

Nebraska 15 North Resurfacing Scheduled for 1980

The Nebraska Department of Roads has announced plans for some $1.83 million in road construction in Wayne County next fiscal year as part of its six-year highway program.

The department Thursday (today) announced a $119.2 million statewide highway construction program for 1980, which includes improvements on 342 miles of state highways in the eight state districts.

Thomas P. McCarthy, District III engineer, told The Wayne Herald Tuesday morning that initial plans call for work to begin at the main entrance to Wayne State College near Thirteenth Street.

A problem has arisen, he said, involving acquisition of right-of-way near the Wayne Municipal Golf Course. The project calls for a 24-foot wide highway surface plus 10-foot shoulders on each side. In the golf course area, "surfaced shoulders" would provide for additional safety and for emergency pull-off by traffic.

When work on Nebraska 15 was first considered, a 4-lane highway was planned to the north city limits of Wayne. However, due to public sentiment that idea was dropped and the current two-lane program was substituted, McCarthy explained.

He added that the department is in the process of acquiring right-of-way in the rural portions of the project.

While the 1980 plan calls for grading and structure work, surfacing of Nebraska 15 has been placed in the standby projects category. This would cost an additional $1.8 million and would be undertaken in 1981.

Funding for the project will be shared by the federal, state and local governments, with local funds provided for construction and improvement of highways and streets within city limits.

McCarthy said he is unsure as to how much local funds will be needed.

State Roads Director David O. Coolidge said the overall state program is based on $72.9 million in federal aid, $39.8 million in state funds and $6.5 million in local contributions.

He noted that the program initially was developed prior to the current energy crisis and later was modified to reflect the economic conditions existing when the program was published.

On that basis, it was estimated the department would experience a five percent reduction in gasoline tax revenues during the fiscal 1980 construction year. It is anticipated, however, that income from the additional cent of gas tax authorized by the 1979 Nebraska Legislature would make up most of the loss. The additional tax was effective June 1.

Largest project

The largest project by dollar volume in District III is grading, structures and surfacing of nine miles of Nebraska 14 from Verdigre south in Knox County at an estimated cost of $3.43 million.

Overall in District III, an estimated $14.78 million has been earmarked for highway construction or reconstruction. Not including interstate work, this is the most work any of the eight state districts will receive.

Other projects

The only other projects planned for this immediate area are a 5.9 mile section of Nebraska 57 south of U.S. 275 to Stanton, and a 1.4 mile stretch of U.S. 275 in Norfolk and east.

The section of Nebraska 57 is resurfacing while the piece of U.S. 275 is scheduled for bridge reconstruction and surfaced shoulders.

Under the projected five-year program, considerable work is planned in Dixon County. Grading, structures and surfacing of Nebraska 9 is anticipated from Wakefield north through Allen to U.S. 20. This is about 14 miles and is estimated to cost $3.34 million.

In addition, Nebraska 12 from Maskell to Newcastle in Dixon County is anticipated to cost $1.37 million, the program indicates. About 18.8 miles of U.S. 20 from Nebraska 116 to Nebraska 12 also is in the five-year plan at an estimated expense of $1.33 million.

The work on Nebraska 9 calls for grading, structures and surfacing, while along U.S. 20 the plan is for resurfacing and surfaced shoulders. Work on Nebraska 12 also is grading, structures and surfacing.

In Cedar County, a 4.8-mile section of Nebraska 15 from Laurel to the Concord turnoff will cost an estimated $634,000. See map elsewhere in this issue.

Independent Truckers Bring Variety of Woes To Bereuter Meeting

Some 50 independent truckers and their wives brought complaints, comments and suggestions to a meeting with U.S. Rep. Doug Bereuter Saturday night at his First District headquarters here.

The meeting, interspersed with shouts and accusations, was called at the request of state Sen. Elroy Hefner of Coleridge to help settle the current trucker shutdown.

But little actually was solved as Representative Bereuter told the truckers that several of their demands could not be met.

These included raising the speed limit for trucks and lowering the cost of diesel fuel — two of several suggestions made by the striking truckers.

The two-hour meeting was held in the basement of the Columbus Federal Savings and Loan Association building where Bereuter has his district office.

Truckers want faster speed limits or be allowed to spend more hours on the road each week. They said at 55 miles per hour, gas mileage is poorer than at 65.

But despite Bereuter's promise that the messages will be passed along to his fellow congressmen, the truckers indicated they would stand fast on their shutdown.

As one independent stated: "I don't think we can put one truck on the road until these problems are solved."

There was considerable criticism of President Carter and his efforts to solve these problems. One trucker commented that "how can we get things done when the great white father (Carter) doesn't stay at home. He should get some of these things done before he starts to solve the world's problems."

Another said: "Before we roll again, we're going to have permanent fuel allocations, price lids and height and weight limits."

Message to Congress

At the conclusion of the meeting, Bereuter listed a variety of suggestions made by the truckers which he said he'd take back to Washington, D.C.

Among these are permanent increases in weight and length limits for trucks — currently there are no uniform standards for weight and length restrictions among states.

Establishment of diesel fuel ceilings and 100 percent fuel allocation to truckers — truckers say the cost of fuel outweighs the prices they receive for their goods.

Truckers want the same treatment as the regulated carriers receive.

Truckers want deregulation of Interstate Commerce Commission rules rather than deregulation of oil prices.

Unorganized

One thing that did emerge from the meeting was a serious case of disorganization among the truckers. Representative Bereuter told the group that in order to make any headway on the issues, independent truckers must organize. They agreed.

At one point during the meeting, the truckers were arguing among themselves about the definition of independent truckers, were bickering over whether deregulation of crude oil prices was the answer, and whether free enterprise or wage and price controls was needed.

Transfer Station and Sunnyview Addition Are Council Concerns

Two issues which have been thorns in the side of the Wayne City Council were discussed Tuesday night during regular Council meeting.

The Sunnyview Addition, being developed by Vakoc Construction Co., Wayne, and the city's transfer station surfaced as continued potential problems.

The transfer station, which has been in operation now for more than a year, is losing money to the tune of about $15,000 a year. The Council is well aware of this problem and the city is in the process of examining costs for the first year.

One of the problems involved with the station is that it is open on holidays to Class A carriers — the two garbage collectors in Wayne. Additional and overtime personnel are needed on holidays to man the station for these carriers who collect refuse on those days.

Vern Russell, Wayne Refuse Service, was present to discuss a variety of complaints with the Council. He felt it was unfair to charge him more for dumping on holidays even though there is an additional cost to the city on those days.

City Administrator Darrell Brewington noted that an additional problem arises because the Norfolk landfill also is closed on holidays. Wayne takes its refuse from the transfer station to Norfolk for burial, but with Norfolk closed on holidays, a problem results.

Sunnyview

After a short recess, the Council voted to approve an agreement between the city and Vakoc Construction Co. involving Sunnyview Addition.

Because of problems in language of previous agreements and proposals, the Council has not given Vakoc the go-ahead for development of plans and specifications for the subdivision.

However, after a short recess to review the latest proposal, the Council agreed to give Vakoc the go-ahead. The agreement in effect permits Vakoc Construction to install all necessary public improvements in about one-third of the addition. This would include water, sewer, curb and gutter, etc.

Now Vakoc must produce plans and specifications for the subdivision which also must meet Council approval. The Council's agreement Tuesday gives Vakoc the needed permission to proceed.

Rededication of Wayne to the name of John Wayne also was discussed.

Chuck Barnes, who developed the idea, told the Council he is still seeking comment from the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

There was some concern by the Council as to the need for rededication of Wayne, but Barnes said other than Wayne State College there is no claim to fame by the city.

It was decided that more public input is needed before the matter is pursued. As a result, The Wayne Herald is seeking any comment from its readers as to their feelings on the subject.

Anyone with any comment for or against is asked to contact Chuck Barnes at 375-2505 or 375-3850.

In other action, the Council gave its approval to dedication of Hillside Drive which will provide access to the new Church of Christ north of U.S. 35 and to the proposed Sunnyview Addition.

The Council also gave its approval to several Mayoral appointments.

All Council members were present and all actions were unanimous.

Council's agreement Tuesday gives Vakoc the needed permission to proceed.

Civil Defense To Test Sirens

The city of Wayne will conduct its monthly testing of civil defense sirens at 1 p.m. Friday, June 29.

Sirens will be allowed to run only one minute with a three minute pause between each siren test. Sirens will be tested in the following sequence:

Alert (used for tornado or other natural disaster warning) — both high and low siren for one minute.

Pause — three minutes.

Attack — both high and low for 10 seconds, off for 10 seconds, continuing for one minute.

Normal time sequence for each of the sirens would be a full three minutes. Since this is for testing purposes only, the sirens will be shut-off after one minute, each so that the public can quickly determine the difference between test and an actual warning. If this were not a test, the public should immediately take shelter upon hearing either the Alert or the Attack signals given, reports police chief Vern Fairchild.

Auditions Open For 'Carnival'

Citizens of Wayne and the surrounding communities interested in all aspects of the theatre are being encouraged to participate in Wayne Community Theatre's next production, "Carnival."

Blederman said at least 30 more persons are needed to complete the cast and to work backstage, construct sets, design costumes, sell tickets and help with other theatrical chores. There also is a need for specialty acts and chorus members.

"Carnival," a colorful, musical show with a romantic plot, will be presented as a dinner theatre on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 8 and 9.

Wakefield Midgets Top Wayne In Monday's Extra Inning Game

BACK TO FIRST for Midget Jim Urbanec of Wakefield as Wayne pitcher Jere Morris tries to pick him off at first. First baseman for Wayne is Perry Nelson.

The Wakefield Midgets took advantage of Wayne errors to score three runs on one hit in the top of the seventh inning for a 10-7 Ralph Bishop League win at Wayne, Monday night.

Jeff Coble scored a run in the top of the third on a single by Joey Sherer to give Wakefield a temporary lead. Wayne took over in the third inning when Pat McCright and Jere Morris scored runs for a 2-1 lead.

Sherer and Mark Starzl both singled in the fifth inning and scored when Wayne's Midgets committed three errors. Another run was added by Warren for a 4-2 Wakefield lead. Runs by Sherer, Warren and Roberts in the sixth inning put Wayne in a precarious position, trailing 7-2.

Wayne pulled off a surprising comeback in the bottom of the sixth inning when all nine players batted. A double by Kevin Nissen and a single by Jeff Sperry highlighted a five run rally that tied the game and sent it into extra innings. Scoring runs were: Nissen, Sperry, Eric Brink, McCright and Jeff Brandt, who was pinch runner for Jeff Moore.

Wakefield applied the pressure in the top of the seventh when Wayne Guy, Coble and Roberts all scored for a 10-7 lead. Wayne's final effort fell short in the bottom of the seventh inning, giving Wakefield an important Ralph Bishop win.

Morris pitched the first 5 and one-third innings for Wayne with relief help from Sperry. Starzl pitched a complete game for Wakefield's win.

Exciting Finish

Wakefield Wins Legion Match

Wakefield pitcher Todd Swigart stifled the Wayne Legion's offense for six innings and work-horse Rick Guy took over for the final inning as the Wakefield Legion earned a big Ralph Bishop League win, 4-3, in Wayne Monday night.

Swigart gave up only three scattered singles and one walk in the first six innings before he fired in the final inning. While Wayne's offense was silent, the defense did better, holding Wakefield to one run in the first five innings.

Wayne pitcher Dennis Carroll, after a week layoff because of rain-postponed games, ran into a streak of wildness Monday night. He allowed only two base hits in the full seven innings but hit five batters with wild pitches.

Two Wayne errors and a single by Tom Preston led to Wakefield's first run when Larry Soderberg scored in the second inning. That was the extent of the scoring through the first five innings. Bases were loaded for Wakefield in the top of the sixth, with Guy, Soderberg and Blaine Nelson on. Then, Mark Starzl rapped a two-out double to the left field wall, scoring all three base runners for a 4-0 lead.

The lead held until the bottom of the seventh when Wayne put together its comeback attempt.

Devil Schwartz led off with a single. Loren Murray followed with a walk and Jeff Sperry followed with an RBI single. Tim Thomas drew a walk and Jeff Zeiss brought in another run with a base hit, his third.

Wakefield made its first out when third baseman Starzl fielded Dennis Carroll's ground ball and threw home to force Sperry out in a close play. Reliever Guy, who pitched seven innings Sunday night, walked Gim to put the score at 4-3. With one out and bases loaded, Guy put together some curve balls to strikeout Dan Mitchell and Jeff Dion for the save.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascel

OH, MY ACHING BODY! Yes, I showed up for the dunking booth Tuesday night at Wayne's Moonlight Madness celebration. And needless to say, I got dunked. And dunked and dunked.

The money raised — a whopping $57 — was given to the Wayne Carroll cheerleaders. That's a pretty good sum of money for two hours of dunking.

By a flip of the coin with Harvey Watson of KTCH, I was the first 'dunkee.' I climbed onto my perch and thought I'd be safe for awhile as a small boy put up his fifty cents and approached the line. The first two balls barely got out of his hand when they hit the ground. Then came the third ball. Kersplash! I went into the water abruptly to about chin level. I had been initiated into the dunking business.

That was only the beginning. Harvey Watson, some generous Wayne Carroll cheerleaders and a few other local 'celebrities' (including Gary Van Meter) took their turns while I enjoyed a long rest.

Then, it was back on the perch again.

I think I took the dive about 8-10 times that night but it was the third time that was the worst. Usually the dunking was safe, but on the third time, I went down and bumped my tailbone on the bottom of the cow tank. That hurt more than watching the New York Yankees win the 1978 World Series.

Fortunately the pain went away and I returned to the dunking platform a little later. Fearful of re-injuring my derriere, I found myself grabbing hold of the side of the dunking booth when I was on my way down. The reflex reaction didn't pay off, as I scraped my arm a couple of times. It really wasn't as bad as I make it out to be, but the cheerleaders sure held up a lot better than Harvey or I. And they looked a lot better in their pajamas than I did in my long underwear.

I RECEIVED A LETTER Monday morning asking for nominations for the Omaha All-Stars vs. Nebraska All-Stars baseball game. (More information is included in a separate article.) The letter requested nominations by Wednesday (yesterday) for the Nebraska-All-Star team. The team will be composed of high school baseball players outside of the metro area.

I hurriedly sent out my nominations along with statistics and information I found lying around my messy desk. Hopefully, some northeast Nebraska players will be selected to the team. It would be a shame if they should be overlooked. Selections were supposed to be made last night and might be in today's (Thursday's) Omaha World-Herald.

I'll include the list in the Monday edition of the Herald so interested sports fans can find out how their area stars fared. Coaching the Nebraska All-Stars will be coaches from Lincoln, SE, Grand Island and Beatrice. I hope the player selection reaches farther north than the coach selection did.

Former Wayne Man Is Honored

Reprinted from Wichita Eagle And Bugle:

From all walks of life they came back to Wichita High School as former pupils to pay honor to former coach and athletic director Frank Henkel, who is retiring.

Bankers, lawyers, presidents of major companies, teachers, coaches, salesmen, school administrators and surgeons were among the 500 persons attending a reception at the school's athletic complex.

Henkel, 64, is stepping down after 35 years on the athletic and physical education department staffs at the school. He will be taking early retirement, soon as a result of a bicycle accident two years ago which has left him partially disabled.

Henkel says he fell from his bicycle when startled by a neighborhood dog and suffered a concussion, cracked hip and a broken leg.

Complications developed which forced him to undergo surgery for a total hip implantment which he describes as being "mostly metal."

Henkel, who has served as an assistant coach in basketball and football, head coach in basketball and baseball and director of physical education, was athletic director at the time of his accident two years ago.

He reflected the other day on how he used to have 150 boys out for baseball and on his years as an assistant coach in basketball under Ralph Miller, now head coach at Oregon State University.

He also recalled how he got into teaching and coaching in the first place.

"I was a poor kid in Wayne, Neb., and when I got out of high school I attended Wayne State Teachers College because it was right there in my hometown," he said. "It was 1933 and we were right in the worst of the depression."

Tuition at Wayne was $1 for a semester hour. He could attend a semester at Wayne for $17 because books were furnished by the state.

"When you go to a teachers' school, you become a teacher," he explained. "If you want to be something else you go to another kind of school."

Henkel began his career as a history teacher at a high school in Weeping Water, Neb., in 1937.

He worked in Gene Tunney's physical fitness program in the U.S. Navy during World War II and became a member of the East High physical education department staff for the start of the 1943-44 school year.

He succeeded Miller as head basketball coach at East when Miller became the Wichita State coach in 1951 after winning a Kansas high school championship. Henkel stayed as basketball coach until 1956 when he was named director of the athletic and physical education departments.

Some of Henkel's former pupils and fellow coaches had some reflections on the "Henkel Years" at East High during the past few days, too.

Former baseball player ex-Boston Red Sox hurler Duane Wilson, remembered.

"Frank was one of the best coaches I ever played for," he said. "He was just a leader. He didn't force you to do anything but you followed his orders because you knew it was right."

From his basketball office on the Oregon State campus in Eugene, Ore., Ralph Miller credited Henkel with helping him develop his full-court press which Miller has used with success at Wichita State, the University of Iowa and Oregon State.

"We started working on the full-court defense at East (in 1949)," Miller said. "I asked Frank to go with me when I went out to the University."

"I appreciate all of the help he gave me early in my coaching career," Miller added.

Henkel's list of former pupils is a long one. Among others are Larry Jones, president of the Coleman Company Inc.; Howard Swearer, president of Brown University in the Ivy League; University of Kansas assistant basketball coach Lafayette Norwood.

Four-minute miler Jim Ryan came along during Henkel's athletic director years. Former Wichita State basketball coach Gary Thompson. The list goes on and on.

TJ's Win Tournament

TJ's Bar of Laurel won four games with no losses to claim the title in the Creighton Softball Tournament this past weekend.

TJ's edged an Ainsworth team 3-1 in first round action, then dumped The Oasis of Norfolk 12-5 and ripped Jerry's Bar of Creighton 7-6 to reach the finals. TJ's met The Oasis again and this time defeated them 10-5 for the championship. Eight teams competed.

Race Results

The weekly racers from Hoskins had better luck at Stouss Falls' Husets Speedway Sunday than they did at VFW Speedway in Jackson Saturday.

Gerald Bruggeman placed third in the first heat at Jackson and fourth in the A feature. Gene Brudigan finished fourth in the second heat and sixth in the A feature.

At Stouss Falls, Gene Brudigan won the second heat and placed second in the Trophy Dash. Gerald Bruggeman won the third heat, placed third in the Trophy Dash and won the A feature. Harold Brudigan placed fifth in the first heat.

The green shoots of scallions are more nutritious than the bulbs.

CONCENTRATING ON his backhand return in the open division final is Byron Miller of Vermillion, S.D. Miller defeated Larry Rugg of Lincoln 6-2, 7-5 to win the title in the Wayne Open Tennis Tournament, Sunday.

Miller Wins Open Title In Wayne Tennis Play

In a battle of lefthanders, former South Dakota University star Byron Miller defeated University of Nebraska's Larry Rugg 6-2, 7-5 to win the men's open singles event in the Wayne Open Tennis Tournament Sunday afternoon on the Wayne State courts.

Miller won the first set handily but ran into problems in the second set as Rugg jumped out in front 5-4. Miller retained his confidence and forced Rugg to commit errors which eventually gave him the following three games for a 7-5 win.

In the men's open doubles event, Russ Kirkpatrick of Missouri Valley, Ia. and John Schovanek of Omaha teamed up to stop Larry Pochop of Norfolk and Rick Fritz of Wayne for the title. Neil Schilke of Fremont edged Bernie Anderson of Omaha 6-7(3-5), 6-4, 7-5 to win the 45 and over singles. Anderson teamed with Ken Batchelder of Omaha to stop Tom Wylie of Red Cloud and Dick Wintermute of Holdrege 6-1, 7-6(5-3) in 45 doubles.

Seven events are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday in the two weekend events. Included are women's singles and doubles, mixed doubles, men's 35 singles and doubles and men's "A" singles and doubles.

A large number of entries have been received from Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota. Of the 14 ranked players in Nebraska's "A" ratings, seven will be competing in the weekend's action. The two top ranked women's players and half of the 35 singles ranked players will be competing. Open division champion, Byron Miller will return to compete in "A" action.

by LaVon Beckman

When residents of Concord boast about the history of their little town they seldom fail to mention the old bandshell.

Although the bandshell now stands inconspicuously in a corner of a vacant lot near the community's only cafe, many residents remember when it was once the center of summertime activities, including open-air concerts with the community's Owl Band, free outdoor movies and cooperative church services each Sunday evening.

The old bandshell hasn't been used for several years now, but it remains a distinctive landmark in the community.

It was 50 years ago, in 1929, that the bandshell was built, and nearly all of the community's 180 residents turned out Saturday night to commemorate the anniversary of its construction.

Benches were set up on the vacant lot, and when there were no more seats, lawn chairs were brought out and blankets strewn on the ground. Families came from all directions carrying homemade ice cream, bars and cakes, and once again music drifted from the old bandshell.

Melvin Puhman, president of Concord's Betterment Association, welcomed residents of the community who turned out to pay tribute to the bandshell and the persons who had a part in its erection 50 years ago.

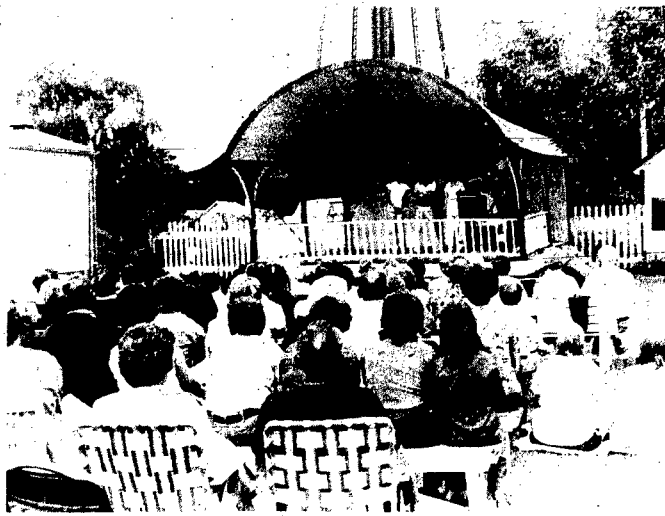

The program, which was sponsored by the Betterment Association and local Home Extension Clubs, civic and church groups, included old-time tunes by many of the community's residents.

There were duets by Jeannine Anderson and Suzie Johnson, and Georgia Addison and Peg Luft, and a men's quartet, comprised of Clayton Hartman, Jim Dahlquist, Dave Bloom and Steve Linn.

Also on the program was music by Mark and Ryan Creamer, Lori, Susan, Lisa and Lana Erwin, Karl and Robin Luft, and Jade and Dawn Addison.

All of the residents took part in a sing-a-long, led by Clayton Hartman and accompanied by Rachelle Dahlquist, and the program closed with devotions by Clifford Carlson.

Afterwards, Cliff Fredrickson and Ed Kirchner provided music

EVEN THOUGH a few boards have begun to sag and winds have chipped away at the paint, the community bandshell at Concord still stands as a landmark. The bandshell was built in 1929 and was used to house the Owl Band, an open-air movie theatre, and to hold cooperative church services. Residents of the community gathered Saturday night to commemorate the 50th anniversary of its construction. Several persons took part in a program at the bandshell, pictured above. Pictures of graduates of the old Concord High School also were on display during the evening. Looking at some of the pictures are Clarence Dahlquist (Laurel), at left, and George Anderson of Concord.

as friends and neighbors lined up for homemade ice cream and cake. And when it was dark, the old bandshell once again was turned into an open-air movie theatre.

Although the history of the bandshell is veiled in obscurity, Lucille Olson called upon long time Concord resident Mrs. Ivan Clark to tell about the bandshell as she remembered it. Mrs. Olson read the history Saturday night as it was told to her by Mrs. Clark.

The bandshell was created in 1929 with the financial assistance of the Women's Welfare Club. It was built in the middle of the town's main street. However, when a small girl died after being hit by a car near the bandshell, the residents decided to move the building.

Once again the ladies of the communities were called upon to raise money for a new bandshell, which would be built off the street.

The ladies made coffee, baked cakes and served lunches and suppers to raise $200 for construction of the new bandshell. It was designed and built by Joe Carlson.

Later, the community purchased a piano and built an addition on the bandshell to house it. Again, more funds were needed for the addition, and again the ladies baked cakes and served coffee.

The bandshell has remained unused for several years now, but judging from the enthusiasm at Saturday night's festivities, it hasn't been forgotten.

The idea of SSI is to provide monthly checks when they are needed so that eligible people can have a basic cash income — $184.90 for one person and $284.10 for a married couple. This does not mean that every eligible person gets this much in his or her SSI check every month, Branch said. Some people get less because they

Work Incentive Can Save Taxes

Employers who qualify for the WIN (work incentive) — welfare tax credit may save substantially on their federal income taxes, the Internal Revenue Service said.

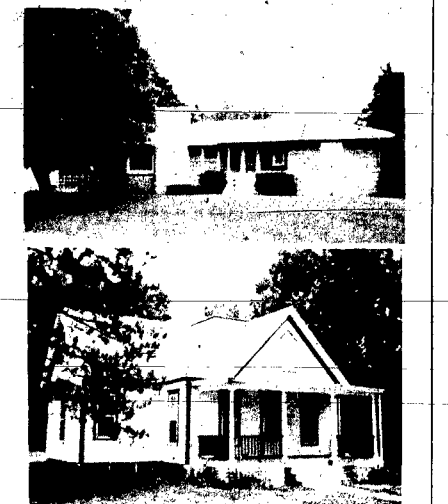

By hiring an eligible business employee after Sept. 26, 1978, an employer may claim a 1979 WIN credit of up to $3,000 for the first $6,000 paid that employee. A WIN credit of up to $2,100 may be claimed for eligible non-business employees. An employer may claim WIN credit for eligible employees up to the amount of income tax liability for the year.

An eligible employee must be certified as placed in the job under a work incentive program or must have received aid to dependent children (AFDC) payments for 90 days before being hired, the IRS said.

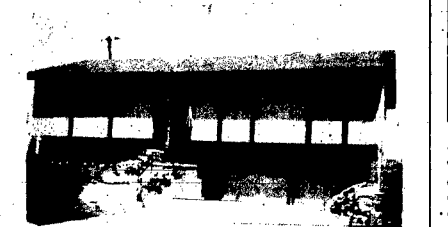

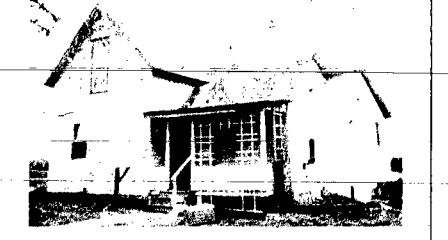

Other requirements for the WIN credit are that an eligible employee be employed for more than 30 consecutive days on a substantially full-time basis, not have displaced any other employee of the taxpayer and not be a migrant worker.

More information about the WIN-welfare tax credit is found in Publication 906, "Targeted Jobs Tax Credit and WIN Credit," which is free from the IRS.

Independent Truckers Frustrated

CAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Pool
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association... The frustration of some members of the Independent Truckers Association was made quite obvious one day recently when the rig operators parked their huge vehicles around the capitol and marched to meet with Gov. Charles Thone.

The Governor responded to the truckers' plea for consideration of their plight by sending a telegram to President Carter suggesting in rather forceful language that what the state of Nebraska needs is more fuel and less talk.

Following the meeting with the truckers, Thone was critical of the Carter administration's energy policies and said he was bothered by federal red tape. In his telegram, the Governor said that after serving eight years in the Congress, he was "well aware of how slow the federal bureaucracy responds to the needs of this country."

Thone suggested the White House emphasis should be on energy supply, production and distribution problems. He noted food cannot be produced unless farmers have fuel, nor can that food be moved to market without fuel for trucks.

Among the demands the truckers made was one for immediate and full allocation of diesel fuel to truck stops and another for mandatory uniform weight and length statutes to make long-haul trucking more efficient.

There was also a demand that the Interstate Commerce Commission approve a surcharge of at least 12 percent so truckers would not be affected so seriously by fuel price increases.

William Palmer, director of the state Energy Office, told members of the Nebraska Agricultural Council the farm sector could experience severe economic losses if the state doesn't receive at least one rain per week through the end of June.

Palmer told the council June could be the most critical month so far this year for diesel fuel shortages. But he said a lot would depend on the type of weather the state has and on the effects of the independent truckers' strike.

He said if truckers could persuade suppliers not to deliver diesel to the pumps, "dire straits" could be the result.

Palmer told the council that he knew of some farmers who had been forced to close down their center pivot irrigation systems because of the lack of diesel, but he added as of the time of the council meeting, the fuel shortages had not caused economic losses.

In other comments, Palmer said he foresees a growing role for gasoline in the nation's energy picture, and he emphasized that fuel shortages are real and will not disappear because there is no simple solution to the problem.

Another stadium debate... The Legislature's Appropriations Committee has decided to take another look at the proposed addition of 9,000 seats to the University of Nebraska's Memorial Stadium.

The decision for further investigation was made after Sen. Don Dvorak of Columbus said he was concerned about the possible long term financial impact of the project.

Tax funds would not be involved in the stadium addition which would be paid for by a bond sales that would be retired with ticket revenue.

Even so, Dvorak reasoned state support of the University's athletic program might become a reality some time in the future.

The Columbus lawmaker, noting that football receipts pay for other sports, said a decline in football ticket sales could force the University to appropriate tax funds to keep other sports going.

Those who favor the addition say they are positive the extra 9,000 seats would be filled for every game, that the bonds would be retired without difficulty, and that the University would then have even more money to help finance other sports.

After Bob Devaney took over the football program in the early 1960's, four enlargements of the stadium were made, giving it a capacity of 76,000 and making it one of the largest stadiums in the country.

Editor's Note: The NU Board of Regents late last week voted on pursuing the matter, with the vote tied. Because of the deadlock, the proposal is temporarily dead.

Has broad discretion... The State Supreme Court has held the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission "broad discretion" in making decisions on approval of license applications.

The Court so ruled in upholding the commission's denial of a retail beer license to Ernest Harrigfeld, a Dakota County man, who had appealed a Dakota County District Court ruling in support of the commission's action.

Harrigfeld wanted the Supreme Court to either overturn the lower court's ruling or send the case back for another trial.

The high court said in a case such as the one before it, courts are without authority to interfere with commission decisions unless there is a showing they were "unreasonable or arbitrary."

Harrigfeld wanted the license for his restaurant near the Missouri River about six miles east of Jackson.

The commission refused to approve the license because the premises are in an area that would pose problems for law enforcement officers and because the road to the restaurant is "long and dangerous and hazardous."

Decision affects laetrile... A recent U.S. Supreme Court decision that banned laetrile from interstate commerce may have marked the end of the fight in the Nebraska Legislature to allow the controversial cancer treatment.

That was the assessment of State Sen. Patrick Venditte of Omaha who said further action on the legislation could be "an exercise in futility."

Verditte who fought the hardest to get preliminary approval of a measure that would have permitted administration of the Laetrile treatment. The bill was stalled at the second stage of consideration when the Legislature adjourned and will be pending when the legislators return next January.

Because of the Supreme Court decision, there probably will be a sharp drop in senatorial support for the bill, Venditte said, adding: "Should the Legislature enact it into law next year, it would appear to me that we would be in violation of federal law."

The Omaha lawmaker said the ruling might prompt more research by the Federal Drug Administration regarding the "true effects of Laetrile."

The Supreme Court said a federal law prohibiting the interstate shipment of any drug not proved to be safe and effective does not make an exception for Laetrile.

The decision overturned a federal appeals court ruling that drugs for treatment of the terminal ill do not have to be in compliance with the law's standards for safety and effectiveness.

OBSERVATIONS

A Man For All Seasons

Hank Ley died Saturday and the steady stream of friends calling at the Ley residence with sympathetic wishes for the family attest the impact this man had on the Community.

The coffee shop discussions have been abuzz with fond memories of Hank, from gentle and elaborate pranks played on friends to confessions that "Hank was tough on me, but he was right and he sure helped me in the long run."

I've never heard of Hank Ley turning down a request for a community project and more often than not he was willing to accept a position of leadership.

How much space would it take to detail his accomplishments and list the people he helped? The list would be impossible to compile.

Suffice it to say that one only has to look around this Community and State to find Hank Ley's hand in the success of farmers and business, individuals and institutions.

And he fit in every situation, antelope hunting in western Nebraska, delivering a poignant eulogy at the funeral of a friend, swimming the Missouri, participating in the Grand March at the Governor's Inauguration or guiding his beloved State Bank.

The term is trite but describes him best, he truly was a man for all seasons.

I don't remember who said it, but the quote is appropriate. We owe a little rant for the space we occupy on earth.

Free Speech vs. TV Censorship

Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Does business really have the right of free speech? The question may seem ridiculous, but perhaps it is not given what has just happened to the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corporation.

The Kaiser people wanted to air a series of television commercials to stimulate public interest and involvement in three issues: free enterprise, energy and governmental red tape. But after viewing the proposed spots, all three networks turned them down. Or, as Kaiser more bluntly put it, they "censored" them.

Kaiser maintains it has a perfect right to speak its mind in public. I agree. What's more, I believe the Supreme Court does too. Last year, the National Chamber of Commerce filed a brief in the Supreme Court supporting five corporations which were suing the state of Massachusetts over a question involving free speech. The companies wanted to campaign against a proposed amendment to that state's constitution which would have permitted a graduated tax on personal income. But the state did not want to let them.

The Court decided in favor of the companies and made two very important points. First, it ruled that speech has an inherent worth, and that the freedom to inform the public does not depend on the identity of the source, be it a corporation, an association, a union or individual; second, the Court said the public itself should be the final judge of the relative merits of conflicting opinions. In other words, the First Amendment does not belong to any definable category of persons. It belongs to all who exercise its freedoms.

Getting back to the Kaiser case, can a question be raised as to the content of the proposed Kaiser commercials? Were they perhaps maliciously worded, biased or unsuitably controversial? On the contrary, upon reading them one is struck by how balanced and moderate they are. They seem as American as apple pie.

In its spot on free enterprise, Kaiser does not make opinionated statements, it asks questions. For example, "Is free enterprise endangered?" and "How much government regulation is enough?" It lists just two of the six. But rather than give its own answers, Kaiser says, "The answers are up to you. Whatever your views, let your elected representatives know."

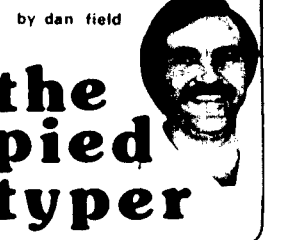

In its spot on energy, the company makes statements, but they are carefully balanced. Some people are calling the energy crisis a hoax. Others say that at the rate we're using up our oil resources we'll be down to our last drop in our children's lifetime. The company then calls for an energy plan making use of all our energy resources. And here again, it calls on people to make up their own minds and to contact their elected representatives.

Business is sometimes criticized for overselling its products. It is now to be criticized for overselling democracy?

The Kaiser commercial on red tape might be judged slightly more opinionated in that it uses facts to express criticism. In 1977, America spent $100 billion on federal paperwork alone. And in the end we all pay for it. And yet, who among us would disagree? With American workers now giving back in taxes almost half of everything they earn, this is one issue where there really is an overwhelming agreement. Each year we are transferring a greater share of our wealth, intellect and energy from the pursuit of progress to the satisfaction of bureaucratic requirements.

I do not believe the networks are in cahoots to prevent business from making an editorial case. But what is astonishing was the apparent fear of approving such mild messages. Fear of whom? Of our own government? Shades of King George! Kaiser said it was informed by one network that its commercials were rejected because of the Fairness Doctrine. That's the doctrine administered by the FCC to insure that television presents balanced opinions. But as the company countered, we believe too that television should present a fair balance of opinion. Even ours.

Maybe it's time to take a closer look at the Fairness Doctrine. The way it is being interpreted now hardly seems fair. Indeed, I have to wonder if it even constitutional?

the pied typer

"The pied typer" is the official title for this column.

Readers of The Herald involved with printing before the introduction of offset immediately will recognize its meaning. For those not associated with the business of letterpress or hot type here follows an explanation.

In the good of days when mollen lead and the linotype were used, newspaper offices and print shops were full of banks of type cases full of individual lead (and sometimes brass letters and symbols).

Linotypes produced slug lines a line at a time also made of mollen lead. It was a combination of these individual letters and slug lines that made up a page of a newspaper. All of this was made up into a large, two-page size steel form which was placed on a press for direct impression printing. A two-page form printed only two pages at the time.

Okay. Pied type is a term used when a tray of the individual type or the larger steel frame of slug lines and letters was dropped on the floor. This happened on occasion and caused many late night editions of a paper and many a cursed word.

My fellow compatriots at the office offered several suggestions for a column title, but most were not appropriate for a family newspaper such as The Herald. Thanks for the effort anyhow, gang.

I'm young enough to remember those hot sweaty and dirty days of hot type. My folks own the paper in Hamburg, Iowa, and until about 12 years ago printed their weekly paper by letterpress. Smaller papers even then were forced by economics to print at a central printing plant such as The Herald. The Hamburg paper was taken to Shenan doah, Iowa, 30 minutes away for printing. There were many times my folks didn't return home until 1 or 2 a.m. the next day because of breakdowns in the antiquated system or even a couple cases of pied type.

We all welcomed the modern technology which brought us offset, also referred to as cold type. As most of you know, the linotypes and mollen lead machines have been scrapped for more efficient and clean equipment.

The process is almost totally computerized now. Whereas "the printing process" may have taken one day, or maybe two then, through the use of advanced type setting machines and high-speed presses, the effort is almost halved today.

I'm beginning to understand why the older generation says my generation is spoiled.

Gary Van Meter, your Chamber of Commerce executive vice president, maintains that the quality of life in Wayne outweighs problems with the lack of and cost of housing here.

We'll agree that the quality of life is excellent. But that concept will be difficult to sell to a prospective doctor, school teacher, college administrator or an industry when the facts of housing in Wayne are examined.

Theories and concepts are wonderful objects of persuasion, but when the Almighty dollar speaks, it has a habit of overshadowing almost any theory.

That is the last you'll hear from me on housing here. It is a serious problem that threatens to hold back a growing community.

WAY BACK WHEN

30 Years Ago... June 30, 1949: Gertrude McEachen left Omaha Saturday night on the start of a tour of Europe with a group of graduate students from Columbia University.

Arthur Gulliver, son of A.F. Gulliver of Wayne, is now located in Washington, D.C., where he is a civilian employee of the United States Air Force. Orville Sherry has purchased the Ferris Warner property at 420 Logan Street and will move into the apartment now occupied by the Warners. A German farmer living in England would like to bring his Dutch wife to the middlewest to live, according to a letter sent this week to Mrs. Laurence Ring of Wakefield, who toured Europe a few months ago. Should anyone in this area be interested in securing such help, Mrs. Ring will supply additional information.

25 Years Ago... July 1, 1954: Elary Rinehart, Wayne's new businessman, will open a new IGA Food-Liner supermarket early this month. The store will be located in the building vacated by Fuelleber Motor Company. David J. Hamer Sr., clerk of the district court, will see his sister next Thursday for the first time in 41 years. Hamer will go to Sioux City next Thursday to meet his sister, Catherine Hamer, who will arrive by plane from London, England. She plans to visit in Wayne for two months. He last saw his sister in August 1913. Officers of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce are now located above the fire hall, secretary Dick Wilson announced this week.

20 Years Ago... July 2, 1959: Wakefield's oldest church building this week was undergoing remodeling for conversion into an apartment house. The Methodist Church, erected in 1818, was sold at auction several months ago to Hubert Eaton, who plans to convert it into about five apartments. Services have not been held in the church for 20 years. Herman Lumborg, Wayne, left Friday for New York City, where he sailed Monday for a two month tour of Iceland, Finland, Norway, Denmark, Germany, Holland, Belgium, England and Ireland.

"DO YOU HAVE GENERIC EQUIVALENTS...?"

Nebraska Highways—1926

Commenting on road-planning in the 1920s—the decade in which the automobile began to make inroads into the railroad passenger business — a writer for Western Newspaper Union pointed out that Nebraska "would always play an important part in the federal highway system."

It had done so when the wagon trails to the West flowed together in Nebraska to form the "Great Platte River Road" of the 1840-50-60 decades. After the Civil War, the Union Pacific Railroad followed essentially the same route in spanning the continent.

In 1926, when WNU circulated its story to Nebraska weekly papers buying its service (see microfilm newspaper files in the Nebraska State Historical Society library), 1,500 of the 6,000 miles in the state highway system were neither "graded, graveled, nor paved." Most of the entirely unimproved roads were in the Sandhills.

Maps of improved roads in 1926 indicate that between Omaha, Lincoln and the Hastings-Grand Island area surfacing of some kind had been applied in other areas short road segments were in the "all-weather" category. Officials noted an increasing number of out-of-state cars moving east-west through Nebraska — "50 percent greater than in the average state." During an "average day" in November, 1,847 cars traveled between Lincoln and Omaha.

When road-betterment contracts then under construction were completed, the state would have on inter-city routes 3,507 miles of graded road, 2,228 miles of gravel, and 175 miles of paved highways.

In 1916, some 100,000 automobiles were estimated to have traveled across Nebraska. After 11 months of 1926, an estimated 337,280 had already been counted. Envious St. Louis and Kansas City were attempting to make inroads into the traffic flow through the Omaha gateway by calling attention to the all-paved section across Missouri and as far west as Topeka, Kansas. Advertising recommending that route called tourists' attention to the "poorer roads in Iowa and Nebraska," through the differences may not have been significant.

Federal and state highway officials met in 1925 to draw plans for marking and numbering the main routes through America. Of these, seven (both N-S and E-W) were in Nebraska. "Neat, marl markers standing beside the road, and corresponding warning signs" were to replace the "old form of telephone-pole designs," which had previously guided travelers. The covered wagon or prairie schooner was selected as the design for Nebraska markers.

The WNU reporter expressed confidence that Nebraska would uphold her title as "the Gateway to the West." She has: Today I-80 Highway carries a big share of the E-W traffic along the Platte River route; and other parallel routes are available for the less hurried traveler. One of the few still remaining rail routes to the West also runs through the state, the Amtrak Chicago-San Francisco train over the Burlington, and busses run on a variety of routes.

About half the families in America owe money on some form of installment loan.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Anna Marie Kretfels

VALUE OF THE HOMEMAKER

Never underestimate the dollar value of a housewife. On the average she puts in a 100 hour work week and she's on the job seven days a week. That's what statisticians of the American Council of Life Insurance found.

Consider the homemaker's abilities as a housekeeper, nurse, purchasing agent, cook, chauffeur, laundress, gardener, and sometimes hired farm hand. Her value to her family is probably a lot greater than most people realize until they think about it.

In their research the American Council of Life Insurance calculated the homemaker's tasks, the time she spends on each, and the wage rate for these jobs based on averages in a large east coast city. Then they compared their figures with that of other studies on the worth of a housewife with two children.

Their results showed the modern day wife and mother is worth about $17,500 per year, and that's a conservative estimate.

Consequently, there is a growing respect for the role a wife plays in her family's economy. There is also an increased realization that her loss would create financial hardship as well as emotional strain on the family.

In past years it was often felt that only the male head of the household needed adequate life insurance coverage. But today more people are realizing the economic value of a wife, mother and homemaker and their lives, too are being insured.

Meat Event Is in Norfolk

The 30th annual Meat Animal Exposition will be held on Sunday, Sept. 9, and Monday, Sept. 10, at the Norfolk Live Stock Market in Norfolk.

The Agricultural Economics Council of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce sponsors this event each year. The judge will be Jerrold Hibbs of Smithfield.

A new event will be a breeding heifer show which will be held at 1:10 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 9. Breeding heifers will be shown in the following divisions: Angus, hereford, polled hereford, Shorthorn, charolais, simmental, timorous and commercial and others.

The judging of the market beef show will begin at 8:30 a.m. on Monday. The market beef show will be divided by weight rather than breed. A rule change requiring the sale of the grand and reserve champion steer and heifer has been added this year as a part of the 30th annual celebration of this show. A showmanship contest will again be held in conjunction with the market beef show and the finals will be held at approximately 4 p.m. Monday.

'Lot of Five' fat cattle show and sale will be a feature of this year's show. Judging of the 'Lots of Five' will be at 3 p.m. on Monday, followed by their sale at 6 p.m. A carcass contest will again be held this year. The cattle will be killed at Dugdale Packing and the carcass will be available for viewing on Wednesday from 2 to 4 p.m. Sept. 12.

A special feature of this annual show will be a 30th Anniversary Highlights Program to be held at 6:30 p.m. prior to the selection of the grand champion steer and heifer.

Show rules and regulations, as well as entry blanks, will be available from your county agent or through your voag instructor in late July.

The Blue Ribbon Winners 4 H Club met June 20 in the home of Dennis Bowers.

Kristi Benschoot conducted the business meeting. There were two guests, Laura Haase and Marvin Hansen, both of Wayne.

Junior Leadership Training and Teens Supreme were discussed.

Next meeting will be the club tour on July 8 when members will view projects at each farm home. The tour will begin at the Larry Bowers home and end at the Kermit Benschoot home, where lunch will be served.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Dennis Bowers.

Solar System.

Loans Available

Grain farmers across the country are now eligible for government loans to build solar grain drying systems. Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Jim Williams said in Kansas City, Mo., recently.

Since last fall, farm facility loans for solar grain drying systems have been offered in 27 counties in 10 states as part of a pilot energy saving project.

"This should encourage the further development and use of solar energy as an alternate source of energy for the drying of grain and other farm applications," Williams said.

This action is part of the department's overall effort to use existing agencies and authorities to encourage the conservation of fossil fuels by using renewable energy sources wherever possible. Conventional grain drying methods use large amounts of liquid petroleum gas.

Loans for financing solar drying systems will be available to producers under the same terms and conditions as other farm facility loans administered by the Department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS). Producers can apply for these loans through their county ASCS offices.

Maupin, regional IH sales manager, Curtis, Harum, Fous, and Norm West, accountant. Fous will be active there in the winter months.

Midland View: How Program Works

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M.M. Van Kirk,
Director of Information

Farmers with grain in the reserve program are now getting a clear demonstration of how the reserve program works because market prices on three commodities are at levels at which they can be released back into the market, the Nebraska Farm Bureau reports.

They can assess the effect of what the return of those commodities has upon market prices and how the program affects their own individual farming and marketing program. The 1977 law was designed to provide growers an alternative in those years when their crops were in surplus, permitting them to put a portion of their crop in the reserve program while still maintaining control over it. Keeping those reserve stocks of the market undoubtedly strengthened the cash grain market in the last couple of years, and the farmer held reserves are less readily available to the market than the government-owned stocks that were used to dampen price increases in past years.

On May 16 wheat in the farmer-owned reserve which had reached a total of 415 million bushels was released for redemption because the national average market price had been determined to have reached $3.31. The price level at which wheat is released from the reserve is set by law at 140 percent of the $2.35 national loan rate, or $3.29 per bushel. On June 30, the USDA is to review the average price figure to determine if the release authorization should remain in effect. If the release continues, storage payments will stop in those states where the price remains above the release level.

In the first three weeks of the release period, wheat producers redeemed 36.1 million bushels of wheat from the reserve, which is about 8.7 percent of the total. Most of the redemptions were reported to have been made by growers in Oklahoma, Texas, Washington and Kansas. Prices for wheat on the cash grain market and wheat futures have been rising and generally have been well above the release figure. Obviously, there is an incentive for farmers to redeem their wheat without penalty, particularly if and when storage payments are halted, but they do not have to do so.

Hilary Uhing Attends Event

Federal Mogul Salina, Kan. was host June 13 to 45 farm equipment dealers and their distributor, Lindsay Brothers, Inc., with headquarters in Minneapolis, Minn.

The event marked the fifth annual Federal Mogul Lindsay Tow Away of A&L produced grain carts.

Participating from Wayne was Hilary Uhing, representing Logan Valley Implement Co., Wayne. Four models of the grain cart were in the "tow away": this year a 425 bushel cart, a 425 bushel cart with 116" wheel base, a 650 bushel tandem axle cart and a 650 bushel tandem axle with 120" wheel base.

Helen Solt, district supervisor of home economics, will begin the day with a welcome and introductions.

Following the opening session Linda Biles, extension clothing specialist from the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, will present "Clothing Unlimited".

Several learnshops have been planned for the rest of the day. The titles and topics of these learnshops include: Creativity in 4-H (judging "let's create" and "do your own thing" exhibits); "Foods New and Old" (judging food products); "Decide and Discuss" (working with the home economics judging contest and reasons score sheet); "Clothing Unlimited" (the new advanced clothing project); "Design in Your Life" (judging home environment project); "Picture Perfect" (judging photography exhibits); and "Sound Off" (a chance to share good and bad experiences in judging and methods of conducting events).

Allen Rider, IANR extension agricultural engineer, is heading up an Institute committee to explore on farm alcohol production.

As this is announced, there has been no announcement of a release on the corn reserve. The loan rate on corn is $2 per bushel so the release figure is 125 percent of the rate, or $2.50 per bushel. The call point at which all corn loans would have to be redeemed would come if the national average market price reached $2.80 per bushel.

Export prospects for both corn and wheat are encouraging for the coming year and it is conceivable that market prices could reach those "call" levels. This would make the initial reserve program look particularly good and provide an answer to that nagging question about what would happen after those 1-year reserve contracts expired if the market was still glutted and the price down. Wheat and feed grains can be held only so long without serious deterioration.

Gasohol Use May Boost Oil Dependence

While interest in gasohol is intensifying during the current motor fuel crisis, "it appears that U.S. dependence on foreign oil would be increased by an expanded gasohol program rather than reduced, unless coal or other nonpetroleum sources of fuel are used in alcohol production."

That's the analysis of Dr. James G. Kendrick, University of Nebraska at Lincoln Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources agricultural economist, writing in the weekly newsletter, Cornhusker Economics.

At present, commercial producers of alcohol for gasohol use petroleum and/or natural gas in the production process. Kendrick pointed out.

The new Archer-Daniels-Midland plant at Decatur, Ill., uses about three gallons of oil or the equivalent in natural gas to produce two gallons of alcohol, Kendrick reported.

In the national picture, roughly one-half of U.S. oil is imported, and about one-half of all oil (domestic and imported) is used for purposes other than gasoline. If an economics professor said "Since gasohol is 90 percent gasoline, one gallon of gasohol has the potential of replacing about seven table spoons of foreign oil—providing that no oil or natural gas is used in either the production of alcohol or the raw material, usually corn," he continued.

A much greater capacity for producing alcohol for gasohol would be needed in the United States to make a dent on the current demand for motor fuel, Kendrick noted. Current U.S. consumption of gasoline is about seven million barrels per day. The U.S. distilling industry has the capacity to produce about 2,000 barrels per day for fuel alcohol use — less than .03 percent of present gasoline consumption. "Something approaching a 3,300 percent increase in alcohol production would be needed to provide even a one percent gasohol program in this country," Kendrick stated.

Both gasoline and alcohol prices have escalated during the past year. The May price of ethanol (grain alcohol) was $1.74 per gallon in eastern Nebraska and western Iowa, Kendrick said. At the time Kendrick wrote his article, unleaded gasoline was selling for a retail price of 88.9 cents per gallon at the pumps (including 65 cents per gallon of unleaded delivered to Nebraska Iowa retailers, with dealer margins of 10.4 cents per gallon and 13.5 cents per gallon in taxes added).

Subsidies

Various federal and state subsidies are enabling retailers to price gasohol near the price of unleaded gasoline, Kendrick reminded.

A subsidy of about $1.09 per gallon is required for alcohol to compete with or replace a gallon of unleaded gasoline, and in Nebraska, the subsidy is 90 cents a gallon (40 cents from the federal government and 50 cents from the state highway trust fund), the UNL economist stated.

"It all adds up that Nebraska retailers must cut their margin or charge consumers more for gasohol," Kendrick declared.

In addition, he said, the Nebraska subsidy reduces funds available for constructing or repairing roads and bridges unless offset by higher fuel or other taxes (Nebraska raised the gasoline fuel tax by one cent per gallon effective June 1, as a result of action in the 1979 Legislature).

In Iowa, the situation is different, Kendrick said.

The current subsidy in the Hawkeye state is $1.25 per gallon, which is scheduled to increase to $1.40 per gallon in July. "This might partially explain the enthusiasm for gasohol among Iowa retailers," Kendrick commented.

"None of this subsidy goes to farmers," the economist stressed. "In fact, if corn prices rise, the subsidy must be increased to offset the resulting high cost of gasohol."

There is growing interest in producing grain alcohol from small on farm units since the construction of large scale alcohol plants for fuel use is dependent on long term government commitment for continued subsidization, Kendrick said.

Kendrick referred to calculations made by Robert S. Chambers, president of ACR Process Corporation, Urbana, Ill., which show that for Nebraska, it is estimated that ethanol from corn would cost about $1 per gallon (from an on farm or "small package distillery").

However, Kendrick said this would be dependent on half the fuel costs coming from corn cobs, and finding a productive use for wet distillers grains on the farm.

Allen Rider, IANR extension agricultural engineer, is heading up an Institute committee to explore on farm alcohol production.

Cutting rose flowers is an important operation. Improper cutting can injure the plant and decrease its vigor. Use sharp tools to cut flowers. Breaking or twisting off flowers injures the remaining wood.

It is unwise to cut stems any longer than actually needed. At least two leaves should remain between the cut and the main stem. Removal of foliage with long-stemmed flowers rob the plant of its capacity to manufacture food and cuts down on its growth and subsequent flower yield. If the stem is weak, make the cut just above the top-most spray of five leaves.

Do not remove any flowers — unless withered — from roses planted this year. Roses cut just before the petals start to unfold will continue to open normally. They will remain in good condition longer than if they are cut after they are fully open. Roses will keep best if they are cut in late afternoon.

Leaf scorch
A combination of high temperature and high winds and low humidity can cause a condition in trees called leaf scorch. When these climatic factors occur, water may be lost through the leaves faster than it can be replaced. The result of the rapid loss is a burnt or scorched appearance, usually beginning on the outer margins of the leaf and progressing inward. Yellowish-brown areas in the tissue between the veins are also evident. In severe cases, this area is killed and the leaf eventually becomes brittle and drops.

Other conditions can add to the severity of leaf scorch. Among these are shallow soils, confinement of the root system, roots which girdle the crown of the tree, drought, and a diseased root system. Trees planted near the south wall of a building may suffer due to the extreme exposure from the sun and reflection from the building. Also, trees that are suffering from iron chlorosis are extremely susceptible to this disorder.

Most trees are susceptible to leaf scorch. Ash, maple and oak are the commonly included species.

Beech, dogwood, elm, horse chestnut, and Linden are also highly susceptible to scorching. Fir, pine and spruce often show leaf scorch as a brown discoloration of needle tips.

To minimize the amount of scorch, lightly fertilize trees that are low in vigor to keep the plants well watered. Recently transplanted trees should be watered faithfully during hot and dry periods.

LOWER ELKHORN NATURAL RESOURCES DISTRICT

Multipurpose Water Projects

Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District and other NRDs in Nebraska are charged with responsibility for 12 different aspects of natural resources management.

1. Erosion prevention and control
2. Prevention of damages from flood water and sediment
3. Flood prevention and control
4. Soil conservation
5. Water supply for any beneficial use
6. Development, management, utilization and conservation of groundwater and surface water
7. Sanitary drainage
8. Pollution control
9. Drainage improvement and channel rectification
10. Development and management of fish and wildlife habitat
11. Development and management of recreational and park facilities
12. Forestry and range management

For the above reasons, programs and projects of Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District are necessarily multipurpose in nature. Water projects are no exception to this principle. Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District has built or cooperated on several water projects of varying size. Funding for the NRD is from local property taxes. The average taxpayer pays about 1 percent of his tax assessment to the NRD and about 54 percent of the NRD funds are from rural areas.

Swimming beach at Maskenthine is unsupervised.

Maskenthine

The Maskenthine dam was designed and built primarily as a flood control structure to protect Stanton. Secondary benefits of the structure are recreation, water storage, fish and wildlife enhancement.

While the project is owned and sponsored by Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District, other entities of government contributed to the project. The Soil Conservation Service designed the structure and supervised construction, which was completed in 1976. Funding for the project came from local tax dollars and the Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation administered by the Nebraska Game & Parks Commission. Maskenthine was the first project funded by the Resources Development Fund of the Nebraska Resources Commission.

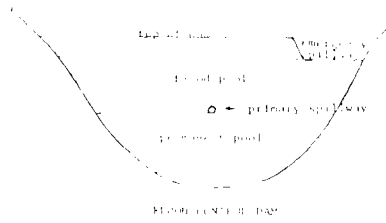

The Maskenthine area is located on a county road 1.5 miles north of Stanton. There are 400 total acres, with 94 surface acres of water. The lake was stocked by the Game & Parks Commission with largemouth bass, bluegill, channel catfish, walleye, and northern pike.

The area was originally designed as a recreation area, but an agreement with Game and Parks Commission classifies it as a wildlife management area. As a wildlife management area, the regulations are generally the same as for other such areas in Nebraska. The area is open to hunting and fishing.

Recreation development at Maskenthine includes boat ramp, dock, swimming beach, restrooms and drinking water. Boating is restricted to row boats and electric trolling motors. The swimming beach is unsupervised, so swimming is at your own risk, and children must be supervised by an adult.

Approximately 700 trees of 65 species have been planted in an arboretum for nature study purposes. Another 18,000 trees and shrubs have been planted for wildlife habitat. Three experimental plantings have been made by SCS and Cooperative Extension Personnel to aid in selecting more desirable varieties of trees and shrubs.

No camping or picnicking facilities are provided by Maskenthine. However, these activities are permitted as long as littering and vehicle regulations are observed.

Flood Control Dams

Flood control dams are designed with two types of outlets for water to escape. The primary spillway tube, which goes through the dam, determines the size and depth of the lake at times of average runoff. Small amounts of excess water drain out through the primary spillway to maintain the size of the permanent pool.

The emergency spillway is a flat channel around the end of the dam which is at a higher elevation than the primary spillway but lower than the top of the dam. In times of high rainfall or snow melt the lake may fill up with water to the elevation of the emergency spillway and spread out over land that does not normally have water on it. This flood pool contains a large volume of water, which would have caused flood damages downstream if the dam hadn't been constructed. The emergency spillway keeps water from going over the top of the dam and damaging it.

When the flood causing conditions are over, the primary spillway tube slowly releases the water until the lake is down to the permanent pool size.

It is the large capacity of the flood pool which makes flood control dams effective. The flood waters are stored behind the dam and released slowly, so they don't cause damage.

Pilger Recreation Area offers excellent picnic facilities and a playground.

Pilger Recreation Area

Built in 1966 this 50 acre lake area is most obviously a recreation area with its boating and picnicking facilities. However, the project was initially designed as a floodwater control structure to protect the village of Pilger. The lake is located from Pilger, one mile east on highway 275 and 1/2 mile north.

Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District purchased the lake in 1973 and sealed portions of the lake bottom to reduce seepage and make a more stable water level. The area was then developed for recreation, seeded, and trees planted. Recreation facilities at the Pilger area include picnic tables, grills, shelters, primitive camping for youth groups, boat ramp, dock, and playground. The lake offers fishing, primarily bullheads and the arboretum contains several species of trees for nature study. Restrooms and drinking water are also provided.

Farmer-Owned Reserve Corn Can Be Redeemed

Corn in the farmer-owned reserve is released for redemption effective immediately, announces John Goodwin, acting executive vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC).

Farmers may sell their reserve corn after repayment of their CCC price support loans. Release of the reserve does not require farmers to redeem or sell their grain at this time, Goodwin said.

Goodwin said the national average market price for corn has reached $2.50 per bushel. The price level at which the commodity is released from the reserve is 125 percent of the $2 National loan rate or $2.50 per bushel. More than 730 million bushels of corn are in the reserve.

Farmers with grain in the reserve receive storage payments from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Upon repayment of the loan, farmers can keep the storage payments earned through the date of repayment.

On July 31, the department will review the average price for corn to determine if the release authorized should remain in effect. If release continues, storage earnings will stop in those states where the price remains above the release level.

Data used by CCC in determining the release level include five-day average prices as reported by the department's agricultural marketing service which shows prices bid by buyers at selected markets and a month-end report of prices received by farmers issued by the department's economics, statistics and cooperatives service. This report shows the previous month's average price and the current mid-month price.

Kansas City, Omaha, Chicago, St. Louis and Minneapolis are the daily markets reviewed by CCC for corn. The five-day average at these market prices, adjusted to reflect prices received by farmers, was the basis for today's action.

Goodwin said that with the release of corn, four of the six commodities in the reserve are in release status: barley, corn, wheat and oats. Oats and wheat are released at least through the end of June and barley and corn through the end of July. This is the seventh time the department has released a commodity from the farmer-owned reserve since its inception in 1977.

Feed Grains Up From Year Ago

Nebraska feed grain stocks (corn, oats, barley, and grain sorghum) in all positions on June 1 totaled 14.5 million tons, according to the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. This is 22 percent more than a year earlier.

Corn stored in all locations totaled 423 million bushels on June 1, up 29 percent from last year. Corn on farms totaled 296 million bushels, up 27 percent, while off-farm stocks totaled 126.9 million bushels, up 33 percent.

Grain sorghum stocks totaled 87.9 million bushels, up 4 percent from a year ago. Sorghum stored on farms totaled 32.9 million bushels, 10 percent less than a year ago, while off-farm stocks at 55 million bushels were up 15 percent.

Stocks of oats totaled 10.1 million bushels, 41 percent below last year's record level. Oats on farms totaled 8.5 million bushels, 42 percent below a year ago. Off-farm stocks were down 36 percent to 1.6 million bushels. Wheat stocks in Nebraska totaled nearly 5.6 million bushels, 30 percent below a year ago. Wheat stored on farms was down 10 percent to 27.7 million bushels while off-farm stocks were down 42 percent at 31.8 million bushels.

Soybean stocks of 17.3 million bushels were 11 percent above last year. Soybeans stored on farms amounted to 9.4 million bushels, 20 percent more than a year ago. Off-farm stocks totaled 7.9 million bushels, 2 percent above last year.

Barley stocks in the State totaled 497,000 bushels, down 41 percent from last year while rye stocks declined 13 percent to total 144,000 bushels.

RUSSIAN KNAPWEED
Description
Russian knapweed is a perennial, reproducing by seed and underground rootstocks. The plant has large underground rootstocks by which it spreads into new territory, sends up numerous new plants, and stores large amounts of food materials. The stems are one to four feet tall and are covered with white hairs. The leaves are slightly hairy. The lower ones have rough or lobed margins. The heads are about one-half inch wide and have blue to purple or rose-colored flowers. The seeds are an ivory to light-brown color, flattened, ovate shaped, and usually without bristles or hair. Russian knapweed seed is occasionally found in alfalfa and clover seed.

Control
In pasture or waste areas, use one quart 2,4-D plus one pint Banvel at early bud stage. Avoid tillage five weeks before and one week after application. Plan to treat for several consecutive years.

Bereuter Seeks Block of Tax Dollar Use for Hospital Rules

Congressman Doug Bereuter announced Monday that he plans to introduce an amendment to block use of taxpayer dollars for implementation of proposed federal hospital regulations which he termed "a classic example of government over-regulation."

The Bereuter amendment would prevent any funds contained in the Labor-HEW appropriations bill (H.R. 4389) for fiscal year 1980 from being used for implementing the proposed System for Uniform Hospital Reporting (SHUR). The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) has issued a 606-page manual containing SHUR regulations which are intended to detect fraud and abuse.

"These regulations will impose tremendous new reporting requirements on hospitals," Bereuter told his fellow congressmen. "The net effect will be higher costs to consumers in their hospitals — this at a time when some are strongly pushing a hospital cost containment bill."

"Furthermore, there's absolutely no assurance that the data gathered under SHUR will facilitate the detection of fraud and abuse."

A survey Bereuter has conducted of hospitals in the First Congressional District indicated the regulations will have a "severe, negative" impact. To implement the accounting system, hospitals estimated an average cost of more than $38,000 each. To maintain the system, the hospitals estimated an average cost of $54,000 per year.

The American Hospital Association and the Federation of American Hospitals both have expressed support of the amendment, Bereuter said.

"While some may consider my action to be premature, I can think of no more certain way to convince HEW to substantially revise its proposed regulations before they are promulgated in formal form."

The House was expected to take action on the Labor-HEW appropriations bill on Wednesday.

Church Has Ground Breaking Ceremony

The Immanuel Lutheran Church in Laurel held a ground breaking ceremony Sunday morning for the new fellowship hall to be built east of the existing building.

Construction of the church's new educational wing is scheduled to begin within a week, according to the Rev. Frederick Cook. Completion is expected in November.

Taking part in the ground breaking service were Jerome Mackey, president of the congregation, and Arnold Ebmeier, chairman of the building advisory committee. Children of the congregation also participated.

The ceremony concluded with the hymn "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow," followed with benediction by Pastor Cook.

In addition to furnishing Sunday school classrooms, the new addition will provide a large meeting room to be used by the community, as well as the congregation.

It also is anticipated that the new facility will provide a pre-kindergarten program for the community. Although the preschoolers will attend classes with a church setting, a spokesman for the church said teachers will not promote indoctrination into the Lutheran faith. "The pre-kindergarten program will offer new means for widening a child's circle of friends and at the same time provide interesting learning activities in preparation for kindergarten," the spokesman added.

JEROME MACKEY, at left, and Arnold Ebmeier, take part in a ground breaking ceremony Sunday at the Immanuel Lutheran Church in Laurel. Members of the congregation took on. The ground breaking was for the church's new educational wing which will be built east of the existing building. Construction is scheduled to begin within a week.
