During One Year Period

Wayneland Farmland Jumps in Value

Farm real estate in the Wayneland area is one of the leaders in a dynamic market, according to two University of Nebraska Lincoln agricultural economists.

The strong, broad-based upward trend in land values across most of the state and in Northeast Nebraska continues to be a sellers' market. During the year ending Feb. 1, 1979, farm real estate values rose an average of 22 percent. The strong showing was even more so in the Wayneland area which showed an increase of plus 25 percent.

According to figures compiled by Dr. Bruce B. Johnson and Dr. Ronald J. Hanson, the increase in Nebraska was the second highest in the United States.

Nationwide, the increase averaged 14 percent and for Nebraska's neighboring states, the increases ranged from 12 percent to 21 percent. Centering their attention on Northeast

Nebraska, the two ag economists found: Dryland cropland (no irrigation potential) showed a 25.5 percent increase during the year, jumping from $648 an acre to an impressive $813 an acre.

Dryland cropland (irrigation potential), another 25.5 percent increase, jumping from $741 in 1978 to $930 an acre in 1979.

Grazing cropland (fertilizable), the Northeast sector showed a 20.3 percent increase with the land bringing $433 an acre in 1978 compared to $521 in 1979.

Grazing land (nonfertilizable), the increase was not as impressive but an increase nonetheless. The tabulations show a 10.4 percent with this type of land ranging from $308 an acre in 1978 to $340 in 1979.

Hayland showed a 17.8 increase during the year with 1978 land bringing $370 an acre and 1979 land, $436. Gravity irrigated land went past the 25 percent mark once again with the land valued at $1,030 in 1978 to $1,289 in 1979 for a 25.3 percent increase.

Center pivot irrigated land also showed an impressive gain with land valued at $956 an acre in 1978. It jumped 21.8 percent in 1979 to $1,164 in 1979.

Northeast Nebraska was ranked about third in the state for increases in farm real estate values.

This jump in Nebraska's farmland values follows a minor decline during the previous 12 month period, according to the study. As a result, the total change in Nebraska's land values over the past two years is about par for the region and the nation.

According to Johnson and Hanson, the See VALUE, page 10

'79 Corn Rates Stay the Same

County loan and purchase rates for 1979 corn are based on the national loan and purchase rate of $2 per bushel, the same as last year, according to the Wayne County ASCS office.

There have been no significant changes in county to county or area-to-area relationships that would warrant any change in county loan relationships, officials stated.

They pointed out, however, that because of shifts in production from higher to lower loan rates areas, it was necessary to raise all 1979 county crop loan rates one cent per bushel from 1978 in order to support 1979 crop corn at the national loan rate average of $2 per bushel.

Under the schedule of premiums and discounts, the premiums for low moisture content are increased one cent, from one to two in the range of 14.6 through 15.0 percent, two to three cents in the range from 14.1 through 14.5 percent. A premium of four cents was established for 14 percent or less.

Copies of the 1979 crop corn county loan rates are sent to State ASCS offices.

VA Payments Total $593,833

Wayne County received $593,833 in disbursements from the Veterans Administration during 1978, according to James C. Smith, director of the VA regional office in Lincoln.

A total of $371,335 was awarded for compensation and pension; $180,236 for readjustment and vocational rehabilitation and $42,262 in insurance and indemnities. Dixon County received a total of $419,629 and Cedar County received a total of $624,830.

A total of nearly $147 million was disbursed in Nebraska during fiscal 1978, according to Smith.

The largest portion, $60.2 million, represented disability compensation and pension checks to veterans, their dependents and survivors.

Approximately $29.2 million provided for GI Bill educational and vocational rehabilitation programs for Nebraska veterans and $47.6 million went toward VA hospital and regional office operating costs, he said.

The remainder was expended for GI insurance and indemnities (6.8 million), direct home loans ($813,428), and construction and related costs ($2.9 million).

The VA has five facilities in Nebraska, including medical centers (hospitals) in Omaha, Lincoln and Grand Island, a regional office in Lincoln and Fort McPherson National Cemetery in Maxwell.

Jones' 104 Nets Wayne Title

Nebraska University golfer Knox Jones fired a two-under par 34 on the final nine holes to hold a two-stroke lead and win the Wayne Spring Open Golf Tournament, Sunday at the Wayne Country Club. Jones led with a 70 after 18 holes in the championship flight. He then withstood a challenge by Tim Marchese of Omaha and Dale Erwin of Sioux City to win the tournament. All three golfers shot 34 on the final nine holes, with an exciting finish for the gallery.

After topping his drive on the par five ninth hole, Jones hit a strong three-wood to get within 140 yards of the green. He, then hit a tremendous nine-iron shot within six inches of the cup for a birdie four.

The long hitting Marchese reached the final green in two shots and sank a 30 foot putt for an eagle three. He carded three on the final four holes after scoring a six with an out-of-bounds penalty on the fifth hole. He tried to cut the corner with his drive on number five but hit too much hook. Erwin finished his two-under round with a par on the final hole.

Now's The Time To Enter Open Tennis Tournament

Entries are now being accepted for the annual Wayne Open Tennis Tournament sponsored by the Wayne Tennis Club.

This year's tourney, sanctioned by the United States and Missouri Valley Tennis Associations, will be played on two weekends — June 23-24 and June 30-July 1.

Men's open singles and doubles competition and men's 45 singles and doubles competition are scheduled for the first weekend (June 23-24). The second weekend of competition (June 30-July 1) will feature men's "A" singles and doubles, men's 35 singles and doubles, women's open singles and doubles and the open mixed doubles.

Entry deadline for both tournament dates is June 13.

Entry forms can be obtained by writing to tournament director Tom Roberts, 512 Valley Drive, Wayne, Nebr., 68787. Entrants must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Additional information can be obtained by contacting Roberts at 375-1301.

The Wayne tournament is among those stops on the Nebraska Tennis Association tour. Beatrice opened the tour last weekend and Kearney hosts the second stop this weekend.

Roberts reports trophies will be awarded to champions and runners up. The tourney will be played on the best two-out-of-three for all matches with a nine-point tie breaker. If a weather delay should occur, the tourney may be played on the 10-game pro set basis, Roberts adds.

All action will be conducted according to USTA rules.

Players must hold a current USTA card. Cards can be obtained at the tournament desk for $11 per adult and $5 per applicant under age 21. Roberts said players must possess a current card, receipt for the 1979 card or a check at check-in time.

Competition in men's "A" singles and doubles is limited to only unranked players and players who did not reach quarterfinals competition in a 1978 sanctioned tournament. Players falling into this category, Roberts said, may also enter the open singles.

Players may enter a maximum of three events per weekend, the director added. The Wayne Tennis Club reserves the right to limit entries. There is a minimum number of participants per event required.

Entry fees have been set at $6 for singles competition and $8 per team for doubles competition.

"Our tournament has had such tremendous growth that it's impossible not to run this year's event on two weekends," Roberts points out.

Walthill Slo-Pitch Tourney June 22-24

The Walthill Summer Recreation Committee is sponsoring a men's slo-pitch softball tournament of Class B teams on June 22, 23 and 24.

Entry fee will be $40 and trophies will be awarded according to the number of teams entering the tournament with a minimum of four trophies being awarded.

Any teams wanting to enter the tourney should send their entry fee to Rod Storm, Box 122, Walthill, Ne 68067. (Make check payable to: Walthill Summer Recreation Program.)

For more information, call 846-5735, 846-5463 or 846-5505. The tournament is sanctioned by the Amateur Softball Association of America.

Winside Midgets Win, Legion Suffers Defeat

Winside's summer baseball program opened Monday night with the Winside Midgets earning a 9-5 win over Emerson in their first game of the season while the Legion team lost a 10-0 decision to Emerson's Juniors.

Mark Koch pitched the full six innings for the Midgets, limiting Emerson to six hits and two walks while striking out five batters. Byron Schellenberg did the damage at the plate for Winside, gaining two base hits and three runs in three appearances. John Hawkins scored two more of Winside's runs.

Winside jumped out in front 4-1 after the first inning but host team Emerson tied it at 4-4 in the bottom of the second and took a 5-4 lead after three innings. From that point, Koch held Emerson scoreless to gain the win. Winside scored one run in the fourth and two in each of the final two innings for a 9-5

Coach Dick Munter said he was pleased with his team's first performance of the year and added that it was a well-played game.

The Winside Legion ran into problems however and managed only three hits in the nightcap against Emerson. Rick Anderson, Bob Hawkins and Mitch Pfeiffer collected the only hits for Winside.

Emerson rapped starter Tom Koll for eight runs in the first inning and three in the third before Lonnie Carstensen entered the game in relief. Winside committed five errors, and made other mental errors which helped Emerson score the runs they needed on nine base hits.

Both Winside teams are scheduled to host Wakefield at 8 p.m. Friday in Ralph Bishop League action.

Wayne R.B. Teams Top Laurel

The Wayne Midgets and Legion jumped off to a fast start in the Ralph Bishop Baseball League as both teams won their league openers over Laurel. The Midgets won the first game 11-3 and the Legion won 5-4 in nine innings Monday night.

Tim Pfeiffer pitched the full six innings for the Wayne Midgets, allowing four hits, while striking out six batters after getting off to a slow start. Laurel hits came from Joe Olsen, Scott Norvell, Marquardt and Marth. Kevin Nissen was the leading hitter for Wayne with two singles, two RBIs and one run. Pfeiffer scored three runs and Doug Proett added two others.

Wayne led 2-1 after the first inning but Laurel scored two runs in the top of the second. Then Wayne erupted for five runs in the second to take the lead permanently. Two more runs in the third and two in the fourth put Wayne out in reach as the Midgets took advantage of Laurel errors.

Wayne and Laurel had a tight struggle in the Legion game as pitchers Russ Gade and Dennis Carroll kept the score low through the first four innings with good pitching. Laurel held a 1-0 lead after four, with Steve Anderson scoring the lone run on Scott Norvell's RBI single. Shannon Hopkins added a run in the top of the fifth.

The Wayne Juniors turned the tables with four runs in the bottom of the fifth. Jeff Dion and Tim Thomas both singled and scored for a 2-2 tie. Dennis Carroll and Mark Gansbom added go-ahead runs when Tom Ginn drove a two-run single.

Laurel sent the game into extra innings when Carvell scored in the sixth and pinch runner James Johnson scored in the seventh for a 4-4 tie. Both teams were held scoreless in the eighth inning.

Gansbom reached base in the bottom of the ninth and Ginn and Dan Mitchell walked to load the bases. Then, Dean Carroll drove Gansbom home for the winning run with a single.

Norfolk Sends Wayne Home With Losses

Norfolk ended Wayne's winning ways early as the Wayne teams lost a Midget contest 8-6 and a Legion game 8-2 in Norfolk Tuesday night.

Wayne's Midgets made five errors, which combined with Norfolk's eight hits, led to disaster. Norfolk led 2-0 after the first inning and although Wayne tied the score in the third, their luck didn't last long. Jere Morris and Pitcher Doug Proett scored both runs for the visitors in the third inning. In the bottom of the third, Norfolk added three runs to its total for a 5-2 lead.

Proett scored again in the fourth inning on a single by Tim Pfeiffer. Morris supplied relief help on the mound in the fourth and held Norfolk scoreless, but three runs in the fifth put the host team ahead to stay. Morris added a run for Wayne in the sixth and Brian Fleming and Al Lindsay scored in the seventh but it wasn't enough.

Norfolk outlit Wayne 8-6 with Morris getting two of Wayne's hits and two runs. Kevin Nissen relieved Morris in the bottom of the sixth and held Norfolk hitless for the final inning.

The Wayne Legion couldn't produce enough hits against their opponents to win the game. Tom Ginn, Dan Mitchell, Jeff Dion and Jeff Sperry recorded the only base hits for the losers. Ginn scored both runs. Norfolk's pitcher Dostal fanned 14 Wayne batters, including eight in the first three innings.

Wayne pitcher Jerry Goeden suffered the loss after allowing four runs in the first inning. Goeden warmed up as the game continued but allowed two runs in the second, one in the fourth and one in the sixth. Finkhouse was the leading Norfolk batter with four hits and three runs in four trips to the plate.

The game was a rematch of the Chuck Ellis Memorial Tournament when Wayne won a quarterfinal decision. Wayne's next game is against Bancroft in midget action on the home field Friday at 7 p.m.

Parents of the bride are the Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Ritzen of Fremont.

The wedding service, which was performed by the bride-

NON-DAIRY CREAMERS MISLEADING

Do You buy a non-dairy creamer because you think it has lower saturated fat and calories? If so, you may be fooling yourself.

Nearly all brands of synthetic creamer contain at least as much caloric value as whole milk and some contain as much or more than light cream or half and half. On the average, powdered non-dairy creamers have 16 calories per serving; frozen liquid varieties have about 23; and whole milk has 17.

The base vegetable fat component of most non-dairy creamers is coconut oil, which is even more saturated than common animal fats. By itself it is 90 percent saturated. When the manufacturer finishes hydrogenating it, it is 95 to 98 percent saturated.

Coconut oil is different from other vegetable oils as it is saturated but contains no cholesterol. Yet, because 45 percent

Noticeably quiet in state Capitol

CAPITOL NEWS
BY MELVIN PAUL
STATEHOUSE CORRESPONDENT
THE NEBRASKA PRESS ASSOCIATION
LINCOLN — It has been noticeably quiet in the state Capitol since the adjournment of the Legislature.

It's always that way after the lawmakers go home because there isn't anything to replace the frequently hectic activities in the legislative chamber. There will be interim meetings to occupy the state senators' time, but the legislators usually take a well-earned breather before becoming heavily involved in between-sessions hearings and studies.

Gov. Charles Thone said recently he will have more time to turn his attention to the various state agencies. He plans to do some on-the-spot checking now that he doesn't have to be concerned daily with what is happening in the legislative chamber.

Thone noted that in one sense the state government will soon be functioning as part of his administration for the first time. He was referring to the fact that at the start of the fiscal year on July 1 the various state agencies will be operating under budgets he and the Legislature officially agreed upon. Currently, the agencies are working under budget recommendations of the former governor and the 1978 Unicameral.

THONE VISITS WASHINGTON
 Gov. Charles Thone has repeatedly pointed up his concern about the fuel situation and recently went to Washington to outline reasons for his worries.

While in Washington, Thone was advised of President Carter's signing of an executive order authorizing the governors of the 50 states to regulate state gasoline sales.

Thone said, somewhat in jest, that it appeared the president was trying to "spread the misery around to the 50 states."

According to the Nebraska governor, the president has not come up with a solution of the basic problem — "more fuel along with conservation."

Thone said, however, he would give the president's plan a close look.

While in the nation's capital, the governor was also scheduled to meet with a presidential aide in an attempt to clear up some of the information federal officials presented while in Nebraska to advise what steps were being taken to relieve the fuel crunch.

Thone was not happy with the outcome of a meeting in Lincoln of state and federal officials who deal with fuel problems. He said the talk was "in generalities" with no one saying what was being done to solve the problems.

GROUP SEEKS EXTENSION
 A three-member committee appointed by Gov. Charles Thone, to investigate charges of abusive treatment of residents in the Lincoln Regional Center's Comprehensive Care unit has asked for more time before submitting a report on its findings.

Bert Overcash, a Lincoln attorney, said the group's work could not be completed by the deadline set by the governor.

Dr. Robert J. Stein, chief of psychiatric services at the Lincoln Veterans Hospital and a member of the committee, said if the report was submitted during the time frame the governor suggested, "it wouldn't be a fair enough investigation."

The committee scheduled several public hearings to hear testimony from staff members of the care unit and from those who have relatives confined there.

At the first hearing, staff member Tom Krieger urged the committee to make a thorough investigation and not to be satisfied with a quick look at conditions.

Krieger, a personal adjustment trainer, said the staff has been pictured as "sadistic, neo-Fascist racist" and that the portrayal was simply untrue.

Another staff member, Sarah Hills, said she was angry about newspaper and television accounts of conditions at the center and other reports of abusive treatment of persons in the care unit.

Ms. Hills said the unit does not have enough money for staff and materials but manages to work with residents and teach them things other institutions could not.

But a spokesperson for the unit's 12-member Human Rights Committee testified there are virtually no development programs that the residents need to acquire skills in self-care, social interaction and communication.

A spokesman for the Capital Association for Retarded Children, Sanford Grossbart, said he was not being critical of the staff but wanted to know if inhumane conditions existed and, if so, who was responsible and what remedial actions could be taken.

Twenty-eight mentally retarded adults with emotional and psychiatric disorders live in the care unit.

CAN SUE EACH OTHER
 The Nebraska Supreme Court has ruled that Nebraska spouses can sue each other. That hasn't been the case for the past 12 years.

In a 6-1 decision, the court negated a judicial doctrine that did not allow spouses to file civil suits against each other.

Judge William Hastings, who wrote the majority opinion, said the basis for the rule no longer exists.

The court made its new ruling in two cases in which a husband and wife were killed in separate airplane crashes. The estates of the two dead women then tried to sue the estates of the husbands, claiming the accidents stemmed from the husbands' negligence while piloting the planes.

In both cases, the trial courts would not allow the suits but the Supreme Court ordered the lower courts to accept them.

The dissenting Supreme Court judge was Lawrence Clinton.

"Such (damage) payments obviously will affect, perhaps seriously, the financial integrity and security of the family as a whole and bring with it other concomitant disharmonies," Clinton said.

But Hastings said allowing husband-wife suits would not disrupt the peace of the home or lead to fraud. He added that the original reasons for adopting the doctrine "are no longer judicially sound" and since there are no legal barriers, "we hereby abrogate the common law doctrine of interspousal tort immunity."

The first case, in Douglas County District Court, involved a February 1977 plane crash in which Otto F. Schaap and Lois B. Schaap were killed.

The second case was filed in Buffalo County District Court and stemmed from the deaths of Donald L. Childs and Lesley L. Childs.

Clinton said he would allow spouse suits only where the risk was covered by liability insurance.

About half the states prohibit spouse suits.

Subtle destroyer of human spirit

RICHARD L. LESHER, PRESIDENT
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
OF THE UNITED STATES

"The lessons of history... show conclusively... that continued dependency upon relief induces a spiritual and moral disintegration fundamentally destructive to the national fibre. To dole out relief to administer a narcotic, a subtle destroyer of the human spirit. The federal government must and shall quit this business of relief."

Tough words. Might you be surprised then, if I tell you they were spoken not by a contemporary conservative politician, but by the man who actually fathered the New Deal — President Franklin D. Roosevelt? Roosevelt had good intentions and gave sound advice; but his words had little effect. During the past 44 years, his message has not just been ignored, it has been treated with contempt.

Today, the plain truth is the federal government has a stake in promoting poverty, because it is more heavily committed to the "business of relief" than ever before. And why not? Business has never been better — the "business of relief," that is. The biggest, fastest growing chunk of federal spending, and the busiest activity of the federal bureaucracy involve the supervision of transfer payments — in other words, the transfer of money through the process of taxation from those in the upper and middle-income groups to those in the lower income groups.

The welfare business has become truly big business through its promoters' faithful observance of a simple rule: Make it pay not to work. Thus, by 1975, to raise just one person from poverty required the equivalent of three median-income families laboring a full year and donating all their income to the federal government for transfer programs.

You see, many of the benefits distributed to welfare recipients, like food stamps, are not counted as income. So, while the value of all the yearly benefits a welfare family receives might exceed what a working family could afford to pay, the family on welfare still remains classified as poor. And that's why, if the present system continues, welfare rolls will stay high even while your taxes and government spending on transfer payments continue to soar.

And this system will continue as long as social planners have their way, and avoid sound policies anchored by common sense and a respect for human nature. For example, in the Seattle-Denver experiment, the government spent 10 years and $60 million trying to prove a proposition that you, any of your friends, or any ten names selected at random from a telephone directory would instinctively reject as absurd: To wit, people guaranteed an annual income will work just as hard as those who are not. Last year, the government finally announced people guaranteed an annual income work less.

But has this startling revelation made any difference? Apparently not, for the very centerpiece of the Administration's latest proposed welfare "reform" is the establishment of a guaranteed annual income for all American families. Fully employed, two parent families earning up to $13,000 will be invited to join the welfare rolls. Decisions on program benefits will be taken out of the hands of local authorities, who can deal with people, and handed over to bureaucrats in the federal government, who deal with machines. Fraud and abuse will increase. The proposal supposedly "assures a strong work requirement," in reality, it contains no provision requiring recipients to work for their benefits. The jobs offered will be largely public service jobs, which have almost nothing to do with the real world of work. How will that help people become self-supporting and independent? Finally, we are told this proposal is "conservative," as it will add only $5.7 billion to the welfare bill. But that estimate comes from the same people who made a slight miscalculation of $17 billion in projecting the cost of last year's welfare proposal. What is certainly not conservative is the number of people who will now qualify for welfare — 50 million.

How can anyone ask an American family, already staggered by double digit inflation and rising taxes, to financially support the expansion of programs that will remain riddled with abuse? And when will we stop using the word "reform" to describe this cruel approach that promotes and institutionalizes poverty, encourages dependence and treats people like permanent cripples incapable of ever facing life on their own?

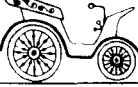

Real welfare reform can only originate at the local level where state and local governments are much closer to existing problems, and where they can team up with private enterprise to provide genuine hope, opportunity and productive jobs. The welfare bureaucracy resists this approach and continues to push a policy of welfare expansion. If, like sheep, we follow this policy to its logical conclusion, we may all end up on relief. But if that happens, who will be left to provide it?

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786

The gasohol commitment

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU
FEDERATION
BY M.M. VAN KIRK
DIRECTOR OF INFORMATION

The issue of how far government should go in committing taxpayer money to the building and operation of grain alcohol plants was thoroughly debated in the recent session of the Nebraska Legislature and ended with a substantial commitment through passage of LB 571.

The debates indicated that many senators have reasonable doubts as to the long-term economic feasibility of the production of grain alcohol for use as a 10 percent mixture with gasoline to make gasohol. The arguments also indicated that to some senators and many Nebraskans the concept of gasohol production and use has become almost as sacred as their religion and to question its economic feasibility is to commit heresy.

The question most often asked in the legislative debates over pledging direct grants of tax funds to the building of grain alcohol plants (such bills and amendments failed) was, "If the production of grain alcohol for gasohol purposes is a clear-cut, moneymaking proposition, how come private industry isn't building plants all over this country?"

The name of Farmland Industries, the well-known farmer-owned cooperative with grain, petroleum, fertilizer and other interests, came up frequently during the debates. Several years ago the cooperative put forth a detailed explanation of its position in an article in its publication, "Farmland News." In essence, that statement recalled that Farmland Industries had been studying and testing the gasohol concept since the 1940's and at that time did not believe it could risk millions of dollars of member money in such a venture.

Recently, the Farmland Industries management reported it continues its pursuit of a way to make gasohol "work" as an extender of gasoline supplies to the economic benefit of farmers. The various managers of the cooperative expressed understanding of Farmland's obligation to consider the financial risks in committing large sums of money to gasohol without certain guarantees that would return the investment to agricultural producers, and agreed with several courses of possible action Farmland is considering at this time.

"Investment in one or more low-cost gasohol pilot plant projects to assess more fully the economics involved."

"Support of certain legislation in Congress aimed at making gasohol feasible."

The president of Farmland stated, "Some have interpreted our silence to mean we are against gasohol. But if Farmland were to invest many millions of dollars in an ethanol plant, what certainty would there be, without long-term government incentive, that we weren't hastily risking farmers' hard-earned money in a project without profitability?"

He also was quoted, "A lot of people will lose money if we start producing alcohol without the ability to distribute it widely and economically. This has been one of the most painful issues we've had to face at Farmland. We've run down all the claims that you can make ethanol at a cost competitive to motor fuel and have not found scientific confirmation of these claims. The tax subsidies help equalize this cost problem and in some states more than offset it presently."

Passage of LB 571 increases the Nebraska gasoline tax 1 cent per gallon with the money to be available in a Grain Alcohol Plant Fund of the Highway Trust Fund to guarantee repayment and interest on revenue bonds to be issued by local subdivisions of government to construct and operate grain alcohol plants under agreement with the State.

Time and experience will prove or disprove that argument. Since LB 571 passed with the emergency clause, funds will begin accumulating immediately to carry out its provisions.

Deregulation could hurt

SENATOR EDWARD ZORINSKY
(D-NEB.)

Deregulating freight railroads could hurt Nebraska farmers and shippers terribly. I heard time and again at Senate subcommittee hearings in North Platte and Lincoln last week.

The hearings were the first of several of the agricultural production, marketing and stabilization of prices subcommittee will hold this year on rural transportation. State government officials, university professors, and farm and business leaders testified.

A majority of the witnesses were absolutely opposed to a Carter administration plan to free freight railroads of much federal regulation. The administration wants to let railroads set their own rates — without having to ask the government for permission — and get rid of unprofitable lines as easily as possible.

Many said the plan would make it more costly to ship farm products by rail. Railroads often have no effective competition, they said. The government must set that rates, in such cases, are kept at reasonable levels.

Others feared that railroads — free to operate as they please — would drop train service to smaller communities. This, they said, would be devastating. The railroads form a crucial link in the Midwest's food marketing system. There is no substitute for them.

The railroads are clearly in serious condition. Two midwestern lines, the Rock Island and the Milwaukee Road, have recently declared bankruptcy. Two others, the Chicago and Northwestern and the Illinois Central Gulf, may follow. The federal government's attempt to keep freight trains running in the north east after the Penn Central failure has not worked. It has spent $3.3 billion since 1976, and the losses of the semi-private corporation operating the trains keep growing. The average railroad earned a miserable 1.26 percent return on its investment in 1977, among the lowest for any industry in the nation.

But it does no good to save the trains in a way that seriously harms agriculture. Many who spoke at the hearings said "re-regulation," rather than deregulation, is needed. The government should write better rules that give the railroads new incentives.

The hearings established other points, too. One is that trucks cannot replace trains for carrying grain in many parts of Nebraska. The roads department reports that 1,056 bridges are either too weak or too narrow for them. Our highways would not stand up well to heavier loads and more frequent traffic.

Trucks also use fuel less efficiently than trains. The extra cost is borne by farmers, who receive less for their grain.

Several people discussed grain car shortages, a persistent problem at harvest time throughout the Midwest. There are enough grain cars, they said. The railroads simply don't use them wisely.

They suggested better federal rules, again to encourage railroads to adopt new practices.

I found the hearings extremely helpful and informative. The subcommittee has no immediate plans to legislate. But the information we gathered will help us present the rural perspective in debate this year on railroad deregulation and other transportation issues.

NPPD says...

Play it SAFE

Here's what to remember about SAFETY and SUMMER FUN

Summer is right around the corner, and for children that means more time to play outdoors. NPPD wants that summer fun to be the safest possible for everyone's children. Here are some ideas to help children play it safe.

Tree house and swing safety
 Never build a tree house, tree swing or swing set near a power line. Build them as low to the ground as possible and without metal parts. Don't stay in a tree house when it's raining

Power poles are for power lines
 Never climb power poles or trees near poles and lines. You could be seriously hurt falling from a pole or touching a power line

Substations aren't playgrounds
 They help transmit high-voltage electricity. That's why the NPPD substation in your neighborhood has "Danger" signs and a high fence around it. So never climb over the fence to retrieve a kite or ball. In fact, it's safest not to play near substations at all.

Blood And Meat Meal Are Protein Supplements

The use of blood meal and meat meal as protein supplements for ruminants probably will increase in the near future because of the potential to lower protein cost and increase protein efficiency, according to an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources animal scientist. Blood meal and meat will be especially important in Nebraska, said Dr. Terry Klopstein, University of Nebraska-Lincoln beef cattle nutritionist, because of the large livestock slaughter industry in Nebraska, where blood meal and meat are by-products.

Since protein is an expensive nutrient, according to Klopstein, research was conducted by Rick Stock, a UNL graduate student, to increase the efficiency of protein utilization in the ruminant as inexpensively as possible. Protein efficiency is the increased daily gain of animals fed natural protein over that of animals fed a urea control, relative to the amount of natural protein fed.

Klopstein said urea is one way to cut protein costs, but there are phases in an animal's life cycle where natural protein is required.

As natural protein sources, blood meal and meat are more efficiently utilized than soybean meal, he said. Past research has shown that protein is more efficiently utilized if it is not degraded in the rumen and thus bypasses the rumen to the small intestine. Because blood meal and meat are heated as they are dried in the packing plant, they are high bypass proteins, whereas soybean meal is not, Klopstein said. Natural proteins also give higher gains and better feed conversion than urea, and blood meal and meat give higher gains and better feed conversion than soybean meal the UNL researcher said.

Another advantage, Klopstein pointed out, is lower cost with blood meal and meat meal. Less blood meal and meat meal protein is required for the same performance as with meat or meat meal than with soybean meal. These factors, Klopstein said, will lead to a significant dollar savings.

"You're actually buying dollar efficiency," Klopstein said. With the use of a new process, ring-drying, blood meal is now a fairly consistent quality product, he said, although meat meal is still somewhat variable in protein digestibility.

Although blood meal is not as palatable as soybean meal, Klopstein said there should be no problem if fed in a complete ration or blended with other protein sources, such as dehydrated alfalfa, to increase palatability. Meat meal is somewhat more palatable than blood meal.

Stock will present his research at the Midwestern Section of the American Society of Animal Sciences meeting in St. Louis, Mo., June 14-15.

lan, said even though vaccines are readily available to protect horses against sleeping sickness, many horses in the United States are not protected against this disease.

"We estimate the horse and pony populations of the United States at eight million animals," Knowles said. "Our figures show that only a million doses of vaccine are being produced each year, which means the vast majority of horses are not being vaccinated."

There are three strains of equine encephalitis - eastern, western and Venezuelan. Hogg said the Venezuelan type has never occurred in Nebraska, and unless an owner expects to be transporting his horse to the southwestern part of the United States, there is little danger of this type of encephalitis here.

A combination vaccine is available for the eastern and western types, and is very effective in preventing the disease, according to the extension veterinarian.

Hogg said two injections are required to immunize horses through the danger season. The first is usually given in the spring, prior to the mosquito season, and the second is given two weeks later, he said.

Ideally, mares should receive the annual injections 30-60 days prior to foaling, however, the injections should be given during the spring when possible, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln veterinarian said. He added that colostrum will provide anti-

SLUGS IN GARDEN

The best material for control of slugs in the garden is a prepared bait containing metaldehyde, sold as "Bug-Getta" and other trade names. Baits are in pellet form for scattering on the soil surface. Avoid getting bait on vegetables. If necessary, part plants by hand and scatter bait thinly on the soil surface. Moisture will make baits more acceptable to slugs, so if soil is dry, a light sprinkling with a garden hose is helpful. Always follow the directions on the package.

ESTIMATING MOISTURE CONTENT OF SILAGE

Here is a method of estimating moisture content of silage. Squeeze a handful of chopped forage into a ball and hold it 20-30 seconds, then quickly release your grip. The condition of the ball shows how much moisture it contains.

Following is a guide for estimating moisture content. If ball holds shape and there is considerable free juice the estimated moisture is over 75 per cent. If ball holds shape with little free juice, the estimated moisture is 70-75 per cent. If ball falls apart slowly and there is no free juice the estimated forage

SPOTLIGHT ON WEEDS

CURLY DOCK

Description: Curly Dock is a perennial, reproducing only by seed. It grows in wild and tame hay meadows and pastures and along roadsides. The plant has a large deep taproot, which every year sends up a flowering stalk 2 to 4 feet tall. The leaves are lance-shaped with wavy margins.

Large numbers of reddish-brown, winged pods are produced on each plant. Usually three small, shiny, reddish-brown triangular seeds are produced in each winged pod. In the fall of the year the plant produces a large rosette of basal leaves.

Control: Spray when the dock is approaching the getting-ready-to-head stage. Use 2, 4-D plus Banvel for effective control. Apply 1 quart, 2, 4-D plus 1/2 pint Banvel per acre when temperature is mild and wind velocity under 10 miles per hour.

Pseudorabies Cases Are Spreading West

The incidence of pseudorabies in Nebraska is increasing and spreading westward, according to a veterinary diagnostic specialist.

Pseudorabies has been identified in six additional Nebraska counties this year, and has been confirmed as far west as McCook, Dr. Clayton Kelling, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources diagnostician told about 20 veterinarians, slaughter plant representatives and pork producers at a Swine Health Committee meeting here in Lincoln.

Although about the same number of herds in Nebraska were tested for pseudorabies during January-April 1978 as compared to 1979, there was a two-thirds increase in the number of herds found positive, according to Dr. Alex Hogg, IANR extension veterinarian. Thirty-nine herds were found positive in the first four months of 1978, while 65 were positive during the same period in 1979. The test involved 13,166 hogs this year.

Pseudorabies is an acute, frequently fatal disease affecting most species of animals, however, swine are the primary species affected, according to Hogg. The disease is characterized by a variety of clinical signs, those involving the nervous and respiratory systems being the most prominent.

Hogg said there seems to be more than one strain of the pseudorabies virus, and the strains are likely to change with time. European countries have provided good evidence that the virus can change. The University of Nebraska-Lincoln animal health specialist said the recent virus seems more virulent than the older virus, and people are too complacent about the disease.

"This virus has the capability of changing rapidly, and people need to be more concerned," Hogg said. "What doesn't seem so bad one year could change the next year."

Another problem in controlling pseudorabies, the specialists said, is that many producers won't admit they have the disease in their herd, and not all pseudorabies cases are reported.

Acchie White, Fremont, public relations director, Nebraska Pork Producers, said, "Pseudorabies is treated like a sort social stigma, and some producers don't like to talk about it—but they're all thinking about it."

A program was set up in Nebraska about two years ago, qualifying herds on the basis of testing, Willard Waldo, Swine Health Committee Chairman, DeWitt, said. To be qualified, free, the breeding herd must be 100 percent negative, he added, and to maintain the qualified status, the herd is monitored every three months.

Dr. Burrell D. Spahr, deputy state veterinarian, Nebraska Department of Agriculture, said there are now 83 qualified free herds in Nebraska, and Waldo added that producers need sources of breeding stock that are free from pseudorabies. Spahr also said there are 66 pseudorabies quarantined swine herds in Nebraska, whose owners are not allowed to sell animals, except to slaughter.

Taking diseased swine to slaughter posed no real problem, according to Waldo, as long as sanitation regulations are followed when transporting hogs. The disease is not transmitted to humans by eating the meat, he added.

Waldo said, "I'm not sure we can eradicate pseudorabies yet, but I'm convinced more than ever that we can control it. We need to control movement of infected swine now, then later decide where to go from there."

Dr. Bill Anischewski, IANR extension swine specialist, said the incidence of pseudorabies, and the number of herds with the disease, need to be decreased before an eradication program should be considered. A vaccine is available to help control the disease, although Waldo said there is a temporary vaccine shortage.

"Vaccinations have a place if your herd has an infection," Waldo said. "Otherwise, rely on testing procedures and only bring in hogs from qualified free herds."

Another problem in controlling pseudorabies, the specialists said, is that many producers won't admit they have the disease in their herd, and not all pseudorabies cases are reported.

Acchie White, Fremont, public relations director, Nebraska Pork Producers, said, "Pseudorabies is treated like a sort

Although not currently a problem in cattle, cattlemen should be aware that pigs, especially purchased feeder pigs, shouldn't have even fence-line contact with cattle, because of the danger of cattle picking up this disease, according to Hogg. Pseudorabies is highly fatal to cattle, he said.

Nebraska Pork Producers Association secretary-treasurer,

Terry Schrick, stationed at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said, in order to control the disease, people need to be educated about pseudorabies. And the Nebraska Pork Producers, he added.

Spahr said Nebraska has been operating under statutory regulations regarding pseudorabies. A state hearing will be held on these proposals at a later date.

Vaccine Is Available For Sleeping Sickness

Annual equine sleeping sickness (encephalitis) vaccinations need to be given before the mosquito season, according to an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension veterinarian.

Thousands of horses were "wiped out" in the 1930's because no sleeping sickness vaccine was available, Dr. Alex Hogg, IANR animal health specialist said. After a vaccine was developed, the disease was brought under control, as long as people vaccinated their horses, the veterinarian said. The disease situation has fluctuated since then.

Although encephalitis is not presently a major problem in Nebraska, the disease is always "just around the corner," Hogg said, and added that it can be fatal to both horses and humans.

Hogg estimated that in Nebraska 20 to 25 horses per year get sleeping sickness, and that about 10 to 12 die from it.

Ralph Knowles, a U.S. Department of Agriculture veterinarian,

Let First National Bank of Wayne give it to you straight. No matter what formula you use, the interest received at maturity is exactly the same. Here's why. The interest rates on all 182 day money market certificates are regulated. That means all banks and savings and loans offering insured money market certificates pay exactly the same amount of money to you in the form of interest at maturity of your CD. Don't let all the numbers confuse you.

See the First National Bank of Wayne for the highest interest allowed on insured money market certificates.

FANCY THAT!

If you had a million dollars worth of half dollars, and piled them one on top of the other, they would rise more than one and a third miles into the sky.

A million people are enough to fill Yankee Stadium in New York 17 and 1/3 times, Dodger Stadium in California almost 18 times and the Houston Astrodome about 22 and 1/4 times.

OBITUARIES

Carl Hansen

Services for Carl B. Hansen were Monday at the Redeemer Lutheran Church in Wayne with the Rev. S.K. deFreese officiating. Burial was in the Laurel Cemetery. Hansen died Friday in Sioux City at the age of 74.

Pallbearers were James Hansen, Gary Hansen, Earl Rasmussen, Randy Rasmussen, Bill Rasmussen and Jack Rasmussen.

Carl B. Hansen, the son of Fred and Karen Marie Hansen, was born Oct. 31, 1904 in Denmark. He came to the United States as a youngster, residing in the Wisner and Laurel areas. On March 10, 1933 he married Marie Rasmussen at Laurel. The couple farmed near Laurel until moving to Wayne in 1956 where Hansen was a custodian at Wayne State College until his retirement in 1973.

Preceding him in death are his parents; one brother and one sister. His survivors include his widow, Marie of Wayne; two sons, Carl LeRoy Hansen and Kenneth Hansen, both of South Sioux City; one daughter, Mrs. Elenore Merritt of Geneva; seven grandchildren; and one brother, John Hansen of Chicago.

It's Shearing Time Again

STEVE GRAMLICH of Carroll, Wayne County 4-H sheep advisor, gave about 65 market lambs a new look Tuesday at the Wayne County Fairgrounds. The lambs were weighed and sheared for a rate-of-gain contest which will be held until county fair time. About two or three pounds of wool were sheared off of each lamb. The wool was donated to buy trophies for the contest. At right, 13 year old Darin Spittlerger stumps the wool down in the bag.

Grasshoppers Posing Threat To Area

A potential grasshopper outbreak is threatening Nebraska rangeland and field crops, according to state agricultural officials.

"Hopper eggs are now hatching and should continue to do so for the next few weeks. Once the hatch is complete and the hoppers are about half grown, controls should be applied," advised Dr. David Keith, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension entomologist.

Several state and federal agencies are cooperating to fight the grasshopper menace. The USDA's APHIS (Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service) is conducting a rangeland grasshopper control program on approximately two million acres in 15 western counties. Cropland is not included.

APHIS and the IANR's Cooperative Extension Service have worked closely through the winter in organizing ranchers into supervisory committees, Keith said. These committees administer the grasshopper control programs at the county level, he explained. The deadline for individual participation in the program was May 1.

"Acreages are now being trimmed by deleting small or isolated acreage blocs and those containing significant amounts of cropland," the insect specialist reported. "Spraying will commence in June, with up to 12 large aircraft applying 8 fluid ounces of ULV (ultra-low volume) malathion per acre.

Malathion, used extensively in the past, gives effective grasshopper control with a minimal effect on wildlife and other beneficial organisms, Keith emphasized. Nebraska Game and Parks Commission personnel are following the program closely, providing advice and assistance with regard to game and nongame animal species.

The Nebraska State Department of Agriculture will conduct surveys for rangeland grasshoppers in the APHIS program area. Department personnel will monitor grasshopper population buildup in an effort to develop better timing for applications, to measure short and long range effects on hopper numbers and to determine impact on nontarget species.

"Population counts will continue throughout the summer," Keith stated. District extension research entomologists at the University of Nebraska North Platte and Panhandle Stations and county extension agents will help whenever possible with survey work in the program areas.

"As in 1978, Nebraska county extension agents, district and state specialists will provide information on hopper population development and control procedures to all Nebraska farmers, ranchers and the general public," Keith stressed.

This advice is available through all county extension offices, NU stations in Greater Nebraska (Scottsbluff, North Platte, Clay Center, Concord and Lincoln) and the IANR (department of entomology) in Lincoln.

Nebraska Cooperative Extension personnel will conduct regular grasshopper surveys in cropland and rangeland in 3-5 counties in each of Nebraska's cropping districts. Extension agents in these counties are being asked to provide periodic grasshopper counts for submission to the state extension entomologists in Lincoln.

"These counts, together with data received from State Department of Agriculture surveys, will form the basis for newsletters, press, radio and television news releases regarding the grasshopper problem," Keith said.

Persons wanting more information about grasshoppers and other insects should contact John Witkowski of Concord at 584-2261.

bodies to protect the foal for about two months after birth.

Foals should be vaccinated at two or three months of age, and a second booster injection should be given two weeks after the first injection, Hogg said.

Birds are carriers of the sleeping sickness virus, and mosquitoes transmit the disease from birds to horses or to humans, Hogg said. The disease starts when mosquitoes become active, and becomes worse in August and September, he added. Rodents also can be carriers, he noted.

The veterinarian said two common symptoms are that the horse "seems to fall asleep on his feet," and the lower lip may hang down. Other symptoms include: tremors, lack of coordination, loss of weight, excessive chewing, difficult swallowing, impaired vision, reduced reflexes and irregular gait.

The only treatment available if a horse gets sleeping sickness, Hogg said, is supportive treatment, including intravenous fluids, and giving water and nutrients by stomach tube.

It's time for a Summer Comfort Tune Up!

Save money and energy this summer by checking your air conditioner's efficiency now.

Take a look around...summer's closer than you realize. Suddenly you'll be uncomfortably warm, and you'll turn to your air conditioner for comfort.

That's why NPPD suggests taking a look inside your air conditioner now, before you need it to keep you cool. Call your air conditioning contractor or serviceman today and ask for a pre-season Air Conditioning Tune Up.

An Air Conditioning Tune Up is a simple maintenance check that will find energy and money wasting problems in your comfort system. When you take care of the problems, you'll increase efficiency. Depending on the condition of your air conditioning unit, a tune up could increase its cooling efficiency by as much as 20%...maybe even more. And that's just for problems like low refrigerant, dirty fans and filters, or condenser units clogged with leaves, grass clippings and other debris.

Of course, an Air Conditioning Tune Up isn't the only answer to top cooling efficiency. NPPD suggests that you service your air conditioning unit regularly...replace or clean filters every 30 days. Also clean the condenser coil every 60 days. But, right now, save money and energy this summer. Get an Air Conditioning Tune Up today.
