Valley scored its lone run on three Wayne errors in the third.

Leading by three runs, the Wayne juniors put the game out of reach in the fourth inning with four more runs on three hits and two walks for an 8-1 lead.

Scoring for Wayne were Gansbom, Zeiss, Dennis Carroll and Ginn. Ginn was responsible for two RBIs when he slugged a bases loaded single. Mitchell singled to bring in one run and Zeiss collected the other base hit.

The winners added two insurance runs in the top of the seventh for a final count of 10-1. Dean Carroll and Jerry Goeden scored on a ground ball by Gansbom and a Valley error. Four players, Zeiss, Ginn, Mitchell, Goeden and Dave Schwartz rapped two base hits each for the Wayne team.

Dennis Carroll pitched a four-hitter, with relief help from Zeiss in the seventh inning, to gain the victory. Both teams committed five errors. The win ups Wayne's record to 20-5. Valley drops to 5-11 for the year.

Area Playoffs Next For Champion Wakefield And Laurel Teams

Wakefield 1, Wynot 0

Rick Guy, threatening to pitch his second consecutive no-hitter, gave up a single in the top of the seventh inning while shutting out Wynot 1-0, in Class C, District 3 finals at Coleridge, Sunday evening. The win gave Wakefield's Juniors the tournament championship and qualified them for area play in Creighton beginning tonight (Thursday).

Wakefield's first round opponent in the double-elimination tourney is Arlington. The winner of the four-team playoffs will qualify for the Class C State Tournament in Wakefield, beginning Friday, Aug. 10.

Guy was within three outs of giving his second no-hitter in the district tournament but Wynot's Shradler singled to lead off the seventh inning. Shradler was forced out on a fielder's choice for the first out. With a runner on first and two outs, Guy hit batter Schulte, giving Wynot a scoring opportunity. With runners on first and second and two outs, Guy struckout the final batter, after reaching a three and two count.

Blaine Nelson was the offensive standout for Wakefield in the 10 win. He walked once, singled twice, stole three bases and scored the lone run in the fourth inning.

Nelson led off in the fourth inning with a single and stole second base to get into scoring position. Tom Preston moved the runner to third base with a sacrifice bunt. Then, with one out and a one ball-two strike count, Todd Swigart laid down a bunt for a perfect squeeze play, scoring Nelson.

Preston recorded the other Wakefield base hit in the three-hit attack. Scott Hallstrom and Jody Sherer were the key defensive standouts in the game. Hallstrom had a good defensive series and Sherer made a diving catch in the seventh inning against Wynot, which may have saved a run.

Wakefield's record is now 23-7 while Wynot falls to 13-4 for the season. Wakefield defeated Winfield and Randolph to reach the finals while Wynot defeated Coleridge and Pender.

Laurel 7, Ponca 2

The Laurel Midgets have sneaked through the regular baseball season almost unnoticed but opposing teams had better beware. The Midgets hold a 19-8 record and will compete for a State Tournament berth after an impressive district performance.

Laurel dumped the Ponca Midgets 7-2 to win the Class C, District 3 Baseball Tournament at Coleridge, Sunday evening. The win qualifies the locals for the Area Playoffs in Creighton, beginning tomorrow (Friday). Laurel's first round opponent will be the District 8 winner. To reach the District 3 finals, Laurel defeated Pender and Emerson.

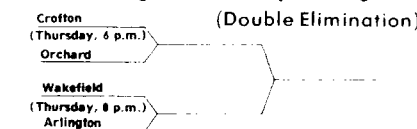

Joe Olsen pitched a seven-hitter to gain the win over Ponca. A tough Laurel defense held Ponca to two runs and turned a double play to end a scoring threat. Laurel grabbed an early lead, scoring two runs in the first inning for a 2-0 lead which held up until the fifth inning. The visiting Laurel Midgets, then added to their lead with two more runs in the fifth. A three-run attack in the sixth put the game out of reach. Ponca broke up the shutout with one run in the sixth and one in the seventh for the final count of 7-2. Brian Buss led the offensive attack for Laurel, cracking a double and a single and scoring one run. Olsen helped his own cause with an RBI double. The other hits were recorded by Shannon Hopkins, Dave Marquardt and Matt Johnson. Buss, Hopkins, Marquardt, Johnson, Scott Norvell, Lon Swanson and Jamie Johnson scored the seven Laurel runs.

Laurel must win the four-team area tourney in order to qualify for the state tournament which is scheduled to begin Friday, Aug. 10 in Wakefield.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascoll

I FEEL LIKE I've been run over by a truck or something. The Pled Typer (Dan Field, Editor) and I became a two-man team during the Wayne County Fair, spending numerous hours covering the activities over a four day period. That turned into an almost full-time job for the two of us. But in addition to the fair, the Typer had to continue his other duties and I had to continue mine. I think we're both ready for a two-week vacation to the moon.

My other activities to which I refer include sports (naturally), and what a week it was for sports in the area. District and area baseball tournaments opened and the local teams are doing well. Laurel won the Midget division and Wakefield won the Legion division in Class C District 3 baseball action at Coleridge this week. Both teams must now play in area playoffs at Creighton which begin tonight. Area champions will qualify for the State Tournament in Wakefield which is scheduled to begin Friday, Aug 10.

For Wakefield, many people may think the area tournament is of little importance. The defending Class C champions are guaranteed an automatic berth in the state tournament because they are the hosts. But, Wakefield doesn't want to defend its title by backing into the State Tournament. They want to win the area playoffs and prove they deserve to be there. They should be able to accomplish the task if they hold together under the area pressure.

Laurel's Midgets show a great deal of promise. Sporting a 19-8 record, Laurel will enter the area playoffs after an impressive performance in districts. The Laurel fans have something to talk about now, knowing that most of the Laurel players will compose the high school team next season and many will join the Legion team next year.

Wayne's Juniors handed Valley a convincing 10-1 loss in the opening game of Class B Area 3 play at West Point. The Legion team is playing together well and nearing its potential. Wayne players are shooting for the State berth that is within their grasp. West Point seems to pose the biggest threat for the Juniors. The Midgets don't begin Area play until Saturday.

WINSIDE WAS PUT on the map this past week, when shot putter Jill Stenwall proved that she is one of the best female shot putters in the country. Stenwall won her event in the National Sports Festival at Colorado Springs, competing against some of the top athletes in the nation. That's quite a feat for a girl from a small town in Northeast Nebraska. Maybe, qualifying for the Olympics will become one of Stenwall's future goals.

FORGET YOUR OWN KID, HANK? Wayne's Little League team temporarily lost its number one pitcher, almost two weeks ago. Starter Steve Overin was stranded (but not on base) following a Little League game in Laurel.

Overin apparently made a trip to the rest room and when he returned to board the bus, there was nobody in sight. Hank Overin, who was driving the bus, left his son behind after some of the other Little Leaguers told Hank that Steve rode home with someone else. Steve was found later, walking back to Wayne on the highway.

South All-Star Roundballers Are Gathering In Wayne Today

by Kevin Weiberg
Wayne State SID

Twenty of Nebraska's top high school basketball players gather at Wayne State College today (Thursday) to begin preparations for the Eleventh Annual Coaches All-Star Games. The games, produced by the Nebraska Coaches Association, are being held in honor of the Nebraska Council on Alcoholism and the Nebraska Alcoholism Foundation.

The North All-Stars will begin practice in Rice Auditorium at 3:30 p.m. today, under the direction of Norfolk High School head basketball coach Dave Omer. Omer's squad will compete at WSC until Tuesday, preparing for two games against the South All-Stars. The first game will be played at North Platte Wednesday, Aug. 8, with the final game Thursday, Aug. 9, at Lincoln.

The All-Star camp at WSC represents a joint effort by the college and community. In addition to their basketball playing duties, the North All-Stars will be treated to a Lions Club Picnic, a Kiwanis Club luncheon and a Chamber of Commerce steak fry.

Two scrimmages will be held at Rice Auditorium and both are open to the public. The first is scheduled for 7 p.m. Sunday, and a final scrimmage at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday. In addition, a free mini-clinic will be held Monday in Rice Auditorium for the benefit of any interested boys and girls who are entering the sixth through ninth grades. The clinic, conducted by the North All-Star players, will emphasize the fundamentals of basketball. Any interested boys and girls who meet the age requirements should be at Rice Auditorium by 1:30 p.m., and must provide their own clothing and a parent's permission slip. The clinic should last approximately one hour.

The 12 All-Stars participating at Wayne State are: Chuck Anderson, North Platte; Tom Bednar, Sumner; Dale Blum, Howell; Leo Crawford, Omaha; Calvin Ehler, Scottsbluff; Tony Franks, Omaha; Jeff Hayes, Lyons; John Higgins, Omaha; Victor Jordan, Omaha; Dave Russett, Norfolk; Chuck Sintek, Norfolk; Chris Wolfe, Omaha.

Stenwall Wins Shot At Sports Festival

Jill Stenwall of Winside, competing in her first big track and field meet, won the shot put competition in the National Sports Festival at Colorado Springs with a mark of 51'11". Second place was captured by Kathy Devine of Austin, Texas, the meet favorite.

Stenwall's winning throw came on her third attempt. When she entered the competition at Colorado Springs, Stenwall said she didn't expect to win in the field which consisted of some of the nation's best athletes.

The National Sports Festival has been termed "the breeding ground for the Olympics."

In high school, Stenwall set a state shot put record of 45'11" in 1976.

Ground Stroke Practice

DAVE REMER practices his forehand during Recreation tennis practice at the Wayne State tennis courts. Dave is in his first year of the Recreation program.

Swim Team Tops Pender Wrede Wins WSC Second

The Wayne Swim Club, coached by Jan Sherry and Peg Pinkelman, easily outswam Pender in the home pool, outscoring the opponents 378-186 in a dual. Wayne took an early 28-0 lead and continued to pad the lead to 154-93 after the medley relay, fly and back stroke competition.

The home team dominance continued through the breast, free and IM competition with Wayne increasing its lead to 322-179. Pender won only one event in the free relay division, making the final score 378-186.

Cattle-on-Feed Drop 5 Percent

Nebraska cattle feeders had 1,380,000 cattle on feed on July 1, down 5 percent from last year but 15 percent above 1977.

The weight breakdown shows cattle on feed weighing 900 pounds or more totaled 821,000, down four percent from 1978. Those in the 700-899 pound group numbered 614,000, an increase of 4 percent from last year. The under 700 pound category totaled 241,000, down 21 percent from a year ago.

During the April-June quarter, Nebraska feeders marketed 1,050,000 fed cattle for slaughter, 5 percent below the corresponding period last year. During the quarter, placements totaled 995,000, a 2 percent decrease from last year.

Feeders intend to market 950,000 cattle for slaughter during the July-September quarter. If these intentions are carried out, marketings for the third quarter of 1979 would be the same as the third quarter marketings last year.

Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market on July 1 nationwide totaled 10.3 million head. The total was 6 percent below July 1, 1978, but 6 percent above July 1, 1977.

Placements during the April-June quarter totaled 6.11 million down 7 percent from the same quarter last year but 2 percent above the second quarter of 1977. Marketings of fed cattle for slaughter during April-June totaled 6.11 million, down 8 percent from the same quarter last year and 1 percent from the same quarter in 1977. Other disappearance totaled 768 thousand leaving net placements of 5.35 million.

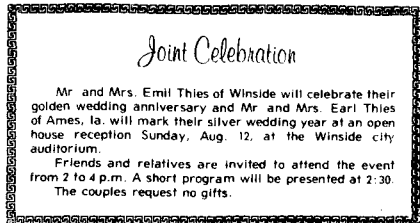

The July 1, 1979, number of cattle on feed included 682 million steers and steer calves, 1 percent less than a year ago but 7 percent above 1977. Steers accounted for 66 percent of the total on feed. Heifers and heifer calves on feed totaled 3.45 million, down 14 percent from 1978 but up 3 percent from 1977.

During the July-September quarter, cattle feeders intend to market 6.23 million head. This would be 3 percent below the third quarter marketings in 1978 but 1 percent more than 1977.

Redeem Wheat Last 9 Weeks

Farmers have redeemed 127.8 million bushels of wheat from the farmer owned reserve in the nine weeks following the May 16 announcement that the trigger price had been reached. Ray Fitzgerald, executive vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), said the wheat redeemed accounts for 30.9 percent of the 413-million bushel reserve. Redemptions in the eighth week were 7.6 million bushels — 1.8 percent of the wheat reserve. Since barley was released June 5 for the second time, 1,796,428 bushels of barley had been redeemed. This is 4.4 percent of the 41.2 million bushels in the reserve. Barley was called June 26.

Farmer owned reserve oats were released for the second time May 11. Since then 3.2 million bushels have been redeemed — 8 percent of the 39.3 million bushels in the reserve. Oats were also called June 26.

Corn was released June 19. To date 69.9 million bushels — 9.5 percent of the 732 million bushel reserve — have been redeemed. Sorghum was released June 22, and 9.8 million hundred weight have been redeemed to date, which is 22.1 percent of the 44.3 million hundredweight in the reserve.

Release of a commodity means farmers may repay their CCC price support loan and redeem or sell the grain without penalty, but they are not required to do so. Call of a commodity means farmers have 30 days from the date of notification of the call to repay their reserve loans. They are not required to sell the grain, but if they do not repay the loan they must forfeit the grain to CCC.

However, the department has announced that due to current snarls in rail and truck transportation, a county-by-county assessment basis will be made prior to repayment deadline for called reserves. In areas where no commercial storage or adequate transportation is available, CCC will delay issuance of delivery orders to farmers for farm stored grain for at least 30 days after the normal 30 day delivery or repayment period.

If the store and/or transportation problems continue, an assessment will be made every 30 days to determine if delivery notices may be issued in the counties involved. These delays will apply to farm-stored loans only; warehouse-stored loans will be forfeited after 30 days unless they are repaid before the cut-off date. County ASCS offices will make the assessment and will give official notice to producers when their grain has been called and the date by which the loan must be redeemed.

Twain replied: "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

SACCHARIN REPORT Whether or not the controversial sweetener saccharin is eventually banned from the market-place may depend in part on a recent report issued by the National Academy of Sciences.

There is no scientific evidence that saccharin has any health benefits, despite the fact that somewhere between 50 to 70 million Americans, including one-third of all children under the age of 10, consume saccharin with some frequency.

Something For Everyone

People of all ages and all backgrounds found something they enjoyed at the Wayne County Fair. Thousands of people: enjoyed the barbecue, watched the grandstand shows and contests, rode the merry go-round and salt-and-pepper ride, entered their pride-and-joy in the exhibition building.

Age made no difference. People found plenty to do at the fair. Indeed, there was something for everyone.

Card of Thanks

I WOULD LIKE TO THANK all my relatives and friends who remembered me while I was in Providence Medical Center. Also for all the cards, plants and flowers at the hospital and after returning home. THE FAMILY OF Robert E. Johnson finds words inadequate to express our feelings toward the dedication of the ball park. The town and community of Carroll did a remarkable job in working from an idea through an ideal. We know that the emerging of the Robert E. Johnson Memorial Park was the result of plain work in many areas by so many people. We are proud for Bob that you chose his name to greet us all as the ball players strive to play the game of ball which is so akin to the game of life. a2

WE WISH YOU THANK everyone who attended our wedding reception in Carroll and especially, too, for the gifts you brought. Each gift was personally answered by mail but we find many of the "Thank You" notes were not received. If you were one whose gift was not acknowledged we are sorry that we must thank you in this way. Mr. and Mrs. Mark Johnson, Bismarck, North Dakota. a2

MANY THANKS for the many expressions of sympathy over the loss of my father. The support we received helped console us in our time of need. Tim Boyle and family. a2

"THANK YOU" is not adequate to express our feelings for all the love and concern shown to my family and I during my recent illness. The cards, flowers, gifts, visits and calls, the Rev. Peterson's prayers and the kindness and skill of Dr. Coe and his staff, the Wayne Rescue Unit, and our own family, it was all so sincerely appreciated and will never be forgotten. County Valuations, NU's Finances Discussed

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Post
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Gov. Charles Thone has told University of Nebraska President Ronald Roskens he will consider Roskens' request to name a special commission to study NU's financial structure.

Previously, Thone said he would not appoint such a commission, as suggested by the Board of Regents during an early summer meeting. The governor had said the regents could appoint their own commission if they really thought one was necessary.

In what a gubernatorial aide said was a gesture of courtesy, Thone later agreed to discuss the proposal again with Roskens. Roskens said the committee that would be appointed would zero in on consideration of "the place, role and function of the University of Nebraska for today and tomorrow."

According to the NU president, the study that has been proposed would lift up the university for "a sort of public airing to the general public."

What he wants, Roskens said, is people with "first rate" reputations in various fields to take an in-depth look at the institution's financial posture.

Responding to reporters' questions during a recent news conference, Roskens said it would be difficult to say whether a commission named by the governor would carry more weight than one selected by the regents.

He suggested a gubernatorial group "probably would have wider acceptance, if not necessarily more credibility."

Roskens is advocating a 15 percent increase in the university's next budget. Thone has said that much of an increase would be "overreaching" and that the university and other state agencies must learn to live within what the state can afford to provide.

This year's university budget of $313 million includes almost $116 million in state tax monies. The 1979 Legislature upped NU's appropriation by about $9 million over the previous year.

More valuation discussions
The regents frequently heard complaint about proposed valuation increases is that the plan will disrupt intercounty equalization, deputy state tax commissioner John Decker has said.

He said that point was made many times during a series of meetings during which county spokespersons offered their thoughts on the state Board of Equalization and Assessment's effort to equalize property values across the state. By the time this appears in print, the state Revenue Department, which has reviewed data from the state's 93 counties, will have presented its findings to the Board.

The Board must finalize its equalization order by Aug. 15.

Governor Thone, who serves as chairman of the board, said no one should expect a miracle from the board and cautioned: "It isn't going to be an easy job and it isn't going to come overnight. And it isn't going to come without some disruption and controversy."

During the final day of hearings, several attorneys for Western Nebraska counties questioned the legality of some of the procedures under which the board was operating, including the designation of Decker as the presiding officer for the hearings.

Decker was tabbed for the job because state Tax Commissioner Fred Herrington was ill. There were indications from the board that Attorney General Paul Douglas had considered Decker's appointment appropriate under the circumstances.

John Skavdahl, Sioux City attorney, said the board should consider postponing for one year implementation of its equalization proposal. That, Skavdahl said, would allow time for counties to correct internal or external equity problems.

Dunlevy resigns
State court administrator James Dunlevy has resigned effective Oct. 31.

Dunlevy has been the court administrator since the position was created in 1972 when court reform legislation was enacted, abolishing justice of the peace and police magistrate courts and establishing 21 county judicial districts served by 43 county district judges.

One of Dunlevy's first duties was to supervise the implementation of the law. In explaining his resignation, Dunlevy said he just figured it was time to move on to other opportunities and challenges. The 46-year-old attorney said he is pleased with what has been accomplished and added he is considering several possibilities, mainly in the private law sector in Lincoln.

A former broadcaster and newspaperman, Dunlevy was graduated in 1954 from the University of Nebraska College of Law.

He has been a legislative bill drafter and legislative committee counsel. He was also state director of motor vehicles under former Gov. Frank Morrison.

Krivoshva said he believes the Chief Justice should be actively involved in matters pertaining to the administration of the court system "and not just delegate the responsibility as may have been done in the past."

The chief justice said it probably will be several months before a replacement for Dunlevy is selected.

Dunlevy is being paid $36,500 annually.

Questions regulations
An attorney representing the Nebraska Hospital Association says regulations proposed by the state Health Department for implementation of the certificate-of-need law will make it harder to attract physicians to rural areas.

Betsy Berger of Lincoln told a Health Department panel the regulations create uncertainty that facilities doctors need for practice in specialized fields will be available in rural hospitals.

And Ms. Berger said that uncertainty could cause young doctors to locate in metropolitan areas or in other states.

But she said the proposed regulations do not coincide with legislative intent because Health Department permission would be required in some cases to reduce or eliminate existing health services.

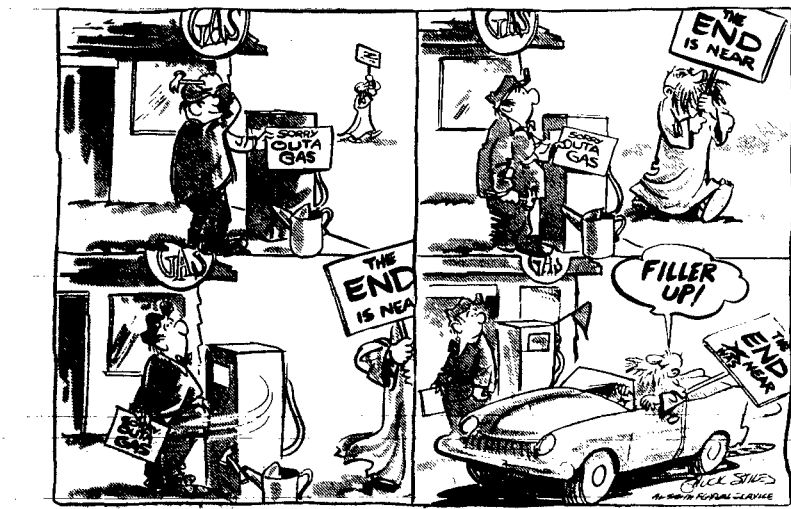

Another of Ms. Berger's concerns was that the regulations make no provision for adversary proceedings in case a health provider is not issued a certificate-of-need.

Roger Keele, associate director of the Hospital Association, said his organization is agreeable to working with the Health Department in an attempt to devise acceptable regulations.

Dunlap proposed the development of regulations that would recognize differences in urban and rural health care needs. According to Dunlap, the small populations served by many rural hospitals make it impossible for them to satisfy guidelines for specific services.

Representatives of the state's nursing home industry have said the certificate-of-need law must be amended before it is acceptable. Their major objection is a section allowing the state to recapture part of its Medicaid payments when a nursing home is sold.

The regulations would require health care providers to receive a certificate-of-need before physical expansion or acquisition of medical equipment expected to cost more than $100,000, or before changing types of medical services offered.

'Cost of Production' to be Debated

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M.M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

The "cost of production" factor which is the standard largely considered in establishing target prices and loan rates under the 1977 federal farm law is sure to be debated extensively before Congress has to write a new farm law in 1981.

Few persons, farmers and non-farmers alike, would argue against the contention that an agricultural producer should be able to recover his production costs plus a reasonable profit. So must every business enterprise if it is to remain solvent. But the costs of producing the same crop vary widely from region to region and even from farmer to farmer.

The "national dialogue" called for by Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland in the next two years to indicate what the future structure of agricultural programs would be and what the 1981 farm bill should present, will have to struggle with the questions, "Whose cost of production?" and "How should cost of production be calculated?"

Cost of production as computed by the USDA, includes not only cash outlays but also allowances for unpaid family labor and management, a return on investments in machinery, and an allowance for the use of operator-owned land. The USDA computes an allowance for management by taking a fixed percentage of the total of variable costs, machinery ownership costs and general farm overhead costs. This means that high cost producers have higher management allowances than low-cost producers.

Preliminary figures for 1978 by the USDA indicate that the cost of production, excluding land management, was $1.17 for a bushel of corn in the Lake States and Corn Belt and ranged up to a high of $2.16 per bushel in the Southwest. Thus the allowance for management at 10 percent of these costs would mean that the allowance for management would be 12.7 cents per bushel in the Corn Belt and 21.6 cents per bushel in the Southwest.

The "cost" of using land for a crop is easy to compute for producers who rent the land, but landowners are interested in more than recovery of the bare costs of owning land. How does one compute an appropriate average return for land that was acquired at different times over the many years? The USDA computes per unit costs as a "total, excluding land," calculates separate land allocations based on (1) percent land values and (2) average acquisition values; and publishes separate total costs for different types of renters. The result, naturally, is a wide range of total cost of production figures, both for the U.S. and for different geographic regions.

The increased cost of energy and land is going to alter cost of production figures and farming practices and decisions. For example, when diesel fuel could be purchased for 30 cents per gallon it was economically feasible to sink deep wells and invest in center pivot equipment to develop relatively poor land for production. Now, however, at 85 cents per gallon for diesel fuel and correspondingly high costs for other forms of energy, such decisions may become questionable.

As a matter of government policy, will it make economic sense to hold good Corn Belt land out of production in areas where rainfall is sufficient to produce good crops virtually every year, without irrigation, while supporting continued development and intensive cropping of land dependent on declining groundwater resources and costly fuel supplies?

Every farmer can, and should, calculate his own cost of production to provide a basis for management decisions on what to produce. But the task of producing accurate national estimates of the average cost of production is far more difficult and results in many unforeseen effects. It's a subject that should be well discussed by farmers before a new farm law is written.

OUT OF OLD NEBRASKA

Nebraska State Historical Society

Early Nebraska settlers brought music with them to the frontier, even though traditional musical instruments were scarce. As communities grew, the instruments and compositions used became more numerous and elaborate. The following information on early music and brass bands in Saline County, on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society, was compiled by Karen M. Dyer, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, who has recently completed her master's thesis entitled "Music on the Nebraska Plains: 1854-1904."

Some of the earliest accounts of musical activities in Saline County stress the central importance of song. Early wedding charivaries, for example, frequently consisted of people singing accompanied by a percussion section of pots, pans and wash tubs.

Pots and pans were not the only makeshift instruments used by the settlers. One account describes a dance at which no instruments were available, so someone played the bass part by pulling a broom handle across the porch floor. Another early settler, Vaclav Petracek, threw a large Fourth of July party in 1866 which consisted of dancing, singing and feasting, with the "music" provided by Petracek's pounding on the disc of a plow.

In addition to unconventional instruments, some of the early settlers possessed "legitimate" musical instruments: the fiddle or violin, harmonica and accordion. The banjo was also quite popular in Czechoslovakia, and as early as 1874 Bartholomew Bri brought one to Saline County. It is now on display at the state Historical Society in Lincoln.

A large influx of Czech immigrants in the 1870s and 1880s caused a significant change in the type of instruments and groups that began to appear in Saline County, corresponding to a similar transformation occurring in the old country. In Czechoslovakia during the early 19th century, music for special occasions would usually be provided by a fiddler or two, a bagpiper, and clarinetist. However, by the 1880s this traditional music ensemble was being replaced by a small brass band consisting of a clarinet, one or two flugel-horns, sometimes a type of saxophone or tuba (Bartitone, euphonium or helicon) and percussion. Such bands "traveled" to the greater affluence of the people as well as an increased military influence on many band members.

One such player and one of the first Czech musicians in Crete was Frank Nedela, Sr., who organized a small band consisting of Jan Nedela, his father; Thomas Arap, brother-in-law; Jan Stoboda and Jan Cleybe. This Czech band was invited to play at Gov. David Butler's second inauguration in 1869.

Wilder also began to develop its own brass band tradition as early as 1873 when 24-year-old Thomas Pasek arrived in the community. Like Nedela, Pasek was musically trained in his homeland. He formed a band in the new country, and for 30 years directed band in the Wilber area, one of which played at the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904.

The brass band became popular on the frontier because it required few instruments, was versatile, and it was adaptable to changing circumstances. A member of the band of St. Louis World's Fair in 1904, the 1880's, Crete boasted at least

YOU AND YOUR CAR

By the Automotive Information Council

There is growing evidence that some Washington officials are growing weary of the heavy blanket of regulations placed on the automotive industry and the cost to motorists.

The impact of these rules on prices of new cars, the slowdown in car sales and additional employee layoffs are causing some deeply furrowed brows in Washington, says the Automotive Information Council. Said an economist on the President's Council of Economic Advisers:

"One of the biggest problems we've had in combatting inflation is the presence of so many environmentalists and Naderites in key regulatory posts. These agencies, which set standards on miles per gallon, safety items and others.

In another case, the Council on Wage and Price Stability accused the Environmental Protection Agency of an inadequate cost-benefit analysis of its proposal on heavy-duty truck emissions. The council report said the EPA proposal "was so slipshod in its methodology that it would have been laughable — except for the fact that the new rule could force widespread layoffs and a significant loss of truck sales," a council official told the Detroit News.

EPA justified its action with this sentence: "Though it is not presently possible to prove a quantifiable increase in air quality by adopting the new procedures, the change is justified."

"I find that sentence incredible," said the council official. "Their logic seems to be 'let's have reputation for regulation's sake, whether it's effective or not.'"

It should be noted, says the Automotive Information Council, that the two agencies — NHTSA and EPA — have mandated items which have added $90 to the average cost of a car today, with even greater costs yet to come.

Bereuter Co-Sponsors Bill on Energy Items

Congressman Doug Bereuter is co-sponsoring legislation introduced Friday that puts priority energy projects on a "fast-track" for prompt administrative consideration.
The so-called "fast-track" legislation (H.R. 4955) creates an Energy Mobilization Board, as requested by President Carter. The board would have authority to designate a limited number of non-nuclear energy projects as in the national interest, giving them priority.
The board would then set schedules to speed up and coordinate Federal, state and local decision making with respect to the priority projects.
"Placing priority projects on a fast-track is necessary to avoid the kind of bureaucratic paralysis that we've experienced in the past," Bereuter said. "It's important to note that the bill contains key provisions to protect states' rights."
The bill is procedural in nature; it does not waive any substantive requirements for determining a project's worth. In some cases energy projects could be completed in half the time or even less than the administrative process now allows.

Harvesting Oats Before The Storm

HARVESTING HIS oats before an expected storm is Marvin Echtenkamp of rural Wayne. He was seen windrowing his oats in this field northeast of Wayne, Monday. After windrowing, Echtenkamp said he was planning to combine the rows of oats. Farmers have been busy combining over the past few days while others are preparing to combine now that the oats have fully ripened.

Area Families To Be Honored

A total of 218 Nebraska pioneer farm families, including some from the Wayne area, will be honored as guests of Ak-Sar-Ben at a special dinner preceding the World Championship Rodeo during the Livestock Exposition and Rodeo in September.

The farm families have had land owned by the same Nebraska family for 100 years or more. These include the following area families: Wayne County — Paul H. Deck, Stanton; Cedar County — Lisle H. Morrison, Coleridge; Dixon County — Mrs. Sherlock O'Neill and family, South Sioux City; Harold and Darlene Von Minden, Ponca.

Feed Grade Limestone Like Tablets for Acid

Feed grade limestone added to a high grain finishing ration for steers functions about like the tablet you take to neutralize excess stomach acid. And in steers, the result can be more complete use of the feed they eat and higher gains.

But the source and physical form of the limestone affect its value as an additive in steer rations, says U.S. Department of Agriculture nutritionist William E. Wheeler.

Wheeler in cooperative with Carl H. Noller and Joe L. White of Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind., developed a laboratory test that indicates the usefulness of different limestones in steer rations. The test measures the speed of its neutralizing action — the rate of buffer reactivity.

Buffer reactivity of the limestone added made a difference of up to a half-pound a day in steer gains at the Roman L. Hruska U.S. Meat Animal Research Center, Neb. The 324 steers averaged 520 pounds when put on a complete ration of 25 percent corn silage and 75 percent concentrate.

Average daily gains for 84 days were 2.54 for those given limestone low in buffer reactivity, 2.77 pounds with a medium reactivity limestone and 3.08 pounds with a high reactivity limestone.

The three limestones, all from the same quarry, varied greatly in particle size. The percents passing through a 53-micron sieve were 4 for the low reactivity limestone, 32 for medium and 86 for high.

Laboratory analyses of droppings from the steers confirmed the accuracy of the buffer reactivity test. Droppings were nearest a neutral pH (neither acid nor alkaline) for steers receiving high reactivity limestone and lowest for those given low reactivity limestone. Undigested starch in droppings was 23.3 percent for low, 45.9 percent for medium and 7.5

Feeding Cement Dust Brings Mixed Results

Research results are still coming in, but they are mixed and inconclusive at this point on the benefits of feeding kiln dust from a cement plant to pigs and beef cattle.

Weaning pigs fed rations supplemented by 3 percent cement kiln dust suffered depressed gains and severe bone abnormalities, probably because of trace element toxicity or imbalance. When fed a ration containing 1.5 percent cement dust, however, their feed efficiency improved.

Five groups of steers fed high concentrate rations containing different kiln dusts from the same cement plant gained at both the highest and lowest average daily rates in other U.S. Department of Agriculture feed trials.

These studies at the Roman L. Hruska U.S. Meat Animal Research Center add to a growing body of facts as animal nutritionists seek information on what place cement kiln dusts might have in livestock rations.

In 1977, USDA nutritionist W.E. Wheeler at Beltsville, Md., confirmed observations by Georgia farmers that steer gains were improved when cement kiln dust was added to low-quality forage rations. More recent studies have shown improved performance by ruminants about 50 percent of the time, but results with hogs have been inconclusive. Scientists have not pinpointed a reason for the often beneficial effects.

The pig ration containing 3 percent kiln dust was one of four compared at the center by nutritionist J.T. Yen of the department's Science and Education Administration. The second ration contained no kiln dust; the other two had 1.5 percent kiln dust or 3 percent ground limestone. All rations ranged in calcium content from 4 to 1.3 percent.

Pigs gained slightly more on the 1.5 percent kiln dust ration than when calcium was supplied as ground limestone. Both the 3 percent dust ration and that containing no dust depressed gains and caused bone abnormalities. Yen was joined in the pig feeding studies by SEA-Agricultural Research scientists Wilson G. Pond, Dale A. Hill and Calvin L. Ferrell, and Cornell University pathologist Lennart P. Krok, Ithaca, N.Y.

Wheeler, now at Clay Center, compared steer gains on a ration of 15 percent corn silage and 85 percent concentrate supplemented by one of four kiln dusts or feed grade limestone. Steers gained 3.50 and 1.16 pounds a day when dusts from the same cement plant but of different composition were added to the ration. The other two dust supplemented rations produced gains of 3.17 and 2.53 pounds a day, and the control ration including limestone gave gains averaging 2.74 pounds a day.

Wheeler says the inconsistency in animal response to different kiln dusts may be caused by the variability in composition of the dusts as well as by the level of supplementation for optimum gains.

New Techniques On Cotton Told

Cotton garments are known for their comfort in warm humid Nebraska temperatures. However, shrinkage and wrinkling have for years been the two criticisms voiced by cotton wearers. Now new techniques are under development that may bring an end to both problems.

Two new processes are being used to make 100 percent cotton resist wrinkles and shrinkage, while retaining its comfort qualities in warm weather.

Sanfor-Set has been used for several years on denims and other heavyweight cottons, but it's just been introduced this year in lightweight 100 percent cotton shirts.

Sanfor-Set finish is expected to be used next in sheets and then over the counter fabrics. The finish is supposed to eliminate the need for ironing, yet be soft and comfortable.

Another new process is called "vapor phase." This gives durable press characteristics to cotton fabric, linings, trim and thread. The process also promises to provide excellent crease and shape retention and minimal shrinkage in both woven and knitted cottons.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture and Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) have agreed to a joint cooperative program aimed at improving the nation's water quality. Specifically, the cooperative effort will address itself to EPA's water quality, clean lakes, research, monitoring and evaluation programs and the agriculture's administrative delivery system and conservation programs administered by the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

Section 208 of the 1972 Federal Water Pollution Control Act provides for state and area-wide water quality management programs that identify, assess and control rural and urban nonpoint source water pollution problems. The clean lakes program offers financial and technical assistance to states to protect and restore publicly owned freshwater lakes, including agricultural related pollution problems. Research and monitoring programs include research, investigations, training, and information necessary to determine the best ways to prevent, reduce and eliminate pollution from agriculture.

ASCS, through its state and county committees has offices and programs in all rural communities which can help in improving the quality of the environment. One program, the agricultural conservation program, is a broad, general program which assists farmers and ranchers in solving conservation, water quality and pollution problems on farms.

Under a memorandum of understanding, EPA and ASCS will expand on previous agreements and to utilize each other's resources. In many cases, for example, EPA can coordinate some of its research, monitoring and evaluation with ASCS on the local level.

4 Dixon 4-H'ers To State Fair

Colette Kraemer, daughter of Fritz Kraemer, Allen, with her speech on cake decorating, entitled "Just Clowning Around," was one of the four Dixon County 4-H'ers chosen to give her demonstration at the State Fair.

Debi Meyer, daughter of Norman Meyer, and Renee Westrand, daughter of Ronnie Westrand, both of Wakefield, were chosen to give their team demonstration on the retail cuts of meat, titled "What's on the Plate." Jonathan Stelling, son of Charles Stelling, Wakefield, was chosen for his demonstration on trouble shooting on small engines, entitled "When Dad Blows His Cool."

The first action carrying out this agreement was approved by ASCS administrator Ray Fitzgerald for funding of land treatment measures by ASCS in EPA's Four Mile Creek water quality research project in Tama County, Iowa.

Projects now under consideration which may be carried out under this agreement include:

Support of ASCS of a clean lakes program application in New Jersey which involves both in-lake restorative techniques funding by EPA and pollution control from agricultural sources in the Allentown watershed.

The potential for ASCS to provide administrative support in some new clean lakes projects as demonstrated in recent years in Shawano County, Wis.

Joint development of special pollution control and water quality improvement informational materials.

The memorandum of understanding between the two agencies was signed by Ray Fitzgerald, ASCS administrator, and EPA's Sweb T. Davis, deputy assistant administrator for water planning and standards, and Clinton W. Hall, acting deputy assistant administrator for air, land and water use.

The memorandum was an expanded and more comprehensive version of two previous agreements, one of which was signed in January by agriculture secretary Bob Bergland and EPA administrator Douglas Costle.

Herbicide Injury Reported To Gardens, Ornamentals

Numerous reports of herbicide injury to gardens and ornamentals have been received at the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

John Furrer, extension agronomist, said 2,4-D and banvel appear to be the culprits in damage to roses, trees, shrubs, flowers of all kinds, tomatoes, beans and other vegetables.

Three sources of herbicide are probable, Furrer said. Drift or fumes from neighbors spraying for chickweed or clover or spraying of nearby farm field could affect yards. To help reduce the problem, he suggested users apply herbicide in granular form or apply liquids with a non-pressure applicator to help protect your yard when neighbors are spraying, turn on lawn sprinklers to wash traces of the chemical from your garden and ornamentals, the University of Nebraska Lincoln specialist suggested.

filling with a one percent ammonia solution for 24 hours. Using lawn clippings for much too soon after spraying for weeds is a third possible source of damage. The solution is to discard clippings from at least two mowings after spraying, Furrer said.

The specialist added that fruits and vegetables from plants which become deformed from trace amounts of herbicides are still safe to eat.

Fifty Cents for Some Fun, And $1.50 for Some Action.....

A mere 50 cents gave even the oldest of carnival-goers a little glimpse of childhood during the Wayne County Fair which ended Sunday.

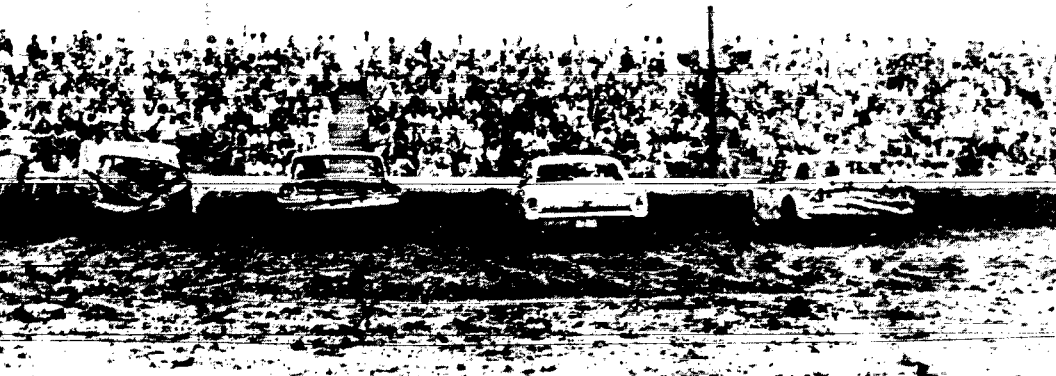

Youngsters, teens and adults splurged for the variety of games, contests and rides at the annual and popular carnival in the Midway.

A mere 50 cents could let the young Don Juan show off on the "Ring the Bell" amusement; could swing you high into the air at the mercy of a machine; could give you a chance to try your skills (or luck) at the ring toss.

And for $1.50 you could see all the excitement, men and machines you wanted, could view mechanics at work on their mini rod tractors, four wheel drive hot rod tractors or see them make final preparations for the demo derby.

The County Fair had much to offer the young of age and young at heart.

Kraemer Tops In Horticulture

Joni Kraemer was top individual in the Dixon County 4-H horticulture contest. She also is a 4-H junior leader and worked with horticulture project members in several workshops. The results of her efforts were reflected in the excellent scores of the 4-H members who participated in the workshops.

According to Stan Starling, Dixon County Extension agent, contest results are as follows: Junior Division: purple — Kevin Malcolm (top individual) son of Larry Malcolm, Allen, and Barb Hansen, daughter of Kenneth Hansen, Allen, both of Martinsburg Merry-makers 4-H Club.

Senior Division: purple — Joni Kraemer, daughter of Ervin Kraemer, Allen, Wranglers 4-H Club, Derwin Roberts, son of Courtland Roberts, Allen, Pleasure and Profit 4-H Club, blue — Lisa Hansen, Deanna Hansen and Brian Hansen, daughters and son of Kenneth Hansen, Allen, all of Martinsburg Merry-makers 4-H Club; red — Jay Jones, son of Wayne Jones, Allen, Pleasure and Profit 4-H Club.

The Merle Bethune family, York, the Bob Bethune family, Storm Lake, Ia., and the Tom Townsend family and Roy Bethune, all of Grand Island, visited during the weekend in the Lester Bethune home. State's Economy May Moderate

Nebraskans can expect a moderation in the pace of economic activity during the coming months, according to Dr. James R. Schmidt, assistant professor and research associate at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Bureau of Business Research.

Writing in the August issue of "Business in Nebraska," Schmidt reviews the performance of the national and state economies and warns that the prospects for a slowdown in real economic growth, or possibly a recession, during the second half of 1979 are excellent.

A leading cause of these developments is the rapid increase in energy prices which functions as a tax on incomes, leaving consumers with less purchasing power for other products.

Real gross national product declined in the second quarter and a further decline in the third quarter will be required to satisfy the definition of a recession.

Schmidt warned that it is incorrect to assume that a slow-down or recession at the national level will automatically result in a similar movement in the state economy. Nebraska's industrial mix differs from that of the national economy, and all industries are not affected in the same way by general economic movements.

Nebraska's economic performance during the initial months of 1979 has been encouraging and cannot be characterized as a recession. The state unemployment rate declined from 3.4 percent in January to 2.4 percent in April before increasing in May and June. Unemployment rates for the Omaha and Lincoln urban areas moved in a similar way.

Retail sales volume during the January-April period of 1979 showed an increase of 13.9 percent over the corresponding time period in 1978.

Schmidt also pointed to the higher levels of farm prices posted in 1979, versus price levels of late 1978, as an area of strength in the state economy. If the agricultural sector remains strong throughout the remainder of the year. It will provide a buffer for Nebraska against any national recession.

Schmidt also noted, the high receipts from the state individual income tax during the first six months of the year. Receipts in that period were 21.3 percent above those in the same period of 1978. A percentage increase that is much greater than the increase represented by the move in the state tax rate from 16 percent to 18 percent at the beginning of the year. High income tax receipts in advance of an economic slowdown represent a depressing influence upon the state economy.

The high level of receipts was a contributing factor to the positive balance in the state treasury at the end of the fiscal year in June. Estimates of the balance have ranged from $20 million to $40 million.

Schmidt said that the loss in receipts from maintaining the 16 percent tax rate would have been roughly $13 million during the first six months of 1979. Thus, there would still have been a significant surplus in the state treasury at the end of the fiscal year if the tax had remained at 16 percent.
