TO THE WIDE eyes and smiles of several youngsters, Santa Claus arrived at the Municipal Airport about 1 p.m. Sunday. A small crowd was on hand to greet the jolly old St. Nick who was making his first official visit to Wayne this season under sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce. He was flown here from the North-Pole by airport Manager Al Robinson. After a brief visit with the children, Santa traveled to downtown Wayne on the Fire Department's antique truck. Pictured with Santa are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Manske and their two-year-old daughter Lissa.

Both Sides Rest; Jury Gets Ross Case Wednesday

A jury of eight women and four men continued deliberation into Wednesday afternoon in the first degree murder trial of Michael L. Ross, 24, Sergeant Bluff, Iowa.

The 12 jurors were sent to the jury room at the Wayne County Courthouse by District Judge Merritt C. Warren at 11:49 a.m. Wednesday. The defense and prosecuting attorneys completed their closing arguments prior to that.

The stand Wednesday morning, both attorneys gave their closing arguments. Bornhoff was first and took 27 minutes for his summation.

BORNHOFF asked the jury to consider what he felt was the most important question: did the shooting happen as an accident?

Noting Ross had considerable experience in the U.S. Army's Military Police and as a civilian policeman, the prosecuting attorney asked the jurors: is this the kind of fellow that would make a mistake?

A HIGHLIGHT of the trial was Ross' own testimony during which he was unable to answer several questions posed by the prosecution. Ross responded with either "I don't remember" or "I don't know" on several occasions.

Defense attorney Albracht told the jurors in his closing statement that Ross' confusion on the stand was normal under the circumstances.

BORNHOFF also reminded the jurors of previous testimony from law enforcement officials regarding Ross' statement shortly after the shooting.

Ross told investigator Mavis that he had pulled back the hammer on the gun. This is something you do consciously, deliberately, Bornhoff said.

The jury was reminded that Ross had told both Deputy Sheriff Thompson and Police Chief Fairchild that he had aimed the gun at Sunderman and pulled the trigger.

ROSS SAID under oath he had not had any quarrels with Sunderman, Bornhoff reminded the jury, but evidence entered during the trial showed they had a fight the day before the shooting.

During the testimony of Ross Tuesday afternoon, Bornhoff introduced a note, identified by Ross as written in his handwriting, asking why Karen was mad at him and that if she saw him on the street he wanted to talk about it.

BORNHOFF also told the jurors Wednesday that "although his statement said he was playing with the gun, his testimony under oath was that it discharged while he was turning around."

On the other hand, as defense attorney Albracht maintained Wednesday during his closing remarks, Ross' statement was given shortly after he had shot the girl he was planning to marry. This was a difficult time for Ross, Albracht said.

DO YOU think you could tell a story accurately after your husband or wife or family had just been killed?" he asked. "Don't hold this man responsible for the manner in which he conducted himself in the interview."

Albracht also reminded the jury that Ross quickly broke down the gun and unloaded it because he "couldn't believe it was loaded." "It (the shooting) was a terribly careless act," Albracht said. "But there's nothing reckless about it."

Referring to testimony of the law enforcement officials, Albracht said Police Chief Fairchild had inadvertently handled the shooting weapon carelessly when examining it on the witness stand.

HE DID not check to see if it was loaded, and pointed it at himself when examining it, Albracht said.

The defense attorney also reminded the jury that Fairchild had himself been involved in a recent hunting mishap during which a shotgun fired.

Although Fairchild said under oath he had intentionally fired the gun, Albracht said the blast was inadvertent and that pebbles and shotgun pellets were scattered in the vicinity of Fairchild's fellow hunters.

As part of his client's defense, Albracht called numerous witnesses to the stand who testified that Ross and Sunderman were, in fact, planning to get married.

NO ONE HAD seen or heard of any harsh disagreements between the pair, and no one at the Elm Motel at the time of the shooting had heard any words of ill-feeling, Albracht noted.

Friends and neighbors of the Daniels testified that the relationship between Ross and Sunderman appeared normal in all respects and that nothing illicit or promiscuous had occurred.

SUNDERMAN, as she lay mortally wounded on the floor of Ross' apartment, at

See ROSS, page 14

ROSS WAS charged in a county attorney complaint with intentionally killing Karen Sunderman, 18, Wayne, on Aug. 9 at the Elm Motel here. He and the defense have contended from the outset of the trial that the shooting was accidental and that the victim and defendant actually were lovers.

"You don't shoot the one you're considering marrying," prosecuting attorney S.J. Albracht of Omaha told the jurors in his opening statement Monday.

HOWEVER, Budd Bornhoff, Wayne County attorney and attorney for the state, maintained through the course of events that the incident was not accidental and that a person with Ross' police and military training would not be careless.

"Evidence will show that his (Ross') background is of a person who is not likely to make a mistake," Bornhoff argued.

Testimony during the two-day trial revealed several discrepancies between witnesses, brought to light Sunderman's relationship with two other men and revealed a note indicating a lovers' quarrel between Ross and Sunderman.

There were 10 witnesses for the prosecution and five for the defense. Witnesses were as follows:

For the prosecution: Richard L. (Rick) Reed, dispatcher for the Wayne Police Department; Luella Daniels, owner-manager of the Elm Motel, scene of the shooting; Myron Jenness, ambulance driver for Providence Medical Center and an Emergency Medical Technician (EMT); Warren Fairchild, Wayne police chief; Melvin Lamb, sergeant and gun safety instructor for the WPD; Dr. John W. Scott, Sioux City pathologist; Kelly Pilger, personal friend of Ross and Sunderman and a neighbor to the Elm Motel; Darin Daniels, son of the motel owner; Scotty Thompson, Wayne County deputy sheriff; Robert (Bob) Mavis, special investigator for the Nebraska Highway Patrol.

Witnesses for the defense included the following:

Tom Staley, Sergeant Bluff, Iowa, school teacher; defendant Ross; Ross' parents, Norman and Martha; and Deputy Thompson.

Summary of Fateful Day

According to testimony Monday and Tuesday, the following occurred at Ross' apartment at the Elm Motel:

ROSS WAS awakened about 11 a.m. Aug. 9 by a phone call from Sunderman. They made plans for the day which included going to Stanton to pay off some traffic tickets for her and then going target shooting.

Sunderman arrived at the motel about 1 p.m. but Ross was unable to hear her knock because of his stereo. Mrs. Daniels gave her a pass key to let herself in.

ROSS TESTIFIED he went to the closet to get his .357 magnum handgun. He removed it from its case and as he was turning around it discharged, striking Sunderman (just above the umbilicus (belly button)).

Mrs. Daniels said she was running up the stairs to see what had happened when Ross was coming down to get her help. He had shot Karen accidentally, he told her, and had called the ambulance.

Medical and law enforcement officials arrived shortly thereafter and Sunderman was administered to before being taken to the hospital. She died shortly after arriving at Providence Medical Center.

Dr. John W. Scott, a pathologist with St. Lukes Medical Center in Sioux City, testified Tuesday morning that Sunderman had died of severe disruption of the liver and hemorrhaging of the chest.

IN ADDITION, there was some confusion among law enforcement officials regarding intricate details of the investigation.

Cause of Fire Is Stereo

Officials of the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department have revised their earlier cause of a fire Thursday, Dec. 6, at Morey Hall on the Wayne State College campus.

It has now been determined that the fire was caused by an overheated stereo. Previous cause had been a candle left burning on top of the stereo.

Council Sets Facility Use Policy, Moves Ahead on Lagoon Project

Wayne City Council gave its approval to the second phase of a $1.19 million sewer lagoon construction project expected to be underway in 1981.

There were no objections at a public hearing on the sewer lagoon system proposal which calls for construction of a rotating biological contactor facility on city property near the existing sewer lagoon.

A REPRESENTATIVE of the engineering firm DeWild, Grant, Record of Columbus explained that the proposed system is a requirement of the federal government. The existing system does not meet environmental regulations, he said.

Although the entire system will cost $1,196,000, the federal government will pick up $894,000 and the state $149,000, leaving the city with the balance of $153,000.

WHAT THE city basically is doing now is polluting Logan Creek and the Environmental Protection Agency is telling Wayne to eliminate the problem, he said.

Special precautions will be taken to ensure against odor problems, the engineer explained. In addition, a laboratory will be included in the facility so required federal and state tests can be made on location rather than having an independent testing agency do the work.

The Council approved a resolution granting City Administrator Darrell Brewington the authority to apply for a Step 2 grant which seeks funds for design of the project. The first phase, Step 1, has been approved and completed. That action, taken several months ago, provided funds for study of the problem.

STEP 3 applies for funds for actual construction. Wayne's proposal now has a high priority rating at the state level and should move through smoothly, the engineer said. The Council also reached agreement with the Wayne Regional Arts Council involving use of city-owned facilities.

After considerable discussion, and a 30-minute delay for the sewer lagoon public hearing, the Council approved the City Administrator's recommendations. These are as follows:

THE MEETING room on the fourth floor at City Hall be restricted to only non-profit organizations and discussion groups. The room will not be used for activities beyond discussions or meetings.

The administration also recommended that the Wayne Fire Hall room upstairs be available for both activities and any non-profit group.

No one will be charged for use of either facility, but appointments must be made for use of the rooms.

THERE ALSO was considerable discussion involving a proposed ordinance which would delete towing charges on vehicles in violation of city ordinances.

One Council member argued, with some support, that eliminating any fee would leave citizens unprotected against possible overcharges. Another Councilman said he was concerned about the open-ended ordinance.

AFTER DISCUSSION, the Council adopted by a 7-1 vote the ordinance which, in part, is as follows:

"Any owner of a vehicle towed by the police department as provided in this article shall pay the cost of towing the vehicle. No person shall move any vehicle towed by the police department or by any person under the direction of the police department before paying the towing and storage fees and providing satisfactory evidence of such payment to the police department."

Previously a nominal fee was included in the ordinance. However, the fee was far under current market conditions and few tow companies were charging the required fee.

Voting against the motion to adopt the ordinance was Council member Sam Hepburn.

A LETTER from Jack McEvoy of Apollo Communications Inc., Hayes, Kan., was read. Apollo is owner of Wayne Cablevision which came under fire at the last Council meeting. Several persons have complained recently of outages and poor reception.

The letter from McEvoy assured the Council, the Mayor and City Administrator that most of the problems resulting in poor reception have been repaired.

THE TECHNICAL quality is now up to standards set by the Federal Communications Commission, the letter said. However, it added, there always will be transient problems such as those which have plagued this system recently.

Acknowledging the firm's diligent effort recently to improve the system, Mayor Wayne Marsh noted with amusement that his cable reception had been out of order most of Tuesday.

IN OTHER action, the Council approved the Mayor's appointment of Mrs. Mike Perry to the Wayne Recreation Board. She fills the vacancy left by Mrs. Ivan Creighton who resigned recently.

All Council members were present and all actions were unanimous unless noted otherwise.

School Board Hears State Report

Wayne-Carroll School District board of education Monday night covered several routine items including purchase of a bus body and chassis, review of a vocational education program report and approval of a faculty contract.

REPRESENTATIVES of the state Department of Education made a visitation last May of the school district's vocational education program. It later prepared reports on the local advisory council, the business education program and the auto mechanics and carpentry programs.

All areas of the reports met standards of the review committee except three.

ALTHOUGH the present community representation is "very positive" concerning vocational education, the report says, the Advisory Council needs to be more independent.

The evaluator commended the present community member selection, but "for future consideration it is recommended that the members be appointed by the school board via council, staff and administration nomination on a staggered term rotation schedule."

REGARDING the business education program, the report found student leadership activities not meeting standards.

It recommended that each school that has a vocationally reimbursable program also have a student organization such as the FBIA (Future Business Leaders of America).

There are in agreement with the national headquarters that a student organization can contribute greatly to a business vocational program, developing and promoting character, citizenship, leadership, social skills, cooperation and communication skills within each of the students enrolled in the vocational training program.

THE EVALUATORS provided similar criticism of the auto mechanics and carpentry program.

"An organization for trade and industrial education students does not exist at Wayne-Carroll High school," the report said. It subsequently recommended establishment of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) "to develop leadership abilities through participation in educational, vocational, civic, recreational and social activities."

PRINCIPAL Don Zeiss told the board the Advisory Council felt too many clubs in a school system could be detrimental rather than helpful. The school system now has an adequate number of clubs and the addition of more might spread the students' extracurricular time too thin.

Facilities and equipment in the auto mechanics and carpentry program were lacking also, the review committee indicated.

HOWEVER, "It would be very simple and easy (and foolhardy) to recommend new shop facilities. Schools are faced with spiraling costs and spending bids which severely restrict program and/or facility expansion. The only hope is that future state legislation might be revamped to permit budgets to include program and facility expansion as is needed," the report suggested.

New-school bus
By unanimous vote, the board accepted low bids for purchase of a 1980 school bus body and a 1980 school bus chassis.

MIKE PERRY Chevy-Olds Inc., Wayne, was low bidder on the chassis with a bid of $9,076.69. Base bid was $8,736.69 plus $107 for a pair of 12-volt batteries and $233 for freight.

Other bidder was Ellingson Motors Inc., Wayne, with a net bid of $9,204.25.

THERE WERE six bidders on the bus body, with Superior Sales of Nebraska, Inc., Ralston, having the low bid of $10,165.97. That includes a base bid of $10,815.97, plus $350 for freight and a trade-in allowance of $1,000.

Other bids included $10,950 from Miele Bus and Equipment Company, Lincoln, (Blue Bird body); $11,063 from Badger Body and Truck Equipment Company, Omaha (Wayne body); $11,275 from Nebraska Bus Equipment Co., Omaha (Thomas body); $11,428 from United School Equipment Co., Inc., Omaha (Carpenter body); and $11,495 from Ward Bus Sales of Nebraska, Omaha (Ward body).

A TITLE I contract was approved for Joan Marie Hansen, currently a student at Wayne State College. She will fill the position vacated by Sally McNeill who resigned recently.

Hansen will graduate from WSC later this month and has a major in special-education and learning disabilities.

IN OTHER action, the board: Approved preliminary plans for Marywood Subdivision to be located east of Tara Ridge Subdivision. Pat Gross is developer and information on the plans has appeared in The Herald previously.

Appointed Milton Owens, Jim Hummel and Neal Sandahl to the board's negotiating committee.

Heard a report on a negotiations workshop attended by Supt. Francis Haun; and a State School Boards Association and Nebraska Association of School Administrators' meeting recently.

Thankfully acknowledged a $100 contribution from the Wayne Jaycees toward construction costs of the new elementary playground.

Saw a demonstration of the Apple II computer which is being used by Wayne-Carroll classes for practical applications.

Heard a report that 13 seniors will be graduating at mid-term. These include Allen Anderson, Signe Anderson, Lori Prenger, Anne Jenness, Scott Kudrna, Connie Langston, Gena Lowe, Shelly Malcom, Russell Marshall, Kelly Maxson, Lori Prenger, Larry Rohlf and Jeff Westerhaus.

Heard one of its fellow board members indicate concern about the win-loss record of Wayne's football and basketball teams. Reflecting on previous coaches who had success here, the member indicated he was displeased with the current situation.

Heard the same board member praise band instructor Ron Dalton for his accomplishments. Dalton's band accomplishments continue to "amaze and thrill me," the board member said.

All actions were unanimous and all board members except Dale Stollenberg were present.

Timothy R. Wert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wert, Wayne, has been specially identified for early promotion to senior airman in the U.S. Air Force.

Airman Wert was awarded the new rating by a "below-the-zone" promotion board which considered job performance, military knowledge, bearing and self improvement efforts.

Selection below the zone means the individual has been awarded the senior airman rating up to six months before normal promotion eligibility. Competition in this category is reserved for airmen who excel on the job and are recommended by their commanders.

The airman is a disbursement accountant at Ramstein Air Base in Landstuhl, West Germany, and serves with a unit of the United States Air Forces in Europe.

Airman Wert is a 1976 graduate of Wayne Community High School.

Airman First Class David G. Deyloff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn R. Deyloff, Laurel, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force course for communication operations specialists at Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo, Texas.

Graduates of the course earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

He learned how to operate communication systems and analyze the effectiveness of communication security measures. Airman Deyloff now goes to Kadina Air Base, Okinawa, Japan, for duty with an Air Force Electronic Security Command unit.

A 1972 graduate of Laurel Public High School, the airman earned a bachelor's degree in 1978 from the University of Nebraska at Lincoln.

His wife, Lynn, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Duane Ketelsen of 1610 N. 144th, Beatrice.

Court Decision on Gasohol Brings Debate

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Supreme Court's recent decision invalidating perhaps the most important sections of a 1979 gasohol-promotion law predictably irritated a few, but came as little surprise to others.

The debate over the merits of the court's unanimous opinion was well underway less than two hours after the ruling was announced. And although the debate subsided somewhat in a day or so, gasohol backers and critics are expected to continue debating the issue for some time.

Essentially what the court said was that the state indirectly, but unconstitutionally, pledged support to bonds that would be issued by local governments to build alcohol plants. The state legally cannot go into debt, but the court said the 1979 law's guaranteed bonding provision may have made it impossible to comply with the constitutional prohibition.

The court did, however, leave intact a penny-per-gallon gas tax increase that was contained in the law. The court found that the gas tax essentially was available for road work and did not appear to violate any constitutional provisions.

State Sen. Lorán Schmit of Bellwood, a longtime gasohol backer, who is known in some quarters as "the godfather of gasohol," predictably was upset by the ruling.

If the funding mechanism in LB571 was invalid, Schmit reasoned, the same should have been true for the Bob Devaney Sports Center at the University, the State Office Building and the technical community colleges. But Schmit did not give up hope after the court's ruling.

The Bellwood lawmaker said he may propose a "substantial increase" in the state's gasoline tax to help finance state alcohol plant development. That proposal, however, may not be very popular — especially among taxpayers, who already are paying one of the highest state gas taxes in the nation.

Still, the effort to establish a gasohol market in Nebraska has not been totally doused by the court's ruling. In fact, one gasohol producer said he was pleased with the Supreme Court opinion because he said the 1979 law would have made gasohol production "a political thing."

Dave Hutchinson, president of Ecological Energy Co., says the state's first alcohol plant could be on line by the end of the year. Hutchinson said his company's $600,000 alcohol plant would produce a million gallons of agricultural alcohol.

In addition, the St. Paul Business Development Corp. plans to build a $45 million alcohol plant that would produce 20 million gallons a year. Plans call for beginning construction next spring.

The idea of private enterprise getting into the alcohol producing business is nothing new, but Schmit said it just hasn't worked so far and that's why the Legislature got involved.

"I have tried for eight years to give private enterprise every inducement, but the major oil companies and grain companies, the major financial institutions that are often controlled by oil companies, have been able to stop this development," he laments.

Gov. Charles Thone, carrying through on his campaign pledge to stay in touch with Nebraskans, recently made a special appearance before the Nebraska Farmers Union.

Thone told the group that the United States can, and should, help "wage peace" among developing nations by improving its food delivery system. Failure to do so, he says, increases the possibility of world conflict.

Nebraska ranks seventh among the states in exporting agricultural products, "and we can and we should rank at least fourth or fifth," the governor notes.

Thone has frequently mentioned the need to push more exporting of Nebraska products since his return from a European marketing tour, and he and state Agriculture Department officials say they are continually working to achieve that goal.

Thone says a plan for international marketing for Nebraska should include increased use of the Missouri River to move bulk products; more effective highway transportation systems; and more participation in international trade shows and similar exhibits.

In less than a month the Nebraska Legislature will again be in session, and business has been picking up considerably at the Statehouse.

Legislative committees are finishing up interim studies, bills are being drafted, lobbyists are refreshing contacts (if they even got out of touch) and "money" seems to be a byword for everything.

Legislative budgeteers say the state will have a tough time approving all agency budget requests without doing some trimming. And Gov. Charles Thone and key lawmakers have reaffirmed their desire to limit the growth in the state budget to 7 percent.

One issue, however, that is expected to get a loud plea for support from a certain group of lobbyists is state aid to education. Education leaders say it's becoming more difficult to live with the current level of state funding — $55 million — and local taxpayers seem almost angry about their property tax bills, a large portion of which goes to schools.

But again "money" is the byword that will pay a major role in the state aid issue. Lawmakers will be considering, among other things, a fiscal analyst's report that shows overall financial support to public schools has nearly doubled during the last nine years.

The fiscal analyst's report, which surely will be scrutinized carefully by legislative budgeteers, says most of the increase was more the result of mandated programs and property tax reimbursement plans than direct aid. And since lawmakers themselves mandate the expensive state programs, the issue is in their arena no matter which way they look.

Have pity for Congresswoman Majorie Holt of Maryland, and while you're at it, for Congressman Del Latta and Ralph Regula of Ohio, Barber Conable of New York, Dave Stockman of Michigan and John Roussetot of California.

They and legislators of similar persuasion in both parties all share a common concern. The better they try to do their jobs, the more

Dear Editor:

I am aware of the shoplifting going on in the stores and how important it is to protect against this. But feel some store owners are taking to much authority upon themselves.

A few days ago my son (6 years old) was shopping in one of the grocery stores. He was in the candy section of the store and put a balloon in his pocket. The manager stopped the child before he had a chance to pay for the balloon, even before leaving the candy counter, and told the child he stole the balloon. The child denied this, saying he was going to give it to his aunt when he found her who was with him in the store.

The child was called a liar and taken to the office. The manager told the child if he didn't admit to taking the balloon he, the manager, would call the police station. The child was pressured and harassed until he admitted taking the balloon. The manager would not listen to any reasoning from the child, but immediately pronounced guilty. Adults are not guilty until they go through a check out. Shouldn't children have these same rights?

Name withheld by request

Dear Editor:

I am angry with my local, state and federal governments for their never-ending, and insatiable desire for more and more tax dollars to pay for more and bigger government. When will it ever stop? I detest working every year from January until sometime in March or April to pay for my taxes alone. I am sure there are thousands of fellow Nebraskans who feel as I do. Stand up and be seen and heard.

Last year the state income tax rate was 16 percent of the federal income tax liability. For 1979 the state income tax rate was increased to 18 percent over the strong objection of outgoing Governor Exon. Now we they seem to annoy and embarrass their colleagues. The problem, you see, is that they keep asking the same awkward questions — the ones the American public wants answered, but that Congress as a whole wants to avoid.

What they are trying to determine is simply this: Why won't Congress cut taxes. . . or spending. . . or both? It's been a frustrating quest. When they push for tax cuts alone, they're told in effect: "Stop that! You'll worsen inflation." They disagree, but for the sake of progress they offer a proposal linking tax cuts to spending cuts. Next answer: "Your cuts are too large. You're advocating a meat ax approach!" Undaunted, they try again, returning with a request for smaller cuts, only to be told: "Don't bother us with that. Now is not the right time."

Will there ever be a right time? You have to wonder. Having been defeated on three different attempts to reduce the federal budget during the last two months, Holt, Latta and company recently decided to make one last offer — an offer no one could refuse. Exempting defense and veterans affairs, they proposed a general spending reduction totalling barely two percent of the budget — mere crumbs within the giant $550 billion federal pie. Then they challenged the House to prove it was at least willing to eliminate this tiny amount of waste.

How greedy of them! The House, unable to stomach such sweeping cutbacks, instead swallowed its pride and voted down their motion. Indeed, the budget-cutters were even given a lecture and accused of trying to subvert the entire budget process. It's true, of course, that passage of this two percent reduction would have delayed the budget process. It would have meant sending the budget resolutions back to committee where the specific spending cuts would have to be decided. But remember, the whole purpose of establishing a budget process was to get a better handle on federal spending. So what the spenders were really saying to the budget-cutters was: "If we pass your motion to limit spending, we'll destroy our process to limit spending!" How's that for tortured logic?

The bottom line is this: In the name of saving the sacred budget process, the House has approved another double digit increase in the federal budget itself — a comfortable continuation of policies that have witnessed have a huge surplus in our state treasury — one so big and growing so fast that not even the Nebraska Department of Revenue can tell how many millions will be involved by the end of the fiscal year. The Thone administration has recognized this with the help of some concerned taxpayer groups who forced the issue of the surplus into the public focus. As a result, Governor Thone has called for a temporary moratorium on the withholding of state income tax from wages, something which will not, however, decrease the total amount of state income tax each of us will owe when our state income tax return is due on April 15, 1980. The State Board of Equalization has also responded by reducing the income tax rate to 17 percent. But without an even lower tax rate the surplus in the state treasury will still be a very large sum — a sum which many special interest groups are very determined to sink their teeth into when the legislature convenes in January.

Every tax payer in this state should be expressing his or her anger about the surplus in our state treasury and making it clear to our state senators that it should not be spent just because it is there. It is a must that our elected officials and government employees at the state and local level know of our displeasure at their never-ending ability to spend larger amounts of our tax dollars and that we do not want them or their professional organizations lobbying the legislature for the money in that surplus. If we don't get this message across, that surplus of money belonging to the taxpayers of Nebraska will become additional padding in bigger local and state government budgets that will never be reduced. The net effect will be that you and I will be paying more, more, more.

limit the growth in the state budget to 7 percent.

One issue, however, that is expected to get a loud plea for support from a certain group of lobbyists is state aid to education. Education leaders say it's becoming more difficult to live with the current level of state funding — $55 million — and local taxpayers seem almost angry about their property tax bills, a large portion of which goes to schools.

But again "money" is the byword that will pay a major role in the state aid issue. Lawmakers will be considering, among other things, a fiscal analyst's report that shows overall financial support to public schools has nearly doubled during the last nine years.

The fiscal analyst's report, which surely will be scrutinized carefully by legislative budgeteers, says most of the increase was more the result of mandated programs and property tax reimbursement plans than direct aid. And since lawmakers themselves mandate the expensive state programs, the issue is in their arena no matter which way they look.

Second, Americans, as taxpayers, must become much more politically involved in trying to reduce the burden of government. As Senator William Proxmire of Wisconsin, a tireless foe of government waste, recently noted: "Who comes to Washington to ask us to cut a particular program? You will wait a long time for an answer. Who comes? No one. Not ever. But hundreds come reporting to represent millions, asking us to increase spending."

People like Proxmire in the Senate and the budget-cutters in the House are trying to work for us. Why can't we start coming to Washington by the hundreds, thousands, or even millions to help them? If we don't, we might lose the most important battle of our lives, without ever having put up a fight.

State's Land and Water Better Than Gold: Thone

"Nebraska's land and water are more valuable than gold or diamonds. Persuading all state citizens to value these resources properly is one of my major goals.

"A gold nugget or a gem brings a high price but does not reproduce. If we take good care of our land and water, they will continue to produce returns annually that will increase in value each year.

"We have been too little conscious of how rare and fragile are Nebraska's soil and water riches. There's less than an acre of productive land for each person on earth. All the world's crop producing acres amount to an area just a little larger than the United States.

"Yet in the years since farming began in this country, erosion has destroyed land acreage larger than Nebraska's area. An inch of topsoil that takes several hundred years to form can be eroded in a few weeks.

"Water is becoming even more scarce and subject to more competing demands than good land.

"This year, your state government is taking some steps to protect its natural resources.

"There are several state agencies as well as many federal entities that play a part in water policy for Nebraska. When I became governor, these groups weren't even talking to one another. The Interagency Water Coordinating Committee I formed is beginning to achieve coordination and genuine cooperation.

"In 1980, Nebraska will make a major effort to conserve water and fuel used in irrigation. Details of this program will be announced within the next month.

"At a time when fertile land to produce crops for export is more important to the nation's balance of payments than ever before, the federal government is proposing to reduce drastically its incentives for permanent soil and water conservation measures. It's do my best to persuade the federal legislative and executive branches to reverse this disturbing trend.

"President Theodore Roosevelt once said, 'When the soil is gone, man must go. And the process does not take long.' We Nebraskans have created a beautiful land from an area that the first explorers called 'the great American desert.' We must dedicate ourselves to full protection of those riches."

Briar's Bubble Bursts

Cats Snatch Win From Mighty Chargers

The game was give and take and the Wayne State Wildcats were the takers. The fired up Cats took the game away from potent Briar Cliff for a shocking 81-72 double overtime victory in Wayne's Rice Auditorium, Tuesday night. Wayne State returned from the dead twice to gain the indelible triumph.

The Chargers led 37-30 at the half-time intermission and built that lead to 13 points early in the second half. That's when senior guard Willie Summers led a tremendous Wayne State charge to knock the wind out of Briar Cliff's sails. Summers pumped in 23 points in the second half and over time periods including several key baskets. WSC finally knotted the score at 52-52 on a Summers' jumper from the top of the key with 5:13 left in regulation play.

Wayne State had the final shot in regulation but a desperation 25-footer by Wattle Rhoda fell short and the game was deadlocked at 58-58. A last second desperation pass the length of the court was intercepted sending the game into an extra period.

Summers turned in more heroics in the first overtime as he drove half the length of the floor for a layup that tied the game 66-66 with no time remaining on the clock. The Wildcats had appeared doomed with five seconds left after Briar Cliff forward Rolando Frazer tipped in a missed shot to give the Chargers a 66-64 lead. Following the tip by Frazer, the Wildcats immediately asked for a timeout, but found they had already used the six that they are allowed in a game.

For their action, the Wildcats were charged with a technical foul. Charger guard Glenn Hounel missed the technical free throw and on the ensuing in-bounds pass, Summers came up with the steal that sent the game to a second extra period.

In the second overtime, Summers gave the Wildcats a three point lead following a layup and free throw from the four corners offense. After taking more than two minutes off the clock, Zake Loric drove for a layup that gave the Cats a commanding 71-66 lead in the final two minutes, WSC converted on six of eight tries from the charity stripe to secure a nine point win. Center Rhoda contributed 21 points and a game high 14 rebounds while Charger Frazer was the game's leading scorer with 35 points, two short of this season average.

The loss was Briar Cliff's second of the year against six wins while the Cats improved to 3-2.

Wildcat Cyclone Can't Be Snared

By John Merriman
WSC Athletic Director

Hidden in a cold-black December night the Four Horsemen rode again. In dramatic lore they are known as Famine, Pestilence, Destruction and Death. Last night the Fifth and Sixth Horsemen rode with them. They are known as Fire and Power. But these are only aliases. Their real names are Beller, Lindsey, Loric, Summers and Rhoda. They formed the crest of the Wildcat cyclone before which the fighting chargers were swept over the precipice.

A cyclone can't be snared. It may be surrounded, but somewhere it breaks through to keep on going. Last night the cyclone struck again, as Wayne State beat Briar Cliff 81 to 72 in double overtime. Those five ripped and dashed through the BC defense and in the end stopped their offensive might nine short of victory.

For twenty minutes the five were surrounded. But in brief respite they regrouped their hearts and began again and here the Sixth Horseman joined them. At first he was but a distant rustle like softly falling paper bits. But the Bench heard him and called. There was Edwards, Emmanuel, Milks and Webb pleading for him to hurry. And Hansen and McCrae praying don't be late. And Hutch who heard and saw him first that leaped and screamed. "He's Here! He's Here! We'll Win!"

And the distant rustle grew and became the rumble of Casey's Cannonball. And grew and grew and filled the gym as an "A" Bomb fills the air. It surrounded its five companions and crushed the Charger spirit. It lifted its five brethren back to exalted heights. Across the land the Sixth Horseman is known as Power. We know it as Wildcat Fans.

RICK JOHNSON, 155 pound Wayne wrestler, wastes no time in putting his opponent to the mat and securing a pin. The victory added six points to Wayne's team total. The Blue Devils finished with a 47-12 trouncing of Randolph, Monday. Johnson also won a gold medal in the Blair Invitational Saturday as his team placed second.

Wayne Wrestlers Pulverize Randolph

Opening their dual season on the home mat against Randolph, the Wayne wrestlers impressed the crowd with an easy 47-12 win, Monday night in the Wayne High School gym.

The Blue Devils, who finished second in the Blair Invitational Saturday, were never challenged by Randolph in the dual. Four Wayne wrestlers won by pins, three won by decisions and two won by forfeit. Randolph scored its 12 points with two decisions and one pin.

After Jon Jacobmeier opened the match with a forfeit in the 98 pound class, 105 pound Steve Pospishil scored a lopsided victory. He stuck Randolph's Ron McClain on his back five times for near pin points and gave his team five points for a 19-0 superior decision.

Terry Gilliland won by forfeit at 112 and Mike Schock added six more points to the Wayne total by pinning Brett Rissler in 4:40. David Doescher also scored a pin over Mark Korth in 3:34.

Randolph broke up the shutout with two consecutive decisions in the next two weight classes. Dan Stevens of Randolph declined Kevin Echtenkamp 8-2 and Brian Bargstadt edged Nick Sieler 9-7.

Brett Frevert put the Devils back on the winning track with a 7-0 shutout over Mark Stevens. Rick Johnson, 155 pound champion in the Blair Invitational Saturday, dominated his match as he stuck Merlin Loberg in 1:37.

Three more points were added to Wayne's total in the 167 class as Aaron Schuett defeated Kelly Isom 6-2. Alan Schuett suffered a loss by pin in the 185 pound class.

The crowd came to its feet as Wayne heavyweight Dan Mitchell pinned Kevin Keifer in 45 seconds. The two struggled for nearly 30 seconds trying for a takedown but when Mitchell took his opponent down, he wasted no time putting his shoulders to the mat.

The Wayne reserves had a long night, losing six matches by pins and one by decision. John Carhart, Dan Watts, David Wiener, Kurt Janke, Chad Dorcby, Gerald Monk and Eric Brink formed the Blue Devil reserve team. Brink lost a close 9-6 decision.

Wayne Freshman

Girls Lose Two

Wayne's freshman girls' basketball team found the going rough in action against South Sioux City, Saturday.

The freshman 'A' team fell 28-17 in competition against the tall and talented South Sioux team. Tami Murray scored nine points for the Blue Devils and Shelley Emry and Cathy Wieseler added four points each.

The freshmen 'B' team also lost its game 24-14 despite the nine point output of Jill Mosley. Next action for the freshmen is scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 20 at Laurel. Deb Bodenstedt is freshman coach.

Vanderheiden escape for a 2-1 lead. He then scored on a near pin, a reversal and escape over the three periods and gave up only another escape and a reversal.

Rick Bowers battled to a 6-4 decision over Pete Richling of Creighton in his final match, scoring his points with a reversal, near pin and escape.

Sophomore Barry Bowers was impressive as he took control of his match for an 11-5 win. Bowers scored on two takedowns, two reversals and a near pin during the match.

"I'm happy with the way we performed. I was disappointed in a couple of people who let us down but as a team we showed what we're capable of doing," said coach Doug Reeves. "It's sure no disgrace losing by 2 1/2 points. There were two questionable pins that could have gone either way and could have given us the title. I thought the tournament officiating was good however. We had a good performance. The kids know what they can do now."

Winside Wrestler Of The Week

Rick won the 126-pound class division at the Wayne State College Invitational high school wrestling tournament, Saturday. He won two matches by pins and one by a 6-4 decision to lead Winside to a second place finish in the competition.

Coach's Doug Reeves' comments: "Rick wrestled real aggressively and looked real good. He hasn't been much of a pinner in the past but he came through this weekend to help the team."

Editor's Note: The Wayne Herald has agreed to publish a Winside Wrestler of the Week article in the sports section. Coach Doug Reeves selects his wrestler each week.

RICK BOWERS

BARRY BOWERS, Winside sophomore, won a gold medal in the Wayne State Invitational Saturday by decisioning Andy Miller from Plainview in the finals. Bowers helped his team to a second place finish in the tournament. Four Wildcat wrestlers won gold medals.

Allen Slips Past Laurel 45-44

Allen junior Lisa Erwin converted two free throws in the final eight seconds of the game to give the Eagles a 45-44 win over Laurel, Tuesday night in Laurel. Erwin finished as the game's leading scorer with 23 points.

Allen led 22-16 at the half but a third quarter rally put the Bears in the lead 33-32 after three periods of play. The fourth quarter was nip-and-tuck all the way.

Laurel upped its lead to five points with only a minute and a half remaining in the game but Allen closed within one point with nine seconds left. Erwin was fouled with eight seconds on the clock and held up under pressure to make two free throws. The Bears couldn't score in the waning seconds.

Leading the Laurel attack were Debbie Thompson with 12 points and Roxie Kraemer with 11 points. Stacey Koester scored 12 points for Allen to complement Erwin's performance.

"Laurel really played the better game," said Allen first year coach Dale Jackson. "We had 27 turnovers but we got them at the line by one free throw. Erwin saved it for us. I hope the rest of the games aren't this close."

Both teams made 17 field goals but Allen held the edge at the free throw line, connecting on 11 of 18 attempts compared to 10 of 27 for Laurel.

In junior varsity action, Allen nipped Laurel's reserves 18-14. Machele Pettit and Judy Taylor scored eight points each for the Eagles while Jill Hansen and Renee Gadeken led Laurel with four points apiece.

Laurel will host Wausa tonight (Thursday) and Allen travels to Bancroft for a game tomorrow night.

Cats Upset Mo. Western

Wayne State College used a sagging zone defense and a quick four corners offensive attack to score a 65-58 upset victory over Missouri Western State College in both teams' Central States Intercollegiate Conference opener Friday night in St. Joseph, Mo.

The Wildcats, faced with a man to man defense for the first time, this season spread their offense wide to take advantage of quick guards Willie Summers and Zake Lorick. However, it was the play of 6-3 forward Joe Lindsey and 6-5 center Waltie Rhoda that made the difference. Rhoda finished with 17 points while Lindsey tallied 14.

Missouri Western held a 25-23 halftime lead before the Wildcats scored the first eight points of the second half to take a lead they would never lose.

Trojans Win Opener

A 13-point performance by Jolene Bartels carried the Wakefield Trojans to a 35-28 win over Osmond in a defensive girls' basketball battle, Tuesday. It was the opening game of the season for Wakefield while Osmond drops to 1-1.

The two defenses battled in the first quarter as Wakefield built up an 18-4 lead. The Trojans stretched that lead to 17-12 at the half and extended it to 28-19 after three quarters of play.

Osmond stung Wakefield at times with the fine offensive play of 5-10 junior Shari Krohn, who scored 18 points. First year coach Dennis Wilbur put Joan Miller against her defensively later in the game and the Trojan junior shut Krohn down.

"Both teams made a lot of errors but we came through, jumped ahead and stayed there. The fans saw two pretty good defenses," said coach Wilbur. "Miller had one fine game and we had a fairly good game team-wise." Wakefield hosts Emerson Hubbard tonight (Thursday) and Wilbur says that game will be "a shootout with offense versus offense and defense versus defense."

The Trojans were led on the boards by Bartels and Kathy Gustafson with 17 and 15 rebounds respectively. Wakefield shot 30 percent from the field compared to 22 percent for Osmond.

Osmond cut the Trojan lead to four points in the last minute but a three point play put the game

Lady Cats Fall To USDS

The University of South Dakota, Vermillion, opened up an early lead and cruised to a 79-67 win over Wayne State's women Saturday night in the Dakotadome.

South Dakota led by as many as 20 points in the first half before grabbing a 36-19 lead at halftime. WSC battled back in the second half outscoring South Dakota 48-43 but could get no closer than the final 12 point margin.

Head coach Helen Carroll said she felt her team was somewhat bothered by playing in the Dakotadome.

"We didn't shake off the intimidation factor of playing in the Dome," she said.

WSC Outswims Dordt

Wayne State's swimmers lost a closely contested meet last Friday to the University of South Dakota 63-49 in Vermillion before bouncing back Saturday to easily defeat Dordt College, 63-42, in Wayne.

Several freshmen turned in first place performances against Dordt. They were: Chad Kerns in the 200 and 500 meter freestyle; Brad Carpenter in the individual medley; Mike Lee in the 200 meter fly; Mark Miller in the 100 meter freestyle.

JOHN FRICK, Wayne State diver, is caught on film in mid-air as he begins his downward dive to victory. Frick and WSC's Tony Scudder were the two lone divers in competition between Wayne State and Dordt College. Wayne won the swimming and diving meet at home, Saturday.

Wakefield Bombs Pender

Three players scored in double figures as the Wakefield Trojans ran up an 85-48 lopsided victory over Pender in Wakefield last Thursday.

Scott Hallstrom and Tom Preston scored 21 points each and Jeff Hallstrom added 17 points as the Trojan offense clicked.

"For our first game, we were pretty pleased," said coach Ernie Kovar. "Our defense took control in the third quarter and that led to a 31-point total in the period. I'm happy with the rebounding of a lot of people."

Jeff Hallstrom was the team's leading rebounder with 11 and Preston made seven assists to lead in that department. Mark Starzl led the Wakefield reserves to victory in the first game of the evening. Pender was led by Brian Glissman with 13 points and Rick Harding with 10.

The Trojans will travel to Osmond tomorrow (Friday) for their next game.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

WAYNE STATE BASKETBALL fans were treated to a thriller, Tuesday night when Briar Cliff invaded Wildcat country. The Cats were definite underdogs, playing a team that I believe was ranked number two in the NAIA ratings.

The first half of the game was interesting but the second half was intoxicating. Rice Auditorium rumbled with electricity: The Wayne fans were feverishly frantic. And the Wayne State Wildcats were superb. True Cat fans savored that victory along with their bacon and eggs at the breakfast table, Wednesday.

Wayne State displayed a fine defense. No, they didn't shutdown Cliff's star Rolando Frazer, but it took him four quarters and two overtime periods to score his 35 points-three points below his game average, mind you. His season low for the first eight games is 30 points.

The win over Briar Cliff ranks as one of the all-time biggest ones in my opinion. The game was as exciting as most Wayne State-Kearney State games and as dramatic as Wayne State-UNO matchups of years gone by.

As I sat in the stands enjoying the game, I believed late in the first overtime period that the Wildcats were going to lose. They trailed by two points and were accessed a technical foul for trying to call a timeout when none remained. The technical gave Cliff a free throw shot and possession of the ball.

Fortunately, the free throw bounced off the rim. It still looked as though the invaders would hold onto the lead. Then, the miracle materialized. A subtle Willie Summers stole the show and the game on an errant inbound pass. He drove the ball downcourt as the final four seconds ticked away for a layup which tied the game and sent it into another overtime.

The WSC players and fans were higher than an orbiting satellite as the second overtime began. Briar Cliff was no match for the home team in the final five minutes. The tied score blossomed into an 81-72 triumph, the biggest victory of the season for the Cats so far.

This big win combined with an upset victory over Missouri Western should give Wayne State added momentum for the upcoming games.

Free Throws Decide Outcome

Winside Escapes With 42-39 Win

Basketball games are often won at the free throw line and Winside's 42-39 conference win over Coleridge, Tuesday night is a classic example.

ignited for 14 points each and Robyn Winch hit two free throws late in the game as the Winside girls opened their season with a narrow win.

The Wildcats fell behind 14-10 in the first quarter as they were troubled by Coleridge's press. Winside displayed fine defense of its own and held Coleridge to six points in the second quarter for a 21-20 lead at the half.

The hosts opened up a five point lead in the third period, breaking Coleridge's defense for 14 points. However, the Wildcats couldn't put the game away. Coleridge battled back within one point in the fourth quarter but a foul on Winch proved to be costly for the invading team. She stepped to the free throw line and made two key shots to ice the victory in the final seconds.

Coleridge pressed and shook us for awhile. We made a lot of turnovers," said Winside coach Kathy O'Connor. "The girls came through in the third quarter. Kathy Thies and Laurie Gallop scored a lot of key baskets to get the lead. Robyn Winch's only two points were very important!" Winside was in foul trouble early and throughout the game.

Gallop and Marci Thomas were Winside's leading rebounders with 11 caroms each. Penny Smith led a balanced scoring attack for Coleridge with 10 points. Winside's junior varsity won the opening game of the evening 28-20. Tammy Thomas and Kim Frederick led the reserves with seven points and Kristi Benschhoff added four. Winside is scheduled to play at Wynot next Thursday in a girls and boys doubleheader.

Customs of Christmas Affected by Dickens' 'Christmas Carol' Story

Christmas, you may be surprised to learn, was a work or school day for many Americans until the mid-1800's.

The traditional American Christmas, in fact, is not so old at all. Gift-giving, card-sending, tree-trimming and other present-day customs did not become widely popular until the final decades of the 19th century, arriving then as a package of Victorian style and business zeal.

FOR MANY years, Thanksgiving actually was far more special than Christmas in New England. In the South, firecrackers were set off Christmas morning; colored eggs decorated evergreens in Dutch settlements along the Hudson River, and well into the 1800's, Santa Claus was portrayed as quite a small, elfish figure sometimes capped off with a feather.

Technological developments, advances in transportation, printing and mail services probably were responsible for the enormous change and popularization of Christmas day in the Victorian period," according to Shirley Cherkasky, a sociologist responsible for holiday research at the Smithsonian Institution's Division of Performing Arts.

"CERTAINLY, the publication of Charles Dickens' 'A Christmas Carol,' with its themes of charity and goodwill, affected the idea of how people felt Christmas should be observed," she adds.

Early in the country's history, the Puritan settlers believed Christmas should not be observed at all, and in 1659 the celebration was outlawed in Massachusetts by the decree: "Whoever shall be found observing any such day as Christmas and the like... shall pay for each offense five shillings to the country."

The Puritans associated Christmas with the Church of England, a painful reminder of their struggle for religious freedom: The Dec. 25 holiday, they strongly felt, was a human invention, a fabrication: Christ's birthdate was unknown, and therefore, the day should never have been ordained by the Church. The Puritans also didn't care much for the occasion, thinking it too closely linked to the spirited pagan celebration of the winter solstice.

BUT IN New York, Pennsylvania and the southern colonies, Christmas was another matter altogether. The Anglicans, Lutheran, Dutch Reformed and Roman Catholics in these regions celebrated with music, dancing, feasts and family gatherings. A French traveler, visiting the home of a Virginian in the 1600s, reported: "There was a great deal of carousing. He had sent for three fiddlers, a lester, a tightrope dancer, an acrobat who tumbled... they gave us all the entertainment one could wish for."

Today, if you're talking about getting back to a more religious holiday, you might remember that Christmas used to be pretty wild. Cherkasky notes. So wild that one early custom called mummery — knocking on doors, ringing bells, rattling cans and shooting off firearms — got completely out of hand in Baltimore late in the 1800s, falling into decline when quieter residents complained.

AFTER YEARS of struggle, the Massachusetts Puritans in 1681 repealed their anti-holiday decree, apparently won over by two reasons: the seasonal joy they could see their neighbors experiencing, plus the protection the U.S. Constitution gave to the separation of church and state. The Puritans, according to social historian James H. Barnett, were less inclined to oppose the secular celebration when it was no longer a symbol of the political and religious dominance of the Church of England.

But some in the colony still were not reconciled to the decision. Complained one Judge Sewell: "I believe that the body of the People Profane it; and blessed by God, no authority yet to compel them to keep it." In 1856, though, Massachusetts joined the growing list of states giving legal recognition to Christmas Day — the first being Alabama 20 years earlier.

By the mid-1800s, Christmas spirit was on the upswing throughout the country. Dickens' 'A Christmas Carol,' published in 1843, helped bridge local and regional differences in holiday customs. Its themes of kindness and generosity, according to Cherkasky, crossed many cultural and regional boundaries, thereby helping to universalize the Christmas celebration.

IN 1858, Dickens gave readings of the tale in the United States and, after one appearance, he wrote: "They took it so tremendously last night that I was stopped every 5 minutes. One poor young girl burst into a passion of grief about Tiny Tim and had to be taken out."

As it did in other areas of American life, the Industrial Revolution began to influence the way Christmas was observed. Christmas cards, for example, could be produced and mailed inexpensively, gaining wide popularity by 1875. And for better or worse, the first holiday advertising appeared in the 1830's.

BUT IT was not until late in the century, when the business and pleasure of gift-giving began in earnest, that elaborate Christmas celebrations became and annual American experience. "Gifts at first were given mainly to children, servants and tradespeople," Cherkasky notes. "It was a time for evening up accounts. But that was all to change."

"The folk-secular aspect of Christmas was taking precedence over its religious one," Barnett says. "This was apparent in the increasing importance of Santa Claus." Thomas Nast's drawings in "Harper's Weekly" portrayed Santa for the first time as a jolly, white-bearded character dressed in fur.

The popularity of the Christmas tree grew right along with the change in social customs and technological progress. After Queen Victoria set up a Yuletide tree at Windsor Castle, the style was set, reaching the White House in 1865 during Franklin Pierce's Presidency.

THOMAS Edison's lab came up with a string of tree lights in 1882, 3 years after the incandescent light breakthrough, and immediately this novel idea became the rage among the wealthy. Christmas tree parties to show off the expensive, lighted trees were major social events.

Today, of course, the Christmas season is the sum of many traditions. "We're so encrusted with a whole set of things to do, compared to the time the season was really quite simple," says Cherkasky.

In "A Book of Christmas," British author William Samson puts it this way: "Christmas from whatever angle you look at it is complex. When the English-speaking countries sit down at lunch-time to a traditional Christmas dinner, they eat Aztec bird beside an Alsatian tree, followed by pudding spiced with subtropical preserves..."

Christmas-Thanksgiving Cacti Are Quite Similar

As Christmas draws near, people often think of buying plants and flowers for those "hard to shop for." Many people give and receive holiday cacti Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter cacti.

Don Janssen, extension horticulturist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said that many times people think they are getting a Christmas cactus, when what they really have is a Thanksgiving cactus.

Holiday cacti can be distinguished from each other mainly by leaf shape. "Leaves of Thanksgiving cacti have three to four pairs of sawtooth projections while the leaves of Christmas cacti are much more rounded, producing slightly indented margins," Janssen said.

The flowers of the Christmas and Thanksgiving cacti are similar in shape, he said. Both are very irregular and the reproductive parts extend well beyond the petals.

Also, Thanksgiving cacti come in many colors varying from white to magenta to red, while Christmas cacti are mainly cherry red in color.

However, the Easter cactus is "very much different" than the Thanksgiving and Christmas cacti, he said.

"The leaf is thickened or even triangular with hairy projections at the tips of the segments. Easter cacti are many branched and the flowers are irregularly shaped. They come in many colors ranging from pink to red to violet."

Easter cacti are not as dependent upon day length as Thanksgiving or Christmas cacti and although they will naturally set bud for January to March, they also will set buds under cool temperatures at other times of the year, Janssen said.

Thanksgiving cacti are also less dependent on day length than Christmas cacti, he said, but both will set bud during November through December under natural conditions.

Janssen said that for maximum bud set and flowering, holiday cacti should receive five or six weeks of eight-to-nine-hour days, cool temperatures ranging from 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

Ross—

no time indicated she had been shot intentionally by Ross or that anything was amiss, Albracht said.

Under cross-examination by Bornhoff, Kelly Pilger, a friend to both Ross and Sunderman, said she had seen Sunderman with two other men while she was "supposedly going steady" with Ross.

HOWEVER, Pilger admitted under questioning by Albracht that she had not seen anything unusual in Sunderman's relationship with the other men.

Albracht termed this type of relationship healthy, saying it was commendable for men and women to have more than one friend of the opposite sex.

In giving his instructions to the jury before noon Wednesday, Judge Warren outlined the options available to the jurors

THEY COULD return a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, guilty of murder in the second degree, guilty of manslaughter or not guilty.

For Ross to be guilty of first degree murder, he would have had to commit the shooting purposely and with deliberate and premeditated malice.

Second degree murder requires that the defendant acted purposely and maliciously, but without premeditation.

Manslaughter requires that the defendant acted without malice, unintentionally and while in the commission of an unlawful act.

Judge Warren read a list of 18 instructions to the jurors, telling them that if a decision was not reached by 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, they would be allowed to go home and return today (Thursday) at 9:30 a.m. to continue deliberation.

The verdict must be unanimous, he told them.

Social Security Never Intended For Complete Retirement

People planning ahead for their retirement should be aware that social security was never intended to offer a complete retirement income. Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk, said recently.

Social security benefits provide a partial replacement of earned income lost or reduced because of the retirement, disability or death of a worker.

Some pension experts estimate that retirement income should be 60 to 70 percent of pre-retirement earnings in order for a retiree to maintain a standard of living similar to that before retirement.

Social security benefits generally provide 25 to 60 percent of pre-retirement earnings, depending on the individual's earnings over the years. With an eligible husband or wife, benefits would be 37 1/2 to 90 percent of the worker's previous earnings.

People can supplement social security retirement benefits with income from company pensions, insurance annuities, savings, stocks and bonds, individual retirement plans, or other investments.

The important thing for a worker to remember, Branch said, is that social security is not the total answer. It is a base upon which each worker should build his or her retirement plans.

More information about social security retirement benefits, as well as about disability and survivor benefits, can be obtained at the Norfolk social security office. They also have many free publications describing social security benefits.

Santa Arrives by Airplane

SANTA CLAUS arrived in an unusual fashion here Sunday for his first official visit under sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce and participating merchants. Of St. Nicholas was flown in from the North Pole by Municipal Airport Manager Al Robinson. With a spring-like December, Santa was unable to use his sleigh and eight tiny reindeer. As quickly as Nebraska weather is known to change, there yet remains hope that Santa will arrive to a white Christmas.

This and That...
from YOUR COUNTY AGENT

WAYNE COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

I have a guest columnist for you this week. The following is presented by Phillippe E. Rzewnicki, Wayne County Extension agent-in-training.

Those wild Nebraska winds
Being a new comer to Nebraska, there are some significant new changes for me. One really stands out above the others and that's the wind. It was especially evident to me this morning as I plowed through northwesterly gusts of 40 to 50 miles per hour with my little Pinto. My daily morning route takes me from West Point to Wayne with full exposure to the prevailing winds. The fact that these winds are new to me and perhaps taken matter-of-factly by those who have been here longer leads me to the following subject — trees for windbreaks.

I've already been up and down quite a few area roads in my first month here as county extension agent-in-training. It appears to me that many farmsteads could use new or renovated shelter belts. In a number of places there are old, broken trees which need to be replaced. Quite a few houses have some scattered trees in the lot, however, they are not properly protected from the winds.

Trees not only could save us hassles with snow-drifted yards, they can also save us money. It's found by Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service Researchers that heating costs for a home protected by a shelterbelt can be reduced by 23 percent. A strand of evergreens two to three rows deep and two-tenths of a mile long can have an accumulated value of roughly $6,000 to $7,000 after 20 to 25 years of growth. Another consideration is that of crop yield. Shelterbelts can increase crop yields by three percent. It's been estimated by foresters in the state that a half mile length of 35 to 40 feet tall trees can have an accumulated value after 25 years of about $3,000 based on present corn values.

I would particularly encourage some of our farmers to think about shelterbelt trees for their livestock holding areas. Winter stress could certainly be reduced if feedlots or housing facilities were to have those wild winds reduced by 70 percent as is offered by a properly established shelterbelt.

Windbreaks of three rows or less should be all conifers (evergreens). They give good year round protection. Windbreaks using broadleaf trees or shrubs should be 4 or more rows wide. Over half of all tree rows used in a windbreak should be conifers. Example: a five-row windbreak should have at least 3 rows of conifers and two or less rows of broadleaf trees or shrubs. Of course, woody plants grow slow when compared to field crops. There are, however, noticeable benefits after only five years of growth. Energy cost are very likely to just keep on rising in the future. Consider that wild Nebraska wind. My little car and I sure are.

Information on Clarke-McNary trees and help in planning windbreaks are available at County Extension, Natural Resource District and Soil Conservation Service offices.

Carnivorous Plants Are Considered Popular

Many home gardeners are turning to carnivorous plants to add to their domestic greenery. An extension horticulturist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources recently offered some tips on their care.

The three most common types of carnivorous plants are the venus flytrap, the sundew and the pitcher plant, said Don Steingger, the horticulturist. "These plants aren't the carnivorous plants that you see in the Tarzan movies that consume whole people one at a time," he said. "They are native to swamps and bogs in the United States and eat nothing larger than small flies."

"An important thing to remember in carnivorous plant culture is that all their nutrients — nitrogen, phosphorous and others — are obtained by eating insects," Steingger said. The best way to grow carnivorous plants indoors is in a terrarium, not in a standard clay pot. "The growing medium is very important for these plants. They need an acid, wet condition."

The home gardener has two potting medium choices — sphagnum moss or German peat, he said. Depending on the type of plant, Steingger recommended two to six inches of planting medium.

Making the hole in the medium large enough to accommodate the roots is an important consideration, he said. Potting must be done very carefully because the roots are very fine and easy to bruise and injuring the root system can set the plant back considerably, he said.

"Since all their nutrients come from the insects, they are very sensitive to the minerals that occur in the soil," he noted. It is

Caution Urged in Distilling Ethanol to Stretch Fuel

Farmers distilling ethanol to stretch fuel supplies should be alerted to the safety hazards of alcohol and its production, advises an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension safety specialist.

Distilling plant safety is a new consideration for most farmers, said Rollin Schnieder.

"THIS IS a new area for those persons who are making their first stills," Schnieder said. The moonshiners were not good at writing standards for still construction, he added.

"From a safety standpoint, we will have to monitor the types of accidents that happen and eliminate them if possible. If they cannot be eliminated, people will have to learn to live with the hazards," he said.

The ignition range of ethanol is similar to that of gasoline and propane, he noted, so fire prevention is important. Most of the on-farm stills will be heated with an open flame and the possibility exists that the fumes can be ignited.

"BECAUSE boilers will be involved in some of the plants," Schnieder said, the producer must guard against pressure build-ups which can lead to explosions.

"Even though the steam pressures in the vessels are low, there is always the possibility of explosions if the boiler is corroded or if the safety valves do not operate properly," he said.

Some type of testing system should be installed to check boiler systems before operations, he said.

"SPECIAL attention should be paid to the type of structure where the still is operated," he continued. The Midwest is characterized by strong winds, and builders of alcohol plants should consider wind direction and building type before installing their plant.

"A dry wooden barn may not be the best place to install the distillation equipment. A non flammable building would be much better," he explained.

Other production safety considerations include exit routes, fire extinguishers, shielded shafts on the grain grinder and good ventilation when the corn is being ground.

NATIONAL Fire Protection and Nebraska Codes or combinations should be consulted before building a distillation plant, he said. These include the flammable liquids code, the lightning protection code, the electrical code and the life safety code. The codes are available from the State Fire Marshal's office or reputable design engineers.

During the blending of alcohol with fossil fuels, equipment must be completely clean and free of water, and alcohol must be added in the correct proportions and thoroughly mixed.

UNDERGROUND tanks are the best for alcohol storage, he continued. But if the producer chooses above ground storage, the tanks should be in shady, cool places away from direct sunlight to minimize evaporation losses. Light colored tanks of aluminum or white color also help in reflecting heat.

Aluminum in the tanks, lines and connectors should be avoided, he said, because alcohol picks up aluminum oxide and water to create a milky white sludge that could settle in the tank and cause fuel line clogging and other engine problems.

FUELING FARM equipment with alcohol presents some operating problems that the farmer should be aware of, Schnieder continued. Leaks, condensation, altered tractor performance, more difficult weather starting and more vapor locks in hot weather are some potential problems.

If the operator is not getting adequate performance when using gasohol, he should check with his dealer about carburetor adjustments, timing and coolant temperatures.

"A 90-10 mix should work satisfactorily with little change in engine tune, but blends with a higher percentage of alcohol may require some carburetor and ignition modification for maximum efficiency."

Because of increased pressure and volatility, gasohol has a tendency to erupt out of the fuel tanks," he said. Heat radiated from the engine and the sun further increase the inside fuel temperature, he added. "With or without alcohol, gasohol is a particular problem, but it may be a problem with gasohol."

Gasoline volatility is tailored to expected temperatures in the various seasons, Schnieder said, and this may be a factor in tank pressure buildup.

IF GASOHOL made with winter or spring gasoline is used on a warm day, the high volatility of the fuel, intensified by heat, would increase fuel tank pressure and the likelihood of regurgitation, he said.

The potential pressure levels of gasohol make it mandatory that fuel tank caps fit perfectly and that the vents be free and open, he continued. Bent caps, caps with clogged vents or non standard cornob and rag caps should never be used with gasohol.

Gasohol may speed up the deterioration of gaskets and seals used in the fuel system, especially if they are old and not adequate to begin with," he cautioned.

"A broken muffler, leaky exhaust manifold or missing heat shield can add extra and unneeded warmth to an adjacent fuel tank, a matter that should be corrected if you are burning gasohol."

Corn Pull-Out Brings Penalty

Corn may no longer be withdrawn from the farmer owned grain reserve without penalty since the national average market price is $2.31 per bushel, 19 cents below the $2.50 reserve release level, according to John Gibbs, acting executive vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC).

Reserve barley remains in call status and release will continue through Dec. 31 for wheat, oats and rice. On Dec. 31 the national average market prices of these commodities will again be reviewed to determine their reserve status.

Gibbs said the reserve status decisions were made following a review by CCC of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's agricultural prices report released here today at 3 p.m.

Gibbs said the national average market prices for the commodities remaining in release status (with the reserve release levels in parentheses) are: oats $1.32 per bushel ($1.29); rice $10.50 per hundredweight ($9.51); wheat $3.90 per bushel ($3.29). The authorization to remove sorghum from the reserve without penalty was withdrawn October 31.

Storage payments for rice and wheat will continue to be suspended unless the price for each of these commodities fall below release levels. Storage payments will be made in all States for corn and sorghum unless the price for these commodities rises above release levels. For oats, storage will continue to be earned in Maine, Nebraska, North Carolina, New York and North Dakota where the market price is below the release level.

Data used by CCC in determining the release and call levels include five day average prices as reported by the department's Agricultural Marketing Service which shows prices bid by buyers at selected markets, as well as the month-end report of prices received by farmers issued today by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service. This end-of-month report shows the previous month's average price and the current mid-month price.

Surplus PCB's Poses Contamination Problems

The Wayne (Nebr.) Herald,
Thursday, December 13, 1979

Some Farmers Are Eligible for Barley Money

Eligible barley farmers will receive a payment of 11 cents per bushel on their 1979 crop, according to John Gibbs, acting administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

Gibbs said he expects barley deficiency payments to total about $17 million nationwide.

Deficiency payments are made to farmers who participated in the 1979 set-aside programs. Gibbs said barley payment checks will be issued through county ASCS offices beginning around Dec. 15.

The wheat national average market price of $3.83 for the five-month period, June through October, is above the target price of $3.40 per bushel, Gibbs said. Therefore, there will be no deficiency payment on the 1979-crop of wheat and no payment for designated wheat grazing and hay acreage.

Gibbs also announced that the National Program Acreage (NPA) for wheat and barley have been revised upward. The NPA for wheat has been increased from 57.1 million acres to 70.1 million and for barley from 6.5 million acres to 7.8 million. The allocation factors for determining deficiency payments are 100 percent for both wheat and barley.

The NPA represents the number of acres of a crop needed to meet estimated demand and assure desirable carryover levels. The allocation factor is the NPA for the crop divided by the harvested acreage.

If 1979-crop deficiency payments for corn and sorghum are required, they will be made next April as the data to compute payment will not be available until the end of March.

While the manufacture of new supplies of polychlorinated biphenyls, commonly called PCB's, was prohibited after July 2 of this year, a great majority of the 1.25 billion pounds produced in the United States is still present, a veterinary toxicologist warned in Columbus Wednesday, Dec. 5.

Dr. Norman Schneider, a veterinary science staff member in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, spoke on "The PCB Problem" at the annual meeting of Nebraska Poultry Industries. He appeared jointly as a panelist with Dr. S.H. Grettebeck of Dawes Laboratories, Burlington, Wis., in a discussion moderated by Dr. Earl Glaves, IANR extension poultryman.

PCB's are industrial chemicals that have become widespread environmental pollutants, Dr. Schneider said, pointing out that they are only compounded by man and do not occur in nature. "We must always be on-guard so that this chemical does not continue to find its way into our food supply and ultimately, into the human population," Dr. Schneider warned.

PCB's have special chemical properties that make them ideal as a commercial product and extremely undesirable when they are released into or enter the environment, he continued.

They are clear, nonflammable liquids, resistant to heat, do not biodegrade easily but are very soluble in fats or other organic solvents.

They have been used extensively as nonflammable oils in electrical transformers, condensers, hydraulic fluids, lubricants and paints; in closed heat transfer systems; as plasticizers, flame retardants, pressure sensitive adhesives, electrical insulators and for other functions. More than 60 percent of the total has been used in closed system electrical and heat transfer systems 25 percent for plasticizers and 10 percent for hydraulic fluids.

Of the 750 million pounds of chemically inert PCB's still in use, 290 million pounds are in landfills or dumps, 150 million pounds are free in the environment and only about 55 million pounds have been destroyed.

Dr. Schneider cited mounting evidence over the past several years of adverse ecological and toxicological effects from PCB's.

"One of the main hazards of environmental contamination by PCB is the tendency by bioaccumulation and bioconcentration, a process by which living creatures concentrate a substance to levels which may be harmful to them through repeated exposure to the substance," he explained. "Since PCB's are very lipid soluble, they tend to accumulate in body fat. PCB's are suspected of causing (pancreatic, liver and skin) cancer and do attack the nervous system in humans," he said, "so reducing exposure to contaminated foods is of prime importance."

Schneider reviewed two recent PCB "incidents," when livestock and poultry were exposed to PCB contaminants.

One episode involved the death of 54 feeder cattle near Newton, Kansas, found to have a level of 2,200 parts per million (PPM)

PCB's in body fat. However, the cattle were rendered and byproducts shipped to Nebraska and Arkansas for pet food and poultry feed before the presence of PCB's was confirmed.

The source of the PCB's was transformer oil used to formulate insecticide mix used in feedlot backrubbers. The oil, purchased from a salvage yard, was thought to be used motor oil.

The second PCB episode unfolded when a high level of PCB's was found in a tissue sample from a hen, and the source was traced to a leaking transformer in a storage shed at a Billings, Mont., packing plant. Contaminated meat meal incorporated into feed used primarily for poultry and hogs led to an investigation extending from Montana to 18 other states in which the feed was distributed. One poultry farm in Idaho had to destroy 300,000 chickens and more than 18 million eggs.

Brucellosis Still On the Increase

Brucellosis infected cattle herd numbers in Nebraska have increased from 11 to 34 herds during the first 10 months of 1979, reports the Nebraska Bureau of Animal Industry.

The herds now quarantined due to infection include closed herds with no recent additions, assembled herds purchased through a Nebraska market or a Nebraska dealer and herds purchased "through" out of state markets and dealers.

It has been determined that the majority of the infected herds come from those purchased through out of state markets and dealers.

There are many ways that brucellosis can be detected. However, "the ultimate system," states Dr. Robert Rodgers, state epidemiologist, "would be to isolate purchased breeding stock. Then, after the group completes one calving season, submit them to a brucellosis test. This would more closely approach 100 percent assurance of a brucellosis-free group of purchased cattle."

to recoup losses suffered from destruction of flocks and the associated disposal, so prevention and good management is the key to dealing with the PCB threat, Dr. Schneider said.

New regulations on PCB, effective after July 2, require that PCB's must be processed, distributed and used in a totally controlled manner, except where exempted by EPA. And PCB items containing greater than 50 ppm must be labeled.

Impacts of PCB's on poultry producers include monetary loss from condemned birds and eggs, causing eggshells to become thinner, decreasing hatchability, and spinoff adverse health effects on humans, especially breast-fed babies.

A particular danger is that PCB's can get into poultry without being consumed; they can be absorbed through the skin or enter through the lungs. "Just having PCB's around the farming operation poses a great danger," the IANR staff member said.

While there is no sure-fire method of preventing a PCB incident, Schneider offered a couple of suggestions to poultry producers:

— Take samples of all feedstuffs and label them, then retain the samples until all processed birds and eggs have been cleared by FSQS-USDA. Turn-around time for analyses on samples collected should not exceed one month.

— Be sure of your feed source. A particular caution is not to feed treated seed to poultry to salvage it.

"More residues exceeding published tolerances (and not just PCB's) are caused by feeding untreated seed and screenings from treated seed than from any other source. Don't patronize feed mills that salvage treated seed in their formulations just to save a little money on feed costs," Dr. Schneider concluded.

Recertification In Pesticides Due

Commercial pesticide applicators needing recertification training during 1980 can meet that need at Crop Protection Clinics scheduled for 15 locations around the state early next year.

Emery W. Nelson, pesticide training coordinator in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said the Environmental Protection Agency requires that recertification training be taken in the year preceding expiration of an applicator's certificate. Many Nebraska commercial applicators' certification expires June 30, 1980, Nelson said, so they should plan to take advantage of the training.

Approved training for private applicators, including farmers, will be conducted a year later, Nelson said. Farmers are invited and encouraged to attend the Crop Protection Clinics, he said, but the recertification is only for commercial applicators.

All the Crop Protection Clinics, training will be offered in the Agricultural Plant, Right of Way, Demonstration and Research and Seed Treatment categories, Nelson said. State and district specialists from the local areas will assist Nelson with the training.

No fee is charged for the training or recertification, he said, but a registration fee of $6 for the Crop Protection Clinic will be charged and will include lunch, refreshments and a copy of clinic proceedings. Participants can register for the clinic and for recertification the day of the clinic. Registration for recertification will be conducted by EPA representatives at 8:30 a.m. in addition to the clinic location.

FACTS & FIGURES

Years before the government mandated "safety closures" for products that might be harmful to children if accidentally ingested, the nonprescription medicine industry developed protective "tops" for children's aspirin and limited the number of tablets per bottle to 36.

The industry, according to The Proprietary Association, also standardized children's aspirin tablets at the 1-1/4 grain size to provide the same frame of reference for all doctors and parents. Parents should always supervise medicating their children.

The makers of nonprescription medicine also agreed that they would not stress the aspirin's flavor in advertising and/or flavor adult aspirin tablets (five-grain), which could make them potentially more attractive to children.

Hesse and WSC theatre student Pam Swartz of Battle Creek researched and designed the costumes. The pair also made sketches, patterns, purchased the fabric and sewed the costumes for the 18 Madrigal Singers, a jester and the conductor. The costumes are of the upper class of the Elizabethans and are more decorative than in previous years. Beef, Pork Make Nutritious Snacks

With all the special sweets and breads we feast on during the holiday season, it is especially important for us to remember our intake of red meat protein, says the Northeast NLFA Queen, Jana Lamplof, Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association Queen, said beef and pork have the best source of protein and iron.

"Beef is an excellent source of vitamin B-12, and pork contains an abundance of thiamine. Both of these meats can be as popular an item as turkey at mealtime," she said. "They can be used in appetizers by placing a slice of dried beef or pork on crackers or melba toast. So, when the family begins to enter the kitchen to sample the feast, set out some nutritious snacks that won't distract one's appetite," she continued. Or, you can use hamburger in stuffing or may choose to have pork or beef as the main dish, the NLFA Queen noted.

Economic Activity Rises

Economic activity in Nebraska rose slightly in August, according to figures compiled by the College of Business Administration's Bureau of Business Research. The bureau's index of physical output for the state increased 2 tenths of a percent from its July level. Writing in the December issue of "Business in Nebraska," Jerome Deichert, research associate for the bureau, reported that August's increase followed two consecutive monthly decreases. This month's increase was concentrated in the agricultural sector where seasonally adjusted activity was up 7 percent. The report added that in addition to greater activity in the agricultural sector, prices received by Nebraska farmers in August were 17.1 percent higher than prices of August, 1978. The nonagricultural sectors have exhibited considerable weakness during the last few months, according to the report. The composite index of the four nonagricultural sectors was down 7 tenths of a percent during August. This represented the third consecutive monthly decrease and the fourth decrease in 1979. The July-to-August changes in the nonagricultural sectors were: government, up 3 tenths of a percent; distributive, down 4 tenths of a percent; manufacturing, down 1.6 percent, and construction, down 3.7 percent. The report indicated that two important measures of an economy's well-being, employment and retail sales, continued to be strong in Nebraska. A 1.7 percent increase in employment was reported in August, 1979 compared to August, 1978. And August's unemployment rate of 2.9 percent was among the lowest in the nation, the report added. After adjustment for price changes, retail sales in Nebraska were 3.2 percent above the sales of August, 1978. The report noted that the August increase occurred throughout Nebraska, as 21 of 26 planning regions had sales above those of last year.

The bureau's monthly city indexes reflected the increase in the state economy. Nineteen of the 26 reporting cities registered gains relative to August, 1978. This growth was achieved through increases in non-motor vehicle sales, employment, and power consumption. Building activity was the only indicator down for the month. Fairbury posted the largest gain in activity, with an increase of 16 percent. Other cities reported to have had August-to-August increases exceeding 5 percent were McCook, Broken Bow, Kearney, Norfolk, Sidney, Alliance and Scottsbluff-Gering.

A feedlot beef nutrition workshop will be held at the USDA Service Center in Wayne Monday Dec. 17 from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., announces Don C. Spitzer, Wayne County Extension Agent. This meeting is part of a two-day workshop with the second session to be held Friday, Jan. 4. Farmers should plan to attend both workshops if possible, Spitzer said.

From the power source, rigid plastic pipe runs to strategically located vacuum inlets, installed in your existing home in less than a day without damage to walls or floors. The average home requires only 3 inlets, about the same size as an electrical outlet. All the housewife uses is a featherlight wand and flexible cleaning hose. Air Force Adopts Its Theme Song

The Air Force officially has adopted what has been its unofficial theme song since it became a separate branch of the armed forces in 1947.

Popularly known as "Off We Go Into the Wild Blue Yonder," the song was made official by General Lew Allen Jr., Air Force Chief of Staff. According to MSGT Ron Marshall, the Air Force recruiter in Norfolk the song's correct title is "The U.S. Air Force."

"The song is actually a carry-over from the days when the Air Force was part of the Army," Sergeant Marshall said. "Back then, it was called 'The Army Air Corps.'"

Although retitled in 1947, there was no accompanying formal action to adopt the song or secure the copyright release for its use. It remained, however, the musical standard for America's airmen.

Today, the upbeat song is regularly performed by units of the Air Force band at both military and civilian parades and events.

Sergeant Marshall noted that the Air Force has a continuing requirement for musicians. For details on the Air Force Band as well as other Air Force opportunities, call Sergeant Marshall at 371-3818.

876 Million Bushels of Grain in Farm Reserve

There were 876 million bushels of grain in the farmer-owned grain reserve on Nov. 20, according to a report issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

A total of 435 million bushels had been redeemed from the reserve as of that date. The report is based on information gathered by the department's Management Field Office in Kansas City, Mo.

The following table gives the amount of each commodity redeemed from the reserve and the balance remaining:

Grain	Total Amount Redeemed	Amount Remaining In Reserve
Barley	10 million bu.	31 million bu.
Corn	207 million bu.	532 million bu.
Oats	12 million bu. (16,000 cwt.)	31 million bu. (102,000 cwt.)
Rice	36,000 bu.	227,000 bu.
Sorghum	(18 million cwt.)	(25 million cwt.)
Wheat	32 million bu.	45 million bu.
	174 million bu.	237 million bu.

Barley was called from the reserve on June 26 and all other commodities except sorghum are in release status. Some commodities have been released more than once. The latest release date for each commodity is: corn, Oct. 3; oats, Sept. 20; Rice, Oct. 1; wheat, May 16.

Release of a commodity means farmers may repay their CCC price support loans and redeem or sell the grain without penalty, but they are not required to do so. Call of a commodity means farmers have 30 days from the date of notification of the call to repay their reserve loans. They are not required to sell the grain, but if they do not repay the loan, they must forfeit the grain to CCC.
