Band Takes Top Honor at Lincoln

Although the football team of Wayne-Carroll School District isn't faring too well this season, one of its major supporters — the marching band — has brought home a "one time only" top honor.

THE MARCHING Blue Devils won first place in Class B at the Cornhusker Centennial Invitational Field Competition Saturday at Memorial Stadium in Lincoln. Wayne-Carroll instrumental director Ron Dalton said his musicians edged out Wisner-Pilger and David City Aquinas which took second and third places respectively in their class. The competition, by invitation only, was part of the University of Nebraska band's centennial celebration. The event was a first, and won't be held again for 100 years, if ever.

THE 90 members of the Marching Blue Devils were judged on each of three areas: music playing, marching and general effects (showmanship). Judges were Kenneth Thompson, Wichita, Kan.; Daniel Gish, Shawnee Mission, Kan.; and Don Marcoulier, Drake University in Des Moines. Judging was done on a point system, with 100 points tops in each judging category. Wayne received an 87, 92 and 95 for a total of 274 of 300 possible points.

THE SATURDAY competition was the first contest the Wayne-Carroll band has participated in this season, with competition slated at Wisner-Pilger Saturday, Dalton said. Wayne is scheduled to perform at about 2:20 p.m. in the Marching Band Invitational.

The contest in Lincoln was the first head-to-head competition. Wayne-Carroll has faced this year, and bands were grouped into three categories: Class A and 2A, Class B and Class C and D.

Dalton said invitations were sent to bands throughout the state last spring, and only three from each of the categories were chosen to participate in the centennial competition.

IN ADDITION, there was an open class parade contest earlier that day in Lincoln, with Papillon-LaVista taking top honors. Only one trophy was awarded in that contest, Dalton explained. "The day was very exciting for the kids," Dalton said. It was the first time his band had experienced the artificial turf of Memorial Stadium.

SOME OF the best bands in the state were on hand, and comradery among the schools was excellent, Dalton said.

The bands gave "superior performances," he said, and Wisner-Pilger and Wayne were two of the best bands there. He received compliments from other band directors on Wayne's performance and sportsmanship.

ALLEN O'DONNELL looks over his Ted Kennedy poster, hoping that the Massachusetts senator will announce his presidential candidacy within a month. O'Donnell said that good feeling for Kennedy is present in Northeast Nebraska because of a residual feeling left from Bobby Kennedy's visit to the area in the 1960's.

Winter Rears Ugly Head With Snowfall

Old Man Winter paid a not so subtle and premature visit to the Wayne area Sunday night and early Monday morning.

Residents awakened Monday morning to a thin blanket of snow and falling rain mixed with snow. The windchill index registered 4 degrees above zero.

However, temperatures warmed into the 50's by midweek and were expected to top 70 by the weekend.

There were no reported power outages or any incidents related to the early blast of winter.

Scholarship to Chamber Exec

Wayne Industries Executive Vice President Gary Van Meter has been awarded one of two $250 scholarships by the Nebraska Industrial Developers Association.

The scholarship entitles Van Meter to attend any one of nine basic industrial development courses in the nation through 1980.

Van Meter also serves as executive vice president of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

Nebraskans For Kennedy O'Donnell, Committee Await Ted's Decision

He sits at his dining room table, glances at the two Kennedy posters on the wall and ponders the many hours of campaigning that undoubtedly lie ahead.

DURING PAST presidential elections, Allen O'Donnell supported Robert Kennedy, Hubert Humphrey, George McGovern, Birch Baye and Jimmy Carter. Now, he's a Ted Kennedy man.

The Wayne State College associate professor of political science is not just a Kennedy supporter, he is organizer of the "Nebraskans For Kennedy Committee." Purpose of the committee, which O'Donnell organized on Sept. 9, is a straight-forward one. The group simply wants to get Ted Kennedy to run for the highest office in the United States.

THE "DRAFT Kennedy" movement involves contacting as many democrats in the state as possible and urging them to show their support for Kennedy, O'Donnell said.

"We have sent 800 letters and made many phone calls along with the usual public relations efforts to show that there is support in Nebraska," O'Donnell stated.

It is more an effort to let the people know that the organization exists, so if people want to help, they can. About 80 persons have contacted me to give their support," O'Donnell is chairman of the committee.

which he said includes state senators and a good number of state Democratic party officers. The steering committee consists of O'Donnell, Guy Cooper of Humbolt, Jack Cary of Kearney and Linda Abraham of North Bend.

Once Kennedy does announce his candidacy, O'Donnell said the Nebraskans for Kennedy Committee would back a democratic effort to get him through the primary election. A third task, if Kennedy should win the primary, would involve getting him elected.

O'DONNELL said he is backing the Massachusetts senator not because he is a Kennedy but because he is a leader. "I'm not all that unhappy with Carter's program," he said. "Carter is a good, decent, honest man but he can't lead or inspire the people. He doesn't have the capacity to lead."

"Our economy is a horrible mess," said the former national Democratic committeeman for Nebraska. "The president came up with a good energy program but inflation went up from six percent to 13 or 14 percent since he's been in office, despite his efforts. He can't lead the people."

O'DONNELL said he was catapulted into politics by Robert Kennedy in 1968. He added that he "wasn't all that moved by John" (Kennedy) but feels that Ted can provide the leadership the country needs.

"Kennedy has a history in the Senate. Of all the people who want the job, Kennedy is the only one with prime experience," said O'Donnell. "He has spent 18 years in the Senate leading the toughest committees. He's proven that he's not afraid of controversial issues. He does have the name, charisma and the Kennedy mystique. That's a plus in his favor. He can inspire people to follow in hard times."

According to O'Donnell, the Florida caucuses, which showed support for Carter, were popularity tests which were "important as a media event but must make Carter take notice." He pointed out that Kennedy did not visit Florida and spent no money there while Carter had "spent $300,000 and poured in hundreds of millions of dollars in federal grants and aids." Still, Carter lost one-third of his constituency in the southern state, O'Donnell explained. "You might say he was running against a ghost," he added.

WHEN ASKED the significance of Chicago mayor Jane Byrne's public support of President Carter, O'Donnell said that also was a media event and pointed out that the mayor did not say she would vote for Carter. If the election were held today, O'Donnell also pointed out that Carter has poured $5 million into Chicago to get support.

Making a statement on the Chappaquiddick incident, O'Donnell said that Chappaquiddick is ancient history and can't do any more damage than it's already done.

So, until Kennedy makes a formal announcement regarding his political future — an announcement expected near Thanksgiving — O'Donnell and other members of the "Draft Kennedy" movement will wait patiently with firm belief that their candidate has the best chance of anyone of being elected president.

SATURDAY ACCIDENT Injuries resulted from an accident Saturday afternoon south of Wayne on a county road, the Nebraska Highway Patrol reports. Details were unavailable at press-time but will appear in Monday's edition of The Herald.

Accidents, Fire Cast Halloween Gloom

Halloween is the time when ghosts, goblins, spooks and witches come to life, the Northeast Station Cooperative Extension Service reports.

Youngsters will soon be planning Halloween costumes, so parents should be thinking safety. Fire and accidents could cast a very gloomy spell on what was intended to be a festive day.

Homemade costumes should not be made of flimsy materials. Costumes made of yards of old sheeting or paper, and masks made of paper bags may be cheap but they are also dangerous.

Ready-made costumes, masks and wigs should be labeled "flameproof." Don't buy any items not carrying the flameproof label.

Use flashlights, not lighted candles, to illuminate the faces of pumpkins to be carried about by children. Also be sure masks do not restrict the wearer's vision. They need to see on-coming traffic, curbs, steps and other possible danger signals.

Homemade costumes can be given a flame resistant finish with a treatment as simple as starching clothes. You need powdered boric acid and borax. Make a paste of three ounces (1/4 cup) boric acid and a little water. Dissolve the paste in two quarts of hot water. Then add seven ounces (about 1 cup) borax and stir until dissolved.

Costumes or fabric being treated must be dry when put into the solution. Allow to soak until thoroughly wet. Wring or spin excess moisture from costumes and allow to air dry. If an automatic washer is used to spin the costume, the washer should be rinsed immediately to remove deposits left from the solution. If ironing is necessary, use a moderately hot iron.

This flame resistant finish is not permanent and will need to be reapplied after costumes are laundered. This treatment is most effective on absorbent fabrics made of cotton, linen and rayon. It can, however, be used on any fabrics which are not harmed by water.

Wayne's Only Shoe Repair Shop Unique in Its Look; One of a Few in the Area

The White Horse Shoe Repair Shop — an unusual name and an unusual shop.

WAYNE'S ONLY such shop is an obscure little building, scarcely larger than most customers' living rooms. But the talents it contains can save those customers the cost of a new pair of shoes.

Owners Bill and Shirley Swinney explained hesitantly that they named the shoe shop after a Hong Kong restaurant they frequented while he was stationed overseas in 1970 during the Vietnam War.

A FORMER MEMBER of the U.S. Navy, Swinney served in Da Nang from 1968 to 1971. He worked with the SeaBees in construction work.

But his days overseas are behind him now and Swinney has turned his working hours to a pair of occupations — of course, the shoe repair business; and, as operations engineer with Northern Natural Gas Energy Systems.

The two jobs occupy from 10 to 12 hours a day for the former Wayne High School student. He opens his shop about 10 a.m. and works there until about mid-afternoon when his other job responsibilities begin at the energy building north of Wayne State College. The other half of the business partnership carries through until closing time.

MRS. SWINNEY, a native of Hong Kong, has become proficient in most areas of the shoe repair business, but leaves the task of soles to her husband. She does most of the sewing and many of the women's shoes.

While most persons in the shoe repair business are "old timers", Bill and Shirley are novices. They bought the business a year ago next month (November) from Orville "Orv" Hickerson.

Swinney has known Orv "all of my life" and learned through the long-time shoe repairman that the business was for sale. After discussing the offer with Shirley, the two decided to buy.

"Orv" was the trainer, and Bill and Shirley the students. "He taught us what we needed to know, and the rest we've learned from salesmen," Swinney said.

THE EXPERTISE of repairing shoes, leather belts, women's purses, etc., is a dying art, but as shoe shine "boys" of yesterday are.

Swinney says his nearest serious competitor, as far as he knows, is in Norfolk. There are four in Sioux City, a couple in Yankton and a fellow in Laurel. "There's nothing out there in years."

So, The White Horse Shoe Repair Shop has a monopoly of sorts on the business in Northeast Nebraska. With the popularity of owning such a business on a steady decline there isn't much chance of the monopoly being challenged.

EXPERIENCE is the best teacher for Bill Swinney and his wife, Shirley, who own and operate the White Horse Shoe Repair Shop at First and Main Streets. The couple purchased the little shop a year ago from Orville (Orv) Hickerson and have learned the trade gradually from him and various salesmen. White Horse Shoe Repair handles items ranging from all types of shoes to purses and leather goods.

OBSERVATIONS

Rah, Rah for Our Band

We bow to Ron Dalton and his Wayne-Carroll School District Marching Blue Devils. Under his leadership, the band brought home the state's top honor in Class B of the Cornhusker Centennial Invitational Field Competition Saturday in Lincoln. We congratulate him and the talented members of his troupe. Everyone involved, right down to the parents, gave 110 percent in this demonstration of musical and marching ability and showmanship. In a period when football is "re-building," it's a pleasure to see other aspects of the school system continue a fine tradition of leadership and sportsmanship. This honor, which won't be available for another 100 years, is not a fluke as so often is the case in athletics. Dalton and his band have brought home top ratings season after season. — Dan Field.

Social Security Bleak

Interesting thought of the week. It's common knowledge the Federal social security system is having a tough go of it. Congress has forced employers, and subsequently employees, to pay more into the social security system to keep it solvent. One wonders if the fund will remain in the black, and how long taxpayers will allow Congress to continue hiking payments. Alaska's state employees have had enough of social security. On Jan. 1 of 1980, Alaska will become the first state to withdraw from the federal social security program. State workers voted 3-2 to cease their participation in favor of a state program which will be funded by the state and employees.

Lid Bill Strikes Again

The effects of the lid bill surface again. The Fairbury city council, "stunned at receipt of the agreement," voted unanimously not to accept an agreement with the state Department of Roads which would cost the city nearly $400,000 for its share of resurfacing of Nebraska 15. That is the second such setback Nebraska 15 has received. The Wayne city council voted similarly on an agreement

Dear Editor and the people of Wayne: Nebraska may have a champion in its football team, but Wayne definitely has a champion in its marching band. Through many hours of practice and hard work under the supervision of band director Ron Dalton, the Wayne-Carroll band has proven time and time again that it can compete with any band in the state of Nebraska. I'm telling everyone in the Wayne area that if you want chills going up and down your spine and if you want to feel really proud of a dedicated group of young people, come and watch and listen to the Wayne-Carroll band. The band will be performing in Lincoln this Saturday and at Pershing in Wisner Nov. 3. I may be a little prejudiced, but I'm darn proud. A Father of a Band Member John Meiana, Wayne

Halloween Trickery Going Too Far???

Richard L. Leshar, President Chamber of Commerce of the United States
How lucky we are that Halloween comes just once a year. Not that this night of trickery with its witches on broomsticks, candles in carved-out pumpkins and disguised mischief-makers is not filled with fun. It's just that some of the mischief can go a bit too far, and sometimes all that candy becomes too tempting, ... and can lead to big pains in little stomachs. Recently these same concerns have begun to haunt me in a new way. I find myself wondering — and worrying — that while the night of Halloween is mostly make-believe, its spirit of trickery, deception and disguise seems to linger and grow stronger all the time. Certainly there will always be a few who seek to take advantage. That's human nature. And, at least in the business world, these shady practices can be minimized. The disciplines of competition, consumer pressure and what many feel are the excessive number of regulations covering truth in advertising, product labeling and accountability all play a part. But what about government? Aside from elections, are there really any restraints on its ability to make mischief and disguise its failures? Well, let's take a closer look. The message around Washington these days is clear: A member of the administration must either support the team or clear out. No exceptions. Why this sudden new emphasis on unity and discipline? Might it have something to do with a mischievous little problem called inflation, indeed with a near tripling of the Consumer Price Index in less than three years? The trick here is to turn the public's mind away from that ghastly statistic and get it to concentrate on the President's counter arguments. Basically, he makes two points: Every thing that has made inflation worse is someone else's fault, preferably OPEC's (the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries), and, the administration's sole connection with inflation is to make it better. Blaming OPEC is easy enough if we ignore that the surges in U.S. inflation have historically preceded rather than followed the big jumps in oil prices. We'll also have to ignore that West Germany and Switzerland, which import from OPEC a much bigger share of their energy needs than we do, still boast inflation rates much lower than our own. My, my, how curious. Still, rather than quibble, let's look at the reasons the President believes his own inflation program has been effective. First, he says there has been a very stringent effort to eliminate unwarranted spending. Sounds great, although federal spending has soared by 36 percent in three years accompanied by a money supply also ballooning to dizzying heights. Minor details, no doubt. Second, there are fewer employees now working in the federal government. Ooops! Careful Mr. President, there are more — 63,000 more. Probably just an oversight. Third, the government is getting its nose out of private business and private lives. Now there you reassure me. Silly as it seems, I actually thought double digit increases in the regulatory agency budgets, and the creation of those big bureaucracies (the Department of Energy and Department of Education — the latter will no doubt streamline policy with the help of 13 executive level employees all earning in excess of $50,000) might create more meddling and inflation. Fourth, the budget deficit has been cut by $36 billion. Congratulations! However, might you consider adding this one key point you always seem to omit: The deficit was cut because double digit inflation pushed working Americans into higher tax

New Litter Law to Bring Controversy

Capitol News By Melvin Paul Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association Rules for implementation of the litter tax law have been approved by state Tax Commissioner Fred Herrington. The rules for putting into effect the controversial statute were drafted by the state Revenue Department and have been endorsed by Gov. Charles Thone, the attorney general and the secretary of state. Even though the law is now in effect, it apparently will be the subject of continued debate in the 1980 Legislature. The law, which has been described by Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler as "a complete fiasco," imposes a tax on businesses whose activities could cause litter. The tax will be $150 on each $1 million of gross proceeds of businesses manufacturing, selling or selling at wholesale products that fall into specified categories. These include food for human or pet consumption, tobacco products; soft drinks and carbonated water; liquor products; paper products, excluding newspapers, magazines and literary works, containers made of glass, metal, plastic or fiber, and cleaning agents or toiletries. Herrington said drugs and medicines will not be included under provisions of the law, nor will farmers, ranchers or fishermen. Also excepted will be products stored in grain elevators, if the products are not milled, and retailers who prepare drinks or food for their own consumption. The possibility of including farmers and ranchers triggered considerable debate this summer and prompted the Revenue Department to ask the attorney general for an opinion. At that point, Thone stepped in and said the law was never intended to apply to farmers and ranchers. The governor also ordered that the request for the state Justice Department opinion be dropped. Herrington blamed much of the confusion about the law to the Legislature's underfinancing a Revenue Department plan for administering the law. The department wanted sufficient funding to prepare lists of businesses covered but received only about half the money requested. Fowler, a strong supporter of the "bottle bill" that was defeated in last November's election, has said the litter tax has cost the state a considerable sum and it is doubtful it will generate more revenue than its administrative costs. Herrington said the tax may not produce enough money for financing the program. The original estimate was that 40,000 to 60,000 businesses would have to pay the litter tax. As of a week ago, only about 1,200 businesses had been licensed under the law, formally known as the Nebraska Litter Reduction and Recycling Act. According to Fowler, the litter tax statute has led to "widespread and flagrant disregard" for tax laws without providing a solution for the litter problem.

OUT OF OLD NEBRASKA

Following a brief announcement that he would not seek re-election in 1978, President Calvin Coolidge in the summer of 1927 traveled widely around the country of 1927. He was the first president to travel in a modern presidential motorcade. Coolidge began to visit "every round up, fair, and spectacle" to which he was invited and kept a "special train" ... constantly ready for journeys. ("Lincoln State Journal," Aug. 18, 1927, on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society). The Aug. 12, 1927, "Rushville Recorder" reported a prospective Coolidge visit of special interest to the citizens of northwest Nebraska: "President Coolidge has accepted an invitation to visit the Pine Ridge Reservation on Aug. 17, 1927. He will come from his summer home in the Black Hills, to Rushville, Nebr., where an official delegation will meet him and escort him to the Agency. It is believed the official visit will be not more than three or four hours. "An industrial display, as well as a display of the native curiosities of the Ojibwa Sioux gathered from all parts of the reservation, will be on display at the Agency Office. "It is expected that from ten to thirteen thousand Indians will be in camp at what is known as the old fair grounds, about one and one-half miles east of the Agency, on Highway No. 50. A parade staged wholly by the Indians, dancing, teepee pitching, moccasin game, and other old Indian features will be viewed by the President from a grandstand. At the conclusion, a grand finale will be staged, whereupon the participants will be grouped en masse and a few fitting words of the deep appreciation felt by the Ojibwa Sioux for the honor conferred upon them by the President's visit, will be spoken by a Chief of the Tribe. Following this, it is believed from five to seven hundred Indians will be seen in full native dress in their characteristic dances. "It will be an event that will outlive anything of its kind in the history of the West. We invite our friends and neighbors from the adjoining towns in South Dakota, Nebraska, and Wyoming to join us, and to enjoy the President's visit." When the great day arrived, President Coolidge and his party started from Rapid City, South Dakota, by private railway car over the Chicago and North Western Railroad. They arrived about 11:30 a.m. in Chadron, where the train paused just long enough for Chadron mayor C.H. Bisping to shake hands with the President and present flowers to Mrs. Coolidge "in behalf of the city of Chadron." ("Chadron Chronicle," Aug. 18, 1927). The train then proceeded to Rushville. The impact of the presidential visit on the small Sheridan County community was reported by the Aug. 19, 1927, Rushville Standard: "Never before ... did a President of the United States ever visit Rushville. When word was given out that President and Mrs. Coolidge, who are spending their summer vacation in the Black Hills of South Dakota, would be in Rushville on their way to Pine Ridge for a few hours, people from all parts of the county began to arrive, some the evening before, and by noon. Rushville was so jammed with automobiles that walking was difficult. The crowd, however, soon dispersed when the Presidential train arrived and headed for Pine Ridge." Highlights of festivities at the reservation itself were reported by the August 18, 1927, "Lincoln State Journal": "Shortly after the President's arrival the Indians paraded before him in full regalia. While the tom toms let out a slow dreary Indian tune, several hundred chiefs and braves stepped into the fantastic snake dance. The tom toms sounded louder and their thump thumps came faster, as the dancers swept up to its climax, accompanied by savage yells from the dancers." Before taking his seat in the rude grandstand located at the fairgrounds, the president was surrounded by half a dozen Indian chieftains who read to him a memorial presenting their claim for more money for these lands. ... Mr. Coolidge seemed interested in what the Indian Chieftains had to say. "Upon entering the agency ground, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge stopped at the Episcopal church where ... Indian ministers dressed in their black and white church robes stood in front of the church and sang 'America' after the president had been presented with gifts. 'America' was sung in the Indian language of the Sioux. ... Indian squaws gave the president a beaded tobacco pouch and Mrs. Coolidge a beaded purse." President Coolidge spoke to the assembled Indians before the presidential party left the reservation and arrived back in Rushville about 4 p.m. for its return trip to Rapid City. For many Nebraskans — both whites and Indians — the brief tour had provided their only glimpse of a President in an area Presidents seldom visited.

brackets causing them to suffer the worst tax increases last year in post-war history. Just a suggestion. Fifth, "the price constraints and wage constraints that we have imposed on a voluntary basis have had very beneficial results." I confess your English confuses me here, Mr. President. Do you mean those voluntary controls your Administration wants to impose by encouraging sanctions, blacklisting and threats against people who do not properly cooperate?

Anyone still doubting the President's determination to find peace of mind from his most recent pledge: "So whatever it takes to control inflation, that's what I'll do." And does he ever mean business! Immediately preceding the recent election caucuses, virtually every top Administration official flew to Florida and joined the war on inflation by announcing millions upon millions of dollars in federal grants. One Democratic Congressman exclaimed: "I've never seen anything like it. We're getting money for highways, for housing, for hospitals. One more grant and the state will sink under the weight of these projects."

Let's be serious, Mr. President. From what we've seen of the tricks, I think we'll pass up the treats.

Abortion policy changes The University of Nebraska board of regents has adopted a policy that forbids any non-therapeutic abortions at University Hospital in Omaha. Dick Wood, counsel for the university, said therapeutic abortions are those defined as necessary to the survival or health of the woman. Regent Kermit Hansen of Omaha, who was ill, was not present for the vote on the policy change. All other regents supported it.

The vote was cast about a month after the live birth and the death several hours later of an aborted fetus at the University Hospital and less than a week after the incident was publicized.

The doctor who performed the abortion, Dr. C.J. La Benz, 31, has said he made a mistake in estimating the woman was 19 to 20 weeks pregnant. The fetus was in the latter part of the second trimester, 22 to 27 weeks. It lived 2 1/2 hours, and La Benz said he did not think the situation warranted the use of "heroic measures" to save the life. The doctor has been charged with committing an unlawful abortion and with failing to care for a child about alive. If found guilty of the felony charges, the doctor could be sentenced to a maximum of 10 years in the penitentiary and fined up to $10,000.

One section of the Nebraska abortion law says: "No abortion shall be performed after the time at which, in the sound medical judgment of the attending physician, the unborn child clearly appears to have reached viability, except when necessary to preserve the woman from an imminent peril that substantially endangers her life or health."

Douglas County Attorney Donald Knowles said the abortion was performed after the child a boy, reached the stage of viability and there was no imminent peril to the life or health of the mother. Knowles, in filing the charges, also cited another section of the law which states "all reasonable steps, in accord with the sound medical judgment of the attending physician, shall be employed in the treatment of a child aborted alive with any chance of survival."

La Benz has said he decided against use of extraordinary measures to save the child because he believed they would be futile. He said three other physicians agreed with his assessment of the situation.

La Benz's attorney, Lawrence Baff, said when all the facts become known, his client's innocence will be apparent.

Will challenge Sen. Marsh LaVon Crosby, wife of former Gov. Robert Crosby, has announced plans to challenge Sen. Shirley Marsh for Lincoln's 29th Legislative seat.

Mrs. Crosby, long active in the Republican Party, married Crosby, a Lincoln attorney and lobbyist, in 1971. Crosby was elected governor in 1952, the same year Mrs. Marsh's husband, Frank, was elected secretary of state.

Mrs. Crosby, 35, said she "not running against Shirley Marsh," who is expected to seek re-election for a third term. Mrs. Crosby said she has thought about running for the Legislature for several years and almost became a candidate in 1976 but her activity with the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra prevented her from getting involved.

The former governor's wife has not been active in working for the Equal Rights Amendment for which Mrs. Marsh has been one of the Legislature's most vocal supporters.

According to Mrs. Crosby, the objectives of the constitutional amendment can be achieved with continued changes in laws and attitudes that handicap women. She said she will conduct a people-oriented campaign and will seek the opinions of the residents of her legislative district.

Her husband won't direct her campaign, Mrs. Crosby said. "But with Bob's background, I'd be foolish not to ask for his advice."

Wakefield Wins Its Own Tournament

Playing up to their potential, the Wakefield Trojans won their own Wakefield Invitational volleyball tournament with three consecutive wins, Saturday.

The Trojans dumped Ponca 15-3, 15-4, then topped Bancroft 15-4, 15-8 and defeated Laurel 15-13, 15-11 to win the championship. Laurel and Allen placed second and third respectively to give The Wayne Herald area a one-two-three finish in the five team tourney. The teams' records are: Wakefield, 8-5; Laurel, 5-9; Allen, 9-5.

Results: First round — Wakefield defeated Ponca 15-3, 15-4. Semifinals — Wakefield defeated Bancroft 15-4, 15-8; Laurel defeated Allen 15-13, 15-9. Consolation — Allen defeated Bancroft 17-15, 15-12. Finals — Wakefield defeated Laurel 15-13, 15-11.

Wakefield over Laurel in finals

Paced by Ardie Barker, the Trojans built up a big lead in the first game and held on to win, despite a strong finish by Laurel. The Bears continued their comeback in the second game, but a late surge by Wakefield netted the win.

Barker put Wakefield ahead 10-0 in the first game on 10 consecutive good serves before she served one into the net. The Bears rallied and closed the gap to 11-4, 13-9 and 14-13 before Joan Miller connected on the winning serve for Wakefield.

The two teams engaged in a slow scoring battle in the second game. The Trojans led by three or four points early in the game as both teams made a few mistakes. Then, Laurel staged its comeback and took a slim 11-9 lead. With Wakefield trailing 10-11, Barker rotated to the serving position and five good serves for a 15-11 Trojan win.

Allen wins consolation match

The Allen Eagles rebounded from a semifinal loss to Laurel to take third place in the tournament. Allen built a big lead against Bancroft but fell into a mid-game slump and trailed the Bulldogs 14-15. Stacey Koester served two points to put the Eagles on top 16-15 before losing the serve. Then, Ann Gwin served the winning point in a 17-15 first game victory.

Laurel won this rare meeting with no individual standouts. The Bears and the Eagles exchanged one-point leads for much of the first game with Des Williams leading Allen with strong serving and Janet Peterson and Lisa Erwin spiking the ball well.

There was considerable action but little scoring between the evenly matched teams. The Bears were led at the net by an aggressive Paula Chace and received consistent play from Jan Cooper, Roxie Kraemer, Dixie Manz, Janet Walton and Kay Anderson.

Laurel won the first game 15-13 and built a lead in the second game. Allen rallied to tie the game 9-9 but the Bears took over at that point. Chace set the ball well for the winners.

Wakefield strong in first two matches

The Wakefield Trojans dominated winless Ponca in the opening match of the tournament for a 15-3, 15-4 triumph. Ponca could not handle Wakefield's serving and the Trojans added to their threat with some good spiking from Jolene Bartels, Kathy Gustafson and Joan Miller. Joni Erb, Jackie Lueth and Kelly Murphy bumped and set the ball well for the winners.

Against Bancroft, the fifth rated team in the Norfolk Daily News' Class D top five, the Trojans played a similar style of offense and put the Bulldogs away in two games, 15-4, 15-8. Bancroft is coached by Wayne State graduate Pam Bishop.

Scrimmage Ends Fall Baseball Practice

Wayne State's baseball team concluded its fall practice with an inter-squad scrimmage at 11 a.m. Saturday in Wayne. The Wildcats, 23-22 in 1979 and District 11 champions, hope to continue to improve in 1980.

Head coach Ron Jones had returned from a one-semester sabbatical leave and said he is pleased with his team's prospects for 1980.

"It really is an encouraging thing to come back to this kind of situation," he said. "I really think Steve Anson did a remarkable job with the ballclub last year. We were young last year as indicated by the progress of the team. Steve brought them along slowly and by the end of the season they were playing some very, very good baseball."

Jones said he feels that inexperience could hurt the team early this year also. According to Jones the pitching staff is the biggest question mark.

"We have two veterans who are throwing for us for their fourth year," Jones commented. "Dewey Edgar out of Millard, and Mark Larson of Millard, Iowa. These two have been stalwarts on the mound. They've proven that they can come in in tough situations and do the job and they've given some leadership to our young staff. After those two it comes down to a matter of experience of one year."

Despite the inexperience, the Wildcats have a solid group of veterans returning. Leading the list is sophomore standout Bill Schwartz of Wayne. As a freshman the 6-2, 190-pound first baseman led the Wildcats in batting with a .384 average. He also added seven home runs and a team leading 32 RBIs despite playing in only 31 of the Wildcat's 45 games. Those statistics were good enough to win an Honorable Mention listing on the NAIA All-American team.

Other WSC players returning who received post-season honors included another Wayne product, Mike Meyer along with Schwartz and sophomore outfielder Brian Blatchford of Ponca were named to the NAIA District 11 All-Star team.

The Wildcats will begin their workouts for the spring season with indoor practices in mid January.

JONI ERB, a 5-2 senior for the Wakefield Trojans, bumps a serve from the opposing team as Jolene Bartels prepares to hit the shot in Wakefield Invitational action, Saturday.

Laurel Spikers Lose To Walthill

Walthill, champion of the Lewis Division of the Clark Conference, defeated the Laurel Bears 15-12, 15-12, Tuesday night.

Kay Anderson scored eight points for Laurel but Walthill picked up the win. "Walthill is a good team; they really impressed me," said Laurel coach Dwight Iverson. "Now, we're going to start working for districts."

Laurel won the B team match 15-1, 8-15, 15-6 with Jill Hansen leading the team with nine points. With three girls missing action because of illness, substitutes sparked the reserves to victory. No C match was played.

Laurel is scheduled to play at Hartington CC, Thursday, Nov. 1. The Bears have a 5-10 record entering that game.

JANET PETERSON a 5-11 sophomore for the Allen Eagles, spikes this ball for a point in action against Laurel in the Wakefield Invitational, Saturday.

Softball Squad Ends Fall Practice Session

The Wayne State College women's softball team has completed fall practice after three weeks and third year coach Sue Kovar said that though she would like to have practiced longer she still accomplished her primary goal.

"What I really wanted to accomplish was to look at the talent that was on campus who wanted to try out because if I wait and do that when the snow is on the ground, I really am not giving the girls a real good chance to show me their talent," she said.

Last year's squad finished with an 18-13 overall record but had to rely primarily on defense and pitching to win. The 1979 team managed only a 220 team batting average. Kovar said the Lady Wildcats will begin working to improve in that area after Christmas break.

"Both years that I've been here our defense has been really, really strong and our hitting has not been particularly good," she said. "We're going to work on that this winter. After Christmas break we're going to start with some drill work inside. We've been lifting weights. It's not that they're not strong. They are strong. I think it's a matter of fundamentals," Kovar added.

WSC Ups CSIC Record

Wayne State's volleyball team improved its CSIC record to 4-7 Friday and Saturday by defeating Missouri Southern and Washburn. The Lady Wildcats also lost to Kearney State in Saturday's action. Wayne State's women spikers lost three matches Wednesday, going down to defeat twice at the hands of Missouri Western and once to the University of Nebraska Junior Varsity. The Lady Wildcats are now 12-16-4 overall.

Allen Tops Homer Six

The Allen Eagles got back on a winning track Tuesday after losing to Laurel in the finals of the Wakefield Invitational Volleyball Tournament, Saturday. The Eagles defeated Homer 15-12, 13-15, 15-8 on the road.

Wendy Lubberstedt was the team leader in the match but everyone played well according to coach Gary Troth. "We played more consistently than we have recently," said Troth. "We didn't have any long dry spells. Now we can concentrate on working more closely knit."

Allen won the B match in three games, the C team match in three games and a junior high match in three games. The varsity record is now 10-5. The Eagles will take the road to play Coleridge, Thursday, Nov. 1.

Cats Fall In Second Half

By Kevin Weiberg
Wayne State SID

Pittsburgh State University heading into a gusty wind, drove 80 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter and never looked back as the Gorillas downed Wayne State College 35-7 Saturday night in Pittsburgh's Brandenburg Stadium.

The game, a close struggle throughout the first half, was dominated in the second half by Pittsburgh's speedy junior running back Richard Overton. Overton dashed for 185 yards in 22 carries including three touchdown runs.

Both teams struggled against a steady south wind throughout the game. Wayne State's only touchdown came on their first possession with the wind at their backs. The Wildcats, starting from their own 26 yard line, marched steadily to the Pittsburgh 35 yard line before the drive stalled and WSC elected to gamble on a fourth and seven.

Tight end Ed Bläskburn made a clutch catch in heavy traffic at the goal line for a 35 yard touchdown connection from quarterback Rick Lade. The PAT by Bart Emanuel was good and the Cats led 7-0 with 4:31 left in the first quarter.

Pittsburgh State pieced together a wind aided touchdown drive about halfway through the second quarter. Following a short Pat Maxwell punt, the Gorillas took over at their own 49 yard line and moved 52 yards for the score in five plays. The key play in the drive was the first one as Gorilla quarterback Mark Hittner successfully ran the flea flicker connecting with all conference tight end Wilton Jones for a 33 yard pass play that gave Pitt State a first down at the Wildcat 18 yard line.

Four plays later Overton scored the first of his three touchdowns as he bolted over from 10 yards out on a fourth and two. The PAT was good and the score was tied 7-7 with 8:50 left in the half.

Early in the third quarter the Gorillas put together the game's most impressive drive moving 80 yards in 17 plays against the wind. Hittner plunged over for two started teeing off on us in terms of the pass rush and putting a tremendous amount of pressure on us."

The aggressive Gorilla defense intercepted three Wildcat passes in the second half. The second interception set up Pittsburgh's third score as Overton dashed 42 yards for the touchdown two plays after Lade's bad pass.

Less than a minute later, Overton scored for a third time, running 40 yards for a 28-7 Pitt State lead. Back up quarterback Nick Molosko pounded the final nail into the Cat's coffin as he sprinted 21 yards for another Gorilla touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Stollenberg said he was impressed with Pittsburgh State's offense.

"Their offense is pretty high-powered with Hittner at the controls at quarterback," he said. "He is an excellent passer and Saturday evening he was throwing the ball right on the money. Overton is an outstanding ball carrier, you have really got to put the pads to him to get him down," Stollenberg added.

The win left Pittsburgh State alone on top of the Central States Intercollegiate Conference (CSIC) with a perfect 4-0 record (5-2 overall). WSC slipped to 2-2 in the CSIC and 3-3 overall.

Must Win Situation

Cats To Host Emporia, Saturday

By Kevin Weiberg
Wayne State SID

A struggle for survival takes place at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Wayne State's Memorial Stadium as the Wildcats host Emporia State University.

Both teams are 2-2 in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference and neither can afford another loss if they hope to stay alive in the title race. The Hornets of Emporia State, who jumped to a 4-1 start, have lost two straight, 31-14 at Missouri Western and 10-7 at home against Kearney State.

First year Hornet coach Bob Seaman's club has been among the league leaders in rushing offense all season. In fact Seaman says his club "throws only out of fright."

The primary reason for the emphasis on running is the Hornets' talented quarterback halfback duo, Pete Kriwiel and Greg Zickefoose.

Senior halfback Zickefoose has rushed for 823 yards already this year and has been among the top 15 rushers in the nation (NAIA Division I). Kriwiel, a speedy sophomore, has gained 379 yards on the ground in 110 carries.

Wildcat head coach Del Stollenberg says his team cannot concentrate too much on the Hornets' running game.

"It's a little bit deceiving. They lull you to death with the run and then they come up with a play action pass and if you're not really on your toes they're getting an easy score or an easy completion," Stollenberg said.

Perhaps the most overlooked aspect of Emporia State's team is the defense. Hornets defenders have limited opposition offenses to less than 14 points in all but one of their first seven contests.

The Wildcats are hoping to rebound from a disappointing 35-7 loss at Pittsburg State last Saturday. Health-wise the Wildcats are in good shape with only wide receiver Jeff Ingram unable to play. Ingram is out for the season with a broken collar bone.

Last year Emporia State pushed in two fourth quarter touchdowns to defeat the Wildcats 28-14 in Emporia. The series between the two schools is even with each having won three times.

STACY JACOBMEIER is on the receiving end of a Madison serve in action at the West Husker Tournament, Tuesday night. Wayne defeated Madison but lost to Lakeview in the finals.

Blue Devils Are Second In West Husker Tournament

The Blue Devils who took the floor in the West Husker Tournament Monday and Tuesday were not the same Blue Devils who won 10 of 13 matches this season. At times, the team that competed in the West Husker Tournament lacked the lustre and aggressive team play that the team had been noted for this year.

Yet the Blue Devils returned to Wayne Tuesday night with a second place trophy for their efforts. Wayne upped its record to 12-3 with wins over Wisner-Pilger and Madison before falling to an excellent Columbus Lakeview team in the finals for its fourth loss.

The third seeded Devils trimmed a much improved Wisner-Pilger team 15-12, 8-15, 15-9 in the opening round Monday. The next hurdle was second seeded Madison in the semifinal round Tuesday.

The Blue Devils played far below their potential and were caught standing around at times. Madison opened leads of 7-3, 10-5 and 13-8 en route to a 15-10 win in the first game.

The second game opened in similar fashion with Wayne dropping behind 0-5. Spikes by Jolene Bennett, Lynn Surber and Stacy Jacobmeier tied the score at 6-6. Bennett and Jacobmeier were both selected to the West Husker All-Tourney second team.

Then, things went bad for the Blue Devils. Bumps sailed into the stands, spikes went into the net and serves were either long or in the net. Madison played well during that stretch to open a 14-8 lead and it looked like Wayne could pack its bags and head home.

At that point, Wayne players seemed to heal their wounds and staged a patient comeback. Bennett and sophomore substitute Tammie Thomas sparked the Devils as they scored eight unanswered points for a 16-14 win.

Wayne trailed 0-4 in the third game but quickly took the momentum away to build leads of 4-4 and 10-6. The point that the team had waited for came when Jolene Bennett served the ball and Lisa Peters played a good net game for a 15-6 victory. Coach Deb Bodenstedt said that her team made to many mental mistakes and was fortunate to win. After finally regaining some of their lost form, the Blue Devils ran into a buzz saw in the finals. Fourth seeded Columbus Lakeview entered the finals with a 12-4 record and a victory over once-beaten Hartington Cedar Catholic in the semifinals.

Wayne was the only other team to defeat Cedar this year. The sophomore spiking duo of Lynae Loseke and Julie Schaf, both All-Tourney first team selections, pounded Wayne early for a 7-0 lead. The Devils started to block and dig the spikes but couldn't ever get back in contention, losing that first game 4-15. Wayne became the aggressor in the second game with each player doing some damage against Lakeview at certain points. The Blue Devils jumped out in front 7-1 with Thomas playing a fine game. Lakeview rallied to tie the game at 8-8 and held on to win the match with a 15-10 triumph in the final game.

All-Tourney team: First team — Deb Schutte, Wisner-Pilger; Krystal Rotherham, Madison; Julie Schaf, Lakeview; Joan Becker, Hartington CC; Lynae Loseke, Lakeview; Terry Henson, Madison. Second team

— Jolene Bennett, Wayne; LaRita Sebade, Emerson-Hubbard; Michelle Knobbe, West Point CC; Stacy Jacobmeier, Wayne; Amy Skovsden, Wisner-Pilger; Kathy Humlicek, Lakeview.

Results: First round — Hartington CC, by; Lakeview defeated Emerson 15-3, 15-6; Wayne defeated Wisner 15-12, 8-15, 15-9; Madison defeated West Point CC 15-13, 16-14. Semifinals — Lakeview defeated Hartington CC 15-4, 15-12; Wayne defeated Madison 10-15, 16-14, 15-6. Finals — Lakeview defeated Wayne 15-4, 15-10. No consolation match was played.

TIM HURLEY

MARTY HANSEN

Wayne State's leading pass rusher Tim Hurley and wide receiver Marty Hansen have been named Wayne State College players of the week for their performances against Pittsburg State University last Saturday.

Hurley, a senior from Omaha, has recorded eight quarterback sacks in 1979, a team leading figure. The 6-3, 210 pounder led the Wildcats in sacks last year with 11. Hurley had 10 total stops against the Gorillas including a quarterback sack.

Senior wide receiver Marty Hansen of Wayne, hauled in three passes against Pitt State for a total of 44 yards. The 5-10, 170-pound senior has grabbed 10 passes through seven games for a total 199 yards. Hansen's 58 yard touchdown catch against Dakota State Sept 15 still ranks as the longest pass play of the year for the Wildcats.

Other Athletes of Week

Other Wayne State athletes of the week announced at last week's Second Guessers meeting were Linda Prchal and Mike Warren.

Prchal is a 5'2 setter on the volleyball team and scored 105

FANCY THAT!

Moped Could Save U.S. 5 Billion Gallons of Gas

US government studies have shown that more than half of all auto trips are made by a single occupant, and four out of five auto trips are less than 10 miles.

If Americans were to use their mopeds—two-wheel motorized pedal vehicles—for those short solo trips during good weather alone, they could replace as much as 85 billion miles of auto travel annually!

Considering that a moped averages 135 miles-per-gallon, Americans could save up to five billion gallons of gasoline each year by choosing the "moped alternative."

That's part of the reason why the moped population has increased tenfold in the US since 1976.

Bereuter to Co-Sponsor Spending Limit

Congressman Doug Bereuter has announced he is co-sponsoring a Constitutional amendment to limit federal spending and the growth of the national economy.

The amendment (H.J. Res. 395) would place a limit on the increase in federal spending to no more than the rate of growth of the national economy.

"I believe this measure provides a straightforward, working and long-lasting approach for fiscal responsibility on the part of the federal government," Bereuter said.

The increase in total outlays in any fiscal year would be limited to the percentage increase in the gross national product (GNP) for the previous calendar year. If inflation during that calendar year exceeds three percent, budget growth would be reduced by one-fourth of the rate of inflation above three percent.

"Of primary importance is the fact that the amendment would prohibit a sudden shifting of program costs to state and local governments," Bereuter noted.

During the first six years after ratification, total grants to state and local governments would be no less than the current fraction of federal spending. Thereafter, grant reductions would be permitted, but only in conjunction with a dollar-for-dollar reduction in federal spending.

Furthermore, the federal government could not impose additional costs on state and local governments without compensation equal to those costs.

The amendment would also retain flexibility needed to meet a national emergency, according to Bereuter. Following a declaration of emergency by the President, Congress could authorize expenditures beyond the limit.

"The amendment process must be approached with the utmost caution," Bereuter emphasized.

"This amendment to limit federal spending is a reasonable means to curb government growth and bring inflation under control by forcing Congress to kick its big spending habit."

Stocker-Feeder Show in Norfolk

The fourth annual stocker-feeder show and sale will be held on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 23 and 24, at the Norfolk Livestock Market in Norfolk.

This event is being sponsored by the Agricultural Economics Council of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, and Lyle Droscher is chairman of this year's event with Duane Zauke serving as vice chairman.

The Stocker-Feeder Show and Sale will feature a 4-H and FFA Stocker-Feeder Show on Friday afternoon in which each exhibitor may show two head of steers or heifers. All calves must have been born after Jan. 1, 1979, and from cows owned by the exhibitor or their parents at the time of the calves' birth.

Animals will be shown in two classes: British breeds, cross-bred and others. No calf shown in the 4-H or FFA division will be eligible to be shown in the open class "Pen of Three" Show.

The 4-H or FFA exhibitor has the option if they wish to sell their stocker-feeder calf in the sale to be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 24.

Jack Eberspacher of Beaver Crossing, will serve as judge for this year's show. Judging of the 4-H and FFA division will begin at 1 p.m., Friday, Nov. 23.

A Showmanship Contest will be a feature of this show and all exhibitors may enter. Trophies will be awarded to champion showman in each division and the top five finalists will receive a purple ribbon.

An open class "pen of three" show will be held at 9 a.m. Saturday. This portion of the show is open to any producer of stocker-feeder cattle. No calf shown in the "pen of three" show will be eligible to be shown in the 4-H-FFA division show.

You may enter as many "pens of three" as you like. There will be an entry fee of $25 per each "pen of three". This money will be used for advertising and part of prize money. Trophies, ribbons and prize money will be given in both the steer and heifer division.

The "pens of three" will sell immediately following the sale of the 4-H-FFA calves at 1 p.m. Saturday. All calves in the "pens of three" competition must be sold and will be sold individually. 4-H and FFA exhibitors may enter their calves between 8 and 11 a.m. the morning of Friday, Nov. 23. The open class "pen of three" calves must be in the yards of the Norfolk Livestock Market no later than 5 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 23. Show rules and regulations, as well as entry blanks are available from your County Agent or Vo-Ag instructor.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Robert J. Jones, Mrs. T.P. Roberts, Mrs. Frank Viasak and Mrs. Harner.

SBA Information Helps The Local Businessman

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles entitled "Focus on Small Business" to discuss relevant issues, problems, trends and opportunities and news of interest to small businesses. The columns have been prepared by Rick Budd, district director of the Small Business Administration. The articles will appear weekly.)

Dear Mr. Budd:

Over the past couple of years, I have had several ideas about how to improve some products and services that seem to be available only through the giant corporations or their subsidiaries. Everything seems to be dominated by the big companies. Is there still an opportunity for a "little guy" like me to go into business with just an idea and a few bucks?

You bet there is! It won't be easy, and the competition's tough, but there's still ample opportunity in our economic system for someone who's got an idea and who's willing to work to succeed with his or her own business enterprise.

In fact, the idea that big corporations dominate American business is not totally accurate. Their influence may be more visible, but the underlying strength of the American economy is small business—even today.

Of the 10.7 million non-farm businesses in this country, nearly 97 percent are considered "small" by U.S. government standards. Yet they account for 43 percent of the gross national product, 58 percent of total U.S. business employment, and they directly or indirectly provide the livelihood of more than 100 million Americans.

Significantly, between 1969 and 1976, small business provided two-thirds of all the new jobs created in America. Government accounted for the other third. The nation's 1,000 largest corporations, during the same period, created less than one-tenth of one percent of the new jobs.

The risks for small businesses are high, though. More than half go bankrupt within their first five years, and all but a fraction of those failures are due to poor management. New businesses are faced with inflation, taxation, regulation and competition, so the decision to strike out with a new enterprise is not to be taken lightly. Despite the perils, however, about 250,000 people start new businesses every year.

And the Nation is better for that effort. Not only is small business our greatest source of new jobs, but small business accounts for a tremendous share of innovation and new technology.

For example, did you know that the helicopter was developed by a small business? So were the ball point pen, the automatic transmission, the instant camera, frozen foods, high-fidelity recordings, wash and dry clothing, the first jet engine, the mini-computer and air conditioning.

Small business innovators are constantly developing new ideas and products, and many of these efforts will result in the success stories of tomorrow.

So don't be discouraged. The opportunities are great for people willing to take risks, to work hard, to put their total effort behind something they think is worthwhile and which may give them lifelong satisfaction and reward.

Be realistic, too. Don't expect overnight success. Be prepared for failure. And know where you want to go before you take the first step.

The Small Business Administration (SBA) can help with information, management assistance and some financial assistance. If you need information or assistance, please call us at the SBA office in Omaha, phone 221-2604.

High Moisture Corn for Feed

To avoid the energy costs of drying corn, many pork producers are considering feeding corn in high moisture (HM) form.

Research has demonstrated that HM corn is an excellent feed for growing-finishing. Producers thinking seriously about feeding HM corn will need to keep in mind four areas: storage method, moisture content, supplementation and feeding method.

Since HM corn will spoil on exposure to air, the corn must be protected. One method is to store it in an oxygen-limiting structure. A second method is to treat the corn with an organic acid such as propionic; then store it in the same manner as dry grain.

Corn with a moisture content of 22.5 percent is preferred for proper ensiling. A moisture content of 30 percent or more may reduce pig performance.

Supplementation of HM corn should be planned ahead and tied into the feeding system used. HM corn is very palatable, and if fed free-choice, pigs often overeat the corn and don't consume enough supplement for maximum performance.

Therefore, the best performance comes when HM corn and supplement are fed as a complete, mixed ration. It is not necessary to grind or crack HM corn as is recommended for dry er. Usually, HM corn must be fed daily to keep it fresh. Automated feeding systems are desirable because of their consistent, timed feeding routine. Recent research suggests that HM milo performs similar to HM corn. However, HM milo should be cracked, mixed with a supplement and fed as a complete feed. Daily feeding also is recommended with HM milo.

Technology Modernizes Herd Production

Although science has yet to build a blonic cow, advances in computer technology and space age mechanization are modernizing Nebraska's dairy herds to near perfection, according to an institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources dairy specialist.

Dr. Foster Owen, an extension dairyman at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, says that computers, television monitors, remote-controlled identification systems and other electronic wizardry are taking the stoop out of dairymen's lives.

The result of the advances in technology has created a "mini-revolution" in dairy science, says Owen.

"Modern dairymen using this technology have unheard of control over their herd's genetic makeup, breeding schedule, feeding program, milking procedures, diseases and even budgetary and inventory matters," he said. "The computerized production and management now in use and that on the drawingboards will undoubtedly have an even greater impact for providing the nation's consumers with an uninterrupted supply of milk products in the years to come."

Owen theorized, however, that the advances in "dairybarn technology" will challenge dairymen to keep pace in the race for more efficient production.

He said that whatever technological advances are made, the computer will be the foundation on which they are based.

"Computers are already monitoring feed formulations and feed disposal so each cow receives the exact amount and ration best suited for it," he said.

The dairy specialist noted, however, that although ration formulation provides the best means available to balance rations and select the most economical feed, only a small percentage of dairymen are taking advantage of it. He added that as the price of computerized systems continues to fall, more dairymen will take advantage of the system.

Owen called the national computerized breeding program, which allows dairymen to select and use semen from the world's outstanding bulls, "the envy of the world's livestock groups."

Wheat Group Annual Report

At their recent meeting in Lincoln, the Nebraska Wheat Committee met with Governor Thone to present their fiscal year 78-79 annual report. The governor expressed his interest in the activities of the Wheat Committee and Wheat Division, particularly in the area of foreign market development. He told the committee that he was encouraged by his stop at the Rotterdam office of Great Plains Wheat during his recent European marketing tour. He said GPW is doing a fine job of representing Nebraska wheat producers.

"We reported to the governor that the Wheat Committee had invested approximately 50 percent of the total fiscal 78-79 budget in foreign market development," says Erv Friehe, committee chairman. "We want to keep the governor aware of our activities as we always have, especially in the area of foreign marketing, which he has placed as a priority item," adds Friehe.

"Another issue discussed with Governor Thone was the proposed merger of Great Plains Wheat and Western Wheat Associates, our producer-run foreign marketing arms," says Friehe. "and the governor supports our merger efforts strongly as he has always supported other developments aimed at benefiting wheat producers. When the governor was in Congress, he went to bat for Nebraska wheat producers wherever the need arose," concludes Friehe.

Through the program, dairymen can select bulls that will transmit selected genes for increased milk production, milk fat percentage, most desirable type characteristics and calving ease. Owen said dairymen can even have individualized breeding programs tailor-made to their own specifications.

The dairy specialist said computers are also keeping an electronic eye on such reproductive data as calving and breeding heat periods and time of dry off or cease milking cows before calving.

Technology has not remained outside the milking parlor, but has also gone to the "heart" of the matter — the cow.

The development of the automatic take-off milking machine, which removes itself from the cow's udder when milk flow drops to a specific level, has resulted in labor savings of 30 to 50 percent, Owens said. Although the automatic milkers have been available for several years, their cost and dependability only recently have made them economically suitable for moderate size dairy operations.

Other electronic wonders now being tested include an energy saving device which uses the heat removed in cooling milk to warm water for flushing the milk lines and washing equipment.

"If the dairyman needs hotter water he will use less gas or electricity to bring the wash water up to higher temperatures," Owen said. "Although heat from the milk can never get water above 120 degrees, setting water up to that level definitely cuts energy costs."

Continuing with advancements in herd breeding, Owen said that cows are being fitted with devices ranging from pedometers which measure cow activity, an indicators of possible heat, to devices for determining whether cows have been mounted.

Not forgetting advances in biochemical research, Owen said the use of hormones to synchronize breeding periods has proven successful and only awaits approval by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. The adoption of the synchronized breeding periods would greatly increase breeding efficiency and reliability over the standard breeding practice of "catching" the cow at the right time, Owen said.

Most dairymen rank heat detection as their biggest management problem," Owen said. "So any advancement in the technology of breeding cows will have a far-reaching impact."

The scientist added that other, potential labor-saving devices are electronically-sequenced gates and automated preparation of cows for milking.

"The big factor right now is working the bugs out of the various systems and making them economically feasible where they will pay for themselves by cutting labor and material costs."

"Some dairymen are using hand held devices that automatically identify a cow when the sensor is pointed towards the animal. When tied into a computer, complete readouts of weight, age, milk production and other statistics important for management are given," Owens said.

One of the simplest innovations is the use of TV monitors to check on cows that are sick or expecting to calve.

"Television monitors are particularly handy when a dairyman needs to check on an animal late at night or during disagreeable weather," he said.

The practice of mixing all feed ingredients into a single mixture and feeding cows in groups according to their production level has resulted in better balance and more economical rations as well as greater savings in labor, Owens said.

"Computerizing is being adopted for larger herds and even for some of the more progressive middle-sized dairies," he said.

Cutting feed costs while maintaining high productivity is every dairyman's dream, Owen said.

"Efforts to find new feed sources will be important in the future for maintaining the lowest, practical feed costs," he said.

One recent discovery has been that shredded, corrugated boxes can serve as a partial substitute for roughage in the ration and will maintain high milk-yield levels, the specialist noted.

The discovery that natural protein sources differ in quality for high-productive cows has led researchers toward developing simple methods of assessing desirable protein quality for lactation rations, Owen said. "Certain commercial feeds are even now being formulated on this basis."

Nutrition research not only has provided increased milk production, but also disease control.

"Newly developed rations incorporating precisely controlled levels of certain minerals has led to dramatic decreases in the incidence of milk fever," Owen said.

Although the recent advances in technology and medicine have put a greater demand on dairymen to keep abreast of technological trends, the dairy specialist said that ultimately the new processes will be beneficial to dairymen and consumer alike.

It's in the mutual interest of all of us to adopt the advances in dairy technology for higher productivity," he concluded.

WE HAVE taken samples from a few bins in the three-year Reserve Program. Some of the bins contain damaging grain beetles and Indian meal moths. We strongly urge everyone to check their corn and grain sorghum for insects right away. These bugs can cause a lot of damage if not controlled.

in the feed grain set aside program are eligible for grain loans. The interest rate is 9 percent and the loan period is for nine months. Wayne County loan rates are: Corn — $1.97; Oats — $1.02; Grain Sorghum — $3.22 (cwt); Soybeans — $4.41; Wheat — $2.37; Barley — $1.56; and Rye — $1.63.

IF YOU find insects, the County Extension Service or Northeast Station will be happy to identify the culprits. Identification is of utmost importance to know what chemical to use.

While you're in that bin, be sure and stir the top and make sure there are not hard spots. This could indicate another problem.

IT IS possible, and advised, to rotate your grain in the Reserve with new grain. This will help alleviate insect and other storage problems. To do this, you must have us measure the grain before rotating. This measurement is at your expense.

Always check with the ASCS Office before removing any loan grain. A telephone call will do. Be sure you have authorization before moving anything.

ALL RESERVE grains are now in the release status. These loans can be repaid without a penalty. They may stay in the Reserve at this time.

PRODUCERS who participate

WE ARE making a number of bin loans. Participation in the set aside program is not necessary to obtain a bin loan.

Generally if you do not have two years storage capacity on your farm, you would be eligible for a loan. Loans of $10,000 or more require a financial statement. The loans can be up to 100 percent and the interest rate is 10 1/2 percent. Loans of $25,000 require a lien on the real estate.

PRODUCERS are asked to report any changes of ownership, operations, or addresses, so our records may be kept current.

CROP yields are generally good in the area, however there are scattered areas where natural disaster has caused low yields and poor quality.

If a loss is anticipated it is the responsibility of the insured to notify the county office located at 401 Sunset Plaza, Norfolk, phone 402-371-1600, within 15 days after harvest is complete.

Question: What can be the high and low moisture variation control for high moisture ground ear corn?

Answer: "Ideal" whole-ear moisture is 32 percent (kernel moisture about 27 percent).

Normal range whole ear moisture is 30-35 percent; maximum range whole ear moisture is 28-40 moisture.

At low moisture levels, fermenting may be inadequate to properly preserve foliage, thereby resulting in losses due to mold. At low moisture levels (below 26 percent kernel moisture) field losses increase quite rapidly.

At high moisture contents, more problems should be anticipated with bridging, freezing, etc. Harvest losses tend to increase due to plugging of machine, and harvest rates are somewhat decreased.

Moisture content is less critical from a fermentation viewpoint in air limiting silos but bridging may be more critical in non-air limiting silos if its generally better to stay towards the upper end of the scale to help assure good fermentation.

Cattle on Feed Top 1.4 Million

Cattle feeders in Nebraska had 1,400,000 cattle on feed on Oct. 1. This inventory was down 15 percent from the record high set last year but was up 11 percent from Oct. 1, 1977.

During the July-September quarter, Nebraska feeders marketed a record 955,000 fat cattle, up 1 percent from the previous year. Placements during the quarter totaled 1,025,000, a decrease of 14 percent from 1978.

The Oct. 1 weight breakdown showed steers and heifers on feed weighing 900 pounds or more totaled $80,000, an increase of 10 percent from 1978. Those in the 700-899 pound group numbered 574,000 down 21 percent from last year. The under 700 pound category, totaled 241,000, 10 percent below a year ago.

Feeders intend to market 1 million cattle for slaughter market during the October-December quarter. This would be 10 percent below the fourth quarter marketings last year.

Feedlots in the 23 major feeding states totaled 9.93 million cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market on Oct. 1. This was 13 percent less than last year's Oct. 1 estimate but 1 percent above the 1977 comparable estimate. This Oct. 1 total is 4 percent below the July 1 estimate.

Placements during the July-September quarter at 5.95 million head, were down 19 percent from last year and the lowest since 1976. Other disappearance for the third quarter in 1979 was below 1978, totaling 352 thousand head; net placements totaled 5.60 million head. Marketings during July-September dropped 8 percent compared with the same quarter in 1978. The 5.98 million head marketed for slaughter is the lowest since 1975.

The Oct. 1 total number on feed included 6.69 million steers and steer calves, 11 percent below 1978 but 6 percent above 1977. They accounted for 67 percent of the total on feed. Heifers and heifer calves were estimated at 3.20 million, 16 percent below last year's record high and 7 percent less than 1977.

Cattle feeders expect to market 5.98 million head during October-December, 1979.

While the nation is preparing for a "head count" in the 1980 Census, Nebraska farmers would do well to take to the field and inventory the weed population at harvest time.

"You can't literally count the weeds in the field, but do take stock of what species are prominent at the end of the growing season," advised John Furrer, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension agronomist.

Furrer noted that where shattercane is found in a field, "think of something besides sorghum for that field in 1980."

Soybeans would be a much preferred crop because top notch herbicides are available for shattercane control in bean fields, the weed specialist explained.

Treflan, Tolban and Basalin are good, and a follow-up with roundup in special applications.

Currently available herbicides do not do as good a job controlling shattercane in corn, Furrer said. "But Eradicane and Sutan normally do a respectable job." However, he pointed out that special applications for controlling "escapes" aren't practical, because there is no height difference between shattercane and corn.

Furrer had these other recommendations for shifting cropping patterns, based on results of an eyeball inspection of the weed scene in a particular field or area:

• Don't plant soybeans next spring in a field now containing perennial weeds such as field bindweed. "No good herbicide is available for controlling field bindweed in soybeans; consider corn or sorghum," he advised.

In the case of foxtails — yellow green, bristly and sticky and glaucous — several pre-emergence and pre-plant herbicides are most effective for control: In corn — Sutan, Eradicane, Lasso, Dual and Prowl. In sorghum — Ramrod and Bexton. In soybeans and dry beans — Treflan, Tolban, Epitani, Basalin and Lasso.

Pigweeds — in corn, use Atrazine; Bladex or 2,4-D; In sorghum, Atrazine or 2,4-D; In soybeans — Sencor or Lexone.

"The bottom line is, take a look at the crop-weed-herbicide program in every field this fall," Furrer emphasized. "A shift or change in the crop or herbicide in 1980 could be a giant step in helping solve a weed problem on a given piece of ground," he concluded.

Scholarships Available For Trustees

Students in high schools across Nebraska have an opportunity to vie for board of trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges Scholarships beginning this month, according to a spokesman from the board office in Lincoln.

The scholarship applications will be sent to each high school counselor in mid-October and must be returned to the Financial Aids Office by Jan. 15, 1980, according to Kearney State College Financial Aids Counselor Sharon Pele.

Students apply for a scholarship at any of the four state colleges; however, once the scholarship is awarded, students may not transfer the scholarship from one state college to another. Recipients must enroll as full-time students. The scholarship will be terminated if the recipient is under academic suspension or probation.

Students who qualify and are selected for Board of Trustees Scholarships may attend any one of the four state colleges tuition-free for the first year. The scholarship may then be renewed for eight academic semesters based on continued high academic standing.

Financial need is not a prerequisite for the scholarship. To qualify, the applicant must be a senior graduating from a Nebraska high school, be a Nebraska resident, rank in the upper quarter of the class, earn an ACT composite score of 24 or a SAT of 1100 or above and be recommended by a high school administrator or teacher.

Food Processors Urge Labeling

The National Food Processors Association (NFPA) has recently urged that nutrition labeling requirements be simplified and made more meaningful by the following changes:

Food processors could voluntarily declare the calories in a food without having to declare other nutrients.

Declarations could be made of important macronutrients (calories, protein, carbohydrates, fats) without requiring the labeling of seven additional micronutrients (vitamins and minerals).

Processors could declare total salt and sodium (an aid to consumers who need to restrict sodium intake for medical reasons) without triggering the requirement to declare all other nutrients.

When fat is included on labels, a statement of the amount of saturated and polyunsaturated fats could be added where these are significant for the food. When fat is labeled, processors could voluntarily list cholesterol levels in grams per serving.

Sugars could be declared in grams per serving as part of total carbohydrates.

Protein could be declared only in grams per serving instead of both grams and U.S. RDA to avoid confusion.

Nutrients present in amounts of less than two percent need not be declared — to avoid label clutter.

The familiar household one cup unit serving size would be retained for most canned fruits and vegetables, but for consistency the weight of each serving also would be declared in grams.

For ease of consumer understanding, NFPA suggested that all nutrients be stated in grams per serving, except for those stated as percentages of U.S. RDA. Presently, nutrients are shown variously in grams, milligrams or percent of U.S. RDA.

According to NFPA President Charles J. Carey, the recommendations are the result of continuing research and "are based upon our understanding of what consumers really want on food labels."

The fee schedule for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln veterinary diagnostic laboratory will include a fee for a serology test on pseudorabies of swine beginning Jan. 1, 1980, swine producers were reminded this week.

Dr. Earl O. Dickinson, head of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources department of veterinary, science, said changes in the current overall fee schedule were approved by the University's board of regents at its meeting Oct. 12.

A fee schedule for UNL veterinary diagnostic services was instituted by the regents beginning Sept. 1, 1978, with a stipulation that serum neutralization tests for pseudorabies be exempt from charges through Sept. 1. In its action last year, the regents instructed that the situation be reviewed after one year of operation. At its meeting Sept. 14, the regents heard reports on the fee schedule and took final action at the October session.

The fee of $1 for each "good (properly processed) sample," will not be charged for the first 100 samples submitted by a herd owner or corporation during the calendar year, Dr. Dickinson explained. The fee will be $1.50 for each sample which needs to be reprocessed by the lab, he added.

Also, fees will be waived for serology testing in cases where the owner is attempting to establish a qualified pseudorabies-free status for the herd, Dr. Dickinson stated. This would not apply if the herd has been tested previously and declared qualified pseudorabies free.

In a presentation to the regents in September, officials noted that "pseudorabies still exists as a major livestock disease problem and evidence indicates that it is increasing in incidence in Nebraska," and pointed out that the producers need to be encouraged to submit samples (through a waiver provision) "in order to maintain surveillance of the disease."

Purpose of the serology test is to detect antibodies to pseudorabies virus in the blood serum of pigs. The presence of these specialized antibodies indicates previous exposure to, or infection by, the pseudorabies virus, Dr. Dickinson said, which could mean that an animal has recovered or is a carrier.

The blood samples taken by a practicing veterinarian are centrifuged to remove white and red blood cells, leaving the blood serum.
