It's Our Birthday

This is the 104th birthday of your Wayne Herald.
This issue marks the first volume of our 104th year in existence, with our centennial celebrated on this nation's 200th birthday in 1976.
The Wayne County Review, ancestor to the present Wayne Herald, was started at LaPorte by C.E. Hunter and printed at Ponca by William Huse for several issues.
By August of 1876, when equipment could be installed, the paper was printed and published at LaPorte. This community, the original county seat, is now off the map as an organized town.

County Board Okays Budget

There were no written or oral objections at public hearing Tuesday afternoon on the Wayne County budget for 1979-80.
The County Board, after reviewing the proposed $2,311,580 budget, voted to increase the figure by $300. This was added to the County Attorney's Fund.
The coming year's budget compares to last year's estimate of $2,189,830. Of last year's amount, only $1,471,115 was actually spent.
Total property tax asking is $663,732 as opposed to $555,758 last year. The budget adopted Tuesday is under the seven percent budget limit imposed by state law.

MONDAY afternoon at the Dixon County Fair was a perfect time for an afternoon respite. The fair ran Monday through Wednesday at Concord and provided area residents with a variety of activities. Some results of the fair are elsewhere in today's Herald, with more pictures and results scheduled for Monday's edition.

Wayne Arts Council Grant Told

The Wayne Regional Arts Council has been awarded a $500 grant from the Nebraska Arts Council to help support the production of the musical "Carnival" in the Ramsey Theatre the first week-end in September.
The production is a joint project of the Wayne Regional Arts Council and the Wayne Community Theatre.
Robert C. Plerle, Arts Council executive director, recently informed Jane O'Leary, WRAC chairman, and Jeff Carstens, chairman of the Wayne Community Theatre, of the grant award.
For more information on how the Nebraska Arts Council can assist a community or organization in sponsoring arts events, call or write Marian Krontz, Community Arts Coordinator, Nebraska Arts Council, 8448 W. Center Road, Omaha, Neb., 68124, 402-554-2122.

Dixon Fair Ended Wednesday

Placings in the pole bend were the following: first — Susan Woodford, Ponca; second — Rick Curry, Ponca; third — Jeremy Grace, Wakefield; and fourth —

Wood Knowledge Provides Income

By Darwin Ruback
Retired carpenter Charles Goodwin of Allen has turned his knowledge of working with wood into a retirement income.
Goodwin, 83, has set up shop in his basement and makes numerous articles of wood, the most popular being miniature windmills.

These vary in size from around 18 inches to five feet tall.
"I began making the windmills back in 1963 when we moved out to Allen from Sioux City," Goodwin said. "I got a pattern from my brother who used to make them in Bronson, Iowa."

Goodwin's last job was handyman for the Martin Hotel in Sioux City. Before that he took contracts on his own for jobs.
"I have been a carpenter for most of my life," Goodwin said. "I really enjoy working with wood and making things." Among the many things made by Goodwin are bird houses, picture frames, napkin holders and Christmas ornaments.

Goodwin does not use any specific types of wood for his projects.
"It really makes no difference what type of wood I use as long as it isn't too knotted since I paint them anyway," Goodwin said.
Goodwin keeps track of the number of windmills he has made over the years and the tally has reached 674.
"I started out just making a couple for friends, then I guess the word got around and people started calling me and ordering them," Goodwin said. "I started out just charging $2 for each windmill, but the cost of lumber has gone up quite a bit so now I charge $6 each."
Even though he has sold nearly 700 windmills, the most he has sold to one person is one-half dozen.
The Goodwins have made it into a family project, with Goodwin doing all the wood working and his wife the painting.
"You really have to be a carpenter, a blacksmith and a painter to make them," Goodwin said. "It only takes a day or two to make one, you just have to let the paint dry."
The Goodwin residence is a showroom of wooden articles made by Goodwin. There is everything from small windmills to a miniature church and numerous picture frames.
"Charles is very good with wood, and many of his projects would make good gifts," Mrs. Goodwin said.
With a fully-equipped woodworking shop in the basement, the Goodwins have made hundreds of wooden articles and have made hundreds of new friends in the process.

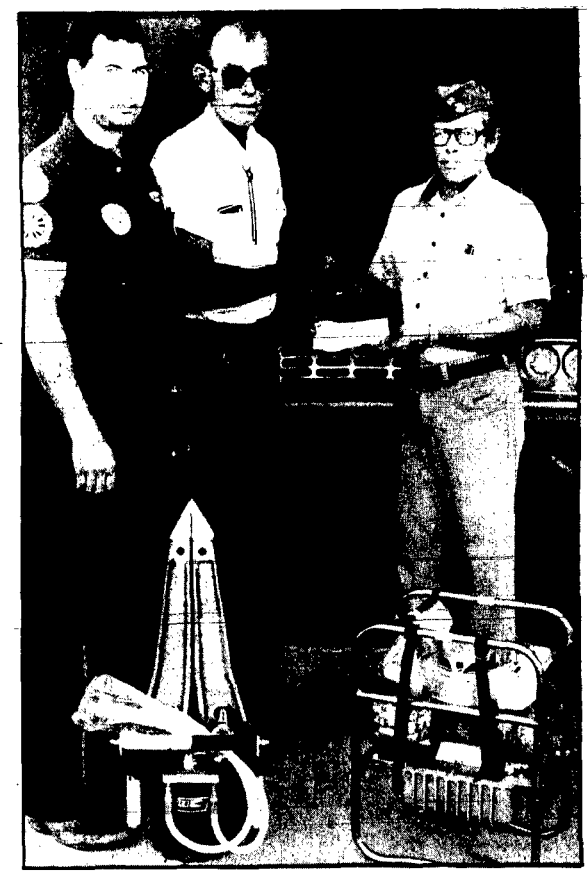

THE ARRAY of tools in Charles Goodwin's shop indicates the detail to which he goes in making his works. He is practicing cuts on his jig-saw for some of his smaller projects.

Lions Vote Fund Raising Drive for Jaws of Life

The Wayne Lions Club Tuesday night voted to undertake a fund raising drive to purchase a tool designed to rescue persons trapped in a traffic, farm or industrial accident.
Earl Fuoss, vice chairman of the project committee, said the Wayne club approved payment of an initial $1,000 to purchase a "Jaws of Life," a hydraulic tool to help rescue persons trapped in a wrecked car or truck or from a corn picker or other farm equipment.
Fuoss said the total cost of the tool is about $6,000. "We hope to have the remaining $5,000 raised within a 90 day period through various projects and by private donations," he said.
The vice chairman pointed out that although the drive is still in the early stages, some $200 have been pledged by individuals and businesses.
"We haven't worked out all of the details in the fund raising projects," Fuoss explained, "but we do want to give organizations, businesses and individuals an opportunity to contribute to what we feel is a worthwhile community project."
Members of the Wayne Lions Club got a first hand look at the versatile rescue tool as Kenneth (Dutch) Siltzman, a member of the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department and a part time instructor in the State Fire

School, explained the capabilities of the tool.
Siltzman said the tool can be used in excavating victims in car, truck and farm accidents as well as industrial mishaps.
He explained the "Jaws of Life" has the capability of lifting a car, truck, semi-trailer or even a railroad car. He also showed various pieces of optional equipment which can force open a door or raise a roof, steering column, dash or whatever is necessary to get a victim out of a wreck.
"Because of its versatility, there is a definite need for such a tool," Siltzman said. He explained he has operated the tool and cited instances of past local fatal accidents where lives might have been saved if the "Jaws of Life" had been available.
The "Jaws of Life" will be donated to the Wayne Fire Department. Fuoss said the company from which the rescue tool is being purchased, will train six Wayne firemen in its use.
Fuoss stated that every member of the Wayne club "has agreed to total dedication in seeing that the drive is a success." "We are asking for the cooperation of every member of the Wayne community, both city and rural."

Community Theatre Needs Support of the Community

Wayne Community Theatre was program topic at the regular Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting Monday at The Black Knight.
Dr. Helen Russell, professor of theater at Wayne State College, provided an overview of community theatre here which is in its infancy stage, she explained.
Dr. Russell said the newly founded theatrical group is independent of the college except for use of college facilities in the upcoming dinner theater production of "Carnival."
The college is involved to the extent of facilities and some college personnel are members of the cast or are working behind the scenes, she noted.
"But isn't the college part of the community," she asked?
The Wayne Community Theatre and the Wayne Regional Arts Council, though they work together on a number of projects, are separate organizations, Dr. Russell explained. Both are non-profit and both are in early stages of development. They also are involved in a joint fund raising effort.

A major problem which threatens the existence of both groups is a lack of involvement. "To keep these organized, both groups need active participation," the theater instructor explained.
The theater can provide top notch entertainment for area residents, can provide an outlet for many talents in Wayne, and can provide a social opportunity for those who otherwise would not meet. A good, strong community theater also can draw attention culturally to Wayne.
"There is no reason we can't be the cultural center of Northeast Nebraska," Dr. Russell said.
Regarding the Sept. 8 and 9 production of "Carnival," she said that a play in itself is nothing. What makes a play more than just literature is an audience, she noted.

Editorial— Clean Indoor Air Act Effective Jan. 1

CAPITOL NEWS By Melvin Paul Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

Regulations for implementation of the Nebraska Clean Indoor Air Act, which will go into effect Jan. 1, are being prepared.

The first draft put together by the state Health Department was withdrawn after businessmen protested about a proposed requirement to establish physical barriers between smokers and non-smokers, either by having a 36-inch partition or by leaving four feet of floor space between smoking and non-smoking sections in public places that will be covered by the law.

The Health Department's counsel, Gary Snowden, said those participating in a July 24 meeting to discuss the regulations, convinced him the requiring of such barriers between smokers and those who do not smoke would go beyond the rule-making authority the Legislature has given the department.

Snowden said meetings for those interested in discussing the regulations will be held until a public hearing on the final draft this fall.

The law also requires a second set of regulations, drafted by the health and labor departments, to regulate smoking in places of work, including factories and warehouses.

The sponsor of the legislation, Sen. Larry Stoney of Omaha, has said he hopes the requirement for a physical barrier between smokers and non-smokers will be in the regulations finally adopted by the state Board of Health.

According to Stoney, the July meeting called to discuss the regulations was dominated by people who oppose the law. He added more supporters of his bill will be at the next meeting and they will make their views known.

Stoney modeled his bill after the Minnesota law, which has been in effect for four years. He planned to go to Minnesota with Health Department officials for a meeting with Minnesota health officials to discuss enforcement procedures and problems.

The second draft of the suggested regulations will be discussed during the Aug. 28 meeting.

Restit alcoholism treatment

The director of the state alcoholism agency, William Ford, says there is much resistance within the medical and education professions to the treatment and prevention of alcoholism.

During a recent appearance before the Legislature's Public Health Committee, Ford said most school districts have resisted making an alcohol abuse program a part of their curriculum.

He added that except for the Catholic schools in Omaha and the Lincoln public schools, the state Division of Alcoholism has not been able to talk school administrators into including in their courses some instruction on alcohol abuse.

Ford said the administrators act as if alcohol is not a problem but do include courses on drug abuse.

Because of the stigma attached to it, doctors, especially in rural areas, do not diagnose alcoholism, Ford said, adding there are many cases of "nervous exhaustion" and "vitamin deficiency" that are alcohol related.

Ford said the $16 million the state spends for treatment of alcoholism is a relatively cheap investment when compared with mental health and mental retardation programs.

He estimated 100,000 Nebraskans are excessive drinkers.

School consolidation discussed

A bill designed to force consolidation of schools is being prepared by Sen. Peter Hoagland of Omaha, who plans to introduce the legislation during the 1980 legislative session.

Sen. Chris Beutler of Lincoln is among lawmakers who have expressed interest in Hoagland's bill. But until he can see the detailed bill, he would not commit himself to co-sponsorship, Beutler said.

Another Lincoln senator, Don Wesely, said he intends to co-sponsor the bill. He said reorganization of districts must be part of any attempt to boost state aid to schools or to make a major shift from the property tax to the sales and income taxes as a method of school financing.

There would be no incentive to consolidate if the actions were not taken together, he said.

Sen. Dave Landis of Lincoln said he is interested in the proposal but questioned whether Hoagland's bill could win legislative approval if the measure is introduced by relatively new senators. He, Hoagland, Wesely and Beutler are first-year legislators.

Changes demanded

The national Democratic Compliance Review Commission has demanded the Nebraska State Central Committee make some changes in its delegate selection plan for 1980.

But State Chairman Dick White of Lincoln said the committee has won basic approval of its plan for choosing 24 delegates to next year's national convention.

The changes demanded are technical in nature, White noted.

In order to satisfy national party guidelines which require equal numbers of men and women delegates, the central committee abolished the state's traditional system of direct election of delegates in the primary election.

State Democrats will choose 17 delegates in congressional district caucuses, two from elected and party officials and five at large during the state convention.

The major change mandated by the national committee was to switch the scheduled date for the state convention from early in July next year to June 22. The convention will be held in Lincoln.

Abortion trial begins

The U.S. District Court trial testing the constitutionality of the state's abortion law is being held in Lincoln before Judge Warren Urbom.

The trial opened Aug. 11 and is expected to last about three weeks.

Urbom has twice enjoined the state from enforcing certain provisions of the abortion laws, one passed by the Legislature in 1978 and the other which went into the statute books in 1979.

He also suspended a part of the law requiring a 48-hour waiting period between the time a woman gives her informed consent for an abortion and the actual operation.

Among the first witnesses were Dr. G. William Orr of Omaha, an obstetrician and gynecologist who performs abortions for Women's Services P.C., and Omaha Clinic, and Linda Koch, executive director and assistant secretary of the Ladies Center Inc. in Omaha, where she said 40-45 abortions are performed weekly.

Orr, Women's Services and the Ladies Center are among plaintiffs in the lawsuit.

Urbom said he is willing to work odd hours if court days must be lengthened in order to complete the trial by September

OBSERVATIONS

Dangerous Precedent Set

Judge James Duggan receives our compliments for his decision not to close the preliminary hearing Friday in Wayne County Court involving the fatal shooting of Karen Sunderman.

There has been a dangerous trend recently among Nebraska judges in misinterpreting the guidelines set down by the U.S. Supreme Court in Gannett vs. DePasquale. The high court's decision allows pretrial hearings to be closed.

Chief Justice Warren Burger has blamed the press for misleading lower court judges on the scope of the court's decision. Interpretation of the court's ruling was left to individual judges, and Judge Duggan apparently believes in the freedom of information and the First Amendment and Fifth Amendment.

For more than a century, Nebraska statutes, the Supreme Court and the Nebraska Constitution have held that state courts and "judicial proceedings" shall be open to the public.

Nebraska judges have been closing these pretrial hearings based on their beliefs that evidence presented will prejudice a

Tax Promises Catching Up With President

RICHARD L. LESHER,
President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

I think it's time someone asks the President a simple question: Why, after promising never to increase the taxes of lower and middle income Americans, has he asked these same people to pay the largest tax increases in peacetime history?

Clearly, he has and is. The President has tried to raise taxes on crude oil, the industrial use of oil and natural gas, gas guzzlers, gasoline and just recently, on the so-called "windfall profits" of the oil companies. And that's just for energy. Mention Social Security and we're talking about another $27 billion tax increase over the next decade. And the list goes on and on.

The key point is this: every cent of tax proposals like these must always be paid through higher taxes and/or higher prices — by the very people President Carter promised to protect. It's not really that complicated as long as you agree your money belongs to the government.

That's the whole idea behind his "windfall profits" tax which he says the oil companies must pay because they have not earned the higher prices they will receive under gradual decontrol. But how could a company "earn" what the President calls "fair" when the government itself kept prices controlled below what it costs to explore and drill for oil?

Obviously it couldn't. And now he delimits in using words like "profitsteering" and "cheat" to insinuate the industry is untrustworthy. Forget the facts. Forget that while the oil industry's profitability averaged less than other industries during the last three years it consistently invested more than it earned (nearly twice its profits) for production and new exploration. Forget that the independent producers, who drill and find much more oil than the majors, are even more heavily in debt.

And of course, let a gloss over the entire Department of Energy which spends at most as much as the majors earn, but produces no energy. All governments can already take up to 65 cents of every energy dollar you spend. Under the big, new tax proposals, they could get more than 80 cents.

Will all those taxes keep your car running and heat your home? Possibly, but only if you honestly think those who already explore, produce, refine and market their product at one of the most competitive rates in the world are less qualified to invest your money than the bureaucrats, whose idea of competition is to outstaff, outspend and overpower rival departments, and whose policies of price controls and environmental extremism actually produce the mess we're now in.

Senator Orrin Hatch has signaled a more disturbing consequence of the President's proposed "windfall profits" tax: The seizure, or theft of private property.

The oil companies are owned by millions of stockholders, the majority of whom are moderate-income, blue and white-collar workers and retired people who have been saving and investing for years. Now they're suddenly being told that although they might have invested their life savings and assumed all the risks, the government will grab the rewards because these people didn't earn them. Sound fair? And if it happens, where might the ax fall next — on you perhaps, because you really didn't earn enough profit you made on the sale of your land, your crops, your family business or your home?

Let's talk about the real windfall — the one that's truly unearned, and enormous, and that goes to the government because of the higher taxes you must pay every time you get a raise trying to stay even with inflation. During the past 15 years, prices have risen about 130 percent. But federal taxes have shot up nearly 300 percent. That means a one income family earning the median income of $8,132 in 1964 must earn at least $20,000 this year just to retain its purchasing power. Will your family succeed?

Maybe that's why people are so frustrated and frightened. Maybe that explains the national malaise the President tried so hard to put his finger on with all those slashing hand gestures during his recent speech. And if that is true, can't he find another way to get tough and be a leader without declaring war on American taxpayers?

WAY BACK WHEN

30 Years Ago
August 18, 1949: Widening of Tenth Street for the three blocks along the south edge of the Wayne State Teachers College campus was started this week. This stretch of 10th street has long been considered a hazard for both automobiles and pedestrian traffic because of its narrow width. Wayne's National Guard battery again has been named outstanding unit of the annual summer field training encampment of the 34th division (Iowa and Nebraska National Guard units). Lawrence Felt and O.C. McMahon of Colfax, Iowa, have purchased the filling station property on south main and plan to open a Texaco station about Sept. 1. Construction will begin this week on a new hog exhibit barn at the fairgrounds. The 24 x 96 building will contain 22 units and will be built just north of the others.

25 Years Ago
Aug. 19, 1954: Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lundberg arrived home Monday after spending six weeks visiting relatives in Sweden and touring Europe. Wayne stores and businesses will be closed next Thursday afternoon, Aug. 26, to allow employees to attend the fair. Bill Morrison and W.G. Schulz have been named directors of Wayne's Chamber of Commerce. President C.N. Olson announced this week. Work on Wayne's new municipal swimming pool was started Tuesday when engineer J.M. Thorburn staked out the pool on the tract of Thirteenth and Lincoln Sts. The city council is still seeking prices on excavation of the pool site. Wayne's 1954 tax levy will probably be raised about 1.75 mills over 1953, according to County Clerk C.A. Bard.

20 Years Ago
Aug. 20, 1959: As a tribute to her work teaching conservation, the Wayne Izaak Walton League presented Mrs. Irene Hamilton with a scholarship to WSTC conservation workshop. Benee Wiltse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Wiltse, Wayne was crowned Queen of the Wayne County Fair in activities before the grandstand Monday night. Wayne Photo Company this week will move to new quarters at 211 Main, former site of Franske Jewelry. Proprietor C.N. Olson said he expects to open for business at the new location Saturday morning. Mark Dorcey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Dorcey, Wayne, captured the grand champion heifer honors with his Hereford at the Wayne County Fair 4-H baby beef show Tuesday.

15 Years Ago
Aug. 20, 1964: A-Ze Donald L. Krueger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo W. Krueger, Winslow, was graduated from a technical training course at Kaesler AFB, Miss. He has been assigned to a Strategic Air Command unit at Whittman AFB, Mo. Dr. Harlan Carlson returned Thursday from Bloomington, Ind., to the home of his parents, the Albert G. Carlsons, following an eight-week course of study at the Far Eastern Language Institute of Indiana University. Howard Witt, Wayne, was named to the dean's list at the University of South Dakota, Vermillion, for the second semester. Witt, majoring in mathematics, maintained a 3.8 average.

10 Years Ago
Aug. 21, 1969: A flag-raising ceremony scheduled for 8:45 a.m. Wednesday will officially open school at Wakefield. The Wranglers 4-H Club of Allen earned a purple ribbon and the right to represent Dixon County at the State Fair in the music identification contest competition. Mrs. A. Stevenson, 11-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. T.H. Stevenson of Wayne, has been accepted into the interdisciplinary honors program at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn. J. Alan Cramer, Wayne, an Envoy in the Nebraska Diplomats, plans to attend the first annual dinner of the Nebraska Diplomats in Grand Island on Sept. 16.

Timber May Provide Long-Term Investment

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M.M. Van Kirk,
Director of Information

Nebraska farmers and ranchers probably are missing an opportunity for profitable long-term investment in their land by failing to consider planting and management of some of their acreage for commercial timber.

With demand for lumber increasing and expected to double by the year 2000, Dennis Adams, University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources district Extension forster, says current projected income figures for various species may be understated. Recently he listed the following expected returns, based on current market value, for five common species in the state:

- $20,000 to $30,000 per acre for black walnut in 50 years.
- $200 to $300 per acre for cottonwood in 35 years.
- $500 to $1,000 per acre for hackberry in 60 years (and ash in 50 years).
- $600 to $1,200 per acre for silver maple in 35 years.
- $500 to $1,200 per acre for red oak in 65 years.

He points out that the cost of establishing an acre of timber rarely exceeds $130, and that landowners can qualify for cost-sharing, which pays up to 75 percent of this cost.

Adams advises landowners to consider timber production as a long-term proposition with cash returns many years in the future. And he adds that planting may be the best alternative land use, especially on wasteland, odd corners, inaccessible areas or marginal cropland that is producing minimal return.

Nearly every farm has a certain amount of acres which could be retired from cropping or pasture and planted to timber without interfering appreciably in the farm's overall production program. As for future returns, any land investor considering purchase would overlook the potential in 3-5 or 10 acres of well-managed and well-maintained commercial timber on the property and the nearer it came to harvest maturity, the more incentive there would be to acquire it.

Naturally there would be a great many side benefits in such plantings in the form of soil erosion control, livestock protection, wildlife cover and windbreak benefits. But these could be enjoyed and appreciated through the years as the "crop" headed for its ultimate purpose. Think what even one acre of fine black walnut timber planted in 1929 would be worth today!

Dr. Mike Ferrill, state forester, declares that Nebraskans can observe good land management practices and grow both field crops and forest crops, and it need not be an all-or-nothing situation. He has pointed out that trees are a renewable resource and should be utilized just like corn and wheat. He notes that many older shelterbelts in Nebraska were not properly designed and are in need of rejuvenation. And he urges that when shelterbelts are removed, they be replaced to meet current land use patterns and needs.

Nebraska was once recognized as the "tree planter's state." Our pioneer grandfathers and great-grandfathers who settled in the eastern half of Nebraska in the 1870's, 1880's and 1890's hastened to plant groves of trees to protect their farmsteads from winter winds and provide shade for the hot summers. A few of the magnificent cottonwood groves that distinguished the Elkhorn Valley and its tributaries in the early 1900's remain as examples.

And they planted orchards that provided an abundance of apples, cherries, mulberries and other fruit for several generations of their descendants to enjoy.

Speaking of People

Carroll Lutheran Church Site of Isom-Tietz Rites

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Tietz, who were married Aug. 18 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Carroll, are making their home at 314 1/2 Sherman, in Wayne.

Mrs. Tietz, nee Joni Isom, is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Isom of Carroll and the late Marvin Isom. A 1977 graduate of Wayne High School, she attended Wayne State College and is employed in the law offices of McDermott and McDermott in Wayne.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arlen Tietz of Wayne. He was graduated from Wayne High School in 1978 and works at Marra Home Improvement Co. of Wayne.

The Rev. John Hafermann of Winside officiated at the couple's double ring candlelight ceremony. Wedding music included "Wedding Prayer," sung by Brenda Wittig and accompanied by Kathy Haas, both of Wayne.

For her wedding day, the bride chose an ivory Victorian gown of nylon and lace in floor length with long sleeves. Her ivory veil was edged in lace, and she carried a nosegay of tan roses and apricot carnations with angel lace, cedar and dark brown ribbon.

Jodi Isom of Carroll was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Janet Isom of Carroll and Kathy Tietz of Wayne. Junior bridesmaid was Jennifer Isom of Carroll.

They wore sleeveless floor length gowns of crinkled gauze in apricot and ivory. Each carried a basket of apricot carnations and wheat with angel lace, cedar and apricot ribbon.

Best man was Rod Koch and groomsman was Doug Marr, both of Wayne. Usher was Bill Haas of Wayne.

The bridegroom was attired in an ivory tuxedo trimmed in brown, and his attendants wore brown tuxedos.

Kellie Brahmer of Bancroft was flower girl and Jason Hurlbert of Carroll was ring bearer. Candles were lighted by Kathy Stalling of Wayne.

Keith Jansen of Omaha pinned on flowers.

Both Mrs. Isom and Mrs. Tietz selected blue knit dresses in street length for the marriage of their children.

Royals Camp Choosy But Helpful

By Randy Hascall
WANTED: Several outstanding baseball players. Must run 60 yard dash in 7.0 or less. Must have good arm strength. Should be good fielder, batter and thinker. Must be a hustler.

The Kansas City Royals are looking for a few good men. To meet the qualifications, an athlete must run as smoothly as a finely tuned motor and be able to fire a baseball like a canon. Then, he is given a second look. If the qualifications aren't met, the Royals aren't interested.

Seventy young baseball players, most from Northeast Nebraska but some from Sioux City, Omaha and other areas, gathered at the Wakefield ball park Friday to try their luck in a Kansas City Royals tryout camp for boys between 16 and 22 years of age. One or two of the players may be fortunate enough to sign a contract with one of the Royals' rookie clubs.

"We must feel that the kid can play and he must show you he can if we are going to give him a contract," said KC scout and camp coordinator Carl Blando. "The Wakefield camp is the last one of the year."

We've signed three kids this year in all of our camps."

The baseball player hoping to someday play in the minor leagues may someday find his hopes fulfilled if he is good — darn good. But, for the athlete who has a goal to some day play in the major leagues the chances are much slimmer.

Only five percent of the kids across the country who sign a contract ever make it in the big leagues," Blando said. "Only three or four players at each of our rookie clubs may go to the big leagues."

Two players who were discovered in tryout camps and became Royals are Frank White and U.L. Washington. Washington was signed at a camp of 300. Most camps range from 50-100 athletes.

The keen-eyed Blando knows what he is looking for and ran the Wakefield tryout camp with assistance from Wakefield coach Paul Eaton, Laurel coach Bob Weisenberg, Wayne State coach Ron Jones and Kearney State coach Guy Murray.

Athletes were tested in two main areas — running speed and arm strength. Players had to run the 60 yard dash in 7.0

seconds or less. Eight of the 70 athletes met the standard in that event. Two ran the dash in 6.6 seconds. But speed without arm strength is like a hammer without a nail. If just won't do the job. Outfielders and infielders were tested and rated on arm strength. A handful had arm strength comparable to a major league player.

Blando graded the arms with his own judgment, one of experience and knowledge. His grading system ranged from two to eight, with eight being high. Five is the equivalent to the average major league arm. The majority of the players received scores between 3 and 3.5. A few received fives and some others received fours. Four is considered below major league average while three is far below major league average.

Pitchers were judged on speed, accuracy and curve of their pitches. A radar gun was not included to check their pitching speed.

Some of the players are good at one skill or two," said Blando. "The scout must project the player's potential. Can he run, throw and hit? I look at the tools, not the home run ability. If I really have to wonder, then it's not worth it. The good ones will stand out."

Blando is just one of 10 full time scouts who work for Kansas City. In addition, there are four part time scouts and numerous associate scouts. Blando says he gets a good lead on players and areas to look for talent. If the players aren't good enough to sign a minor league contract, they may still be good enough to earn a college scholarship.

Blando says he knows "a bunch of coaches." He is known all over the country and said that an athlete's exposure from the camp may result in a scholarship. The KC scout said coaches constantly contact him to find good ball players.

Some people may be surprised that Blando, who scouts Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Colorado and Nebraska, would set up a tryout camp in a small community in Northeast Nebraska. But Blando says, "I go where the facilities, help and interest are good. We'll be back. There is good interest in this area and it's not right for the players to drive 150 miles to a tryout camp."

RUNNING THE 60 yard dash in 6.6 seconds are these two ball players at the Royals Camp while Kearney State coach Guy Murray and Wayne State coach Ron Jones (background right) time the runners.

Young Athletes Learn From KC Scout Blando's Advice At Camp

By Lefty Olson
 For seventy five young athletes it was the dream of a life time, as they participated in a major league tryout camp conducted in Wakefield Friday by Kansas City Royals scout Carl Blando.

For many it was the beginning and the end. One, possibly two, may be contacted by the Royals for another look. This was the 10th camp conducted by Blando in the Midwest this summer, and he has signed three prospects from those camps.

The majority at the Wakefield camp were from the Northeast Nebraska hotbed for baseball, but Sioux City and Northwest Iowa, as well as cities along the Missouri River as far south as Omaha and Bellevue were also represented.

A 63, 180 pounder, traveled more than 250 miles from Hayes Center, Ne. The most unexpected, however, was a candidate from the home of the Royals — Kansas City.

Doug, a 19 year old concessionaire at Royals Stadium, heard of the camp in Wakefield a week and one half ago. He began an intense workout schedule that left his hands blistered and bleeding after the workout. To his credit, he was the only one able to bounce a hit off the deep leftfield wall in the 11 inning game type conditions which were staged after the final cut was made.

The 75 players, which Scout Blando called a very good group to work with, were tested for arm strength and speed before the initial cut was made. Assisting were Paul Eaton, Wakefield coach and organizer, Bob Weisenberg, Laurel coach, Ron Jones, Wayne State College baseball coach, and Guy Murray, baseball coach at Kearney State College.

According to Blando, the usual turnout ranges from 50 to 100, although a camp at Marshalltown, Iowa, drew only 25 earlier this summer.

When asked if the camps weren't just public relations for the Royals, Blando disagreed. "No," he commented, "we're tently looking for that high school senior to be or young college athlete who has the potential but whose full development hasn't been reached. That's why we try to keep the age level between 16 and 22, for after the early twenties the improvement stops.

For some," he said, "they may not have major league talent but if we have brought out something today which may make the kid a college baseball player, then something has been achieved. If baseball, through an athletic scholarship, can help a youth get an education that's terrific. That's why you see college coaches helping us with the camp."

After the camp had been reduced to 25 or 30 and an intrasquad game played, Blando gathered the group together for his final grading and comments. He was generous with his advice. "Where are you going to school kid?" he asked of a Sioux City North athlete who scored well. A Wakefield youth was asked, "Have you ever tried catching? You've got the tools."

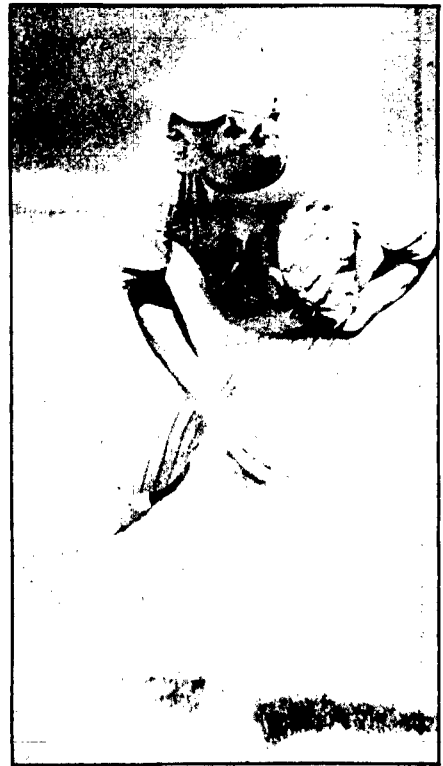

Blando's philosophy is to gently advise a youth of his weaknesses, so as not to discourage anyone. More often than not, he offered advice on how to improve. No one questioned his knowledge of the game. For Blando has been a Royals scout for five years and before that a minor league manager. From Little League to the top, he had 27 years of catching experience.

Where do those 75 young men go from here? Many, like the southpaw pitcher who is attracting a lengthy look by the Royals' chief scout, will be heading to colleges and universities in the area — stops like Wayne, Bellevue, Lincoln, Kearney, Omaha, Sioux City and Orange City, among others.

Others will return to high school perhaps working a little harder knowing that in another year there will be another tryout and another chance. And more so they can continue to dream.

As one observer, now past his prime, said: "Gee, I wish I would have done this when I was a kid."

SCORING A FIVE in arm strength is Doug Starzl of Wakefield as he makes a throw from outfield to third base.

4th Jug Slips By TJ's For Wayne Title

The kings of the Wayne Men's Slow Pitch Softball League battled for the league tournament crown Tuesday night and the battle was everything the modest sized crowd expected.

The Fourth Jug reached the finals by defeating Valley Squire, Crow's Hybrid and TJ's Bar. TJ's Bar reached the finals by defeating First National Bank, Sherman Construction, Waldoburn's and Danielson Dry-wall. TJ's entered the evening with one loss in the double elimination tourney. The Jug was unbeaten in the tournament.

The Fourth Jug won the title with a 3-2 win after losing the opener 12-7.

In the first game, The Jug scored two runs in the second inning with Earle Overin and Kim Baker doing the damage. Chuck Hirschman scored TJ's first run in the top of the inning when Bryan Johnson tripled. Bill Schultz scored on a double by Mic Daehnke to put the score at 3-1 in the bottom of the third.

TJ's team was out to win and dominated how it reached the final, by scoring 11 runs in the final four innings. A home run by Johnson brought Tom Anderson and Hirschman home in the fourth, giving TJ's its first lead. Hirschman took over in the fifth by pounding another homer to build TJ's lead to 8-3. Steve Thompson, Doug Sturm and Anderson scored on Hirschman's blast.

The Jug rallied with three runs in the sixth by Daehnke, Overin and Baker. A home run by Schultz in the seventh inning ended the scoring for the Fourth Jug.

Cleve Stolpe continued TJ's home run streak when he powered one over the fence in the top of the sixth. Runs by Sturm, Anderson and Hirschman ended the game with a final score of 12-7. The win by TJ's handed the Jug its first tourney loss and sent the finals into a second game.

Unlike the first game, the second contest was low scoring. TJ's got on the score board first when Steve Thompson scored a run in the first inning. Dave Diediker and Sturm added key singles. The Fourth Jug scored all three of its runs in the second inning on one base hit and a pair of errors. Loren Hammer, Tim Robinson and Jake Munter did the scoring.

TJ's fought back with one run in the fourth inning by Hirschman. John Carroll drove him home with a base hit. TJ's threatened again in the top of the seventh but stranded a runner on third base, making the Fourth Jug the champions.

Mike Loefe of the Jug and Tom Anderson of TJ's were the respective pitchers.

Jackson, Minn. (Saturday): Gerard Bruggeman, third in second heat; seventh in a feature; Gene Brudigan, third in fourth heat, sixth in a feature.

A CLOSE play at first base in the 4th Jug-TJ's Bar game, as Bill Schultz beats out a grounder. Steve Thompson is TJ's first baseman and Tom Anderson is the pitcher in the background.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

JEFF ZEISS may have gained a little attention from some college baseball scouts in the past couple of weeks. The Wayne High senior was selected by sports editor Bob Jensen of the Custer County Chief to the Class B All-Tournament team in Broken Bow.

Joining Zeiss on the State All-Tourney team were three players from Lincoln Meginnis, two from St. Paul, two from Broken Bow, two from Holdrege and one each from Ogallala and Fairbury.

In addition to the All-Tourney laurels, Jeff displayed his abilities at the Kansas City Royals camp in Wakefield, Friday. He ran the 60 yard dash in 6.8 seconds, one of the five fastest times in the tryout camp. As an outfielder, Zeiss did pretty well but KC scout Carl Blando said he needs to improve his arm strength a little. In the actual scrimmage between the players, Zeiss topped a home run over the right field fence for one of the few hits in the low scoring game.

OTHER WAYNE PLAYERS trying out at the camp included Earle Overin, Tom Ginn, Tim Pfeiffer, Jerry Goeden, Jeff Dinn and Jerry Morris. Most of them seemed to do well in at least one category.

The area was well represented by other players from Wakefield, Laurel, Winside, Allen and other nearby towns such as West Point, Wisner, Emerson, Newcastle, Coleridge, Hartington.

THE WORLD OF RUNNING has been shaken recently by two great names. Most recently was the surprising performance of Britisher Sebastian Coe. Coe, not formerly regarded as a great threat on the track, set world records in the 800 meter run and mile run within two weeks, last month. He became the fourth person in history to hold both world records at the same time. Others were Sydney Wooderson, Peter Snell and Jim Ryun. Coe's records are 1:44.4 and 3:49.0.

one knew that Coe would go one step further. Within 41 days of the 800 record, Coe ran the 1,500 meter run in a world record. He became the first man to ever hold all three records simultaneously.

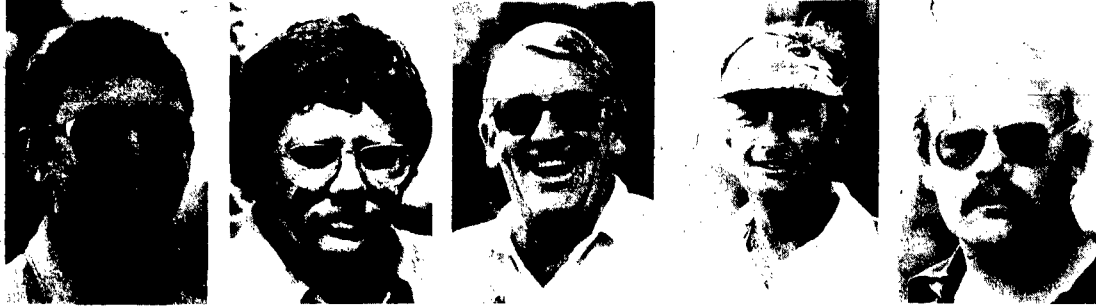

Another speed demon of the track is Renaldo Nehemiah of the University of Maryland. Nehemiah currently claims the six fastest times in the 60 yard high hurdles and eight of the top nine times. His record is 6.88 seconds. He also is the holder of the four fastest times in the 110 high hurdles with a best of 13.0. He holds the records in the 60 lows and the 110 lows as well. Coe and Nehemiah are two names to watch for in the 1980 Olympics.

Performances in track and field go relatively unnoticed by many people but just keep improving. Runners are running faster than ever, jumpers are jumping higher and longer than ever and the strongmen are tossing the weights farther than ever. Where will it all end? What is the limitation of the human body in the area of track and field? The next decade should tell how far athletes can be pushed.

Bob Bornhoft, who celebrated his 18th birthday last week, received a belated birthday present when he fired a par 36 on the final nine holes to win the Wayne Country Club's Club Tournament by two strokes, Sunday.

Bornhoft finished the 27-hole championship flight with a 113 total, two strokes ahead of Darrel Fuelberth. Jim Marsh and John Fuelberth tied for third place at 116. Don Sund, Ron Dalton and defending champion Bob Reeg finished four strokes off the pace at 117. Reeg had won the tournament the last seven years.

After 18 holes of play, Bornhoft was tied with Darrel Fuelberth at 77. Reeg, Marsh and John Fuelberth were one stroke back at 78. Bornhoft secured the title with a finishing round of 36, while Marsh, Dalton and both Fuelberths completed the final nine with 38's. Reeg finished with a 39. The low score on the championship flight final nine was claimed by Don Sund, who shot a two under par 34 to finish at 117.

Other flight winners were Larry Wingett, Tod Willis, Bill Workman, Arnie Reeg, Gene Case, Doug Pierson, Jon Ley, Lyle Garvin, Gordon Nuernberger, Byron Heier, Ken Berglund, Ken Marra and Gary Wrede. Playoffs decided the winners in the fifth, sixth, tenth and eleventh flights.

Grand Opening Will Feature Western Art

Paintings and bronze sculptures by five of the leading western artists in America will be on exhibit in Wayne next week during the Grand Opening celebration of the First National Bank's new Drive-In facility.

Bob Reag, vice president of the First National Bank, said the exhibit, by the Taos Art Gallery of Taos, New Mexico, will feature the works of Harry Brunk, Walt LaRue, George Marks, William Moyers and Thomas Lewis, who opened the Taos Art Gallery in 1950.

Reag said works by the five artists will be shown at the Drive-In Bank on Tuesday, Aug. 28, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. All of the paintings and bronzes will be for sale.

Reag said that the exhibit will feature all Western art, with the exception of several landscapes by Lewis.

Lewis, who is recognized as one of America's finest contemporary artists, moved to Taos in 1949 and opened his gallery there in 1950. Since his death, the gallery has been run by Lewis' wife, Sallie.

Lewis' works, which hang in museums, institutions and private homes across the nation, are famous for their intricate detail, including bold, craggy mountain ridges, the living desert and the delicate beauty of aspen trunks.

Lewis was born in Bay City, Texas in 1907, and was a professional artist by the age of 20. He is featured in "Harmens' Western Americana," a volume describing the work of 100 western artists.

In 1962 the Lewises met William Moyers, who has become recognized as one of the leading western action artists in the country.

In 1966 Moyers began to produce his famous western bronzes, and since that time has twice won the highest prize of the Annual Exhibit of the Cowboy Artists of America.

According to a spokesman for the Taos Arts Gallery, which handles Moyers' works, his canvases are sought by collectors for two reasons: first, the excellence of the work itself; second,

WILLIAM MOYERS, whose paintings include Dragging Out the Leader, above, will be in Wayne Tuesday, Aug. 28, during an exhibit of paintings and bronzes by five leading western artists, including Moyers, Harry Brunk, Walt LaRue, George Marks and Thomas Lewis. The exhibit will be shown at the First National Drive-In Bank during its grand opening, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Moyers' work is historically valuable for authenticity of detail.

Moyers produces a major and minor Bronze each year to be cast in limited numbers. Through 1871, 16 sets are still completely intact.

Harry Brunk, whose works also are featured at the Taos Art Gallery, was born in 1941 at Saint Edward, Neb. He attended commercial art school in Omaha and worked for nearly 14 years as a commercial artist in Lincoln and Omaha.

Because of his rural background, Brunk's subject matter, which is always western, centers around the horse. In 1974 acceptance of his work was strong enough to devote full time to painting.

George Marks became acquainted with the Taos Art Gallery through Bill Boyers, and in 1969 became the third western action artist to exhibit at the gallery. A year later, in 1970, he produced his first bronze sculpture and since has gained wide acclaim in the western field.

Marks was born in 1923 at Conrad, Iowa and studied art at the University of Iowa.

Lewis' first met Walt LaRue at a party in California, where he worked as a Hollywood stunt man and former rodeo performer. Lewis first bought his painting at a show, and since that time LaRue has become a valued exhibitor at the gallery.

LaRue paints what he knows best, including horses, men and action. His paintings of galloping horses, flying lassos, bucking cayuses, and rodeo scenes all bear his individual stamp.

David Sherer, business representative for the Taos Art Gallery, will be in Wayne during the exhibit Tuesday, along with William Moyers, one of the artists whose works are being shown.

Dixon Sunday School Convention Is August 26

The Dixon County Sunday School Association will convene its 100th convention at 8 p.m. Aug. 26, at the Gospel Chapel Church in Newcastle. Services will continue Monday at 10 a.m., 1:15 p.m. and 8 p.m., with a pot luck dinner at noon.

The Rev. T.S. Rendall, vice president of ministries, principal of the Prairie Bible Institute, Three Hills Alberta, Canada, and also editor of the institute's two monthly publications, "The Prairie Overcomer" and the youth paper, "The Young Pilot," will be the principal speaker.

The Reverend Rendall was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and migrated to Canada in 1953. He went on staff at Prairie Bible Institute in 1956 and has worked in various capacities since that time.

Monday night, time will be taken for Historical Reminiscences prepared by the Centennial Committee. Ruby Curry, Ponca, was chairman.

One hundred years ago, entire families gathered for the convention. Some families came in fancy buggies with high stepping horses, other drove plow horses who slowly plodded along pulling a plain old lumber wagon. Young men would ride foxy prancing horses. And some who lived close by would walk. But everyone could feel the excitement, like an electric current, pulsing through the crowd.

It was a serious, inspirational time as these pioneers discussed the work of the Sunday school, and learned how to make it a more effective tool to teach the Bible to boys and girls.

But it was also a time of fun and games. During the noon recess ladies in long hooped skirts and fancy sunbonnets gathered their noisy brood around them to give each one their own Karo syrup pail full of goodies. But it was hard to entice them to eat because of all the excitement.

The ladies, a little more subdued, glowed with an inner excitement as they gathered in small groups to talk about what had happened during the year.

And the men, a little uncomfortable because they had to wear their Sunday best, also had important things to discuss — mainly the weather and the crops.

After all, this was an occasion because you didn't see your friends from the far corners of the county very often. This was the day they had all anticipated since last year. And this evening they would go home and start looking forward to next year's event.

Next year it would be held in a different town — in a different church. But most every Sunday school in Dixon County was represented.

One hundred years ago, church events were the most important times in everyone's life. In most pioneer families, their faith dictated their day to day living. And most of the social events were centered around the church.

But the annual Sunday school convention was special. This was the day they would see old friends.

Officers for the Centennial Convention include: Darrel Conrad, Newcastle, chairman; Gordon Lundin, Wakefield, vice chairman; Grace Green, Allen, secretary; and Jewell Schram, S. Sioux City, treasurer.

Pilot Parents Have Meeting

Wayne-Laurel Pilot Parents and their families met Aug. 17 at Izaak Walton Lake for a pot luck picnic.

The steering committee held a brief business meeting to discuss correspondence that has been received. Be Magdanz will represent our group and this area at a training session to be held in Omaha Sept. 8 and 9. This training will enable Be and other volunteers throughout the region to help in the formation of new Pilot Parent Groups.

The July and August regional Pilot Parent newsletters were shared at the meeting. Many of the activities of the Wayne-Laurel Pilot Parents were included in the most recent newsletter which covers Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri.

At the next meeting, the Wayne-Laurel Pilot Parents will continue their training by viewing the film "Cry Sorrow, Cry Hope."

Pilot Parents are parents of handicapped children helping parents of handicapped children. If you or someone you know could benefit from talking to a Pilot Parent, please call 375-2243 or 256-3127.

You can fix wicker furniture with wire twists from bread or garbage bags. Weave or glue them into the wicker and paint them to match.

Card of Thanks

THE FAMILY OF Dr. Gordon Shupe was overwhelmed by the many many gestures of love shown to us during Gordon's illness and at the time of his death. The care and concern shown to Gordon by Sister Gertrude and all the Providence Medical Center staff has meant so much to us as the faithful and kind service of Dr. Bob Bentback, The Rev. Robert Haas and the Rev. Robert Shirck have said that memory is one of God's greatest gifts to us. The memories of the kindness of so many people will comfort and sustain us. Zaida Shupe, Penny Dunns, Gordon Shupe II, Marilyn Matsukis a2312

I WANT TO THANK all my friends and relatives who remembered me with cards, visits and calls while I was in the St. Luke's Medical Center in Sioux City and since I've returned home. A special thank you to the Rev. Kenny Edmonds for his visits and prayers. Everyone's thoughtfulness was greatly appreciated. Russell Lindsay Sr. a23

I WOULD LIKE TO extend a special thank you to my family and friends who remembered me with cards, phone calls, visits, flowers and gifts while I was in the Lutheran Hospital in Norfolk. Also for the food that was brought to the house while I was in the hospital and since my return home. It was greatly appreciated. God bless you all. Mrs. Don Volwiler. a23

THANK YOU TO everyone who helped us so much during the time of Kevin's recent hospital stay. Thanks to Les and Byron Menke, Ray, Jeff and Brian Loberg and Dallas Hansen for helping with straw bales, Carroll Feed and Grain for helping haul corn. Thanks also to all the neighbors, relatives, friends and classmates of Kevin's from Randolph High who helped walk beans. Thanks for all the food brought to our home. We sincerely appreciated it. Glenn, Norma Loberg, Kevin and family. a23

I WANT TO THANK everyone for your thoughtfulness to me while I was in the hospital. All your visits, cards, flowers and the many kind things you did for me will always be remembered. Thank you all. Angie Preston. a23

THANKS TO EVERYONE for the prayers, cards, gifts, visits and phone calls I received while I was in the hospital and since my return home. Everything was greatly appreciated and will not be forgotten. Kevin Loberg. a23

THE FAMILY OF Karen Sunderman wishes to express their sincere thanks for the cards, flowers and food brought to our home. Every gesture made was greatly appreciated and will long be remembered. The Parents, Brothers, Sisters, Nieces and Nephews of Karen Sunderman. a23

School Bells Ring

Bells at the Allen Consolidated School will ring for the first day of classes Friday, Aug. 24, at 8:30 a.m. School will dismiss Friday at 11:30 a.m.

Buses will run on Friday; however there will be no hot lunches.

Hot lunches will be served beginning the first full day of classes on Monday, Aug. 27.

Prices for hot lunches are 55 cents for kindergartners through sixth grade students, 40 cents for junior and senior high students, and 75 cents for adults.

Students in grades seven through 12 are to register for classes today (Thursday), from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m.

Football and volleyball practice at Allen began this week.

Kindergarten classes at Allen will begin Friday, with a morning session only. Day-long kindergarten classes will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week throughout the school year.

Announcement
The Allen-Waterbury Volunteer Fire Department has announced that the department will cease the service of hauling water to first district patrons, except for fire emergencies.

The announcement is effective Sept. 15.

Monthly Meeting
The Allen Board of Education held its regular monthly meeting Aug. 13.

The board hired Janice Dickens as a full-time assistant custodian.

Seven persons have submitted applications for the position left vacant by the resignation of Vergie Gensler.

Gaylen Burnett was hired to drive the only school-owned bus for the coming year.

Promotion Sunday
Sunday school promotions will be held this Sunday at 9 a.m. at the Allen United Methodist Church.

All youngsters and their families are encouraged to attend.

Members of the Youth Fellowship of the Methodist Church are asked to meet at 4:30 p.m. Friday for a retreat at Ponca State Park with their sponsors.

They will return to Allen about 1 p.m. Saturday.

In the event of rain, the retreat will be held at the church.

Stewart's Home
The Mahlon Stewarts returned home last Thursday after vacationing for five weeks in the Northwest.

Stewarts visited the Phil Litzenbergers in Spokane, Wash. before arriving at the home of their son, Donald Stewart, at Duval, Wash.

While in Washington, Stewarts also visited her sister, Mrs. Barnett Smotherman, and a niece, Mrs. Alvin Rowick, in Seattle. They also attended a picnic of cousins at Arlington, Wash.

Stewarts also went camping for a weekend with the Lawrence Benton families, the David Benton family, the Bert Benton family and the Earl Pickering family.

En route home, they visited an aunt and family, the George Striegels, at Milton-Freewater, Ore.

Elkhorn NRD Accepts Bid

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District Board of Directors voted at their Aug. 16 meeting held at the First National Bank of Stanton, to accept a bid of $109,909.10 for a road structure in Cuming County.

The bid submitted by Theisen Brothers, Inc. of Norfolk is for a 44,814 cubic yard structure which will have flood control benefits for the city of West Point.

The cost of the structure will be shared 50 percent Lower Elkhorn NRD, 25 percent city of West Point, and 25 percent Cuming County. Construction and storage easements are donated by landowners.

Directors also approved a fiscal 1980 budget with total requirements of $2,448,342. This budget calls for a local property tax levy of one mill.

Directors set priorities for the Lower Elkhorn NRD cost share program. Funding will be available to private landowners for constructing diversion terraces with waterways, water impoundment reservoirs, sediment retention & erosion control structures. Applications for other practices may be approved if funds are available after Dec. 30, 1979.

Directors approved August expenditures of $16,535.55 and income of $27,618.84.

And the Wall Came Tumbling Down

THE CARROLL area was hit by heavy rains Saturday night. A concrete block wall in a storage shed next to the Rohde Body Shop collapsed after the ground became saturated with rain water. Friends and relatives spent most of Sunday and Monday attempting to clear the damaged area. Among those helping or providing equipment were Delmar Eddie, Ron and Curt Rohde, Brian Eddie, Ken Eddie, Clifford Rohde, Wayne Ulrich and four employees from Cunningham Well & Supply. Damage estimate was about $3,000.

serve lunch at a dance sponsored by the Gasser Post on Sept. 1 at the Martinsburg fire hall. Each member is asked to furnish one dozen sandwiches.

It was announced that the Ladies Auxiliary of Foreign Wars of U.S. is sponsoring a creative patriotic art contest for students in grades nine through 12, and a Voice of Democracy contest for students in grades 10 through 12. Persons interested in either of the contests are asked to contact Sally Anderson of Allen.

A report was given by Betty Chapman.

Next meeting will be Sept. 20. The lunch committee is Marilyn Mohr, Elaine Schultz and Clara Schultz.

Unit Called
The Allen-Waterbury rescue unit was called last Thursday evening to a one-car accident east of Allen on old Highway 20. Occupants of the car were Mr.

and Mrs. Dave Miner and son David, and Patti Miner, all of Waterbury. They were taken in the unit to a Sioux City hospital, suffering from cuts and bruises. They were later released.

Mrs. Miner is the former Jeanne Kellogg of Allen.

Highway Group Sets Meeting

Members of the Nebraska Highway Commission and personnel from the Department of Roads will conduct eight state wide highway informational meetings in September and October.

Purposes of the meeting are twofold. Information will be presented and public input received on the Department's proposed highway construction programs for fiscal years 1980 through 1985. Also, city and county officials and interested citizens will have the opportunity to air their views and express their opinions on county road and city street requirements to the Commissioners and Department officials.

Date for the closest meeting to Wayne as follows: October 9 at Laurel.

Teachers to Attend Art Workshop

Some 50 teachers from Wayne area schools will attend an art workshop Sept. 11 and 12, at the Menagerie Room at Wayne State College. It was announced recently by Ms. Zita Jenkins, president of the Wayne Teachers Association.

A free educational service provided by Binney & Smith Inc., manufacturers of Crayola crayons and other school art supplies, the workshop will be conducted by Connie Leuty, who has taught extensively and holds a doctorate from the University of Kansas, Lawrence. The teachers will spend 15 hours of their own time learning about modern creative art education and some of its materials and tools. They will learn by doing, rolling up their sleeves and trying out the techniques presented by Miss Leuty. These techniques will include some of the uses of crayons, water colors, poster paints, finger paints, colored chalks and modelling clay. Simple craft techniques will also be shown, giving teachers an opportunity to work with paper, paste and other materials to gain three dimensional effects. All of the art workshop activities will be experiences which the teachers can relate to their own classroom teaching.

The award is presented by the Chamber to businesses in Wayne that improve and add to the economic growth in Wayne. The award was given at a Chamber coffee, Friday at Vel's Bakery.

Nathan, Karin and Karla of Urbana, Ill., came Sunday to spend a few days in the Andrew Mann home and with other relatives.

The Howard Iversons and Raymond Iverson of Hacienda Heights, Calif., left Monday morning for Kenosha, Wis. to visit Mrs. Pete Christensen and the William Hansens They plan to return Friday.

Mrs. Etta Jackson, Scott Jackson and Pat Holtgrew flew to Illinois to accompany Mrs. Bernice Ingram to Elk Creek, Va., for the Jackson Troy family reunion, attended by 109 relatives. They remained to visit for a week. The George Norrises, Nemaha, Iowa, were Saturday dinner guests of Mrs. Etta Jackson.

The Roger Thompson family, Newman Grove, the John Meyer family, Urbana, Ill., the Dean Janke and Darla, and Andy Mann and A.K. were Sunday evening guests in the Andrew Mann home Andrew Kenneth Mann spent Sunday night and Monday with his grandparents.

Nathan, Karin and Karla Meyer, Urbana, Ill., and Kandis, Kent and Kimberly Thompson, Newman Grove, spent Sunday night and Monday in the Dean Janke home. Vincent Meyer, Urbana, Ill., spent Sunday and Monday with his cousin, Deano Janke.

The magic of compound interest.

Did you know you can save a fixed amount regularly for 15 years... then withdraw the same fixed amount for the next 15 years... and still wind up with more than you saved? Amazing? No, just the "magic" of compounding interest in a Columbus Federal savings account.

This chart shows how:

Farm

AN ESTIMATED 200 acres of corn and soy beans on the Melvin Wilson farm south of Wakefield received varying degrees of damage after a hail of hail swept through the area Saturday night. Wilson said it is too early to determine the extent of damage, although several ears of corn examined were bruised. A custom grain picker said leaves left on soybeans may not provide enough sustenance for the pods to fill out.

Seeding New Lawn Can Be Expensive

If you're seeding a new lawn this fall, plan to put time, money and energy into your turf this first year for a long-term payoff in years to come.

Art Brunau, extension turf specialist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said homeowners can save themselves a lot of trouble in future years by starting out right. The most important thing, he said, is choosing the best grasses for your situation, taking into account how you plan to use the yard, how much care you're willing to give it and any special environmental conditions such as large shady areas.

Brunau recommended planting a combination of varieties for greater tolerance of a wide range of stresses.

Improved varieties of grasses resistant to pests and adaptable to your growing conditions are probably the best choices in most cases, Brunau said. If you want a Kentucky bluegrass lawn, some varieties recommended for Nebraska are Adelphi, Baron, Bonnie Blue, Cheryl, Glade, Majestic, Ram 1, Sydsport, Vicja and Touchdown among others. He noted that cool season grasses such as Kentucky bluegrass, perennial rye and fescues should be planted in late August or early September, but planting of warm season grasses should be delayed until spring.

If possible, Brunau said, you should arrange to have a soil test done to determine what your soil needs are. Soil samples can be sent to the Soil Testing Lab at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Room 125 Keim Hall, UNL, Lincoln, Neb., 68583. County extension offices can provide instructions for collecting the sample along with special mailing cartons. Cost of the test is $5.

Once you've selected the best varieties and the best time to seed your new lawn, it's time to establish a rough grade. Slope it away from the house — but not at an excessive angle — and allow it to settle.

The next step is to establish the final grade, Brunau said. Soil should be no larger than golf ball size and pea gravel size is even better. Fertilize the soil with a high phosphorous or starter-type fertilizer.

Next plant healthy, vigorous, clean seed of the varieties you've selected. Check seed label information and purchase the brand with the lowest quantity of crop and weeds as possible because these contaminants can invite future problems.

To be sure no spots are missed in the seeding, Brunau recommends applying seed at half rate moving in one direction, then apply the other half of the seed moving at right angles to the first pass.

Rake the seed lightly into the soil and mulch if necessary. Very hot weather or an extreme slope would require a mulch, Brunau said, but if growing conditions are good, you can get by without it. Next water the lawn lightly and frequently and as often as necessary to keep the soil consistently moist. Watering can be cut back as seedlings become established.

After seedlings have emerged, mow your new lawn at the desired level, keeping in mind that no more than one third of grass blades should be removed in one mowing. Mower blades should be kept sharp, Brunau said, so seedlings are not pulled out of the soil by a dull blade.

Fertilize the lawn four weeks after seeding and continue a good management program of mowing, watering and fertilizing throughout the life of the lawn. Brunau notes that a healthy, vigorous turf is the best defense against weeds, insects and disease.

By following these admittedly labor-intensive steps at seeding time, homeowners have already begun a program of integrated pest management, Brunau said, through use of resistant varieties, good cultural practices and chemicals when needed in a concerted program.

Using good management practices such as these throughout the life of the lawn, should help reduce many problems in the future, he said.

Wheat Exports Could Hit 1.5 Billion Mark

"Wheat exports could reach as high as 1.5 billion bushels during 1979-80," reports Dan McGuire, chief of the Nebraska Wheat Division. "This all-time export record projection was presented to the board of directors of Great Plains Wheat on Monday in Rapid City, S.D. by Don Novotny of the Foreign Agriculture Service," says McGuire.

The wheat farmers who run Great Plains Wheat were told that this potential volume is definitely tied to the work that GPW and Western Wheat Associates (WWA) has been doing around the world to promote U.S. wheat. Wheat check-off funds from Nebraska help support GPW and WWA programs.

"The over-riding attitude of the farmers at the Rapid City meeting was to think big going into the decade of the 1980's," adds McGuire, "and the farmers definitely intend to take an aggressive, promotional approach around the world."

"If the 1.5 billion bushel export possibility is reached, it will be about 320 million bushels more than this past year's exports," says Erv Friehe, Nebraska Wheat Committee chairman of McCook. "That 320 million bushels means an additional 100,000 rail hopper cars and will require efficient and aggressive support from the railroads and the export elevators."

"Considering the amount of economic good that wheat exports do for Nebraska and the country as a whole, every citizen should get behind our efforts," says Friehe, "and when you consider that a loaf of bread only goes up about a penny for ever $1 rise in the price of a bushel of wheat, the benefits of wheat exports to consumers is much greater than any minute food cost at home."

Crop Highlights For U.S. Told

All wheat production is forecast at 2.13 billion bushels (58.1 million metric tons), 19 percent more than last year and the second largest crop of record. Winter wheat prospects improved three percent from July 1 while other spring and durum wheat declined two percent and three percent, respectively. The 90 percent confidence interval for this production is 2.07 to 2.20 billion bushels.

Food grain production (wheat, rye and rice) is expected to total 64.9 million metric tons in 1979. This is 16 percent more than last year.

Corn production is forecast at a record 7.11 billion bushels (181 million metric tons), seven percent above the July 1 forecast and slightly above the previous record set last year. The 90 percent confidence interval for this production is 6.35 to 7.87 billion bushels.

Sorghum grain production is forecast at 779 million bushels (19.8 million metric tons) up 4 percent from last year, but two percent less than the 1977 crop.

Feed grain production (corn, sorghum, oats and barley combined) is expected to total 216 million metric tons, down one percent from the record 1978 production of 217 million metric tons.

Soybean production is forecast at a record 2.13 billion bushels (57.9 million metric tons), 16 percent larger than the 1978 crop. The 90 percent confidence interval for this production is 1.96 to 2.30 billion bushels.

Hay production is forecast at 149 million tons (127 million metric tons), a one percent decline from the 1978 crop. Pasture and range feed condition on Aug. 1 average 84 percent, seven points above a year ago and eight points above the 1966-77 average for this date.

Green Beans, Corn Near Time for Summer Canning

Depending upon when they are planted, green beans and corn should be ready for the summer's canning efforts.

Like all vegetables, these crops should be canned when they're garden fresh and at their cooking prime, according to Teresa Shaffer, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension foods specialist.

She said it's best to work with only enough produce for one canner load at a time. "It's easier and faster to work with small amounts and there's less chance of food spoilage," she noted.

Green beans and corn can be packed raw or hot. Pick raw green beans fairly tightly as they cook down during processing, but leave one-half inch of headspace.

On the other hand, raw corn should be packed loosely because it expands during processing. Leave one inch of headspace for this vegetable.

Shaffer advised packing hot vegetables fairly loosely so that water can circulate between the pieces during processing. Fill jars with vegetables and liquid near the boiling temperature. Headspace requirements are the same as for raw vegetables, she said, adding that headspace is needed to prevent sealing failures and even jar breakage.

The next step may seem insignificant, but it's a must, according to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialist. Before closing the jars, gently run a table knife or spatula between the jar and vegetables to remove air bubbles. If air bubbles aren't removed, they can cause food to darken on top and liquid to be lost during processing.

In addition, Shaffer recommended wiping the tops and threads of the jar to remove any liquid or food particles that could interfere with sealing.

Green beans, corn and all other vegetables except tomatoes must be processed in a pressure canner to be certain all spoilage organisms are destroyed, the specialist emphasized. It takes a temperature of 240 degrees F (116 C) to do this — a temperature which can only be reached in a pressure canner.

Canners also must follow recommended processing times carefully, Shaffer stressed. "Even if your green beans are young and tender, don't cut down on the processing time," she said. "The time is needed to destroy all the spoilage organisms that may be present."

After processing, let the pressure fall to zero before opening the canner, she added. "Don't try to speed up the cooling period, as this also could cause problems with food spoilage, as well as sealing."

Once jars are cool, Shaffer said to remove them from the canner and stand them a few inches apart on cloths and out of drafts. About 24 hours after wards, check the jars to be sure they're sealed. The center of the lid should be depressed and the lid should be secure.

If a jar hasn't sealed properly, use a new lid and jar, re-pack and reprocess the food the full length of time. Or, refrigerate and use the food as soon as possible.

Canned vegetables should be stored in a dark, dry, reasonably cool place to preserve their quality, Shaffer concluded.

Apples, apricots, cherries, peaches, pears, berries and plums all can be dried successfully for use in compotes and sauces. These fruits also can be used in breads, gelatin salads, pies, homemade ice cream, milkshakes or on breakfast cereals.

Fruits and vegetables for drying should be of high quality, at optimum maturity — not under or over-ripe — and free from defects, Shaffer said.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialist said to first clean the fruits or vegetables and then peel, slice or dice for quick drying. Pieces that are uniform in size and shape and fairly thin dry more quickly, which will mean a better quality product.

Most fruits and vegetables need to be pretreated before drying, Shaffer added. This inactivates enzymes that could cause produce to deteriorate in color, flavor and texture.

Fruits can be pretreated by soaking in a salt solution or exposing the pieces to sulfur fumes. Without this treatment, light-colored fruits, such as apples, may darken. Sulfur also helps preserve nutrients.

Shaffer said most vegetables are pretreated by steam or water blanching.

Once produce has been pretreated, it can be dried in a variety of ways, including a home dehydrator, in the oven or in the sun.

For oven drying, food is spread on open trays in a single layer and dried at the lowest oven temperature for several hours. Although simple, this method is the most expensive way to dry foods because of the energy requirements, Shaffer noted.

The home dehydrator is one of the most practical ways to dry large quantities of produce. Food is placed on trays in the box like devices and then dried through the use of an electric fan. Dehydrators can be purchased or built at home.

The home dehydrator still uses more energy than the third drying method — solar drying, however. With this method, produce is placed on trays in the direct sun. Cover the trays with cheesecloth to protect from dusts and insects. Sun drying will usually take several days, so bring trays indoors at night.

Shaffer noted that county extension officers will soon have a new publication outlining how to build a solar dryer at home.

Whichever method is used, produce should be pliable and have a springy, leathery feeling when dry, according to the specialist. Drying time for all three methods will vary depending on the drying temperature, humidity and size of the pieces.

There's always the danger of dried produce picking up moisture again, especially during Nebraska's humid summers. Shaffer advised to guard against this, she recommended storing dried fruit or vegetables in clean, dry, insect-proof containers. Glass jars or moisture and vapor proof freezer cartons or bags work well.

Not for everyone

Although thousands of people are joining the ranks of home canners each year, canning isn't for everyone.

Those with extra garden produce don't have to see it go to waste, however, Shaffer, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension foods specialist, suggested drying foods as a good and sometimes energy efficient alternative.

Almost all vegetables can be dried for use in soups, stews and casseroles, for nutritious camping or backpacking snacks or even reconstituted for regular eating later on, she said. Among those that dry best are beans, corn, herbs, okra, peas and peppers.

Cattle Feeders Meeting Aug. 27

Nebraska cattle feeders had 1,290,000 cattle on feed on Aug. 1. This inventory was down 6 percent from 1978 but up 9 percent from 1977, the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said.

Markings of fed cattle during July by Nebraska feeders totaled 310,000, up 5 percent from last year and equaled the record level of two years earlier. Placement of cattle into feedlots during July numbers 250,000, up 9 percent from last July but 18 percent below two years ago.

Cattle and calves on feed Aug. 1 for slaughter market in the 7 states preparing monthly estimates totaled 7.20 million head, down 8 percent from a year ago but 5 percent more than Aug. 1, 1977. Marketings of fed cattle during July totaled 1.48 million, down 8 percent from last year but 2 percent more than July 1977.

Placement of cattle and calves on feed in the seven States during July were 1.22 million, down 22 percent from last year and 18 percent less than July two years ago. Net placements of 1.2 million were off 25 percent from last year and 22 percent from two years ago.

Dixon Belles 4-H

The Dixon Belles 4-H Club met Aug. 13 at the Northeast Station, Concord. Seven members and three mothers were present.

Entry tags for the Dixon County Fair were handed out by the leader, Mrs. Abis.

The club planned to help decorate for the Style Review. Theme is "Fashion Foot Notes." Discussion was on what the girls wanted to do for the achievement meeting on Sept. 10. Lori Garvin and Janet Walton will be the hostesses.

Following the meeting, Julie Stohler gave a demonstration on different types of seam finishes, and Debbie Gathie showed how to make cinnamon and sugar toast.

Lunch was served by Julie Stohler.

Nitrates In Livestock Water Are Not Harmful

Nitrates in concentrations commonly found in livestock drinking water are not harmful to swine, a livestock water quality authority told the George A. Young Conference and the Nebraska SPF swine accrediting agency annual meeting here Wednesday, Aug. 8.

"Nitrates in drinking water are not a problem to swine," Dr. Oscar Olson, professor of chemistry at South Dakota State University (SDSU), Brookings, said approximately 150 pork producers, nutritionists, researchers and veterinarians gathered for the two-day conference at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

In tests with nitrates in swine, ruminant and poultry drinking water in the last 20 years at SDSU, nitrates by themselves have not caused any change in litter size, in the number of pigs weaned, average daily gain or feed efficiency of pigs studied, Olson said.

"Nitrate itself is not very toxic, but cattle and sheep can convert it to nitrite by microbial action in their rumens," Olson said. "Nitrite poisons by getting into the blood stream and converting hemoglobin to a form that will not carry oxygen, and the animals will die of a type of suffocation if the conversion is about 80 percent complete."

Olson also commented on other water quality problems. "Natural ground surface waters contain a wide variety of dissolved minerals," he noted. "The combined concentration of all of the salts in a water is called the total dissolved solids content (TDS). It is the TDS effect that is most commonly responsible for the livestock losses resulting from poor water quality in this area," he said.

Last year, SDSU began a study of the effect of sulfates in drinking water of bred sows and gilts.

Magnesium and sodium sulfates are common laxatives. "The laxative effect is why people have concern for sulfate in livestock water," Olson explained.

Before the study, Olson said, swine industry observers had indicated that sulfates at 500 parts per million in the water seemed to cause adverse effects on weaning pigs and in sow-reproductive efficiency.

"There were no significant effects on the performance of the dams or of the suckling pigs, with the exception that there was a significant increase in water intake during lactation and a trend to decrease intake during gestation. No excessive scouring was noted in the dams or in the pigs," Olson said.

In earlier research, Olson and his colleagues studied the effects of sulfates on feeder pigs.

In the first week of the test, the researcher said, he noted some scouring in the pigs on the most saline waters.

"This subsided however, and it apparently did not affect performance, since regardless of treatment, the animals gained, ate and utilized their feed essentially the same," he said.

"The only apparent effect was the increasing water intake as the salts concentration increased."

"With water becoming an increasingly scarce Great Plan's natural resource, we should make the best and most complete use of what we have without expending energy on sources to solve our problems of quality by purification or by long-distance transport," Olson said.

"It is important that we establish when salts or nitrate will cause livestock losses so that we'll also know when they will not," he continued.

Olson listed these water use guidelines in his paper, "Livestock Water Quality," presented at the conference.

Waters with less than 1,000 parts per million TDS are satisfactory for all classes of livestock and poultry.

From 1,000 to 2,999 ppm, they are satisfactory for all livestock and poultry, except that near the upper limit they may cause watery droppings in poultry, but will not affect their performance.

From 3,000 to 4,999 ppm, the water is generally satisfactory for livestock, although they may sometimes cause some scouring and animals may at first refuse to drink those near the upper limit. They are not good waters for poultry, however, and may cause poor performance and increased death rate.

From 5,000 to 6,999 ppm, livestock except for pregnant or nursing animals, may perform quite well once they are accustomed to them. They are unsatisfactory for poultry.

There is considerable risk in using waters over 7,000 ppm for any type of livestock and they should be avoided, he noted.

In a South Dakota Agricultural Extension Service Fact Sheet, Olson published these recommendations for water containing nitrates:

Under 440 parts per million, (ppm) experimental evidence indicates that this nitrate con-

Northeast Station Field Day Set This Tuesday

The University of Nebraska Northeast Station Field Day is set for Tuesday, Aug. 28, at Concord, according to Cal Ward, district director.

This field day is planned to let all interested people see and hear about research being done by the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources faculty members headquartered at the station. According to Ward, a special program for the women is being planned as a part of the field day program. The program for women will begin at 10 a.m. at the Headquarters Building and will include a bus tour of the farm.

Research on display will include projects related to efficient fertilizer use, irrigation, crop varieties including sunflowers, weed control with emphasis on conservation tillage, energy conservation, corn borer control and Integrated Pest Management, and windbreak management.

The livestock area tour groups will visit the beef cattle nutrition project where emphasis has been on silage preservatives, high moisture corn and feed additives.

The day's activities will include several different tours, each requiring about an hour and a half. These tours will begin at 10 a.m. and will continue throughout the day. Lunch will be available on the grounds.

The faculty committee arranging this year's field day are: Vernon Krause, John Witkowski, Lyle Vawser and Helen Soli.

The Northeast Station was established in 1957 when the Northeast Nebraska Experimental Farm Association and the C.D. Haskell family gave a half-section of land to the University for an experiment station. Ward extends a special invitation to northeast Nebraska people to come view the progress made over the past 22 years.

Cattle on Feed Down From 1978

The Northeast Livestock Feeders Association and Auxiliary will hold their fall outlook meeting on Aug. 27 at the Wagon Wheel in Laurel.

According to Norman Meyer, association president, this is an annual meeting where a panel of four will give their views of the feeding situation for the coming year. This year panel members will include representatives from the Bassett Salebarn, a farm management service, a farmer-feeder, and an economist from the University of Nebraska.

The panelists will discuss subjects including feeder cattle availability, interest rates and money availability, finished cattle markets, hog prices and grain supplies and prices.

The Feeder Auxiliary program will have a speaker from Valentine, Nebraska, states Mrs. Mary Bruns, auxiliary president. Marianne Beel is a rancher's wife who is very active in the association of Nebraska Press Women. Mrs. Beel recently made a tour of the far east including China. She will present a slide show on the trip.

All members, their wives and guests are invited to attend. Social hour will begin at 6:30 with dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Loans on Rye Extension Told

Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) loans on 1978-crop rye may be extended for six months at the option of the producer, Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) said.

Producers who wish to extend their loans should contact the ASCS office where they obtained them.

Fitzgerald said the extension would help alleviate transportation and storage problems that many producers are now facing by allowing them to market grain over a longer period. Similar extensions were offered earlier for wheat, barley, oats, corn, sorghum and soybeans.

There are approximately 1.7 million bushels of rye from the 1978 crop under price support loan to which the six-month extension option applies.

Agency Begins Study to Cut Health Expenses

The state Health Planning and Development Agency recently has undertaken a study to estimate total health care expenditures in Nebraska by type of service (e.g., hospital care and physicians' services) and source of funds such as private insurance.

This study covered selected years from 1966 to 1976 and will be updated on an annual basis. Copies of the complete study can be obtained by contacting the state Health Planning and Development Agency.

Some of the major highlights of the study include: Personal health care expenditures in Nebraska increased from $254 million to $859 million during the period 1966 to 1976. Per capita expenditures increased from $175 to 1966 to $553 in 1976.

Personal health care expenditures in Nebraska increased at a greater rate than the gross state product from 1966 to 1976. During this period, personal health care expenditures increased by over 237 percent while gross state product rose by only 140 percent.

As a percentage of gross state product, personal health care expenditures grew from 5.1 in 1966 to 7.1 in 1976. Direct health expenditures in Nebraska were 7.9 percent of gross state product. These figures indicate that more and more of our state and national resources are being allocated to the health care sector.

Per capita expenditures for personal health care services have increased by an average of 11.6 percent compounded per year since 1966, or a total of 217 percent from 1966 to 1976.

This rate of increase was considerably greater than increases in per capita personal income during this period. From 1966 to 1976, per capita personal income in Nebraska increased only by 108 percent, meaning that a greater share of per capita personal income was going to pay for health services.

Personal health care expenditures in Nebraska increased at a greater rate than the gross state product from 1966 to 1976. During this period, personal health care expenditures increased by over 237 percent while gross state product rose by only 140 percent.

all personal health care expenditures in 1966 and 28.1 in 1976. In 1966, some $97.85 or 56 percent of all personal health care expenditures in Nebraska were financed directly "out-of-pocket" by consumers. By 1976, this amount had risen to $250.44, but represented only 45.3 percent of expenditures. Nationally, out-of-pocket per capita expenditures increased from $99.19 in 1966 to $184.93 in 1976. During this period, the percent financed directly out-of-pocket declined from 53.9 to 31.0. This substantial decline in the United States relative to Nebraska was accounted for by a substantial increase in federal funds (e.g., Medicare and Medicaid).

Hospital care expenditures are the largest components of aggregate personal health care expenditures in Nebraska and represented 38.7 percent of expenditures in 1966 and 42.8 in 1976. During this period, per capita hospital expenditures increased from $67.54 to $237.01, an increase of 251 percent.

All third parties combined (private health insurers, philanthropy and industry, as well as governments) financed 76 per cent of hospital care in 1976. In the United States over 94 percent of hospital expenditures were financed by third parties. These figures indicate that residents of Nebraska are financing a larger share of hospital expenses directly from their own incomes than are most other citizens of the United States.

The most dramatic increase in expenditures was for nursing home care. In 1966, nursing home expenditures represented only 3.3 percent of aggregate personal health care expenditures, but by 1976, they accounted for 13.6 percent. Comparable figures at the national level were 3.9 percent and 8.6 percent. Per capita expenditures in Nebraska rose from $5.78 in 1966 to $75.06 in 1976. The compounded annual rate of increase was 27.7 percent or 1199 percent increase for the ten and a half year period of study. Nationally, the compounded annual rate was 20.5 percent, or a 610 percent increase from 1966 to 1976. Based on these figures, nursing home care is the fastest growing sector in the industry.

In another year, it is believed there will be 15,000 solar homes in the U.S., compared with today's 5,000. Two years ago there were 183.

Plane Blows Tire at Airport

PILOT JOHN Halavacek, Omaha, managed to keep his Piper Seneca II Twin on the runway at Wayne Municipal Airport after it blew a tire upon landing Monday morning. Halavacek said he hit the brakes to slow his roll after touchdown on the 2,800-foot surfaced runway and then felt a vibration with the blowout. Airport Manager Al Robinson and Halavacek are shown working to get the wheel off the craft. Another tire was flown in from Omaha. The plane belongs to Husker Aviation in Omaha.

Shauna Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Roberts, left for Lincoln Saturday to attend the University of Nebraska. Classes begin Aug. 27. Shauna was accompanied to Lincoln by Brad Roberts.

Carol Peterson, Kearney, and Lane Ostendorf, Lexington, were weekend guests in the John Peterson home.

The Lonnie Forks entertained at dinner Sunday evening to honor her brother, Dave Ritze of Winside, who will leave soon to attend the Colorado Institute of Arts in Denver. Other dinner guests included the Harold Ritzes, Bob and Randy, of Winside, and Leslie Oxyer of Concord.

Watching Cars Pass By

SITTING ON the gas pumps, watching all the cars go by! Pat, Penny and Paul Brentlinger, children of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Brentlinger of Allen, sit on the gas pump of their grandfather's station (Paul Rahm) in Allen. With higher gas prices, more cars seem to be driving by instead of stopping. The children are ages five, three and six, respectively.

Scholarships Awarded to 17 at WSC

Wayne State College recently awarded six new scholarships and renewed 11 to students in two different areas of the division of fine arts.

Five students qualified for new and four qualified for renewed Special Activities Music Scholarships; one qualified for new and seven qualified for renewed Ardath Conn Scholarships.

Both scholarships are renewed providing the student maintains a minimum grade point average (GPA) of 3.0 (on a 4-point scale). In music classes, a minimum overall GPA of 2.75; maintains membership in at least two of the three large WSC ensembles (band, choir or orchestra).

The Special Activities Music Scholarships are awarded to music students who show evidence of outstanding work in their area and have made outstanding contributions to the fine arts division.

Renewed special activities music scholarship winners are Esther Darnell of Winslow, Joseph Dolsak of McDonald, Ohio; Teresa Finken of Missouri Valley, Iowa, and Pamela Millander of Coleridge.

Receiving new special activities music scholarships are David Bell of Emerson, Amy Lempe of Battle Creek, Elizabeth Stewart of Harlan, Iowa, Kathleen Riedmann of Omaha and Karen Cox of Howells.

The Ardath Conn Scholarship, named after the daughter of U.S. Conn. former WSC president, provides full tuition to outstanding vocal music students at WSC.

Receiving renewed Ardath Conn Scholarships are Debra Bowen of Wymore, Dawn Bussey of Wayne, Chris Crossgrove of Modale, Iowa, Kevin Johnson of North Bend, Coleen Papenhausen of Coleridge, Martha Prochaska of Wakefield and Rhonda Ross of Centereach, N.Y.

Doyle Anderson of Hartington has been awarded a new Ardath Conn Scholarship.

Girl Scouts Announce New Activities Book

Today's teenage girl can get more out of Girl Scouting than ever before. There are more things to learn, more places to go, more people to meet, more friends to make, more fun to have.

One reason is a new activities book for 12- to 17-year old Girl Scouts called "Let's Make It Happen!", just released by Girl Scouts of the USA. As its title implies, the new book is filled with program projects that fit the varied interests of today's girls.

From 22 subjects — as diverse as energy awareness, fashion and beauty, sports, outdoor survival and auto mechanics — girls can choose activities that challenge them to use their ingenuity, resourcefulness and creativity to "make things happen" not only for themselves but for others in their homes and communities.

With the energy crisis already upon the U.S., the energy projects is particularly timely. Through it, girls learn to understand the impact of energy on their lives, and learn to explore ways — no matter how small — to contribute to the overall conservation of energy. Among the activities in the project is one that urges planning for the possibility of homes suffering a loss of electricity of from three to five days; another suggesting the surveying of buildings for inefficient uses of energy; and a third for the building of a model solar water heater.

"Let's Make It Happen!" can be used by an individual girl, or by girls working together as a group. Non-Girl Scouts who would like to participate are invited to contact Prairie Hills Girl Scout Council to find a troop or group to join.

"Let's Make It Happen!" is the second component of several publications included in Girl Scouting's planned updating of program for teenage girls "From Dreams to Reality," a package of career exploration materials introduced earlier this year, already is making Girl Scouts across the nation aware of the exciting and varied career options open to women, and is enabling them to explore those that fit their aptitudes, interests and dreams.
