Manslaughter Is Verdict for Ross; Sentencing Set

Michael L. Ross, 24, found guilty Wednesday night of manslaughter in the shooting death of his girlfriend, will be sentenced at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 2, at the Wayne County Courthouse.

A JURY of eight women and four men returned the verdict about 8:27 p.m. after more than 8 1/2 hours of deliberation. The jury failed to find Ross guilty of first degree murder, the charge filed against him by County Attorney Budd Bornhoff after he shot and killed Karen Sunderman, 18, in his apartment Aug. 9.

Jury foreman Merton Hillon read the verdict with Ross seated at the counsel table between prosecuting attorney Budd Bornhoff and defense attorney S. J. (Sy) Albracht. He (Ross) showed little emotion when the verdict was read.

AFTER DISTRICT Court Clerk Johann Ostrander re-read the verdict, she polled each juror to affirm his or her vote on the verdict of manslaughter. As instructed by Judge Warren previously, the verdict had to be by law and was unanimous.

Judge Warren explained to the jurors and Ross that the penalty for manslaughter is from 1 to 20 years in the state penitentiary and a fine of $25,000 or both. He ordered a pre-sentence investigation prior to Jan. 2. Judge Warren continued bond of $50,000 pending the investigation.

BESIDES foreman Hillon, jurors included Joan R. Baier, Mary L. Stoakes, John Rebersdorf, Marian G. Simpson, Leland Herman, Evelyn Hamley, Susan Replogle, Cheryl Hall, Larry Siewers, all of Wayne; Lois Lage, Carroll; and Joan M. Thompson, Wakefield.

During the several hours of deliberation, which included about an hour for supper, the jurors submitted several written questions to the judge in the presence of the defendant. This is routine, a spokesman explained.

THE JURY was given a list of 18 instructions by Judge Warren before it began deliberation shortly before noon Wednesday. The instructions followed closing arguments by both attorneys.

Bornhoff was first and spoke before the jury for 27 minutes. Albracht was given the same amount of time, and Bornhoff rebutted with an additional five minutes of comments.

The jury's manslaughter verdict was one of four options given it by the judge. The first consideration was first degree murder, the charge leveled against him by the county attorney. Other options, in order of consideration, were second degree murder, manslaughter and not guilty.

IN INSTRUCTING the jurors, Judge Warren explained that for first degree murder to be proven, the defendant must have shot her purposely and with deliberate and premeditated malice.

Second degree murder requires an action purposely and maliciously, but without premeditation, while manslaughter is a shooting without malice and unintentionally, but while in the commission of an unlawful act.

Judge Warren said the jury initially was to consider first degree murder and then second degree, manslaughter and not guilty. There also was the possibility of a hung jury which would have resulted in a retrial.

Before going to the next lesser verdict, the jury's decision had to have been unanimous against the higher verdict.

HAD THE jury not reached a decision by 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, Judge Warren would have allowed them to go home, but return Wednesday morning for continuation of the deliberation.

Jury selection began about 10:05 a.m. Monday with some 45 prospective jurors in the courtroom. Jurors' names were placed in a tin container and 34 names drawn.

As the jurors were polled by the judge and by the defense and prosecuting attorneys, some were automatically stricken and replaced by prospective jurors left in the gallery.

AFTER THE 34 persons were questioned, the attorneys began their own selection process. A total of 22 additional jurors were stricken, leaving 12 who eventually heard the case.

Some jurors were dismissed because of hearing problems, nerve problems, pre-determined prejudices concerning the case and personal knowledge of friends or families of the victim, the defendant or the attorneys.

JUDGE Warren questioned the prospective jurors on a number of subjects. These included:

Have you formed a preliminary opinion about the case, and do you have any predetermined prejudices from reading or hearing about the case?

Is there anyone for whom it would be a great hardship to serve?

JUDGE WARREN also explained that the jurors would be on duty for four weeks, but would not be required to serve again for five years. The state vs. Ross case is the only one scheduled during that four weeks.

Each juror, including those dismissed, received $20 per day plus mileage and meals. In addition, the judge said employers are prohibited by law from docking any of the jurors' pay.

In addition, the judge said it was unlawful for any of the jurors to discuss the case with anyone including other jurors, friends and family. Once deliberation began, he explained, the jurors could discuss the case among themselves, but were prohibited from doing so during meals or while not deliberating.

"IT ALSO IS unlawful for others to talk to you about the case," Judge Warren said. "You must judge entirely on the witnesses' comments and the testimony presented here under oath."

Some of Santa's Goodies

WAYNE CITY Auditorium was filled Saturday, Dec. 8, with excited youngsters as Santa Claus made a special appearance on behalf of three Wayne State College organizations: Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, Kappa Delta Gamma sorority and TKE's auxiliary. Order of Diana, held their annual Christmas party there. Cartoons were shown, lunche was served and, of course, Santa was on hand to listen attentively. Pictured is seven year old Tommy Kramer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kramer, Wayne, rummaging through a sack of candy for just the right piece.

WVFD Begins Fund Drive

Wayne Volunteer Fire Department has announced a fund drive to raise money to equip an emergency rescue equipment vehicle.

KENNETH (Dutch) Sitzman, a member of the fire department, will be in charge of the money raising effort. The goal has been set at $9,500.

Fire Chief Richard (Dick) Korn said the money is for the equipment portion of the vehicle only. Wayne Rural Fire District No. 2 has provided funds for purchase of the cabin chassis which already has been ordered.

KORN SAID the chassis, radio equipment and a winch total about $13,500.

The unit will be a "first response" vehicle and will respond to any personal injury accident. It will assist in extricating persons from accident situations but will not be involved with transporting any injured to area medical facilities.

FIRE CHIEF Korn said the Providence Medical Center ambulance will continue to be responsible for transporting injured persons and administering the necessary first aid. The vehicle will be the first of its kind in the area and will be available for use by area fire departments.

The vehicle will replace a war surplus unit and will be equipped with emergency equipment donated by the Salvation Army. Other equipment will be added as needed.

KORN EXPLAINED that the unit will be manned by two teams of four persons who have been trained as emergency medical technicians and/or emergency crash management persons.

Another team of four will be added in the future, he explained. A request has been made to the Nebraska Fire Service, a division of the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, for training in extrication of accident victims.

THE TEAMS will work in weekly shifts.

They will be notified of an emergency by the blowing of the city fire whistle for the present time. Plans are being formulated for team members to have communication pagers so they can respond more quickly.

Fireman Sitzman said the unit has the "blessing" of local highway patrol troopers and the sheriff's office. Sitzman quoted Dave Headley, trooper with the Nebraska Highway Patrol, as saying that "there is a definite need for a unit such as this in the area."

SITZMAN said the ambulance at Providence Medical Center will continue to be used for transportation of patients and for emergency runs when needed.

Contributions, which are fax deductible, may be sent to Dennis Spangier in care of the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department.

The first fund raiser will be a basketball game with Channel 9 "High Hoopers" Jan. 13. Details as to the time and place will be announced later.

Youth, 16, Says: Better to Give Than to Receive

Mary Jeffrey, a 16-year-old sophomore at Wayne-Carroll High School, has discovered that the best way to receive something is to give something away.

For six hours a week, she works as a volunteer at the Children's Developmental Center (CDC), a part of Region IV Services in Wayne. Region IV programs provide community based services for mentally retarded children and adults of Wayne and Thurston counties.

MARY GIVES away something precious — her time; but during those six hours she receives a sense of pride, accomplishment and awareness.

Mary, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Jeffrey, had prior interest in and knowledge about the Region IV programs, but she says she surprised people when she decided to volunteer. She is learning sign language and is learning to understand the causes and effects of mental retardation. The work is interesting, Mary says, and she "really loves it."

AT THE CDC, Mary helps at bath time and at supper time and helps keep the children alert and involved. The children learn social and communication skills through interaction with others and learn recreational skills by playing games.

Mary says she may pursue a career in human services. She has learned that the children at the center are individuals, like other children, and that they are not strange or emotionally disturbed. They just need more help to learn because they learn more slowly than other children. Mary explained "People need to be told."

SANDY KIRSCH, the CDC coordinator, said Mary is a "real help" with the children. "Volunteers can really help the children to enjoy more things," says Mr. Kirsch. She invites public interest and asks that people feel free to come out and visit anytime. Those wishing more information about volunteer work at the Children's Developmental Center should call Sandy Kirsch at 375-4474, or drop by the center at 1210 E. 7th St. in Wayne.

The First Amendment by Jean Hornbeck

Many causes are worth supporting, but very few are worth dying for. Among these precious few are the right to speak one's mind, the right to practice one's religious beliefs and the right to hear what others have to say. The First Amendment rights.

What makes these rights unique is that they are individual rights, not state's rights. They are the fundamental basis for our form of government, yet each of these rights is a limitation upon that very government.

An irony? Indeed it is. The basis of our government's power lies in the fact that this country's charter puts limitations upon the government's power. The moral authority implied in that unique arrangement has been a fundamental reason for the ability of this country to mobilize effectively in great efforts, even while free-flowing debates gave the appearance of disunity.

The temptations to "streamline" our process by short-circuiting the First Amendment in times of crises have been with us since our beginnings, and our democracy has proven as imperfect as the human beings who maintain our clumsy governmental apparatus. That temptation will always exist, and the record is destined to be imperfect for as long as the First Amendment ideals are the basis of our form of government. The fair measure of our country's ideals lies more in observing the ongoing battle to guarantee the rights of every individual than in simply recounting the many failures of the system.

To be sure, many of the failures are glaring. Various minority groups have had their freedoms grossly ignored throughout this country's history, and the devastating results are cause for national shame. American Indians, Blacks, Mormons, Quakers, Japanese, Germans and far too many other ethnic, religious and racial groups have learned from bitter firsthand experience of the erratic course we have followed in living up to the lofty ideals of the First Amendment.

And yet, to judge harshly at this point is to review an unfinished book.

The greatest single cause for optimism regarding the unfinished (and, hopefully, unending) story of the First Amendment is that in spite of the many failings, and in spite of the astonishing attacks upon the First Amendment in recent years by the judicial branches of state and federal governments, the trends in this country's history have strongly favored the ultimate triumph of individual rights. Some of the battles have been long, and the costs great, but the individual freedoms have consistently carried the day. Long may it be so.

Our 200-year experience as the land of the free is not the first great social experiment in man's history, nor will it be the last. It is most unlikely to last forever; it might be doing well to last another 200 years. History will probably take due note of achievements in many areas of endeavor during our country's period in the sun, and will certainly credit America with making an indelible impact on the story of mankind.

But advances in technology, agriculture, standard of living and space exploration will be mere footnotes in comparison to the beacon of hope and inspiration this country can provide mankind by fulfilling our foremost mission. That mission is to prove that individual freedom, guaranteed by the government's very charter, is the mortar which best enables human beings to reach total fulfillment.

Should our nation last but 500 years and mankind another 500,000, there will be an America as long as one individual insists that no government has the right to regulate his right to speak, listen, read and believe as he alone sees fit.

Editorial OUT OF OLD NEBRASKA

"A Merchant, Worn and Weary," Omaha, 1879.

Contemporary Nebraska workers in business and industry, the majority of whom work 40 hours per week, are only vaguely aware of the hardships imposed on their grandparents and great-grandparents by the "dawn to dark" working hours customary several generations ago. The May 10, 1879 "Omaha Herald," on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society, includes a poignant letter from "A Merchant, Worn and Weary," which reflects working hours and conditions common in the state 100 years ago.

"Omaha, May 8, 1879. To the Editor of 'The Herald.' Knowing that you are a great friend to the dumb animals, I take if you would not deny a short space in 'The Herald" in the interest of the talking portion of the animal kingdom. There is a practice in vogue in Omaha among the businessmen, more especially the merchants, that is tending to hurry men, boys and women to a premature grave. I allude to the practice or custom of keeping stores and offices and business houses generally, open and running for 14 to 18 hours each day of the week and some of them, in fact, include Sunday also.

"It is an old and true saying that 'all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.' We have in Omaha quite a number of businessmen, that apply themselves and require the same of their sons, clerks and employees, to business from 6 in the morning to 9 and 12 o'clock at night, and they wonder why it is that they feel so badly, and cannot sleep the other five or six hours of the 24. They wonder why their boys are so stupid and dull, and why they and their clerks are not more acquainted, and why it is that their trade is so dull, when they all stick so closely to business. They do not know their nearest neighbors. They scarcely can claim to be acquainted with their own families. The little ones are generally abed and asleep before they arrive in the late hours of the night, and of course, they are not up in the morning before the hasty departure is taken for store or office or shop.

"Should they be observers of the Sabbath they are so entirely worn down with the continuous toll of the week that they find it necessary to occupy their 'Sunday hours' in catching up in sleep or resting their weary limbs, and hence they find no time or inclination to even attend church or get acquainted with (their) neighbors, and thus the year is passed by our businessmen and those in their employ, and they instead of being the body and life of society are mere moving machines.

"What right has the merchant to exact so many hours of his clerk, and every day of the week? You ask 'how can it be avoided by me when my neighbors all do it?' Should I close my place of business at an early hour my neighbors would have the benefit of all my customers who chanced to come late. And then again should we all by agreement close early in the evening — say 6 o'clock, then the laboring man who toils until 6 would be deprived of the benefits of trade entirely."

"This we will concede is a fact, and there is but one way that presents itself to my mind out of the difficulty, and that would be for all merchants to enter into an agreement, when they would all close their stores at 6 o'clock and devote the evening to the cultivation of the acquaintance of their own families — and allowing the sons, and daughters and employees to mingle in society, and make acquaintances pleasant to themselves and profitable to patrons and employers.

"With a word from you, I hope the businessmen of Omaha will take this matter up and consider it well, and enter into some concert of action, to carry the suggestion here offered into practical effect. Should that be done it would be but a short time until the night selected — say Thursday night — would be a regular holiday, hailed with joy by the weary clerk, the jaded employer, the pleasant home circle, and in fact by everybody.

"What say you, Doctor? What say you, businessmen? What say you, boys and girls? What say you, clerks and employers? And what say you wives and children? Shall we establish this 'holiday evening,' or shall we jog along in the same old ruts? Yours truly, A Merchant Worn and Weary."

Pat Gaster,
Editorial Assistant
Nebraska State Historical Society

Everyone closely involved with the just-completed murder trial certainly received an education. That includes everyone from the judge down to the jurors, news media, and so forth.

The jury decided Mike Ross shot his girlfriend accidentally and while in the commission of an unlawful act. Having sat through the trial from start to finish, I felt second-degree was more appropriate. But... who am I to judge?

A couple of interesting sidelights surfaced during the three days of jury selection, testimony, closing arguments and deliberation.

Seated next to a prospective juror Monday morning (Dec. 10), he and I were discussing nothing in general.

Now I thought, surely, everyone in Wayne County was relatively well-read and knew who Mike Ross and Karen Sunderman were. But, no.

As Ross' parents walked in, I said "There's Ross' parents." The gentleman next to me said, "Whose parents?" I said, "Mike Ross' parents." He said, "Who's Mike Ross?"

Now that would have been an unbiased witness. But, alas and alack, he was thrown out for who-knows-what reason.

Despite the seriousness of the charge, the seriousness of the crime and the seriousness of the possible outcome, the attorneys interjected light moments into the trial.

The court reporter, who accompanies Judge Merritt C. Warren wherever he goes, put on a show of his own.

On several occasions, he had to stop and warm his hands by blowing on them or temporarily sticking them in his armpits. Now that was quite a dignified sight to see in a courtroom during a murder trial.

The Wayne County Courthouse is an antique, for sure, and the windows on the north side of the room afford little protection from the wind.

Even Judge Warren commented at the outset of the trial that ours is the worst courtroom in which he works.

The wind constantly whistled around the loose fitting window frames, and rustled the window shades noisily.

Although all parties concerned behaved commendably, there was one occasion when prosecuting attorney Budd Bornhoff and defense attorney S. J. Albracht weren't too cool—in the vernacular of today's younger set.

Budd was questioning a witness—Ross, I believe—and was somewhat relentless in his forthrightness.

Well, attorney Albracht kept asking that Bornhoff give the witness a chance to answer the questions, rather than continue question after question. The attorneys began to argue loudly and the court reporter abruptly stopped: "Gentlemen, please, one at a time."

Judge Warren smiled and asked Bornhoff and Albracht to continue the trial in a more composed manner.

The court reporter's responsibility during any court proceeding is to record every word that is said by the attorneys, the witnesses, the judge, etc. As you could imagine, it's quite a chore.

In looking back over my notes, I discovered more than 40 pages (8 1/2 x 14) of scribbles. Trying to decipher all of that hasn't been the easiest. But I'd much prefer my job than those of the jurors, the judge or the attorneys.

The murder case was a first for most parties involved. There was considerable tension as the trial drew to a close and as the jury was deliberating. But never, not once, did I observe anyone acting unethically or in any manner unbecoming to a trial of this magnitude.

This observation of interest, also: When Ross was first indicted, he wore jeans, no belt, his hair was closely cut as per police regulations and his manner was somewhat slouched.

But when the trial began Monday, he appeared in a three-piece suit, his hair had grown to a more contemporary point and he sat motionless at the counsel table with hands clasped.

His appearance was of a respectable young man, possibly a lawyer or certainly a businessman. Dressing for a jury is a psychological move on the part of the defense.

In talking with others present at the trial, I've been astounded at how different people view the same situation. Three different people I talked with had three different views of evidence presented and we each had strong convictions about Ross' guilt or innocence.

I'm better able to understand how 10 people can sit through a controversial City Council or school board meeting and leave the event with totally different viewpoints. That gives me a better perspective in writing future stories.

On the brighter side, jolly ol' St. Nick made his appearance in Wayne Sunday and made a few youngsters happy. The Chamber needs a compliment on bringing Santa here all the way from the North Pole. That was some doing, but the kiddies loved it.

It's a shame Santa can't stay here longer during the Christmas season or make more frequent visits. That might help attract more shoppers. Just a thought.

THIS UNIQUE Christmas tree was photographed at Providence Medical Center. From a distance it looks similar to most regular trees but a closer glance shows that it is quite different. Nurses and aids at the hospital decorated the tree with various surgical instruments and equipment. The tree is located in the northeast corner of PMC.

Trojans Roll Over Osmond

They're off and running. The Wakefield Trojans chalked up their second win of the season by demolishing Osmond 57-28 in Osmond, Friday night.

Scott Hallstrom dumped in 22 points including 10 field goals to spark Wakefield's offensive attack. The Trojans were held to a 4-6 first quarter tie before breaking away to dominate the remainder of the game.

Wakefield outscored Osmond 21-3 in the second quarter and 22-14 in the third period to put the game way out of reach. Jeff Hallstrom scored 10 points and netted eight rebounds. Tom Preston scored seven points and added four assists and Barry Jones was the leading rebounder with nine. Osmond was led in scoring by Mike Kumm with nine points.

"Our strong point was defense. We held them to 28 points," said Wakefield coach Ernie Kovar. "We threw the ball away a lot but time and experience should improve that."

The Trojans shot 48 percent from the field to pick up their second win. Larry Soderberg will miss the remainder of the season if was discovered because of a back ailment from which he has been suffering.

Wakefield will try for win number three when Hartington invades the Trojans on Friday. In the junior varsity game, Wakefield downed Osmond 37-26. Vaughn and Rod Nixon scored 10 points each to lead the winners.

Eagles Break Into Win Column Against Bancroft

After opening the basketball season with two heartbreaking losses, the Allen Eagles broke the dry spell with a 51-46 win over Bancroft, Friday night. The game was played in Allen's gym because of Bancroft's inadequate facilities but Bancroft was designated the home team.

Frank Lanser opened up the Allen offense, scoring 21 points to lead all scorers. A 35 point second half carried the Eagles to the come from behind win. Bancroft led 10-7 after the first quarter and 27-16 at the half but the slow starting Eagles made their move in the final two quarters.

The outcome of the game was decided at the free throw line where Allen hit 15 of 18 attempts for 86 percent. The Bulldogs converted 8 of 12 attempts.

"Frank (Lanser) played an awfully good game," said Allen coach Bart Kneiff. "We had 19 turnovers, way too many. And we still had a slow first half. Our free throw shooting sure helped."

In addition to Lanser's fine performance, Kneiff said that Duane Stolle and Steve Stewart did "a real fine job" and although Mark Koch didn't score he "hustled and ran the offense."

Steve Stewart tallied 12 rebounds and Lanser added 10. Bob Stewart scored nine points for the Eagles. Leading scorers for Bancroft were Jim Browning with 17 points and Glen Tietz and Jeff Knuppel with 10 points each.

The Eagles will take a 1-2 record into action against Homer Friday. Allen's boys' and girls' teams will host Homer in a doubleheader. "Homer is always tough," Kneiff said.

Allen Girls Drop Bancroft 46-41

The Allen Eagles got win number two Friday night as the girls defeated Bancroft on the home court 46-41. Three players scored in double figures for the Eagles.

Lisa Wood and Lisa Erwin tied for scoring honors with 12 points and were followed by Stacey Koester with 11 points. Wood connected on six of seven shots from the floor.

The game was close throughout with Allen holding a one point lead after the first quarter and a two point lead at the half. Bancroft tied the game 34-34 at the end of the third quarter.

Allen's defense was the key to winning according to first year coach Dale Jackson. "Lisa Wood really helped," he said. "She was outstanding on defense, shuffling off Sazuelson (Linda, Bancroft's tall girl). We cut our turnovers in half from our first game and played well."

Samuelson was Bancroft's leading scorer but was shutout in the second half and fouled out of the game. Kelli Konicek added 10 points for the losers.

The Eagles broke the third quarter deadlock by scoring 12 points in the final period for a five point victory, upping their record to 2-0.

Allen won the junior varsity game with Machele Pettit scoring 14 points. Judy Taylor added six in the winning effort. The Eagles will host Homer Friday in a girls and boys doubleheader in the Allen gym.

Laurel Rips Wausa

Three players scored in double figures as the Laurel girls' basketball team got on the winning track with a 56-22 win over Wausa in Laurel, Thursday. The win evened the Bears' record at 1-1 after a one-point loss to Allen last week.

Kay Anderson, Debbie Thompson and Paula Chace teamed up to do most of the damage offensively for Laurel. Anderson netted 12 points, Thompson scored 11 and Chace was right behind with 10.

Although those three individuals did most of the scoring, Roxie Kraemer was the key to Laurel's offense. She scored seven points, passed well and cut through the zone. Laurel coach Ev Jensen said.

"We had a real sound game from a lot of people," said Jensen. "We were really hustling and got off to a quick lead. Roxie Kraemer was the key."

The Bears jumped off to a quick 17-2 lead with a sticky zone defense and led 19-4 after the first quarter. The hosts continued to pour it on, building the lead up to 34 points entering the dead fourth quarter.

Laurel won the junior varsity game 30-27 with Kelli Johnson scoring eight points. The Bears will host Wayne Thursday.

A holiday tournament is scheduled to be held in Laurel Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 26 and 27. Norfolk Catholic will meet Hartington at 7 p.m. Wednesday and Laurel will play Decatur at 8:30. Consolations are scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday with finals following.

Emerson Too Much For Wakefield

It was a long night for the Wakefield girls' basketball team as they suffered their first loss of the season 52-25 to Emerson-Hubbard, Thursday night on the Trojans' home court. The loss evened Wakefield's record at 1-1.

Emerson gained the early momentum by scoring the first three baskets of the game and carried it with them for the rest of the night. Wakefield, on the other hand, had trouble scoring and could never really threaten.

The Pirates led 16-4 at the end of the first quarter with Lori Tullberg leading the offensive attack. Joan Miller and Kelly Murphy had the lone Wakefield baskets. Laura Assmusen and Paula Rager came on in the second quarter to give Emerson a 33-10 at the half.

The Trojans came out pressing in the second half and seemed to bother Paul Eaton's team for awhile. Wakefield cut its opponent's lead down but not enough. Key passes by Carol Donner opened the Emerson lead back up where it was before long and Wakefield looked at a 39-18 third quarter deficit.

Trojan reserves saw action for most of the fourth quarter after the game was out of reach. Wakefield shot 21 percent from the field in the first half compared to 62 percent for Emerson-Hubbard. Both teams shot about 30 percent in the second half.

"We couldn't buy a basket," said Wakefield coach Dennis Wilbur. "Emerson got the ball inside and scored. We got the ball inside and missed or turned the ball over."

Leading scorer for the Trojans was Jolene Bartels with six points. Miller, Murphy and Kathy Gustafson scored four points each. Bartels and Gustafson each grabbed 11 rebounds but the Trojans were outscored 49-30. Leading scorers for Emerson were Tullberg with 19 and Rager with 14.

In reserve action, Wakefield's girls lost 27-21. Colleen Neuhaus was the team's leading scorer. Next action for the Trojans is Thursday at Hartington.

Weight Program Expands At WSC

By Kevin Weiberg
Wayne State SID

More and more high school athletes who visit Wayne State College are asking questions about WSC's weight training program.

The program, started last year, is headed by graduate aide Larry Hrbek. Hrbek of Verdigris has won several body physique titles including Mr. Norfolk, Mr. Nebraska, Mr. Midwest, Mr. Western Plains and Mr. Collegiate of Nebraska. Building from his experience and training, Hrbek has developed a program that has become increasingly important to WSC coaches and athletes. Hrbek said WSC athletes are now lifting weights nearly year around.

LARRY HRBEK curls some weights to tone up his muscles, using one of the many suggested exercises used in a weight program.

"I try to set the program up so that they go year around," commented Hrbek. "Off-season conditioning, when they gain most of their strength, and in-season conditioning, which is maintenance, so that during the middle of the season they do not peak out but stay at the same plateau from the beginning of the season to the end. We allow a recovery period of one to two weeks between the in-season and off-season programs."

Hrbek works in cooperation with WSC coaches in developing a program for each sport and athlete. Currently Hrbek is guiding football players through off-season drills and WSC men's and women's basketball teams are involved in an in-season program. He said the program varies for each sport and each individual, and in some instances more is involved than simply pumping iron.

"What we try to do is the coaches want an individual to gain weight — and I have to work with him or her individually as much as time will allow — is set-up specific exercises, plus we try to watch their diet as much as possible, we recommend what to eat, when to eat it and how much so that the muscle gains will be solid and not fat," Hrbek said.

Not all WSC athletes are interested in gaining weight and Hrbek currently has a group of WSC women basketball players on diets centered around weight lifting.

"Girls particularly have a tendency to gain weight real easily around the hip area," Hrbek explained, "so I sat down, along with head trainer Regg Swanson and head coach Helen Carroll, and we decided that we wanted everybody on the team to drop 5 to 6 pounds which would help improve their speed and quickness."

"So we came up with a program where they are on circuit training (moving from station to station with a different exercise at each stop), Hrbek added. "They started the year lifting three times a week. In-season now we have gone to twice a week and never lift the day before a game."

Hrbek indicated that initially some of the female athletes were uncertain and somewhat apprehensive about what weight training could do for them but he said the women's attitude improved once they realized that "what we work for is total body condition, cardiovascular fitness, strength, coordination and endurance."

Head football coach Del Stollenberg says the weight training program is beginning to pay some positive benefits for his Wildcats.

"Last spring, after having worked with Larry for basically a year, our 40-yard dash teams were better than they were the year before, and I think this has to be a tribute to Larry and the weight program," he said. "Also athletes are going to come back from injuries so much quicker if they are lifting and are stronger."

Wildcats Hit By Coleridge

Playing Coleridge on the road proved to be a tough assignment for the Winside Wildcats, Friday night as they dropped a 79-50 decision.

Byron Schellenberg scored 15 points and Brad Roberts tallied 12 to lead the Cats. Bob Hawkins, Winside's 6-4 center, picked up three early fouls and finished with nine points. Randy Ritze added seven.

The Wildcats shot 32 percent from the field and fell behind as Coleridge hit an amazing 63 percent. "They shot real well and we didn't play good defense," said Winside coach Dennis Gonnerman, in reference to the high shooting percentage.

Winside's junior varsity lost its game 35-21, although Gonnerman said that Jeff White played well for the reserves. The Wildcats will play at Wynot Thursday in a boys and girls doubleheader. The varsity's record is now 1-1.

WSC Wrestlers Run Into Brick Wall

Wayne State's young wrestling squad was defeated by Augustana College, Sioux Falls, S.D., 46-2 in dual wrestling action Thursday night in Sioux Falls.

Powerful Augustana won all weight classes except for the 126-pound division where Wildcat grappler Don Schernikau kept his undefeated dual record alive by satviating a 9-7 tie. The two points earned by the draw were the Wildcats' only tallies of the night.

Tree farm a business and hobby

An old-fashioned Christmas is still popular to some people in this age of commercialization. And one of the oldest customs at this time of year is selecting and cutting a Christmas tree.

FEW PEOPLE still choose to cut their own tree. Most either select a pre-cut tree at a grocery store or purchase an artificial tree. In fact, it's hard to find a genuine tree farm in this day and age. But to many people, nothing means more than cutting their own tree. These people aren't concerned about convenience. It is tradition and the true meaning of Christmas that is foremost in their minds.

ONE OF THE few local Christmas tree farms in existence is located on the south edge of Belden, and is owned and operated by Lawrence Fuchs, president of the First National Bank of Belden.

Fuchs' tree farm covers three acres of land and sales have been good this year, he said. The farm is a family project involving Lawrence and his children Phil, Roger, Ted and Patty. On one particular Sunday, the family had 50 customers. Most of the income from sales is used to help defray the costs of college education for the children.

THE TREE farm came into existence in 1970 when the first trees were planted. More were planted in 1971 and now are planted on a replacement basis. This is the third year the Fuchs family has been in the Christmas tree sales business.

"People ask me how I can stand to kill these trees," said Fuchs. "But trees are a crop just like corn."

FUCHS emphasized that the family must take extra care to protect the trees from insects and disease. The trees are sprayed on a regular basis and have not yet contracted any diseases. Most of the trees are purchased from Clark McNary Nursery at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln. Fuchs said he will probably purchase about 600 more trees to replace the ones that have died or been sold.

"Most people like a fresh tree and they come here because they can see they're fresh and they like to pick out their own," Fuchs said. "Families make it fun. I just look at the kids who come here with their parents and that makes it worth while. They really enjoy it."

ANYONE WHO is interested in starting a tree farm of his own should get a bulletin on Christmas trees from a county extension office, Fuchs advised. The bulletin saves a lot of headaches, he added.

Swine Show In Norfolk Jan. 21, 23

The date of the 15th annual Norfolk Swine Show, sponsored by the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, Agricultural Economics Council, has been set for Monday, Jan. 21, and the Carcass Show on Wednesday, Jan. 23.

This announcement was made by Earl Wilson, show chairman. Dick Magwire will serve as vice chairman. The live show will be held at the Norfolk Livestock Market, in the cattle ring, and will be judged by Archie White of Fremont.

Judging will begin at 9 a.m. the date of the show. The Carcass Show will be held at the Roman Packing Company on Wednesday, and will be judged by one of the swine specialists from the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Chuck Pohlman and the ag department at Northeast Technical Community College will take charge of the Carcass Show.

The Swine Show will again include an FFA Judging Contest which is being handled by Neal Pohlman as chairman. A certain number of hogs will be selected by this committee and sorted into four classes: three market hogs and one breeding gilt. Two official teams of four boys from each school, in both junior and senior division, will judge as teams. Your Vocational Agriculture instructor will have more information on this.

In the regular show there will be a commercial (crossbred) and a purebred division. There will be three weight classes in each division and the judge will divide the hogs equally into three weight classes for each division — light, medium and heavy. Only one hog per exhibitor will be allowed. Trophies and cash prizes will be awarded the winners.

All of the hogs entered in the live show will be slaughtered and entered in the Carcass Show. Hogs must weigh between 200 and 250 pounds.

Entry blanks for this show are available at the Wayne County Ag Agent's office, from the local v-o-g instructor, the Norfolk Livestock Market and the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce office.
