Scouts Again Seek Papers

Boy Scout Troop 174 announces that the newspaper collection will be resumed in Wayne beginning this month.

Newspapers will be collected on Saturday, Sept. 22. A reminder will appear in the paper prior to the collection.

The supply of paper on hand has all been disposed of and the boys will be able to ship paper through the fall and winter months.

All papers should be stacked and tied in bundles. No loose paper will be accepted. Twine is available at Carhart Lumber Company and at Gerald's Decorating Center in Wayne.

Football Contest This Week

Area pigskin prognosticators should dig out their crystal balls as the football season is underway in the area and the annual Wayne Herald football contest begins this week.

The first pairings of games are included in today's issue and the right combination of wins could win $25.

There are 20 participating merchants in the contest this year with one football game placed in each of the 20 advertisements on the contest page.

Persons taking part should indicate the winner by writing in the name of the winning team on the proper line of the entry blank. No scores, just pick the winner or ties. In the event an entrant feels the game will end "even up," just write "tie" in the proper space on the entry blank.

Entrants are asked to use the entry blank in The Wayne Herald or a reasonable facsimile.

The tie-breaker will be the score of the "Game of the Week." The correct or closest score will be used to break ties and will be used only in case of ties.

Only one entry per person. Entries should be brought or mailed to The Wayne Herald office no later than 5 p.m. Thursday. In the event the entry is mailed, it should be post-marked no later than 5 p.m. Thursday.

Contestants need not be subscribers to The Wayne Herald to be eligible for the prizes.

The winners will be announced weekly on the sports page of The Wayne Herald. There will be duplicate prizes awarded if winning scores are identical.

Participating merchants are as follows:

Morra Home Improvement, Western Auto, Eldon's Standard Service, Vee's Bakery, Black Knight, Sherry Bros., Wayne Auto Parts, The Headquarters, Stratton House, El Toro Lounge, Rick's Jack and Jill, Carhart Lumber Co., Ellingson Motors Inc., Merchants Oil Co., T & C Electronics, Wayne Book Store, Diamond Center, Scott's Restaurant, Melodee Lanes, The Rusty Nail

Twenty-one Train Cars Derail East of Dixon

A BURLINGTON NORTHERN train derailed two miles east of Dixon on its way to Beiden, Tuesday morning. Twenty-one cars filled with rock derailed en route to track repair near Beiden. Two men in the caboose were shook up but were not injured in the accident. Burlington officials could not be reached for more information. Cause of the derailment was not yet determined.

Thorbeck Named To CETA Group

George Thorbeck, recently retired Wayne businessman, has been appointed by Gov. Charles Thone to the Northeast Nebraska CETA planning body.

Citing Thorbeck's extensive business experience, the governor has designated the former DeKalb executive as chairman pro-tem of the area planning body.

A federally funded program, the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) is administered by the Nebraska Department of Labor. Representatives were selected by Governor Thone from designated geographic areas within the state to monitor programs developed by the Labor Department, to identify training and employment needs, and to assist in the effective delivery of employment and training services to individuals and groups eligible for CETA funding.

Also appointed to the Northeast area planning body were Jack Trimble and Bill Weekly of Columbus; Jim Owens, Schuyler; Ritchie T. Miller, Hartington; Calvin McClurg and Mel Hayes, Norfolk; Dale McClain and Bernard Paden, Fremont; Ed Sloup, North Bend; Mrs. Jean Mullikenberg and Dr. Stanley Reiss of South Sioux City.

State Seeking Equalization Valuations Show Dramatic Rise

A variety of factors combined to boost the valuation of Wayne County more than $29 million to its highest level in history, according to County Assessor Doris Stipp.

Figures released by her office recently show that all real estate, personal, motor vehicle and special property valuations totaled $72,844,790 as compared to just $42,839,290 in 1978.

Completion of new structures during the fiscal 1978-79 year was a major factor in the increase, Mrs. Stipp said, along with inflation continuing at a double-digit pace.

A return to 100 percent appraised value and a state Board of Equalization order increasing values by 12 percent for urban land and eight percent for ag land also entered into the increase.

Real estate showed the largest increase, jumping from $40,281,415 for 1977-78 to some $64,637,615 for the 1978-79 fiscal year, Mrs. Stipp reported.

Under personal property, livestock increased from $1,943,242 to $2,334,805, furniture and fixtures from $475,075 to $607,925. Valuations for farm machinery were removed last year and business inventories were not included this year.

The 1977 state legislature passed LB 518 which phases out personal property taxes over a three-year period. Farm machinery was not assessed in 1978, business inventories were dropped this year and livestock will be exempted in 1980.

Valuations for all communities in the county also were higher, Mrs. Stipp noted, with Wayne leading all increases with nearly $7 million.

Board on the basis of budgets for each subdivision and the assessed valuation for that particular area. Mill levies determine the amount of tax revenue needed to support that subdivision.

Levies should fall

Mrs. Stipp said that if all tax supported budgets stay within the state mandated seven percent lid, then levies for each should decrease. Based on the higher than normal increase in total county valuation, tax levies are bound to drop or at least remain static, she said.

The county assessor said there is more new construction in Wayne County than she has seen in the last 20 years. This includes new grain storage facilities, machine sheds, and new residences in the rural areas, plus urban residences and businesses.

The following table shows comparisons in various categories and in Wayne County communities:

NPPD Payments To Area Cities

Two hundred twenty-four Nebraska cities and towns have received $2,383,635.97 as a result of agreements leasing their electrical distribution systems to the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD), according to Jules W. Burbach, of Hartington, member of the NPPD board of directors.

The money represents one-half of the annual payments made by NPPD under terms of the lease agreements. The payments made were for the first half of 1979, said Burbach. The money may be used by the community any way it determines.

NPPD operates the electrical system and makes all additions and improvements to the property to maintain efficient service. NPPD pays the community 10 percent of the adjusted gross revenues realized within the corporate limits.

The money turned over to the cities and towns by NPPD at this time does not include the annual five percent in-lieu-of-tax payments required by Nebraska statutes.

In addition to the money realized, the agreements between NPPD and the state's cities and towns also provide for a one-third discount on the electricity consumed by governmental agencies within corporate limits.

Area communities receiving the lease agreement payments include Hoskins, $2,466,733; Allen, $4,942,873; Concord, $1,504,980; and Dixon, $1,260,290.

Wayne leased its capacity to NPPD several years ago, but continues to own and operate its electrical distribution system and its plant.

Two young teams facing a rebuilding year match up Saturday as Wayne State College opens its 1979 football season at Chadron State College.

The game appears to be one of contrasts. WSC will field an explosive offensive led by two-time NAIA All-American Bob Barry. The Wildcat offense is composed of eight returning starters including quarterback Rick Lade, Tekamah, and wide receiver Jeff Ingram, Sioux City.

WSC, however, will meet Chadron State's veteran defense that returns nine starters. Leading the Eagle's defensive unit are four senior linemen — Dennis Breinig, J.D. Carr, Gary Gill, and Gregg Hughes.

In contrast, Wayne State returns only four defensive starters while Chadron State has only four players with first-string experience on offense. Perhaps the biggest hole Chadron State has to fill is quarterback Brad Fufts, the Eagle's record setting signal-caller in 1978 graduated, leading to a four player battle for the starting spot. Sophomore Mark Perrella will start but Brian Van Diest should also see some playing time.

Youth and inexperience should be key factors in the game. Two thirds of the Wildcats' roster are freshmen and sophomores, while Chadron's Eagles have nearly 40 percent underclassmen.

Last year the Wildcats were downed 34-7 by Chadron State in the season opener. The Eagles turned a close 14-7 halftime score into a second half rout behind the running of J.D. Hill and the passing of quarterback Fufts. Chadron State finished 1978 with a 7-2-2 record including a win in the Boat Hill Bowl at Dodge City, Kan.

WSC Cross Country Team Ready To Run

The Wayne State College cross country squad will open its 1979 season Saturday at the Chadron State College Invitational. The barriers will compete in a demanding schedule that includes six invitational meets and three duals.

The Wildcats are hoping to improve on last year's dismal record. In 1978, WSC's highest team finish in any meet was fourth.

Horseshoe Pitching

A round robin horseshoe pitching contest is scheduled for Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the Winside city park. For more information, contact Walter Hamm, manager at 286-4913.

Froeschle Aces Number 17

Rudy Froeschle, golf pro at Wayne Country Club, recorded his first hole-in-one Sunday when he aced the par-three 17th hole. Froeschle scored the ace on the 182 yard hole when his five iron shot rolled into the cup. Playing with Froeschle were Grant Ellingson, Bob Reeg and Arnie Reeg.

Chartered Bus To Wayne Game

The Wayne Carroll Athletic Booster Club will sponsor a chartered bus to the first Wayne football game on the road, Friday, Sept. 14 at Blair. If interested, call Jim Thomas at 375-2599. The bus is scheduled to leave at 4:45 p.m., Friday.

McKee Roller Skate Champ

Mrs. Joan McKee of Grand Island and formerly of Winside placed 16th in roller skating at the national roller skating championships in Fort Worth, Texas, two weeks ago.

Named All-Tourney

Bill Schwartz and Mike Meyer of Wayne were selected to the All-Tournament team in the State Amateur Baseball Tournament at Freeman, S.D., last week. Both players were Wayne State lettermen last spring.

The two Wayne natives played for runnerup Hartington in the 26 team field, Canova, S.D. won the championship. Hartington was the only Nebraska team in the tourney. Meyer played third base and Schwartz played out field in the tournament and both players hit key home runs.

Ron Nelson, a former Wayne State player was also selected to represent Hartington on the All-Tourney team. Hartington was one of three champions in the Nebraska tournament in Columbus two weeks ago.

Guessers Open Season

The Second Guessers, athletic booster group for Wayne State College and Wayne High, held their first meeting of 1979-80 over the noon hour Thursday at the Black Knight in Wayne. The booster club will continue to hold regular meetings open to the public each Thursday throughout the year. The Second Guessers have been instrumental in building the foundation of Wayne State athletics through several different events including golf tournaments and the publishing of a booklet designed to promote the various aspects of WSC.

Cindy Schaeer-Lande Morse Exchange Vows at Laurel

Cindy Schaeer and Lande Morse were united in marriage Aug. 24 in a 6:30 nuptial mass at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Laurel. The Rev. Jerome Spengler performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Pat Schaeer of Laurel, Marvin Schaeer of Doniphan and Mr. and Mrs. Alan Morse of Vermillion, S.D.

Susan Stark of Laurel was organist. Mark McCorkindale and Mona Johnson of Laurel sang "Evergreen" and "Follow Me." Mark also sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Ushers were Pat Hirschman of Laurel, and John Buehler, Jerry Chancellor and Alan Solberg, all of Vermillion.

Flower girl and ring bearer were Tanya Watson of Vermillion and Dustin Roberts of Allen. The bride's personal attendant was her sister, Peggy Mechnmuller of Sioux City.

During the nuptial mass, Todd Anderson was lecturer. Also taking part were Ron Hirschman and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hirschman. The bride and bridegroom presented their mothers with a yellow rose.

The bride wore a white Quilana floor-length gown, styled with cape sleeves of lace motifs. The Queen Anne neckline and basque bodice were adorned with re-embroidered Venice lace appliques. The sunburst skirt draped softly into an attached chapel train. A tiered bridal illusion ballerina-length veil of hand-rippled lace and seed pearls completed her ensemble, and she carried a colonial bouquet of multi-colored mini carnations, mums, daisies and baby's breath, accented with yellow roses and bridal ribbons.

Nancy Schaeer of Laurel served her sister as maid of honor. Julie Anderson and Judy Johnson of Lincoln and Linda Boyce of Wayne were bridesmaids.

They were attired in identical gowns of mint green Quilana fabric, fashioned with self ties at the neckline, sleeves and waist.

Wayne-Carroll Enrollment Decline Beginning to Slow

Enrollment in the Wayne-Carroll District is down six students from the same period a year ago, reports Supt. Francis Haun, and indicates a slowdown in the pupil decline.

Totals taken Friday, Aug. 31, the second day of classes, showed the district-wide enrollment at 886. This compares to 892 last year.

The continued decline in pupil numbers is part of a trend that began in the early 1970's. Figures show Enrollment for 1975-76 was 973; for 1976-77 was 932; for 1977-78 was 929.

Figures compiled by the Wayne-Carroll administration last week show that overall elementary (1-4) enrollment is up six students from 282 in 1976 to 288 this year.

Middle school enrollment is down only one student from 222 last year to 221 this year, while the high school showed the largest decline in student population from 380 to 368.

WSC Instructors Will Participate in Forum

"Abortion and American Values" is just one of many topics which participants in the Nebraska Forum on Human Values are ready to discuss with interested groups across the state.

Allen O'Donnell and Donald Schultz, both of Wayne State College, are among some 50 persons who have accepted the invitation to be participants in the forum this year, according to Dr. Kenneth Holder, director of the forum.

The Nebraska Forum is sponsored by Nebraska Wesleyan University, which received a $29,900 grant from the Nebraska Committee on the Humanities to provide programs dealing with human values and current issues, free of charge, to groups across the state.

Dr. O'Donnell, associate professor of social science at Wayne State, suggests "Mass Media and Morality," "The Impact of Technology on Human Values," "Land Ownership," and "Morality and American Foreign Policy," as well as the abortion question as areas he would like to discuss with groups.

Dr. O'Donnell has been a regional humanist for the Nebraska Committee for three years. He was president of the Nebraska Association for Mental Health from 1974-78 and is the author of a book, "Towards the Primitive Terror," which is being published this fall.

Dr. Schultz, associate professor of English and head of the division of humanities at Wayne State, is available to discuss "Liberal Education and the World at Work," and "Images of the Land."

Prior to coming to Wayne State, Dr. Schultz taught at California Concordia College, Vanderbilt University, and Saint Olaf College.

"We hope to encourage our audiences to consider questions that relate to human values and how proposed solutions to problems will affect human beings and the quality of life," said Dr. Holder.

Programs offered by the Nebraska Forum are not limited to those listed and groups are encouraged to suggest their own topics, according to Holder. The number of persons participating in the program is expected to grow as the program gets underway this fall.

Civic, church, professional and other groups are invited to contact Dr. Kenneth Holder at Nebraska Wesleyan University, 50th and St. Paul, Lincoln, Neb., 68501 for more information or to arrange for a program.

Job Workbook To Help Women

The Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women has revised and reprinted its job hunt workbook "What's In It for You? How to Find a Job," according to Connie Clark, chairperson.

"It is hoped that the revised edition of this popular publication will be of more benefit to a greater number of women," she said. The workbook was revised to reflect the concerns of minority and low-income women.

The book gives advice on getting started in the process of looking for a job, how to find out what kind of job you would do best, how to plan a career, hunt for a job, write a resume, prepare a letter of application and interview for a job.

To receive a copy of this publication, please contact: Programs, Division, Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women, 301 Centennial Mall South, Box 94985, Lincoln, Neb., 68509.

For additional information, contact Dr. Twila Liggett at above listed address or phone.

Nebraska to Get Funds

Twenty-two states have been allocated nearly $20 million in federal funds to help communities develop plans to handle rapid growth caused by expanded development of fuel and energy.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Alex P. Mercure said the money will go primarily to "small rural towns where accelerated coal or uranium production, processing and transportation are causing growth that outstrips the area's ability to manage and control it."

Mercure said the grants will be used to develop growth management plans and to expand community facilities and housing.

Funds were allocated to states based on the increase in employment directly related to coal and uranium development activities and on the financial resources available for energy-impacted assistance in designated areas. State governors will establish grant priorities within their states.

States received allocations and the amounts included: Nebraska — $22,000.

Farm Unusual Weather Condition May Cause Late Corn Crop

Unusual weather conditions may cause corn to be later maturing this year. This may cause problems with corn harvest, states Vernon Krause, district beef specialist at Northeast Station near Concord.

Several options are available for farmers who raise grain and also feed livestock. Corn may be harvested as corn silage, high moisture ear corn or high moisture shelled corn and the need for drying may be cut plus corn could be harvested sooner and at a faster rate.

Corn silage is probably the least desirable method of harvest if the number of acres to be cut is large. Storage capacity may be limited to a given number of tons, so increased tonnage from corn stalks and leaves may limit the amount of corn that can be cut. One advantage to corn silage is that it can be cut when corn has the most moisture and will still result in a very palatable feed. The entire corn plant can be effectively ensiled when moisture levels are as high as 70 to 72 percent.

High moisture ear corn has the advantage of taking less storage space per acre in the silo than corn silage. High moisture ear corn has a disadvantage since the corn should be drier than corn silage.

Ideally, high moisture ear corn makes the best feed when ensiled about 28 percent moisture. However, ear corn has been ensiled with moisture levels of 35 percent without big problems in feeding value. Cattle fed higher moisture corn will generally eat less corn per day than cattle fed lower moisture corn. This problem may be overcome by blending some dry corn with the high moisture corn, states Krause.

High moisture shelled corn will take the least amount of silo space per acre. Moisture content of shelled corn needs to be around 25 percent if ground into a bunker however, many feeders prefer corn to be near 20 to 23 percent if corn is stored in oxygen limiting bins.

Shelled corn may be harvested above 30 percent moisture, but corn will be harder to shell causing some cob fragments to be mixed with the corn. If ground into a bunker, this may not cause any problems.

Shelled corn ensiled above 30 percent moisture can cause consumption problems like high moisture ear corn. Again, the problem may be solved by mixing some drier corn into the ration.

In areas where hail damage has occurred, value of the corn for feeding appears to depend on the grain content of the silage. Research at the University of Nebraska's North Platte Station has shown hail damaged corn to have less value per ton than normal corn. Decreased value was related to the decrease in percentage of corn per ton of silage. A hail damaged crop probably is best salvaged by making silage. Depending on the extent of hail damage, if cattle are to gain as much on damaged corn as they would on normal silage, two to three pounds of corn grain may need to be added.

Judging moisture content is always a problem, states Krause, but one rule of thumb that can be used is corn silage will be about 45 percent moisture when the kernel is in the hard dent stage and has formed its "black layer". This normally occurs about 55 to 60 days after corn is 75 percent silked. Corn harvested at the early dent stage will be about 40 to 50 days after 75 percent of the corn has silked. The silage will run about 70 percent moisture.

Immature corn harvested above 70 to 72 percent moisture can cause problems in the silo. Wet silage can have an undesirable fermentation which will cut feed intake in cattle plus, the silage could lose many soluble nutrients through seepage from the silo. Replanted corn could fall into this category since it may not have had time to mature. In this instance, harvesting should be delayed as long as possible to allow the moisture content to drop.

High moisture ear corn may

Calf Show Winners

The Laurel 4-H calf show and the Chamber of Commerce barbecue are now history.

Approximately 488 people attended the barbecue, a capacity crowd in the Laurel Sale Barn saw Gene Sohler receive an award from the Cedar County Livestock Feeders for his contributions to the 4-H calf show, and four young ladies were selected as exhibitors of the champion market animals.

The champions were selected by Ray Switzer, a packer buyer from the Sioux City stockyards. The grand champion steer was exhibited by Susan Erwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Erwin of Concord. It weighed 1,235 pounds and sold for $90 to the First National Bank of Wayne. The reserve grand champion market steer was exhibited by Sara Adkins daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Adkins, of Laurel. It weighed 1,160 pounds and sold for $76 to Dr. Walter Chace of Laurel. There were a total of 55 market steers entered from Dixon and Cedar Counties.

In the market heifer division, the grand champion heifer was exhibited by Rochelle Dahlfy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Dahlfy of Laurel. It weighed 1,040 pounds and sold for $78 to Tri County Coop of Laurel. There were 11 heifers entered in the competition.

The winner of the showman-ship awards presented by the Cedar County Feeders were Mark Creamer of Concord and Susan Erwin of Concord.

Disease Problems Should be 'Sold' Now

Now is an opportune time to "sell" swine disease problems according to Bill Ahlswede, IANR extension swine specialist. Ahlswede indicated that some swine diseases are not easily controlled by pharmaceutical means or management.

Depopulation is the only method of getting rid of the problem. Depopulation, selling the whole herd, and replacing with new clean stock is an expensive process any time. But Ahlswede stated that the current market situation and projections of low market prices for the next 12 months, makes this an ideal time to depopulate.

"A producer can be out of business while opportunity for profit is small and be back in business when the outlook is improved," he noted. "The cost of depopulating is always high because it means the facilities are not utilized for a period of time. Other costs such as labor and interest must continue to be paid even though production stops. However, if producers choose to depopulate now, they will not be losing the potential for profit that they've realized the last two or three years and so their losses would be minimized," Ahlswede pointed out.

Some of the diseases for which depopulation is a preferred method of control are pseudorabies, swine dysentery, atrophic rhinitis, mycoplasma pneumoniae and other less specific complexes.

Ahlswede said that during times of high profit, producers find it fairly easy to live with one or more of these diseases. No specific methods are available which ensure that these diseases can be removed from an operation without depopulation. Hence, Ahlswede says producers should sell these diseases. Ahlswede cautioned that when depopulating and repopulating, care must be taken not to buy back the diseases one tried to sell. Most swine diseases are bought and paid for because they come with swine additions to the breeding herds.

When seeking sources of clean stock, Ahlswede recommended that producers buy only from sources that have qualified pseudorabies free herds, and are free of the other problems that a producer seeks to avoid. He indicated that Nebraska SPF sources represent one of the lowest disease risks sources of breeding stock available in the country.

Care also needs to be taken during that period when the farm is depopulated to make certain that proper clean up is accomplished. Cleaning up, disinfecting and leaving idle for approximately 60 days is recommended," he stated.

Farms which are in a process of depopulation and repopulation also have an opportunity to use the period without pigs to make needed repairs and improvements to facilities which may be in the process of deterioration. Changes in facilities which help prevent future disease outbreaks should be considered as well as isolation facilities for income breeding stock. Improvements in perimeter fencing may help prevent stray stock from moving onto the farm.

This also is a time when new management strategies and operating procedures can be investigated and changes made prior to starting again with new stock, he concluded.

Water Pollution Session Sept. 13

A special program on preventing water pollution is being sponsored by the Dixon County Extension Service and will be held at the Northeast Station near Concord from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Sept. 13 with a break for lunch.

Producers from Dixon and neighboring counties are invited to attend reports Stan Starling, Dixon County Extension agent.

Water pollution is a problem and not just to people down stream. Loss of soil and fertilizer is costly to producers. Failure to hold water on the farm reduces the amount of soil moisture available for crop production. Section 208 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, the fishable swimmable waters act, has some long term implications for land use and cropping practices.

The featured program will include staff members from the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, University of Nebraska - Lincoln, Don Arthel, agricultural engineer, will discuss the latest information on Nebraska's plan for meeting Section 208 requirements. Dr. Phil Harlan, extension land use specialist, will summarize the pollution problem including loss of fertilizer in runoff and use of the universal soil loss equation. Dr. Elbert Dickey, extension conservation engineer, will give a slide presentation showing variation in management practices, cropping patterns, crop residue management, and feedlot runoff.

Dr. George Rehr, Northeast Station Extension agronomist, will discuss how to prevent fertilizer leaching, including nitrogen entering the groundwater supply. The 15 minute slide tape program "Moisture Where It Counts" will also be shown.

In addition, Bill Yost, Soil Conservation Service, Tom Meser, Lewis and Clark NRD, and Mike Litten, ASCS, will comment on the relationship of water pollution control to their respective agencies.

Starling asks that anyone planning to attend notify the Extension office so lunch arrangements (which treat can be made. Write the Dixon County Extension Office, Concord, Neb. 68728 or call 584-276.

Factors Could Cut Imports

"Even though we're in a year when U.S. wheat exports may reach an all time record, we don't discount competition around the world," says Erv Friehe, Nebraska Wheat Committee chairman of McCook.

"We know that the Canadians are aiming considerable efforts at upgrading their rail transportation and export facilities," adds Friehe, "and in Australia farmers are getting land free and it only costs them about $28 per acre to clear it. The land would probably then go to wheat production."

"What these factors suggest is that wheat farmers in Nebraska and all over the U.S. must continue to promote their wheat overseas," says Friehe. "We've been doing just that for more than 20 years; and through the work of Western Wheat Associates and Great Plains Wheat total wheat exports have gone from 200 million bushels to about 1.2 billion bushels annually."

"Through WWA and GPW we will continue to take a broad based promotional approach around the world. Going into the 1980's we will service existing wheat markets but we will also zero in on new opportunities to expand U.S. wheat exports," concludes Friehe.

Nebraska wheat check-off dollars go to support the work of GPW and WWA.

Some Optimistic About Soybeans

What's the future for soybean prices, with a record number of acres approaching harvest?

Two recent developments caused a yo-yo effect, according to an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension economist, Dr. Lynn Lutgen said the market dropped sharply in response to the Aug. 10 USDA crop production report which projected "record levels above what anybody was guessing."

Then, a mid-August frost scare in the northern United States caused the market to rebound to price levels higher than before release of the crop report.

Fresh from attending a recent Midwest Outlook Conference in Chicago, Lutgen believes recent market activity indicates "some optimism about soybeans." Noting that grain marketing specialists at the conference ranged from bearish to moderately optimistic, Lutgen said his opinion falls somewhere in between.

Prices should show some sensitivity during the 1979-80 marketing year to the final size of the U.S. soybean crop and the magnitude of domestic demand for soybean meal, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln economist said.

Demand may soften, he said, because of a projected rise of about 10 percent, or 8.5 million metric tons, in world protein meal production. World fat and oil production likewise is projected to post a gain of 1.7 million metric tons, more than double the usual annual increase. U.S. oilseed production is expected to account for about 40 percent of the projected rise in 1979-80 production because of favorable yield prospects for soybean and sharply increased soybean and sunflower acreage.

Domestic uses account for about two-fifths of soybeans produced in the United States, and 56 percent are exported, he said. Domestic demand influences carryover stocks, and therefore affects prices, Lutgen said.

Lutgen doubts that any increases in U.S. protein feeding rates during the coming year will be comparable to those experienced in 1977-78 and 1978-79. While such increases help determine the volume of domestic consumption, a potential boost of four to six percent in feeding rates would not have much effect, because of the anticipated 200 million bushel increase in supplies attributable to a much larger soybean acreage.

And, the pile of beans grows ever larger. Carryover stocks of soybeans are projected at 155 to 170 million bushels for the coming year, Lutgen said, and could be 154 to 169 million bushels a year from now.

Given these factors, the economist said many market analysts at the outlook conference are projecting an average price of $5.90 a bushel this fall for soybeans, a substantial drop from the $6.75 average a year ago.

Lutgen believes Nebraska soybean producers should be able to get better prices for their beans by watching market and world conditions closely. The strongest export demand for U.S. beans extends from November probably through February or early March when Brazilian and Argentinian beans enter the market, Lutgen explained. Because these two South American countries have nothing to sell now, "we're basically the supplier of beans throughout the world at this point," he continued.

The timing of a killing frost this fall is a major soybean producing areas could weigh heavily on crop yields, Lutgen said. An early frost could cause a substantial decrease in projected average per acre yields, he said, because of late maturing crops in northern Iowa and Minnesota. A good fall probably would mean good crops.

Pricing opportunities should allow producers to realize between $6.40 and $6.70 a bushel for their soybeans, Lutgen stated. "This will not be true during the harvest period," he warned, but growers who watch the market and the weather should be able to sell at a higher price.

Producers need to keep "a weather eye" out for Brazil, a prime supplier on the world market, Lutgen said.

"Last year, every time it rained in Brazil, the price went down. When dry weather was reported, the price went up."

Recalling that soybean prices rose and fell dramatically between December 1978 and February, 1979, Lutgen said the same fluctuation is likely to occur again this year.

Producers should watch for "pretty good pricing prospects," and better market opportunities may show up before the March-May, 1979 period when Brazilian soybean influence become evident, Lutgen concluded.

Group Seeks To Recommend NRD Delay

"An attitude of mutual trust has to be created between our organization and the Lower Elkhorn NRD," said Michael A. Sindelar, vice president of the Maple Creek Concerned Citizens Association.

"Trust is the key to exploring alternatives for the Maple Creek Watershed that are voluntary, and to promote soil and water conservation and prevent flood damage," according to Sindelar.

"Stopping work on the LENRD's selected plan to build 28 dams in the watershed is the essential first step to building mutual trust and exploring alternatives," said Sindelar, "and that's exactly what we told the NRD's Watershed and Flood Control Committee when our board met with them last Friday (Aug. 24)."

The Watershed and Flood Control Committee moved to "recommend to the board that the district delay submission for public review of the initial draft of the Work Plan and Environmental Impact Statement being done on alternative No. 6 the select plan until additional alternatives have been evaluated and that the Watershed and Flood Control sub-committee continue to work with the MCCA and proceed with the investigation of other alternatives."

Sindelar commented "This is a start, but there's a long way to go before an atmosphere of trust prevails. The LENRD board needs to formally take action to stop the selected plan to build 28 structures, then we'll be able to begin the important work on alternatives acceptable to the local people and most important of all this time landowners will be involved in the planning process from the beginning."
