Birthday Bucks consolation prize is back

The Retail Committee of the Chamber of Commerce decided last week to return to the $25 consolation prize in the Birthday Bucks promotion.

The weekly prize was abandoned several weeks ago in favor of the grand prize honor given when the exact birthdate was drawn.

However, effective this week, if a Chamber member has someone in his or her store with a birthdate close to the one drawn that Thursday night, the merchant will write the date on a slip and send it to the Chamber office. If it is closest to the drawn date for that week, he or she will win the $25 consolation prize.

Chamber officials say these have to be in the Chamber office by Monday morning or they are invalid.

If the person has the exact birthdate of the one drawn, he or she wins the jackpot for that week. The jackpot for this week is $475.

Community Chest nearing goal

"Encouraging" is the word drive chairmen are using after Wayne United Way workers checked in their gifts and pledges Friday.

Contributions Friday amounted to $11,474.50. That sum is 75 percent of the $15,230 goal, according to Marilyn Carhart, United Way secretary.

MOMENTUM continues to build as Wayne Carroll High School students prepare for an all-school disco dance Wednesday night, Oct. 24, following the Harrison-Cedar, Catholic and Wayne football game. The dance is co-sponsored by Wayne Radio, KTCH and the Wayne Community Chest, with all proceeds from the dance going to the Community Chest fund.

Helping co-ordinate the dance at the high school are seniors Jeff Zeiss and Penny James.

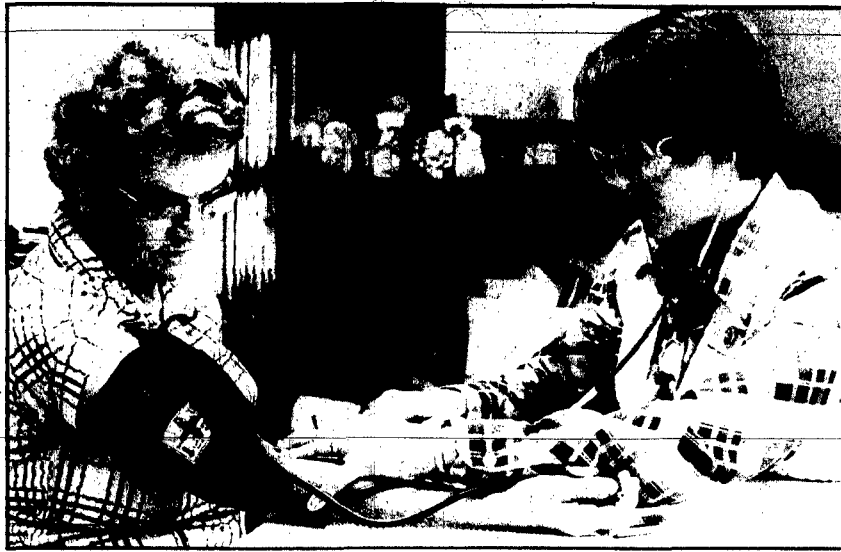

DRIVE chairman Dick Ditman said residents should remember when they make their contribution that much of the money collected during the yearly United Way Fund Drive stays in Wayne, with $4,000 going to the Wayne Recreation Program.

The Wayne Recreation Association activity list is long, including football for boys, basketball for boys, girls and men, baseball for pee wee through midget boys, softball for girls, golf, tennis, swimming, wrestling and volleyball.

Hank Overin directs most of the sport activities, although association directors and many volunteers provide leadership in many other activities — especially the summer park recreation program which attracts hundreds of youngsters.

People to People trip a success

Mission accomplished — almost. Kent Hall, owner-operator of Wayne Greenhouse, was 1 of 19 florists in the United States to participate in a people-to-people goodwill program to several countries in Central and Eastern Europe.

THE THREE-WEEK trip ended late last month, and Hall said at least part of the mission was, indeed, successful — to convey understanding and communications among nations on the tour.

The trip was an informative, educational, goodwill mission dedicated to improving relations and understanding between America and people of Europe and the Soviet Union. Countries visited included Sweden, Hungary, the Soviet Union, Romania and the Netherlands. The job was picked up by the florists individually. "I feel we accomplished our purpose (at least in part) very, very well," Hall said. "There was never the image of an ugly American."

THE PROGRAM was two fold, he explained, with the second purpose to learn about growing operations of other florists in the world.

White florists in the free countries (all but those behind the Iron Curtain) were more than willing to exchange growing tips, those behind the Iron Curtain were not as willing to divulge information.

THAT IS the part of the program that was not too successful, the local flower and plant expert said.

The group was treated well and, with respect in the Soviet Union, Hall said, but most of the tours there involved museums, botanical gardens and general tourist type places.

Several of the U.S. florists wanted to get a first hand look at the Soviet florist operation, but had to wait nearly five hours before being allowed to do so.

HALL explained that everything, including the flower shops, is state owned in the Soviet Union. In order to allow foreigners into the operation, Hall assumes, permission from government officials was necessary.

The Soviet system of doing things was by far the most interesting on the tour, Hall said.

For instance, Hall saw several poinsettias in the Soviet Union, but wondered why more weren't being raised for Christmas. Although, he was aware of Soviet attitudes toward religion, Hall said he was shocked to hear that Soviet citizens do not observe Christmas. Nor do they observe any type of Easter.

THE MAIN holiday observance in Russia is called May Days when the nation's military might is displayed around Red Square.

The flower shops in Russia don't sell service like their American counterparts, Hall explained. Almost all of the business is cash and carry.

Despite the grime of Moscow, Hall said one of his most memorable experiences happened in the Russian community of Yalta, about a thousand miles south of the Soviet Capitol.

As a goodwill gesture, Hall took along 25 Eisenhower silver dollars to give to various florists. In Yalta, the Americans hosted the Yalta florists for supper. Yalta was the first place any Soviet florists accepted the invitation.

THE NEXT morning, as the American delegation was preparing to leave, the manager of the Yalta greenhouse drove up and offered Hall a rubel with Stalin's profile imblazoned on it much like the Eisenhower silver dollar.

Hall said that for a Soviet citizen to have American currency is illegal under Soviet law. All Russian money used by tourists was to be exchanged for American money as the group left the country, he added.

But by remaining nonchalant about the illegal coin in his pocket along with his American change, he was able to bring home the valuable souvenir.

"The exchange of American and Soviet coins is quite an honor," Hall said. "He was the only florist in the group to come home with a Russian coin."

ONE of the most interesting aspects of Soviet society is shops known as "biroskas." These are shops which accept American or foreign currency. These shops have merchandise which is not found in Russian stores and which must be purchased with foreign currency. Since Russians by law are not allowed to use foreign currency, they subsequently are unable to buy any of the items in the "biroskas."

Hall said it was disheartening to buy something in one of these shops and see Soviet residents peering anxiously through the shop windows.

'Cooperation' is trustees' topic

Cooperation between the Nebraska State Colleges and other Nebraska agencies will highlight the board of trustees meeting at Wayne State College Oct. 25 and 26. The presentation will report state college efforts to effectively utilize all of the state's resources.

THE BOARD will consider programs such as Chadron State College's cooperative nursing programs with the University of Nebraska Medical Center, Kearney State College's cooperative business programs with the University of Nebraska, Peru State College's transfer agreements with local community colleges, and Wayne State College's efforts with Northeast Technical Community College to help with the recently established Indian Community College. After board consideration, this report will be submitted to the legislature and the governor.

Other items to be considered include an examination of the general operations audit of the state college system. This audit is an extensive regular review of college operations. Also up for approval will be a revised tenure statement and policy. Tenure is the most significant reward and recognition offered by the college to its faculty members. The policy was previously sent by the Board for review by faculty and students at the colleges.

FALL enrollments will also be reported and are expected to show stabilized numbers of students attending the colleges. Working sessions will begin at mid-afternoon Thursday, Oct. 25, with the Board meeting beginning at 9 a.m. in the Wayne State College Library Friday, Oct. 26, 1979.

Seminar on business for women here Nov. 1

Noted author and business consultant Charlotte Taylor of Washington, D.C., will be keynote speaker at the Nov. 1 Northeast Nebraska Women's Business Seminar being held at the Student Center of Wayne State College in Wayne.

The seminar is designed to acquaint women with the problems and techniques of operating and managing a small business.

Charlotte Taylor

Taylor is former executive director of President Carter's Task Force on Women Business Owners, a group which has examined the problems faced by the women entrepreneur. Women comprise 51 percent of the population, yet own only five percent of the nation's businesses, she said.

Taylor is an author on women in business, having written "The Entrepreneurial Game: A Primer for Women" (Sovereign Press, Division of Simon and Schuster). She is writing a second book for women on staffing a business which will be published in February. As a senior associate of international consulting firm, Hay and Associates, she concentrates on business planning and developments and marketing strategy.

Wayne community groups sponsoring the seminar are the American Association of University Women, the Business and Professional Women and the Chamber of Commerce. Campus groups are Cardinal Key, Delta Sigma Pi, Extended Campus, Phi Beta Lambda and Pi Omega Pi.

There is a $10 registration fee for students and a $15 registration fee for non-students. Men are welcome. For further information, contact the Nebraska Business Development Center at Wayne State College, 375-2004.

Farmers' night planned Nov. 10

The eighth annual Farmers' Appreciation Night Dinner has been set for 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10, at the Wayne State College Student Center.

Sponsored annually by the Chamber of Commerce, the appreciation banquet is held to show appreciation to Wayne-area farmers for supporting the Wayne business community.

Bob Jordan, co-chairman of this year's event, said the dinner will be held from 6 to 7 p.m. at the Wayne State Center.

Featured speaker will be Don Stoner, former television personality in Sioux City and now a marketing officer for Northwest National Bank in Sioux City. More information on Stoner will appear later.

Tickets are free to farmers in the Wayne trade area, and may be picked up from any Chamber of Commerce merchant in Wayne. This is a change from last year when tickets were mailed to each farmer.

Tickets must be picked up before Monday, Nov. 5, Jordan said. For more information, contact Jordan at the State National Bank, 375-1130.

Activist Rubin will speak at WSC Oct. 30

Jerry Rubin, a political activist of the 1960's and currently a lecturer on the social and political events of the 60's, will speak at Wayne State College at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 30, in Ramsey Theatre of the Fine Arts Building.

Jerry Rubin

Rubin, author of "Growing Up at 37," was active in a number of social and political causes in the 60's and currently is on tour, discussing his political activism and the influence that such action has had on the 1970's.

Rubin, co-founder of the Yippie Movement, was a leader in the anti-Vietnam movement and led a number of anti-war demonstrations; the disruption of House Un-American Activities Committee hearings in 1966 and a march on the Pentagon in October, 1977. Rubin was a member of the "Chicago Seven" on trial in 1969-70 for allegedly disrupting the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

The Wayne State presentation, sponsored by the Student Senate, is open free to the public.

Stockpiling Cautioned In Inflation Battle

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of five articles pertaining to anti-inflation messages. The Nebraska Society of Certified Public Accountants is sponsor of the columns.)
Faced with the prospect of continuing inflation, wouldn't a family be wise to use its savings, or even borrow, to stock up now on everything it will need for the next two or three years?
Probably not, says the Nebraska Society of Certified Public Accountants, because of what is known as business inventory maintenance costs, which could easily outweigh any savings on the cost of stockpiled items.
"One such expense, say the CPAs, is the high interest caused by inflation, itself — an important reason for not laying by products that won't be used for many months. To purchase those products a family must either pay high interest on money borrowed, or lose high interest on funds that, could otherwise be invested. In either case, the interest must be deducted from any savings on the purchase price."
Some other considerations the CPAs suggest keeping in mind when deciding how far ahead to buy:
The costs of storing the inventory, lost household space, heating and air conditioning expense;
Possible deterioration of the products, loss of strength, flavor, freshness or style, possibly even spoilage;
The bother and expense of protecting the inventory from vermin, fire or water damage;
Insurance protection;
The temptation to be lavish in the use of products that appear to be in such abundant supply.
The CPA Society acknowledges that in addition to the savings possible through paying today's prices rather than those that will prevail a year or two hence, there's the added attraction of "economies of scale" — the price reductions that come from buying in bulk. But, a society spokesman warned, if business conditions were to turn down, as some economists expect, big savings in inventory could turn into big losses.
"That's what happened to many companies in 1974," a CPA Society member said. "They were heavily stocked when a recession set in and had to dump millions of dollars of inventory at a loss."
Industry, say the CPAs, is generally playing its cards close to the vest at present, keeping on hand only what it expects to need during the weeks ahead — sometimes stocking ahead no longer than it would take to restock an item if it were to run out.
CPAs often warn small-business clients against speculating on their inventory — buying large amounts when the price is low in hopes of turning a profit on it. Such speculation not only ties up hard-to-find working capital, they advise, it puts the company into the jolting of commodities, which may not be the business the company was set up to engage in.
The CPAs say that even large companies, which often go into the futures market to buy commodities they will need in the months ahead, do so almost solely to insure adequate supplies and prices they can count on. Although they may occasionally turn a profit (or loss) on futures trading, that is not the primary concern.
Speculation in commodities, say the CPAs, is strictly for those who know what they're doing, and buying supplies too far in advance is speculation.

La Leche Sets Session Oct. 30

La Leche League meeting No. 2 will be held at 10 a.m. Oct. 30 at the LaVerle Helmes home northeast of Hartington.
Discussion for this meeting will focus on "the art of breastfeeding and overcoming difficulties." This is generally considered the "how to" part of the series. Lunch will be served following the meeting for those mothers and tots who can stay.
LLL is groups of mothers who get together informally to share their successful mothering experiences. LLL exists to provide information and encouragement to those mothers who chose natural mothering. LLL recommends that you attend a four meeting series before your baby is born and then for as long as you chose after your baby's birth.
Though LLL Leaders go through a certification process, they are primarily mothers who have had the practical experience of breastfeeding. For more information contact: Cindy, 373 2230, or Karen 254-6724.

Can Continue to Redeem Wheat

Producers may continue to redeem wheat from the farmer-owned grain reserve at least through Oct. 31. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has announced.
The Agricultural Marketing Service daily average, adjusted prices on Sept. 28 and the mid-month price for wheat reported by the Economics, Statistics, and Cooperatives Service were above the $3.29 per bushel release level. The daily adjusted price on Sept. 27 was $3.72 and the mid-month price was $3.84. Storage earnings stopped for reserve wheat loans on June 30 in all states.
Since wheat was released from the reserve May 16, producers have redeemed 139.7 million bushels, 38.7 percent of the 413.2 million which were then in the reserve.

Loan Associations Involved

The Nebraska League of Savings and Loan Associations announced the implementation of a Robbery Reward Program to assist federal and local law enforcement agencies in solving and preventing crimes against the 43 savings and loans across the state who are members of the Nebraska League.
Participating savings and loans in Wayne include Columbus Federal Savings & Loan, Wayne Federal Savings & Loan.
The program was announced at a press conference hosted by Nebraska Gov. Charles Thone in his office at the state Capitol Oct. 16. Betty Addison, president of the Nebraska League, announced details of the program and Harlan C. Phillips, special agent in charge of the Nebraska office of the FBI also participated in support of the program. Governor Thone said he felt the program was an excellent idea and pledged his full support.
In an effort to discourage crimes against member savings and loans the league will pay up to $1,000 to any person who furnishes information which leads to the arrest and indictment of persons suspected of robbery, burglary, larceny or extortion against a member savings and loan association. Funding for the program will be provided from the League General Fund.
This program is the league's response to the rapidly increasing rate of robberies across the nation in 1979.
Phillips, who gave the FBI's endorsement of the program, stated that forcible crimes against financial institutions nationwide is up 21.8 percent while such crimes against Nebraska financial institutions increased by 66 percent from June 30, 1978 to June 30, 1979.
Nebraska League member associations have 225 offices located in easily accessible areas for the convenience of their customers. According to Mrs. Addison, who also is president of Wayne Federal Savings and Loan Association of Wayne, "By providing convenient access for our customers, we could also be making it easier for potential criminals as well. We want to help deter crimes against our institutions and protect our customers and employees. We know the best investment is the promise of speedy arrest and prosecution of offenders. Our Reward Program is designed to encourage the help of citizens in this effort."

First It's Proposition 13; Now, It's Proposition 4

California may be leading the way again. Proposition 13, which touched off a nationwide tax revolt last year, has a sequel — Proposition 4.

As most Americans know, California voters slashed their property taxes in half by approving Proposition 13. Proposition 4, if approved in the November polling, would slap a limit on spending at state and local levels.

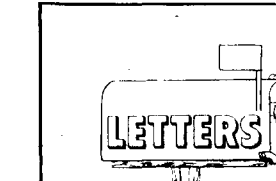

As people earn cost-of-living increases, which push them into higher income tax brackets, federal revenues rise accordingly. This explains the tax windfall.

States, remarks: "Their members are so far above the minimum wage, you might ask yourself why do they propose increases in the minimum wage? It's because of the 'ripple' effect."

A distantly-familiar voice said "Hey, pied typer, how's it goin'?" My former college roommate, unseen for nearly nine years, was as exuberant as ever in his pseudo-hippy argon.

other college plays at Wayne and was extremely impressed with the talented young people there. That's why, when I know what they're really capable of, I can't understand why they chose to produce such a tasteless offensive play as "Hot L. Baltimore."

With latest government figures showing that the average production worker lost more than $8 a week in purchasing power in the last 12 months — all workers shared similar losses — is it too much to ask Congress to cut back on spending and live within our means?

Consider a employer who can build a fence by using three low skilled workers each earning $14 a day ($42 total labor cost for the fence), or by using a highly skilled worker who earns $38 a day. He hires the $38 a day worker.

What's up?" I replied, searching in my memory for remnants of hippie-type language. Now a refined journalist, much of the slang of college life had left me.

Local Women's Organization Is Joining in National Observance

Women throughout the country are taking part in special programs and observances this week to honor National Business Women's Week, Oct. 21-27.

Mrs. Roberta Welte, president of the Wayne Business and Professional Women's Club (BPW) said this year's theme is "Decade for Decision: Together We Aspire, Together We Achieve."

As part of the observance, the local BPW Club is planning to cosponsor a Northeast Nebraska Women's Business Seminar at Wayne State College on Nov. 1.

The seminar is designed to acquaint women with the problems and techniques of operating and managing a small business. Noted author and business consultant Charlotte Taylor of Washington, D.C. will be the keynote speaker.

Mrs. Welte said the local BPW is just one of many groups of women forming connections that will not only help them in their careers, but will improve the general status of women.

"In 1970," said Mrs. Welte, "there were 31 million women who worked. In 1980, there will be an estimated 45 million working women."

"Not only are there more of us than there were at the beginning of the last decade, but we have made some important progress," said Mrs. Welte, adding that there are more women in prestigious well-paying professions and professional schools. "More women also have entered traditionally male white collar and blue collar occupations, including engineering, carpentry and auto mechanics."

Although women have made great progress, Mrs. Welte said most working women still suffer from unequal opportunities.

Mrs. Welte said the Business and Professional Women's Organization has been a network for years. Since 1956, a major part of the foundation's work has been putting women in touch with other women, information and services.

"Forty-five million working women can accomplish almost anything," said Mrs. Welte, adding that if together we aspire, together we will achieve.

Randy's Recap

DON'T BE SURPRISED if there are no more Nebraska North-South All-Star basketball games. In the past, the north team practiced at Wayne State College and many community organizations welcomed the athletes and made them feel right at home. More information will be included in a future article, after details on the situation can be obtained.

LORI MAGNUSON, daughter of Mrs. Sylvia Magnuson of Wakefield, has been elected co-captain of the University of South Dakota Coyotes volleyball team. She has been a four-year starter for the defending South Dakota AIAW champions.

THE WAYNE STATE COLLEGE women's athletic team will no longer be referred to as the Wildkittens. Apparently the WSC women feel it is time the Kittens grew up. So from now on, the WSC women's teams will be called the Lady Wildcats.

I never did really care for the nickname "Wildkittens" anyway. I always figured "Wildkitten" meant a baby Wildcat and didn't refer to gender in any way. Wildcats are wildcats whether male or female.

It's always been my belief that all athletic teams in a school should be referred to by the same nickname. For example, if the men's team is designated the Wildcats, the women's team should also be called the Wildcats. The same goes for Bears, Trojans, Eagles and Blue Devils. I always thought it was ridiculous to call one team the Warriors and the other the Warriorettes.

Some people will argue and say that if a boys' football team is called the Dragons, then the girls' volleyball team should be called the Dragonettes, so the two teams can be distinguished from one another in the newspapers. Whatever's right!

RECENT CSIC FOOTBALL stats show a couple of Wayne State players doing well in special categories. Running back Bob Barry is the third leading rusher in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference with a 91.5 yard rushing average per game. He has totaled 549 yards in six games.

Pat Maxwell ranks number three in punt receiving and number four in punting. Maxwell has made 17 pass receptions for 274 yards and a 16.1 yard average per catch. He punted the ball 42 times for an average of 38.9 yards per kick.

THE PITTSBURGH PIRATES now reign as WSC champions after defeating the Baltimore Orioles in the seven-game World Series. Although I am an Orioles fan, I had to give credit to the Pirates. They outplayed my team in the final two games and deserved the championship.

I CHECKED BACK on the stats of Major League baseball players. I was of curiosity I had predicted Pittsburgh to win the National League East. I was missed by a mile. My prediction of Los Angeles edging out Cincinnati at the West I also missed on my pick of Kansas City to finish ahead of California but came closer when I said that Baltimore and Boston would challenge for the American League East title.

AN OLD FRIEND and former resident at Wayne State College (a few years ago) Dick Buntgen, made the best predictions I saw anywhere. He predicted that Baltimore, California, Montreal and Houston would win their respective divisions. He just about hit all four.

Anyone can pick a Cincinnati or Pittsburgh to win a title. They're potential powers. But his selections of Montreal and Houston really impressed me. But he used to read "Sporting News" like his life depended on it and calculated every team's statistics on his pocket calculator.
