Special Supplement

Salute Wayne Industries During Recognition Week

Industries located in Wayne are being saluted this week during Industry Recognition Week in Nebraska.
A special supplement, detailing the many-faceted industrial complex in Wayne, is included with today's Wayne Herald.
Gary Van Meter, secretary of Wayne Industries, said the supplement will be another "tool" to be used to encourage industry to locate in Wayne.
Van Meter pointed out the industrial climate in Wayne "couldn't be better." He said that Wayne follows the State of Nebraska as a prime place for industry to locate.

He said a special study by the Minnesota Tax Study Commission reported that Nebraska has the best business climate among the 50 states.
He pointed out that the study ranked each state on 46 variables grouped in two categories which included, among other things, economic factors and facilities for living variables.
Van Meter established that Wayne has an excellent labor potential. He said a virtually untapped labor force are women workers. He said women, combined with men, could provide a labor force of nearly 3,800 persons between 1980 and 1985.
Van Meter also said industry and potential industry is aided by 1 of 27 full-time Job Service offices. He said the Wayne office is connected to all area offices through a micro film system for all job referrals in the Wayne area.
He also cited technical assistance available through Wayne State College as well as Northeast Nebraska Technical College, Norfolk.
Perhaps the most important factor, according to Van Meter, is community attitude in aiding industrial development. The general feeling is that most people in Wayne feel the area should work to attract new industry and support existing industries.
He said Wayne Industries is making a full-time effort to encourage new industry to locate in Wayne with the Wayne Development Corporation aiding in financing new industry.
This information and more is included in the supplement Van Meter urged residents to make a special effort this week to express their thanks to industries in Wayne, which work hand-in-hand with education and agriculture.

What You Hear May Save Your Life

Weather Radio Termed a Success

After a week and a half of on-the-air shakedown, radio station WXL 77 has been termed a success.

The FM station is the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's (NOAA) weather radio located in the National Weather Service office in Norfolk.

The high frequency station transmits continuous weather information on 162.55 megahertz.

George Van Allan of the Norfolk weather staff has been designated as officer in charge of the weather radio.

The station will be on the air 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. It will provide the latest local, regional and extended forecasts, radar information, river stages and forecasts, climatological information and, during the season, agricultural forecasts.

Paul Woolard, head of the Norfolk office, said the radio is expected to be especially valuable in the event of severe storms.

Woolard said when severe weather watches and warnings are issued, the Norfolk office personnel will activate a distinctive audible warning alarm for 10 to 13 seconds. The signal can, in turn, activate special "silent receivers" which are operated in a "muted" state.

The warning alarm will alert the listener that a severe weather audible message will be following. Woolard told Wayne Denkiau, Wayne County Civil Defense director, that weather officials will go on the air "live" to describe the weather information. The message will be repeated and recorded on tape.

A pre-recorded tape will then be transmitted over NOAA weather radio, telling the listener exactly what safeguards must be taken for protection against the weather.

"We will interrupt the programming any time we have a severe weather warning," Woolard explained. "Otherwise, the radio will transmit the regular forecast with a weather update every hour."

He said the warning message will be counted down by weather personnel on a 30 second basis so the listener can be certain he has heard the entire message. "Most of the receivers also have a blinking light to alert persons who might have missed the audible signal," Woolard explained.

Woolard told Denkiau the radio is functional in many ways concerning civil defense. "In the event a tanker truck carrying toxic chemicals has an accident, and the tank ruptures, civil defense See RADIO, page 10

Undefeated Devils To Put Streak On Line Vs. Ryan

For about an hour Monday afternoon, people in Wayne who were mildly delirious with excitement, were driving down Main Street honking their horns. The occasion? The Wayne Blue Devils won the district baseball title over Wakefield and are bound for the State Tourney Tuesday in Ralston.

When Wayne baseball opens in the spring, the talk of the public turns from that of the weather and farming to the community's most successful sport. And the fans aren't satisfied unless their team goes to state.

The Blue Devils earned their bid with a 9-2 win over Wakefield in a battle of perennial Northeast Nebraska powers. Wayne is now scheduled to play Omaha Ryan at 6 p.m. Tuesday in Ralston.

Wayne jumped off to a surprisingly early 3-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning. Lead-off batter Jeff Zeiss singled and Tim Pfeiffer moved him into scoring Goeden scored when Wakefield committed an error on a hard ground ball by Al Nissen.

Wayne built up its lead again in the bottom of the third with two more runs. Catcher Dan Mitchell singled to right center field and Carroll and Zeiss reached base with walks. With bases loaded, Goeden hit a ground ball through third baseman Doug Starzl's legs, scoring Mitchell and Carroll, for a 7-1 lead.

Wakefield got its only other run in the fifth. Todd Swigart reached base on an error and Doug Starzl retaliated with a center field triple. But the defending state runners-up would not be making the return trip this year. Ginn and Al Nissen scored insurance runs in the bottom of the fifth for a 9-2 lead, which stood for the final two innings.

When the final Wakefield batter popped out, giving Carroll his fifth win, the jubilant Wayne fans and players broke into cheers to celebrate the district title.

Despite the disappointing loss, Wakefield coach Joe Coble joined his ball club in the dugout and began to look toward next year. "Keep your heads up and be proud," said Coble. "We have a fine team and only three players will be leaving next year. You seniors did a whole of a job and we'll miss you but we'll be back next year."

And no one could doubt Coble. Every one knew that next year the Wayne-Wakefield high school baseball rivalry would continue where it left off. But for now, the Blue Devils will represent Northeast Nebraska in their quest for a state title to prove that baseball is not dominated by the Omaha schools.

HAPPY MEMBERS of the Wayne baseball team hold their fingers up as number one in Class B District action. They will play Omaha Ryan Tuesday at 6 p.m. in Ralston for the State title.

District Champs Bound For State

Wildcats Boast:

With their sweetest and most important victories of the season, the Wayne State Wildcats earned a berth in Area Three playoffs scheduled for Thursday and Friday, in Hutchinson, Kan.

And the sweetest and most important victory of all was a 7-5 win over arch rival Kearney State in extra innings Saturday in the NAIA District 11 tournament finals at Kearney. The Wildcats defeated Concordia 5-3 and Kearney 7-1 on Friday.

"It was a good weekend for our team," interim coach Steve Anson said. "I was pleased; the guys just played super baseball."

The victories improved the Wildcats' record to 22-20 in the season. Wayne State's first opponent in Area Three double-elimination play Thursday will be Black Hills, S.D. Also participating in that tournament will be Southeast Oklahoma and Emporia State. Both those teams defeated WSC earlier this season.

"We are definitely looking forward to this tournament," Anson said. "We have a chance at getting back at a couple of teams. We had a good practice Monday and Tuesday and we are ready to play."

The final victory for Wayne State did not come easy last weekend. A two-run home run by WSC's Kevin Mahberg led the game at 5-5 in the eighth. Craig Ladwig began the next scoring in the top of the 10th. He singled and later scored the leading run on a double by outfielder Mahberg.

Kearney had difficulty gaining the first out as Chico Mason made it to first on an error by the KSC shortstop Mike Meyer of Wayne then hit a single to advance the runners and load the bases. Mark Westergaard drew a walk to force in the final WSC run. A Kearney reliever then struck out the next three Wildcats to end the inning. Kearney was unable to score in the bottom of the inning, with Wayne State winning, 7-5.

The victory was the fifth victory out of six meetings for Wayne State over Kearney this season. Mark Westergaard (5-5) earned the victory while Mark Larson picked up his second save of the year.

Kevin Mahberg led the hitting attack, going 4-4 in that game and earning 5 RBIs. Craig Ladwig was the Wildcats' second leading hitter, going three for five.

position with a sacrifice fly. Jerry Goeden and Tom Ginn drew walks from pitcher Rick Guy to load the bases. Then, Al Nissen drove in two runs with a base hit. Ginn scored the third run on a passed ball.

Wakefield got on the scoreboard in the top of the second when Guy tripled and scored on a single by Barry Jones. At that point it looked like it might be a typical, close Wayne-Wakefield game. But, a couple of Trojan mistakes led to two more Wayne runs in the bottom of the second.

Dennis Carroll drew the first of his three walks to open the last half of the inning. Zeiss moved him to second base with a sacrifice bunt and Carroll scored on a ground ball by Goeden. Shortstop Tom Preston fielded Goeden's grounder and made the play to first base but Jones was drawn off the bag on the throw allowing Goeden to reach base and Carroll to score.

Then Ginn drew a base on balls and

Trojans Make Finals Over Laurel

The play was far from perfect as the Wakefield Trojans advanced to Class B District finals with a 12-7 win over Laurel at Wayne State College Saturday. The two teams committed a total of 13 errors in the high scoring affair.

The Trojans connected for 15 hits, including three each by Todd Swigart, Doug Starzl and Scott Hallstrom. Larry Soderberg and Rick Guy added two hits apiece. Swigart, Hallstrom and Joedy Sherer scored in the second inning for a 3-0 lead.

Joe Olsen got one run back for Laurel as Scott Norvell doubled his home in the bottom of the second inning. A seven run fourth inning put the Trojans up 10-1 and it looked like the game might end on the 10 run rule. Starzl and Guy tripled and scored to lead the way as Swigart, Larry Soderberg, Hallstrom, Barry Jones and Sherer added extra runs.

Soderberg tripled and Starzl rapped a home run for a 12-1 lead in the top of the sixth.

Fighting for their lives, the Bears scored two runs in the sixth highlighted by Russ Gade's triple to stay in the game. Then, Laurel did most of its scoring in the seventh as Gade, Olsen, Brian Buss and Mark McCorkindale crossed the plate bringing the final score to 12-7. Steve Anderson led Laurel at the plate with a double and two singles in four trips to the plate. Buss added two more hits for the Bears.

Wayne Third Inning Cracks Ponca

A six run third inning, combined with the four hit pitching of Tim Pfeiffer and Jeff Zeiss carried the Wayne Blue Devils to an 8-1 win over Ponca in the semifinals of Class B District baseball at Wayne State, Saturday.

Ponca scored one run in the first inning on two Wayne errors. The lead held up until the top of the third when the Devil bats started cracking. Zeiss, Pfeiffer and Jerry Goeden hit consecutive doubles to lead the attack as six runners crossed the plate. In addition to Zeiss, Pfeiffer and Goeden, Al Nissen, Mark Gansebom and Dennis Carroll all scored.

While Wayne's pitching checked Ponca's bats, Ganse-bom and Carroll added runs in the fifth for an 8-1 lead. The game was called in the top of the seventh when rain began to pour down. Leading batters for Wayne were Dave Schwartz with two hits in three trips to the plate and Zeiss with two hits in four at bats. Ginn was the leading base runner with two stolen bases.

Pfeiffer pitched the first four innings, striking out six batters while allowing two hits and one run. Zeiss relieved for the next two innings, giving up two hits and striking out four batters. The win moved Wayne into the finals Monday against Wakefield.

Chace Nearly Wins It All

Paula Claims 'Team' Runner-Up Honors

LAUREL JUNIOR Paula Chace displays her State track souvenirs. The medal around her neck is the gold she won in the 440, the trophy is the Class C runner-up trophy and the hat was given to her from an NSAA meet official.

After the performance Paula Chace displayed at the State Girls' Track Meet, Friday and Saturday, several coaches and fans probably think the Laurel junior can do everything but fly. And some probably think she can do that.

As the only member of the Laurel girls' track team to qualify for State, Paula represented her school well. She came within four points of personally winning the Class C team title. She scored 32 points to place second behind David City Aquinas with 36 points. Paula won the 880 and 440, placed second in the 220 and fourth in the long jump.

Chace and rival friend Julie Herbolzheimer of Hartington ran the 880 in fashion with Chace winning by inches. Both girls ran the race in identical 2:19.6 times, third fastest in Nebraska prep history. Before the State meet, Paula indicated that she felt the winner of that race would win a State gold medal. But, Class A competition was faster.

Entering the 440 yard dash, Paula felt she would have to wait until next year to earn the gold medal she had dreamed of someday winning. But, that was before she knocked more than a full second off of her fastest time in the quarter mile.

Her time of :58.2 was the fastest in the State Meet. But, Paula didn't even know what her time was in the 440 until coach Ev Jensen yelled down from the timer's table and told her she had won a gold. Her fastest time in the event before the State Tourney was :60.7.

Paula's lowest finish was fourth in the Class C long jump. She jumped 16.10 in preliminaries and passed up finals to save herself for her running events.

In her fourth event, Chace placed second in the 220, behind Marian Borgmann of Osmond. Both were clocked in :26.3. Had Paula placed second in the long jump, Laurel would have won the team title. She placed her team eighth in the grand championship with 18 points, the highest finish of any Class C school.

Paula made the trip to North Platte with coaches Ev Jensen and Doug Siepkes and teammates Kay Anderson and Jan Cooper. "We were ready to leave and then we found out that we were in second place with 32 points," Chace said. "I didn't expect that."

"Running the 880 helped a lot in preparing for the 440. And running against Julie (Herbolzheimer) made a big difference," said Chace. "Competition is what makes a runner good. Next year it will probably be really different without her (Herbolzheimer)."

Behind her state performance was lots of hard work and Paula said her coach, Jensen, was a big help. "The coach made me work hard. I look up to him a lot and would do anything for him," she said. "He told me I could win a gold medal and he was right. He's done so much for me. I want to do something for him to pay him back." And coach Jensen feels he has been repayed. With an individual performance like Chace's and a second place team trophy, Jensen is happy.

The smiling 17-year-old Chace, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Chace of Laurel doesn't appear to be the nervous type but says she is. "I was very nervous before State. I woke up so many times in the night. But, I wake up before local meets," she said.

Chace has one more year of high school remaining and then she plans to continue her education in college, probably in the field of broadcasting. "I like to talk. The coach said if they had a contest for talking, I'd definitely win a gold medal," chuckled Paula.

"My goal was always to get a gold medal. Now I've got it. Maybe next year I'll try for two. Everyone is always out to beat you. You have to work hard to stay there," Chace stated. "I'll work this summer and hopefully get into the 57's in the 440. Hard work is the only way to accomplish your goals."

So what does a state champion do in her senior year as an encore to a tremendously successful year? Maybe win a couple gold medals and maybe, just maybe, win the Class C team title.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

I LEAVE TOWN FOR TWO DAYS and it seems like the sports world comes to life in northeast Nebraska. I wound up in Dunlap, Ia. Friday and Saturday to be best man in a friend's wedding and when I returned, I couldn't believe what had happened while I was away.

Laurel junior Paula Chace nearly won the State Class C Track team title all by herself in North Platte. She was the only girl to qualify from Laurel but she came within four points of giving her home town a state title. She won the All-Class gold medal in the 440, won the Class C gold in the 880, earned a silver medal in the Class C 220 and finished fourth in the long jump. If she would have won the 220 which was nearly a dead heat, I believe Laurel would have tied David City Aquinas for the team title.

Sunday, I learned that the Wayne State baseball team had worked its way past Dana, Concordia and arch rival Kearney State to advance through state baseball playoffs and into area playoffs in Kansas. Kearney had won the championship the past five years and was even given the home field advantage in the state tourney. However, the Cats were determined and played to their potential, for their biggest wins in years.

After Class B district baseball games between Wayne-Ponca and Wakefield, Laurel were postponed Thursday because of rain, the games were planned for Monday. But, while I was gone, it was decided that the games could be played on Wayne State's field Saturday afternoon. Wayne and Wakefield advanced into district finals with wins. The Blue Devils then qualified for state by defeating Wakefield Monday.

Saturday morning I learned via news paper that the Wayne two mile relay team had qualified for state in districts at Plainview. I expected them to earn the state berth if they ran to their potential and they did. However, because I was out of town, I was unable to take a picture of the team at that time. The happy crew is pictured in today's paper.

Although I missed out on one of the most successful sports weekends in Wayne, I did enjoy a rare experience. I purchased gasoline for 72.9 cents a gallon in Dunlap Friday. (Unfortunately the price rose four cents overnight.)

WITH THE BLUE DEVILS in the State Class B Baseball Tournament, several people mentioned to me that Hank Overin deserves credit for the fine recreation baseball program in Wayne. Indeed, he does. As I've said over and over again, a good athletic program starts at an early age and that's one reason why Wayne is strong in baseball.

Running At State This Weekend

Coach Mike Mallotte also deserves a great deal of credit for the job he is doing as high school coach. His team went undefeated against competition like Wakefield, Lincoln High and Lincoln East! Now they have their chance to win it all against Omaha Ryan Tuesday. This year's squad is composed of a fine group of athletes.

Wakefield may have been a little too keyed up for the game Monday. They didn't play to their potential. But, they'll be back and next year the Wayne-Wakefield rivalry will continue where it left off.

WAYNE WRESTLING COACH Don Koenig had an unfortunate accident over the weekend. He fell about 35 feet from a ladder while trimming branches off a tree. I hear he suffered rib and hand injuries from the fall. Here's to a quick recovery. If anyone is in the area, why not stop in at Providence Medical Center and pay Don a visit. I'm sure he'd appreciate the call.

MAVIS DALTON, Wayne volleyball and girls' track coach will not be teaching at Wayne High next year. She will be taking a one year maternity leave.

tune it up before you turn it on.

Here's an easy way to increase your air conditioner's cooling efficiency by up to 20%. Maybe even more! Give it a tune up—a simple maintenance check for energy and money-wasting problems. Like low refrigerant, dirty fans and filters, or condenser units clogged with leaves, grass clippings or other debris. All of which can prevent your cooling system from doing the most efficient job. And that costs you money during the cooling season. Call your air conditioning contractor or serviceman for a tune up of your air conditioning system. Today...before hot weather comes to stay.

Get the jump on summer...now

Don't wait until the weather gets hot. Call for your air conditioning tune up now while your contractor or serviceman has time. Call before his busy season starts. Then you'll be absolutely certain to stay cool and comfortable when the weather turns hot.

NPPD wants you to make it through the summer efficiently and comfortably. But once the thermometer starts climbing, your air conditioner's cooling ability will be an important money concern. So tune up your air conditioner before you turn it on. And you'll spend the summer in comfort. Economically, efficiently.

Mrs. Marvin Hartman, Dixon, cultural arts leader for the Dixon County Home Extension Council, introduced the keynote speaker, James R. Phifer, Ph.D., associate professor of history, Wayne State College. Dr. Phifer explained that culture is all the things people do in order to survive and all the ways people use to cope with their environment — how they make a living; how they communicate; how they rear their children.

In early history, families found it necessary to concentrate all their energy on a means to survive. As the amount of time it takes to exist decreased, leisure time increased and families began to reflect on the nature of their existence. Then the arts as we know them today began to evolve.

Dr. Phifer's opening remarks were further explored by panel members representing a variety of art disciplines. On the panel were Mrs. Bonnie Groskurth, librarian at House Memorial Library, Pender; Ted Blenderman, art instructor, Wayne Public Schools; Mrs. Jane O'Leary, music instructor, Wayne State College; Mrs. Sheridan Frey, Mid America Art Studio, Wayne Musical and vocal entertainment was provided by Susan, Lisa and Lana Erwin, daughters of Mr. & Mrs. Gary Erwin, Concord, and Mark and Ryan Creamer, sons of Mr. & Mrs. LeRoy Creamer, Concord.

This program was one of a series of public programs in the Northern Nebraska Library Network area. The program supplements the "Family in the Cultural Arts" exhibit which is on display at Graves Public Library during May. Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service co-sponsors this project as a part of the statewide program emphasis on Cultural Arts during 1979. The project is made possible in part by a grant from the Nebraska Committee for the Humanities.

Arrangements for the meeting were made by the Dixon County Home Extension Clubs and the Graves Public Library. Wakefield Hostess clubs serving refreshments were the Westside Extension Club and the Wakefield Happy Homemakers Extension Club. Members on the planning committee were James R. Phifer, Wayne; Mrs. Myron Heinemann, Allen; Mrs. Harold Olson, Mrs. Leone Brt, Mrs. Willis Kahl, Wakefield, Ron Larson, Librarian at Graves Public Library, and Anna Marie Kreitels, Area Extension Home Economist, Concord.

FACTS & FIGURES

Real income in the United States is going up faster than inflation. By the close of 1978, our real family income—after discounting for inflation—had reached an all-time high of $14,958.

Six months after Congress signaled the end of the 40-year-old Sugar Act, sugar soared from 25¢ to 64¢ a pound, and then fluctuated wildly. A bill now before Congress would tend to keep consumer sugar prices stable by... again levying import duties on foreign sugar that is dumped on U.S. markets.

The aggregate of Gross National Products in the free world in 1975 was estimated at about $10.2 trillion dollars. The country with the largest Gross National Product is the U.S. with nearly $2.04 trillion in 1977-78.

Preliminary approval to abolish death penalty

CAPITOL NEWS
BY MELVIN PAUL
STATEHOUSE CORRESPONDENT
THE NEBRASKA PRESS ASSOCIATION
LINCOLN — A bill that would abolish the death penalty has been given preliminary approval by Nebraska lawmakers.

The S-17 vote starting the measure through the Legislature's floor process was cast after about one hour of debate. Much of the discussion centered around the question of whether putting someone to death for a murder deters other potential offenders.

Sen. Chris Beutler of Lincoln, who spoke against the bill, said the statistics on whether execution of murderers is a deterrent are "inconclusive." But he said that to him it is "logical that fear (of punishment) is common to men who commit crimes," including murder.

Sen. Carol Pirsch of Omaha, who with Sen. Bernice Labadz of Omaha, tried to kill the repeal bill, argued that execution of murderers would be a deterrent if the death sentence were imposed and carried out more frequently.

It is time, Mrs. Pirsch and Mrs. Labadz said, that more consideration be given to the victims of crimes.

A number of veteran senators, who for many years have spoken out against repeal of the death penalty, switched their position this year.

They said the death penalty law is very seldom used, has apparently not been a deterrent and that it is time Nebraska tried a new approach.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, would mandate a 30-year sentence, without hope of parole or early release, for anyone convicted of first-degree murder.

Supporters of the legislation said punishment that is given swiftly, certainly and severely probably would be more effective than a capital punishment that hasn't been utilized in Nebraska since mass slayer Charles Starkweather was put to death in the electric chair in 1959.

Sen. Vard Johnson of Omaha argued the death sentence is imposed unevenly with members of minorities much more frequently executed. Johnson said persons status in his own state and the discretion of prosecutors are other factors that frequently come into play when a person is charged with commission of a capital offense.

The Omaha lawmaker said just about every major religious denomination that has studied the issue has taken the stand that execution as a form of punishment should be prohibited.

Gov. Charles Thone has indicated he will veto the legislation, which at this writing still had to be approved by the legislators two more times.

During debate of the bill, it was noted that polls show about 80 percent of Nebraskans want the death penalty to remain in the statutes.

LID-BILL PASSED

The state lawmakers voted 40-2 final approval recently of a bill that would substantially change the local spending limit law placed into the books during last summer's special session.

This year's bill would restrict to 7 percent the annual increases in local budgets. Gov. Charles Thone has said he will sign the measure, which will go into effect immediately after he puts his name on the document.

The bill provides the new law would end at the end of 1984, unless it is continued by the Legislature.

The law passed last summer held to 7 percent annual increases in the portion of local government budgets funded by the property tax.

The new law will limit a local government's entire budget, including both state and local property taxes. But the measure has provisions for several exceptions for expenditures for such things as Social Security payments, fuel and electricity.

The lawmakers were told the legislation has one major flaw, which can be taken care of before final adjournment. That flaw, according to Sen. John DeCamp, is that the bill is the form in which it was passed, would not exempt from the annual limit bonded indebtedness approved by local governing boards after the effective date of the act.

TAX SUIT DISMISSED

The Nebraska Supreme Court has dismissed Sen. John DeCamp's property tax lawsuit, ruling his action against the State Board of Equalization was improper.

In an unanimous decision, the court said it could not address the issues raised by DeCamp.

Judge Lawrence Clinton, in a separate opinion, explained the court's role in such litigation.

In the final analysis, said Clinton, the problem of equalization of property values can be solved only on the political level. At this point in the history of this recurring problem, "the repetition by this court of oft-repeated principles serves no purpose, or the principles have long been established and repeatedly stated," the judge said.

"On the purely pragmatic level," Clinton added, the Supreme Court cannot effectively order the Board of Equalization to do anything.

He explained that "by the time any appeal reaches this court, it is too late to undo that which has been done or to do that which has not been done."

The issue in the case was a challenge by DeCamp of the board's 1978 order to roll back valuations in some counties and increase them in others. DeCamp wanted the court to direct the board to equalize all tangible property at actual value.

His contention was that the board arbitrarily failed to equalize valuations at 100 percent of actual value, ignored some counties that did not carry out state-mandated revaluations and refused to consider reappraisals of 42 counties that did revalue.

During oral arguments before the Supreme Court in February, DeCamp said it was the board's inaction and noncompliance with the laws that caused the non-equalization that currently exists.

The court, however, finding DeCamp did not have a standing in court on appeal, declined to review DeCamp's allegations.

The court said the Neleigh lawmaker did not appear before the board last fall when it was acting on property valuations. But DeCamp said he presented his case to the board in a letter dated last Aug. 4.

Judge C. Thomas White, who wrote the unanimous opinion, said the letter, which was not in the board's records, failed to give DeCamp standing in the court because it failed to raise issues entitling him to relief.

Among other things, White said the letter was drafted too late because the board's valuations hearings were held Aug. 1-3. In addition, White said, the letter "fell far short" of addressing complaints DeCamp made in his suit.

After the opinion was released, DeCamp made no secret of his displeasure. "The way they wrote the opinion, nobody can appeal (from the Board of Equalization's action) because they have to anticipate what the board is going to do," DeCamp said.

He described the opinion as "unreal" and one that "wiped out the statutes."

Energy question: Who's ripping off whom?

OF THE UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON — It's spring, America is in full blossom and the countryside grows more beautiful by the day. But this year, many Americans have been distracted from that beauty by an increasingly ugly reality — the energy crisis, which has given way to longer lines, higher prices and hotter tempers at the gas pumps.

The public is looking for explanations and leadership. But it's gotten little more than hot air — irresponsible rhetoric suggesting our energy crisis might disappear if enough Americans simply go after the petroleum industry with a hatchet, and if enough of them form vigilante groups to spy on each other and force down "unreasonable prices." I do not have all the answers, but let me share with you a few facts.

First, the oil companies are not creating a shortage to increase prices. A real shortage already exists. The seeds of that shortage were planted in late 1971 when the federal government — supposedly to "protect" consumers — decided to artificially control domestic oil prices. The effect was precisely the opposite because through its decision the United States government flashed the warning message to the rest of the world: We don't care how much it costs to drill deep wells and explore for oil. (An offshore installation can cost hundreds of millions of dollars.) The price our domestic producers receive will remain fixed, and we're going to rely on the goodwill of foreign oil producers to ensure the balance of our energy needs at reasonable prices.

Result? As costs rose, domestic exploration predictably began drying up. The United States began progressively more dependent upon the OPEC cartel, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. And OPEC has vividly demonstrated that it is the gift of grab. OPEC now jacks up prices (an increase of approximately 500 percent per barrel in six years), and manipulates supplies almost at will. The United States is dangerously vulnerable.

Our immediate problems pinpoint that vulnerability. The revolution in Iran led to a temporary but complete interruption in that country's oil exports. Those exports have now been resumed, but not at their prior levels. That means the United States is now receiving about 700,000 barrels a day less than it normally would, which represents a shortfall of about 3.5 percent of normal supplies. Not much you might say, and you'd be right. But look what else is happening to aggravate the problem.

While we are seeing a reduction in the supply of crude oil, we are also witnessing a tremendous increase in the demand for gasoline — demand for unleaded gasoline is up more than 20 percent over last year. The government has mandated the increased use of unleaded fuel, even though it gobbles up more oil per barrel in the refining process than does leaded. And to make matters worse, expensive government price and environmental regulations have sharply reduced our refining capacity. Only one major refinery has been built anywhere in the United States for six years, and none on the East coast for 20 years. What a way to run a country that runs on gasoline!

The federal government also insists refineries process a greater share of their crude oil into home heating oil than into gasoline stocks — just the opposite of what usually happens at this time of year. Hopefully this additional sacrifice of gasoline supplies will at least prevent schools, offices and homes from being without heat.

Finally, the oil companies have had to voluntarily reduce the amount of gas they deliver to their stations under contract to try to lessen the impact of the gasoline shortage. Stations are being allocated gas on the basis of the quantity of gas they sold during 1977-78, not on the basis of their overhead. That means self-service stations might receive more gas than full-service stations, even though the latter need to sell more gas to cover their high overhead and stay in business.

These are just some of the reasons why lines at service stations are lengthening and prices are rising. Still, even at 80 cents a gallon, gas costs less than half here than it does in much of Europe. In fact, since 1939, the price of gas has risen less than most of the food we eat, and a wage earner works fewer minutes to purchase a gallon today than his counterpart did in 1939.

Who really makes the money on the gas you buy? From the time the oil leaves the sand in the Mideast to the moment it fills up your tank as gasoline, all governments, both foreign and domestic, can take up to 65 cents of every dollar you pay. And after subtracting costs for refining, storage, transportation, marketing and local dealers, the oil companies are left with about two cents net profit. The real question Americans should be asking is: Who's ripping off whom?

The Exxon Diary

Commentary
by
J. James Exxon
U.S. Senator

When the Ayatollah Khomeini took over the government of Iran it not only meant cutting off oil temporarily, it also meant cutting off an expensive contract for four destroyers being built in the United States for the Iranian Navy. The Shah had ordered them before he was deposed and the ships were already under construction. However, with the change of government, the order was cancelled, leaving someone stuck with four partially-built and unwanted ships... unwanted, until the U.S. Navy heard about them. Up until then the Navy had never once formally expressed to the Congress in the five year ship-building plan a need or interest in four ships of that type. I questioned the Navy's sudden interest and the fact that the taxpayer would get the bill, which totalled 1.3 billion dollars.

There were powerful Senators supporting the new-found cause, but they couldn't demonstrate that these four Iranian ships were necessary to the defense of the United States. And if they were, why hadn't the need been demonstrated before? Anyway, in trying to control inflation and balance the budget, 1.3 billion dollars was just too much. The Budget Committee agreed voting to scratch the requested ships, but later the Senate itself chose to reverse the Committee's recommendation and put the ships back in.

I have always been in favor of a strong U.S. defense posture and will continue to be, but when the need for something is undemonstrated, especially in a supplemental budget request, I will continue to vote, "No."

Dear Editor:
This is in reference to a letter to the editor by Mrs. Arland Aurich which appeared in your April 19th issue. We support the concept of a combined drive program which would work either with other agencies or a representative of Wayne to establish the united drive concept.
We have assisted other communities in this effort since it reduces our fund raising cost and allows more of the contributed dollar to reach the disabled person in need of our services.
I would welcome an opportunity to discuss this further with anyone interested in the establishment of a combined drive. Please contact me at 800-642-8506. Thank you. — Nebraska Easter Seal Society, David E. Evans, Executive Director.

National incomes policy

The only viable policy option to break the momentum of the current inflation is a national incomes policy, say a University of Nebraska-Lincoln economist.

Writing in the April issue of "Business of Nebraska" Dr. Robert F. Allen, a professor of economics and former Senior Staff Economist for the U.S. Council on Wage Price Stability, notes that prices have continued to accelerate in every year since 1974. According to Allen, "There is something more fundamental at work here than 'too much money chasing too few goods.'"

He attributes the stubbornness of inflation to a basic flaw in the market system. This flaw "is responsible for the depression of the 1930's, the stagflation of the 1970's, and the momentum of the current inflation," says Allen.

He notes that prices and wages in certain key markets in the economy respond so slowly to reductions in total spending that such forces alone take two to three years to shave a single percentage point off the inflation rate and cost Americans $200 billion in lost output for every point reduction obtained in this manner. "This is not a viable or desirable policy option," says Allen.

According to Allen, "a massive program of structural reform to make the economy work better would be preferable, if such a program were feasible."

"The latter are surrounded by various degrees of regulation and ceremonial mystique," and are "particularly worthy of the commission's attention in light of the behavior of their prices in recent years," says Allen.

The inflation rate for all consumer items less food and energy fell from 11.5 percent in 1974 to 6.1 percent in 1976, according to Allen's figure. His figures show the inflation in service prices have averaged 8 percent per year since 1974, and double digit inflation has characterized one year or more of the service industries in every year since 1974.

"Monopoly pricing power is prevalent in the service industries, and prices are frequently allowed to move in a manner which is demonstrably inconsistent with prevailing and near-term market forces," says Allen. He believes "a national price-wage commission with a mandate to document market forces and the institutional arrangements which support them is an important step toward reasserting the primacy of the market in the service sector of the economy."

Allen says a market oriented incomes policy is not a substitute for fiscal or monetary responsibilities or an alternative to other government initiatives which may be expected to cut business costs and further the objective of price stability.

The importance of a market oriented incomes policy, says Allen, is that "it should help to focus our attention on the basic structural and institutional conditions which contribute to the momentum of inflation. And that should help us to get a grip on the momentum of inflation once it enters the system."

Thought for Today
By Rowan Wiltse
"Beauty lies in the eyes of the beholder."
Lewis Wallace
We are surrounded by beauty, if we will only learn to notice it. The sound of a child's laughter or a bird's song; the feet of a kitten's fur; the light of a rainbow or a bird on the wing. Their beauty is ours if we are merely aware of it.
It is said "two men looked through bars... one saw mud, the other stars." Beauty may be overlooked unless we develop an attitude which looks for it everywhere. With such an attitude our lives are certain to be enriched for beauty perceived and appreciated leads to beauty in actions and personal relationships.
We believe that a beautiful memorial service should prepare the bereaved for adjustment to loss.

4-H Scholarship

CINDY BULL (center), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldron Bull, Wayne, was one of two recipients of a $35 Val and Marie Kuska 4-H scholarship to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The scholarships were presented at the UN-L club's spring tea held recently in Lincoln. Barbara Jo Bierman, (right), Battle Creek, was the other scholarship winner. The scholarships were presented by Louie Rudman, extension 4-H youth development specialist. (Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources photo).

Weevils May Control Thistles, Beetles Feed On Binding Weed

Biological control of one persistent weed pest, musk thistle, looks promising over the long haul, but it's too early to predict the effectiveness of a natural enemy in curbing field bindweed.

That's the report of Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension weed specialist John D. Furrer and Alex R. Martin.

A weevil, Rhinocyllus conicus, which has shown potential for reducing musk thistle seed production, is being released at new sites this year, after placement in 24 Nebraska counties in 1978, the agronomists said.

The weevil developed normally and completed its life cycle at all new release sites last year. The adult female lays eggs on the underside of the musk thistle flower buds. After the eggs hatch, larvae burrow into the base of the flower and feed.

The feeding of the larvae interferes with musk thistle seed production. A head heavily infested with larvae will not produce seed. The larvae complete their life cycle on the head and later emerge as adults, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialists explained.

They warned that "results from this biological control work will be slow in coming. It will take several years before the insect (weevil) population builds to the point that most thistle seed production is reduced. Hopefully the musk thistle will decline as the seed supply in the soil is exhausted."

On the other hand, the agronomists said "it's too early to draw conclusions on the effectiveness of the Argus tortoise beetle for field bindweed control," even through optimistic reports have appeared through news media.

The Argus tortoise beetle feeds on field bindweed foliage, as well as morning glory and sweet potatoes. The beetles increase and spread as long as there is an ample food supply, Martin and Furrer said. But in New York trials, the beetles disappeared by the end of July, and bindweed reemerged in August.

"Keep in mind, the beetle feeds on foliage," the IANR specialists pointed out. Research has shown that clean cultivation every 10 to 14 days from emergence to killing frost — 10 to 12 tillage operations per year for two to three years — is necessary to kill established bindweed plants. Bindweed roots extend 20 or more feet into the soil under dryland conditions.

"The beetle would have to be present continuously for a two- to three-year period to provide effective control," the specialists predicted.

Martin and Furrer said that to their knowledge, no attempts have been made to introduce the beetle in Nebraska. However, if anyone knows of its introduction into Nebraska or adjoining states, "we'd like to know so we can follow its progress," they concluded.

Wayne Winner Girls 4-H

The regular meeting of the Wayne Winner Girls 4-H Club was held May 11 at the Grace Lutheran Church.

The meeting was called to order, followed with the 4-H pledge and flag salute. The girls answered roll call by telling their favorite TV show. May baskets were exchanged.

Six members and two mothers were present.

Next meeting will be held in June at Kristie Craun's home. Debi Reeg, news reporter.

Kraemer, Wood Earn Ribbons In 4-H Contest

Joni Kraemer and Lisa Wood, both of Allen and recent winners of the Dixon County 4-H Speech Contest, went to Norfolk on May 5 to compete in the District 4-H Timely Topics Speech Contest. Twenty-three youths from twelve counties in Northeast Nebraska participated in the contest. Joni, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Kraemer and member of the Wranglers 4-H Club, received a blue placing on her speech entitled, "A Golden Opportunity."

Lisa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Wood and member of the Lucky Lads and Lassies 4-H Club, received a blue placing also. Her speech was entitled "Alcohol: It's Your Business, Too."

Both received an engraved ballpoint pen from Radio Station KFAB in Omaha. Winners of the district contest were Nancy Arens of Hartington with her speech "Cults Seem to Bloom" and Charlene Nelson of South Sioux who spoke on "Runaways." Both received an all expense paid trip to State 4-H Conference in June. Nancy and Charlene will participate in the State Public Speaking Contest.

Wrangler's 4-H

The May 3 meeting of the Wrangler's 4-H Club was called to order by president Mark Craemer at the Northeast Station. Roll call was answered by 13 members.

Discussion included project deadlines, club goals and immediate 4-H work. A demonstration on the digestive systems of livestock was given by Doug Koester and Mark Koch. Mark and Sheila Koch served lunch.

The next meeting is to be held June 13 at the Northeast Station at 8 p.m. with Koesters serving. The meeting will include the annual livestock project tour. Demonstrations will be given by Ryan Craemer and Joni Kraemer. Joni Kraemer, news reporter.

Youths On Tape At KMNS

Lisa Wood of Allen, Kay Anderson of Wayne, and David Stieling of Wakefield traveled to Sioux City on May 8 to make a tape with Woody Rooker at Radio Station KMNS. The tape, centering around Alcohol Impact 79, will air on Sunday, May 20 at 7:35 a.m. on KMNS-620.

In addition to making the radio tape, the group toured the radio station and also toured the Chemical Dependency Unit at St. Vincent's Hospital in Sioux City. Joanna Riezal, program director of the C.D.U. Department, visited with the group.

Kay and David were among area 4-Hers who attended the "Reflections in a Glass" conference held last fall at the Northeast Station-Concord. The conference involved 4-H youth from 13 counties in Northeast Nebraska.

Since that time they have been involved in alcohol education programs for 4-H clubs, church youth, women's Auxiliary and other groups. Others in the alcohol impact group, but who were unable to make it to Sioux City include: Beth Gunderson, Ponca, and Robb Linafelter, Allen.

Any group wishing to have a program by the alcohol impact group or a member should contact a member of the alcohol impact group or Val Schellpeper at the Northeast Station — Concord (584-2261).

Tractor Overturn Fatalities Are Increasing

An "alarming number" of tractor overturn fatalities have been logged in Nebraska so far in 1979, an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension safety specialist reported this week.

Rollin D. Schnieder said a trend toward fewer tractor overturn fatalities over the past five years is being reversed by the fact that five deaths from this cause have occurred to date this year.

"There have been nine farm fatalities so far in 1979 — the same number as last year at the same time. But the big difference is that in 1978 there was only one overturn fatality compared to five in the corresponding period this year," Schnieder pointed out.

"In fact, eight fatalities this year have been associated with tractors, either in overturns, falling from tractors or having some part of the tractor fall on the victim," he continued.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialist said no fatalities have happened in Nebraska where a rollover protective structure (ROPS) has been in place on a tractor.

"Many older tractors still in use on farms do not have the ROPS. The accidents involving a fall from the tractor also would have been eliminated since the ROPS and seat belt would keep the person from falling off the tractor in a hazardous situation," Schnieder said.

Well conditions over much of the state this year have caused hazardous situations which led to a few of the accidents, Schnieder explained.

"Most of the fatalities have occurred when the operator was in a hurry, possibly due to wet conditions," he said. Caution is the key, and the old truism, "better be safe than sorry," still is the point to remember in curbing overturn accidents, Schnieder concluded.

Junior Pork Day June 6

The Nebraska Pork Producers Junior Field Day will be held Wednesday, June 6 at the 4-H arena of the Dawson County Fairgrounds, south of Lexington on Highway 283.

Contestants in three divisions — junior, senior and adult — will judge six classes of market hogs and two breeding classes. Trophies will be awarded to the top two individuals in each division, as well as the top junior and senior teams.

The event will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m., with the contest running from 10 a.m. to noon. At 1 p.m., the judges will discuss classes, and a showmanship demonstration will take place at 1:30 p.m. Awards will be presented at 2 p.m.

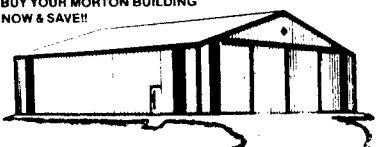

Dr. Bobby Moser, IANR extension swine specialist, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources and Archie White of the Nebraska Pork Producers will be the official judges. Event co-chairmen are Dawson County extension agents Harold Stevens and Dave Stengerg.

Bill Anderson of Allen, sponsor of the group and Val Schellpeper of Hartington, area extension agent, served as coordinator and sponsors for the trip.

Any group wishing to have a program by the alcohol impact group or a member should contact a member of the alcohol impact group or Val Schellpeper at the Northeast Station — Concord (584-2261).

SPOTLIGHT ON WEEDS

BY DON C. SPITZE WAYNE CO. EXTENSION AGENT

FIELD BINDWEED DESCRIPTION
Field bindweed is a perennial, reproducing by seed and underground rootstocks. The plant produces underground rootstocks which spread in every direction from the plant. The true roots penetrate to depths of twenty-five to thirty feet. The stems are slender, two to seven feet in length, and have a prostrate or twining habit of growth.

The leaves are ovate oblong, with acute basal lobes. The flowers are white or pink, funnel shaped about an inch across. The capsules bear one to four dark brown, coarsely roughened seeds, which usually have one convex and two flattened sides.

CONTROL
In non-cropland areas, use one quart 2, 4-D plus one pint Banvel during vigorous fall growth or bud stage in spring. Avoid tillage five weeks before and one week after application. Plan to treat for several consecutive years.

In crops such as corn, bindweed can be treated at the bud stage in early summer with 1/2 pint, 2, 4-D ester, plus 1/2 pint Banvel per acre. If corn is removed for silage, fall application of one quart 2, 4-D plus 1/2 pint Banvel per acre should be effective. Field bindweed can also be fall treated after removal of soybeans.

SPECIAL REMARKS
Roundup can also be used on field bindweed in the fall after row crop harvest, or in non-cropland. In some tests, Roundup has been no better than 2, 4-D plus Banvel for field bindweed control.

Roundup may be used as a spot treatment for field bindweed in barley, corn, oats, sorghum and wheat.

- It is a "spot" treatment only. Roundup will kill the crop in the treated areas also. Take care to avoid drift outside target area.
- Treatment must be made prior to heading of small grain and sorghum, initial pod set on soybeans, and silking of corn. Do not apply when the crop has set seed.
- For control of perennials, the weeds should be treated in the optimum stage of growth. Weeds should be growing actively.
- Roundup should be applied at the rate of 1 gallon per 100 gallons of spray solution. According to the label only hand held gun equipment can be used.
- A copy of the label must be in the possession of the user at the time of Roundup application for spot treatment.

Continues Tradition

ARNIE'S Ford and Mercury, Wayne, will be continuing a 31-year tradition of cooperation between Wayne Ford dealers and Wayne State College. Local dealers have supplied Wayne State with driver's education vehicles since 1948 for the purpose of training driver's training instructors. The first such vehicles were provided by Meyer Oil Company. Those with this year's training vehicle are (left to right) Arnie Reeg, Dean Bruggeman and Bill Reeg, all of Arnie's Ford and Mercury; Tony Netherlands, WSC driving instructor and Dr. Don Cattle of WSC.

Food Costs Same As Decade Ago

True or false: Farmers are doing better than ever because of higher food prices. Advertising has added considerably to the cost of food over the past decade. Consumers are spending more of their incomes than ever for food.

The answers to all of the above questions are false, according to Mrs. Jocelyn Moody, area extension agent, despite complaints about higher food prices.

She offers the following facts about food prices, based on a recent U.S. Department of Agriculture study.

In 1977, farmers received $57.5 billion or 30.8 percent of the total food dollar. This compares with 32 percent 10 years ago. Labor's share of the total marketing bill was 32.8 percent in 1977, compared with 28.7 percent in 1967.

Advertising in 1977 accounted for 1.5 percent of the consumer food expenditures. Ten years ago, advertising equaled 1.6 percent. At the same time, packaging materials for foods in 1977 totaled $16.2 billion or 8.7 percent of the consumer bill. Ten years before, packaging accounted for 8 percent of the marketing bill.

The relative cost for food to consumers today is no different than it was a decade ago, according to a recent comparison study by the USDA.

Jocelyn Moody said other little-known food facts include:

- Away from home food purchases went up 7.9 percent between 1976 and 1977, representing an overall share of 32.6 percent of the food dollar.
- The increased number of meals eaten away from home has been significant contributor to escalating food costs.
- American consumers spent $18.4 billion on domestically grown food products in 1977, 4.3 percent more than in 1976.
- Corporations in the food system — from packers and manufacturers to wholesalers and retailers — earned only 2.4 percent of the total food dollar spent by American consumers in 1977. Corporate net profits in 1977 totaled 2 percent of the total spent.

Agriculture PR Meeting June 1

The spring meeting of the Nebraska Council on Public Relations for Agriculture, sponsored by the South Platte United Chambers of Commerce, will be held at the Pioneer Village Restaurant in Minden, Friday, June 1.

Two well-known agricultural economists will be featured at the after dinner program. A council business meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Dr. Michael S. Turner, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension agricultural economist, will make the first public presentation of a council-initiated economic study carried out by Dr. Charles Lamphear of the UNL department of economics. The study puts agriculture into perspective as Nebraska's basic industry.

Turner's presentation will be followed by a broader-based analysis of agriculture by Dr. Harold F. Breimeyer, Perry Foundation professor of agricultural economics at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Breimeyer's address, entitled "Storm Clouds and Silver Lining: Prospects for Agriculture in the 1980's," will deal with the structure of agriculture, its present status and pressures that will shape its future. Breimeyer, a nationally known economist, is expected to focus particular attention on the future of the family farm in the Midwest.

Reacting as a panel to the two speakers will be: Robert Raun, University of Nebraska Regent and farmer from Minden; Gene Selk, second vice president, Omaha National Bank, Omaha; and Keith Lundberg, manager of the Holdrege Cooperative Equity Exchange. Lundberg is immediate past president of the Nebraska Cooperative Council.

The public is invited to the dinner and speaking program. Prepaid registrations are required. Checks for $6 per person should be payable to NCPRA and sent to the Nebraska Council on Public Relations for Agriculture, Box 81353, Lincoln, Neb. 68501, and must be received by May 29.

CORN CUTWORMS
Because of the potential problem from corn cutworms I'm devoting this column to that subject. The following information is taken from the May 1 edition of "Agricultural Notebook Insect Letter" written by Extension entomologists, Bob Roselle, David Keith and Lloyd Andersen.

There is no way to predict cutworm damage in corn. Conditions that favor cutworm activity are: 1) Weedy or grassy fields in spring that attract black cutworm moths to lay eggs; 2) corn following sod, or alfalfa broom pastures. Dingy cutworms overwinter in these fields and may occur early on corn; 3) Corn following soy beans, mostly dingy cutworms that have overwintered in soybean fields; 4) bottom land fields that are near permanent brushy or weedy vegetation occur in clean, cultivated, continuous corn fields, but much less frequently than in fields described above. There are three methods of using chemicals to reduce cutworm losses — pre-plant incorporated, time of planting, and post-emergence rescue. All are useful, but none can be relied upon for complete control.

PRE-PLANT INCORPORATION
Heptachlor, 2 pounds active per acre, can be used before planting by broadcasting and dicing in the soil. Heptachlor is a restricted use material and a special permit from the State Department of Agriculture is required by the EPA. Fields treated with heptachlor cannot be planted to legumes for 2 years, cannot be pastured for 2 years, or the corn be used for forage or silage for 2 years. No restrictions on grain.

TIME OF PLANTING
Lorsban 15G is registered for light to moderate infestations, and Mocap 15G as an aid in cutworm control. These may not be reliable for heavy infestations, but could reduce problems on mid-season or late planted corn. Mocap will reduce stand if it contacts seed. Lorsban will be safer.

When corn is planted early and these granules applied, they may not be at an effective level when black cutworms are damaging corn in late May and June. They might be considered for replanted corn.

RESCUE TREATMENTS
Lorsban 4E, Sevin, Dylow, toxaphene, or diazinon can be used for rescue treatments. Lorsban 4E used at 2.3 pints per acre broadcast worked well last year when soil moisture was favorable. The others are generally used as a band spray over rows and are helpful if soil moisture is good.

When soil is dry and cutworms are not working on the surface, do not expect exceptionally good results with any treatment. Rescue treatments will be more effective if applied late in the evening. If soil is dry, rotary hoeing before or after application should increase effectiveness. The rate for Sevin is 2 pounds AI, Dylow 1 pound AI, toxaphene 2.5 pounds AI per acre, and diazinon 2 pounds AI per acre.

In addition, 5 percent Sevin bait is registered, and will work if soil is moist. If dry, results likely will be discouraging.

WMS Observes 44th Anniversary

Evaluation Plans
Begin to Pay Off

The self-evaluation program completed last fall has produced results, according to a report given by Wayne-Carroll Supt. Dr. Francis Haun to the board of education Monday night.

He said such in-service programs as the art workshop for teachers in the elementary schools have evolved from the recommendations of the self-evaluation study.

In another area, a report was given on student evaluation of the 9th grade health curriculum in which 96 percent of the students responded favorably. Some 74 freshmen who completed the evaluation of the 9-week course conducted by Harold Maciejewski and Mrs. Mavis Dalton. The project is designed to a "fitness for life" program which students may utilize throughout their lives.

It was recommended that the program be continued.

The board also granted maternity leave for Mrs. Dalton.

Sharing Part Of "The Good Life" With Industry

"Nebraska — Isn't that where they grow plants?" Right! And not just the "down on the farm" kind either. More and more industrial developers are locating their "plants" in Nebraska soil to take advantage of what we knew all along — that Nebraska is a great place to grow anything!

Already 94 of the nation's Fortune 500 and nine foreign manufacturers have discovered our state's industrial potential. In terms of labor, transportation, taxes and quality of life, Nebraska has more to offer than many other states. So much so that according to a study recently completed by the Minnesota Tax Study Commission, Nebraska has the best business climate among the 50 states. The study ranked each state on 46 variables grouped into two categories: 1) economic factors and 2) facilities for living. The economic factors covered labor, cost and market considerations, while the facilities for living variables covered general quality of life. On economic factors alone, Nebraska ranked in a tie for first place with Oklahoma. On the facilities for living variables alone, Nebraska ranked in a tie for fifth place with Wisconsin. But when both categories of variables were combined, Nebraska finished alone in first place.

Wayne has many of the same advantages to offer as well. Labor, for example, has excellent potential over the next decade. The Wayne area laborshed has a strong projected increase through the first half of the 1980's with a special emphasis on a largely untapped female labor force. A recent Labor Department study revealed that if participation rates were at least the State average, the increase in the labor force in the Wayne area would be 1,052 men and 2,742 women between 1980 and 1985. With an increased emphasis on industrial development, these figures are realistic over the five year period, given the introduction of new manufacturing to the area.

A full time Job Service office, located in the Chamber of Commerce Building is an additional support that the community offers new business and industry. Granted free office space by the supporting Chamber members, the State staffed office is a constant help to existing industry in the area. Gary Wrede, area manager, is a 1976 graduate of Wayne State College with a degree in Industrial Management which lends special emphasis to manufacturing placements. Just one of 27 offices located in the state (four alone are in Omaha) the Wayne office is connected to all area offices through a microfilm system for all job referrals to the Wayne area.

Assistance of a technical nature is found on the Campus of Wayne State College. Through the College of Business and College of Applied Sciences (Industrial Arts) new industry in the area has a wealth of technical aid at its fingertips. Whether it be personnel administration, management, or on line production, the College lends invaluable support and "know how" to new industrial facilities. Northeast Nebraska Tech, located just thirty miles away, is yet another resource for industry to draw from, as well, and works with Wayne State on all phases of technical assistance.

Community attitude is perhaps the most important factor to industrial Development. In the last state sponsored Community Attitude Survey, an overwhelming 94.4 percent of all respondents replied, "Yes" to the question "Do you believe Wayne should try to attract new industry in the future?" Since then, Wayne Industries, Inc., has made a full time effort to invite new industrial concerns to the community with Wayne Development Corporation lending financial assistance to qualified developments.

As you read the following stories on the existing Wayne industrial plants, one underlying theme develops that is common among all — People. Throughout the interviews with manufacturers it was discovered that the people in Wayne were the most significant factor in building a plant here. People in the stores, people on the street, people with a "can do" attitude who are proud to share the Community they live in and the quality of life all of us enjoy in Wayne. People like you.

Salute To
Some Special Friends ...

OUR LOCAL INDUSTRIES

We are proud to have you as our good neighbors. Without you, our community might not be enjoying our current prosperity. For instance, we know that jobs created by our industrial employers provide new opportunities and services for the entire area. (About $1 million is added to personal income for every 100 industrial jobs, and retail sales go up by $500,000.) Too, you are responsible for giving our young people a reason to stay here instead of going elsewhere for a job. And your tax dollars help provide our community with better school, fire street and other municipal services. Best of all perhaps, is the confidence, renewed interest, and vigor our citizens have in our community because of your being here. So, to all of our friends in our industries, we say thank you for all you are doing for us.

You can almost hear the wheels turning as Lyle Garvin "ponders."

When Lyle Garvin started G.E.C. Weight Manufacturing 15 years ago, little did he know that his company would become a national manufacturing firm. It all started with a better idea on ankle weights — a piece of athletic equipment often used by track, football and basketball players for conditioning. "Back then," says Lyle, "they used buckles and leather straps to fasten them to the ankle. I just substituted a tie up system with shoe laces for a better and more adjustable fit. A factory rep from Chicago started showing the new design around and suddenly we started getting orders." The new idea was a success and G.E.C. was on it's way.

Since then, the company has expanded into other lines of athletic equipment for high schools and colleges. Blocking dummies, garment bags, pole vault and high jump pits (mattresses), and weight vests represent the variety of goods manufactured in the 7,500 sq. ft. building located east of town on east highway No. 35. The shop wasn't always there, however. Originally located in the Koplín building at 108 West 2nd, the fledgling concern was outgrowing its space and needed room to grow. Lyle had sought financing on his own, but it wasn't until Bob Mills, an industrial consultant from the Department of Economic Development, arrived, that anything happened. A retired engineering professor from the University of Nebraska, Bob's sole purpose now is to assist, advise and consult Nebraska industry on any problems they may have. After some negotiations with the Small Business Administration Lyle was given the financing he needed and his new plant was built. "They had the money and I had the guts," he recalls.

When asked the secret to his success, Lyle gave the concept of taking an idea and making it better. "For instance," he offered, "the mattresses for pole vaulting and high jumping were all secured by zippers eighteen feet long. If just one cog gets clogged or breaks out, the whole thing is useless and needs to be replaced. I just substituted lock rings for a zipper and to my knowledge I'm still the only one manufacturing pits without zippers." Right now his vault and jump pits are being distributed throughout a region from North Dakota, Illinois and Oklahoma.

Lyle also mentioned he never bothered to patent any of his ideas because "ideas are too easy to copy. I'd go to court," he explained, "and never get anything else done. The secret is to get in with a better idea, effectively market and distribute it before the competition can gear up, and then get on with something else."

And that's just what G.E.C. does through a network of seven representatives throughout the nation. Currently employing six full time workers and an additional eight doing piecework at home, the company is doing quite well in the game of keeping ahead of the other guys. Lyle plans to add a new line of "dittle bags" that are currently popular with high school and college teams as well as football parkas and insulated nylon jackets for schools and booster clubs.

Betty Garvin sews a vaulting pit cover.

Garvin is currently negotiating terms with a prospect to buy one half interest in the company. If things go well, the company will add on another 2,000 sq. ft. for increased production and inventory area. There are also plans to diversify into several other product lines. "After that," Lyle says, "I'll run as mayor of West Wakefield."

Rod Tompkins, President of Heritage Homes.

Building A Heritage In Wayne

A partial view of Heritage Homes' vast production facility.

Lately, you may have noticed more than a casual number of extra long and wide loads moving down the highway in and around Wayne. Originating from their 47,000 sq. ft. "birthplace," these loads are new homes on their way to meet new homeowners all over a five-state region. Wayne's newest factory, Heritage Homes, will be celebrating its first year in business on May 24 and is well on the way to proving that modular factory built homes are here to stay. Rivaling, if not surpassing the quality of the conventionally built homes we are so accustomed to seeing from early spring to late fall, Heritage Homes is producing 3 1/2 homes per week in their new Wayne facility.

Though the majority of home construction is still done primarily on site through all kinds of weather, Rod Tompkins, President of the company, feels his method will eventually offer the best alternative to meeting America's ardent need for more housing.

"Consider present building methods," he offered. "The contractor who builds on site is constantly moving from house to house, anywhere from ten to twenty workers plus equipment, trucks and materials. He's building in all kinds of weather, hot, cold, dry, wet, you name it. We're doing the same kind of work except we're doing it inside a building and the house comes to the workers."

And indeed it does. At any given time in the $1,000,000 facility, several houses are being constructed in assembly line fashion. Workers at one end start the ball rolling with the flooring construction. Walls are framed and a roof that was also constructed on site is added to form one half of a home on order. The house then literally moves down an assembly line on "I" beams and rollers. Wiring, insulation, drywall, shingles, siding, windows, cabinets, and carpeting are added along with all the other items that go into a home. "We even wash the windows," says Rod. At the other end two halves of a complete house are ready to be shipped by truck to the owners' foundation where they are joined and bolted together. The contractor completes plumbing and electrical hook ups and the new home is virtually ready for its owner. "The only difference," says Rod, "is that we've built a home in one sixth the time it takes to build on site excluding, of course, excavation, grading and utility runs. And we've done it under controlled conditions, with materials and employees who have not had to sweat or freeze through our famous weather. We also end up with a house that is a stronger one in having been built in two sections and braced at the junctions. Try moving a conventionally built home without getting cracks in the drywall. We easily meet all F.H.A. building codes as do most contractors." The homes really do look like any other home in a neighborhood. Any style, any color, even fireplaces are possible with these factory built homes.

Rod has been building homes for 16 years in South Sioux City, Norfolk and Omaha and is a graduate of Wayne State College. Through the new plant he is now able to custom build homes for a five state region that includes Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas and Wyoming.

"People need more houses than ever before," says Rod. "And they need houses that are not only energy efficient, but also reliable. We provide them with just that."

Tompkins was asked what brought Heritage Homes to Wayne. "The availability of the Emphasis Building was the lead attraction," he replied. "We were seriously considering Grand Island but after seeing Wayne and meeting some of its people we thought Wayne was a more desirable community." Rod also added that financial arrangements were handed "superbly" by the Wayne Development Corporation and Bob Jordan, Vice President of State National Bank, and then Treasurer of Wayne Industries. "If it hadn't been for Bob's excellent knowledge of our needs and how to handle the financing we probably wouldn't be here today," said Tompkins.

One year and 114 homes later, Rod says he "has found the town to be a nicer community to live in than I had anticipated. Wayne is an up-to-date thinking community, which is more than what you think of a small town before you know it." His attitude is probably further solidified by the excellent first year production the plant experienced by producing four more homes than the 110 units originally hoped for. All homes are sold before they are built and all standing inventory is awaiting shipment to foundations built by contractors all over. When asked what he feels is his greatest accomplishment, Rod offers the fact that he has been able to provide stable employment in an industry (home building) that traditionally has been seasonal in our part of the country. "Car payments go on for twelve months while jobs in the home building industry traditionally do not. I guess I feel pretty good about providing a stable environment for employees in the construction trade." Heritage Homes work force is currently at 110 with projections to increase to 160 by fall. "We're always actively seeking full time labor," mentions Rod. "And it might interest you to know that over 30 percent of the production line employees are female." Tompkins added that females are wiring, painting, drywalling and even plumbing.

Forecasts for the future are excellent. The company just completed a 2,000 sq. ft. office expansion that was originally planned for "years down the road." Steve Guill, plant manager, Terry Meyer, C.P.A. and comptroller, Darrell Miller, sales manager and Mat Malloy, purchasing agent, all have needs for increased office space. Plans also call for an 8,000 sq. ft. plant expansion this fall as well as blacktopping and landscaping around the plant.

'It All Started With. . .'

"How would ya like to move to Wayne, Nebraska? There's a swell bunch of people out there. . ."

Those were the words spoken one evening in 1950 to Luella Marra from her husband Wilmer. The young couple resided in Sioux City at the time and Wilmer had been making a good living selling storm windows, insulation, and siding for a local firm. His territory at the time covered Iowa, South Dakota and Nebraska, but he enjoyed traveling Nebraska much more than the other two states.

Why? "Because," explained Wilmer, "people were more receptive. I felt more accepted and other areas were resentful that I was an 'outsider.' Nebraska is much more of a 'melting pot' with no dominant nationality. Folks accept one another much more readily." One town in particular, Wayne, stuck in Wilmer's mind as he traveled the country. And, when the company he worked for contemplated dissolution, he thought about the community even more. It was a very short time before the couple made up their minds to make the move to Nebraska and to Wayne in particular, and on May 1, 1950, Marra Home Improvement opened its doors for the first time in a small shop at 113 Main.

Combination windows, insulation and roofing were the company's first line of business and Wilmer did all his own selling while contracting was handled by a two-man crew. Luella would stroll the new baby down to the shop to do the books and mind the store. The new firm did well and several moves were made from where the Vet's Club is now located to south main where the Street Department is today. It was there in 1958 that Marra Home Improvement began to manufacture steel combination doors and windows. They then covered an effective market area of 75 miles throughout Northeast Nebraska and 125 miles into the north central part of the state and employed twelve workers. Manufacturing and warehousing was handled in three separate buildings and the business grew to a point that parking was indeed becoming a problem on south main.

In 1964, Darrell Moore joined the firm as a crewman in the contracting part of the business. "Being the son-in-law," recalls Luella, "Darrell naturally got every dirty job that came along. He learned the business from the bottom the same as Wilmer." Six years later Darrell graduated to sales and has since become manager of sales in the company.

The company moved again in 1975. This time, to its present site in the Industrial Park in a new 18,000 sq. ft. building. "The move," says Wilmer, "was an excellent one for us. We had room to expand and plenty of parking for employees and customers." And expand they did. In 1977 a new 8,000 sq. ft. addition was constructed, years ahead of its anticipated need. Business had also increased in the Sioux City area and a branch sales office was opened there at that time as well. Sales have been strong and steady and the company has prospered.

To what do the Marra's attribute this remarkable growth? Certainly the energy crisis and the need for energy-efficient homes is one answer. The insulation business has soared and 15 trucks now make up the Marra fleet. Steel siding, much more durable and reliable than vinyl or aluminum, has taken off like a rocket as well. And the quality of their manufactured combination windows and doors are second to none. Something else, though, comes to mind by anyone who knows this family — no one in the outfit seems to know the meaning of an eight hour work day. It's not unusual to see the Marras at the plant long before the regular help arrives, and you can be sure they're the last to turn out the lights at night. These people never heard of the 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. executive. Wilmer is also quick to credit the devoted employees now working for the firm. "Without them," he said, "customer satisfaction and a quality product would be hard to achieve."

Wilmer, Luella, Ken and Darrell.

The most recent addition to the firm came in 1978 when son Ken (remember the baby mentioned earlier that Luella used to stroll to the shop?) joined the firm. To keep up with increasing sales, someone was needed to manage production and keep an even pace between the two operations. An eight year veteran as a mechanical and industrial engineer for Proctor and Gamble, Ken fit the bill to a "T." Not an easy decision to leave a major corporation and a home in San Francisco, it was six months before Ken accepted the offer to return to Wayne. After almost a year, the move has proved to be an excellent one for both the family and the company.

Many of the learned corporate management techniques are readily applicable to even small firms and Ken is making the best use of his talents is streamlining the company's operations and improving crew morale and performance.

What's ahead for the family operation? "A lot of expansion," replies Wilmer. Where? "Anywhere you want to look." The elder Marra mentioned plans to increase employment by an additional ten which would result in three more crews. The sales force has plenty of room for expansion as well. And, while the Sioux City office has tremendous potential in the next year or two, the family will maintain the company headquarters in Wayne. Wilmer concluded by saying, "It's been a lot of work, but we'd do it again. . ."

Raising The Roofs In The Midwest

Carhart Truss Manufacturing in Wayne had its beginnings back in 1966 very much as an experiment. Up to this time truss support members of buildings roofs were largely built on site — at the place of building construction. A Research Council of the National Lumber Dealers Association did research to see if a more mechanized "in house" method could be utilized to manufacture the truss supports for roofing. Armed with data supplied by the association and a healthy dose of "can do", Carhart Truss Mfg. began production early in an industry that has since proven great potential in the burgeoning construction market. Early construction was relatively crude when compared to present day methods. Nailing was done the "old fashioned" way, with hammer in hand, and wooden "gussets" or fasteners were used. As demand rose, however, more sophisticated equipment and materials came into being, the most significant being a hydraulic hand held press that pushed steel plates studded with nails into the truss wood. "This was the first big jump that gave us volume," Bob Carhart, president of the firm, recalled. Together with John Carhart, principal owner and Chuck Carhart, vice president, the three launched the company into one of their most successful operations today.

Production doubled during 1968-69 and with the introduction of even larger equipment, doubled again in 1970-71. Manufacturing space also increased dramatically from the original 2,100 sq. ft. to over 5,000 sq. ft. in 1970. In 1972, the firm became the third company in the United States to manufacture preconstructed floor trusses for direct application to housing sites.

Panalized wall units were also added to the manufacturing line. These consisted of preconstructed walls, complete with insulation, door, and window frames and could be shipped directly to the construction site for immediate set-up and finishing. Production in this area has been very successful and last year saw enough wall units manufactured to preconstruct 150 apartment units and thirty complete homes.

Shipments of all products are primarily to the immediate three state region of Nebraska, South Dakota and Iowa with lesser shipments into Minnesota, Kansas, Missouri and Colorado. Applications of the preconstructed components vary from 85 percent for residential to 15 percent for commercial which would also include churches, schools, stores and offices.

How can a manufactured wall panel, truss or floor fit an overall house plant that may be going up hundreds of miles away? "Computers," says Bob, "are the secret. By utilizing an on-line computer service based out of

Robert Carhart
President of Carhart
Truss

Milwaukee we obtain the proper cutting details for every angle and length. But, computers can go only so far. The quality of labor working for us is really responsible for the proper performance of all phases. Roy Sommerfeld, in our panel walls division, has been with us for twenty years. Ron Schierling, manager of the panel truss operation, Alan Rainbolt and Lee Echtenkamp are all key people in the team effort."

So exacting and precise are the operation's final products that the firm has earned constant certification by the Truss Plate Institute — one of the few inspection agencies formed to insure the proper materials, methods and construction are being applied. "This certification of our facilities," adds Bob, "allows us to supply contractors in areas with even highly restrictive building codes and standards."

Plans for the future of this "home grown" plant look optimistic and the number of 15 employees is expected to grow. With housing and construction demands expected to continue, you can be sure that Carhart Truss Mfg., will be "raising roofs" all over.

What makes the difference between a good factory location and a great one? Dave Frye, general plant manager for Nebraska National Fiberglass Corp. will tell you "People."

Three years ago, National Fiberglass Corp. was in the midst of serious consideration of where to locate the final phase of a "cover the nation" program by which the company would effectively reach their markets from coast to coast. "Covering the nation" was founder Ernie Hermann's original idea in 1957 when he started the company out in Gilroy, California. From there, the company expanded to locations in Texas, Oregon, Florida, Arizona and New Hampshire. All regions of the nation had been covered, except for the central states.

"We wanted to locate in Mason City, Iowa," recalls Dave, "but we couldn't get construction going there." Then we learned about the Emphasis building in Wayne, Nebraska and we came for a look."

Although National Fiberglass didn't buy the building, they were shown other available industrial lands nearby. "We felt a little more welcome and wanted," recalled Dave. "The sincerity of the people, especially the Wayne Industries representatives, I think really made a difference." Ernie took a special liking to then City Administrator, Fred Brink. The City was genuinely concerned with our locating here. Fred made sure we had whatever assistance we needed in our start-up and development period."

The company started production in Wayne the day after Labor Day in September, 1977 and it's track record, according to company officials has been most satisfactory. Nationwide, National Fiberglass is ranked 4th in unit production of fiberglass tubs, showers and combinations among 36 major companies. Only Universal, American Standard and Kohler produce more in this field respectively. When asked how a relative newcomer to the industry was able to achieve a major ranking, Dave explained that the overall stability of a good product has much to do with it. "Our company is well known among contractors for the knowledge we possess in the fiberglass production area. Add to this our effective follow-up on product delivery and it's easy to understand why we have customers that have been with us for 20 years and more on the west coast."

Workers applying fiberglass to another shower unit. (See finished product above.)

"We're very pleased to be here . . ."

The Wayne plant has an effective market area of eleven states including Nebraska, Iowa, Colorado, Wyoming, Kansas, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Illinois and Indiana. Siting that their plants don't just "spring up overnight," Dave says that National Fiberglass is looking forward to good steady growth. The company now employs fifteen with prospects of eventually going to 36 as the plant matures.

Dave also pointed out the livability of the community as a significant factor in his own locating here. "I brought Bonnie (his wife) and our oldest daughter back for a day and a half prior to making the decision to move to Wayne. We immediately liked the friendliness of the town. . .there was a 'down home' atmosphere here. We talked to a girl who clerked at Gibson's part time who was also a Wayne High student and she had nothing but enthusiasm. She assured us that our daughter was "gonna love it." We couldn't believe we were talking to a high school student! Another thing you still have is a downtown — so many places in California the downtowns have evaporated or deteriorated. Here you can park at one end of main street and walk all over. Even towns around us have a problem but Wayne has kept theirs up."

Having purchased an additional three acres with plans to build additional warehousing facilities in another year, Dave says things are going very well. "We're growing with the community and we're very pleased to be here."

Roy Broyhill

"Broyhill Mfg. and Wayne — A Good Weld"

With apologies to an old adage, it's interesting to note that behind every successful industry, there is usually a very successful founder. And folks who have met Roy Broyhill know this to be very true of both the man and the operation known as Broyhill Manufacturing in Wayne, a wholly owned subsidiary of Broyhill Inc. of Dakota City, Nebraska.

Roy started his original operation in 1946 manufacturing chemical sprayers for agriculture. A relatively new innovation at that time, the tiny firm has grown into a company with a reputation among farmers and Ag-related businesses as producing the finest quality equipment on the market today. Sprayers for crops, livestock, trees and lawns are all part of the entire product line now produced at the Dakota City plant. However, since the ag market is a seasonal one (mainly spring and summer), the company saw a need to diversify its product line to include operations that are ongoing year round. Now the firm is into the manufacture of a variety of product lines including stock tank heaters, steel boxes for utility vehicles, and a completely new system for residential garbage removal. It's these last two innovations that brought Broyhill to Wayne in 1974.

"We originally were looking for a location somewhere in South Dakota or Iowa," recalls Roy, "All of the sudden it hit me that Wayne was nearby so I drove down and had a look." Broyhill went on to relate the story of driving to Wayne one Thursday night and getting a hold of then Mayor Kent Hall who was also on the Board for Wayne Industries, Inc. Kent showed Roy the available property at the Industrial Park and from there, the rest is history. "The town was clean," Roy said, "It had the land I wanted, a college with excellent industrial arts facilities, and a City Administration that was quite cooperative to having new industry locate there."

A 16,000 sq. ft. steel building was erected and in May, 1975 Broyhill Manufacturing of Wayne opened its doors for business.

Basically a processing operation, the Wayne facility is responsible for the welding of prefabricated parts (trucked from the Dakota City plant) to produce complete sections that are shipped back to the main plant and joined to the finished product. These finished products include a general utility vehicle used by railroads and underground mining operations as well as the more well known "Load and Pack" system now being used in a number of cities in the U.S. and, more recently, overseas. The system as pictured lower is a relatively simple operation that allows one man to do the operation that normally takes three for residential garbage pick up and hauling. A hydraulically operated front "arm" grasps a 55-gallon drum or similar garbage container at curbside, lifts it over the cab of the vehicle and dumps the refuse into the bin in back. "No one else as yet has anything like it," commented Broyhill. "It makes a one man refuse system for municipalities or parks possible where it never was before."

The new vehicles are currently being used in Dallas, TX, Craig, CO, Wheatland, WYO, Fremont, NE and Teran Saudia Arabia. The next unit will go to Evanston, ILL. Fremont Sanitation in Fremont has been quite satisfied with the system and feels it's the most important breakthrough in garbage hauling to come along for years. Says Ron Roots, general manager, "It's the first thing that has ever lent any permanency to the occupation of garbage removal. The worker never leaves the vehicle. Before, jobs at hauling garbage were just temporary or part-time. . .now I can offer someone an occupation through to retirement age. . .You folks in Wayne really have quite an operation up there making these things."

For having "quite an operation" the Wayne plant of Broyhill Mfg., the processing of materials is relatively simple. The welding being done is not as complicated as people may often think of metal working, explained Roy. A Mig welding (Metal-Inert Gas) operation, Broyhill says he can take virtually any dependable worker and teach the basic process in just a short time. Skill can then be developed. All welding is done on line with no unusual process or application required. "By the way," Roy added, "women make good welders for us, too."

Other assembly operations include work on components for spraying equipment and small dump bodies for fitting on Cushman, Datsun, Easy Go, Jacobson, and Toro small truck chassis. These smaller utility vehicles have become increasingly popular as short haulers for both industry and municipal application, replacing more expensive full size pickups.

Last year, the 15-man plant produced over 10,000 completed units for all these lines including sprayers and the Load and Pack system. Future plans call for a possible physical expansion of the Wayne facility and an ongoing hiring program is presently underway. Roy ended by commenting "The move to Wayne has been a good one."

Valley Engine Is Gearing

Up In Wayne

When Gary Pick came to Wayne nine years ago he was interested only in building up the best John Deere dealership he could. He did, too. In fact, his operation is one of the largest implement dealerships in Nebraska. Where do you go from there, you might wonder. If you know Gary Pick, you know he'd get into something else. And he has. Through the years John Deere Co. has become one of the nation's largest manufacturers of diesel engines. Diesels have become increasingly popular because of their clean burning properties on less expensive diesel fuel. Sweepers, forklifts, utility vehicles and back-up generators for hospitals are but a few exemplary applications. But the biggest use right here in the midwest at present is center pivot irrigation. Enter—Valley Engine.

Just organized in late 1978, the current three man operation receives shipments of the Deere diesel units from their plant in Waterloo, Iowa. At the new 2,000 sq. ft. facility the engines are subjected to a manufacturing process to adapt them to any application a buyer needs, but primarily for center pivot and water pumping purposes. Generators are assembled, power take-offs are joined, trailer carts are welded and fitted, automatic shutoffs and instrument gauges are attached and fuel tanks are constructed for a final product to be shipped to the buyer. Only a small company to begin with, Valley Engine has already had some big accomplishments. An initial first year goal of 100 units was reached in only thirty days.

At right: A newly fitted engine awaiting trailer assembly.

Manager David Bahns, formerly with the Hesston Corporation for ten years, was brought into the business in December 1978 to further marketing efforts of the company. Present plans now call for marketing a package unit of pumps, pivots and engines in both Canada and Mexico. One shipment has already been sent to Canada and a bid put in on five units to Mexico. "There probably isn't anyone doing anything like what we're doing here," commented Pick. "Irrigation is just coming into its own sophistication and the U.S. is leading the way."

And, he adds, "we don't know if it'll happen, but we may even be going to China." Gary was referring to a new package he is bidding on for distributors who are marketing center pivot irrigation systems in China. If all goes well, Valley Engine could well be Wayne's first "home grown" plant to be international in scope. (Broyhill Mfg., who located here in 1975, is already exporting to the Middle East.) Will it happen for Valley Engine? Only Confucius know for sure!
