Pioneer Award Planned for Paul H. Decks

A Wayne County farm family, the Paul H. Decks, is to receive the Nebraska Pioneer Farm Award during the Wayne County Fair which runs July 26-29.

An engraved plaque and framed certificate will be presented to the family, descendants of a family that started a century of farm ownership when Wayne County was first being settled.

August and Augusta Eckert Deck are the original family owners and the farm originally was acquired March 1, 1879.

The honor, co-sponsored by Ak-Sar-Ben and the Nebraska Association of Fair Managers, is made annually to owners of farms which have remained in the same family for 100 years or longer.

The Deck farm consists of 240 acres and was homesteaded by Deck's grandparents who came from Germany in 1870. The family moved from Illinois to Nebraska in 1877 and lived in a "dugout" until a house was built later. That same house currently is occupied by the Deck family.

Move Over, Rover..Er, Bruno

Jill Mosley, 13 (left), and Angie Karel, 12 (mostly hidden) were seen recently taking Bruno for a ride. As impatient as dogs can be, Bruno was after the passenger's seat and making good progress in doing so.

City Budget Reflects 7 Percent Lid

Public hearing has been set for 8 p.m. Tuesday, July 31, at the City Hall involving the city of Wayne 1979-80 fiscal year budget.

The budget has been estimated at $3.74 million and will require $299,489.62 to be raised by taxation. This includes a 10 percent allowance for delinquent taxes and the county treasurer's collection fee.

City Administrator Darrell Brevington

County Judge Will Retire

R. Bruce Henning has announced his retirement as county judge in the Ninth Judicial District effective Sept. 4.

The Judicial Nominating Commission for the Ninth Judicial District county judge will hold a public hearing in the district courtroom at the Courthouse in Madison at 2 p.m. Monday, July 30, to receive information relating to candidates for appointment to fill the vacancy.

The members of the commission are: Timothy M. Brennan, Dennis W. Collins, James G. Egle, Joe Farnik, Dr. James Murphy, Duane W. Schroeder, Robert W. Smith, Gwen E. Welke.

Candidates for the nomination should submit written applications addressed to Leslie Bostlaugh, Chairman, Box 94638, Lincoln, Ne 68509, to be received not later than July 27, 1979.

and City Clerk Bruce Mordhorst have spent the last several months preparing the budget and shifting the city from a departmentalized mill levy system to an all-purpose mill levy.

The City Council recently held two study sessions and offered its criticism and comments.

Mordhorst explained that the state of Nebraska allows two types of budgeting systems — departmentalized or the all-purpose variety. Some 25 departments (or funds) have made up the Wayne city budget for several years. This resulted in mill levies being established for each department.

However, under the new all-purpose system, only seven functions (or funds) are included. These are the general fund, electric, sewer and water, revenue sharing, trust and agency (retirement), special assessments and airport.

Cash flow problem

Because there were 25 separate funds itemized in previous years' budgets, there existed a complicated and sometimes serious cash flow problem, Mordhorst explained. But under the new system, "we have lessened tremendously the cash flow problem. The system now makes for more efficiency in bookkeeping," he explained.

By shifting to the all-purpose system, Mordhorst explained, the public, the council and individual department heads will have a better understanding of the distribution of funds.

The state auditor also helped in setting up the new budget procedure, the clerk said.

"We (the administration) feel comfortable with the budget, and we feel it will be beneficial to the public as well as to employees of the city," Mordhorst commented.

Seven percent lid

As per requirements of the state, the city of Wayne this year was required to hold its budget expenditures to seven percent. The seven percent, the city clerk noted, is based on the last two year's budgets, and applies only to property tax requirements.

The mill levy, which is the basis for determining the overall budget, has been held to a slight increase for next year. Last year's mill levy was 20.26 mills for the city and is estimated at 20.64 for the coming fiscal year.

The levy has been estimated, Mordhorst explained, because the assessed valuation of the town has not been set by the county assessor. This is not done until after Aug. 1 according to state law.

According to the city's estimate, Wayne's assessed valuation will be about $14,500,000. This compares to only $12,900,000 last fiscal year.

However, this figure could change depending on figures compiled by the county assessor.

Raised by taxes

The amount needed to be raised by taxation for the 1979-80 fiscal year was $267,246.14, the city clerk said. This compares with $299,489.62 for the 79-80 fiscal year.

"We kept the mill levy virtually even with last year even though the city acquired $830,000 in bonded indebtedness," Mordhorst said. He added that this was done by lowering the general fund mill levy which offset the increase in the levy for bonded indebtedness.

There is no realistic method of comparing this year's fiscal year budget with last year's. As noted before, previous budgets have been based on a departmentalized system which included transfer of funds among the various departments. This resulted in inflated expenditures.

The Council, during regular session July 31, will hear objections and suggestions to the proposed budget. A copy of the document is on file at the city hall for public inspection.

Legal notice, calling for the hearing and outline basic budget projects will appear in the Monday, July 23, issue of The Herald.

To Wakefield Man, Rocks Are Like Grab Bags

Harold Miner of Wakefield knows the names and varieties of rocks like the back of his hand. And he should; after all he's been collecting rocks for 40 years — nearly half as many years as he's lived.

When entering Miner's house, it's evident that he's a rock collector. A few rocks are scattered here and there, and on his living room table is a small collection of 50 or 60 various stones. He uses one room of the house solely for storage of his rock collection. A few traces of his days of trapping are exposed in his various animal furs which are displayed in nearly every room of his house. Miner does most of the cutting and polishing of rocks in his basement. Rocks are cut and polished if they lend themselves to the process, Miner said. Others are kept as they are.

"My basement is like Fibber McGee's closet," said Miner as he headed downstairs to demonstrate his tools. In the north side of his basement he has two diamond saws which cut the rock, and several lap wheels which sand and finish them after they're cut. In one corner, he has a large pile of uncut rocks that someday he will finish.

"The beauty of rock is that some are nearly as hard as diamonds and when they're finished they last forever," Miner said. "Some other types of rock are soft and take little time to cut and finish but scratch up easily."

The 84-year-old Miner, shows few signs of his age. Perhaps it's because his hobby keeps him from aging or perhaps it's because of the visits he receives from the young people of Wakefield.

Miner's home can almost be considered a local museum. Every year, classes of youngsters from Wakefield Elementary School visit the house with their teachers and Miner says he enjoys it.

"I'm tickled to death when someone sees my rock collection and is really interested in it," Miner remarked. "Sometimes the classes are too big to show around but when a few of the kids take interest, I'm happy to do it."

One of Miner's young friends is 11-year-old neighbor Tim Schwarten. "Tim comes over about every day and shows his friends the rocks. He's getting good at learning their names and I'm trying to get him set up in his own collection," said Miner.

Miner, who has lived in or near Wakefield most of his life, was a conservation officer in the state Game and Parks Commission from 1942 to 1965. He said he doesn't remember just why he began collecting rocks but said that the hobby "grew on me."

"Years ago, Miner would make numerous field trips annually. Now, he confines his trips to Nebraska and makes only a couple of short jaunts a year, gradually adding to his collection, which includes rocks from every state in the union.

"I never sold a rock in my life but I gave away many, thousands or so," Miner stated. "Finding good rocks doesn't come easy but I've got some that are rare around the world. Geologists don't have an answer for some of them."

Miner's collection includes everything from petrified woods to agate moss to fossils to a meteorite and a petrified oyster.

Other rock collectors stop by occasionally and trade rocks with Miner. Some of his most prized possessions are a meteorite which he says is worth about $1,000, an Indian artifact that he says is one of the best in the country and an unusual glacier-formed rock which he said the best geologists in the world looked at and said couldn't happen.

Miner identifies many of the rocks he finds. Others are sent to geologists to identify.

"Some rocks are like grab bags — you don't know what you've got until you open them," he reasoned. Miner has rocks that were formed around ferns, fluorescent rocks, minerals and a little bit of everything. His favorite rock is agate moss that is found in Montana.

It's anyone's guess how many rocks are in Miner's collection or how much the collection is worth. Said Miner: "I don't have any idea how much my collection is worth or how many rocks I have, but I do know there are quite a few ROCKS, ROCKS and more rocks! Pictured above are a few rocks which are included in Harold Miner's rock collection. In his Wakefield home, Miner has been collecting rocks for 40 years and has various types, shapes and sizes. He says he doesn't have any idea how many rocks he has or how much his collection is worth. Miner's home has become popular with people of all ages who visit him and look over his rock collection.

Gospel Team Appearing At First Baptist Church

The Carters, international heralds of Christ in music and message, will appear in concert at the First Baptist Church in Wayne on Thursday, July 26.

The Rev. Orval Roach, interim pastor, invites the public to attend the 7:30 p.m. program.

The Rev. Edward Carter and Mrs. Ruth Carter are native New Englanders. Both hold A.B. degrees in theology.

Pastor Carter, an inspiring song leader, is an able preacher, presenting a Christocentric message of the gospel. Mrs. Carter, an outstanding organist and pianist, served four years as an instructor of music after graduating from college. She is the arranger of most of the team's instrumental and vocal numbers. In addition to her ministry in music, Mrs. Carter speaks to women's groups.

Since 1949 they have traveled extensively east, west and north in the United States and the Provinces of Canada, and in the Caribbean.

Since Oct. 1, 1978, the Carters have been settled in Omaha, where he serves as assistant pastor and both are ministers of music at Trinity Church.

Area Delegates Help Set LCMS' Course For Next Two Years

The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, with 6,000 North American congregations having 2.7 million members, met in convention at St. Louis July 6-13.

Among the 1,000 voting delegates attending the sessions were Leon Meyer, lay delegate from the First Trinity Lutheran Church, Allenton, and James Weyland, clergy delegate from Hope Lutheran Church, South Sioux City.

The 1979 Missouri Synod convention, with the theme "God Opens Doors," acted on 185 resolutions, most directed at church programs and activities for the next two years and beyond.

More than 20 resolutions passed which would dramatically increase the Synod's mission activity and awareness during the 1980's.

Among other major actions, the Synod convention took a strong stand against abortion on demand, adopted a new hymn book and extended for the next two years its "fellowship in protest" with the American Lutheran Church.

Two earlier attempts failed which would have amended the resolution to specify suspension of fellowship. The LCMS and ALC have had fellowship allowing pastors to exchange pulpits and members to commune in each others churches since 1969.

Since then, however, doctrinal disagreements have surfaced between the LCMS and ALC leading to a declaration of "fellowship in protest" at the Synod's 1977 convention.

Among other action, delegates approved a $40 million fund raising campaign, authorized a new deaconess training program, gave "partner church" status to its Brazil District, and called for increased ministry to Native Americans, Hispanics, Blacks, and older people.

Chairing most convention sessions was LCMS President Dr. J.A.O. Preus, who is midway through his third four-year term.

Marchese Wins Wayne Open Golf Tourney

THE CHAMPION of the Wayne Open, Tim Marchese pitches his second shot on the green in a sudden death playoff.

A DISHEARTENED Mike Stevens gives a discouraged look after he hit his drive out of bounds in the sudden death playoff.

Tim Marchese of Omaha relied on a little bit of luck and a lot of skill to win the Wayne Open Golf Tournament at Wayne Country Club Sunday. The tall slender Marchese birdied his 27th hole of the tourney and watched as leader Mike Stevens of Sioux City missed a five-foot birdie putt on the ninth hole to send the tournament into a sudden death playoff.

By a flip of the coin, Stevens won honors to tee off first in the sudden death match. Stevens' drive hugged the out of bounds markers, on the left side of the number one fairway. Marchese drove his ball long down the right side of the fairway within 30 yards of the green.

As the gallery followed the golfers down the first fairway, it was discovered that Stevens' tee shot was out of bounds by a foot. Stevens returned to the tee box to hit another shot, but it was all routine. Even with a good second drive, Stevens finished with a six. Marchese dropped his second shot on the green, missed his birdie putt and settled for a par to win his first Open at Wayne.

Earlier in the day, Stevens recorded a hole-in-one, when the five handicap golfer hit a six iron off of the tee on the 187-yard par three 17th hole. He was playing with Dean Haze and Steve Marsh of Sioux City.

Stevens and Marchese finished the 27-hole championship deadlocked at a score of 2 under par 106. Knox Jones of Lincoln who won the earlier Wayne Open this year, and Don Schmidt of Sioux City were tied at 107.

Jones, the Nebraska University golfer who has a history of strong performances in the Wayne Opens over the past couple of years, lost his bid to defend this title he won last year, when he left his birdie putt on the lip of the final hole. The putt would have tied him with Marchese and Stevens and qualified him for the sudden death playoff.

Stevens led most of the day, firing a 71 over the first 18 holes to stay two strokes ahead of the field. During the final nine-hole championship round, Stevens lowered his score to five under par with three holes to play but ran into trouble with a double bogey on the seventh hole and a bogey on the eighth. Tom Anderson of Laurel had the highest finish of local golfers, tying for ninth place with a 112. Jim Marsh of Wayne shot a 113.

Dalton Blazes to Win Second Flight
In other flight play, Randy Nelson of Blair shot a 77 to win the first flight. Ron Dalton of Wayne fired a 72 to easily win the second flight. The only other area winners were Ron Otte of Carroll who won the fifth flight with an 83 and Jim Sturm Jr. of Wayne who won the 12th flight with a 93.

Pitchers Dominate Play

Wakefield Edges Laurel Juniors 2-0 Monday

DOUBLE PLAY as Wakefield catcher Wayne Guy forces Laurel's Lon Swanson out at home and throws the ball to first baseman Dale Phipps forcing out Brian Marquardt.

When Rick Guy is pitching his best, he's extremely effective on the mound and when he's effective, the Wakefield Juniors usually don't have much trouble winning the game.

Guy was so effective Monday night against Laurel that he didn't give his defense many chances to field the ball. Guy struck out 18 batters. The other three outs in the seven inning game were made on a fly ball to right field and two unsuccessful stolen base attempts.

But Wakefield had trouble winning the game. While Guy was impressing the crowd with his four-hit shutout, Laurel pitcher Russ Gade went relatively unnoticed on the mound, while pitching a three-hitter. Wakefield won the game 2-0. Gade was effective in a different manner. He didn't rely on his power to strikeout Wakefield's batters, but instead used his breaking pitches forcing his opponents to hit the ball on the ground.

Of the 18 outs made by Laurel, 11 were made on fielded ground balls. Four were fly balls and three were strikeouts. Scott Hallstrom collected two of Wakefield's hits. Don Dalton hit two of Laurel's base raps.

Laurel coach Bob Weisenberg had his players running the bases but they couldn't collect more than one hit in any inning. Doug Lute was credited with the first Laurel hit in the first inning and stole second base, only to be stranded on Guy's third-strikeout.

Dalton singled in the third inning and stole second and third bases with two outs but was stranded when Guy got his eighth strikeout. Ron Gadeken reached first base in the fourth on an infield error and advanced to second on an error in the outfield. He also stole third but Guy struck out his 11th victim to get out of the possible jam.

Laurel tried its base running tactics two more times but was unsuccessful on both occasions. After Steve Anderson opened the fifth inning with a single, he was thrown out trying to steal second, by catcher Todd Swigart on a pitchout from Guy. The pitchout worked, again in the sixth inning when Dalton singled and tried to steal second.

Meanwhile, Wakefield and coach Paul Eaton had their own problems getting runs. Scott Hallstrom was stranded on third base in the second inning after singling, stealing second and reaching third on an error. Two Laurel errors enabled Barry Jones to score in the third inning for the go-ahead run.

Guy protected himself by adding to the Wakefield lead in the sixth inning. With Larry Soderberg on third base, Guy added a double for a two-run lead. Bases were soon loaded when Blaine Nelson was hit by a pitch and Hallstrom singled. Guy was forced out at home on a fielder's choice and the other runners were stranded on base when the next Wakefield batter filed out. The 2-0 lead held for the final three outs, pushing Wakefield's record to 18-7. Laurel is now 6-7.

Ralph Bishop baseball action continues tomorrow (Friday) when Wakefield's Midgets and Legion host Wayne at 6:30 and Laurel travels to Emerson for games at 6:30 and 8 p.m. Both teams are scheduled to open district action beginning Wednesday in Coleridge. For more information, see a separate article elsewhere in the sports section.

Errors Lift Wakefield Midgets In 5-4 Victory Over Laurel

Four Laurel errors in the first inning gave Wakefield's Midgets five runs, and enabled them to hold on for a 5-4 win in Ralph Bishop Midget baseball action Monday night in Wakefield. The game was originally scheduled to be played in Laurel but was moved because of a wet field. Joey Sherer led off with a single for Wakefield in the first inning, followed by Dale Phipps' base hit. Phipps was forced out at second base on a fielder's choice but Wakefield got five quick runs. Sherer, Mark Startz, Billy Warren, Rod Nixon and Wayne Guy scored on four straight Laurel errors and a double by Jerry Roberts. Finally, Laurel secured the final two outs to end the inning.

Laurel put on an offensive show in the third inning to cut

Wakefield's lead to two runs. Jamie Johnson walked, Shannon Hopkins singled and Scott Norvell singled to bring home the first Laurel run. Lon Swanson singled to continue the attack and Dave Marquardt brought home another run with a hit for a 5-3 score.

The score remained 5-3 until the top of the sixth inning when Laurel put together its last attack in the six inning game. Substitute Hirschman cracked a triple to left-center field and scored on a sacrifice fly by Shannon Hopkins. Trailing by only one run, the Laurel offense saw its rally end there for a 5-4 loss.

Laurel's Midget record drops to 14-5 for the season while Wakefield upped its record to 10-6. Both teams are scheduled to complete Ralph Bishop play on Friday with Wakefield hosting Wayne and Laurel traveling to Emerson.

District action will begin for Laurel Midgets Wednesday at Coleridge. Wakefield will not participate in Midget districts but will play in Legion districts in Coleridge, also beginning Wednesday. For more information on districts, see a separate article elsewhere in the sports section.

According to Randy Mascoll

THREE AREA ATHLETES received valuable experience this past weekend while demonstrating their baseball skills in Omaha. The occasion was the All-Star baseball series between the Omaha All-Stars and the Nebraska All-Stars, made up of fine high school and Legion players from around the state. The three area athletes are Tom Ginn of Wayne and Rick Guy and Doug Starzl of Wakefield.

This was the first year since 1947 that the All-Star series was played. Hopefully, it will continue to be played for many more years. I was unable to attend the two games on Sunday (because of the Wayne Open Golf Tournament) and decided against driving to Omaha Saturday and driving back right after the game.

I heard from some Wakefield fans that the three-game attendance wasn't the best and read that it was somewhere around 1,900. Organizers of the tournament don't plan to make money but hope to draw enough income to pay expenses. They plan to host another tourney next summer with a few added attractions like a fireworks display and a family night.

transportation to Omaha and stayed in the homes of the Omaha players. Baseballs were provided by the Omaha Royals and two scholarships were awarded to the most valuable players, Bernie O'Doherty of Omaha and Steve Murry of Grand Island.

Although the Nebraska All-Stars won only one game (5-4 in 12 innings), the two teams were described as nearly equal. The Omaha All-Stars won the first two games 4-0 and 2-1. While the games were an asset to baseball in the state of Nebraska, the players met new friends and got a chance to play in front of baseball fans from all around the state and scouts from various colleges and universities. All three area players got their share of playing time.

I was told by Wakefield fans that Rick Guy's fastball was clocked at 83 miles per hour by a Nebraska assistant coach. Major league speed is considered to be about 88 mph. From what I hear, the scouts were really impressed with Guy's curve ball. Guy pitched four innings in Saturday's 2-1 loss, shutting out the Omahans and allowing only an infield hit during his stay on the mound. He fanned five batters and issued no walks. Starzl played 23 innings in the three games at all three outfield positions and also as designated hitter. He collected one hit in the series while playing well defensively. His team had trouble hitting the strong Omaha pitchers, recording only 12 hits in the three-game series.

Ginn was one of only two Nebraska All-Stars to collect two hits in the series. He was one-for-four in the first game, and one-for-one in the third game.

Ginn's hit in the final game was a bunt single that set up the winning run in the 12th inning. He played as a designated hitter in the first game, shortstop in the second game and substituted in the third game.

The overall opinion of the series, I received from local fans is that it is a tremendous experience and demonstrated excellent baseball. And I imagine that college coaches appreciate the opportunity to observe many of the state's best ball players at one time.

Assignment of Office Space Sensitive

CAPITOL NEWS
By Dan Field
Business Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

The heads of the three branches of state government will meet sometime in August to deal with what is being called a sensitive matter — the assignment of office space in the Capitol.

Brent Stevenson, director of the Department of Administrative Services, has prepared a space allocation plan that will be considered during a meeting of Gov. Charles Thone, Supreme Court Chief Justice Herman Kriebel, and representatives of the Legislature's Executive Board. Stevenson said the meeting will be held this summer when work will begin on bringing the Capitol's tower section up to fire safety standards.

There are some agencies and legislative offices in the tower, but state Fire Marshal William Barrett says they are being illegally because the area does not satisfy safety standards.

The Legislature this year appropriated $300,000 for fire safety equipment and for remodeling of some of the tower floors.

After the improvements are made, 13,000 square feet of space that is now vacant or used only for storage will be available for office use.

Stevenson said when he became director of the DAS, which has the statutory authority to assign space in the statehouse, he found a number of requests for additional space from agencies and offices.

Now that more room will be available, it is a good time for the heads of the three state governmental branches to make decisions on how the space will be used, he said.

People now working in the Capitol have been assured they won't be moved out but some other state employees may be moved in, Stevenson said.

It is important, he added, to have the three branches of government involved in the space allocation.

Krivoshva noted the Supreme Court has added many employees since it moved into its present quarters in 1924.

Sen. William Brennan of Omaha, who is chairman of the Executive Board's space committee, emphasized, however, that eight employees of the court administrator's office working in space belonging to the Unicameral are only occupying the area on a temporary basis.

Tax limit problems

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh says a possible legislative oversight of "monumental proportions" has been uncovered and could force the next Legislature to pass a property tax relief law that would switch the burden of financing public education to the sales and income taxes.

According to DeCamp, a law passed last year to limit property taxes could threaten a taxing district's survival unless the Legislature provides a remedy.

His concern and that of members of the Nebraska State School Boards Association was triggered by a successful petition drive in Omaha to force a special election on whether the part of the Omaha School District's budget funded by property taxes should be frozen at its present level of $55.3 million.

DeCamp said the problem with the 1978 law is that it enables a minority of voters to put a lid on local property taxes but requires a majority of the voters to remove the lid.

He explained the new law "requires only a simple majority of those who turn out for the special election to put the lid in place, but the law requires a majority of all the registered voters to remove the lid."

DeCamp said there probably were only a few people in the state who were aware of the lid had "completely different standards for imposing and subsequently removing a Proposition 13-type property tax lid upon local subdivisions of government."

The Neligh lawmaker said the "minority rule" provision in the law also effectively repeals the recently enacted statute limiting to seven percent annual budget increases of local governments.

Problems stemming from the 1978 law could result in broad support for financing education with sales and income tax revenues instead of property tax revenue, DeCamp said.

Wants elections publicly financed

Sen. Vard Johnson of Omaha is proposing public financing of elections in Omaha to make sure the Legislature gives adequate consideration to the needs of the poor.

Johnson, after noting lobbyists spent $536,000 during the 1979 legislative session, said public financing of elections is needed to "defang" the powerful interest groups represented by the lobbyists.

During a recent appearance in Omaha, Johnson and Sen. Peter Hoagland of Omaha said the Legislature has become more progressive since 12 new senators joined the Unicameral last January.

"I would say the days of thoughtless, or even mindless, conservatism are past," Johnson said.

Both senators predicted the Legislature will confront controversial issues more efficiently than in the past. Those issues include school district reorganization, water law and property taxes, the senators said.

Commenting on water problems, Hoagland said outstate lawmakers have been unable to develop a workable plan to allocate underground water. If the problem is not addressed and solved, the state will be faced with water shortages within 10 years, Hoagland said.

Tax receipts up

State tax receipts for the 1978-79 fiscal year totaled more than $635.5 million, a 1.3 percent increase over Revenue Department projections.

Deputy Tax Commissioner John Decker said sales tax collections of more than $240.5 million were down 1.7 percent or $4.3 million from the department's projection. But individual income tax receipts of nearly $253.4 million were up 5.1 percent or nearly $12.3 million over the projected figure.

Corporate income taxes of nearly $54.4 million were down 4.2 percent or nearly $2.4 million, and miscellaneous taxes generated nearly $67.2 million, up 4 percent or $2.5 million over what had been forecast.

Decker also noted June tax receipts totaled $55.2 million, 1.8 percent more than had been anticipated.

Sales tax collections, however, were below estimates for the month. Decker said the department figured the state would take in $23.2 million in sales tax revenue but realized only $20.3 million, a 12.5 percent difference.

Government 'Nanny' Leads U.S. by Hand

We live in ironic times. In this enlightened age, we are generally more educated and better equipped to achieve, create, improve and excel than ever before. And yet, we must also contend with a government absolutely determined to be our nanny — one that is convinced we have neither the right nor the ability to fend for ourselves. The result is frustration, a kind of collective gnashing of teeth and a tilting away from individual opportunity and economic growth.

I see these contradictions whenever I travel. Outside Washington, people are obviously very concerned about problems like inflation and energy, but they still believe in their own potential; they know they can produce needed solutions if only government would get out of the way and stop taxing and spending so much of their money. Not so in Washington, where bureaucrats distrust anyone producing anything without their permission. Here the quest is, always, for more power.

People go to the polls believing they are electing representatives to a Congress that writes the laws of the land. It isn't so. Regulatory agencies currently spew out about 18 regulations with the force of law for every one law enacted by Congress. These little nuggets of wisdom cost every working American substantially more than $1,000 a year. And the beauty of it all is — at least from the bureaucrats' point of view — that we rarely even know it's happening.

How many Americans, for example, will have the time to read or scan the 75,000 pages of federal register each year to learn which of the 7,000 new federal regulations personally affects them? How many of us even realized that bureaucrats had been busy, busy writing regulations for mousetraps? They were. The specifications weigh 3.3 pounds, cover 700 pages and total about 20,000 words. That's why we pay more for a mousetrap than we should. But we shouldn't get upset, for the regulators could care less what we think. Unlike our representatives, they are neither elected by us, nor responsible to us, in effect; they are practically untouchable.

Some of the worst examples of this bureaucratic overkill came from the Federal Trade Commission. Perhaps the most aggressive agency in Washington, the commission's influence extends to virtually every activity in our economy, from the manufacture of hearing aids to mobile homes. One of its goals — to root out deception from the marketplace — is both legitimate and necessary. But the FTC seems to hunger for a more sweeping mandate to regulate our entire economy, and it has some 600 lawyers and 80 economists sitting around deciding what they believe is unfair in life. These people have a license to go hunting behind every bush and every door, but they are under no compulsion to consider the impact of their regulations. The result is a host of ill-conceived rulings that translate into millions of dollars in litigation fees passed on to consumers in the form of higher product costs.

One of the FTC's latest quests is to move ahead with proposals that could ban, or sharply limit, child-oriented television commercials. As usual, the FTC has presented no cost impact study. One economist who did, estimated that at a minimum, the proposals could cost 284,000 jobs and lead to a loss of more than $2 billion in tax revenues. There is an alternative. Parents can exercise their responsibility by occasionally turning off the television and using that dirty two-letter word: No.

Nor does the FTC's strict concept of fairness in the marketplace extend to its own dealings. I find it appalling that its staff members have systematically attacked the credibility of witnesses opposing an FTC proposal. Indeed, many of these proceedings are all but rigged, because they are controlled by one staff member who proposes the rule, a colleague who serves as "impartial" hearing officer, and still another colleague who decides which "public interest" group will be given taxpayer's money to "objectively" support the proposed rule.

I believe it's time to require cost-impact studies and also permit Congress to veto unwise regulations before they're enforced. The administration is fond of populist rhetoric, yet it opposes the Congressional veto since it would interfere with the power of the executive branch. But Congress is closest to the grassroots and more than 200 members of the House already support the idea.

And why not? Right now regulatory agencies are out of control. A Congressional veto could bring the process into the open by insisting that bureaucrats assume the same responsibilities as other Americans — rather than remain the untouchables they now are.

You see, money raised from the sale of government securities helped us purchase the Louisiana Territory from the French. Other securities helped buy the states of California, Nevada, Utah, western Colorado and most of New Mexico and Arizona from Mexico. Even settlement of the Oregon Territory was made possible through the issuance of United States securities.

Today, you can still take stock in your country's growth by buying U. S. Savings Bonds.

Just sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. There's no easier, safer way to save or help your country. After all, U. S. Savings Bonds are still a great way for you to go West. Or East, North and South.

Here U. S. Bonds pay 6% interest which will be increased to 7% next 1-1-80. The first year's last sales of Western Bonds can be placed if you wish. Western Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes and is exempt from gift and estate taxes.

WESTWARD DOUGH!

OR

how DO you COVER A Wagon?

The wild, wild West. Land of hope and opportunity to thousands of enterprising settlers. But, if it weren't for the dollars of thousands more Americans taking stock in their country, there might never have been a West to go west to.

Take stock in America.

the pied typer

Your President, the one with the funny accent, probably would not approve of this, but I spent some time earlier this week driving around our fair city and looking into all the cracks, crannies and dirty corners.

What first comes to mind is that almost everyone waters his or her lawn, especially as it gets drier and drier. And there are a lot of automatic sprinkler systems, too. These observations point up a couple of things — one, there is a lot of pride in home ownership in Wayne, and, two, there apparently is some wealth in the area. It can't be that water rates are cheap here, because they were just raised a few months ago.

In none of the four communities in which I've lived over the past decade have home owners taken so much diligence in keeping up their homes and lawns. This says, again, something for the quality of people here.

And those who don't consider lawn watering a priority are quite conscientious about keeping lawns well mowed, flower beds weeded, homes painted and kept up, etc.

There undoubtedly is a little "keep up with the Joneses" attitude here, but a certain amount of that is acceptable if it results in a neat, well manicured city like Wayne.

But, like any other community, Wayne has its share of blighted areas, to use a bureaucratic term.

This type of area is unfortunate and can be a deterrent to prospective industry, business and growth. We'd like to see each spring and fall some type of concerted effort by the Chamber, by the city or by the business community to clean up some of these areas.

There are vacant lots with weeds, piles of discarded concrete and brick, areas where scrap lumber is piled, and so forth. I'm sure there are city ordinances against such nuisances, especially if these areas harbor rats and other health threats.

A spring cleanup campaign, sponsored by the Chamber, would work wonders for getting residents out of the winter doldrums. Businesses could feature discounts on paint and supplies, lumber, lawn and garden tools and chemicals, etc. Such an effort would be beneficial to both the business and residential communities.

Just a few ideas for you to mull over in your idle moments.

Parents of school children can be funny sometimes.

Teachers and administrators, I'm sure, can give us many examples of parents complaining about this or that: about grades or playground facilities; or a certain coach; or what have you.

We were a little disappointed in the turnout Monday to help Don Koenig erect playground equipment north of the elementary school.

Not even a handful of volunteers showed up. We'd bet the results would be different if no one showed up and school opened this August with the equipment still strewn across the area.

If that was to happen, parents would be wondering why. Don couldn't get the equipment in by himself. Why not give the fellow a call and offer an hour of your time. There is much to do and only a month or so until school takes up.

Don has some good ideas which will help improve motor coordination, physical fitness, creativity, individuality and freedom of choice among children of these same parents that don't have enough time to help.

We welcome with open arms our newest doctor, Jim Liles and his wife, Sheryl, and daughter, Elizabeth. . . . It is becoming more and more difficult to attract young, bright doctors to rural communities such as Wayne. But it is the friendliness, the neatness, the progressive spirit and compassion for the younger generation here that lands people like Jim and his family.

Nitrogen Fertilizer Study Undertaken by University

More efficient use of nitrogen fertilizer with minimum chance of harming the environment is the aim of a three-year study by the University of Nebraska at Lincoln.

The research under a cooperative agreement with the U.S. Department of Agriculture will be supported by $129,000 from the department's Science and Education Administration.

Robert A. Olson at Lincoln and Charles R. Fenster at Scottsbluff, will learn how tillage management and crop residues affect changes in the chemical form of nitrogen that occur in the soil.

Olson's part of the study will be with corn, both irrigated and nonirrigated, in eastern Nebraska. Fenster's will be with wheat in western Nebraska. No more than 25 to 50 percent of the applied nitrogen is recovered in the harvested grain, says James F. Power, Science and Education Administration, Agricultural Research soil scientist at Lincoln, who will represent the department in the study.

Some of the applied nitrogen is also tied up in crop residues, and after being returned to the soil, is converted through chemical reactions and action the soil

Wheat Variety Market Mixup

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has advised all Nebraska grain producers about possible marketing problems with a new wheat variety, B-1.

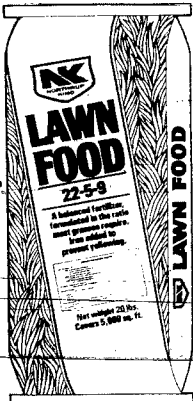

Leland Bartlett, administrator of the Department's Federal Grain Inspection Service (FGIS) said the B-1 wheat seed, a Soft Red Winter (SWR) variety, is being marketed in a Hard Red Spring (HRS) production area. Because each variety (SWR and HRS) has its own particular use in baking and because SWR wheat is typically not grown in the area, "producers may experience problems in marketing this variety through normal channels," Bartlett said. It is not known how much seed has been planted in Nebraska.

Bearded iris

Bearded iris are really propagated by division of the underground stems known as rhizomes. In Nebraska, the rhizomes should be planted between midsummer and early fall.

First inspect the rhizomes carefully for any evidence of borer or root damage. Cut away decayed parts and broken roots with a sharp knife and dust all cut surfaces with sulfur. Plant three to seven rhizomes of the same variety in a clump, placing them no deeper than one inch and facing all leaf fans in the same direction. Press the soil around them firmly.

Immediately after planting, water the soil thoroughly, using a fine mist spray. Water weekly for up to three weeks afterwards, especially if the weather is dry.

In the early spring and again about one month after the blooms fade, apply a 5-10-10 fertilizer. Use about one-eighth of a cup for each large clump in the spring and half this amount for the second feeding. Scatter the fertilizer around the iris, but not on it, and then water.

Rabbits in the garden
Fencing is the surest way to stop rabbit damage. A woven wire or poultry netting fence at least 24 inches high, with a mesh not larger than 1 1/2 inches, is an effective barrier.

The lower edge should be staked to the ground or slightly buried to prevent entrance under the fence.

Although some homemade or commercial repellents claim to prevent rabbit damage, more are of temporary value at best, and many cannot be used on edible plants. Odor repellents, such as mothballs, blood meal or bone tar oil, seldom prevent rabbits from feeding at a location for very long. Commercially manufactured taste repellents, which usually contain

Fuel Tanks Can Lead to Energy Losses As Dollar Value Rises

(Editor's Note: The Small Farm Energy Project is a special three-year research effort designed to lower the high costs of energy on 24 cooperating farms in Cedar County. It is sponsored by the Center for Rural Affairs at Walthill and funded by the Community Services Administration. For more information, contact Box 736, Hartington, 68739, or phone 254-6893.)

Fuel tanks can be a source of energy losses during the year, according to information supplied by the Small Farm Energy Project.

Leaking hoses or valves should be repaired for example, and during summer months, fuel tanks should have a white color to reflect the heat of the sun. Or the tank can be located in the shade of a tree or covered with a roof. Researchers indicate that a white tank or shaded tank of fuel will have one third less loss of fuel due to evaporation during warm weather, particularly with volatile gasoline.

A pressure vacuum relief filler cap will also lower evaporation losses. Such filler caps allow for a pressure of up to 4 psi within the tank, and operate similar to the radiator cap on a car or tractor. The caps allow air into the tank when the tank is used to supply a car or tractor with fuel. The pressure vacuum relief filler cap reportedly will lower evaporation losses as much as one half during warm weather. They are available for about $10 from many hardware stores and fuel suppliers.

Research indicates that a conventional sized farm fuel storage tank, especially in the case of gasoline, can lose as high as $75 or more worth of fuel per year when not protected from the warm weather by white paint, shade or special filler caps. Of course, the dollar value rises as the price of fuel goes up. It is quite obvious that a can of paint and a pressure-vacuum relief filler cap can pay for themselves in a year or less. Cooperators of the energy project have purchased a total of 50 filler caps for farm fuel tanks.

Ram, Ewe Show Set in Norfolk

The 21st annual ram and ewe show and sale, sponsored by the Northeast Nebraska Sheep Breeders Association, is scheduled in Norfolk Thursday, July 26, at the Norfolk Livestock Sales Co.

The event will begin at 2 p.m. with a judging contest for 4-H and Future Farmers of America members. The show which will be judged by Jerome Settles, Norfolk, will get underway at 3 p.m., and the sale will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Currently 30 rams and 45 ewes are entered in the registered stock sale, representing Suffolk, Hampshire, Polled Dorset and Columbian breeds. Sheep may be entered by contacting Bob Voboril, Box 126, Columbus, Ne. 68401.

For further information or a show catalog, contact Voboril. "Life is a jigsaw puzzle with most of the pieces missing." Anonymous

Ventilation for cooling
Wind turbine vents help to draw heat out of home attics during hot summer days, bringing in outside cooler air. The turbine vents operate in very low wind speeds, which are usually always available. Such turbines can eliminate the need for power vents in the attic, and they will also lower the air conditioning loads in homes where power vents are not used.

Other vents are available, including the continuous ridge vent, for venting attics. Such vents should be combined with soffit vents in the eaves, to allow for cooler air to enter the base of the attic. These vents will also lower moisture and condensation problems in the winter, which lower the effectiveness of insulation.

A "Farm Energy Conservation Checklist" is available from the Small Farm Energy Project, Hartington, Ne. The checklist includes information on a variety of energy conservation considerations around the farm including insulation of farm building field operations, fuel storage and other areas. Send 25 cents for a copy.

Local Extension service offices also have fliers on various energy conservation topics.

Bonus Auction At Fairgrounds

The annual Wayne County 4-H livestock bonus-auction will be held at 4 p.m. Sunday, July 29, at the livestock arena at the Fairgrounds.

Each 4-H'er who exhibits livestock is entitled to auction one pen of three beef or one market beef or one market sheep.

A businessman may bid a bonus on any animal going through the auction. In 1978, bids on single heaves averaged $46.13; pens of three beef, $85.83; hogs, $52.02; and lambs, $50.23.

The bonus bid will be the amount the 4-H'er receives. The 4-H'er retains ownership of the animal and will pick up the bonus check after the fair.

There will be a pool that will be pro-rated among breeding beef and dairy exhibitors who do not have a market animal going through the ring. The contribution to this pool is a minimum of $10. This is a special bonus to 4-H'ers who will not take their animal through the auction.

Those wishing to participate in the auction will receive a complimentary ticket to the fairgrounds.

The bid on pens of three beef will be for the entire pen and not multiplied by three. For example, if the bid is $70 on a pen of three, that will be the total paid for the entire pen.

Overripe Tomatoes Caution Is Asked

A recent case of botulism food poisoning in Nebraska, apparently resulting from the home canning of overripe tomatoes, indicates that not all tomatoes may be safe to can by traditional methods.

Teresa Shaffer, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension foods specialist, said, tomatoes have normally been considered safe for canning by the water bath method because of their high acidity level.

However, a tomato's acidity level depends on its degree of ripeness, so canners might choose their method based on this factor instead, she said.

Tomatoes that are firm to the touch and have just turned fully red can be safely canned with the traditional water bath method, Shaffer said.

Overripe tomatoes — those that show cracking at the shoulder or blossom and are soft to the touch — may have a low enough acidity level that pressure canning is required, she said.

Can these tomatoes using 10 pounds of pressure for 10 minutes for pints and quarts, advised the University of Nebraska Lincoln specialist.

If in doubt about which method to use, Shaffer said canners might opt for the pressure canning method to be absolutely safe.

Consumers also should avoid water bath canning certain varieties of tomatoes that are known to have lower acid levels, noted the specialist. These varieties include Garden State, Ace, 55 V F and Cal Ace.

A U.S. Department of Agriculture recommendation last year to add lemon juice, vinegar or acetic acid to ripe tomatoes to raise their acid content for water bath canning is no longer advised, Shaffer added.

Recent USDA research has shown that adding these substances at levels recommended last summer would not substantially increase the acidity of tomatoes, she said. The scientists found it would take approximately one half teaspoon of citric acid or eight tea spoons of bottled lemon juice per quart of tomatoes to increase the acidity just 2 percent.

Recommended canning procedures for all fruits and vegetables are available from county extension offices.

ASCS Provides Figures On U.S. Crop Production

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service has provided the latest figures on crop production as follows:

Corn production is forecast at 6.66 billion bushels (169 million metric tons) based on crop conditions as of July 1. This is six percent below the record high 1974 crop. The 90 percent confidence interval for this production is 5.74 to 7.58 billion bushels.

All-wheat production is forecast at 2.10 billion bushels (57.4 million metric tons) up 17 percent from the 1978 crop. The 90 percent confidence interval for this production is 1.98 to 2.23 billion bushels.

Winter wheat production at 1.56 billion bushels (42.5 million metric tons) is up 25 percent from 1978.

Spring wheat other than durum is forecast at 429 million bushels (11.7 million metric tons), three percent above the 1978 crop.

Oats production is forecast at 510 million bushels (7.40 million metric tons), 15 percent below last year.

Barley production is placed at 345 million bushels (7.51 million metric tons), down 23 percent from 1978.

Apple production is forecast at a record 7.72 billion pounds (3.50 million metric tons), 1 percent above last year's total and up 16 percent from the 1977 crop.

Potato acreage for 1979 harvest (all seasonal groups) is estimated at 1.29 million acres (524 thousand hectares), down five percent from the previous two years. The fall crop acreage for harvest this year is placed at 1.08 million acres (438 thousand hectares), six percent below last season and five percent less than 1977.

Teacher Certification Program Set

An emergency certification program for Nebraska high school vocational agriculture teachers is being planned by the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources department of agricultural education.

Osmond Gilbertson, department head, said more than 10 percent of all high schools in the state with ag departments have at least one vacancy for vocational agriculture teachers.

The emergency certification program is intended to help fill those gaps by this fall, he said. The department is seeking individuals with a bachelor's degree in agriculture, but with no education training for the "crash course in teacher survival," said Gilbertson.

The program will begin Aug. 6, he said, and interested persons need to register soon by contacting the department of agricultural education at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln or the State Department of Education.

Gilbertson said the department also is interested in recruiting individuals already certified to teach, but not currently teaching, to help fill the vacancies.

A similar emergency certification program for teachers in the department two years ago to meet teacher shortage needs, he said.

The current teacher shortage is partly a result of "relatively good farm prices," said Gilbertson, which are attracting approximately 30 percent of all university graduates in ag education into farming or ranching.

In addition, there are a number of agricultural teachers who are returning to farming or entering the agri-business field, he said.

Cheerleaders Converge On WSC for ICF Clinic

A group of 161 cheerleaders are finding plenty to cheer about this week at Wayne State College.

The group, which can be heard throughout the Wayne community, is the largest ever to participate in the annual International Cheerleading Foundation's (ICF) clinic held at Wayne State. The clinic will continue through July 19.

While at the event the girls learn new cheers and practice old routines under supervision of college cheerleaders from Penn State, Southwestern Louisiana State, Washington State and Ohio State. The WSC clinic, the fourth of its kind at Wayne, is one of more than 70 such clinics held by ICF throughout the nation.

The girls at this year's WSC event have come from as far west as Rapid City, S.D. and as far east as Humboldt, Iowa. Many in the group have attended the clinics in previous years and now sport coordinated outfits identifying their school or squad.

The majority of this year's participants are staying in WSC residence halls. Fewer than 10 commute to the sessions, which begin at 8 a.m. and continue into the afternoon and evening hours.

It makes for a long day, said a visiting sponsor from Humboldt. The girls start dragging at the end of the week. A lot of them get a little sore from all the exercise.

Sessions typically include a variety of exercise routines in instruction on new cheering routines, including acrobatics, pyramid building, dance steps and pompons and lectures on crowd control, fund raising, spirit planning and school spirit activities.

Evening sessions include competitive demonstrations by each squad which are evaluated by supervising cheerleaders. Ribbons were presented to the top evening presentations and trophies will be presented Thursday to the best overall participants and squads.

During the five days they are here, they really work, said Frank Teach, the coordinator of the WSC clinic. It is definitely a training and learning process.

Teach said the clinics have become increasingly sophisticated and popular.

One of the main reasons the clinic has caught on so well here is that cheerleading is more and more recognized as an area where training is needed," he said. "Past participants have discovered the training makes it better for the crowd and the team. I think the training shows there is definitely a psychology behind the cheers," he added.

THE WILLOW Bowl at Wayne State College has been jumping with activity as 161 cheerleaders from around the Midwest participate in a cheerleading clinic. The stepped bowl provides a perfect training and exercise area. The group spends most of its time working on new routines, perfecting old ones and learning methods of training to help prevent injuries. Top, Patricia Mickelson of Humboldt, Iowa, demonstrates one of the various routines.

Home Health Care Offered By Medicare

One of the least known benefits covered by Medicare, but one potentially valuable to many people is home health care. Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk, said recently.

Home health care can be covered under either Medicare hospital insurance or Medicare medical insurance, depending on the circumstances of a particular case.

Home health care is for people who do not need full time skilled care as inpatients of a medical facility, but who do have an illness or injury that prevents them from leaving home to receive the health care they need.

People who need part-time skilled health services in their homes can receive home health care from a home health agency. Such an agency can be either a public or private organization that specializes in providing skilled nursing services and other health care services to patients in their own home.

Medicare can pay for such services as part-time skilled nursing services, physical therapy, and speech therapy. For a person who needs one or more of these services, Medicare can also pay for part-time services of an occupational therapist, home health aide, or medical social worker, and medical supplies and the use of medical appliances furnished by the home health agency.

Medicare cannot pay for full-time nursing care at home, drugs and biologicals, personal comfort or convenience items, meals delivered to a person's home or homemaker services. A leaflet "Home health care under Medicare" gives more details about this protection and lists the conditions under which Medicare can pay for these services.
