Seven Percent Legal Lid

City to Tighten Budgetary Belt

The Wayne city government is going to tighten up its budgetary belt by some seven notches because of newly passed LB 285. The Political Subdivision Budget Limit Act of 1979 provides for an annual allowable increase of seven percent in most areas of running the city.

Darrell Brewington, city administrator, made mention of the so-called seven percent lid to city council members at the council's last meeting.

While he said council members and the citizens of Wayne should be aware of the seven percent shutdown, there is no need for alarm. "We just want everything up front and to make assurances that we are keeping an eye on the situation."

Brewington said the intent of the legislature is basically sound in that it passed the lid measure to take some of the pressure off of property taxes.

"The increased valuations of real property has made owning a house a costly matter for many," Brewington explained. "And we are in agreement that some of the pressure should be taken off of property taxes."

The city administrator said the fly in the ointment is the sky-rocketing inflation factor. "We are now dealing with an inflation rate of 13.2 percent," he said. "And in all likelihood, it will hit 14 percent by August."

With the legislature holding political subdivisions such as cities to a seven percent curb, the differential now is 6.2 percent. "And that is just to keep up with inflation," Brewington commented.

The city is going into budget for fiscal 1979-80 and the administration is using a sharp pencil to derive as much as possible from the authorized seven percent bump over the past fiscal year.

"We are looking at just the basic functions such as street repair and maintenance, fire and police, parks and recreation, libraries or any of the city's operations which are funded from tax revenues, the bulk of which is property tax," Brewington stated.

"We are limited to a seven percent increase even though some of the programs might need more," the administrator explained. "And we're still fighting the cost of inflation."

LIFE FLIGHT helicopter settles down in lawn at Providence Medical Center

Emergency Transport Service

'Chopper Provides New Health Link

A new health link to a major medical center was demonstrated Thursday at Providence Medical Center.

A jet-powered Aerospatiale A.C. helicopter settled down on a "X" marked on the lawn of Providence Medical center to mark the availability of emergency helicopter transport service by St. Joseph hospital, Omaha.

Trained staff personnel from St. Joseph's were along to explain the craft and its equipment to personnel at Providence Medical.

The helicopter service has been dubbed "Life Flight" and will be available for fast transport on a 24-hour basis.

The arrival Thursday morning was a part of a testing program to determine the feasibility of establishing the service on a permanent basis. The Nebraska Department of Health, which previously questioned the need for the service, has concurred with the trial.

The Life Flight helicopter team can provide stabilization and transfer of critically-ill patients between hospitals, back up support to area rescue squads and the rapid transfer of medical personnel and supplies to the scene of major accidents or disasters.

Based less than 50 feet from the entrance to the emergency department at St. Joseph's, Life Flight may be requested by physicians, hospitals, law enforcement agencies, public safety officials and civil defense officials. The general public may not request the service.

A specially trained medical team can be airborne two to five minutes after St. Joseph receives the request for Life Flight service.

Highly skilled flight nurses will staff every flight and will be accompanied, if needed, by critical care physicians and other medical specialists. After stabilization, Life Flight can transport up to two adult patients or one newborn infant to the most appropriate hospital for treatment.

The uniquely designed and equipped helicopter, one of two in the nation, brings the team to the requested site at speeds up to 150 miles per hour and can land in an area 60 feet in diameter.

In the event of an emergency, most large, clear areas can be used as landing sites including athletic fields, farm yards and major intersections. It can land at night with minimal lighting such as a rotating beacon on top of an ambulance or police car.

Life Flight is equipped with such life supporting apparatus as: cardiac monitoring and defibrillation equipment, oxygen, suction respirator, a full complement of intravenous fluids, splinting equipment for back injuries and other fractures, complete emergency medications and burn packs.

The craft also has a highly sophisticated communications system which is in touch with St. Joseph's throughout the flight.

The helicopter has a primary service range within 150 miles, maximum range of 200 miles from Omaha and back without refueling.

The flight Omaha from Wayne would take approximately 43 minutes.

There is a base lift-off charge of $75 with a mileage charge of $2 per mile with physician services (if needed and requested) of $50 per hour.

The protocols for operating the service have the endorsement of seven Emergency Medical Service Coordinating Councils in the region.

Life Flight also visited the Wakefield hospital earlier Thursday morning.

Wayne Native is Wing Commander

COL. JAMES B. DAVIS

A Wayne native has been named commander of the 47th Tactical Fighter Wing (TFW), Nellis Air Force Base, Nev.

Col. James B. Davis is the son of Mrs. Mary Ellen Davis, formerly of Wayne.

Col. Davis was born in Wayne and was graduated from Wayne High School in 1953. He attended Wayne State College and the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. He received his commission from the Naval Academy as a second lieutenant in June, 1958.

Col. Davis assumed command of the wing the first part of May.

"I'm delighted with the assignment," Col. Davis said.

Being selected as a wing commander means fulfilling a personal goal, he added. "It's what I've wanted since I became an officer," he said.

The 47th TFW is a combat ready unit in the 12th Air Force, Tactical Air Command. The wing, composed of three operational squadrons, flies F-4D Phantom aircraft.

Col. Davis previously was vice commander of the 388th TFW. He is a command pilot with more than 4,000 flying hours. Among his decorations are the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Legion of Merit, Air Medal, Meritorious Service Medal and the Air Force Commendation Medal.

Drivers Ed. Class

The summer drivers' education program at Wayne High School is scheduled to begin today (Monday). Instructor Mike Mallette will be in charge of the summer class. Anyone still wishing to enroll should contact him.

Fort Carson, Colo.

Guard Unit Leaves for Summer Camp

Members of the Wayne National Guard unit left Wednesday for Fort Carson, Colo., where they will take part in the Guard's annual summer training.

The encampment began Saturday and will conclude June 17 with Visitor's Day June 17. Chuck Barnes, editor of the Herald, has been invited to attend the demonstration June 17.

Guard officials said fuel conservation measures are being mandated at both state and national levels, according to Maj. Gen. Edward C. Binder, adjutant general for Nebraska.

Gen. Binder directed a staff study which concluded it would be in the best interests of all concerned that training be conducted as scheduled at the out-state training site.

Fuel for the Nebraska National Guard is provided through the department of defense fuel allocations. The fuel required for the convoy to move to Fort Carson is already on hand in storage at various Guard facilities. Fuel required for the training at Fort Carson and the return move to Nebraska is also on hand in storage at Fort Carson.

The study revealed the training would not impact on any allocations for the civilian sector of Nebraska.

Current department of defense guidance states that "changes in planned annual training sites are not encouraged and should be held to a minimum. Mission readiness, health and safety must not be jeopardized, however, all operations must be examined for potential energy savings. Use of non-essential vehicles will be eliminated."

The staff study further pointed out that in-state training, such as was conducted in a similar situation in 1973, is impractical because of the extremely limited training facilities in Nebraska.

Gen. Binder said the study included the fact there are no firing ranges in the state to accommodate required crew-served weapons such as artillery, tanks or mortars.

He said the live firing of these weapons is an important part of the overall level of readiness required for the 67th Infantry Brigade by the Department of Army.

The units of the Nebraska Army National Guard which make up the Nebraska Brigade are an integral part of the overall national defense posture and are required to meet specified standards of individual and unit combat proficiency.

In reality, this cannot be accomplished with in-state training, Gen. Binder stated. "We simply are not equipped to house and train several thousand people at one time in Nebraska."

According to Binder, every effort is being made to conserve fuel and other sources of energy, consistent with the accomplishment of required DOD training requirements. Only those vehicles absolutely essential to the required training mission will be taken to Fort Carson.

Wayne Theatre Group Plans July 4 Talent Show

Plans are in the works for a talent show sponsored by the Wayne Community Theatre group.

According to spokesman for the group, the talent show will be held on Independence Day, July 4.

A variety of exciting performances is anticipated, however more acts are welcome. Persons who are interested in the talent show are encouraged to attend the next meeting of the Wayne Community Theatre on Tuesday, June 5, at 7:30 p.m. at The Stratton House in Wayne.

Plans for a fall dinner theatre production, "Carnival," also be discussed at Tuesday night's meeting.

Keith Lykke Graduated With 'High Distinction'

Keith R. Lykke, Wayne, was graduated from the College of Architecture, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, with "high distinction" during commencement ceremonies recently.

Other candidates for degrees from the area included Janine Marie Allen and Ingeborg A. Klein Atkins, both of Wayne, who received master of arts degrees.

William Lee Hagerman, also of Wayne, received a doctor of philosophy degree.

Those receiving bachelor of science degrees in agriculture were Timothy Charles Anderson, Laurel; Michael Raymond Calhoun, Laurel; Steven Mark Gramlich, Carroll and Gary Louis Hansen, Carroll.

Awarded a bachelor of arts degree was Richard John Ginn, Wayne.

Receiving a bachelor of science degree in the College of Arts and Sciences were Keith R. Lykke, Wayne and Carol Ann Peterson, Carroll.

Lawrence Adrian Vrtiska, Wayne, received a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering.

Nanci Beth Carlson, Wakefield, was awarded a bachelor of science degree in education.

Granted a certificate in agriculture was Gerald Wayne Echtenkamp. The certificate was granted but not conferred at the commencement ceremonies.

County Fair Receives $1,000 from Ak-Sar-Ben

The Wayne County Fair at Wayne has received $1,000 from Ak-Sar-Ben.

This totals $4,000 that Wayne County Agricultural society has received from Ak-Sar-Ben toward the construction of an agricultural exhibit building and interior sealing, lighting, pen construction and exterior landscaping. The work is nearly completed and will be ready for fair time.

The County Fair Improvement Program, now in its 26th year, is one of a series of projects of financial assistance to county fairs made possible by funds from Ak-Sar-Ben's annual race meeting, according to John D. Woods, chairman of the Agricultural committee of this civic organization.

This year Ak-Sar-Ben is again offering to Nebraska County Fairs, through the Building Grant program, up to a maximum of $1,000 annually for construction of permanent improvements on the fair grounds in the Cornhusker State.

This popular county fair program follows the "dollar-matching" principle, in that Ak-Sar-Ben agrees to match dollars with each county fair which will match its contribution with at least an equal amount.

Ak-Sar-Ben annually sets aside $85,000 for this improvement program, and in the first 25-year period has donated well over $3 million to benefit the fairs.

City to Send Out Call for Volunteers

The city soon will be putting a call for volunteers to help renovate the city ballpark.

Darrell Brewington, city administrator, said a grant of $144,500 has been "approved and programmed" which means it will be submitted to the Heritage Conservation and Recreation service (formerly known as the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation) for final approval.

Brewington said it is expected the grant will be approved on a basis of 50 percent federal funds, 25 percent state and 25 percent local or "in-kind."

A breakdown would have the federal government paying $72,250 with $36,250 coming from the state and city. The city's portion has Brewington somewhat concerned.

"We don't have the money to meet the city's portion so we are asking for in-kind payment which means volunteer labor and donated construction materials," Brewington stated.

Plans call for the construction of a baseball diamond, two softball fields, perimeter fencing, lighting, new bleachers, concession and restroom building and small ice skating area.

Definite plans for the project will be announced in the near future, he said.

Temporary reprieve for train

SENATOR EDWARD ZORINSKY (D-NEB.)

The San Francisco Zephyr — Nebraska's only passenger train — seems due this month for a temporary reprieve.

"The train will definitely run next year, and will definitely run for a portion of the year after," a colleague in a position to know told me recently.

But, he added, for the train to survive longer, the number of people who use it must increase.

The Department of Transportation recommended to Congress last January that the Zephyr be merged with the Southwest Limited, and run on a new route through Kansas City that would bypass Nebraska entirely.

The recommendation was one of 16 given Congress by DOT, the results of a two-year study of the nation's rail passenger system. The study was supposed to suggest ways to make AMTRAK, a persistent money-loser, self-supporting.

The Zephyr was an obvious candidate for cost-cutting. The train loses 3.7 cents a passenger per mile. It simply cannot compete with jet travel for passengers who want to go the full distance, from Chicago to San Francisco. And unfortunately, AMTRAK has scheduled it to attract only those people. It passes through most of the intermediate points, including Nebraska, in the early morning hours.

Congress is now busy considering DOT's recommendations. Each house has on its calendar a bill that would permit the merging of routes, but only where it would lead to "equivalent or better service."

This would keep the Zephyr alive, since it is impossible for AMTRAK to start service on the new route for another year and a half.

And it may even help after the new route is ready. Going west via Kansas City adds two hours to one's travelling time to San Francisco, and ten to Los Angeles. That is hardly the same or better service.

The legislation should pass Congress without serious opposition.

But in the long-run, the Zephyr must rise or fall on whether it can break even. The golden years of rail travel were the 1920's and 30's. From then until 1970, the number of railroad passengers fell steadily, and the number of trains needed to accommodate them dwindled from 20,000 to 400.

AMTRAK was formed to prevent passenger trains from disappearing permanently. Congress thought AMTRAK could take a "core system," and make money. Instead, the corporation has run up ever-mounting losses.

We can't continue to subsidize it endlessly. Paying for a rail passenger network that few people want makes little sense economically. Better to spend the money on a new industry, that will provide a better product and jobs, than on trying to save one that is dying.

Without a doubt, as the prices of gasoline and aviation fuel increase, AMTRAK will become more competitive.

I would like, therefore, to see expected ridership used as a criterion for deciding where trains should run, rather than just say. If America is allowed to see a return of train travel, our rail system should not be further phased out.

I would also like AMTRAK to quit trying to take long-distance travellers away from the airlines, as on the Chicago-to-San Francisco route. It should be travelling across the midwest during the day, and not at two and three in the morning. People are much more likely to use the train if they have to travel only a few hours, than if their trip is two days.

Once these steps have been taken, we will know whether the Zephyr deserves to stay. If it does not, I will be the first to say so.

BarneStorming

With Chuck Barnes

This is "She die" for BarneStorming. —CHB—

We realize this is not the sort of dramatic announcement that will provoke mass suicide. But it is necessary none the less since Dan Field, new Herald editor, will occupy this corner.

For some, the so-called demise of BarneStorming will be welcome relief. For others (me), it will be a relief.

This is not to say we haven't had fun trying to pick up on the lighter side of things in the Wayneland area. We've poked fun; we've ridiculed; we've lied and done the many other devious deeds that go into writing a personal column.

But then it all boils down to whatever turns you on. To each his (or her) own. —CHB—

We are not burying "BarneStorming." It's more like good wine... we're going to let it age a while. And it has a "bad penny" tendency. It could turn up when you least expect it. —CHB—

To those of you who have stayed with us, we salute you. —CHB—

And that is that!

Rail losses hurt farmers

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION BY M.M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

Decline of the nation's rail transportation service over the past 50 years has reached a point where it poses severe limitations on the U.S. agricultural industry.

Coupled with the energy crunch, the alternatives of other means of freight are also threatened. Recent application of the Milwaukee Railroad to abandon (for reasons of bankruptcy) 7,400 miles of its lines serving vast agricultural sectors of northern and western United States illustrates the problem in graphic fashion.

But on a smaller scale the same things have been happening here in Nebraska and in most other states as branch lines have been abandoned through the years.

Deterioration of rail service to rural areas has been complicated in the past 10 years by a big increase in both agricultural production and the movement of grain into the export market. This past year, 4 billion bushels of grain and soybeans were exported from the U.S. as compared to about 2 billion bushels 10 years ago. Think what that means in terms of collection and shipment from country elevators to major terminals and then cross-country to port terminals. It is small wonder that there have been boxcar shortages and costly bottlenecks at turn-around points, and surprising that the system has held together as well as it has.

Midwestern and western congressmen have proposed a new concept in Senate Bill 261 to amend the consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act. It would provide funds for planning state and regional subterminal storage and transportation facilities. Loans and guaranteed loans would be provided by Farmers Home Administration to construct and start up subterminal facilities with small grain elevators selling their present facilities and reinvesting in the ownership and operation of such facilities without a capital gains tax.

It would mean longer hauls for farmers to deliver their grain and bigger trucks on rural roads where a high percentage of bridge capacities are inadequate for today's heavier loads. S. 261 may offer an answer or a partial answer. It is almost a certainty that neither the railroads nor the taxpayers can rebuild and restore the rural rail transportation system to what it was in the first half of this century.

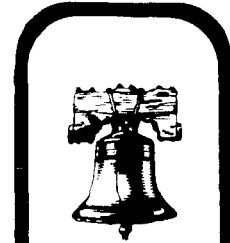

The present situation resulted from a combination of many things that contributed to the decline of public transportation, not just one single factor. Excessive government regulation of the railroads contributed to their inability to meet competition. Union work rules helped force abandonment of the small shipment business. Loss of mail contracts hastened the end of rail passenger service. The oil pipelines took over from the long lines of tanker cars that once crossed the country from the oil fields.

Once feeder cattle moved by rail out of the Sandhills and Wyoming-to-feedlots in Eastern Nebraska and the Corn Belt states. Now they move by truck, for convenience, speed of delivery and less weight loss. Even slaughter cattle in the 1920's were driven to railheads and destined for Omaha, Sioux City and Chicago central livestock markets.

In a "use it or lose it" economy, the present situation has been fully predictable. It should be remembered that the rail services of Western Europe, both passenger and freight, were rebuilt after the destruction of World War II and continue to be the backbone of their transportation system.

Perhaps the present energy reversals will force the hard decisions and innovative thinking needed to solve the nation's transportation problems. No one has bigger stake in their solution than the American farmer.

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson Letter 1786

SENATOR JOHN R. MURPHY District No. 17

110 East 37th Street South Sioux City, Nebraska 68776

For better or for worse, this legislative session will have ended by the time this letter is printed. It has been an unusual and different year, reflecting very strongly the change in makeup of the Legislature, resulting from the last election.

Nebraska has not taken the problems of New York seriously. The financial crisis, brought about by an overblown system of pensions, is a lesson that has not been learned.

One of the final acts of the Legislature of last year was to extend pension benefits to former employees and spouses of the Omaha public employment sector.

Inasmuch as there had been no prior funding provided for this cost, it will be borne in addition to the costs of the program for current employees.

An initial bill sent to the floor by the Retirement Committee provided authority to increase by 50 percent the pension benefits of all public employees of this state. Not only would it have increased the size of the pensions, but it would have provided a 50 percent increase in the amount of money paid to administer the program. I was successful in eliminating this expansion.

We have just increased the salaries of all the judges in the state some by almost 30 percent. We will be paying our district judges, workmen's compensation judges and supreme court judges considerably more than we are presently paying the Governor of this state.

We do not provide pensions for our past governors, however we do provide a very handsome pension for our judges.

This year the Legislature appropriated over $600,000 to fund this pension plan and yet another bill is before us which would increase this pension system to an even higher level.

For the last seven years, we have been funding the retirement system for the teachers of Nebraska at a cost of nearly $5,000,000 a year. It is anticipated, or was, that it would be currently funded by 1995.

Not only are these pension systems being provided, but additionally, most receive the nearly $6,000 in Social Security benefits that you and I receive.

It would be fun to join those of my colleagues who believe that there is no end to programs of this sort and that the funding just comes naturally.

However, our tax burden has now become so great that we must engage in exemptions to protect the elderly and the low income families from the ravages of this very sort of program. I would like to say to the teachers, I am your old buddy and I have provided for you.

I would like to say to the judges that I have great respect for you and you should be well rewarded for your services.

But what do I tell those of you at home who have not as yet thrown in the towel and are still working (in many cases both members of the family working), in order to sustain a decent level of living and still pay the unshy burden of the continuing escalation of taxes?

It gives me no pleasure to say "no" to programs that would benefit friends and neighbors, but it is my belief that the acknowledgement that we cannot support the limitless expansion of the cost of state government is a responsibility that rests squarely on the shoulders of the Legislature.

YOU AND YOUR CAR

Government-mandated fuel-economy standards are resulting in the big V-8 engine becoming an endangered species, says the Automotive Information Council.

In its place, you'll be seeing more and more six- and four-cylinder engines.

While these smaller displacement engines do give better fuel economy and reduced emissions, they can't give the same quick acceleration as the V-8.

So enter the turbocharger as the answer to increasing a small engine's power. Turbocharging, sometimes called supercharging, hasn't been used much in recent years except on race cars. In the past, a supercharger was added to some high performance engines to enable them to accelerate from zero to a speeding ticket in less time than it probably took to read this sentence. A turbocharger's basic principle still holds true for today's autos — an engine will develop more power if more air and fuel is pumped through it.

It increases the efficiency of the engine by boosting the power output of the engine on demand without increasing the amount of fuel burned during normal operation.

A turbocharger is a compressor which provides a super charge of air to be burned with the fuel. This pressurizing is above and beyond the normal compression of the air-fuel mixture when squeezed against the top of the cylinder by the piston. By increasing the amount of air-fuel in each charge in the combustion chamber, there is more power released as the mixture burns.

In the past, many compressors were driven by the engine, drawing off some of the engine's power. Today's turbocharged engines harness energy of exhaust gases, left over after combustion, to drive the turbine, which powers the compressor. The compressor forces air into the engine, making more power.

The extra power produced by a smaller turbocharged engine can give it the same get-up-and-go of a larger conventional engine, while the smaller engine uses fuel frugally during normal operation, says the Automotive Information Council.

'All the king's horses...'

Richard L. Leshar, President Chamber of Commerce of the United States

While Alice, the lovely young heroine of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, and Through the Looking Glass, was walking through a magical forest, she chanced upon a grumpy, egg-like character named Humpty Dumpty. The two immediately began discussing the meaning of words.

"When I use a word," Humpty Dumpty said, in rather a scornful tone, "it means just what I choose it to mean — neither more nor less."

"The question is," said Alice, "whether you can make words mean so many different things."

Alice, of course, quickly learned that you can, and this puzzled and unsettled her. During her seven short years she had come to believe a word has a strength and integrity of its own. She could rely on it. But now, Humpty Dumpty had jolted her into realizing that what often determines meaning is not the word itself, but the people using it, and their cleverness in manipulating it!

I cite Alice's experience because it applies to us. It helps explain the growing frustration so many Americans feel toward the federal government — a frustration leading to an erosion of credibility. Today, more and more, Americans distrust what they hear from Washington because they sense the words are being manipulated; they sense the truth is being manipulated and they know they are being manipulated. Consider a few examples.

The Davis-Bacon Act, which stipulates that the prevailing wage of a local area must be paid on all federally funded construction projects, has been roundly denounced for unrealistically and arbitrarily jacking up the costs of construction. The General Accounting Office (GAO), the independent and respected congressional oversight agency, conducted nine separate studies over 20 years which concluded: Davis-Bacon is poorly administered; it adds hundreds of millions of dollars to construction costs and it adds to the rate of inflation. GAO now recommends Davis-Bacon be repealed. GAO released some truly shocking evidence. It found that wage data collected by the Department of Labor was not used or was "deleted, added and changed...without adequate reason or rationale." GAO found that Labor's comments on its study were mostly "misleading, inaccurate, taken out of context, unsupported, and often did not reflect the information in its files." In essence, it found manipulation of words, facts and people.

How did the Administration react? The Secretary of Labor thinks Davis-Bacon is quite all right, thank you, and he dismissed the GAO study as a "sloppy piece of work." The President, who has used the words, "I will do everything in my power to combat inflation," has in effect, done nothing. Reason? Politics.

Happily, the Department of Labor has just released a study of its own which should make everyone feel a lot better. It seems that the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), which has been widely criticized as one of the most demonstrably corrupt of all federal programs, has actually been the very model of efficiency all along. Surprise!

Silly me. Here I was, genuinely concerned to read CETA might be

Who's who, what's what? Unicameral Review

SENATOR ELOY M. HEFNER District No. 19

Box 36 Coleridge, Nebr. 68727

The Unicameral adjourned "sine die" for the session last Wednesday evening at 6:30 p.m. Governor Charles Thone congratulated us for a job well done in his farewell message and hoped our good relations would continue.

It was a hectic day as we were on final reading all morning. The Governor kept his promise by returning the bills that he vetoed by 4 p.m. This gave the introducer an opportunity to have the legislature override the veto on his particular bill. The Legislature was only successful in one attempt out of three. A total of six bills were vetoed by the Governor on this final day.

One of the major bills to pass on final reading earlier in the day was LB 262, the abolishment of the death penalty by a 26-22 vote. However, the Governor kept his promise and promptly vetoed the bill. There was no attempt later in the day to override the veto and so Nebraska still has the death penalty law.

The Legislature was able to keep the state budget increase within a 7 percent limit. Before this year we had experienced a 210 percent increase over the past 10 years. It took much restraint on the part of many senators and the governor to hold it to the 7 percent figure. Many of the people in the 19th Legislative District have written or called me indicating they wanted state government expenses held at this level or below.

I was disappointed that we were not able to resolve some of the tough problems that we have in our state, particularly the property tax equalization and water policy. However, the Revenue Committee will be holding a property tax equalization seminar in Lincoln for all state senators in early June. Also, we will be scheduling some interim study committee meetings throughout the state this summer and fall.

This will probably be my last column this year unless we would be called in special session and I see no need for one at this time. I will be at our home in Coleridge this summer and you can write or call me there. My telephone number is 283-4475. Also, I will be available to speak to groups or attend celebrations during the coming months.

subsidizing four existing jobs for each job it creates...frankly disturbed by a GAO study showing that the $755 million summer jobs program within CETA last year provided meaningful work training for less than a third of all youngsters who participated...and really alarmed to hear that millions of dollars are being administered by CETA in prisons to murderers, rapists, and armed robbers — prisoners ineligible for parole for many years. You can imagine my relief upon learning an exhaustive five-year Labor department audit suggests less than one percent of CETA money has been "misspent."

The manipulation of words goes to the highest levels of government. Stung by its inability to control inflation, the Administration has taken to bragging it has slashed the deficit in half. We're supposed to believe that's due to an "austere" budget. Sorry, federal spending has ballooned by almost 25 percent in just the past two years. The decisive words are always left unsaid. The deficit went down last year because inflation pushed your taxes up — an average of $1,000 per household, and a record for any four-quarter period. While inflation punishes you, it rewards the government. This is a dangerous game: we can no longer afford to abuse words. Should people conclude Washington is not serious, that the fight against inflation is empty rhetoric, they will understandably rush to protect themselves and buy now rather than later.

That will make inflation worse. It will feed upon itself and our nation will risk a terrible economic break-down. And if that ever happens, no amount of speeches, promises or men, will quickly succeed in putting our economy back on its feet again.

Third Place Wayne Suffers Loss To Powerful Prep Team

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

WAYNE STATE'S FOOTBALL TEAM recently received another win for the 1978 season. It was announced that Pittsburg State used an ineligible player against the Cats and now must forfeit the game. The win by forfeit ups Wayne's record from 3-5-2 to 4-4-2. Pittsburg also had to forfeit a win over Kearney State and because of their forfeits had to surrender the Central States Intercollegiate Conference co-championship to Kearney.

THIS YEAR'S CHUCK ELLIS TOURNAMENT was well run with a fine brand of baseball being demonstrated by the participants. For the first time in years, rain didn't hinder the play and fans were treated to some exciting games. North east Nebraska made its impression on the bigger teams from Sioux City, Council Bluffs and Sioux Falls.

Three Sioux City teams were in the tourney and all took early exits. Sioux Falls and Council Bluffs TJ were both booted out in their first games as well. Only Creighton Prep, which received three byes into the semifinals, was able to win. And they won it all.

Prep was indeed a very good ball club. They were solid in all areas of the game, although they had trouble with the squeeze play against Wakefield. The only problem with Creighton Prep was that they had to play only two games while Wayne and Wakefield each finished with 3-1 records.

I don't feel that any team deserves three byes in a tournament despite their hectic schedule and talent. Without Prep, the 12-team field would have worked out well, with four teams receiving single byes. But it's over and done with and I don't want to sound like I'm making excuses for Wayne and Wakefield.

SPORTSMANSHIP is a quality that goes along with athletics. Individuals who are man enough to participate in organized sports should also be man enough to show good sportsmanship. I have been writing sports for The Wayne Herald for a little more than a year now and until the semifinal game of the Chuck Ellis Tournament, I don't believe I've ever seen a show of poor sportsmanship from any Wayne team.

I was disappointed Thursday night in Wakefield. Players, who I had watched display good sportsmanship for the past year, broke down and lost their composure. I'm not talking about every player on the Wayne Legion team but the few who acted in an unsportsmanlike manner set a bad example for others.

Hank Overin's players don't usually give up until the final out. And then if they lose, they usually act in a friendly representative manner. I know each individual on Hank's team personally and I feel each one of them is my friend. They don't normally lose their composure and when they did Thursday, I was disappointed.

Players have the right to dispute calls by the umpires and they were naturally disappointed to win three games only to lose to a team that received three byes. But the tourney pairings were history and umpires' calls should be forgotten. Bat throwing and helmet throwing are unexcused. Complaining about the officiating only hinders the rest of the game.

I think this group of young men acted out-of-line and as a sportswriter and a friend I feel it's my duty to criticize them for it just as coach Overin felt it was his responsibility to do the same.

I don't think this will happen again. I think these men will hold their heads up with pride and realize that they are representing the community, the coach, the recreation program and themselves. They are fine individuals and in the future they will display the qualities that they earned all of their lives.

It takes runs to win baseball games and the Wayne Legion team couldn't buy a hit much less a run against a well-balanced team from Creighton Prep. The loss dropped Wayne to third place in the eighth annual Chuck Ellis Memorial Baseball Tournament in Wakefield, Thursday.

Wayne defeated Elkhorn, Council Bluffs TJ and Norfolk to reach Thursday's game. Creighton Prep was making its tourney debut after receiving a triple bye. The Omahans sewed up second place by bombing Wayne 9-0 and later won the title with a 1-0 win over Wakefield.

Legion coach Hank Overin was disappointed if not embarrassed by his team's poor show of sportsmanship.

"They were probably the best team the Legion faced since Council Bluffs Thomas Jefferson in 1975," coach Hank Overin stated. "Then, at least we held our composure. This time we showed poor sportsmanship." "This was one of the best run Chuck Ellis Tourneys ever," Overin continued, "and we were just outplayed. We'll face strong teams in the future. We have to learn how to take the losses and hold our heads up."

"The players had poor attitudes. With the bat throwing and helmet throwing, some of them should have been ejected from the game. If this happens again during the season, and there are some Midgets in the stands, I'll pull them out of the stands and let them play," Overin emphasized. "We're trying to build character and men, not just baseball players."

The official scorer credited Jeff Miller, one of Prep's six pitchers, with the no-hitter. Wayne came close to collecting base hits when Dan Mitchell reached second base in the second inning and when Tom Ginn reached first in the fourth inning.

Mitchell drove a long fly ball into deep right field. The Prep right fielder backed up and finally reached the ball, knocking it down with his glove. Mitchell reached second but was stranded on base when the next three hitters were retired. Ginn made his attempt at a base hit when he hit a solid ground ball to second base. The second baseman stopped the ball but was unable to make the play to first base in time. It was ruled an error.

Dennis Carroll checked the Creighton Prep bats for the first two innings but the team was racked for four runs on three hits and two errors in the third inning.

Jerry Goeden relieved Carroll with two outs in the third inning and ended the threat. However, Prep scored two more runs in the fourth for a 6-0 lead. Tim Pfeiffer took over pitching duties for Wayne, allowing three runs in the final 2 1/3 innings.

Wakefield Finishes Second To Creighton Prep's Pitching

After climbing to the finals of the Chuck Ellis Memorial Tournament for the first time in history, the host Wakefield Legion ran into a powerful team from Creighton Prep and took the back seat to the hard hitting tournament favorites in a 10 nine inning loss. The two teams engaged in a pitching duel Thursday evening until Prep scored the lone run of the game in the bottom of the ninth.

Wakefield reached the finals by downing Sioux City West, Sioux Falls and Creighton. They were designated the visiting team in all four games. Prep reached the finals by virtue of a triple bye and a 9-0 win over Wayne. The Omahans were assured of third place before playing Wayne because of schedule conflicts during opening rounds of the tournament.

The first jam came in the third inning when Creighton Prep loaded the bases with one out. Guy caught a popped up ball to ruin a suicide squeeze play and threw to third base for the third out.

Prep again loaded the bases in the fifth inning with one out. This time, Prep's batter popped out and Guy fanned the next batter for the final out.

Prep threatened in the sixth with runners on second and third with no outs. Guy, who threw "99 percent curve balls" according to coach Paul Eaton, fanned the next batter for out number one. Then, the batter struck out and the runner, moving home from third base on the play, was tagged out by catcher Swigart ending the threat.

Creighton Prep's final failure came in the bottom of the seventh with runners on second and third and one out. Again the squeeze play failed as the batter tried to bunt and missed the pitch. The charging runner was tagged out in a rundown near home plate and the game went into extra innings.

The winning run was scored in the ninth, when Jeff Miller reached base on a bunt single. Wakefield fielded the ball and overthrew first base allowing Miller to reach second. A sacrifice bunt advanced Miller to third and he scored on a single by Bob Mancuso, ending the game. Wakefield managed only two hits off of Prep's pitching. Swigart and Preston collected the hits but couldn't get into scoring position.

Following the game, Wakefield was presented the runner-up trophy and Guy and Swigart were named members of the All-Tournament team. Guy also received a plaque as Most Valuable Player in the tourney.

Guy, Ginn, Swigart On All-Tourney Team

After surprising many people by winning three games a piece in the Chuck Ellis Memorial Tournament, Wakefield placed two players on the All-Tournament team and Wayne placed one individual on the squad.

Rick Guy, who allowed only two runs in 17 innings of pitching, and veteran catcher Todd Swigart were picked to represent Wakefield. Guy was selected as Most Valuable Player in the tourney. Shortstop Tom Ginn, who made some fine defensive plays and timely outs, was the lone Wayne representative.

Other players named to the nine man team are: Terry Kurtenbach, Norfolk outfielder; Mike Ralston, Creighton pitcher and first baseman; Kirk Kukuk, Sioux City West pitcher; Jeff Miller, Creighton Prep pitcher; Jim Schemmeier, Creighton Prep catcher; Chris Knust, Creighton Prep outfielder.

Baseball Coach Anson Accepts Washburn Post

Steven Anson, head interim baseball coach and assistant basketball coach at Wayne State College during the past year, has accepted a similar position at Washburn University in Topeka, Kan. for the 1979-80 school year.

While at Wayne State, Anson coached the baseball team to a 23-22 record and a berth in the regional tournament in Hutchinson, Kan. His team dethroned Kearney State as Nebraska state champions to earn the berth. Anson took over the head baseball duties while coach Ron Jones was on a one-year leave.

"We're tickled to get a man of Steve's caliber," Washburn athletic director Glenn Cafer said. "He did a fine job at Wayne State and we are very pleased that he will be taking over a similar position at Washburn."

Anson will fill a baseball head coaching vacancy and will take over as assistant basketball coach after Bob Chipman moved up from the assistant coaching job to head coach. Cafer, former head basketball coach, is now athletic director at the university.

Anson will begin his job at Washburn on Aug. 1, trying to improve on a baseball team that finished 13-15 for the season. The basketball team posted a 21-6 record. Washburn is a member of the Central States Intercollegiate Conference, of which Wayne State is a member.

CONFUSED BY ALL THE DIFFERENT PERCENTAGE RATES OFFERED ON MONEY MARKET CERTIFICATES?

Let First National Bank of Wayne give it to you straight. No matter what formula you use, the interest received at maturity is exactly the same. Here's why. The interest rates on all 182 day money market certificates are regulated. That means all banks and savings and loans offering insured money market certificates pay exactly the same amount of money to you in the form of interest at maturity of your CD. Don't let all the numbers confuse you.

See the First National Bank of Wayne for the highest interest allowed on insured money market certificates.

NOW PAYING 9.409%

Federal law and regulation prohibit the payment of a time deposit prior to maturity unless 3 months of the interest thereon is forfeited and interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the passbook rate. Federal law also prohibits the compounding of interest.
