will provide information to determine whether or not the groundwater supply is being depleted. Thus, if the demand on groundwater becomes too great, the NRD would be able to request establishment of a "Control Area." In this way, groundwater could be managed in the control area to insure that everyone gets the most good out of the available groundwater. The data would also help in determining the size of the area that may need management. In short, the well monitoring will help the Lower Elkhorn NRD spot groundwater problems before they become critical, and will enable it to establish an equitable management program to conserve one of our most valuable natural resources.

LOWER ELKHORN NATURAL RESOURCES DISTRICT

TOM LAMBERSON of the Nebraska Department of Water Resources inspecting the primary spillway of a flood control dam.

Inspections are done periodically on dams registered with the Department of Water Resources and initial inspections are done on new dams for conformance with construction specifications. Inspections are done on dams which have a permanent pool of at least ten acre-feet (enough water to cover 10 acres to a depth of one foot).

Through dam inspections, structural deficiencies and maintenance problems are investigated. Such problems as pipes cracking, severe seepage, rodent holes, deterioration of inlet works for overflow, deterioration of fill or any other modifications could pose a hazard.

Building Near A Stream?

Most construction in the flood plain of streams requires a permit from the State Department of Water Resources, unless the stream has been exempted by the County Board and the Department of Water Resources.

Types of construction that do not require these permits are:

1. Dams and permanent pumping facilities which are subject to other permit requirements. Exception: Structures which alter or retard the flow of water between the shore and an island or between two islands, requires a permit.
2. Fences with posts set only in earth. If posts are in concrete, such as chain link or cyclone fences, a permit is required. Other structures, which amount to at least 50% of its replacement value, may require a permit.

If you are planning any construction in a flood plain, contact the Department of Water Resources Office in Norfolk or Lincoln, to see if a contract is required.

Soil Stewardship Week — May 20-27, 1979

Soil Stewardship Week is a nationwide observance which emphasizes man's obligation to God as stewards of soil, water and other resources.

Clergymen of all faiths have assisted in making booklets, church bulletin covers and inserts available to churches throughout the nation for observance of Soil Stewardship Week.

This year's theme is "Interdependence", which emphasizes that preservation and wise management of our God given natural resources is up to us, but our very existence depends on these same natural resources.

Pat Lenihan, a Wayne State College junior conducted a Small Business Institute study of the Lil' Duffer Family Restaurant in Wayne, under the direction of Dr. W.S. Fagan, Wayne State College Professor.

As a result of Pat's study, the management staff of the Lil' Duffer was able to ascertain that during rush hours at the restaurant, customer service was greatly hampered by the existence of only one exit door.

This week the Lil' Duffer is proud to announce the addition of a north side exit next to the serving counter. This will promote faster customer service. We are sure this improvement in customer service will help us get our fine Lil' Duffer products to you even faster.

Come to the dealer who's got the deal: The Modown 3-for-the-price-of-2 deal.

We've got it. We've got Modown* herbicide for soybeans, the herbicide that promises you control of your weeds without chemical carry-over.

Modown controls velvetleaf, smartweed, jimsonweed, lambsquarters, pigweed and teaweed. It even helps protect against tall morningglory.

And because Modown isn't a triazine, it can't add to chemical build-up in the soil. What's more, Modown works at one rate on all soils, so you can treat your fields faster and more accurately with just one calibrator.

And because Mobil Chemical is so anxious for you to try Modown this year, they're letting us give you an extra pound or gallon for every two you buy. So come on in now to the dealer who always wants to give you the best deal!

What Is Alcoholism Treatment?

The following is the third in a series of articles submitted to The Wayne Herald by the Wayne County 4-H Junior Leaders. During "Alcohol Impact 1979," 4-H Junior Leaders are striving to inform and educate the public on alcoholism. Consecutive articles will appear each month in the newspaper.

The nature and length of alcoholism treatment depend on how seriously drinking has affected the individual.

For some, treatment may include hospitalization for detoxification, followed by a long-term, intensive rehabilitation program. For others, it may involve a brief stay at a residential treatment center followed by participation in Alcoholics Anonymous or other counseling programs.

For many persons, treatment may be limited to counseling sessions on an outpatient basis or attending Alcoholics Anonymous meetings.

All treatment programs share a similar goal: to help the alcoholic person become more self-aware, self-accepting, and able to function well and comfortably without the use of alcohol.

The severely alcoholic person must first recover from acute intoxication and withdrawal before other aspects of treatment can begin.

During detoxification, usually a 5-8 day process carried out in a hospital or alcoholism clinic, the patient is given medication to insure safety and reduce discomfort and is put on a nutritious diet. At the same time, treatment is given for any related health problems.

Whether or not the alcoholic person needs detoxification or other medical treatment, he or she probably will participate in a counseling or therapy program to help in dealing with immediate problems and understanding the factors underlying his or her drinking patterns.

Most alcoholism counseling programs are conducted on an outpatient basis and include individual, group, and family sessions. Some also offer special support groups for alcoholic women or young people.
