ONE HUNDRED FOURTH YEAR NUMBER TWELVE

Valuations Up, Levies Fall, But Taxes Won't Decrease

Despite a dramatic increase in the county's valuation from a year ago, and a substantial drop in the county's mill levy, taxes in 1979 in most political subdivisions will not decrease.

Figures compiled in the office of Wayne County Assessor Dorla Stipp earlier this summer indicated the county's assessed valuation jumped from $47,849,290 a year ago to $72,844,790 this year.

IN ADDITION, the county's mill levy fell from 11.65 mills for 1978 to 9.12 this year.

Mill levies in all but three taxing districts in the county decreased from a year ago, she noted, with two of these increasing and another staying the same as a year ago. Also, assessed valuations in all districts increased.

The two factors combined with a seven percent lid on budget receipts and still did not help to reduce taxes.

The primary reason, Mrs. Stipp noted, was a state-ordered return to 100 percent assessed valuation (from a decrease of 30 percent last year), plus a Board of Equalization order adding 12 percent to valuations within the city of Wayne, and 12 and 8 percent in rural areas of the county.

The 30 percent reduction ordered for 1978 was for one year only, Mrs. Stipp noted.

Example of taxes

A home in the city of Wayne in 1978 was appraised as follows:

A home's actual value was multiplied by 35 percent which is the formula used statewide to determine the assessed value of a house. The resulting figure, $14,000, then was multiplied by a state-ordered reduction of 30 percent. The resulting figure, $9,800, was then multiplied by last year's total mill levy of 9.27 for a resulting tax of $904.26.

A $40,000 home in 1979 will be assessed and taxed as follows:

Returning to full appraised value, the $40,000 is multiplied by 35 percent to determine the home's $14,000 assessed valuation. This is multiplied by 12 percent which is then added to the $14,000 for a total of $15,800. The 12 percent is a state Board of Equalization order in an attempt to equalize properties across the state. The $15,800 is then multiplied by this year's total mill levy of 67.82 for a total tax of $1,063.42.

Farm taxes up

Based on an average 160-acre farm in Wayne County, rural taxes in most cases also will increase.

In 1978, the assessed value of a 160-acre farm was $13,670. This reflects the 30 percent decrease ordered by the Board of Equalization.

In 1979, the assessed value is $21,220 and reflects a state-ordered 12 percent increase for farm buildings and an 8 percent increase in land values.

IN TAXING district 217 (Wayne in No. 2 fire district), the taxes for 1978 on the average 160-acre farm were $992.58, and for 1979 will be $1,120.20.

In taxing district 251 (four miles west of Wayne) the 1978 tax was $746.24 and in 1979 will be $785.14.

In district 257 (south of Wayne) the taxes last year were $719.44 and for 1979 will be $844.98.

In district 168 (north of Wayne) taxes last year were $649.46 and for this year will be $792.58.

Where does $1 go?

Mrs. Stipp has compiled graphs for each of Wayne County's taxing districts including the city of Wayne and Wayne-Carroll School District. The graphs show where each tax dollar goes.

FOR THE CITY of Wayne, 59 cents on each $1 goes to support the school district. Some 22 cents goes for running the city, 14 cents for the county, 2 cents for Northeast Technical College, 1/2 cent for Natural Resources District, 1 cent for Educational Service Unit No. 1 and one-half cent for Wayne County Agricultural Society (Fair Board).

For the Wayne-Carroll School District, 76 cents goes for the school district, 17 cents for the county, 3 cents for Northeast Tech, 2 cents for Natural Resources District, 1 cent for Education Service Unit, and a half-cent each for Fire District No. 2 and for the County Fair Board.

Graphs showing a breakdown in each county taxing district are located elsewhere in this issue.

Statements

1979 personal property tax statements will be mailed this month and 1979 real estate statements will go out in December, Mrs. Stipp said.

Wayne-Carroll Coronation

ASCS Helps Add Storage

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) helped Wayne County farmers add more than 200,000 bushels of storage space on their farms during the fiscal year ending Sept. 30.

New farm-facility loans to producers during this period totaled $221,000.

Alden Johnson, chairperson of the ASCS committee, said funds are still available for farmers who wish to build additional facilities on their present storage structures. Loans also are available for building high-moisture storage and silage storage space and solar grain drying systems.

"Adequate on-farm storage and drying facilities provide farmers with greater crop handling and marketing flexibility at harvest time," Johnson said. Farmers can reduce field losses by harvesting when the crop is ready, and can store crops in good condition until prices rise. He pointed out that farmers probably will want more storage in years to come because the ability to hold on to grain may prove the difference between profit and loss.

ASCS will loan farmers up to $50,000 on structures adequate to store two years' crops, with 15 percent down and 10.5 percent interest. Loan payment terms allow for a maximum of seven equal annual installments over a period of eight years.

To qualify for a farm facility loan, a farmer must grow one or more crops of barley, corn, grain sorghum oats, rye, soybeans, wheat and high moisture storage. The ASCS official said borrowers must provide a commodity credit to protect the Commodity Credit Corporation's interest.

Social Security Visits Changed

The day of the month a social security representative is in Wayne will be changed starting in October. Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk, announced recently.

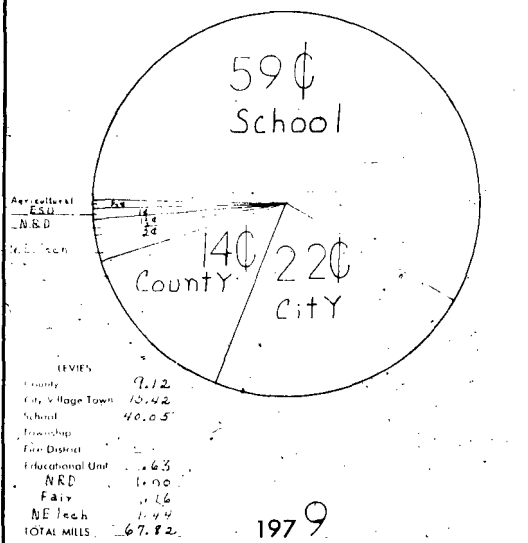

For many years, a social security representative has been at the Wayne Senior Citizens Center from 9 a.m. to 12 noon on the fourth Tuesday of every month.

Starting in October, the representative from the Norfolk office will be in Wayne on the fourth Monday of each month instead of the fourth Tuesday. The hours and location will be unchanged.

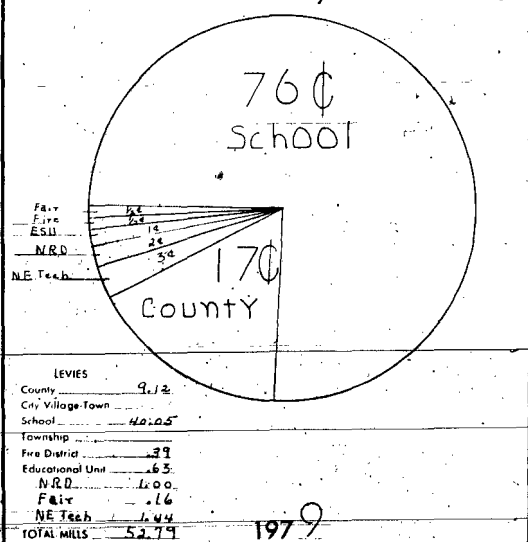

The representative can help individuals with retirement, survivors and disability claims for benefits, Medicare problems and Supplemental Security Income.

The dates a representative will be in Wayne will be Oct. 22 and Nov. 26 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at the Wayne Senior Citizens Center, basement of the City Hall. No representative will be there in December due to the Christmas holidays.

Job Service Office 'Closes'

Like it or not, Wayne is without the services of a full-time Nebraska Job Service Office.

Ken Boyer, Norfolk, area director for the Job Service, announced to the news media earlier this week that effective Friday, the Job Service office here will be without a full-time manager.

THE "CLOSING" of the office culminates a 20-month battle with state and regional Job Service personnel to establish and then to maintain an office here. Members of the Chamber of Commerce, its board of directors and its staff have protested the action, but to no avail.

Boyer said the Wayne office was closed as a result of a statewide reduction in Job Service offices. The federal government reduced funding to the state and the state in turn was forced to eliminate nine Job Service positions across Nebraska.

Chamber Executive Vice-President Gary Van Meter said three positions were ordered reduced in Region I (the eastern portion of the state) and Wayne was chosen as one of those.

The Chamber board took the decision to task, protesting the action. A letter is being sent this week to the Governor's office in Lincoln explaining the Wayne Chamber's reasons for wanting the office kept open.

VAN METER said the Wayne Job Service office handled fewer job placements recently and this was considered by the Norfolk office in eliminating the position here. In addition, Norfolk claimed there was a lack of support in the area for the office, Van Meter said.

The board of directors argued that placements are down across the entire state and that Wayne should not be penalized for having a low unemployment rate.

THE BOARD also argued that the Lincoln, Omaha or Norfolk offices could absorb a loss of one position and still remain open, whereas the loss of a position here facilitates closing of the office.

Boyer said because Wayne is about midway between the Sioux City office and the Norfolk office, the loss of the Job Service position here is affected.

Van Meter said his office will be able to handle some of the job placements, but that supplying a new manufacturer with several employees will be impossible. The Norfolk Job Service will have to handle that responsibility, he indicated.

The Chamber secretary will act as an informal agent for job placements the next few weeks. There is a possibility that a Rural Employment Service (RES) will be established here soon.

BOYER SAID his office is trying to secure funds for such an office whereby someone in Wayne would be paid on a part-time basis. Job applicants would then be relayed to the Norfolk office.

Van Meter said Wayne is first in line on the program want list and that the program is the only alternative available to maintaining a facsimile of an office here.

In the meantime, an itinerant office will be operated here as before. The Chamber secretary, as noted, will handle the extra duties and the Chamber will be paid a nominal monthly sum for the added burden.

Gary Wrede, manager of the office here since about March, resigned in September to take a position with a local manufacturer. Boyer said elimination of the nine positions across the state was completed through attrition if possible.

Wrede was a second manager here in the last 20 months.

John Kampert was the first manager here when the office opened in 1977.

The office was in danger of closing about a year ago until area residents responded with letters of support. Funding was made available through September of this year from the Nebraska Job Service.

County Votes Delay in Zoning Plan

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners voted at their regular meeting Sept. 18 to place a comprehensive planning and zoning plan for the county on the back burner for a year.

The board's decision was based on "not enough public interest to implement the plan at this time." As a result, the proposal could lay dormant until September of 1980.

DELAYING action on the plan halts countywide zoning after nearly four years of planning.

A grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) was approved in March of 1975 and the Wayne County Joint Planning Commission held its first meeting in May of that year.

The HUD grant was for $10,000 and required a $5,000 matching grant by the county. In all, some $15,000 has been put toward development of the plan.

Mern Mordhorst, chairman of the Joint Planning Commission, said recently he requested the board to shelve the plan for only six months, but the board decided otherwise. The communities of Winslow, Carroll and Hoskins have held up action on their sections of the plan until the board makes its decision, he said.

THE PLANNING Commission spent an estimated 1 1/2 years preparing the comprehensive plan for the participating governmental units, Mordhorst said. A public hearing was held in February of 1977 to receive public comment.

After consideration of comments made at the hearing and other review processes, the final draft of the plan was prepared and adopted by the Planning Commission in July 1977. The plan then was submitted to the county and the communities of Winslow, Carroll and Hoskins for their consideration and subsequent adoption.

AFTER THE plan was completed, the Joint Planning Commission spent another year developing zoning and subdivision regulations for the rural unincorporated areas of Wayne County. A hearing on these was held in February of 1978 and the final draft was passed by the commission members and sent to the county board in August of 1978.

The board has discussed the plan among themselves and with residents of the county. Minutes of the Sept. 18, 1979, meeting indicate the board will consider the plan in the fall of 1980 "or at such time during the year that the board deems it necessary to implement or review the plan."

Controversy Again Brews at Capitol

Capitol News
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

The appointment of the late Sen. William Hassebrook's widow as director of a proposed state volunteer office triggered some critical remarks.

The criticism came from the original supporters of a grant from the federal government that would be used in setting up the agency.

Gov. Charles Thone said he had selected Mrs. Margaret Hassebrook of West Point to head up the Nebraska Office of Voluntary Citizen Participation and that she would be paid $19,800 a year.

The appointment hinges on approval of a grant of more than $93,000 by the federal agency known as Actcon.

For about five years, members of the Nebraska Organization of Volunteer Leaders (NOVL) have urged the state to offer federal money for setting up the umbrella organization that would coordinate and encourage volunteer activities within Nebraska.

Some members of the NOVL have said Mrs. Hassebrook's husband helped out in Thone's past campaigns, and her son, Robert Hassebrook, was formerly chairman of the Douglas County GOP.

One NOVL member, who chose not to be identified, also said the governor should have opened the process of selecting the director.

Some NOVL members criticized Mrs. Hassebrook's "stereotype that we in the volunteer area have been trying to break for years." That stereotype, she added, is "the little old lady who goes to the hospital and has been good."

Mrs. Hassebrook countered with the statement she had been in volunteer programs for a long time and has been the president of several national voluntary organizations. Her past experience includes having been head of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, the National Association of Parliamentarians, and the National League of American Penwomen.

The last group is made up of writers, artists and musicians.

In addition, Mrs. Hassebrook has been actively involved in Nebraska Mother of the Year competition and was director of the state bicentennial celebration office.

Messenger service ruling

U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney of Omaha has ruled a Nebraska law that prohibits betting messenger services is constitutional.

But several hours after issuing his decision, Denney granted a motion by Omaha attorney Richard Bruckner for a 10-day delay in executing the ruling. That will allow time to place the controversial issue before the 8th U.S. Circuit of Appeals.

Bruckner represents a coalition of messenger services that filed the lawsuit challenging the law.

The coalition has claimed the law, approved in 1977, violates the due process and equal protection clauses of the federal constitution and was unconstitutional because it destroyed members' businesses.

The coalition members took their case to the federal courts after the Nebraska Supreme Court, in a 4-3 decision, declared the statute constitutional.

In his ruling, Denney said a state statute is presumed valid and it is up to the party attacking it to prove it has no reasonable basis.

Denney said no one would question that the state is empowered to regulate gambling in the interest of the public health, safety and general welfare.

"Although the messenger services may not be gambling per se, such businesses are closely entwined with gambling," the judge said.

Because of that close association, Denney said, "The Nebraska Unicameral could reasonably conclude that the public could only be protected from some of the evils of gambling by abolishing messenger services."

The messenger services charge a 10 percent commission for bets taken to horse tracks.

During a hearing several days before Denney handed down his ruling, Jerry Subject of Omaha, head of Pegasus of Omaha, Inc., said his company had processed at least $1 million in bets so far this year.

Pushing for slurry hearing

John DeCamp of Neligh wants to have an interim committee hearing on the coal slurry pipeline, and he suggested he may take over the issue if the Public Works Committee holds to its plan not to conduct a hearing.

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora, committee chairman, advised DeCamp recently the committee was planning to forego hearings and to settle for a summarization of testimony presented at several previous hearings.

But Kremer told DeCamp there has been mention of "holding a hearing which addressed only specific questions so as to limit testimony."

He invited DeCamp's suggestions and the Neligh lawmaker, sponsor of the 1979 coal slurry bill, responded the resolution authorizing a study of the question was "very detailed in terms of trying to determine precisely what the answers are to the questions raised and not answered adequately in these previous hearings."

"It is the answers to these questions which will determine whether a coal slurry pipeline is or is not built, and Nebraska's involvement or lack of involvement therein."

DeCamp said a summary of past hearings would not solve anything and asked Kremer to let him know if the issue would take more time than Kremer's committee is willing to devote to it prior to the 1980 legislative session.

DeCamp said if that is the case, a special energy committee that has been established "might properly attempt to answer the unanswered questions in a free and open forum."

Energy Transportation Systems Inc. has proposed construction of a pipeline that would carry a mixture of coal and water from Wyoming to Arkansas. The pipeline would cut across some Nebraska Panhandle areas.

ETSI has sought the right of eminent domain from their wives and families but has been turned down. Spokesmen for ETSI have said if their firm were empowered with eminent domain, their project would be speeded because ETSI then would be allowed to cross railroad property.

Railroads, which have been hauling huge amounts of coal across Nebraska, claim a loss of part of that business would damage them commercially.

Gasohol brief filed

Attorneys for Gov. Charles Thone and Larry Bane, acting director of the Department of Economic Development, have filed a brief with the state Supreme Court in which the attorneys argued a law designed to promote the development of gasohol is constitutional.

The state Justice Department earlier filed a brief in which the constitutionality of the legislation was challenged.

The law permits special revenue or special purpose bonds to be issued by cities, counties, or a combination of the two, with the proceeds to be used in financing construction of grain alcohol plants and related facilities. The alcohol would be blended with gasoline into gasohol.

One of the arguments the Justice Department made was questioning the law on grounds of constitutionality is that the statute would permit the spending of state money for other than a clearly recognizable public purpose.

Will Rogers Would Appreciate This One

Richard L. Leshar, President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

I don't make jokes. Will Rogers once said, "I just watch the government and report facts." The great American humorist made that comment years ago. But what about today? What if he were with us now and had to report, for example, what just happened to Jody Gerard, a 12-year-old entrepreneur from Edgelyville, New York? Could Will Rogers still keep a straight face while reporting everything the state's tax authorities have done to keep this young worm grower from wiggling off their hook?

You be the judge. Jody Gerard is no ordinary young man. He raises, digs and sells backyard worms — lots of them. And at 35 cents a dozen for Red Wigglers (a dozen of his prize Glass Worms will cost you 55 cents), he has established a growing business and a solid reputation as a hard worker.

One day this summer, Jody received a letter from the Department of Taxation that put the bite into his worm business. The authorities had learned Jody had not been collecting sales taxes on his worm deals. They wanted their money... and they threatened to get tough and haul Master Gerard into court if he did not promptly contact them.

So he did. Frightened out of his wits, he telephoned a tax official and explained he was only 12 years old and had no intention of breaking any laws — especially those he knew nothing about. There was a pause. The bureaucrats huddled, then told him to await their instructions. They would consult further then get back to him with their decision.

About a week later, the answer came. Like it or not, Jody would have to pay the tax. New York State had decided his worms were tangible legal property. But about that same time, the story got out that a very enterprising young man felt he was being treated badly by his state government. Letters, supporting Jody, began pouring into Edgelyville's post office — some from as far away as Switzerland. To date, well-wishers have mailed Jody more than 380 to cover his first quarter tax bill of 64 cents.

Confronted with a rash of negative publicity, the bureaucracy began to bend slightly. One official who was reportedly "proud" of the way the whole affair had been handled, later claimed to seek legislative relief so that minors with small businesses would be exempt from paying sales taxes. And in one majestically expensive gesture of sweet reasonableness, a state official was sent all the way to Jody's home just to help him fill out his tax forms.

What's been accomplished? Government, so reluctant, so incapable of spending less and living within its means, has once again proved it will spare almost no time, effort or expense in defending its power to reap the rewards of someone else's risks.

Yet look at the price we must all pay. As soon as Jody learned he had a problem with the tax department, he closed down his stand. Then the other kids in town, fearing they too might be violating the law and might be stepped with heavy fines, began taking down their signs and closing their stands. Today, the worm business in Edgelyville has dried up. Gone too is a small spark of that vital spirit of self-initiative, and not just now — not just for the bait business — but perhaps for later in life, for more ambitious pursuits.

Edgelyville is just one small mountain town. But what happened there is an important microcosm of the kind of bureaucratic overkill that is doing so much to destroy business initiative and growth all across America. Government doesn't create progress, people do — millions of people like Jody Gerard who latch onto an idea to provide a product or a service others want or need. When will we wake up and have the intelligence and faith to place America's future back in their hands?

OBSERVATIONS

Taxes, Taxes, Up Again

Real estate taxes, like almost everything else, will increase in Wayne County, or at best will remain relatively static.

County Assessor Doris Slipp recently completed compilation of assessed valuations, tax levies and combined those with budgets of the various county taxing districts.

Earlier projections were optimistic that taxes would not increase and might show a slight decline because of three factors: a seven percent lid limit on budget receipts imposed by the state; a dramatic increase in valuations in the taxing districts; and a subsequent drop in tax levies for each of those districts.

But such was not the case.

The Nebraska Legislature several years ago approved legislation which sought to equalize property taxes across the state. By next year, the state ordered a 30 percent reduction in assessed valuations.

This year, a different governor, a different team and a different philosophy. The 30 percent, which was for one year only, was reinstated. In addition, the governor and his staff ordered to comply with law approved several years ago, sought to continue equalization of property taxes across the state.

As a result, assessed valuations this year were without the benefit of last year's 30 percent reduction; and, the state Board of Equalization ordered a 12 percent increase in valuations in cities with Wayne County, and 12 and 10 percent increases in rural areas for buildings and farm land.

That is why taxes again are on the up swing in our county.

Assessor Slipp has taken all of the information provided her by the various agencies — budgets from the taxing districts and equalization orders from the state.

Normally, a leap in valuations such as was experienced in our county will hold taxes down to an unusual combination of factors ruined that theory.

Better luck next year — Dan Field.

OUT OF OLD NEBRASKA

Dances at Fort Robinson were elaborate affairs in the 1890's. The social graces were a part of every Regular Army Officer's training. Dances (often called "germans") gave their wives and families opportunity to decorate dance halls, prepare feasts, wear finery, and to entertain civilian friends from Crawford and elsewhere. The following accounts were published in the "Army and Navy Journal," excerpts from which are in Nebraska State Historical Society files. A german is a complicated dance involving many couples with many changes of partners — a cotillion.

"One of the most brilliant social events of the season was the german given by Capt. and Mrs. John S. Loud, of the 9th Cavalry, to Mrs. Dimmick, of Fort DuChesne, Utah, Miss Hickok of St. Louis, and Miss Waring of Fort Omaha. The hop room was artistically draped with the national colors and hung with lanterns, while over the doors were the letters 'D.W.H.' interwoven in gold and blue. The lights shown on the fair women in bright gowns and on gallant cavaliers. The figures were unique and graceful, being for the most part original with Lieut. Grote Hutcheson, who led the german."

"The favors were exceptionally pretty, consisting of flowers, ribbons, belts, butterflies and other pretty trinkets. To each guest was given a ribbon banner on which in gold was 'German Fort Robinson, Nebraska, March 3, 1893,' and the letters 'D.W.H.' in monogram. Capt. and Mrs. Loud, Miss Dimmick, Miss Hickok and Miss Waring, the receiving party, formed a pretty picture as they stood greeting the guests."

"After the german everyone enjoyed the elegant supper served at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Loud. Those taking part were Mrs. Loud with Lieut. John H. Gardner, Miss Dimmick with Lieut. David P. Cordray, Miss Hickok with Major Charles S. Hisey, Miss Waring with Mr. Paddock, Mrs. Guilfoyle with Mr. Armstrong, Mrs. Buck with Lieut. Alfred B. Jackson, Miss Bernard with Lieut. Lawson M. Fuller, Mrs. Everts with Lieut. Howard R. Hickok, Mrs. Steadman with Capt. Matthias Day, Miss Trout with Lieut. Harry G. Trout, Mrs. Hubert with Lieut. Edgar Hubert, Mrs. Gardner with Lieut. Julian R. Linds, Mrs. Garrard with Lieut. Hutcheson."

"A most delightful party was given Friday evening, June 9, (1893), by Captain and Mrs. John S. Loud in honor of their twenty-fifth anniversary. As the ladies and gentlemen entered the hop-room each was presented with a bunch of roses and a little silver dancing card. Captain and Mrs. Loud, assisted by Mrs. Dimmick and Miss Bernard, received the numerous guests who were present."

"After the 'Aul Wiedershen' had died away the guests adjourned to the home of Captain and Mrs. Loud, where an eloquent supper awaited them. The rooms presented a most beautiful appearance, festooned with smilax and roses. Large lamps with great white shades were placed here and there, and between the folding doors in large silver letters were the words: 'June 9, 1868 - June 9, 1893.' The presents were numerous and handsome, one especially, which was a large silver tray given by the officers of the 9th Cavalry."

"Mrs. Loud looked unusually handsome in a silver gray suit, set with chignon diamond ornaments and carried a large bouquet of white roses. Among the guests present were Dr. and Mrs. George W. Adair, Capt. and Mrs. Steadman, Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Garrard, Capt. and Mrs. John F. Fullilove, Mr. and Mrs. Ladd, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Everts and Mr. Jackson, Mrs. St. George, Mrs. Forbee and Mr. LaFette, Mr. and Mrs. Fuller, Miss Dimmick and Mr. Hickok, Miss Bernard and Mr. Lindsay, Miss Daisy Swift, Miss Dolle Loud, Mr. Paddock and Mrs. Armstrong. — 'J.D.'"

You And Your Car

Sharing a ride from coast to coast and from points in between has become as simple as dialing a toll free 800 number.

And pooling is a great way to conserve the nation's fuel, says the Automotive Information Council (AIC).

With that phone call, a person who wants a ride or a rider tells the operator the point of origin and destination and desired dates, and in a few seconds the computer provides the names and phone numbers of those planning the same trip, or portions of it.

Membership in this unusual service, operated by National Car Pool Assn., costs $25 for six months, $40 for a year or $125 for a lifetime wanderer. Non-members can use the service for a one-way trip fee of $15.

Each passenger and the driver agree to share expenses.

The association set up 100,000 referrals last year and it brags that it has never had a crime. It also says its service has saved about 1.5 billion gallons of gasoline since it was started seven years ago.

The application form asks such questions as tobacco use, lifestyle leanings and other questions — for which answers are optional — in an attempt to match up those who might be most compatible on a long trip. It also suggests that the parties who may share the ride get together before the trip to discuss groundrules and to share proper identification.

Whereas the share a ride concept first appealed to servicemen, students and the retired, the spectrum has broadened to include everyone, says Ray Orsini of National Car Pool.

The organization also has set up a pooling effort for sharing rides on private airplanes, and even yachts.

Membership forms can be obtained by calling 800-547-0933 or writing to Box 40303, Portland, Ore. 97240.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

In recent issues to amaze me how an anti-abortionist can turn any topic into propaganda for the anti-abortion movement.

I am a Christian who finds in anti-abortion advocates more examples of anti-Christianity than most pornography.

Christ said "Blessed are the pure in heart," but the anti-abortionists use any deceitful means they can to twist the truth, lay on guilt, and mislead through half truths. For example, abortions performed so late that a fetus is alive outside the womb are still illegal. That was not mentioned in the letter last week. Placing fetuses in a garbage disposal is also illegal. "Anti-abortionists never mention how many fully developed infants are left abandoned to die in sewers, hillside and garbage cans. (This is called "infanticide" a common non-Christian form of birth control in Biblical times.)"

Congress, by the way, refused to pass the "Human Life" amendment last year largely because it discriminated against the poor. The recourse for anti-abortionists is a Constitutional Convention. Such, having no precedent in modern times, could create more havoc with our governmental system than could a hundred Watergates.

Christ said "Blessed are the peacemakers," but anti-abortionists (even in Wayne) manage to call people in their own many well-intentioned meetings and institutions.

"Many of the anti-abortionists are the money changers in the temple who cry the name of God when their pocket books are threatened. The poor are the ones affected by anti-abortion laws, but you won't find any good Samaritans in anti-abortionists. And should effective laws go into effect, these people will be the first to ignore the fact that women are suffering through (and some not making it) "outlets" abortions, because they wouldn't feel it in their purses. Their cry then would be against mothers on welfare with too many children."

Six Wayne State Turnovers Lead To Second Home Defeat 24-10

By Kevin Weisberg
Wayne State SID

Missouri Western State College took advantage of six Wayne State College turnovers enroute to defeating the Wildcats 24-10 on Band Day in Wayne, Saturday.

Missouri Western's Griffons used the strong inside running of sophomore half back Rodney Stephenson (30 carries for 125 yards) and an opportunistic defense to build a 21-10 halftime lead that was never challenged by the Wildcats.

Despite the loss, the Wildcats recorded their second straight record setting performance. Sophomore quarterback Rick Lade established a WSC career passing mark, completing 8 of 15 passes for 132 yards. That yardage gave the sophomore signal caller 2,298 passing yards surpassing Dave Miller's 2,218 yards set from 1973-75. Last week, Lade's roommate Bob Barry set a career rushing record. Both teams took advantage of opposite fumbles to score their first points. The Wildcats covered a fumbled punt snap on the Missouri Western 18 yard line and moved into the end zone four plays later with Barry plunging over from the one with 11:52 remaining in the opening period.

Missouri Western scored less than four minutes later following John Santiago's fumble of a Griffon punt. It took the Griffons only two plays to move four yards with Stephenson scoring from one yard out to tie the score at 7-7.

The Wildcats then pieced together their final scoring drive of the day moving from their own 24 yard line to the Missouri Western 9 yard line before settling for a 23 yard field goal by Bart Emanuel.

Following the ensuing kickoff, Missouri Western moved 80 yards in eight plays with speedy receiver Tim Hoskins going the final 38 yards on a pass from quarterback Mike Solomon. The PAT put the Griffons back on top 14-10, a lead they would never lose.

The clincher for Missouri Western came midway through the second period when Griffon defensive back Darren Mankin intercepted a Lade pass and moved 21 yards for the touchdown and a 21-10 lead following the PAT. The Griffons added a 33-yard field goal by Paul Compton with 7:15 left in the third quarter to round out the scoring.

Wildcats Host Ft. Hays For Homecoming

By Kevin Weisberg

Wayne State College tests its 121 record against Ft. Hays State University Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in a match up between two teams who have struggled offensively in recent weeks.

The Tigers of Ft. Hays own a 13 record having lost three straight since defeating Langston University, 31-0 on Sept. 8. First year Tiger head coach Bobby Thompson's squad has managed only three touchdowns since, one in each of their last three contests. Likewise, the Wildcat offense has sputtered the last two weeks managing only nine points against Midland and 10 against Missouri Western.

Tigers 35-7 loss to Illinois State due to an injury to his backline running mate, 5-7, 165 pound Freddie Hurd has gained 185 yards in four games.

Defensively the Tigers are led by linebacker Junior Hartig and noseguard Bill Turner. The 6-2 215 pound Hartig has recorded 59 tackles thus far for the Tigers while Turner has 52 total stops.

Wayne State coaches were once again impressed with the play of freshman middle guard Steve Hawkins in last Saturday's loss to Missouri Western. The freshman recorded 15 tackles and a quarterback sack against the Griffons.

Injuries continue to plague the Wildcats and both wide receiver Marty Hansen of Wayne, and Bud Matthews are questionable for this week's game. Wildcat head football coach Del Stollenberg says the situation has become critical.

We mentioned before the season started that injuries would be a very critical part of the season if we lost the wrong people and you know as it turns out losing Jeff Ingram was more of a loss than we had anticipated even at this time, he said. Add to that the possible loss of Marty Hansen for a game or who knows how long you know it's getting to be real critical.

This week's game is the culminating event of Homecoming Week on the WSC campus and the game will feature a pregame ceremony honoring this year's King and Queen plus a halftime induction ceremony for the five newest members of the WSC Athletic Hall of Fame.

Athletes Of The Week

Defensive middle guard Steve Hawkins of Godfrey, Ill., and tight end Ed Blackburn of Malvern, Iowa, have been named Wayne State College "players of the week" for their performances against Missouri Western last Saturday.

Hawkins, a freshman starting for only the second time, recorded 15 tackles in the game, seven solos and eight assists. The 5-11, 195 pounder also recorded his third quarterback sack of the year in the 24-10 loss to the Griffons.

Jog-A-Thon Planned Saturday For Wayne State Trainers

The Second annual Wayne State College Trainers Jog-A-Thon will begin at 8:30 a.m. Saturday on the WSC Memorial Stadium track.

The event, a fund raising activity for WSC's student athletic trainers organization, raised nearly $700 at a similar event last year and club spokesman, WSC head trainer Regg Swanson, said the group hopes to exceed $1,000 this year.

Each member of the athletic trainers group will be running 20 laps on the WSC track and various businesses and individuals have pledged a dollar amount for each lap ran by the participants.

WSC trainer Swanson said the money will be placed back into the college. The money will be used to get something that will not only benefit us, but also the college and all the sports," he said.

Swanson added that he feels many people have a misconception about who athletic trainers serve. He said that students who compete in intramurals receive the same benefits from an athletic trainer being present as do athletes competing on the intercollegiate level.

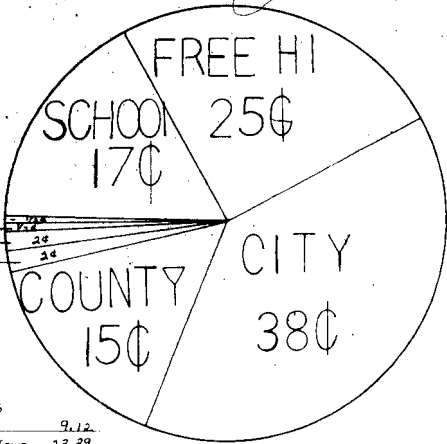

"We cover a much broader percentage of the student body than most people realize," Swanson said.

ASC Committee Seeks Nominees

Farmers are asked to nominate candidates of their choice to be on the ASC community committee ballot, says Alden Johnson, chairperson of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee. The ASC community committee election will be conducted from Nov. 23 to Dec. 3 by mail ballot. The 13 ASC communities in Wayne County are: Brenna, Chapin, Deer Creek, Garfield, Hancock, Hoskins, Hunter, Leslie, Logan, Plum Creek, Sherman, Sirahan, Wilbur.

ASC committees are responsible for managing government farm programs on the local level. To meet the needs of individual producers, ASC committee members must be concerned and responsible individuals. Johnson said Wayne County farmers have the opportunity to nominate persons they feel would best serve the farm community. Farmers have received petition forms by mail and are now submitting them to the county ASCS office.

A few basic considerations should be kept in mind when circulating petitions, Johnson said. In order to be valid, petitions must be limited to one nominee each, must include written certification that the nominee is willing to serve if elected, must be signed by at least three eligible farm voters in the ASC community, and must be received in the county ASCS office no later than Oct. 29.

Farmers may circulate or sign nominating petitions for as many candidates as they choose. Anyone wishing to nominate a farmer for the ASC committee election may contact the county ASCS office for full details, including eligibility requirements for officeholders.

"Farmers should petition for and elect those individuals they feel would do a good job as a member of the ASC committee. The election of concerned farmers to positions on ASC committees is essential in the administration of farm programs," Johnson said.

Johnson further explained that the county ASCS office will accept all valid petitions. The opportunity to nominate, vote and be elected to office is guaranteed to all farmers regardless of race, religion, sex, color, or national origin.

Bank Association Is Sponsor

How to Spot a Con-Artist in One Easy Lesson

He impersonated a pilot for Pan American airlines at the age of 16 and for two years enjoyed privileges accorded to pilots and airline crews.

At 18 years old, he impersonated a pediatrician in a major southern hospital and supervised numerous employees for a year.

While still a teenager, he passed the Georgia bar examination and posed as an assistant attorney general for the state.

A MILLIONAIRE twice over by the age of 21, he was arrested during his 21st year by Interpol agents in France on a variety of charges including fraud and forgery.

Frank W. Abagnale, now 31, and head of a $4 million corporation established to help prevent such crimes, told his story and his techniques to an appreciative crowd Monday night in Rice Auditorium at Wayne State College.

Abagnale was here under sponsorship of the Northeast Nebraska American Institute of Banks. His purpose was to educate bank employees, employers, store clerks, owners, etc., to the ways of the modern and sophisticated criminal.

only man to every escape the Atlanta, Ga., federal prison said, "I'm here to teach you how to prevent the white collar crime from happening." He escaped by impersonating a federal prison inspector and walked out the front gate.

A runaway at the age of 16, Abagnale said white collar crime such as hot checks, forged, counterfeit checks, fraud, etc., costs businesses some $12 million daily in the United States.

"The consumer ultimately pays for the losses," he said.

AT A PRESS conference earlier Monday afternoon, Abagnale said he abandoned the U.S. federal prison after he was paroled from a U.S. federal prison and could not hold a job because of his criminal record.

Instead, about 3 1/2 years ago he started a company with $5 to his name — Frank Abagnale & Associates. Located in Houston, Texas, the firm caters its services to eight major airlines, most major hotel chains, most major American banks, and some major chain stores such as Montgomery Wards, Safeway, etc. He has 18 clients and isn't accepting any more.

Although he does the lecturing, the teaching and the seminars, his staff does research on crime statistics. His employees are college educated, mostly with degrees in criminology. He has an IQ of 150 and a photographic memory.

HE ALSO is on the faculty of seven police academies across the country, is a professor of criminology in Houston and has spent time in prisons in France, Sweden and the U.S.

His method of business, he says, is simple. He is on a contractual basis with his clients and if his clients do not see a reduction in their losses to white collar criminals, then the contract is void and invalid. That has never happened, he said.

At the seminar, Abagnale covered how to spot hot checks, forged checks, fake checks, etc., Monday night. Little hints to bank tellers drastically reduce the numbers of hot checks passed each year.

For example, tellers should be immediately cautious if a check is numbered between 101 and 150 because more than 80 percent of all hot checks fall within this range.

Another tip — make sure the federal reserve code number (Wayne's is 10 — Kansas City) matches the state in which the bank on the check is located.

AND ANOTHER HINT — make sure the bottom half of the fraction code in the upper right hand corner of the check matches the first four numbers of the bank routing code in the lower left corner of the check. If the numbers don't match, the check is a forgery, he said.

instant rich methods he used to get rich quick went something like this: He opened a checking account with a minimal amount and asked for personalized deposit slips. Those wouldn't be available for a couple of weeks, he was informed, and was told to use deposit slips on the customer courtesy counter.

Banks customarily hand out 50 personal-ized and coded checks when a new account is opened, so he took a handful of counter deposit slips and carefully penciled in his new checking account number on the deposit slips.

LATER, HE returned to the bank and replaced the altered deposit slips. Then, whenever a customer used the deposit slips for a deposit, the computer or the teller referred to the account number and placed the deposit in Abagnale's account.

Several days later and some $47,000 richer, he was on his way to a new town and a new scam.

One of the major advancements in the life of a white collar criminal was the introduction of a color copier onto the market by Xerox in 1977, he explained. It copies anything perfectly and a forged cashier's check could be copied numerous times and passed at banks, supermarkets, etc., all over the country.

CRIME IS easier today because of the advance in technology. In his day, $15,000 in printing equipment was needed to forge checks. Now, a color copier and 65 cents can do the same job.

His message to the audience Monday night was clear — the only answer to the white collar criminal is to use your brain.

The most important aspect of his training is to prevent crimes rather than catch the thieves. The key to this is educating the public. For example, through his contact with the major airlines, he has saved them some $17 million over the years.

Direct Deposit For SSI Checks

People receiving social security or supplemental security income checks can have them deposited directly in the financial institution of their choice. Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk, said recently:

Direct deposit arrangements can be made with a bank, savings bank, savings and loan association, federal or state chartered credit union, or similar institutions.

There are several advantages to direct deposit, Branch said. They include: a person does not have to stand in line to cash or deposit checks; money is immediately available in the person's account if he or she is away from home; there are no check cashing problems because the payments go directly into an account; a person does not have to worry about losing his or her check or having it stolen.

To arrange for direct deposit, a person should contact the financial institution of his or her choice and ask for a direct deposit form SF 1199. Completing the form only authorizes deposits into a person's account. It does not authorize withdrawals.

A person interested in having his or her checks deposited directly should ask the financial institution about how the account will be handled and how notification of deposit will be made, Branch said.

People who want more information about direct deposit can ask at the financial institution or they can call the Norfolk social security office, located at 1310 Norfolk Ave. The telephone number is 1-800-642-8210, toll free.

A separation of the Wayne State Alumni Association and the Wayne State Foundation is expected to be approved Friday by the Wayne State College Foundation's board of trustees at their annual meeting in Wayne.

The two groups were combined when the foundation was formed in 1961. Charles Kay, executive secretary for both groups since 1974, was appointed WSC director of financial aides in April, 1979, and said his increased workload does not allow him time to adequately serve both groups. He said he will remain with the Alumni Association, but will recommend the foundation be under a separate executive secretary.

"The two groups have worked together very well since 1961," Kay said. "But the needs and activities in both areas have expanded. To ensure the college and alumni are well served the two groups will now operate under separate control, with the Alumni Association concentrating on 'friend' raising for WSC and the foundation concerning itself with 'fund' raising for the college."

"Other business, the foundation board is expected to appoint a new executive secretary and to approve a 1980 calendar year budget of $66,000, up from the $63,000 of 1979. The major portion of the budget will be used to support WSC projects not eligible for state funding. The foundation gathers funds annually from various endowments that help support WSC scholarship programs and other college-related activities.

Elkhorn NRD Votes Delay

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District voted to delay their plan for 28 dams in the Maple Creek Watershed for six months and to work with the Maple Creek Concerned Citizen Association and others to develop alternative plans. "The six month time limit is certainly not adequate. The MCCA will work hard during the next six months, but will need a lot more time," said Rose Ann Gall, president of the Maple Creek Concerned Citizen Association. "The plan for 28 dams is unworkable and unacceptable. The NRD's action tonight is a first step in permanently stopping the 28 dams and to finding an acceptable solution to flooding and erosion problems in the Maple Creek Watershed," according to Mrs. Gall. "We are looking forward to an effort that involves all Maple Creek Watershed residents in the development of a voluntary soil conservation and floor control program," said Michael Sindelar, vice-president of MCCA. "That's what local control is all about."

Farm Foreign Owners In Nebraska

Foreign investors hold an interest in about four million acres of U.S. agricultural land, according to preliminary data examined by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and announced here by Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland.

The review indicates foreign owners hold less than one-half of one percent of all private U.S. agricultural land.

The estimate is based on a preliminary review of 4,500 reports filed as of Sept. 1 by foreign investors under the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act of 1978.

Bergland said distribution patterns indicate that foreign ownership is heavily concentrated in the South and West, although foreign agricultural land holdings were reported in all 50 States, Georgia, South Carolina, and Tennessee account for 27 percent of all foreign owned acreage, he said.

Similar concentration patterns are apparent in the countries of origin of foreign owners. Bergland said. A relatively few countries account for the bulk of foreign-held U.S. agricultural land. From the data examined so far, investors from the United Kingdom, Luxembourg, West Germany and Canada hold 72 percent of all foreign owned land reported.

As of Sept. 1, over 5,000 reporting forms had been received in Washington, D.C. Of these, 3,000 reports, accounting for 2,687,828 acres, were analyzed by the department's Economics, Statistics, and Cooperatives Service. The other reports had to be returned for further information or corrections, or are still being processed. Consequently, the preliminary results shown in the tables are still being processed. Consequently, the preliminary results shown in the tables are subject to revision as more thorough analysis of the first reports received by the department will be submitted to the President and Congress Nov. 2.

"Under the law foreign owners of U.S. agricultural land as of Feb. 1, were required to file a report with the department by Aug. 1. Those who acquired or disposed of U.S. agricultural land after Feb. 1 are required to file within 90 days.

Their most file with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office serving the county where the land is located. Failure to report, or filing late or misleading reports, result in penalties of up to 25 percent of the fair market value of the owner's interest in the agricultural land. All foreign individuals, governments, or legal entities created under the laws of, or having their principal place of business in, a foreign country are required to file. In addition, all U.S. legal entities of which foreigners hold five percent or more interest are required to report their agricultural land holdings.

The law defines agricultural land as all land used for agricultural, forestry or timber production. This includes land in agricultural use when purchased as well as land later converted to agricultural use. Tracts smaller than one acre, which produce less than $1,000 worth of gross agricultural sales a year, are exempt from the reporting requirement.

The following is a table showing acreage held by foreign owners on Feb. 1, 1979, summarized from reports confirmed by STATE 1, 1979

Tips Given to Cut Crop Losses

As the growing season comes to an end, farmers are looking to next spring and considering the crops they should plant.

Bob Roselle, an extension entomologist in the Institute of Agriculture and Forestry, offered some tips on ways to reduce losses from insects in those crops.

Corn rootworms have been a problem in Nebraska for many years, Roselle said, but still cannot be controlled mechanically. Rotating corn where possible may be the best answer for corn rootworm trouble, he said.

In the east, I suggest rotating the corn with soybeans," Roselle said, "and in the south and central regions with sorghum or alfalfa."

He said fall tillage is not reliable as a means of control and no-till practice can cause erosion problems.

Another insect which has caused problems in Southeast Nebraska is the chinch bug, Roselle recommended good land management as a way to reduce chinch bug losses.

"Controlling the bugs in field margins and roadsides where they winter has not proven reliable," he said, "so we must now plan where and what to plant next year."

He added that planting soybean or alfalfa into wheat stubble is a good idea since chinch bugs are more of a problem for corn and sorghum.

"The farmer should avoid planting corn or sorghum adjacent to winter wheat, and thereby reduce chinch bug problems," he said.

Corn borers often cause misery for farmers in Central and Southwestern Nebraska and in some northwest areas of the state, he said. However, he cautioned that burning or plowing down stalks is not always effective. "Burning is not feasible because it doesn't work, and it results in the loss of important organic materials in soil," Roselle said.

He added that stalk cutting or plow-down in the spring will reduce the numbers of corn borers but may not entirely eliminate the risk of borer infestation.

Plowing or harrowing grasshopper eggs is also unreliable in some cases, Roselle said.

Grasshoppers, the number one pest in western Nebraska range and pasture lands, are more difficult to be rid of than the other insects, he said, because they are able to withstand the cold winter.

Roselle said plowing or harrowing grasshoppers is not advised, because these practices do not work well, and may cause damage to crops or pastures.

In general, Roselle recommended good land management practices, water management, fertility and crop selection to cut down on insect losses.

Dixon Fair to Be Evaluated

The Dixon County 4-H Council will meet at the Northeast Station at 8 p.m., Oct. 9.

Federal government spending this year will amount to $9,960 per household, up from $9,107 in 1977, the Tax Foundation estimates.

Convenience Stores Boost Cost of Monthly Food Bill

Consumers who feel pressured by growing food bills might take a second look at where their food dollar is going.

A significant part of consumers' rising food expenditures can be attributed to shopping in convenience stores, buying convenience foods and eating out.

Just how much more such practices cost was outlined in a recent U.S. Department of Agriculture report.

For example, restaurants, depending on the type of food service they provide, charge 45 to 65 percent of the price of meals served to cover their profits and costs other than food. At the same time, retail supermarkets charge 17 to 22 percent of sales to cover their profits and operating costs.

This means it costs an average of two times more to eat out than you bought your food in a supermarket.

The growing popularity of convenience food stores also has contributed to some families' growing food bills. Although these stores are convenient, their prices are usually higher than supermarket prices.

Whether they shop at a supermarket or convenience food store, families also might consider how many more "convenience foods" they're buying.

A recent USDA study showed that new convenience foods have captured almost 13 percent of supermarkets' food sales.

These foods offer reduced preparation time, reduced stor-

MUSK THISTLE

Musk thistle is also known as nodding thistle. The deep red dish purple flowers are large and attractive. The head is solitary on the end of the stem and nods or hangs down as it grows in size. The thistle is primarily a biennial.

The deeply cut (segmented) leaves are dark green with a light green midrib. There is a grayish green area at the outer edge of each spine tipped leaf segment. The leaves extend onto the stem, giving it a frilled appearance. The plant is relatively free of hairiness. Plant height varies between two and seven feet.

Musk thistle may produce as many as 20,000 seeds and germination may run as high as 95 percent. Blooming starts with the terminal head the first week in June and continues until Mid August.

There are two different herbicides that may be used to control musk thistle. You may use 1.5 quarts of 2,4-D per acre. Treat rosettes in late fall. A recently released herbicide that looks even more promising than 2,4-D is Tordon 22K. Use this chemical at the rate of 8 fluid ounces per acre on permanent grass planting in the fall between October to soil freeze up — or December 1, which is earlier.

Special remarks

Tordon has just been released for use on musk thistle in range land and permanent grass pastures. Tests have shown that Tordon when used in the fall is more effective than other herbicides. This is especially true when thistles are under stress due to dry or cool weather, when Tordon will be effective even though other herbicides may fail.

Fall is the best time to treat musk thistles regardless of which herbicide you use.

Fall weed control

Dandelions, field bindweed, chickweed, shepherdspurse and other species that make fall growth can be effectively treated in September and October before a hard freeze. Use the normal amounts of 2,4-D, mecoprop or Barvel. Combinations of two or more of the herbicides are available and give control of several weed species with one application. Herbicide — fertilizer combinations that do two jobs in one trip are also effective.

There are several advantages for treating turf weeds in the fall. Elimination of the weeds permits turf grasses to fill in areas occupied by weeds. Late fall applications come at a time when gardens, most ornaments and trees are less subject to herbicide injury. Some weeds are not always completely killed with herbicides. However, fall treatment can cause the weeds to go into the winter in a weakened condition making them more susceptible to winter kill. Weeds not killed by spring treatments go into a period of favorable plant growth and are likely to recover.

World-Wide Trade Offices

The first of a world-wide network of agricultural trade offices authorized by Congress last year opened in Miami, Fla., Sept. 28, according to Thomas R. Hughes, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service.

The office, one of six to be established this year under the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978, is a focal point for export sales promotion throughout Central America and the northern Caribbean trade area. That area, including Mexico, accounted for $1.3 billion in U.S. farm product exports last year and is regarded as a good growth market for American farmers, Hughes said.

The Miami office is the only one of the new offices to be located in the United States.

Congress last year authorized exports of between 6 and 25 agricultural trade offices in the most important trade regions of the world. The Miami office is the first to be opened under that Act. Additional trade offices will be established this year in Singapore, Seoul, Korea; Hamburg, West Germany; Warsaw, Poland; and Bahrain on the Persian Gulf. An agricultural trade office in London, established under other authority, has been in operation since May, 1978.

Purpose of the new offices is to aid agricultural exports efforts in major markets areas by providing assistance to U.S. individuals, cooperatives, and firms exporting or seeking to export agricultural commodities. They will also provide a point of contact for importers seeking to buy farm products in the United States.

The office also will assist the private associations which work with the Foreign Agricultural Service as "market development cooperators." Forty-six of these non-profit groups, organized on a commodity basis, are now working in foreign countries under continuing contracts with FAS.

Hughes said U.S. agricultural trade has become a mainstay in the international economic position of the United States, with farm product exports in fiscal year 1979 estimated at $32 billion compared with $27.3 billion the preceding year. In this decade, agricultural exports have more than doubled in volume and increased five fold in value, he said.

Hughes said U.S. agricultural exports are expected to continue their rise in fiscal 1980, with a projected export value in the range of $35 to $40 billion. With imports of $16 to $19 billion, the agricultural trade surplus could increase to about $20 billion compared with $15.7 billion estimated for the fiscal year now ending, Hughes said.

Dr. John Bucy In Who's Who

Dr. John I. Bucy, an agricultural economist with the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA), stationed in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Department of Agricultural Economics here, has been included in the 1979-80 edition of Who's Who in Finance and Industry.

The unsolicited inclusion of a biographical sketch on Dr. Bucy in the 21st edition of the directory, published by Marquis Who's Who, Inc. of Chicago, indicated the doctor's national qualifications, according to the directory's preface, include professional standing in functional or "line of endeavor" career attainments.

The publishers explained that leaders of business or industry are not necessarily judged in terms of size or capitalization but are of high commercial rating or are prominent in an area of highly specialized yet far-reaching activity.

Names of those included "are well known and highly regarded in their special fields of endeavor," the preface stated.

Bucy attended Wayne State College and received three degrees from the University of Nebraska. Prior to joining TVA in 1956 he held positions with the Nebraska Department of Aeronautics and the Farmers Home Administration.

Engineers Establish Flood Plain

ENGINEERS for the city of Wayne have determined the flood plain for the city. Owners of structures, existing or to be built, will be eligible for low-cost flood insurance after the federal government completes its paperwork. The flood plain is marked (above) by a dotted line and runs from north of Wayne on Doa Creek southeast to its confluence with Logan Creek and then southwest to about the west city limits. An ordinance approved by the city council last week sets requirements that must be met by structures within the flood plain.
