

Wayne County Population Beginning to Rebound

According to an analysis of Nebraska population trends, Wayne County appears to be on the rebound from a low population of some 8,700 in 1975.

The study was conducted by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Business Administration's Bureau of Business Research.

Over a 48-year period, the county has shown fluctuating patterns of population growth. And for three years in mid-1970's Wayne actually recorded a marked population decrease.

The analysis shows that Nebraska's total population has continually increased since 1930. Although the overall trend was upward, not all counties have followed this pattern of growth.

Wayne erratic
Wayne County had an estimated population of 10,400 in 1970 but by 1973 began to show a drastic drop. Year-by-year estimates for the 1970's are as follows:

1970 — 10,400; 1971 — 10,304; 1972 — 10,416; 1973 — 9,332; 1974 — 9,092; 1975 — 8,789; 1976 — 9,211; 1977 — 9,090; 1978 — 9,426.

A spokesman for the Bureau of Business Research said these figures do include population at Wayne State College. This would account for some fluctuation since the college experienced an enrollment decline in the 1970's.

Thirty-six of Nebraska's 93 counties consistently lost population from 1930 to 1978. Counties which sustained the greatest loss in population, having at least one decade of a more than 20 percent decrease included: Arthur, Blaine, Franklin, Pawnee, Sioux, Webster and Wheeler.

Twenty-two of these experienced a moderate loss of 10 percent or more for approximately three of the decades over the 1930-1978 time period: Antelope, Banner, Boone, Boyd, Cherry, Custer, Deuel, Dixon, Dundy, Fillmore, Furnas, Garden, Greeley, Hitchcock, Jefferson, Johnson, Knox, Nance, Nuckolls, Richardson, Sherman and Valley. The remaining seven counties in this group: Burr, Butler, Cedar, Cuming, Gage, Otoe and Polk, generally had a less than 10 percent loss in population.

Only five Nebraska counties, Dakota, Douglas, Hall, Lancaster, and Sarpy, have experienced consistent gains in population since 1930. Four others, Buffalo, Dodge, Lincoln and Madison exhibited continuous increases in population since 1940.

The growth in Dakota, Douglas, Lancaster, and Sarpy counties can be attributed to their being standard metropolitan statistical area counties.

Each of the other growth counties, Buffalo, Dodge, Hall, Lincoln and Madison, contains a city (Kearney, Fremont, Grand Island, North Platte and Norfolk respectively) that has been growing substantially and thus contributing to the counties' increases. The remaining 48 Nebraska counties displayed fluctuating patterns of population growth and loss. Twenty-four of these counties declined in population for all but one of the time periods involved. Sixteen of the 24 experienced their first growth from 1970-1978: Chase, Colfax, Frontier, Gosper, Hayes, Logan, Loup, McPherson, Morrill, Perkins, Pierce, Sheridan, Stanton, Thayer, Thurston and York. Four of the counties, Dawes, Grant, Howard, and Merrick, only exhibited growth from 1960 to 1970, and one, Clay, from 1950-1960.

Three of these counties, Holt, Keya Paha, and Nemaha, have continually lost population since 1940. Except for Dawson, Keith, and Scotts Bluff-counties, which gained in population for all but one of the decades, the remaining 21 counties displayed an approximately equal occurrence of population gains and losses.

Although the population of a large portion of nonmetropolitan counties decreased from 1930-1978, fewer of these counties are currently losing population. Spurts of growth for some of the nonmetropolitan counties is a recent, 1970-1978, trend. For those still decreasing, the size of the loss is generally smaller than for previous decades. While metropolitan counties have continued to grow, the rate of growth has generally declined.

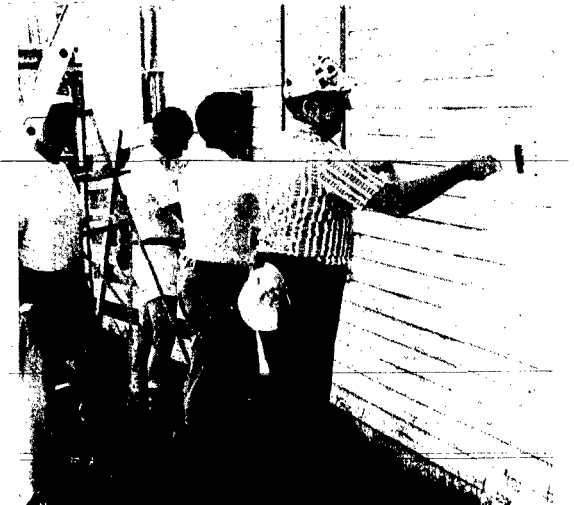

Based on these trends, population throughout the state appears to be stabilizing in the 1970's as compared to previous decades. Although this conclusion of stabilization is primarily based on 1970-1978 estimates, which are not as accurate as actual census enumeration data, it nevertheless suggests important trends concerning the growth and distribution of Nebraska's population.

Over the past 38 years, the following population trends and percentages of change, have been recorded:

Year	Pop.	Change (Percent)
1930	10,566	- 6.5
1940	9,880	+ 2.3
1950	10,129	- 1.7
1960	9,959	+ 4.4
1970	10,400	- 4.4

The following are population estimates from 1970 through 1978 and the percentages of change for each year as compared to 1970:

Year	Pop.	Change (Percent)
1971	10,304	- 0.9
1972	10,416	+ 0.2
1973	9,332	- 10.3
1974	9,092	- 12.6
1975	8,789	- 15.5
1976	9,211	- 11.4
1977	9,090	- 12.4
1978	9,426	- 9.4

As Trucker Slowdown Eases No Food Shortages Reported Here

As the independent trucker slowdown begins to diminish, so does any serious threat of shortages in Wayne supermarkets.

A spot check by The Wayne Herald Monday indicated none of four such stores here was experiencing any problems, either with produce, meat or other merchandise.

Several packing plants in Nebraska and Iowa reopened last week and the pressure from the slowdown appeared to be easing slightly as more drivers were ending their protests and were returning to work.

The shutdown was called about a month ago to protest high fuel prices, short diesel supplies and low freight rates, load and speed limits.

No problems here
Business continues as normal at Bill's GW, Rich's Jack & Jill, Wittig's Food Center and Johnson's Frozen Foods.

"We haven't had any problems" and "no trouble at all" were comments by two of those contacted and sum up the local situation.

When the truckers began their shutdown, warnings of scarce produce and meat abounded. But in the Midwest, there was no apparent problem.

On the west coast, there was even an abundance of produce as truckers refused to haul. Prices there plummeted.

In Wayne, produce has been "coming in pretty good," commented one store owner.

"We heard a couple of weeks ago we might have some problems with meat, but nothing ever happened," he commented.

Another added that "everything is coming in pretty good. Our fresh produce was down a little, and we had one of two watermelon trucks not running. Our strawberries were a problem for awhile, but we had enough from local growers to cover."

There have been scattered instances of late produce from the west coast, another noted. "But we're not sure whether that's because of the strike or just being slow," he said.

"If there is a problem, it's very isolated and we didn't realize it," added another.

"We're set up for railcars so we should be set unless they (truckers) start hassling the drivers between here and Norfolk where the rail lines run," one of them said.

So, like the gasoline shortage, the anticipated food shortage never really developed in Wayne.

Reaction Mixed Involving Strike Response

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Puel
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

There was mixed reaction to the manner in which Gov. Charles Thone responded to the strike by independent truckers.

State Democratic Party Chairman Dick White of Lincoln criticized the governor for being indecisive in facing up to the state's energy crisis, and some of Nebraska's editors wondered why provisions of the picketing law were not used sooner.

Thone said if he had been "trigger-happy and had wanted to play to the galleries and used strong-arm tactics," the result would have been the generation of even more problems that stemmed from the shutdown of the state's gasoline and diesel fuel supplies by the striking truckers.

The governor added the calling up of the National Guard to keep the fuel terminals functioning could have triggered rather than prevented violence.

Thone said the decision to station state patrolmen at the terminals worked because that move kept the independent truckers from intimidating drivers who wanted to transport fuel to service stations.

Several times during the somewhat tense period when the flow of fuel was stopped, Thone said he could and did support many of the demands the truckers were making but that he would not tolerate any violence.

He then served notice if the situation deteriorated, he would call up the Guard. "In my opinion, calling up the National Guard is a most serious matter and should only be done as a last resort," Thone said.

Commenting on a change in federal regulations that made more diesel fuel available to the truckers, the governor said he had checked and found that leaders in the agricultural sector were not too concerned "at this time."

But he added a drought period could cause severe hardship to Nebraska's farmers, many of whom rely on diesel fuel to power their irrigation equipment.

Emergency energy plan

Governor Thone has indicated he will seek broadened authority from the Legislature to deal with man-made emergencies.

The indication of the governor's intent was one of the main features in the emergency energy plan that was unveiled to capitol reporters recently.

The wider authority would be placed into the statutes through an amendment to the Nebraska Civil Defense Act and would empower the governor — in emergency situations — to control the distribution and use of fuel, food and other goods through such actions as rationing and price-setting.

The emergency energy plan that was outlined to reporters centered mainly on the power of the state government to recommend and persuade.

The plan listed what the state recommendations would be if it were confronted with different levels of fuel shortages, ranging from slight to moderate to serious shortfalls of gasoline, diesel fuel, natural gas, coal and electricity.

New senator named

Harry B. Chronister of Schuyler has been appointed to the legislature to fill out the term of the late William Hasebrook of West Point.

In making the appointment, Governor Thone said the roots of Chronister, 58, are "deep in that part of Nebraska" which makes up the 18th district

"He has a real knowledge of the area and will do an outstanding job," Thone said.

The governor said among those who had been considered as Hasebrook's replacement was Hasebrook's widow, Margaret, who will soon assume an executive position in the Thone administration.

Details of her job will be announced in the near future, the governor said.

He said there was considerable sentiment in the 18th district that Hasebrook's successor be from Colfax County because the late senator, who lived in Cuming County, had served for 18 years.

Chronister, secretary-treasurer of Wagner Mills Inc. of Schuyler, has served on the Schuyler City Council and on the Schuyler School Board.

Regents reverse themselves

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents has voted against a resolution to authorize issuance of $6.4 million in revenue bonds for a 9,000-seat addition to Memorial Stadium.

Issuance of the bonds would have been subject to approval by the Legislative Council Executive Board.

The 4-4 vote by the regents may have permanently scuttled the expansion plan.

The key ballot was cast by Regent Robert Raun of Minden, who voted last January in favor of the project but later changed his mind on the wisdom of the proposal.

It would have required five votes to bring the matter before the Legislative Council.

Only a week before the regents acted, the Legislature's Appropriations Committee had decided to take another look at the stadium expansion project. But such an investigation apparently won't be necessary, at least not at this time.

Raun said the main reason for his vote switch was the fuel shortage. He agreed with Regent Robert Simmons of Scottsbluff that people may shy from traveling long distances to athletic events. Raun said the current fuel shortage is "here to stay" and that the payback period for the expansion project stretched out over a period of many years. It wouldn't be wise for the University to get started on it, he added.

Regents Chairman Robert Koefoot of Grand Island said, "Unless we change our minds next month, which we might do, if (expansion project) is a dead issue

New purchasing agent

The state's new purchasing agent is former Lincoln Mayor Samuel Schwartzkopf. He recently was appointed to succeed Charles W. Neal who resigned to take a job as purchasing agent for the Nebraska Game & Parks Commission, effective July 16.

The announcement of the appointment of Schwartzkopf, 63, was made by Department of Administrative Services Director Brent Stevenson who said Schwartzkopf, as administrator of the material division of DAS, will be responsible for the state's $25 million annual purchasing operation, state surplus property and central services.

After his term as Lincoln mayor ended in 1975, Schwartzkopf was named to head the Omaha lottery, which went out of business in 1976. He then sought a seat on the Nebraska Public Service Commission but was defeated in the May primary, in 1976. Later that year, Schwartzkopf was appointed government liaison officer for District 1 with the state Department of Roads. He will be paid $24,600 annually. Neal, 51, will be paid $20,749 in his new job. He said he decided to change to a job with less pressure in that he would be responsible for only one agency's purchases rather than for the entire state's

YOU AND YOUR CAR

By the Automotive Information Council

After you've spent part of Saturday waxing your car, you'll stand back and admire the restored beauty. Time for a cold drink, yes, but also time to get busy on the interior because everyday use of the car can take its toll, points out the Automotive Information Council.

Upholstery and carpet materials are far more durable than they were in the "good old days," but they still need some care, says AIC.

Getting in and out of the car tracks in an accumulation of dirt, mud, moisture and salt from melting snow. Tobacco smoke may have formed a film on the inside of the glass, along with producing a small disagreeable to some. Pets and children and their assorted spills and messes can also be hard on the interior of a car.

Any car, with a little elbow grease, can be restored to almost-new condition. Start by vacuuming the rugs and upholstery. The hose attachment of the vacuum and a small brush will get into the small corner areas and the crevices in the seats.

For stains on carpet or upholstery, try to scrape or blot off as much as possible before following the procedure outlined in the owner's manual for your type of upholstery and carpeting.

In general, most vinyl upholstery and interior trim can be cleaned by wiping with a mild soap solution and then towel-dried. Excess suds and moisture should be wiped off with a damp cloth and then wiped with a dry towel.

Household upholstery cleaners can be used for most auto seats, and special cleaners are available for velours. Follow the advice in the manual.

The last step should be to wash the interior surface of the windows. Use a commercial glass cleaner or a vinegar-water mixture. This should remove the smoke film from the inside of the glass and reduce the odor associated with smoke. Wipe dry to prevent streaks or spots. Air fresheners or an unwrapped bar of soap tucked under the seat can be used to restore and keep a fresh smell in the car.

While a clean car is obviously more pleasant to drive in, AIC says the real reward may come of trade-in time. A cleaner car could mean more dollars for the car.

OUT OF OLD NEBRASKA

by the Nebraska State Historical Society

"An Indian is a person within the meaning of the laws of the United States, and has therefore the right to sue out a writ of habeas corpus in a federal court... in all cases where he may be confined... under color of authority of the United States." This frequently quoted sentence is the essence of U.S. District Judge Elmer S. Dundy's historic decision in the 1879 Nebraska case concerning Ponca Chief Standing Bear. The case posed the first successful challenge to the absolute control of Indians by the Department of the Interior and is still noted 100 years later as a landmark in American jurisprudence.

Records on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society indicate the circumstances which lead up to the trial. Treaties negotiated in 1858 and 1865 between the federal government and the Ponca had established the boundaries of the tribe's Niobrara River reservation on the Nebraska-Dakota border.

The Treaty of 1861 at Fort Laramie awarded the Ponca reservation to the Sioux — without the consent of the Ponca. In 1877, the hapless Ponca were moved by authorities from their Nebraska lands to a new reservation in Indian Territory (present Oklahoma). Within a year, more than 150 of them had died from adverse effects of the forced journey, sudden change of climate and inadequate food and shelter. Ponca chief Standing Bear lost a son as well as many other relatives.

Early in 1879, Standing Bear and a small group of followers left the remaining Ponca in Oklahoma and traveled northward, determined to return to Nebraska. The chief carried with him the bones of his son, which he planned to bury in his native state. Their old Nebraska neighbors the Omaha allowed the little band to settle on the Omaha reservation when they reached Nebraska and provided them with food and shelter. When authorities in Washington became aware of Standing Bear's departure and his presence on the Omaha reservation, Secretary of the Interior Carl Schurz ordered their return to Indian Territory. General George Crook, commander of the military Department of the Platte at Omaha, had the Ponca arrested. They were brought to Fort Omaha on March 27, 1879.

However, before the Ponca could be returned to Oklahoma, powerful voices were raised in their defense. General Crook, who had had wide experience with Indians during his varied military career on the frontier, entered into an alliance with "Omaha Herald" newspaperman Thomas H. Tibbles to legally prevent the Ponca removal.

After an interview with Standing Bear at Fort Omaha, Tibbles shared Crook's sympathy for the Ponca; he gave the Indians' plight publicity in the "Herald." John L. Webster, an Omaha lawyer, and A.J. Poppleton, chief attorney for the Union Pacific Railroad, donated their legal services and a writ of habeas corpus was drawn up in effect challenging the government's right to force the Ponca to return to Oklahoma. On April 8, 1879, the writ was ordered served by U.S. District Judge Elmer S. Dundy on General Crook.

The May 1, 1879, "Omaha Herald," on file at the society, reports, "Judge Dundy came down (to Omaha) from Lincoln last evening, and an informal understanding was arrived at concerning the trial. The case will be called at 10 o'clock this morning. (Other sources, including "The Ponca Chiefs" by Thomas Tibbles and General Crook's autobiography, report that the trial began April 30.) The government's case, argued by U.S. Attorney G.M. Lamberton, hinged on the premise that an Indian was not a person within the meaning of the habeas corpus act and therefore not entitled to sue in the courts for such a writ. Editions of the May, 1879, "Omaha Herald" report in full much of the testimony of Lambertson, Poppleton and Webster during the trial.

Judge Dundy, rendered on May 12 his historic decision, filed with the District Court in Lincoln. He concluded, "An Indian is a person within the meaning of the laws of the United States, and has therefore the right to sue out a writ of habeas corpus in a federal court (and that) no rightful authority exists from removing by force any of the relations to the Indian Territory." General Crook was directed to discharge from custody Standing Bear and the rest of the Ponca detained at Fort Omaha.

An appeal brought by the government before the Circuit Court on May 14, 1879, was dismissed on Jan. 5, 1880. Tibbles and others had hoped to have "Standing Bear vs Crook" carried to the Supreme Court to definitely establish a principle applicable to all Indians, not just to Standing Bear and his followers, but the case was never carried to the Supreme Court.

Tibbles, Omaha Indian Susette La Flesche (better known as "Bright Eyes," she was married to Tibbles in 1881), and Standing Bear went East in the summer of 1879 on behalf of the Ponca and Indian rights. In 1880, President Rutherford B. Hayes appointed a commission, which included General Crook, to investigate the Ponca situation in Nebraska and Oklahoma. The commission reported that the Ponca still in Oklahoma, due to improved living conditions, wished to remain there; Standing Bear and his followers wished to remain in Nebraska. Both groups were permitted to remain where they were and money appropriated for their education and other needs.

Standing Bear died in his native state of Nebraska in 1908. On Oct. 16, 1977, he was elected to the Nebraska Hall of Fame, the first native American to be so honored.

Something we find unique and enjoyable about this part of Nebraska is the lack of humidity.

He has to be kidding, you're probably saying? No, he isn't.

Southwest Iowa, which unofficially is called the banana belt because of its continued humidity and heat, is always humid during the spring, summer and fall months.

That quadrant of the Hawkeye state is far enough south that it continually is blasted by hot and humid air masses from the Gulf of Mexico.

Tuesday morning in Wayne, which dawned so humid that it hung visably in the air, was typical of Southwest Iowa. It isn't unusual for the humidity around Red Oak and Hamburg to be 75 and 80 percent for days and days and days. Even during the years of drought in 1972-73 and 1974-75, the humidity was high in those days, the wind blew constantly and the temperatures were in the 90's and low 100's for 30 days at a time without a drop of water.

But drought is not unfamiliar to the Wayne area. And the wind is considered part of life in Northeast Nebraska, we hear tell. Be thankful you have breezes in the summer. At least it keeps things a little cooler than would be without it.

We were happy to see the city of Wayne owns a street sweeper. The street department has received nothing but praises for its snow removal work during the winter months, we hear. But some residents have wondered where all that manpower is when the streets are dusty and dirty in the spring and summer.

We've been told that at least one of the new trees along Main Street bit the dust. The fault almost immediately goes to a band of vandals every community has to put up with.

Again, we've been told that vandals destroyed the town's first attempt at the decorative trees several months ago. Anyone who would like to see these kind and destructive persons flogged in public, the line forms here.

We had a casual stroll through the Wayne State College campus the other evening. It's unusually well kept and manicured for a small college.

There is obviously a lot of pride in WSC. We saw only a few instances of litter; the flower beds are all weeded; the grass neatly mowed and the entire area well planned and landscaped.

The college is something the community should be proud of. It has a fine academic reputation even in Southwest Iowa where competition among colleges and universities is fierce.

The Wayne City Council should examine carefully a proposal to rededicate the city in the name of the late John Wayne. The idea probably has some merit, but caution is urged. The town's image is at stake.

A Virginia congressman has taken a unique approach toward easing the energy crunch. He has introduced legislation that would abolish the Department of Energy (DOE). Not only would it help relieve the energy problem, it also would reduce the federal bureaucracy and the federal deficit. In fiscal year 1979, DOE spent an estimated $10.1 billion and employed more than 19,000 persons. Whew!

4-H Home Economics Judging Contest Slated

Val Schellpeper, area home extension agent, has announced that the 4-H Home Economics Judging Contest will be held Tuesday, July 10 at the Northeast Station, near Concord.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. Ms. Schellpeper said this year's contest has taken on a new format. Any 4-H'er, regardless of project enrollment, can enter the contest.

Also, the contest is a home economics judging contest rather than a foods, clothing, home environment and general areas such as safety, child care and health.

Four-H'ers will be asked to give oral reasons for answers to some of their questions. Following the event, six older 4-H'ers will be selected to participate in the state judging contests to be held at Lincoln during the State Fair. Three alternates also will be chosen.

Ms. Schellpeper said the judging contest is held to help 4-H'ers reason and make decisions.

Some say leeks around the house help keep it from catching fire.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascoll

COLLEGIATE WRESTLING suffered the loss of a near-legendary athlete this past week. Chris Taylor, one of the best known national champion wrestlers in history, died in his sleep.

Wrestling as a 400 pound heavyweight for Iowa State, Taylor won the NCAA wrestling championship from 1972 through 1975, while compiling an 87-0 record. He won 80 of his matches by pin. Probably only Dan Gable, who is now head wrestling coach at Iowa University, is a more legendary figure in the wrestling world.

Taylor, a big man who was said to be friendly and mild-mannered at all times, won a bronze medal in the Olympics at Munich, Germany in 1976. He was indeed a great man.

After completing his college career, Taylor signed a contract as a pro wrestler. This is an entirely different sport than the one Taylor participated in while at Iowa State. The professional sport resembles collegiate wrestling only slightly and I was disappointed when Taylor joined the pro ranks. As a former wrestler, I feel that razzing gives the high school and collegiate sport a bad name. But, Taylor has done much for collegiate wrestling and will be remembered by many.

At the age of 29, he died after suffering from illnesses for several years.

AFTER DEVOTING MUCH of my last column to the recent All Star baseball selection, which overlooked some fine Northeast Nebraska baseball players, I feel I should also devote some space to a recent addition to the All-Star committee made. Tom Ginn, Wayne shortstop has been added to the Nebraska All Star team which will play the Omaha All Stars in less than two weeks.

Coaches reconsidered the original selections and decided to add two more players to the list. One was Ginn, who was originally first alternate. Now Wayne and Wakefield are both represented ed in the series. More information is included in a separate article.

THE PAST WEEKEND was filled with sports activities including a horse show at the Wayne arena, a tennis tournament at the Wayne State courts, a fishing contest at Ike's Lake and several baseball games.

I was certainly impressed with the large field competing in the Wayne Open Tennis Tournament Saturday and Sunday and also with the large turnout at the fishing contest.

WAYNE IS WELL REPRESENTED in area slow pitch softball tournaments this summer. The 4th Jug has won two consecutive tourneys and is in the semifinals of another tournament. Danielson's Drywall is another team that is doing well. T.J.'s Bar of Laurel has won one tourney and Waldbaum's of Wakefield has had some success in tournament play. All of these teams play in the Wayne Slow Pitch Softball League

Boasting 29-1 Record

4th Jug Softballers Win Second Straight Tourney

The 4th Jug softball team of Wayne edged R&R Construction of Lyons in a marathon final game to win the Pender Jaycee Softball Tournament Saturday and Sunday, the second consecutive tourney title for the Jug.

The Jug scored six runs in the second inning for a 6-2 lead. Three more runs in the third opened the game up momentarily. R&R scored four runs in the bottom of the fourth and four more in the bottom of the fifth to tie the game at 10-10.

The game remained deadlocked through the 10th inning as both teams were shutout, mostly on fly balls. Then the Jug put together a rally in the top of the eleventh that gave them the championship 14-13.

Rod Bowler opened the rally with a single and was followed by Tim Johnson and Bill Schultz with singles and Jake Munter and Kim Baker with doubles. Bowler, Johnson, Munter and Schultz all crossed the plate to give the Jug a four run advantage. R&R posed one final threat in the bottom of the inning. A triple and four singles gave R&R three runs with only one out but the next two batters were put out to end the game, with the 4th Jug and pitcher Brad Wieland getting the win.

To reach the finals, the 4th Jug won three games in earlier action, dropping Holmquist of Walthill 9-3, mopping the Oakland Bears 6-3 and demoralizing Thurston 18-2.

Leading batters for the 4th Jug in the tournament were: Mic Daehnke, eight hits including two triples. Jake Munter, six hits; Bill Schultz, five hits; Kim Baker, five hits; Tim Robinson, five hits; Lyle Blewins, five hits.

The 4th Jug won the Walthill Tournament last week, making this their second tournament win this season. They are also semifinalists in the Funk Construction Tournament at Norfolk which has been postponed until Saturday, July 7, due to rain when the first half of the tourney was held several weeks ago.

Omaha Lady Wins Three Events In Wayne Open Tennis Tourney

Susan Nelson of Omaha entered three events in the final half of the Wayne Open Tennis Tournament and she became the first person in history to win three titles.

Miss Nelson dominated play by winning the women's singles, women's doubles and mixed doubles titles. Seeded number one in the women's singles competition, Nelson defeated Toni Oppliger of Norfolk 6-3, 6-0 in the finals. She and doubles partner Karen Larson of Omaha, then won the women's doubles title by default over Vicki Carsey and Tami Jackson of Fremont, who defaulted because of a time conflict.

Then, Nelson and Bob Johnson of Omaha teamed up to win the mixed doubles title 6-3, 6-2 over Wendy and Wade Callahan of Fremont. Miss Nelson had to play all of her final matches on the hot, muggy courts on Sunday. Competition began on Saturday with finals being staged Sunday.

Wade Callahan of Fremont was also busy, playing three final matches on Sunday and winning two. After losing in the finals of the mixed doubles competition, Callahan won the men's 'A' singles over Johnson 6-1, 7-5 with over-powering serves. He then teamed with Mark Forster of Norfolk to win the 'A' doubles title by default over Ken Bond and Ray Somberg of Omaha.

Bond and Somberg won the men's 35 and over doubles title over Dick Gibson and Rick Harley of Lincoln 6-2, 3-6, 6-0. Jim Hegendetter of Bellevue was awarded the 35 and over singles title after finals opponent Dick Gibson sprained his ankle and defaulted.

Wakefield Whips Winside In Ralph Bishop Baseball

The Wakefield baseball teams made a sweep of their games Monday night, winning the Mid-jug game 13-3 and winning the Legion game by a 19-1 landslide score.

Wakefield's Midgets dominated the first game on Wakefield's field, winning by 10 runs. Then, it was the Legion's turn. Winside was humiliated, committing 12 errors in four innings of defense.

Wakefield took a 4-0 lead after the first inning and added 14 more runs in the second on five hits and seven errors. Winside constantly ran into problems fumbling ground balls and throwing the ball away.

Winside threatened to score in the third inning but ran into continued bad luck. With bases loaded and only one out, a double play ended the threat. Wakefield added one more run in the third inning for a 19-0 lead.

An embarrassed Winside team managed to break up the shutout with one run in the fourth for a final 19-1 count. Jeff Hallstrom was the winning pitcher, limiting Winside to three hits. Wakefield's record is now 12-4 for the season while Winside falls to 1-5.

Golds, Greens Are Winners

Golds 9, Reds 5
 The Gold team scored four runs in the first inning to jump out in front to stay and added five runs in the next three innings to gain a 9-5 win over the Red team in Wayne Little League Intra-city competition last Tuesday.

Brent Pick went three for three at the plate and Kevin Koenig and Dennis Otte hit doubles as the Golds got all the scoring they needed. The Reds were held to three base hits with Shannon Dorcey slapping a double for two RBI's. The Gold team's record is now 2-0 while the Reds fall to 0-2.

Greens 7, Blues 1
 Steve Overin drove a solo home run in the first inning to give the Blues a 1-0 lead but the Greens tied the game in the third when Rick Hasse doubled and scored on a single by Rod Gilliland. The Green team added six more runs in the final inning to win the game 7-1. Loren Grasshorn hit a two-run single in the inning for the key hit. Don Larson pitched a three-hitter for the winners.

Next Intra-city action pits the Blues against the Golds and the Reds against the Greens.

Goeden Stops Invaders For Legion Victory

Wayne pitcher Jerry Goeden held Hartington to two runs on three hits as the Wayne Legion rolled to a 5-2 win in a well-played baseball game in Wayne Sunday night. Hartington's Midgets scored six runs on four Wayne errors in the fourth inning to win the Midget contest 7-6.

Wayne's Juniors scored three runs in the first inning on base hits by Jeff Zeiss, Dennis Carroll, Tom Ginn and Dean Carroll. Zeiss scored on an error and Ginn and Dean Carroll added to their RBI totals by bringing in runs with their hits.

Hartington got its first run in the third inning as Milander reached the plate on a base hit by Rathueber. Dennis Carroll countered the run with one of his own in the bottom of the third.

Carroll, Ginn and Dave Schwartz all singled.

Goeden added to the cause with a single in the fourth and Zeiss rapped a single to score him from second base for a 5-1 lead. The final Hartington run came too late as Burbach scored in the top of the sixth for a final 5-2 count.

Wayne coach Hank Overin commended Hartington for a good ball game and added that they are a well-coached ball club.

Wayne's Midgets couldn't find the handle on the baseball in Sunday night's opening game and found themselves down by one run when the game ended.

Leadoff batter Jere Morris scored the first Wayne run in the first inning with an RBI double by Kevin Nissen. The locals padded their lead with another run in the second inning by Tod Heier. Heier rapped a double, reached third base on a sacrifice by Jeff Brandt and scored on a passed ball.

Trailing 2-0 after 2½ innings, Hartington cut the difference to one run in the third. Then disaster struck. Wayne's Midgets committed four errors in the bottom of the fourth inning, enabling Hartington to gain a big lead.

With four walks and one base hit the visitors scored six runs. All four errors were made by infielders. Wayne's Midgets made a gallant comeback attempt in the bottom of the sixth and final inning. Runs were scored by Tim Pfeiffer, Nissen, Brian Fleming and Morris but the locals fell one run short in a 7-6 loss. The Wayne Midgets and Juniors were scheduled to play at Wisner Tuesday night.

All-Star Coaches Reconsider, Add Ginn To Their Team

Tom Ginn, shortstop for the Wayne-Carroll High School baseball team, has been added to the Nebraska All-Star team, after re-consideration by the coaches involved.

In a telephone conversation Monday with the Wayne Herald, Omaha Creighton Prep coach Mike Evans said that Ginn and Zane Smith of North Platte would be added to the original list of 18 All-Stars forming the Nebraska All-Star team. Ginn had earlier been selected as first alternate.

Evans said that coaches involved with the three-game series had decided that Ginn and Smith were too valuable to be overlooked for the series. The Omaha All-Stars are scheduled to play three games against the Nebraska All-Stars on Saturday, July 14, and Sunday, July 15 at Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha.

Ginn joins Rick Guy and Doug Starzl from Wakefield and Mike Ralston of Creighton as the only northeast Nebraska selections. Ginn was an All-Conference, Wayne Herald All Area and All-State selection as shortstop this past season, although the player as designated hitter for about half of the high school season.

"We (the All-Star coaches) have heard that Ginn is a very fine player and we don't want to leave him out," Coach Evans said. "It would be a shame to overlook a fine ball player from a town like Wayne with a good baseball program. We're happy to add Tom to our list."

A nine inning game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday with two seven inning games planned for Sunday beginning at 1 p.m. Tickets can be purchased for the entire series at $5 per adult and $2 for students. Individual game tickets will sell for $3 for adults and $1.50 for students. They may be purchased at the Civic Auditorium Box Office or at Rosenblatt Stadium before the games.

Nebraska All-Star coaches are Willie Weisbrook of Lincoln Southeast, Randy Speth of Grand Island and Steve Winter of Beatrice.

Pfeiffer Three-Hitter Avenges Bancroft Nine

Tim Pfeiffer pitched a three-hit shutout and the Wayne offense came alive as Wayne's Midgets gained revenge against a scrappy Bancroft team that upset the Midgets earlier this season. Bancroft does not have a Legion team and lost the Midget rematch 9-0 Monday night.

Bancroft managed only three singles — one in the third inning and two in the fifth. Wayne's offense really didn't start clicking until the third inning. Todd Skakan walked. Jere Morris moved him to second base with a sacrifice bunt and Doug Proett singled to advance Skakan to third.

Pfeiffer helped his own cause with an RBI single and Kevin Nissen drove Proett home with a base hit for a 2-0 lead. Wayne scored two more runs in the fifth. Pfeiffer singled and Nissen followed with a triple. Tod Heier laid down a squeeze bunt to score Nissen for a 4-0 lead.

The locals put the game well out of reach with five more runs in the sixth. Pfeiffer and Pat McCright collected key base hits as Morris, Pfeiffer, Nissen, Jeff Brandt and Skakan scored the insurance runs for a 9-0 win.

The Wayne Midgets and Juniors were scheduled to play at Wisner Tuesday night and will host Emerson Friday.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Wayne County Weed Control Authority has dedicated itself not only to noxious weed control, but also to the prevention of dissemination of noxious weed seed. The Director of Agriculture has determined that noxious weed seed may be disseminated through the movement of machinery and equipment, grain and seed, hay, straw, nursery stock, fencing materials, sod, manure and soil as well as articles of similar nature. Methods of treatment have also been prescribed by the Director and may be obtained from the Wayne County Weed Control Authority.

With the harvest season approaching very rapidly, please keep in mind the provisions of the law requiring owners of harvest equipment to clean prior to movement in the harvest of crops should be treated or cleaned as follows:

1. Removal of all material from the tops and sides of all parts of the machine by sweeping and the use of forced air and water.
2. Opening the lower end of all elevators returns, and measuring devices and removal of all noxious weed seeds and seedlings from shakers, sieves and other places of lodgment.
3. Run the machine empty for a minimum of five minutes, alternately increasing and decreasing the speed.
4. Follow the manufacturer's detailed instructions for cleaning the machine.

These treatments should be performed while the article or the machine itself is still on the land in which it became infested if at all possible. This will not only prevent spreading noxious weed seed from one field to another, but also from one land owner to another.

For treatment methods of all other articles and questions, please contact the Wayne County Weed Control Authority.

Social Security Privacy Sought

Whenever social security requests information from a person, the agency must meet the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974, Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk, said recently.

Social security is required to give a person the following information whenever the agency asks for personal information: why the information is needed, whether it is voluntary or mandatory to give the information, the effects of not giving the information will be used, and the statutory or other authority for the request.

For example, Branch said, whenever a person applies for a social security number, he or she is told that the information requested is needed to assign the person a number, issue a replacement card if necessary, change information on his or her social security record, establish and maintain a record of earnings, and to conduct research programs in the area of income distribution and maintenance and health insurance.

The person is also told that the authority for requesting information is the Social Security Act.

He or she learns that there are no penalties for refusing to give most kinds of information, but problems can arise if the person refuses the request if the person does not give the information, social security can not establish and keep accurate records nor issue a social security number. This in turn could have an effect on future social security benefits in addition some employers will not hire a person without a social security number.

Water Amount Is Major Corn Influence

Water — either too much, too little, or both — generally has more influence on the amount of corn you harvest than any other one thing, according to research by a major agricultural research company.
 As corn goes into the stage of rapid growth and development, water needs of the crop increase dramatically, the company explained.
 In research trials, a crop of corn has been grown with as little as 12 inches of water to as much as 33 inches of disappearance during the growing season. The total amount required varies from season to season and area to area and depends on length of growing season, relative humidity, temperature and air movement. A good rule of thumb for typical conditions is probably 24 to 26 inches per season, the research showed.

Corn hybrids differ somewhat in their efficiency of water use but most variation is due to growing conditions and soil fertility level. In an irrigated study in northwest Kansas, Kansas State University at Manhattan found that 235 pounds of water were required to produce one pound of corn dry matter under optimum fertility. When fertility was inadequate, it took 435 pounds of water to produce one pound of dry matter.
 In corn belt studies, an inch of water produces from about four bushels to more than 12 bushels of corn grain per acre. If corn is properly fed, protected from weeds and pests, and given overall good management, it is reasonable to expect each inch of water used to produce seven to ten bushels of grain.

growth, daily water use by a corn crop increases from essentially zero to about 15 inch. Then, during the rapid growth stage, water need increases sharply to a maximum of about 35 inch per day during the pollination period. If it is hot and dry the maximum may be as much as 50 inch per day. Moisture demand tapers off after pollination and is down to roughly .05 inch per day when grain reaches physiologic maturity.
 Any time moisture demands are not met potential production suffers, but some stages are more critical in this respect than others. With corn, the most critical time is from a few days prior to tasseling to a few days after completion of pollination. At this time, plants have a great need for both moisture and nutrients because they are completing the very rapid vegetative growth stage, developing silks from one or more ear shoots, exposing a tassel, shedding pollen, and effecting fertilization. Dry matter production may be as much as 200 pounds per acre per day during this period.

 An Iowa State University at Ames study showed that corn yield reductions of as much as 50 percent occurred when corn was wilted for four consecutive days at the end of the pollination period. Drought effect was less severe before tasseling and after soft dough stage.
 During the three week span from prior to boot stage through pollination, corn may need about seven inches of water. In many corn-growing areas, this critical high-demand time coincides with dry periods of July or early August.
Drought Tolerance
 A DeKalb research goal is to develop hybrids that use less water but match or exceed the yield of present hybrids. Actually, years of selection under drought conditions have enabled breeders to develop relatively drought tolerant types that have been released, primarily in the west, in recent years.

 Another approach that is receiving strong emphasis is to incorporate a genetic system called "latente" into new hybrids. This is a system that imparts plant protection during short periods of drought. It promises to be a stabilizing factor that will enable hybrids to attain acceptable yields in areas or seasons affected by inadequate moisture supply for other hybrids. Such hybrids are now being tested for general performance, both under drought and optimum moisture conditions.

Tests May Help Cut Irrigation Costs

Farmers who use irrigation pumping systems may be able to save on energy consumption and ever rising costs, according to an extension water resources specialist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.
 By putting their systems through the Nebraska pumping plant performance test, Deon Axthelm said, irrigators could save on precious and costly fuel.
 Axthelm said standards have been set for how much fuel should be used for the water horsepower required to do the job, whether it is diesel, propane, electric or natural gas.
 "The test involves taking measurements of the water flow, the lift from the pumping level in the well to the surface and adding any pressure head, like pipe pressures, to that lift," he said.
 From these measurements, the water horsepower can be calculated, and also the amount of fuel that is the standard for those conditions. While the pump is operating, the fuel is weighed or metered and the use per hour is calculated, Axthelm explained.

 This test then will tell whether or not the pumping plant is meeting the calculated standard fuel consumption for its particular conditions. For example, Axthelm said if the calculated standard fuel use should be four gallons per hour of diesel and the plant is using five gallons per hour, the plant is only 80 percent of standard. It is using one more gallon every hour than it should.
 Over an average season or about 700 hours operation, a savings of 700 gallons would be possible if the plant were brought up to standard, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialist said.
 "That's about $600 (of fuel), and who knows what the price will be tomorrow?" Axthelm said.

"The test also can help pinpoint where corrections and pump adjustments can be made and in locating if the power unit needs work," he said.
 The test usually is done by professionals, Axthelm said.
 Persons desiring more information should contact their county extension agent.

While five tons of soil loss per acre each year is generally considered acceptable, Yost estimates some fields have lost up to 15 tons during recent storms. Runoff not only robs the land of soil and water but also carries with it valuable fertilizers.
 In contrast, farms where contouring, terracing, and minimum tillage practices are being used, showed considerably less evidence of erosion. Cost-share money is still available for erosion control practices, and SCS personnel will assist with surveys and designs.

Erosion Serious
 An abundance of hard rains this spring is causing more than normal erosion problems," says Bill Yost, district conservationist for Cedar and Dixon counties. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) personnel are observing many fields where uncontrolled soil and water erosion are occurring.

Beef, Pork Price Rise More Than Warranted by Industry

Retail prices for beef and pork may be rising faster than warranted by the rate of cost increases in the meat industry, a U.S. Department of Agriculture study has concluded.
 The study noted that although livestock prices declined this spring, retail prices for beef and pork rose. The increases may have resulted not only from higher actual costs of items like labor and fuel, but from anticipated rising costs and fear of government price controls.
 The study compared changes in meat marketing price spreads during March and April with changes in costs during the same period. Marketing price spreads refer to the cost of processing and marketing food after it leaves the farm.
 The study said that wholesale-to-retail price spreads for beef and pork appeared to be about 9 cents a pound more than cost increases would have warranted.
 It also suggested that based on cost increases, the farm-to-wholesale spreads for choice beef and pork were 2 cents a pound and 5 cents a pound respectively, below what cost increases would have warranted.
 The study, prepared by the department's economic, statistics, and cooperative service and forwarded to the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability for study and possible action, pinpoints factors responsible for the more-rapid-than-expected increases in April red meat prices.
 A four percent increase in beef and veal prices in April was nearly double the rate expected by department economists.
 The USDA and the President's Council jointly monitor, assess and report sources of unjustified inflation in the food and agriculture sector of the economy. Including tracing increases in farm commodity prices from the farm gate to the grocery store checkout counter.
 The price spread for choice beef between the farm and the carcass stage appeared to be 2 cents a pound below costs.
 The price spread for pork between the farm and the wholesaler was indicated about 5 cents under cost increases.
 The study said price spreads usually decrease when livestock prices go up because retailers try to stabilize prices to consumers over time.
 But, the study pointed out, the price spreads continued to widen even as prices paid to farmers declined this spring. As a result, prices continued to increase much faster than the inflation rate in the general economy, the study said.
 The price spread for pork between the wholesaler and the consumer also seemed to be 9 cents a pound higher than justified.

Tell Release Of Sorghum

Sorghum in the farmer-owned reserve is released for redemption effective immediately by Ray Fitzgerald, executive vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC). Farmers may sell their reserve sorghum after repaying their CCC price support loans. Release of the reserve does not require farmers to redeem or sell grain at this time. Fitzgerald said the national average market price for sorghum has reached $4.25 per hundredweight. The price level at which the commodity is released from the reserve is 125 percent of the $3.39 National loan rate, or $4.24 per hundredweight. More than 43 million hundredweight of sorghum are in the reserve. Farmers with grain in the reserve receive storage payments from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Upon repayment of the loan, farmers can keep the storage payments earned through the date of repayment. On July 31, the department will review the average price for sorghum to determine if the release authorized should remain above the release level. Data used by CCC in determining the release level include five-day average prices as reported by the department's Agricultural Marketing Service, which show prices bid by buyers at selected markets and a month-end report of prices received by farmers issued by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service. This report shows the previous month's average price and the current mid-month price. Kansas City and Texas high plains are the daily markets reviewed by CCC for sorghum. The five-day average of these market prices, adjusted to reflect prices received by farmers, was the basis for today's action.

Gas Situation Humorous?

WHAT'S FUNNY about gasoline? This tank on the Ernest Swanson farm 7 1/2 miles north of Wayne appears to know something the rest of us don't. Mrs. Swanson, a member of the Dixon County extension Merry Homemakers Club, said the club's project last month was to paint a mural. Instead, she decided the irony of a smiling gas barrel was too much to resist!

The Midland View: Beef Checkoff Near

Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation By M.M. Van Kirk, Director of Information BEEF REFERENDUM FORMS Another try at getting cattle producers to approve a beef checkoff research and promotion program under provisions of the 1976 Beef Research and Information Act is underway with a beef referendum likely to be conducted next spring. The first referendum conducted in 1977 was not approved although 56.4 percent of those voting favored it. At that time the act required approval by two-thirds majority of the registered producers voting. A 1978 amendment to the act now permits an order implementing the law if approved by a majority of the registered producer voters. Amendments to the rules outlining procedures the USDA will follow to establish an order were published in the Feb. 27 federal register. The proposed order was submitted by the beef referendum advisory group which represents a coalition of livestock industry organizations. Public hearings on the proposed order have been held at five locations during June. The hearing site for the Midwest is scheduled for June 28 at Des Moines, Iowa. The total record from the hearings will be evaluated and a recommended decision issued for public comment. The Secretary of Agriculture's final decision on an order will be based on the comments received and further examination of the total record. If the final decision is that such a program is justified, a producers' referendum will then be scheduled. As in the 1977 referendum, local offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) would conduct the referendum, although the Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) would handle most USDA responsibilities under the act. The law requires that beef producers must register at least 10 days before the referendum vote. The research and promotion program would be administered by a beef board of up to 68 members selected by the Secretary of Agriculture from nominations submitted by producer organizations. Representation would be proportional to cattle production in each state or geographic area as determined by the Secretary. The AMS would monitor the program to assure that it stays within the law, and also would be responsible for approving the beef board's budget, plans and projects. The law sets a maximum checkoff assessment of one-half of 1 percent of the live animal value. Funds would be collected according to a value-added concept which would assess all sellers in the marketing chain. Sales of dairy and breeding cattle may be exempt from assessment until the animals are sold for slaughter. The initial purchaser would deduct the amount of assessment from the payment to the original owner. Each succeeding purchaser would deduct an assessment based on the current market value, representing an amount equal to the previous assessment plus an added assessment resulting from the animal's increased value during the time the seller owned it. The purchaser at the point of slaughter would deduct the total assessment due and pay it to the beef board. The act gives any producer who has paid an assessment and who does not wish to participate in the program, the right to a refund by applying to the beef board. The USDA has estimated that around $40 million per year would be generated for the program on the basis of an expected beginning assessment of two-tenths of one percent (.2 percent) of the value of each animal slaughtered. The maximum allowable assessment of five-tenths of one percent (.5 percent) would generate about $100 million per year. The exact number of producers affected is not known, but there are an estimated 1.7 million farms with cattle in the United States. The beef checkoff, research and promotion plan was strongly supported by cattlemen's organizations in 1977 and by cattle producers in the nation's main cattle producing areas and indications point toward similar support in the second referendum effort. Beef industry spokesmen say the program is needed because hard-won beef preference among consumers may be lost to beef substitutes and extenders during the current period of high demand and short supplies.

Eggs and Spacecraft

THE SIDEWALK (above) in front of the Carhart Science Building at Wayne State College looked as though someone had dumped his or her garbage after a recent experiment in spacecraft re-entry into the earth's atmosphere. Students in the WSC Aerospace Education Workshop, underway through Saturday, attempted to cushion eggs in a variety of containers to prevent their breakage after the containers were dropped from the top of the science building. At left, Dr. Jim Paige, math professor at WSC, gently shakes his egg to see if the yolk was broken. Four or eight attempts succeeded.

Taiwan Wheat Sales Record

U.S. wheat sales to Taiwan reached a record 900,500 tons for the crop year ending May 31, Dick Baum, president of Western Wheat Associates, has announced.

He noted that the United States provided 100 percent of the Taiwan wheat market requirement for the year.

"U.S. wheat sales to Taiwan have been running at close to 90 percent of the market in recent years," he said. "Despite increased pressure from our competitors, we expect to continue to be the major supplier of wheat to Taiwan."

WWA, which maintains a wheat market development program throughout Asia, is supported by American wheat farmers working in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Since the WWA program started in Taiwan in 1966, U.S. wheat sales to that country have tripled.

"WWA market development programs in Taiwan are supported by the Nebraska Wheat Committee. The committee authorizes wheat check-off funds through the Nebraska Wheat Division. Wheat division programs are supported solely by wheat check-off funds," says Dan McGuire, wheat division chief.

Cedar County Recording Its Energy Purchases

In addition to utilizing various energy saving innovations on their farms, farmers involved in the "Energy Project" have been recording energy purchases and farm production since 1976.

A total of 48 farms in Cedar County have been keeping such records. The Energy Project has analyzed the impact on income by both energy use and energy saving innovations. On the average, cooperation farms spend over $4,500 on energy each year, although average annual net farm income is just over $3,000. Energy costs to double.

The U.S. Department of Energy has projected that energy expenses may be expected to double by the year 1984, based on a 10 percent inflation rate and other factors.

The Energy Project has also analyzed the impact of increases of energy prices on income for farms participating in the project. As an example, a study of 16 dairy farms in Cedar County indicates that these farms will be spending over $6,000 on energy in 1984 in addition to current expenditures, based on DOE projections and 1978 energy consumption patterns of the farms studied. All of the other 30 livestock farms in the analysis would spend over $4,500 more for energy, based on the projections.

As a result of such farm energy costs increases, the use of various energy saving innovations can be expected to become increasingly more important to small farmers in the future.

In another study of energy purchases by Cedar County farms, the Energy Project compared gross and net profits with energy expenses for several dairy, hog, and general livestock farms. 1979 energy records were compared for 19 farms.

Results of the analysis indicated that general livestock farms, which have dairy, beef and hog operations, gave four times the net profit for each dollar spent on energy than the more specialized dairy or hog operations.

The results indicated that the diversified farm was in a better position to handle energy price increases.

The preliminary results are based on only several years of records, but are of particular interest, and will be studied further by the Energy Project.
