Wayne's Economy Continues Strong

Nebraska's overall economic situation was characterized by mixed developments in September, according to a report by the University of Nebraska at Lincoln College of Business Administration's Bureau of Business Research.

But in Wayne, the economy continued to forge ahead.

THE STATE'S index of real output increased 2 percent from its August level, reports Jerome Deichert, research associate for the bureau. Several of the major Nebraska indicators reported declines, however.

According to the report, the increase in state economic activity was concentrated in the agricultural sector, where activity rose 16.8 percent. In contrast, non-agricultural output fell .2 percent.

IN REGION 11, which includes Wayne and Wayne County, sales were down 3.3 percent from September of a year ago. This was largely due to Norfolk experiencing a decline of 6.4 percent in sales during the month.

However, Wayne showed a marked increase in sales, recording an increase of 18.9 percent over September of 1978. Overall, sales in the entire region for the year to date (September, 1979, compared to September, 1978) were up 4.4 percent.

GOVERNMENT was the only nonagricultural sector registering an increase in September, the report stated. The August-to-September changes for the non-agricultural sectors were as follows:

Government—up 2.9 percent; manufacturing—down 4 percent; construction—down .6 percent; and distributive—down 7 percent.

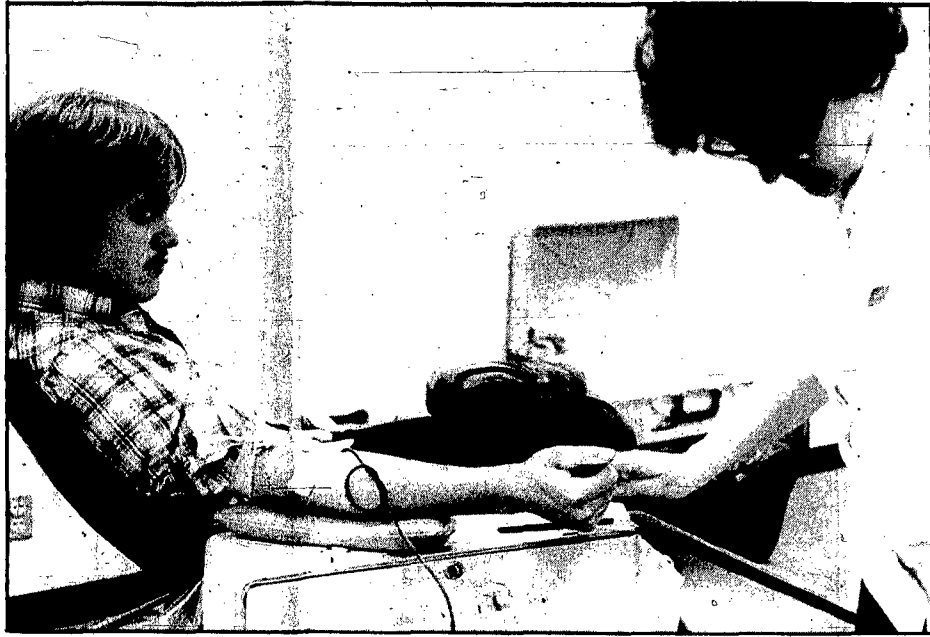

The report added that the September drop in nonagricultural activity was a continuation of a downward movement that was begun in June.

DURING THIS period, the index fell more than 3 percent. Although all sectors were reported to have exhibited some weaknesses, activity in the distributive and construction sectors declined consistently over that period.

On a year-to-date basis, the Nebraska economy appeared to be experiencing some growth, according to the report. Compared to the first nine months of 1978, output had increased 2 percent. At the national level, the increase was 2.3 percent.

THE REPORT noted that two additional indicators of an economy's health, employment and retail sales, added to the confusion of positive and negative signals in the Nebraska economy. A 2.8 percent increase in employment was reported in September, 1979, compared to September, 1978. But net taxable sales, after adjustment for price changes, fell 3 percent below last year's sales.

Relative to September, 1978, nine of the state's 26 reporting cities showed gains in overall business activity. The city business indexes fell an average of 2 percent.

'Superior' Rating to Wayne HS

"Superior" ratings were awarded to 13 schools at the District III One-Act Play competition held Wednesday and Thursday at Wayne State College.

STUDENTS from 45 high schools were rated by judges from Northeast Technical Community College, Norfolk and Wayne State. Ratings were based on selection of cutting, meaning, characterization, acting, staging and overall effect.

Receiving "superior" ratings in Class "A" competition were Pierce High School, performing "Buffalo Head Nickels" and Wayne High School, performing "Arla Da Capo."

SELECTED for the "Best Actress" award, Class "A" was Kyle Dyller of South Sioux City. Paul Stavens of South Sioux City was selected "Best Actor" in Class "A" competition.

Receiving "superior" ratings in Class "B" action were: Laurel High School, performing "Final Play;" Norfolk Catholic High School, performing "Marat Sade;" Ponca High School, performing "The Little Toy Dog;" Winslow High School, performing "Overtones;" Madison High School, performing "Asylum;" Wausa High School, performing "Goodbye to the Clown;" Crofton High School, performing "The Ugly Duckling;" Wynot High School, performing "Schubert's Last Serenade;" Newman Grove High School, performing "Top Table;" and St. Mary's High School, O'Neill, performing "An Overpraised Season."

SELECTED for the "Best Actress" awards for Class "B" were Julie Peterson of Norfolk, Cathy Schreier of Verdigris and Dyan Lauer of Wynot.

"Best Actor" awards for Class "B" went to Gene Bearslee of Norfolk, Tim Schorn of Stuart and Bob Hansen of Crofton.

"Superior" ratings qualify the schools for state-wide competition Feb. 6-7 at Kearney State College.

82 Pints of Blood Given

UNUSUALLY BALMY temperatures Thursday helped attract some 82 donors to the Siouxland Blood Bank at Providence Medical Center. Donations are normally down this time of year, a Blood Bank official explained, because of the traditionally cold and blistery weather in January. However, with temperatures in the 40's and 50's this month, the number of donors was about the same as in the summer.

College Board Approves Waiver

A motion that will allow Wayne State College officials to apply for a waiver to a Public Buildings Act requiring state buildings be accessible to the handicapped was approved Friday by the board of trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges at a meeting in Lincoln.

The waiver from the State Public Buildings Safety Advisory Committee will be needed to allow for the renovation of the basement of the WSC Student Center.

ABOUT $40,000 in revenue bond funds had been approved earlier this year for the remodeling, but state fire marshal rules indicate the remodeling would have to include facilities for the handicapped, including entrance ramps and an elevator. Such facilities would move the estimated cost of the project to between $80,000 and $100,000. An exception to the requirement will be needed in order to complete the project within allotted $40,000 figure.

"We do feel that accessibility to the handicapped is very important, but the building does not currently meet such requirements," said Dr. Lyle Seymour, WSC president, "and we are not rebuilding, we are remodeling." Seymour added that a waiver would not mean the building could not be made accessible to the handicapped in the future.

A 5.6 PERCENT increase in tuition for Nebraska residents also was approved by the board of trustees Friday. Non-state student tuition will increase on a "pro-rata" basis. Beginning Fall semester, 1980, resident student tuition will be $19 per credit hour, up $1 from the current $18.

Non-state students will pay about $33.75 per credit hour, up from the current $32. The board said the increase was necessary to meet increasing costs at the four colleges.

A WSC request to allow the city of Wayne a 20-foot permanent construction easement on college property also was approved. The easement will allow for installation of utilities for a new college maintenance building north of Providence Medical Center. Construction of the building is expected to be completed next spring.

IN OTHER action, the board: — Awarded a $19,600 contract to Farris Engineering of Omaha for a study of the electrical and mechanical systems at WSC. The study will be needed for future WSC energy savings projects. A similar study will be conducted at Kearney State College.

— Heard a report on the progress of repairs to the Chadron State Kline Campus Center. The building, which houses the campus dining and kitchen facilities, had to be evacuated in early December due to structural problems. Chadron State President Dr. Ed Nelson indicated the repairs will be complete by Feb. 1. Meals for students have been served at the Chadron Armory since the December evacuation of the Kline Center.

— APPROVED a six percent room and board increase at Kearney State College.

— Heard a mid-year report on the state college use of $240,000 in Improvement of Instruction monies. WSC was awarded about $56,000 of that total for various innovative educational programs for 1979-80.

Examples of the WSC programs funded through Improvement of Instruction are: faculty development in computer technology, an athletic training program, a project to update and improve freshman writing skills, the Plains Writer's Seminar, Teaching Learning Center study materials and other projects.

Request to Be Heard Feb. 6

Defense Lists Reasons For New Trial Motion

Eight reasons have been listed by defense attorney Noyes Rogers, Columbus, in his Jan. 25 filing of a motion for new trial.

ROGERS DEFENDED Nebraska Public Power District recently in a District Court civil suit filed by Valerius and Bernice Damme, Wayne. The Dammes had appealed a County Court order for damages to their land.

NPPD is constructing a 345-kilovolt transmission line over several parcels of land in Wayne County (and other area counties) from Raun, Iowa, to near Hoskins. A District Court jury Jan. 17 returned a verdict that the County Court appraisal figure was not adequate to cover anticipated damages resulting from construction of the line.

THE JURY'S verdict awarded the Dammes $14,375, as opposed to the County Court offer of $5,921. The strip of land in question was estimated at 80 feet wide and 1,213 feet long.

Reasons cited by Rogers in filing for the new trial were as follows:

- 1.—IRREGULARITY in proceedings of the court, jury and prevailing party, and in orders of the court and in the court of using its discretion, by reason of which the defendant was prevented from having a fair trial.
- 2.—Excessive damages appearing to have been given under the influence of passion or prejudice.

3.—Error in the assessment of the amount of recovery, the same being too large.

4.—That the verdict is not sustained by sufficient evidence and is contrary to law.

5.—ERROR OF LAW occurring at the trial and accepted by the defendant.

6.—That, specifically, and in addition to the general reasons set forth above, and the court erred in failing to follow the testimony of witness Dean Godbersen which was offered and further erred in not allowing the defendant's witness Darrell Smith in testimony concerning sales of properties in close proximity to a 345-kilovolt transmission line.

7.—THAT THE COURT erred in not excluding the testimony of former witnesses called by the plaintiff after cross examination for the reason that the cross-examination of these showed their opinion was not based upon the proper measure of damages as provided by law.

8.—In not granting a mistrial when asked for the reason that counsel for plaintiffs on numerous occasions made statements inflammatory to jury not allowed by law and concerning items not admissible in the record.

DISTRICT JUDGE Merritt C. Warren is expected to rule on the motion Feb. 6, the next regular court date.

Needs and Problems of Retarded Finally Realized

(Editor's Note: This is the second of three articles outlining services provided by the local Region IV Office of Developmental Disabilities. Community based mental retardation services to developmentally disabled Nebraskans in this area are offered by the agency. The final article will appear in next Monday's issue of The Herald.)

In the late 1960's public attention was drawn toward institutions for the mentally retarded.

PARENTS of residents in institutions had worked long and hard to make the public aware of problems. But their voices were finally heard, says Barbara VerLinden, director of public information for Region IV. Institutions for the mentally retarded were not advancing the development of the residents. Many institutions were understaffed, overcrowded, and depressing, and residents were sometimes treated in a dehumanizing manner, she said.

In a Pennsylvania court case concerning the rights of the mentally retarded, it was declared that habilitation (education and training) could not be provided through the traditional institutional approach, VerLinden said. It also was declared that institutional placement without habilitation was an inherent denial of human rights. Similar cases were filed in other states.

IN NEBRASKA, a case was filed which became a class action suit. At issue here, as in Pennsylvania, were the residents' human rights and their right to habilitation. Before the case came to court, however, the plaintiff party reached an agreement with the state which would protect the rights of the class, the public information director said.

The agreement allowed that the population of the Beatrice State Developmental Center (BSDC) would be reduced to 250 or less. (BSDC is the major institution for the mentally retarded in the state.) Mentally retarded persons who could best be served in community-based facilities would be moved there at the earliest possible moment. Community-based mental retardation (CBMR) programs would be developed to serve former Beatrice residents and other mentally retarded Nebraskans, in programs to be developed in or near their home communities, she explained.

IN A CBMR program, developmental, and in many cases, residential services are made available — in or near the home community. Such a program allows for maximum personal development in the most normal and least restrictive environment possible, VerLinden said. Thus, many clients remain in their own home, which allows them to become familiar with available community facilities (stores, schools, churches, recreational facilities, etc.). The training which clients receive from Region IV is designed to move them to the most independent life style possible. "What better way to learn to use community facilities than to live there?" she said.

THE population in BSDC was reduced from 2,300 to 709 as community placements were made, and future plans include further reduction of the population, VerLinden said the residents who remain at Beatrice now receive developmental instruction, and the staff-to-client ratio has been increased so that more individualized instruction, is possible.

"National legislation has guaranteed the right of all citizens to a free and appropriate education, even if that meant that special services had to be provided," she explained. Following this lead, the Nebraska state legislature established the State Office of Mental Retardation, which had the responsibility of developing CBMR programs in six regions in the state.

WAYNE AND all of Wayne County are in Region IV. Regional governing board and regional offices were created in each region to plan and administer these services. The state legislature channeled funds into CBMR programs. Nebraska had become (and still remains) a national leader in providing services for the developmentally disabled, she said.

Recently, a study of Nebraska's Mental Health and Mental Retardation services

CRAIG WILLIAMS, secretary treasurer of the Housing Board, said bids were as follows:

Audino Construction Co., Sioux City, Iowa, $416,900; Christiansen Construction Co., Pender, $420,400; Midland General Construction Co., Blair, $392,000; Woolworth Construction Co., Sioux City, Neb., $382,500; ReDec Construction Co., Hartington, $419,000.

HE SAID THE bids are under advisement of FmHA and the agency will choose the bid and construction firm.

A similar housing plan was undertaken about 10 years ago but fell through after land was purchased in Allen.

Allen Elderly Housing Moves One Step Closer

Elderly low income housing moved a step closer to reality in Allen Thursday with the opening of bids on the project.

THE FIVE proposals were forwarded to the FmHA (Farm and Home Administration) in Lincoln for their review. The agency is expected to take action on the bids within two weeks.

The project includes construction of 16 units for the elderly over 62 years of age and disabled persons.

The Allen Housing Board has taken an option on about two acres of land on the east side of town for location of the facility. The board is awaiting the federal decision on which, if any, bids will be accepted before buying the land.

Council Sets Long Agenda This Tuesday

Wayne City Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the City Hall with the following agenda items planned for the regular session:

A public hearing at 8 p.m. and an ordinance regarding rezoning, consideration of a letter from Pat Gross involving grades of lot fronts, a resolution accepting engineer specifications and costs estimate on a sanitary sewer project, the same for a water extension project, the same for a street improvement district.

Other items include an ordinance creating a sewer extension district, one creating a water extension district and a notice to contractors, a resolution vacating an east-west alley, an ordinance annexing the McCright property, engineering proposals involving the city's water system.

Others are discussion on U.S. 35 access to Hillside Drive, a development plan involving Sunnyview Park, applications for membership in the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department and further discussion involving Marywood Subdivision.

was conducted by two medical doctors, VerLinden explained. It was recommended as a result of that study that the state's mental health and mental retardation services be combined, and that control of these programs be established at the state level.

RALPH Michener, director of the Department of Public Institutions, indicated that such a vast and sweeping change would be hard to implement. He suggested that each system be maintained and that all agencies work in mutual cooperation, she explained. Michener indicated that establishment of statewide control and the change from local control would cause a loss of citizen support.

Presently, she added, CBMR programs are controlled locally by the governing boards within each region. The members of Region IV Governing Board are county supervisors or county commissioners, one from each of the 22 counties in the region. The Region IV governing board has final control of all policy making matters and control the regional budget. Merlin Belermann is the Wayne County representative on the Region IV governing board, the public information director said.

THE BULK of the dollars spent in CBMR programs are state dollars. Other funding sources include federal funds, Department of Education funds, room and board payments, county funds, and work contracts. In that order, she explained. Though county-dollar contribution is proportionately low, the county leadership contribution is high.

Region IV community based mental retardation programs serve 22 north east and north central Nebraska counties. There are seven area programs in the region, located in Bloomfield, Columbus, Lyons, Norfolk, O'Neill, South Sioux City, and Wayne. Wayne is primarily served by the Wayne area program.

IN ANOTHER article, an overview of the training provided through Region IV services will be provided. For further information, please call or write: Region IV Services, Wayne, 206 Logan Street, Wayne, 375-4884.

SHE'LL CARRY INTO THE CLASSROOM THE LESSONS YOU TEACH AT HOME.

You guide a little, shape a little. You emphasize common courtesy. You encourage her to respect others. These important first lessons will help her be a better student throughout her school years. She'll learn more and learn it faster because her teachers can spend their time teaching English, math, and science, instead of discipline.

Allen Eagles Get A Pair Of Wins On The Road

Momentum was gained by the Allen Eagles this week as they won a pair of games over Winnebago and Decatur. The Eagles started out by dumping Winnebago 69-59 on Tuesday and then followed with a 45-38 triumph over Decatur on Thursday.

Against Decatur, Frank Lanser pumped in 16 points and Lee Hansen scored 10 to break open what was at one time a close game. The Eagles increased their lead in each of the last three quarters to the final seven point spread.

Hansen pulled down 20 rebounds—11 on offense and 9 on defense. Lanser and Steve Stewart made 10 and 9 rebounds respectively as Allen upped its record to 5-6.

"Lee Hansen played a heck of a game. He really crashed the boards," said Allen coach Bart Knief. "Terry Brewer did a good job of running our offense. The team is pulling together and gaining new spirit and the kids really enjoy it."

The Eagles shot 30 percent from the field in the game. Decatur was led by Joe Walker with 17 points. He scored 10 points in the first half but Allen's defense shut him down and held him to two points in the second half.

All B League Games Are Close

No game was decided by more than five points in Men's B League Recreation basketball Tuesday night. Team Two nipped Team Seven 44-42. Team Four edged Team Five 47-45 and Team Three trimmed Team Six 51-46.

Flier Sparks Win

Led by Mark Flier's 20 points, Team Two slipped by Team Seven 44-42 in the evening's opening game.

Team Seven built an early 14-8 lead as substitute Tom Erwin scored eight points in the first quarter.

A 15-8 advantage in the second quarter gave Team Two a 23-22 lead at the half. The two teams fought neck and neck throughout the second half before Team Two pulled to a 44-42 win.

Bob Ridings scored 10 points to complement Flier's 20. Team

Seven was led by Erwin with 16 and Bruce Johnson with 10.

Team Two (2-1): Flier, 20; Langenberg, 6; Wittler, 1; Boeckenhauer, 6; Konken, 1; Team Five 47-45 and Team Four edged Team Five 47-45 and Team Three trimmed Team Six 51-46.

Decatur Downs Allen Girls

A tall talented girls' team from Decatur handed the Allen Eagles their third loss of the season 43-24 Thursday night.

Stacey Koester, Allen's second most consistent scorer, was ill and didn't see action in the game. She will probably miss tonight's (Monday's) game against Ponca or see limited action.

"We need to sit down and evaluate ourselves. We have the talent, we just need to get going," said Allen coach Dale Jackson. "We're averaging 22 or 23 turnovers a game and that's our biggest problem. We can't seem to get rid of them. Stacey Koester was out with the flu and that really hurt."

Decatur, whose shortest starter was 5-8, was led in scoring by Marie Dunning with 11, Lisa Larson with 10 and Susan Hefner with 10. Lisa Erwin scored nine points and grabbed 13 rebounds to lead Allen. Lisa Wood and Beth Stalling added five rebounds each. The Eagles recorded 29 total rebounds.

Allen will host Ponca tonight (Monday) and then host Walthill Thursday.

State's Growth Last Decade was Fabulous

Nebraska's industrial growth in the 1970's signaled a bonanza decade and propelled the state a giant step forward toward its long-term goal of developing a sound mix of agriculture and industry for a more expanded and diversified economic base.

This conclusion was drawn from a report compiled by the Nebraska Department of Economic Development earlier this month.

C.L. Elliott, the department's industrial development director, said the report revealed that industrial growth in Nebraska during the past decade was "absolutely fabulous" when measured against the bleak performance of the nation's economy.

Elliott pointed out that the estimated capital investment by new and expanding industries during the '70's totaled nearly $1 billion.

The report showed that

Foreign Land Owners Occupy Area Counties

Disclosure reports filed by aliens owning farmland in Nebraska are sufficient in number to question whether there has been adequate enforcement of a state law prohibiting aliens and alien-controlled corporations from owning farmland, the Center for Rural Affairs said.

The reports also imply control of corporate landownership will be necessary to control alien landownership.

In an article summarizing Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act (AFIDA) reports filed in the state, the center says 79,192.39 acres of farmland in 16 Nebraska counties, valued at $33,613,323, is owned in whole or in part by aliens.

The article, appearing in the center's quarterly newspaper, the New Land Review, identifies 1,681.69 acres of alien owned farmland in 5 counties not previously made public.

More than 60,000 acres of Nebraska's alien controlled land is owned by a limited partnership controlled by Robin Scully, whose family has owned the same land in Gage and Nuckolls counties for more than 100 years.

The second largest grouping of alien landowners is in Dundy County, where 16 corporations owning more than 14,000 acres have filed disclosure reports. Only one of these corporations identified its alien owners, but the concentration of reports in this irrigation development area indicates a large number of aliens are hiding behind domestic corporations in their Nebraska land investments.

Efforts by the Dundy County Attorney and local USDA officials have been unsuccessful in forcing these corporations to complete their disclosure reports, the Center says, but Washington, D.C. USDA officials have agreed to pursue enforcement of the AFIDA disclosure requirements in Dundy County.

The remaining foreign owned Nebraska farmland is located in the following area counties: Washington (Canada, 75.23), Burt (Holland, 17), Thurston (Belize, 85), Platte (undisclosed, 81.06) and Antelope (German, 277).

A summary showing the names of alien landowners, their agents, the number of acres, value and date of acquisition, as well as the producers' relationship to the foreign owner, is contained in the Winter, 1979-80 edition of the Center for Rural Affairs' newspaper, the New Land Review. A copy can be obtained by writing Box 405, Walthill, Neb., 68067.

LOWER ELKHORN NATURAL RESOURCES DISTRICT

LANDS FOR CONSERVATION

Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District will again offer payments to landowners for terrace construction, under the Lands for Conservation Program. In fiscal year 1979 Lower Elkhorn NRD paid landowners over $365,000 for installation of conservation practices on their land. Of this total $117,000 was through the Lands for Conservation program.

Tile outlet terraces such as these are eligible for cost-sharing, plus Lands for Conservation funds.

RULES OF LANDS FOR CONSERVATION

1. Signups must be by April 1st at the appropriate local SCS Office.
2. Level terraces with outlets, gradient terraces with grassed waterways, and terraces with tile outlets qualify for this program. Terraces and waterways must be seeded during the contract period.
3. These practices must protect the entire field on which they are established, however, the area under contract will be the smallest practical area to encompass the practices, as agreed with the cooperater.
4. Construction must be done between June 1st and September 1st, and the field may be planted to cover or a small grain crop, preceding or after construction. The crop or cover may be harvested or pastured during the contract period. If a row crop is planted between terraces, only the construction area will be contracted for.
5. Land under this contract must be farmed on the contour. If used for permanent pasture after the contract period, the money received in this program must be returned. Land can be used for hayland as a normal part of crop rotation.
6. Maximum contract area for any operating unit will be 60 acres. Payment is $40/acre, and if ownership of land changes during contract period, the contract becomes void. New owner may continue the contract, if agreed to with Lower Elkhorn NRD.
7. An effort will be made by the Lower Elkhorn NRD to distribute the funds throughout the district, but the Directors may designate areas for preference, where a high priority exists.
8. Land contracted for must be a part of an SCS developed conservation plan for the entire farm, and must require terraces to meet the permissible soil loss under the SCS soil loss formula. Also, conservation cropping system must be carried out that keeps soil loss down to permissible amount under SCS formulas.
9. The landowner will contract for the construction of terraces, waterways, tile outlets and any other necessary construction.
10. Terraces, waterways, and tile outlets must be maintained for 10 years or as long as the current owners has control of the land, whichever is less.

SCS personnel provide the technical assistance in designing, staking, and inspecting terrace systems.

Terraces are one of the most effective means of controlling erosion and runoff on cropland with long or steep slopes. By breaking up the slopes and stopping the flow of water, topsoil is left in place and there is greater absorption of moisture into the soil. This can mean maintaining greater soil fertility, more available moisture for crops and less pollution of lakes and streams. Sediment in runoff from cropland is a major source of surface water pollution and one that can be largely controlled by adequate land treatment. By encouraging terrace building in summer months, the construction season is extended, making it possible to build more terraces.

Modern terrace systems are also much more attractive from a farming standpoint than terraces constructed several years ago. Terraces are now designed parallel to reduce point rows and spaced wide enough to use the larger tillage equipment.

Cost-share payments for terraces are available in most counties through local ASCS Offices. The ACP funds will pay 75-80% of the construction costs of terraces, up to the limit of $3,500 per cooperater.

Lower Elkhorn NRD also offers cost-share payments on terrace systems. The NRD cost-shares at the same rate as ACP in each county, if a terrace project requires more than the $3,500 ACP limit, or if ACP funds for that county are exhausted. Lands for Conservation payments are not cost-share funds, so they may be used in combination with cost-share funds. Landowners wishing to obtain further information or apply for the above programs should contact your local SCS Office.

WILDLIFE HABITAT PAYMENTS $35/acre

Landowners in the Lower Elkhorn NRD may apply through March 31, for up to $35 per acre for establishing wildlife habitat.

The Wildlife Habitat Program is a joint effort of Nebraska Game & Parks Commission and the Lower Elkhorn NRD funded by sales of the state Habitat Stamp and local property taxes.

Practice 1Va pays landowners $30 per acre for establishing grassy habitat on former crop ground. The cost of seed may be reimbursed 100%, and an additional $5 per acre is paid for allowing public access by foot traffic only.

Up to $10 per acre is paid for protection of existing habitat.

For more information or to sign up, contact your local Soil Conservation Office.

TREES FOR WILDLIFE AND WINDBREAKS

Supplies of trees from the Clarke-McNary Program continue to decline as orders are received from Nebraska landowners. Of an initial supply of 3,873,000 seedlings, 1,468,900 are still available. Species available are:

|--|--|
| HARDWOODCottonwoodBlack WalnutSiberian ElmHoneylocustSilver MapleGreen AshRussian Olive |  |

The program is already sold out on Rocky Mountain Juniper, hackberry, choke cherry, and lilac. Others in very short supply are Colorado Blue Spruce, Siberian Elm, honeylocust, green ash, Russian Olive, and skunkbush sumac.

Tree order forms may be obtained from Extension, SCS, ASCS, and NRD offices. The cost of seedlings is $17.95 per hundred, and cost-share is available through ASCS offices in many counties. SCS personnel are available to design plantings, and the Lower Elkhorn NRD crews will plant trees at a cost of 24¢ per tree with a minimum pull in charge of $50.

Landowners who wish to order trees for spring planting should do so as soon as possible to get the species you want.

Farmer-Owned Grain Reserve Amounts Listed

There were 949.2 million bushels of grain in the farmer-owned grain reserve on Jan. 16, according to a report issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The report is based on information gathered by the department's Management Field Office in Kansas City.

The following table shows the total quantities remaining in the reserve, by commodity.

GRAIN	AMOUNT REMAINING IN RESERVE
Barley	27,899,000 bu
Corn	608,789,000 bu
Oats	30,255,000 bu
Sorghum	55,116,000 bu
Wheat	226,861,000 bu
Rice	167,000 bu
TOTAL	949,187,000 bu

The following table shows the net outstanding quantity by commodity of new entries from the 1978-79 crops since Oct. 22, the date they were declared eligible for entry into the reserve. Since the reported data from the Management Field Office shows only net outstanding, the entry for corn reflects the net difference between new entries less repayments from existing loans for the 1978 crop.

GRAIN	QUANTITY
Corn	71,155,000 bu
Oats	1,177,000 bu
Sorghum	10,352,000 bu
Wheat	6,450,000 bu
TOTAL	89,134,000 bu

Barley was called from the reserve on June 26 and all the other commodities except corn and sorghum are in release status. Some commodities have been released more than once. The latest release date for each commodity is: oats, Sept. 20; rice, October; wheat, May 16.

Release of a commodity means farmers may repay their CCC price support loans and redeem or sell the grain without penalty, but they are not required to do so. Call of a commodity means farmers have 30 days from the date of notification of the call to repay their reserve loans. They are not required to sell the grain, but if they do not repay the loan, they must forfeit the grain to CCC.

Opinions on Nutritional Lunches Are Asked

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is asking students and parents for their opinions about the size and nutritional content of school lunch servings, according to Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman.

USDA's Food and Nutrition Service is asking the public's help in developing a standardized monitoring system to ensure that each child receives a daily lunch that meets the department's nutritional requirements. Foreman said.

Only lunches that provide specified amounts of four food groups are eligible for reimbursement under the National School Lunch Program. The amounts are designed to supply about one third of daily food needs for a 10-12 year old child.

A committee of department and school food personnel will meet in January to consider alternative ways to measure the adequacy of school meals served to children. Foreman said. She said USDA wants specific ideas and comments to help the committee develop a system that will satisfy both common sense and the need for strict accountability of federal funds.

Public comment is invited on a series of questions, including: — What should be monitored — food portions on plates or total amounts of food a school kitchen serves during a particular period?

— Should food service workers determine portions visually or by some other method?

— Should frozen pre-packaged meals be measured the same way as fresh food?

These and other questions were printed in the Jan. 18 Federal Register.

Send comments by March 3, to Stanley Garnett, School Programs Division, Food and Nutrition Service, 201 14th St. S.W., room 4122, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Wayne Agency Seeks $$$ From Government

The Greater Nebraska Health Systems Agency's Northern Subarea Committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 4, in Norfolk.

Thirty committee members representing 21 counties in Northeast and Northcentral Nebraska are expected to attend the meeting at Commercial Federal Savings and Loan, Seventh Street and Norfolk Avenue.

Louise Jønness, director of nursing at Providence Medical Center, Wayne, is Wayne County's provider representative.

Irene Jeffrey, co-owner of Jeff's Cafe, Wayne, holds the consumer position on the committee.

The committee will consider the following projects:

Northeast Nebraska Family Health Services, headquartered in Wayne, has applied to HEW through the state of Nebraska's Maternal and Child Health for $91,152. Local fund raising, donations and fees for the program are estimated at $27,000. The main office is in Wayne.

Service sites listed in the proposal include South Sioux City, West Point, Norfolk, Pender, Creighton, Laurel, Lynch, Oakland, Hartington, Pierce, O'Neill and Atkinson.

Fremont Family Planning Institute's application to HEW through the state of Nebraska's Division of Maternal and Child Health for $73,440.00. Local donations for this program are estimated at $15,600.00. The service sites include Platte, Colfax, Dodge, Washington, Polk, Butler, Butte and Saunders counties.

Committee members also will consider the request of St. Francis Memorial Hospital in West Point to replace X-ray equipment.

The Health Systems Agency has received notice that Madison County has been declared a Primary Care Shortage Area. The request for designation was initiated by Sen. Tom Kennedy of Newman Grove.

The committee's recommendations will be forwarded to the agency's Governing Board for final action on Feb. 28 in Kearney.

The meetings are open to the public and everyone is invited to attend.

Senior citizens discussed current events at a meeting conducted by Gladys Peterson at the Senior Citizens Center in Wayne Tuesday afternoon, with 20 attending.

Furnishing refreshments was Mildred Powers, who is hospitalized after falling at her home recently and breaking both wrists. The refreshments were in appreciation of those who assisted her following her accident last Monday.

Genevieve Pomeroy also is a patient in the hospital. Mrs. Pomeroy fell in her home, breaking a hip and wrist.

A new volunteer at the Senior Citizens Center is Karen Johanson, a student in the field and recreation practicum class at Wayne State College. Miss Johanson is at the Center each weekday from 2 to 5 p.m.

Seniors Discuss Current Events

Nebraska Congressman Doug Bereuter has endorsed Republican Presidential candidate George Bush, saying "George Bush is right for the country. I urge my constituents, all Nebraskans, and Iowans too, to give George Bush the careful scrutiny I have and then support him fully."

At a press conference in Omaha, Bereuter said: "In light of what has happened during the last three years, and especially during the last few months, surely Americans can see all too clearly that our flirtation and four-year fling with inexperienced leadership has brought our foreign policy and defense posture to the brink of disaster. There is no substitute for experience when combined with personal integrity, ability and human compassion. I have just described George Bush," Bereuter said.

Summarizing Bush's career of building his own business, serving in Congress, serving as U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, our Envoy to Peking, Republican National Chairman and Director of Central Intelligence, Bereuter said Americans need "a president capable of inspiring a renewed sense of pride and confidence in our country and what it stands for."

Family Farm Requires Awareness

Fathers and sons who plan to farm together need to be aware of much more than just the legal and financial details of going into business together, participants in a meeting on "Family Farm Operating Agreements" were told in Lincoln Friday, Jan. 18.

Although the money side of the operation is important and alternative business arrangements need to be considered, the people side of a family farm business also needs consideration, Larry Bitney, extension farm management specialist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, explained.

Along with personnel from IANR's district stations, Bitney is presenting a series of similar meetings at locations around the state.

Fathers and sons — or other two-generation combinations planning to work together — need to be aware of differences in values, according to Ron Daly, formerly an extension family life specialist in IANR, now with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C. In a videotape presentation, Daly noted that the younger and older generation may place different values on something as basic as time.

"People who were raised during the depression worked 14 to 18 hours a day and didn't spend much time playing. Younger people growing up in today's society are more aware of other things to do and may place different values on time," he said. There needs to be an agreement on "how long do we work and when do we work," he added.

Four basic principles should guide interpersonal relations for family farmers. The first important requirement is trust, Daly said. "Anytime a group of people come together to make decisions about business, what they're going to do to make a living and hopefully have a good life, you need trust." Dependability is part of trust and once betrayed, it's hard to reestablish, he said.

Open communication is a second requirement. A free flow of information through sharing and listening is important, Daly said. "You have to be willing to share concerns and problems and not let them build up," he explained. Don't use the gunnysack approach of overlooking many small things, only to have them all come out at once when you're angry, he said. If there's a problem, solve it early on, he advised. An example might be a son who quits work early too often for old Dad's taste or who consistently shows up late for the start of the work day. "Talk about it in an objective manner as possible," Daly said.

Realization is the third key to successful relations, he said in the taped program. Everyone involved in the two-generation farm must have an opportunity to realize their potential, he explained. Including wives. Take a look at who has the best resources to do a certain job, he suggested. Perhaps the younger partner's wife who has some accounting background would be the best choice for record keeping. Or the educational background of the son might better qualify him for a management role. "You've got to encourage each person to grow," Daly emphasized.

The older couple in a family farm might be looking toward more time off — that's why the son's coming into the business — so the younger generation must recognize this, for example, by not abusing grandma's availability as a sifter for the younger couple's children. Conflicts can also occur if the son is wanting to expand the business and the older couple is ready to scale down, Daly pointed out.

"If you're sensitive to each other's needs and if you can help everyone realize their potential, your business will succeed," he summarized.

Another positive approach is to "earn your neighbor's love" and make yourself indispensable to each other. This creates a synergistic effect where "one plus one adds up to three or four or five," he said.

A final requirement is shared goals. "If you're not working for the same thing, you'll be going different directions," Daly warned. Deciding on ways to meet goals calls for open communication, he re-emphasized, and suggested that a once-a-year meeting for goal setting is important. Everyone concerned with the business, wives included, should attend, he said.

"These four things are simple but they're not easy," Daly said, but he noted the potential of the relationship is worth the work. "One of the finest relationships is that of a father and son sharing something they really love doing," he concluded.

Doug Dusey, extension farm management specialist in IANR's Southeast Extension and Research Center, provided additional guidelines for making the family farm business relationship a harmonious one.

First, there should be potential for sufficient income to support two families. This will vary depending on the circumstances of the younger partner. If he's unmarried and can live at home, income needs may be less, Dusey noted, but "if the money's not there, it's not going to work." Methods for deciding, "How Big Is Big Enough To Divide," were outlined by Bitney in a related presentation.

Decision making should be shared, Dusey noted, with the realization that compromises will need to be made. At least initially, the older partner is likely to have the lion's share of the say in management matters, but it's important that the younger partner be able to make a contribution, he said.

Equitable sharing of income is also important. The son may have little more than his labor to offer at the beginning, but his share of the net income must be sufficient.

Living arrangements are also crucial. "If the son is married, separate homes are a must," Dusey said. If the son lives at home, he should pay for room, board and laundry services so mom is not unfairly burdened with additional tasks at a time when she's looking forward to more leisure.

Long-range planning is vital, including the planning of the elder couple's estate. This should be in writing, he emphasized, and noted that "this is comforting to the wife of the younger partner, who might otherwise wonder what her future is and what's in it for her."

Such a written plan will also do much to reassure non-farm siblings who may feel left out of family financial planning when a brother joins dad in the business, he added.

Condemnation Proceedings

Condemnation proceedings involving three parcels of land adjacent to Nebraska 15 in Wayne County north of here have been filed by the state Department of Roads.

THE PROCEEDINGS were filed in County Court civil action Thursday, Jan. 16, and concern reconstruction of Nebraska 15 from the city limits of Wayne north to the Concord turnoff in Dixon County.

Two tracts of land owned by Carl and Peggy Johnson and one tract owned by Rolland and Marjorie Victor are involved. The Johnsons live about one mile north of Wayne on Nebraska 15 and the Victors about seven miles north, both on the west side.

A HEARING is set for 9 a.m. Thursday, Feb. 21, in County Court for appraisers to examine the parcels of land in question. The appraisers will inspect the land and assess anticipated damages.

The Johnson land is legally described as the NE 1/4 of 12 26 3, and the Victor property as the NE 1/4 of 12 27 3.

Reconstruction of the highway has been slightly controversial over the past year or so. Negotiations with the Wayne County Club board of directors lasted several months before a middle ground was reached.

THE STATE wanted to reconstruct the highway from inside the city limits to the Concord corner. The County Club board maintained the cost to do so would be about $200,000, while the state countered that costs would run only about $25,000.

The Country Club group said considerable and irreparable damage would result to the golf course through destruction of trees, tees and greens. The state felt otherwise, however, saying the board's claims were exorbitant.

AS A RESULT OF the impasse, the two groups decided that the state would surface, but not widen, Nebraska 15 from inside the city limits to the north edge of the city boundaries. The road will be widened, regraded and surfaced from there north.

Given all that's involved in doing business in the family, a testing stage or trial period can be a valuable tool, Bitney suggested. If the son is unsure of his intentions for farming as a career — or if the parents are uncertain of his commitment — a temporary arrangement might be made, Bitney outlined two possibilities.

The father and son might enter into a wage agreement. The son should be paid more than a normal hired man, Bitney said. This has two benefits: The son has a chance to accumulate some capital, and if the son is making more than a regular hired man, dad won't want the arrangement to go on forever. With this kind of setup, "Set the alarm clock for three or five years later and re-evaluate the situation," he advised. Bitney noted that after 15 or more years, some sons are still just hired men for their fathers, rather than partners in the business.

A wage incentive plan may be a better alternative, one which allows the son to get more involved in management, Bitney continued. The son might be given responsibility for one of the farm's major enterprises, with an incentive program so he receives the benefits of his labor. A base wage plus an incentive should be paid.

The incentive can either be based on production or income, but Bitney favors the income approach because it has more potential for learning. The son learns the ups and downs of the farm economy and the father is in a better position to pay a big incentive than if the son's production had been high but the year had been one of low profit for the farm.

Bitney also discussed advantages of sole proprietorships, partnerships and corporations for the family farm and various plans for equalizing the son's investment in the business. The son might "buy" from the father assets needed in addition to his own to equalize their shares and take out an interest bearing promissory note for a set term. This also does much to remove suspicions of non-farm siblings, he said, while giving the younger partner a greater say in management decisions.

Additional family farm operating agreement meetings are scheduled for South Sioux City at the Paddock Restaurant with registration at 9:30 a.m. and adjournment around 3 p.m.

THE INSTITUTE of Agriculture and Natural Resources Cooperative Extension Service honored members of the Soils Short Course team for leadership and hard work in educating crop producers and others about Nebraska's soil resources and efficient use of fertilizers for soil water and energy savings. Members, all professors of agronomy at the University of Nebraska, with individual awards, from left are: George Rehm, IANR district extension agronomist, Concord; Donald Sander, extension soils specialist, Lincoln; Dr. Robert Gast, head of agronomy at UNL; Edwin Penas, district extension soils specialist, Lincoln; Richard Wiese, extension soil fertility specialist, Lincoln; Gary Hergert, district extension soils specialist, North Platte Station; Kenneth Frank, district extension agronomist, South Central Station, Clay Center; Delno Knudsen, extension agronomist, soil testing laboratory. The awards were presented at the IANR staff conference meeting held Jan. 10 at the UNL East Campus Union.

GED Classes Are Available To Homebound in Nebraska

The Nebraska Department of Adult and Continuing Education has endorsed the GED Home Study Program as an additional means of serving adults who need a high school diploma.

The endorsement was announced last week. A pre-test taken at home by persons unable to attend regular GED centers enables each individual to begin study at his or her appropriate level.

Books and materials provided by the program are mailed out to the learner who works at his own rate to complete them. Students are required to pay return postage on completed tests, worksheets, etc.

When the skills necessary to pass the GED test are mastered, the learner is directed to one of the 52 testing centers across the state. When the adult completes all five portions of the GED test, he is eligible to receive a diploma from the state.

During the first year, some 80 persons have participated. Those interested in these educational opportunities are asked to contact the following:

Jean Rankin, Box 482, Sidney, 69167. 308 254 3476, or 308 254 4754, or Dr. Leonard Hill, State Department of Education, 301 Centennial Mall South, Lincoln, Neb. 68509

Beef Referendum Vote Registration By Feb. 6

Beef producers who wish to vote in an upcoming referendum should register between Jan. 28 and Feb. 6 at the local office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

ALDEN Johnson, chairperson of the Wayne County ASC Committee, said the producers will vote by secret ballot Feb. 19-22 on whether they want a nationally coordinated beef research and information program.

A similar referendum, conducted in 1977, did not receive the required two-thirds approval, although it was favored nationally by 56.4 percent of voting producers, he said. Since that time, the Beef Research and Information Act has been amended so that a majority of producers will be sufficient for approval, according to Johnson.

"RULES FOR registering and voting have changed," the ASCS official said. It was determined that 10 days would be sufficient for all producers to register and that the four day voting period would result in a more efficient voting procedure and reduce administrative costs. "Copies of referendum rules can be obtained from our office," he said.

Registration and voting can be completed by mail if information and ballots are requested in advance.

THE BEEF Research and Information Program would be administered by a board of up to 68 producers and five non-voting consumer advisors, Johnson said. Each state would be represented on the board in proportion to its share of the cattle industry. The program would be funded by assessments based on the value of cattle sold.

"All sellers in the marketing chain would be assessed and the buyer at the point of slaughter would deduct the total assessment and forward it to the board," Johnson said. Any producer could request and receive a refund of the assessment paid.

For more information on the beef referendum, contact the local ASCS office, 375-2453.

CCC to Buy Grain

The Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) has announced it will buy grain from farmers on a competitive basis until not later than 4 p.m. Feb. 4.

Grain involved will be U.S. Grade 2 or better yellow corn with a maximum 14 percent moisture. Envelopes containing the offer to sell should be sealed and marked in the lower left-hand corner "OFFER UNDER ANNOUNCEMENT K C P CORN 400, INVITATION NO. 1 DO NOT OPEN UNTIL 4 P.M. CST FEB. 4."

According to ASCS officials, a minimum of 5,000 bushels of any one class, grade and quantity will be accepted. The corn must be stored locally, and anyone interested in the offer is asked to contact their local elevator for instructions on submitting a bid.

Offers to sell grain must be submitted by mail, by Western Union wire or hand delivered. Acceptance of the offers by CCC will be in accordance with terms and conditions outlined by CCC. Offers will be considered for non-transit corn only.

The corn offered for purchase must be produced in the U.S. and must be located in and delivered from points within the U.S.

Delivery will be completed when CCC receives warehouse receipts or other evidence of title approved by CCC for the quantity and quality of the corn at the storage location. The contractor is required to complete delivery within 30 calendar days of the contract date, an official explained.

Storage charges will begin on the date specified at the effective offer rate contained in the Uniform Grain Storage Agreement for the storage location named.

CCC reserves the right to accept or reject all offers in their entirety, or any offer in its entirety, or to accept or reject any portion of an offer at any location.
