Wayne Resident to Olympics

The city of Wayne will be represented at the XIII Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, N.Y., in 1980.

Julie Brinkman, a former Wayne State College student who lists her address as 1412 W. 13th St., Wayne, has been selected to represent the state of Nebraska in carrying the Olympic Flame to Lake Placid next winter.

THE REV. J. Bernard Fell, president of the 1980 Winter Games, sent a letter recently to Mayor Wayne Marsh informing him of the honor.

Although she is a resident of Wayne, she currently is attending graduate school at Emporia State College in Emporia, Kan.

A TORCH runner from each state has been selected by the Olympic Organizing Committee after a six-month selection process. There were more than 8,000 applicants. Each was picked on the basis of a well-rounded personality and background, as well as running ability. All of the torchbearers are recreational runners, although some also have had competitive experience.

"Julie is an exceptional individual, whose talents, congeniality and positive attitude toward life have impressed and inspired us," the Reverend Fell said in his letter. "We feel she is an enthusiastic example of a person who has tried to live by the ancient Greek ideal of the 'whole man' (body, mind and spirit), all equally important.)

BRINKMAN was named Athlete of the Year at WSC for the 1977-78 school year and was named all-conference in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference for that year.

She led the team in scoring per game and in free throws, hitting 15.4 points per game and 76 percent of her freethrows.

CURRENTLY a graduate assistant at Emporia State, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Brinkman of Rolfe, Iowa.

The City Council Tuesday night decided to formally acknowledge her for her accomplishment and for representing Wayne.

Council Vote Places Sales Tax Issue on Spring Ballot

The City Council voted Tuesday night to give Wayne taxpayers the opportunity to decide the fate of a proposed 1-cent city sales tax.

Voting unanimously, the Council approved a resolution which places the sales tax issue on the May 10 primary ballot.

THE RESOLUTION said inflation has greatly increased the costs of all city services, and that a new source of revenue is needed if those services are to be continued. It is highly desirable, the resolution states, that an undue burden not be placed on the municipal property owner, and adoption of the city sales tax would "greatly reduce the city real tax burden."

If approved, the sales tax would generate an estimated $300,000 the first year and would be subject to the seven percent lid limit the second year. The new revenue would be used to offset a predicted city deficit of $100,000 next year, City Administrator Darrell Brewington said.

BREWINGTON said 21 cities across the state are considering a sales tax similar to the one proposed for Wayne. These communities also are feeling a financial pinch as a result of inflation and the seven percent lid limit.

Although the tax might be approved this May, the city would not receive any revenue until about six months henceforth, the city administrator explained.

Asked by a member of the audience if a half-cent sales tax would be adequate, Brewington said revenue generated by that figure would not keep pace with inflation. Inevitably, he said, the city will need the 1-cent sales tax.

A LETTER was read from the president of the XIII Olympic Winter Games which informed the Council that a Wayne girl has been chosen to represent the state of Nebraska in carrying the Olympic Flame to Lake Placid, N.Y., next winter.

The Council decided to give its official recognition of the honor. For more details, see story elsewhere on this page.

CABLE TELEVISION and the Wayne Regional Arts Council also were items of some concern during the meeting.

Jane O'Leary, president of the Arts Council, questioned the Council as to its policy regarding use of rooms at the City Hall and at the Fire Hall.

Mrs. O'Leary said her group has had problems lately securing rooms for workshops, demonstrations, meetings, etc. She said in previous months, however, there has been no problem.

Mike Carney, an Arts Council board member, explained that the organization supports all arts in Wayne and "as such is an asset to the community."

HE ASKED that the Council consider allowing the Arts Council to use the meeting rooms in the City Hall or the meeting room at the Fire Hall and not be charged rent. As noted by Mrs. O'Leary, the organization has been billed recently for rent.

Because the item was not on the agenda, the Council asked the Arts Council to request in writing that the matter be placed on the agenda for the next meeting. It was the general consensus of the Council that the group continue meeting at the Fire Hall.

CABLE TELEVISION came under fire by a lady representing a neighborhood which has experienced considerable poor reception.

A resident of Valley Drive, she said she has voiced her complaints to the Wayne Cablevision Inc. office and to the home office in Wayne, Kan.

"We don't want the franchise lost, we just want service in our particular area of town improved," she said. "When we subscribe to Cablevision and don't get adequate service, then we're getting ripped off."

CITY ATTORNEY Kem Swartz explained to her the city has no jurisdiction to remedy personal problems of individual subscribers. However, he said she and her neighbors could consider filing a suit in small-claims court for services they feel they have not received.

It also was pointed out by the attorney that each subscriber has the individual right to cancel his or her subscription to Cablevision.

THE IRATE resident was told the Council and administration have received numerous such complaints and their recourse involves rate increases which must have Council approval before they are effective. The Council decided to ask City Administrator Brewington to write a letter to the home office explaining the situation here, the complaints and the consequences if the service is not improved.

Preliminary plat of Marywood Subdivision, approved by the Planning and Zoning Commission Nov. 5, received approval after some unexpected questioning from a member of the audience.

JOHN VAKOC, whose Sunnyview Subdivision was scrutinized carefully by the Council some weeks ago, wanted to make sure the Council was giving the same considerations to Marywood Subdivision.

Vakoc and his Sunnyview Subdivision had some problems meeting certain requirements of the city during the preliminary and final plat stages of his project. He said Tuesday night he wanted to make sure requirements imposed on his project were being imposed on the Marywood Subdivision.

BREWINGTON assured him that Pat Gross, developer of Marywood Subdivision, "has complied with each requirement."

In other action, the Council:

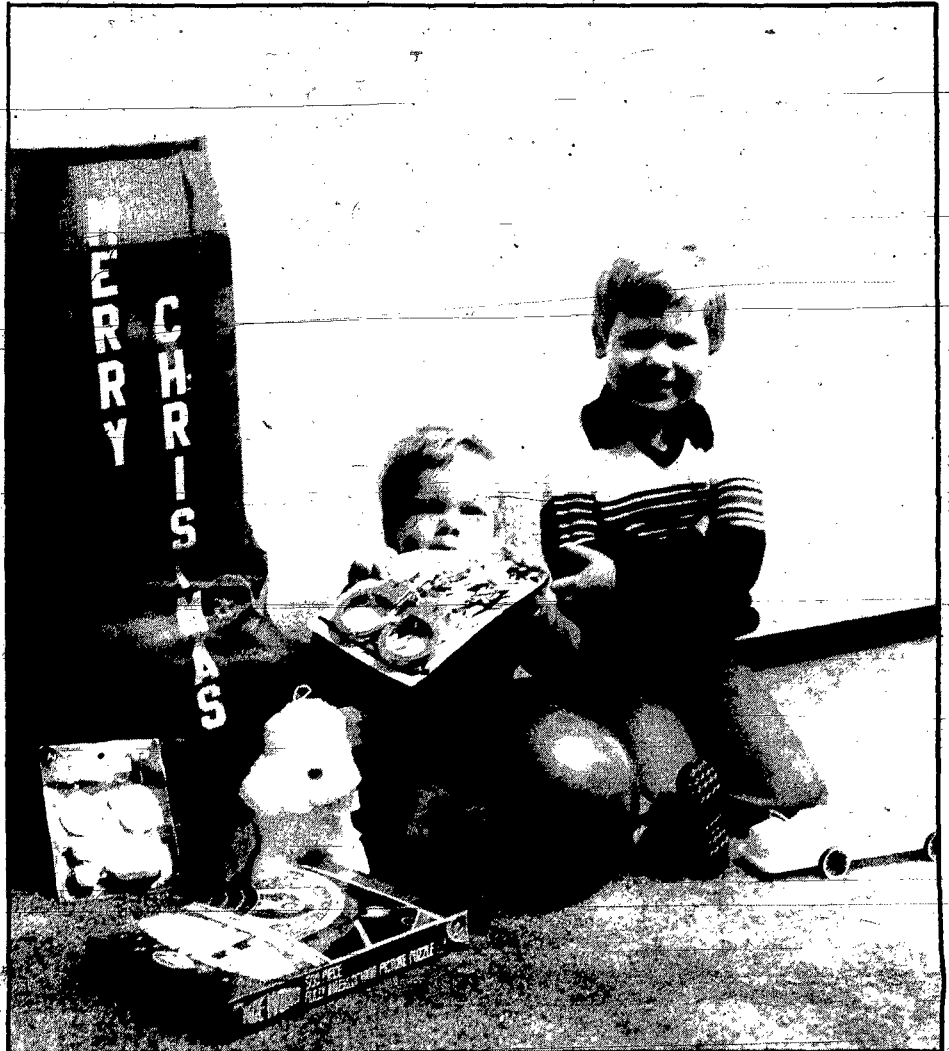

—Approved vacation of an east-west alley in the southwest part of town. The alley is no longer used and is partially blocked by buildings.

—Approved an ordinance involving the city's plumbing code. The action merely corrects the name of the code and does not affect the code's contents.

All actions were unanimous and all Council members except Sam Hepburn were present.

MUCH OF Dan Vodvarka's time is spent conferring with area voters discussing current legislation and views of First District Representative Doug Bereuter. As Assistant District Coordinator for Bereuter, Vodvarka is responsible for keeping constituents in contact with Bereuter and with keeping voters informed of Congressional actions.

A Stocking Full of Goodies

THE CHAMBER of Commerce and some 53 participating merchants have developed a Christmas shopping program for area shoppers which will include free gifts and stockings full of toys for the youngsters. Each participating merchant will have on display the stockings and the gift they will be giving away in December. Appreciating some of the toys found in the Wayne Herald stocking are Brendon Huttmann, 10 months, and Phillip Huttman, 4, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Rod Huttmann, Wayne.

Bereuter's 'Eyes, Ears' In the Area Keep Busy

After some eight months on the job, Dan Vodvarka continues to be the "eyes and ears" for Congressman Doug Bereuter in Northeast Nebraska.

Vodvarka, a Wayne State College graduate and former Wayne Herald staffer, has been the Assistant District Coordinator for First District Representative Bereuter since April 1. The main Bereuter office is in Lincoln.

AS EXPLAINED by Vodvarka, the Northern District Office, located in the north end of the Columbus Federal Savings & Loan Association, serves an 11-county area north of the Platte River. It is a means by which constituents of Bereuter can have a more personal contact with the Congressman.

"We do a lot of casework," Vodvarka explained. "We help constituents get information from different governmental agencies, on public laws, and on current legislative bills."

The idea of the office is to make Representative Bereuter more accessible to his constituents, the native of Howells said.

OTHER responsibilities of the job include representing the Congressman at area functions when Bereuter is unable to attend. For instance, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Berglund is scheduled in S. Sioux City, Tues. day and Vodvarka will be there on behalf of Bereuter.

Vodvarka also attends various meetings involving material important to this area and which is valuable to Bereuter's understanding of issues.

WHEN THE Representative is scheduled to be in this area, Vodvarka also is responsible for setting up a schedule, transportation for him and other such details. With Vodvarka taking care of the minor details on a visit, Bereuter has a chance to study area issues, catch up on paperwork and answer correspondence.

"This is one of those jobs where you're not sure what's going to happen when you come to work," Vodvarka explained.

Other duties of the job include writing press releases, doing research for Representative Bereuter on various subjects, reading area newspapers for important issues Bereuter will be concerned about and "objectively" listening to all sides of an issue and relating those comments to the Congressman.

Much of Vodvarka's time is spent answering the phone, relating Bereuter's stand on various issues to callers, answering correspondence from area voters and talking with Washington, D.C.

The local Congressional office, a campaign promise by Bereuter in 1978, not only helps constituents understand their government, but also helps them get reactions from the different governmental agencies, Vodvarka said.

ONE OF THE more successful innovations of Bereuter in the First District is use of a mobile office. The concept of the traveling office, used by many U.S. Senators and Representatives, gives voters in every county of the district a chance to comment on problems or issues affecting them. Vodvarka said the mobile office was used for the first time this summer and in 23 days of traveling, 22 different communities were visited. The office is shared by staff members of the Lincoln office which represents the south half of the First District.

CONSTITUENTS have a better opportunity to speak their minds on issues directly affecting them, Vodvarka explained. Energy and inflation are two issues heard the most, he said, but people also are concerned with the strength of the bureaucracy and its effects on their lives.

While in the mobile office at a county fair last summer, Vodvarka said he abruptly realized the complexity of his job. Two persons were discussing the Nordan Dam issue, and became "strongly opposed" to one another's views. Vodvarka found himself in the position of a diplomat in attempting to resolve the differences, and then having to report the voters' comments objectively to the Congressman.

VODVARKA said he is beginning to have a better grasp of what life is like in Washington and what the obligations of a U.S. Legislator are.

"What keeps striking me is the incredible economic and social diversity among the different areas of the country," he explained.

HE HAS BEEN in Washington, D.C. several times for updates on major issues, and to get a better grasp on what goes on in the nation's Capitol. On his last visit in October, he went to Interior Committee meetings with Bereuter and attended a water resource subcommittee meeting. Vodvarka and Bereuter are particularly interested in water resources since that is becoming a major concern in Nebraska.

Vodvarka said the tremendous divergency in issues also affects the speed of Congressional action. That is one reason "things seem to take so long" in Washington, D.C., he said.

There is a tremendous amount of mail received in Bereuter's Northern District office here, in addition to "call-ins." Americans' lives are affected so much by legislation and the bureaucracy that people are turning to Congressmen and their District offices for help, Vodvarka explained.

THE WSC grad also has to keep himself abreast of Bereuter's voting record and reasons for voting a particular way. Vodvarka, by reading newsletters, area papers, press releases and by talking to Bereuter, has been able to maintain a working knowledge of the Congressman's stands on the issues.

"It's an evolving process of how we can better do the job," Vodvarka explained.

NOW 27, Vodvarka has a masters degree from WSC in history and an undergraduate degree in political science and journalism from Kearney State College. He covered sports and sold advertising at The Herald from 1975 through 1977. He also worked for the York News-Times and the Kearney Hub newspapers before joining Bereuter.

Counties that Vodvarka covers include Wayne, Knox, Cedar, Dixon, Dakota, Thurston, Platte, Madison, Stanton, Cum- ing and the northern half of Colfax County. Persons wishing to contact Bereuter through the Northern District office may contact Vodvarka in person by mail (Box 213, Wayne) or by phone, 375-3000.

New Immunization Rules for Students

Students in the Wayne-Carroll School District are being affected by a change in Nebraska law regarding immunizations.

School officials will be contacting parents via letters regarding new immunization requirements, says school nurse Debra Hutton, RN. Two major changes are now in effect, she said.

The first requires that all students in grades K through 12 furnish proof of adequate immunization. The second change mandates an immunization for mumps.

Mrs. Hutton said present law requires at least three doses of DPT (diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis), and oral polio vaccine and one dose of measles and rubella vaccine. Written proof of immunizations should be available listing the month and year of each immunization.

A waiver must be signed by parents for school files if the month and year of each immunization is now available, she added. A waiver also is required if a child has had any of these diseases without confirmation by a physician. If no immunizations are received because of religious, personal or medical reasons, a waiver should be signed for this also, Mrs. Hutton explained.

In order to comply with LB59, Wayne-Carroll School District will request parents to supply the proof of immunization, where possible. Parents will be contacted for such proof or, if appropriate, the signing of a waiver.

Parents having questions about the new requirements should contact Debra Hutton at Wayne Elementary School, 375-3854 or by letter.

Legislators Unhappy Over Blame for Budget

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

The blame Nebraska lawmakers receive for the continuing rise in the state budget ratchets them, and occasionally some of the legislators sound off on the matter.

During a recent meeting of the Appropriations Committee, which already is starting work on the budget recommendations it will make to the 1980 Unicameral, Sen. Myron Rumery of North Platte said people need to be advised that one important reason for the ever-higher state budgets is the amount of state aid funneled back to local governments and individuals.

Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus agreed. He said the Legislature is being criticized and blamed for increased taxes at a time when the major growth is occurring in local governments.

Dworak told members of the legislative fiscal staff he wants them to prepare a chart indicating the percentage growth in expenditures by local governments compared with state spending.

During the 1972 to 1980 period, state taxes and spending have increased nearly three times, according to figures presented to the committee. Even so, the growth in constant dollars was 60 percent, and most of the growth was in aid to local government and individuals.

The points Rumery and Dworak emphasized were not heard for the first time in the Capitol.

Sen. J. James Exon, when he was governor, and Gov. Charles Thone have said it is the aid programs that account for much of state government spending.

The fiscal analyst's staff said a study of the state's economic history between 1972 and 1979 shows Nebraskans' personal income rose 102 percent and the operations of state government increased a little more than 111 percent. At the same time, state dollars flowing to local governments increased 193 percent and aid to higher education 146 percent.

According to fiscal analyst Dale Johnson, in constant dollars, appropriations for fiscal 1979 declined $1 million.

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said he would like to have a committee decision by early next month on what the unit's members believe the parameters for state appropriations should be for next year.

He noted Gov. Charles Thone has indicated he will attempt to construct a budget that could be accommodated with no more than a 7 percent increase over this year's.

Uses harsh language

Governor Thone used strong language recently while criticizing two state senators who requested the Administrative Rules Committee to investigate procedures used by the Thone administration when a moratorium was declared on state collection of income taxes during December.

The governor described the request as a "cheap shot" that was "inexcusable." He added that Sens. John DeCamp of Neligh and Steve Fowler of Lincoln didn't even have the courtesy to contact him before they made their request.

Thone said the moratorium procedures were carefully checked by Attorney General Paul Douglas before any formal action was taken.

But several days later DeCamp wrote Thone a letter in which he defended the request.

"The procedure utilized by the administration in changing the laws to accomplish the tax moratorium is, so far as I am able to determine at this time, a completely new and unprecedented procedure which may or may not have merit, may or may not be statutorily allowed, and may or may not be efficient," DeCamp told the governor.

As a legislator, he added, he had the duty to raise questions with the committee "as to whether laws in existence are clear on the subject of how rules and regulations are made or unmade, whether the laws are in need of change, and whether the procedure being preceded in this instance is a good procedure for the future."

DeCamp said he believes a unilateral changing of rules and regulations by any administration without some system of public hearing or check and balance by the legislative branch is dangerous.

Emphasizing the dispute was not a partisan or personal issue, the committee recently voted to hold a public hearing on the procedures utilized in declaring the moratorium.

Committee members indicated Thone will be among those invited to testify.

Advises limiting probe

Dr. Ralph Michener, director of the state Department of Institutions, says a legislative committee studying the case of Joe Soukup of Grand Island should limit its probe to Soukup and not broaden the investigation to cover other possible drug experimental cases between 1961-65.

Based on documentation that he was administered one injection of LSD while institutionalized in 1961, Soukup does not deserve the $1,250,000 he is seeking for alleged mistreatment in the state's public institutions, Michener said.

That one injection of a small amount of LSD could not have had a detrimental effect on Soukup's life, he said.

Soukup, 36, says he received the LSD in 1961 at the Lincoln Regional Center. It has been confirmed through records that drug experiments were carried out at that institution at that time. But Michener, who has been state director of institutions for three months, said, "The committee should understand that for eight years we have not been doing any medication studies and we have not been using trial medication."

Going back to the 1961-65 records would be very time-consuming and would involve spending $5,000 to $25,000 that would be uncertain, Michener said.

The Legislature's Business and Labor Committee, which is handling the Soukup request, has voted to postpone until mid-December and probably until January a recommendation on what to do.

Income tax reduced

The state board of equalization has lowered the state income tax for calendar year 1980 from 18 percent to 17 percent of a taxpayer's federal income tax liability. But the board decided to keep the state sales tax at 3 percent.

Before the board acted, a number of proponents of lower rates packed the governor's hearing room to plead their case.

The board felt, however, because of the uncertain economic picture, it would be wise not to cut rates too much.

State Tax Commissioner Fred Herrington noted the board must meet within 15 days after adjournment of the 1980 Legislature. That will allow taxing officials and the state Revenue Department to get a better idea of the national economy and how it is affecting the Nebraska economy, Herrington said.

He noted too that several years ago the board reduced the tax rates too much and left the state in a financial pinch.

OBSERVATIONS

Let's Shop at Home

This year of all years, it will be a wise decision to shop in Wayne for the Christmas season.

As our Chamber of Commerce exec, Gary Van Meter, so appropriately pointed out, "with the fuel crisis, it just makes sense to save the energy, time and money spent in driving further to shop."

One has to hunt for gasoline prices of under a $1 here in Wayne. That, coupled with other rising automotive costs, should play a major role in keeping business at home this holiday season.

But Wayne merchants also have an important hand in convincing shoppers it is wiser and more economical to stay here this season. Nearly 60 participating Chamber businesses are offering a wide range of free gifts simply by registering in their stores. The most recent estimate on total dollar value of these gifts is $8,500.

By going to Norfolk, or Sloux City or Omaha, not only will shoppers be spending money unnecessarily on fuel, but they will be missing an opportunity to win a valuable gift. Residents in Wayne will have a chance to win one of 53 such prizes.

Wayne merchants know where their future lies—it is with the shoppers of Wayne. And accordingly, these merchants are conscientious about their businesses, the quality of goods and services they offer and the competitiveness of prices.

Wayne businesses will be offering a great incentive to shop in Wayne this year, Van Meter pointed out. These are the men and women who help support our schools and our city through taxes. They are always willing to take a little extra time with their customers because they know that service, convenience and friendliness come first in a hometown community like this.

The Chamber has developed what it feels is a good Christmas program for shoppers this season. In addition to the "winter wonderland of values," the Chamber has arranged for special visits by Santa Claus; the Gay Theatre has free movies each Saturday during December for youngsters; and each participating merchant will be giving away a huge Christmas stocking stuffed with all sorts of goodies for the children.

Where else in the area are these types of opportunities offered for shoppers? — Dan Field.

Our Government Never Met A Tax It Didn't Hike

Richard L. Leshner
President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

How, a reporter asked him, would you describe in capsule form what ails the United States?

The answer: "When you tax something, you get less of it. When you reward something, you get more of it. In America today, we tax work, thrift, investment, employment, production, incentives and success, while rewarding non work, unemployment, welfare spending, consumption, leisure, idleness and mediocrity."

Meet Jack Kemp. Formerly a star NFL quarterback, and presently a Congressman from Buffalo, Kemp has become one of the most articulate leaders of the growing national drive to limit federal spending and slash the rate of taxation. Recently, he and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, the knowledgeable chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, were featured speakers at a Washington news conference on tax reform.

The news conference was organized by Citizens Choice, a 40,000 member grassroots taxpayers group, with the purpose of calling on Congress to enact specific tax reforms. They include: lowering tax rates across the board and setting a maximum rate of less than 50 percent; ending the taxation of interest on savings; ending the double taxation of income, whereby government taxes income first in the form of corporate profits and later in the form of individual dividends, and encouraging business to increase investment by making it cheaper to replace outdated plants and equipment.

There is a common thread running through each of these proposals and it can be summed up in one word: incentives.

Senator Bentsen signaled this approach earlier this year when his Joint Economic Committee issued an historic report that rejected Washington's 30-year preoccupation with more government spending and printing of money. Instead, the report stressed the need for policies to encourage savings and investment in view of increasing worker productivity and lessening inflation.

Senator Bentsen, Congressman Kemp and the members of Citizens Choice share a common conviction. Washington's almost exclusive preference for pumping up the economy with more spending, with more demand for goods and services, has severely impaired the ability of our economy to supply them. So, in Kemp's words: "We need to build a consensus to stimulate supply and production instead of consumption and deficits." Thus, his call for incentives in the form of tax rate reduction to spur greater production, investment, risk-taking and entrepreneurship.

The administration resists tax reduction with two arguments. First, it blames inflation on working-Americans rather than the government's printing presses — even though the supply of new dollar bills has been increasing more than twice as fast as the production of goods and services. Never mind. Blaming others permits the Administration to announce with a straight face that inflation prevents it from granting us a tax cut.

Second, by claiming its policies are basically sound, the Administration disclaims the need for new supply-oriented tax policies. This line of reasoning is fine as long as you are willing (as the Administration apparently is) to ignore our competitive record against our major trading partners in recent years. As noted in a prior column, we have experienced: the lowest rate of savings; the lowest rate of productivity increase; the second lowest rate of investment; and a declining rate of growth.

Ultimately, the greatest victim of this charade has been the American worker. Federal tax receipts have soared from $95 billion in 1970 to $314 billion in fiscal 1980, without Congress ever voting an income tax increase. Pure magic? Not at all. Everytime you think you receive a cost of living increase, you are actually being forced into a higher tax bracket, and so you will pay a higher percentage of your income in taxes. The progressivity of the tax code ensures that taxes always increase faster than inflation, and inflation ensures that taxes increase automatically. Think you can beat those odds?

Chances are you won't, because the bottom line is this: Today, many blue-collar workers are closer to the 50 percent tax bracket — one formerly reserved for those of wealth. Why work that extra hour or day when government taxes half your reward away? We cannot solve this problem with one-shot election-year tax rebates that ignore the real problem of inflation relentlessly pushing more people toward confiscatory rates of taxation. We simply must cut the rate of federal spending and concentrate on producing and investing America back toward new jobs, new technological breakthroughs and new world leadership. Substantial tax rate reductions to restore incentives for individuals coupled with tax changes to generate more funds for business to invest and grow are what we need, and they are what supply-side economics is all about.

Thone Has Message on Upcoming Tax Holiday

"The Board of Equalization and Assessment, of which I am chairman, recently set Nebraska income and sales tax rates for calendar year 1980. The board reduced the income tax rate from 18 to 17 percent of your federal tax liability and left the sales tax rate at three cents on the dollar.

A holiday on state personal income tax collection for the month of December had earlier been ordered by me. This holiday resulted from two factors: (1) The federal government this year is deducting from American workers' paychecks about $12 billion dollars more than was expected; and (2) the Nebraska personal income tax is tied by law as a percentage of federal withholding.

The holiday is not a tax cut. It is an early return of the refund that a taxpayer would receive after making out his Nebraska return next spring. It is my opinion that the federal overwithholding was deliberate because of a desire to send refunds to millions of taxpayers in 1980—an election year.

"The holiday on personal Nebraska state income tax collections will put about $17 million more in the hands of hourly and salaried employees in the month of December. The 1980 cut in the income tax rate will mean that Nebraskans will have about $15 million that would have been taken away by state taxes under the previous rate.

"If present predictions of state tax collections are correct—and current economic uncertainties make this very difficult—there will be a six percent reserve in the state treasury on June 30, 1980, the

March of Dimes Representatives Seek Support of Communities

Prevention of birth defects calls for intensified efforts in every community," according to Mrs. Betty Carr of Allen. Mrs. Carr, chapter chairman, was among volunteers attending a regional eight-state meeting in St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 18-20, sponsored by the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation.

Accompanying her to the convention were Cheryl Koch of Concord, state youth chairman, and Jeff Jaeggi of Wayne State College, state youth advisor.

Nationwide programs of research, medical services, volunteer action and education, all supported by public contributions, were reviewed during the three-day meeting.

Mrs. Carr said all of the programs are directed at overcoming birth defects, the nation's most serious child health problem. More than a quarter million newborns are stricken with physical or mental damage every year, she added.

"Low birthweight, the most common birth defect, is often associated with inadequate prenatal care and poor maternal nutrition," Mrs. Carr said, adding that the March of Dimes supports needed growth of community based and regional maternal newborn health care services to diminish the serious threat to a newborn's healthy survival.

Priority March of Dimes programs include making prenatal care more available where shortages of staff and facilities are critical, and developing genetic services in underserved areas.

The meeting also featured new material on comprehensive health education for junior and senior high schools. The nationwide incidence of adolescent pregnancy has particular concern for the March of Dimes, because babies born to mothers under the age of 17 are more likely to have birth defects.

"To expand community-based health care programs, the March of Dimes believes in building alliance support with health professionals, educators, parents, churches and service organizations," Mrs. Carr said.

"Each of us has an important role in working for the prevention of birth defects."

Cats Win One, Lose One

UP FOR the rebound go Wayne State players Bill Milks (52) and Jay Bellar (32) in action against Bellevue, Monday in Rice Auditorium. Both players are two-sport lettermen, who recently turned in their shoulder pads after competing with WSC's football team.

Led by an aggressive defense and Willie Summers' 23 points, the Wayne State Wildcats blasted Peru State College 58-44 Tuesday night in Peru.

Summers had an outstanding night, canning seven of 10 field goals and nine of nine free throws. Wattle Rhoda, WSC's 6-5 senior center, grabbed 14 rebounds and controlled the boards for the majority of the game. The Cats hit 18 of 21 free throws as a team.

Both teams had trouble getting started. Summers hit a 12 foot jump shot with nearly five minutes gone for the game's first field goal. The Cats led at half time, 25-19.

Wayne State scored the first six points of the second half and held leads as large as 18 points late in the game. Peru twice closed within seven but could get no closer.

The win evened the wildcats' season record at 1-1. Peru slipped to 1-5.

A Cold Night

The Wayne State College Wildcats went scoreless for just over five minutes in the second half Monday allowing Bellevue College to race back from a 14 point deficit and down the Wildcats 63-59 in WSC's Rice Auditorium.

Paced by junior guard Mark Hrabik's 18 points the Bruins from Bellevue started the comeback march with 15:39 left and finally grabbed their first lead since the early moments of the first half, 46-45 with 9:42 remaining. Wayne State's long cold spell started at the 11:57 mark of the second half following Joe Lindsey's 15 foot jumper. By the time the Wildcats had scored again only 6:33 remained in the game as sophomore forward Lindsey earned his fifth and final field goal of the night.

In the closing six minutes the game was tied on three separate occasions, however, WSC could never regain the lead. Eight straight free throws in the final 1:28 iced the game for the Bruins.

Both teams were cold from outside the majority of the game. Bellevue shot 39 percent from the floor while the Wildcats netted only 34 percent of their field goal casts. Willie Summers, WSC's senior guard, led the Cats with 12 points.

Bellevue moved its season record to 2-0 while WSC is now 0-1

Lady Wildcats Third At Midland, Stop Briar Cliff on the Road 79-53

Wayne State College jumped to an early lead in the consolation round of the Midland Turkey Tournament and went on to defeat Simpson College 71-61 to capture third place Saturday in Fremont. The Lady Wildcats were defeated by Midland 90-61 in the opening round of the two-day tournament.

The Lady Cats fell behind Midland early in the game and were never able to recover from a 43-28 halftime deficit. Head Coach Helen Carroll said she felt her team panicked when the women from Midland grabbed an early lead.

"Free throws are what really put us behind," she said. "We only hit four out of 12 and I think the free throws were an indication of the confidence level that we had once Midland came out really strong."

Keri Erwin led all Lady Wildcat scorers as she tallied 16 points. Julie Petronis and Debra Emanuel each had 10 rebounds.

In contrast, the Lady Wildcats opened up an early lead in the consolation contest against Simpson College and stretched the margin to 36-24 at halftime. Three Lady Wildcats scored in double figures against Simpson. Freshman guard Lisa Curtis had 13 while sisters Kari and Lori Erwin had 10 each. Coach Carroll singled out 5-11 freshman center Emanuel for post-tournament praises. Emanuel had 19 rebounds in the two games and Carroll said "her aggressive play was just outstanding."

The Lady Wildcats, 32 in 1979-80, are idle this week before opening their home schedule against Hastings College Dec. 4 in Rice Auditorium.

The Lady Cats opened an early eight point lead and moved to a 36-20 halftime lead. Briar Cliff closed within 13 points twice early in the second half, however, Wayne State scored eight straight to move the lead to 21 and were never challenged after that.

The game was marred by numerous miscues by both teams. Briar Cliff suffered 42 turnovers while the Lady Wildcats had 29 for 71 miscues on the night.

WSC Grapplers Open Tomorrow At UNI Tourney

Wayne State College's wrestling team begins its 1979-80 season Friday and Saturday at the University of Northern Iowa Open in Cedar Falls, Iowa. The two-day tournament will feature some of the top wrestling talent in the United States.

Team results will not be kept at the tournament and wrestlers will compete for six places within each weight class in a double elimination format.

Some of the top teams which will compete at the tournament are: The Hawkeye Wrestling Club, the University of Iowa, the University of Wisconsin, the University of Missouri, Ohio State University and the University of Northern Iowa.

Wayne State wrestlers competing in the tournament and their respective weight classes are: Kyle Smith, Alns worth, (118); Dan Schernikau, Beaver Crossing, (126); Steve Miller, Hooper, (126); John Pollen, Wakarusa, (134); Charles Rother, Wolbach, (142); Russ Retsch, Avoca, Iowa, (142); Richard Todd, Kingsley, Iowa, (150); Mike Braun, Hooper, (158); Todd Porter, Plattsmouth, (167); Dave Ulrich, Beaver Crossing, (177); Kevin Tyler, Rock Valley, Iowa, (177); and Ron Berrie, Davenport, Iowa, (heavyweight)

Also wrestling in the tournament will be freshman Jay Lian, Omaha, who is competing unattached (not affiliated with a college or university) because he is ineligible first semester. Lian will wrestle in the 142 pound division.

Seven Lettermen Lead Winside

Desire is an important quality for any athlete and Winside girls' basketball coach Kathy O'Connor figures that quality will give her team an edge this season.

"The desire of this team is the greatest of any team I've ever had here," said the fifth year coach. "If that continues, I look for a good season."

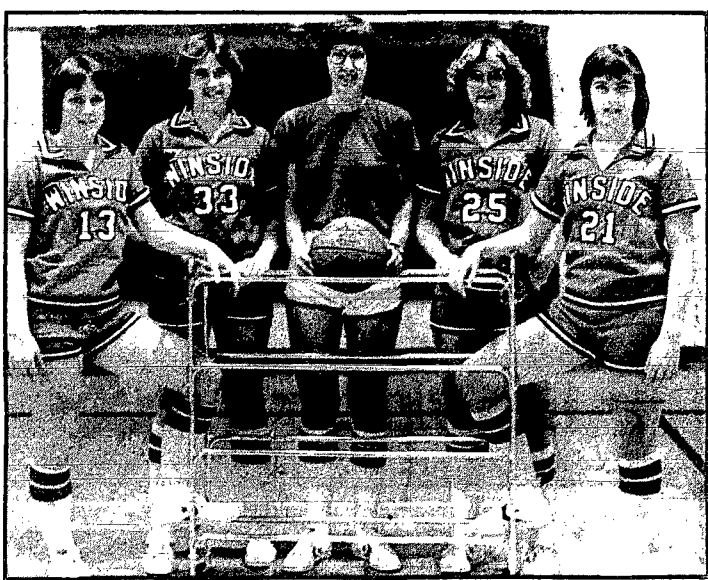

Returning lettermen from last year's team, which finished with a 9-6 record are seniors Joanie Bowers, Deb Brockman, Kathy Thies, Marci Thomas and juniors Laurie Gallop, Sue Meierhenry and Robyn Winch. Thies and Thomas are returning starters.

Joining those seven players will be juniors Kristi Benschoff and Tammy Thomas, five sophomores and two freshmen. Roger Cook will be assistant coach.

O'Connor said that her team will be quick and should have a good pressure defense which will bother many teams. Offensively, the Wildcats will fast break.

Winside won the Coleridge Invitational last season and O'Connor said she expects her team to repeat as champions. The Wildcats will get a chance to test the tourney's host team as they host Coleridge, Tuesday, Dec. 11 in the season opener.

Looking over the schedule that lies ahead, O'Connor said that Battle Creek, runnerup in the state tournament last year, will be the toughest opponent. She added that the Clark Division of the Lewis and Clark Conference should be pretty even.

Winside Seeks Class D Repeat Title

Above the door of the Winside Elementary multi-purpose room, hangs a sign which reads, "Repeat, think state, number one."

Each day, eighteen wrestlers and a head coach enter the multi-purpose with a common goal—to repeat as Nebraska State Class-D wrestling team champions. And with six returning State qualifiers, Winside has to be one of the favorites.

Returning to coach Doug Reeves' team this year are qualifiers Rick Bowers, Brian Foote, Mark Koch, Doug Jaeger, Barry Bowers and Kent Glassmeyer. Those six will form half of Winside's team.

Bowers, a senior who placed fourth in state last season will probably wrestle in the 126 pound class. Foote, a junior who placed second at state, will be shooting for the 119 pound class. Those two will be team captains.

Koch, who placed third at state, will be wrestling at 105, Jaeger will be at 112. Bowers will wrestle at 135 or 167 and Glassmeyer will remain in the heavyweight slot. All four are sophomores.

Reeves said he is hoping for a lot of help from Clark Frederick, a 98 pound junior; Tom Koch, a 132 pound junior; Dirk Jaeger, a 138 pound senior; Tom Willis, a 145 pound sophomore and eight other wrestlers.

"Our motto is 'repeat,' that's what we're working for," said Reeves. "We will use a different system of circuit training on weights. Our conditioning is looking real good."

Winside's preseason goals are: 1. To win all dual matches. 2. To bring home a trophy in every tournament. 3. To win districts and

4. To win state.

"We are basically a young team with one senior. We have the leadership and must show maturity," Reeves stated. "We will try to win with quality because we don't have quantity this year. Our strategy will be the same. We will stalk our opponent and make him make the mistakes."

Reeves said that he plans to increase the strength and conditioning of his team. The wrestlers have been training on a boxing bag to help them keep their hands up when they are tired, and to improve quickness.

All six state qualifiers attended wrestling camps during the past summer. Three attended at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and three attended camp in Colorado. Foote placed second in a takedown tournament at the Colorado camp. Coach Reeves helped out at a clinic in Iowa and attended a coaching clinic at the University of Nebraska at Omaha prior to the season.

"I'm excited about the season. I'm mentally prepared and we will have fun, work hard and try to repeat as champions," said Reeves. "We would like to be two-time state champions but it will take a lot more work than it did last year. It must be a team effort. The wrestlers should be confident but not cocky." If the Wildcats repeat it will be Reeves' third consecutive championship in his coaching career and his second at Winside.

The Wildcats will open their season Saturday, Dec. 8 in the Wayne State Tournament at Rice Auditorium in Wayne. Last year, Winside won the team title.

National Wrestlers Line WSC's Team

The 1979-80 edition of Wayne State College wrestling will feature a blend of old and new.

Returning for the Wildcats are five members of last year's national tournament squad including District 11 champions Dan Schernikau and Dan Heeren. Other returning members of the team who qualified for nationals include: Russell Reisch, Avoca, Iowa, (150-pound division); Dave Ulrich, Beaver Crossing, (167-pound division); and heavyweight Ron Berrie, from Davenport, Iowa.

The new for WSC includes first year coach Blain Gorney, who coached wrestling at Peru State last year, has brought in a crop of eight talented freshmen who he will rely on to fill several key holes in the Wildcat line-up. Gorney said he feels the newcomers give his squad good flexibility.

"We have several freshmen who can fill in if we need somebody in an injury situation or if we are changing our weight classes around. We can move some people up and put some body else in the line-up," he said.

A freshman who will get an early test in the back-up roll is Richard Todd Kingsley, Iowa. Todd will be asked to take over for regional champion Heeren, Hawarden, Iowa, who fore cartilage in his knee the first day of practice and will not be able to wrestle until early January.

Other freshmen expected to see action include: Kyle Smith, Ainsworth (118-pound division); Charles Rother, Walbach (134-pound division); Mike Braun, Hooper (158-pound division); and Ron Gilbert, Waterloo, Iowa (190-pound division).

According to Gorney the keys to the Wildcats' success this year will be how well Heeren recovers from knee surgery and the performances of the rest of last year's national qualifiers.

"We're looking for a better job out of them this year," said Gorney. "Last year they qualified, this year we would like to see them score some points in the national tournament and possibly even place."

The WSC matmen begin their 1979-80 season Nov. 30 at the University of Northern Iowa Open.

Area Players Lead L&C Statistics

Final statistics of the Lewis and Clark Conference, released by Winside athletic director Jim Winch, show top team and individual performances during the football season.

Ponca was declared the Lewis and Clark champion after defeating Coleridge on Friday, Nov. 2 in the final game of the regular season. The Indians won the Lewis Division of the conference with a 5-0 division record and an overall record of 6-2.

Coleridge claimed the Clark Division title with a 5-0-1 division record and overall record of 8-2-1. The Bulldogs qualified for the State Class C-2 playoffs and advanced to the semi-finals before losing to state champion Grant.

In the kick scoring department, Brian Foote of Winside was second with 14 total points.

Carr led individual scoring with 72 total points and Foote placed fifth with 58 points. The leading punter in the conference was Portwood with an average of 36.3 yards per kick. On the other end of the punt was Carr with seven punt returns for an average runback of 14.4 yards, ranking him third best. Foote was the third leading kick-off returner with an average of 23 yards per carry.

Individual total offense leaders were Blaine Nelson and Von Portwood, both of Wakefield with per-game averages over 100 yards.

Individually, several local athletes ranked high in certain areas. Wakefield's Blaine Nelson was the leading rusher with a game average of 103.8 yards. Greg Carr of Allen ranked fourth with an average of 90.9. In the passing department, Wakefield's Von Portwood and Winside's Lonnie Carstens both ranked high in the charts.

Scott Hallstrom of Wakefield and Bob Hawkins of Winside were listed as the fifth and sixth leading receivers in the league.

Wildcats Are Short But Quick

A small Winside boys basketball team hopes to rely on its quickness when the season opens at Allen, Thursday, Dec. 6.

Leading the Wildcats this season will be 6-4 senior Bob Hawkins, by far the tallest player on the team. Hawkins averaged 10 points and eight rebounds per game last season.

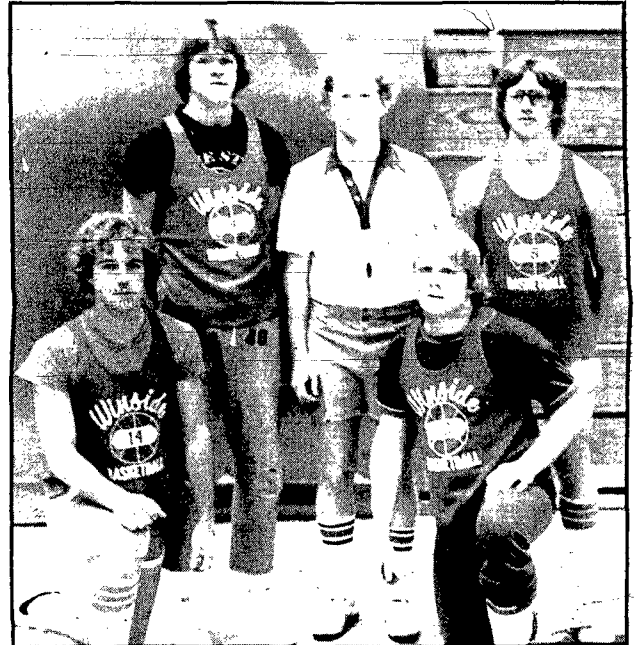

Joining Hawkins are returning lettermen: Lonnie Carstens (5-11), Randy Ritze (5-11), Todd Hoeman (6-0), Byron Schellenberg (5-10), and Brad Roberts (5-9). Carstens, Ritze and Hoeman are all seniors.

"We're small and quick so we'll probably fast break," said second year coach Dennis Gonneman. "We plan to use a lot of different defenses. We have a rough schedule early in the season. If we get through that alright, we should do okay."

Gonneman predicted that Wakefield, Wausa and Hartington should be the stronger teams in the Clark Division of the Lewis and Clark Conference this year. He added that if his team wins over half of its games, that is as well as he expects them to do.

Missing from last year's 5-9 squad is Paul Roberts, an all-conference player who graduated last year. "We'll miss Paul's leadership and scoring," said Gonneman. "We need to find leadership on this team. I hope we play well at home," he added.

Assisting Gonneman this season will be coach Jim Hafferty. The Wildcats are scheduled to play their first six games on the road.

5 Times People Should Contact Social Security

There are five times a person should get in touch with a social security office, Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk, said recently.

Knowing the five times for action is too important to take for granted, Branch said. It can mean greater security for a worker and his or her family.

The five times are: before obtaining the first job to apply for a social security number. This number is needed to get proper social security credit for earnings; after a death in the family to learn if survivor's benefits or a lump-sum death payment are payable; when someone becomes disabled to find out if disability benefits are payable; at retirement age. Full cash benefits are payable at 65 and reduced benefits can be paid as early as 62. People should sign up for Medicare two or three months before 65 even if they don't plan to retire; to get the answer to any question about social security.

The people in the Norfolk social security office can answer such questions as: how much credit for work is needed to be insured; who can qualify for benefits; how to replace a lost social security or Medicare card; how to get a free statement of your earnings record; what documents are needed when applying for benefits or a social security number.

For more information, get in touch with the Norfolk social security office in Norfolk.

Members of the Wayne State College Concert Choir will perform in their traditional concerts for the 1979-80 year, but this year's group also is making preparations for a two-week spring tour of Europe.

The choir, directed by Dr. Cornell Runestad, will tour Southern Germany and Austria May 14-28 and perform in Frankfurt, Rotenburg, Vienna, Salzburg, Munich and one other location to be determined. The Salzburg performance will be in the Domekirche, the church in which Mozart served as director of music. The first portion of each of the WSC programs will be sung in German.

"We have never tried singing this much German before," Dr. Runestad said, "but we feel it is entirely appropriate when visiting a country to sing their music."

Choir members will pay their own expenses for the tour. Runestad said the choir is busy with fund raising projects and with preparing for the tour. "It really is an educational venture - to be able to see Europe first hand and to communicate to those people with music we present," he said.

The four is the second international tour the WSC choir has participated in. The group earned a silver medal, the highest awarded, at the 1978 International Choral Festival in Mexico City.

The WSC Choir also is making preparations for several additional concerts this year. The group will perform its annual Christmas Concert at 3 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 9 in Ramsey Theatre of the Fine Arts Building. The Choir, along with the WSC Madrigal Singers, consisting of choir members, will perform a variety of sacred music ranging from 16th century works to present Christmas carols. The groups will also perform several songs from the German tour program. The event will be narrated by WSC Communications Professor, Dr. Bob Johnson, and open free to the public. The Madrigal Singers will perform at the eighth annual Elizabethan Dinners at 7 p.m., Thursday Saturday, Dec. 13-15 and at 1 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 16, at Wayne State. The programs have been well received in past years and are also open to the public. Tickets are available through the WSC Music Office.

Other performances for the choir in 1979-80 will include a March 16 performance at the First Methodist Church in Norfolk and an April 13 Spring Concert that will include the entire German tour program.

The choir also tours various communities each year in Nebraska and Iowa and Wayne State hosts an annual Choral Festival, scheduled this year for March 21-22. The WSC group will also participate Feb. 21 in the Platte College Choral Festival. Choir members this year include:

Wayne - Scott Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Hall. He is a 1974 graduate of Wayne High School and a sophomore music major at WSC.

Holly Mallette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Mallette. She is a 1979 graduate of Wayne High School and a freshman elementary education major at WSC.

Les Echtenkamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Echtenkamp. He is a 1970 graduate of Wayne High School and a junior industrial education major at WSC.

Wakefield - Deldean Bjorklund, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Bjorklund. He is a 1977 graduate of Wakefield High School and a junior business administration major at WSC.

Carroll - Brad Edmar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Eddie. He is a 1979 graduate of Randolph Public High School and a freshman music major at WSC.

Emerson - Dave Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hermie Bell. He is a 1978 graduate of Emerson-Hubbard High School and a sophomore music major at WSC.

New System Helps Cut Sign Costs

"When you can save energy and money at the same time, you've got a pretty good thing going," Nebraska Department of Roads sign shop Superintendent Stanley Davis says.

His "pretty good thing" is the department's new high speed sanding operation used to reclaim signs damaged by wear and vandalism, cutting the replacement cost on the some 15,000 signs that yearly fall prey to these twin evils.

"The savings offered by the use of the sanding machine is almost like getting 10 sign blanks for the price of one," Davis said. "And recycled aluminum uses tons less energy than producing aluminum from bauxite ore... some say as much as 95 percent less." Old signs are fed into the sanding machine where they pass under a rotating sanding belt. About two-hundredths of an inch of surface is removed and ejected out the back side of the machine. Dust and metal particles are automatically evacuated to a built-in dust collector.

On the average one sanding belt, 50 inches wide by 75 inches long, provides 2,000 to 4,000 square feet of sanding. The total cost of sanding belts averages between 4 and 8 cents per square foot of sign material sanded.

Davis says the operation is the result of a research effort aimed at finding non-chemical methods to clean and resurface old signs. In 1976, the agency settled on a high-speed sanding system.

"This has brought a tremendous boost in shop morale," Davis said.

He says the chemical dip method, because of the toxic acids that had to be used, created a high worker turnover rate. It had been used prior to the introduction of the new sanding machine.

"It's the same principle," he says. "Beer cans are recycled and remade into all sorts of aluminum items, no doubt into highway signs. So if we can recycle our highway signs and get 10 signs for the price of one, we are saving energy and money at the same time."

He estimates the sanding machine paid for itself through cost savings during the first six months of operation.

"Records show we spent $18,520 to process 215,000 square feet of sign material for recycling... or about nine cents per square foot," he says. "This includes all labor costs for sorting and hand straightening of signs as they come to us from the field."

The Sign Shop Superintendent likens the reclaiming of highway signs to reclaiming of aluminum beer cans.

"I still say we've got a pretty good thing going."

AARP Meeting Is Set for January

A second meeting will be held in January for those interested in establishing a local chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons.

Two representatives of the group answered questions and provided details on the AARP at a meeting Monday night at the Senior Citizen Center in the City Hall.

Jociell Bull, the center's director, said it was the consensus of those attending that a local chapter is needed and that it could be a "real service" to the elderly of the community.

The nearest AARP chapter is in Norfolk and the drive is an inconvenience for many Wayne senior citizens, Mrs. Bull said. There are several benefits and services available through the association which include the following:

- Guidebooks on important retirement subjects such as preparing for retirement, selecting a retirement locale, money management, nutrition, health, widowhood, anti-crime, income tax, pets, food, home repair, housing, activities, jobs, legal advice, etc.

- The AARP Pharmacy Service, which provides discount prices and postage paid home delivery.

- Eligibility for group health insurance plans.

- An active legislative program on issues of concern to older Americans.

- Purchase Privilege Program which entitles members to courtesy discounts at leading motels, hotels and auto rental companies.

- Institute of Lifetime Learning, offering home-study courses, classroom programs at regional centers, etc.

- AARP Travel service for congenial company on tours.

- A bi-monthly publication carrying articles of interest to senior citizens.

Persons wishing more information on AARP are asked to contact Mrs. Bull at 375-1460.

Dairy Days to Focus On Mastitis Disease

An all-out assault on mastitis, the number one disease problem in dairy herds, will be launched in a series of Nebraska area Dairy Days around the state in December.

Dates and locations for Wayne area meetings are Dec. 4 and 11 at King's East in Norfolk; Dec. 5 and 12 at the VFW Club in Harrington, and the White House Inn in Laurel.

The Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Nebraska Department of Agriculture and milk marketing outlets are joining forces to sponsor a series of six general meetings on all facets of mastitis control, with one to five "satellite" meetings to be held in conjunction with each "live speaker" meeting. Cooperating in the venture are the Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association and Dairy Women of Nebraska.

Don Kubik, area extension dairy specialist, Northeast Station, Concord, who is coordinating the series, said new knowledge relating to the tenacious disease is now available and advanced control methods have been developed which need to be brought to bear by Nebraska dairy producers.

Mastitis is estimated to cost an average of $161 per dairy cow annually, mostly in lost milk production, which means the average dairyman in the state could be losing in the neighborhood of $4,000 per year, Kubik reported.

The thrust of the series is that a systematic program of mastitis prevention and treatment by a dairyman will return three to five dollars for each dollar required to carry out the program.

A battery of IANR specialists from several departments will be joined by an international authority on mastitis, Dr. W. Neilson Philpot of Louisiana State University. His recognition as a researcher and lecturer on mastitis has taken him to more than 20 countries around the world.

Each program consists of two one day sessions a week apart at the same location. Program content will be the same at both primary and satellite locations, program planners stressed. All meetings will begin at 9:30 a.m. and conclude at 3:30 p.m.

Good News for Wheat Growers On DHU Kernal

"It was good news for Nebraska wheat farmers when the Federal Grain Inspection Service (FGIS) announced that as of Dec. 10, they would no longer count Dark, Hard & Vitreous (DH&V) kernel content in winter wheat," says Erv Friehe, chairman, Nebraska Wheat Committee.

The Wheat Committee helped spearhead a recent trip to Washington, D.C., with a group of Nebraska, Texas, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma farmers, elevator managers, and farm organizations, as a means of bringing this problem to the attention of the FGIS decision makers.

Based on an average discount of 8 cents per bushel on Nebraska's 1979, 83 million bushel wheat crop, which graded 50 percent bleached — had DH&V continued to be counted, farmers would have lost upwards of $3.3 million, which is totally unjustified. Extensive laboratory testing has shown that wheat which has been bleached out by rain at harvest to grade low DH&V still has good baking quality when compared to hard wheat of equal protein.

This past summer at the beginning of harvest most of the wheat was grading high in DH&V. However, after a light rain, wheat taken from a field grading high DH&V only a few days previous, would drop down to a low count that resulted in a discount when the grain was sold which was unfair to the farmer.

The United States is the only exporter of winter wheat which offers DH&V testing. This system of quality determination is unreliable because of human error potential in determining the color of the kernel. Quite often, there is wide variation among the best of graders. The only parties wanting DH&V to remain as part of the grade for winter wheat are the large foreign buyers such as Russia, Brazil and Japan. They claim that this is a laboratory procedure which their chemist can make comparative tests, how ever, in many cases, foreign buyers are not up-to-date on the present standards. So it would appear that basically the overseas buyer is using DH&V as a point to "talk down" the price.

It is agreed by the grain trade that rapid infrared protein testing is much more reliable. Friehe concluded that there is a real need to educate the foreign buyer on using this quick protein testing system, and the Nebraska Wheat Committee will be working to bring this about.

What kind of Christmas tree?

Pine have needles in clusters two, three, or five. White pine have clusters of 5 needles. Norway, Austrian, Ponderosa and Scotch pines have two or three needle clusters. Norway, Austrian, and Ponderosa pine have fairly long needles. Scotch pine needles are short. Pines hold their needles the best even when they dry out.

Firs, Douglas fir and spruce have one needle. The firs and Douglas firs have flat needles. Spruce have 3-4 sided needles. Firs and Douglas fir hold their needles fairly well, spruce needles will begin to shed in a week or so after being put up in the house. Adding water to the tree helps.

Caring for Christmas trees

Select and buy your tree early if you want a particular kind of tree. Keep in a cold, shady area until ready to put in a house. If you have a spruce tree, wait until just before Christmas to put it up. If it will shed its needles before the season is over if put up too early. Most other kinds of trees can be put up early. Always shake tree well before bringing in house to get rid of the dead needles. Make a new cut at the base to expose new wood. Place in a stand that helps to keep fresh and fire resistant.

Cord of wood

A pickup load of wood is not a cord. It requires two good pickup loads to equal a cord of wood. A cord of wood is 4 feet x 4 feet x 8 feet or 128 cubic feet.

Green wood

Burning green or wet wood will make the wood burning unit inefficient. A ton of green wood can contain half or 1,000 pounds of water. This means a large part of the wood is going to be used converting 125 gallons of water to steam and driven out the chimney. The heat used in the conversion is not available to heat the room. Use dry or seasoned wood to increase efficiency of the wood burning unit.

Iranian Crisis Affects Grain

Uncertainty over the outcome of the confrontation in Iran has caused grain prices in the United States to fluctuate. And according to an agricultural economics professor in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, this is causing some uncertainty in the Nebraska crop market.

Mike Turner said it isn't so much the Iran crisis specifically, but any international crisis which lends more uncertainty to the value of the dollar causes grain prices to increase.

"The foreign countries who have those dollars when a crisis like this occurs," he said, "causes them to want to turn those dollars into tangible goods, usually grain, because that's one item whose value won't go down."

Turner said that although agricultural producers usually think of grain prices being related to how a foreign crop has turned out or to famines, he doesn't think farmers attribute as much importance to the dollar as they should.

The whole Iranian situation is just one more crisis that shows the influence of the uncertainty of the dollar," he said.

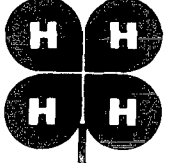

Turner said the recent move by dock workers who have been reported to be boycotting shipments of food and agricultural products to Iran, won't deprive Iran of food or cause a curtailment in U.S. exports.

"The grain flow will only be rerouted," Turner said. "We (the U.S.) will sell the grain to some other country who will in turn sell it to Iran."

He said he thinks the boycott is as much a symbolic gesture against Iran as anything.

Turner said that if the hostages were killed or President Carter's military intervention, it would cause a further uncertainty of the dollar and would further increase fluctuations in grain prices.
