ONE-HUNDRED FOURTH YEAR NUMBER FORTY-FOUR

THE AWARD WHICH "more than overwhelmed" Morris was the Small Business Administration's Man of the Year honor for District II. It was presented by Leo Navin (left) of the SBA office in Omaha. Chamber member Dean Bruggeman is partially hidden.

ANOTHER FEATURE of the evening was presentation of the President's Plaque to outgoing Chamber President Glen Ellingson (left) by new President John Dorcey.

Double Honor for Stan Morris

No one was more surprised Sunday night than Stan Morris when he received a double honor by being named the Chamber of Commerce Man of the Year and the Small Business Administration District II Man of the Year.

MORRIS, a business and civic leader in Wayne since founding his shop in 1948, was honored during the annual Chamber meeting at the Black Knight.

The Chamber honor was bestowed on him first, with Dean Bruggeman, chairman of the annual event, making the presentation. Morris, owner-operator of Morris Machine Shop, said he was overwhelmed by the honor.

LEO NAVIN, Omaha, SBA chief of community economic development, presented the award for the east-central district, which basically is the same as the Second Congressional District.

Morris, who said he was "more than overwhelmed" by the SBA honor, was chosen from among entries representing various districts around the state. "I'm just trying to do a good job in this community which we think so much of," he said.

District II includes such communities as Columbus, Norfolk, Lincoln, Seward and Fairbury.

ALSO HONORED during the meeting was outgoing Chamber president Glen Ellingson. He received a president's plaque for his service to and promotion of the community during 1979.

Business has increased tremendously, he told more than 60 Chamber members and their wives. Wayne will progress as it has in the past, he added, calling on Chamber members to continue to provide the same fine service they have in the past.

THE ENERGY situation will more than likely bring shoppers back to Wayne, the past president said. The community will continue to expand and become a trade center for the area, he predicted.

Highlight of the evening, however, was the honors to Morris whose credentials surpassed by far those of other nominees, Navin said. The decision by the committee was made easier by his many civic, business and church activities.

NAVIN SAID between 50 and 60 nominations were received by the committee, and a winner was chosen in each of four state districts. In addition, an overall winner was chosen.

He added that 97 percent of all businesses in Nebraska are classified as small businesses, making the honor even more prestigious.

Navin added that a business does not have to have any direct contact (e.g. loans, business contacts, etc.) with the Small Business Association to be eligible for the honor.

WHEN HE opened his shop here nearly 32 years ago, Morris had 16 years of work experience to his credit. He began his career in 1933 with the C. T. Walsh Company in Minneapolis, Minn., as a dredge operator.

From there he took jobs with several other companies over the years working his way through positions as chief launchman, chief and master mechanic and chief engineer. He also held numerous licenses for navigation vessels and as Grade A tankerman. These eventually led up to the highest designation of chief engineer.

THE NOMINATION letter sent to the SBA in October said "a prime motive for Morris Machine Shop's nomination as small business of the year has been Stan's unsurpassed devotion to community and social organizations."

The following is a list of memberships and social activities:

HE HAS BEEN a member of the Masonic Lodge since 1944; a member and past High Priest of the Royal Arch Masons of Nebraska; a member, York Rite, Knight Templars of Free Masonry of Nebraska, Norfolk Commandery since 1959; member of the Shrine in Sioux City, Iowa, since 1960.

A member of the Methodist Church, holding several board positions, trusteeships and several times chairman of the finance committee covering a total of 22 years service in these positions; 20-year member of the Wayne Baseball Association and three times president of the group.

HE SERVED three, three-year terms on the board of directors of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce; served two three-year terms on the board of directors of Wayne Industries, Inc.; was past chairman and present board member of the Wayne Airport Authority; and was campaign manager for Mayor Wayne Marsh in the 1978 elections.

In addition, the letter continued, Morris planned and constructed several batting cages and backstops for the youth recreation and town ball teams; has maintained the ballpark lighting system for the past 15 years; erected a new lighting system on towers for the city ball park; furnished labor for all improvements and maintenance for the ball park; fabricated and constructed a truck-mounted snowplow for the Municipal Airport; and has donated all routine maintenance, welding and repair on the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department trucks and equipment for some 25 years.

The meeting marked the 40th anniversary of the Wayne Chamber. Bruggeman pointed out that everyone must work together to meet the challenges of coming years.

Three board members whose terms expired were recognized. These were Bob Sherry, Glen Ellingson and Steve Schumacher.

Student Says

American Hostages Will Be Released

The 50 Americans being held hostage by Iranian students in Tehran will be released safely, an Iranian student from Wayne State College told Kiwanians Monday noon.

THE STUDENT, speaking as a guest of Kiwanian Dick Armstrong, said policies of the U.S. government and the Central Intelligence Agency are largely to blame for the hostage situation.

Both U.S. groups backed the deposed Shah of Iran before he was in power, after he reached power and continue to do so now that his government has been overthrown.

REITERATING what Iranian captors of the hostages have said for nearly three months, the WSC student said the Shah was an enemy of the Iranian people, using U.S. money, weapons and supplies to torture, maim or kill residents of his country.

The youth said he spoke from personal experience in denouncing the Shah for his violent government.

The youth told of times when members of the Iranian secret police forced students by use of machine guns and other weapons into the streets to applaud the Shah. Members of the press took pictures of students cheering the now-deposed leader, he said, while guards and police were hidden with machine guns behind the students.

THE STUDENT also told of his family being tortured for his anti-Shah tactics here and at home while the Shah was in power.

The CIA instigated the coup which eventually placed the Shah in power, he added, and it was the U.S. government that backed the Shah as he ran a corrupt and violent government.

THE YOUTH interjected, however, that Iranians have nothing against the U.S. people, but rather the U.S. government.

The U.S. should take into consideration how the people of Iran feel about their former leader as the Americans are interpreting the situation there, he said.

"The CIA brought the Shah back to power in 1953 and supported the overthrow of the government," he told the Kiwanis Club during its regular luncheon meeting at the Black Knight.

THE STUDENT said Khomeini is a religious leader and is doing the best he can for the country "as far as I know." He has made mistakes, the youth said, "because he's not a politician."

He added that he felt the Iranian people were living better under Khomeini's regime than under the Shah's rule. As to Iranians' views of the USSR, the student said Iran definitely would turn to the U.S. if Russian invades Iran.

IRANIANS consider Russia to be a Godless country, practicing no religion. Since Iran is an abundantly religious country, it would turn against any ungodward advances by the Communists, he explained.

A problem the student faces here is a sudden cutoff of money from his family, he said. Since the hostages were taken, post offices have been paralyzed and the money supply has ceased.

He has managed to work some and friends have helped sustain him while the hostage situation continues.

School Hot Lunch Policy Explained

The federal government's restrictions regarding school lunches were outlined at a meeting of the Wayne Community Council recently.

Marjorie Summers, director of the hot lunch program for the Wayne-Carroll School District, said the government has restricted meals at least as long as her 20 years with the food service.

IN RECENT YEARS, she noted, more emphasis has been placed on providing fewer sugar products and fewer fatty substances.

For example, she said, milk requirements have changed in that a low-fat milk must be offered to the students as an alternative to whole milk. In order to cut costs in the local school district, only 2 percent milk is available.

"WE TRY TO keep up with the things that are better for the students in a nutritional sense," the food director said.

In charge of the hot lunch program for 18 years, Mrs. Summers said the guidelines are for the nutritional benefit of students.

"Although some students may not eat what we have to offer, we like to think we are giving them the opportunity," she explained.

THE DEPARTMENT of Agriculture has developed four criteria which each school district is required to provide. These are as follows:

Hot lunches must include at least 2 ounces of meat and/or an alternate. These include meat, fish, cheese, peanut butter, eggs, dried beans or dried peas.

THEY MUST include three-quarters of a cup of some vegetable. There is some flexibility here, allowing school districts to fill this requirement with a fruit or vegetable.

One slice of bread or wheat-based product such as cornbread, rolls, etc., must be included.

And the half-pint of milk, with the 2 percent milk as an alternative.

MRS. SUMMERS says most students are cooperative when it comes to hot lunches. There are, of course, some students who make snide remarks or refuse to eat certain things. However, most students are aware of what they should eat, she said.

Students in the Wayne-Carroll district are taught proper nutrition through health and science classes. The food director said the USDA requirements are made up so "we have our own choice as to what the students desire."

ALSO IN planning meals, Mrs. Summers tries to consider color and similar ways to make the lunches as attractive as possible.

The hot lunch program serves approximately 600 students daily, so Mrs. Summers and her staff are busy. The USDA funds the nation wide hot lunch program, she explained.

In addition to her talk, Mrs. Summers showed slides of the four basic classes of foods. Charts also were shown which describe how each can be included in the daily lunches.

Some 30 members attended the meeting, which included President Dick Keidel appointing a nominating committee. New officers will be elected in April.

The Community Council, organized a decade ago, is composed of interested citizens, parents, teachers of special projects and volunteer aides.

Other school policies the council has supported include "Project Success," designed to help children with specific language and learning disabilities; and "Project Predict and Prevent," which is concerned with the needs of pre-school children.

Peterson Resigns Post As Director With NRD

Citing a change in his residency, Val Peterson, formerly of Wayne, resigned his position as director-at-large for the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District.

PETERSON'S announcement came by letter at the NRD's regular meeting in Norfolk Thursday, Jan. 24. He moved to Fremont recently and no longer is a resident in the Lower Elkhorn District of NRD.

The Lower Elkhorn staff was directed to advertise throughout the district for anyone who would be interested in being appointed to fill the vacancy.

GLEN OLSON, Wakefield, was elected chairman of the board during the annual reorganization portion of the meeting. He succeeds William Meyer of Pierce.

John Hansen of Newman Grove was elected vice chairman; Mike Melerhenry of Hoskins was chosen as treasurer; and Richard Alexander of Piager was elected secretary.

Director Lowell Johnson was re-elected as the LENRD delegate to the Nebraska Association of Resources Districts (NARD). Johnson announced he will seek the position of vice president of the NARD. The election will be held at the state association meeting in March at Lincoln.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board adopted the LENRD Master Plan as recommended by the Comprehensive Planning and Peterson. Continued on page 10

Koch Re-Named President of Fair Managers

Marlyn Koch of Wayne was unanimously re-elected president of the Nebraska Association of Fair Managers during the final session of the group's annual meeting held in Lincoln last week.

Also unanimously re-elected were H.E. Estermeier of St. Paul, vice president; and Orville Koch of Syracuse, secretary-treasurer.

The fair managers held their 71st annual meeting in conjunction with the Nebraska State Fair Board meeting at the Lincoln Hilton.

Marlyn Koch

New district directors were chosen with Frank Rybin of Omaha elected to represent District No. 2; Neal Nelson of Winnebago elected to represent District No. 3; Lynn Youngquist of Beaver City re-elected to represent District No. 4; and Betty Phillips of Hemingford elected as District No. 6 Director.

Convention delegates heard from Bob Volk, assistant general manager of Ak-Sar-Ben, who announced that "for the 27th year, Ak-Sar-Ben will continue grants to county fairs." These building grants are for new improvements to the county fairs and are available on a matching basis totaling $1,000.

"Since 1954, Volk said, "the state's county fairs have received nearly $4 million as a direct result of the Ak-Sar-Ben race meeting, with $87,900 contributed in 1979 alone."

The annual County Fair convention also serves as a "showcase" of talent available to Nebraska's fairs. Booking agents audition their acts to fair managers and officers during the three-day event.

This year's convention concluded with the presentation of the "Fairman of the Year" award, which is given in recognition of meritorious service to fairs, on either county or state level. This year's award was presented to Leo Cooksley of Berwyn. Cooksley has served on the Custer County Fair board for 22 years, and as its president for 20 of those years. He is also past president of the Nebraska Association of Fair Managers.

Others attending the state convention were Mr. and Mrs. Dick Sorenson, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Roberts, Felix Dorcey, Glen Olson and Mrs. Koch.

'California Suite' Auditions Set

Auditions for the first production of the Wayne Community Theatre's 1980 season will be held in the Little Theatre located on the second floor of the education building on the Wayne State College campus.

Auditions are scheduled Sunday, Feb. 3, from 2 to 5 p.m., and Monday evening, Feb. 4, beginning at 8.

The auditions are for Neil Simon's "California Suite," under the direction of Dr. Robert Johnson. The play will be presented in the Little Theatre on March 7, 8 and 9.

"California Suite" is a warm, funny sample of Neil Simon at his best. The comedy is divided into four parts: "Visitor From New York," "Visitor From Philadelphia," "Visitors From London," and "Visitors From Chicago." The four segments share the same setting - a suite in a California hotel.

There are roles for five men and five women, ranging in age from 19 to past middle age. Because the play is divided into four separate episodes, said Johnson, every part is a major role.

All persons interested in participating in the production either acting or helping backstage, are urged to attend one of the auditions. Participants need not be members of the Wayne Community Theatre.

Interested persons unable to audition at the scheduled times should contact Dr. Robert Johnson.

'Night of Iguana' Technical Challenge

The Wayne State College theater department is in full swing for its production of Tennessee Williams' play "The Night of the Iguana," scheduled Feb. 10, 11 and 12 in Ramsey Theater on the WSC campus.
According to its author, the play focuses on "how to live beyond despair and still live."
The Rev. T. Lawrence Shannon, a defrocked Episcopalian minister, is, like a captured iguana, tied underneath the veranda of a rundown hotel, at the end of his rope. The world-weary Shannon finds God through the friendship of Hannah, a woman who offers him sympathy. She helps him gain a renewed belief in his own goodness and kindness by prompting him to set the iguana free.

Noel Rennerfeldt, technical director for the play, says the atmosphere is very important. "In Williams' play, he is clear-cut in what is needed as a stage setting. Williams knew the theater well and his plays always have an interior and exterior," says Rennerfeldt.
The play is set in a tropical atmosphere which is challenging to the artistic painter. According to Rennerfeldt, the lighting and painting of this set will be the biggest challenge.
Persons who would like more information about the play are asked to call 375-2200, ext. 234.

New Flowers and Vegetables Told at Hoskins Garden Club

Mrs. Carl Hinzman was hostess when the Hoskins Garden Club met Thursday afternoon. President Mrs. Carl Wittler opened the meeting with a poem, entitled "Before Us Lies Another Year." The group sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and Mrs. Anna Falk read a poem, "Snow." Members responded to roll call with a superstition. Gladys Reichert read the secretary's and treasurer's reports, and dues were collected.

The comprehensive study on "New Flowers and Vegetables for 1980," was given by Mrs. George Wittler. The hostess conducted several contests and raffles. The lesson, "Peanuts Look Pretty in Pots," was given by Mrs. Frieda Meierhenry. Next meeting will be with Mrs. Erwin Ulrich on Feb. 28.

Farmers Union Energy Topics Are Discussed

Dennis Demmel, Hartington, co-director of the Small Farm Energy Project, and Edgar Wuebben, cooperating farmer, Wynot, led a discussion on energy problems and solutions at the Jan. 24 meeting of the Stanton County Farmers' Union. Active solar collectors, passive solar heat, wind generators, methane production, composting manure and alcohol production and their use were some of the alternatives displayed with slides. The point was made that the projects vary in cost efficiency at present energy rates, but that even the higher cost projects will probably become economical in the near future if costs of energy continue to rise.

The Energy panel discussion at the state convention in December was the main topic of Harley Volbrecht's report on the resolutions convention. Also of note was the fact that membership in Nebraska Farmers' Union is now 4,400 families, an increase of 400 over last year. Stanton County had the highest number increase of any county in the state. The National Farmers' Union board met with cabinet members last week and and Travis, all of Hoskins, and Mrs. Clarence Heckman and Mrs. Gary Gilmore of Norfolk, and Linda Walker of Omaha.

Guests of Mrs. Walker Saturday morning to honor the occasion were Mrs. Mary Kollath, Mrs. Carl Wittler, Mrs. George Wittler and Mrs. Fred Johnson.

About 60 persons attended a no-host dinner honoring the Rev. and Mrs. John C. David and family at the Peace United Church of Christ Sunday.

presented a seven point plan for our agricultural program. The Senate and House Agricultural committees will be meeting next week, and National Farmers' Union is following up the first meeting by bringing in members to meet with the congressmen and representatives on the committee early in February. Nebraska will be sending 12 people to those meetings.

Water conservation bills, a bottle bill, high transportation costs and wise use of idle acres were other subjects of discussion. The National Farmers' Union Convention will be March 2-6 in Denver. Colo. Tony Dechant, National Farmers' Union President for many years, is retiring and new officers will be elected along with the revising of National Farmers' Union Policy.

The March 17 meeting will include a report and program on the Young Farm Couples Conferences now being held around the state. Lunch servers will be Mrs. Ray Johnson, Mrs. Dennis Kabes and Mrs. Rudolph Kabes. The door prize, a portable five speed Hamilton beach mixer, was won by John Otten of Pilger. Other door prizes from the state auction will be given away at future meetings.

The carry in lunch following the meeting was served by Mrs. Lyle Husmann, Mrs. Reuben Jensen, Sr. and Mrs. Reuben Jensen Jr.

Governor Announces Nebraska Conference On Families in March

Governor Thone has announced plans for the Nebraska White House Conference on Families to be held March 22.

"The family is the most basic human institution. The conference will deal with a broad spectrum of issues which impact Nebraska families," Thone said.

In preparation for the Nebraska Conference, Family Forums will be held throughout the state on Feb. 16. The purpose of the Family Forums is to provide an opportunity for Nebraskans to offer their views on issues that affect families as well as make recommendations for change in public or private policy.

Participants at the forums also will elect one delegate from each of the 49 Nebraska legislative districts to attend the state conference. The Nebraska Advisory Committee on The White House Conference on Families will select an additional 49 delegates to the state conference.

Those interested in becoming delegates can apply by calling 800-742-7707 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. CST or by writing to: Nebraska White House Conference on Families, Box 95026, Lincoln, Neb., 68599. All written applications must be postmarked no later than Feb. 9. Phone applications will be accepted through Feb. 12.

The Nebraska White House Conference on Families will be held in preparation for the National White House Conferences on Families to be held in Baltimore, Minneapolis, and Los Angeles, in June and July. Fifteen delegates will represent Nebraska at the conference in Los Angeles on July 10, 11 and 12. These will include those elected at the state conference, those selected by the Nebraska Advisory Committee on The White House Conference on Families and appointments by Governor Thone.

Income Change Alters Benefits

Increases in average earnings covered by social security the past year have triggered an increase in the retirement test annual exempt amount for people receiving social security benefits. Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk said recently.

The retirement test annual exempt amount is the amount of earnings a person can have and still receive all benefits for the year. For people under 65 the 1980 annual exempt amount is $5,000. The 1979 amount was $4,500.

A person whose 1980 earnings go over the annual exempt amount generally has $1 in benefits withheld for each $2 of earnings above the exempt amount. Another figure increased is the amount of annual earnings required to receive social security credits. A person needs credit for a certain amount of work to be eligible for social security benefits. This credit is measured in quarters of coverage. A person can receive up to four quarters of coverage in a year. In 1980 a person receives credit for one quarter of coverage for each $290 of annual earnings up to a maximum of four if annual earnings are $1,160 or more. The 1979 measure was $260.

More information about social security credits and about the retirement test can be obtained at the Norfolk social security office. Free leaflets are available that give more detail about both of these subjects.

Place in Debate

Wayne State College freshmen debaters Marlene Scheffler, Grafton, and Julie Bulcher, Scottsbluff, won second place honors at the University of Wisconsin debate tournament held in LaCrosse, Wis., Jan. 18-19. The two first year debaters competed in the Open Communication Division of the tournament, defeating two teams from Creighton, two teams from the University of Wisconsin at Oshkosh, and one team from Concordia College of Minnesota in preliminary rounds.

Scheffler and Bulcher's only loss in the preliminary rounds was to a Concordia team. They came back to beat that same Concordia College team in the semifinal round of the hands of one of the Creighton teams they had defeated earlier.

The junior varsity debate team of Jerry Ladd, Wayne, and John Toof, Columbus, had a win-loss record of 3-3 in the preliminary rounds of that tournament and failed to reach the elimination rounds. They lost to teams from North Dakota State University, Concordia College and the University of Minnesota, and defeated teams from Coe College, the University of Wisconsin at Whitewater and Northern Illinois University.

WSC Director of Forensics Jay VerLinden said both teams could be very proud of their performance at the tournament.

"While their record didn't qualify them for the elimination rounds, it is a very good record considering that John and Jerry are both first year debaters who volunteered to debate in the higher division," he added that he was "very happy for Marlene and Julie because the hard work they had been doing all year was finally paying off. We think both teams will do very well between now and the end of the year."

gramming Subcommittee. The plan is to include, but is not limited to, goals and objectives of the NRD as stated in state statutes.

The plan may be reviewed and updated as often as deemed necessary by the district, but in no event will be reviewed less than once every 10 years.

IT INCLUDES background information regarding resources in LENRD, a list of the directors, a map of the sub-districts each director represents, enabling legislation authority of NRD's, goals and objectives of NRD's, bylaws and the administrative

IT ALSO was announced that the draft report on "Water Quality Policy Issues" is ready for public review. The two water policy issues are two of nine to be completed by 1983 as part of the Nebraska Water Policy and Review Process.

Social Services for County Reviewed

A variety of social services is being offered in Wayne County through the Multi-County Service Unit 141.

The unit, comprised of six area counties, is a component of the Nebraska Department of Welfare. The services it provides are available to residents in each of the counties.

Other counties served include Madison, Antelope, Cedar, Pierce and Stanton. Harry Mead, director of the unit, said some of these services include the following:

Child day care (babysitting) — for children of working mothers or fathers. This consists of financial assistance in paying for children to stay in an approved day care home, a licensed day care center or in the children's own home.

Chore service — housekeeping, snow shoveling, lawn-care or minor home repair labor for the aged, disabled or blind persons.

Transportation — transportation for appointments at the doctor's office, to the hospital for outpatient treatment for the aged, disabled or blind persons.

Congregate and home delivered meals — congregated meals are provided to elderly or disabled persons and are served at approved meal sites. Home delivered meals are provided to disabled persons who are unable to go to the congregated meal site. Protective services — are provided to neglected or abused children or adults.

Educational services — consists of providing day care service while a parent attends job training courses or is seeking employment.

Foster care services — includes approving foster homes for children or adults for licensing by the state, the placement and follow-up of children, aged or disabled or blind persons.

Any residents in the county who need further information on the services or who want to apply may contact Cheryl Yoder, social service worker for the Multi-County Unit.

She will be at the Wayne County Welfare Office in the Courthouse each Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon, and from 1 to 4 p.m. She may be reached by calling 375-2715. On Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, she may be reached by calling the unit office in Norfolk at 402-371-7633 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Mead added that anyone wishing to become a provider and be paid for providing any of the above services should contact Yoder.

Americans may find their clothing choices getting smaller, according to the National Cotton Council. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration's rush to regulations — unless halted by the courts — will cost the industry over $2 billion and could well increase consumer prices of fabric and clothing.

Monday Mishap Injures Pair North of Here

Two men were taken to Providence Medical Center with minor injuries after an accident about 7:25 p.m. Monday two miles north and one mile east of Wayne on a county road.

Thomas F. Keim, 27, Wakefield, and Robert F. Penn, 50, Wayne, were taken to PMC by the Wayne County Sheriff's Department. Nebraska Highway Patrol Trooper Kenneth Meier investigated the accident.

Keim suffered a broken collar bone and numerous abrasions, while Penn received cuts and bruises.

According to Meier, Keim was southbound and Penn eastbound when the two cars met at an intersection. Both cars were considered total losses.

County Fair Dates Are Altered

Hot and muggy thoughts on a brisk winter day

The Wayne County Fair will be held in August this year instead of late July as in past years, reports Fair Secretary Marilyn Koch.

Dates for the County Fair will be Thursday, Aug. 7, through Sunday, Aug. 10, he says. By moving the fair ahead about a week, the County Agricultural Society (Fair Board) hopes to help exhibitors in bringing additional produce to the fair.

The program will be similar to last year's, with the mini-rod pull scheduled for Thursday night, the barbecue and stage show Friday night, the tractor pull Saturday afternoon, pickup pull Saturday night and the demolition derby Sunday night.

The other usual fair activities also are scheduled. Additional details will be announced this summer, Koch said.

Work-Study Job Assists Allen Woman

A speech pathology student at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln is learning how small children interact through her work-study job.

Lula Anderson, a freshman from Allen, is working about 10 hours each week at the University Child Care Project, a developmental child care program for children of university students and personnel.

Lula Anderson

Anderson, daughter of the Rev. Bill and Opal Anderson of Allen, is in her second semester as a child care assistant for children six months to three years old. Anderson describes the job as one of babysitting for the children, which includes changing diapers, playing games and supervising their meals.

"Speech pathology is with little kids, too," she said in relating her work to her career goals. "I get to know how kids react with each other in groups."

Anderson plans to get her master's degree in speech pathology after six years of study at UNL, and then work as a speech pathologist in an elementary school.

Valdeen Nelsen, director of the child care project, said the 40-some student workers are the bulk of the staff, which includes six professionals.

Most of the students are human development or elementary education majors and are exposed to monthly in-service training sessions.

The students "serve as child care attendants working with the children, in physical and developmental care," Nelsen said.

The project offers activities for the children for different areas of development and also includes a natural foods nutrition program.

The project's two centers are for infants (six months to three years) and for pre-schoolers (3-5 years).

"Potomac," in the original Indian, means "river of swans."

Allen Pair to Represent School At State Welding Contest

Two Allen High School students will represent their school in the State FFA welding contest at Lincoln during the first week of April.

John Stapleton, a sophomore, and Dave Hansen, a junior, will compete in oxy-acetylene and arc welding respectively.

Stapleton won the first place trophy in the oxy-acetylene division and Hansen placed sixth out of 35 contestants with a blue ribbon in arc welding in district competition at Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk.

The two then teamed up to win the first place trophy in team welding competition, qualifying for state in that division as well. Two other teams from Allen just missed state qualification.

In the soil and water conservation division, the Allen team received a blue ribbon and fourth place in districts. Team members and individual placements include: Doug Koester, 10th overall; Robert Malcom, 11th overall; Duane Stolle, 16th overall; Lee Hansen, 17th overall. A total of 50 students participated in the division.

In the national ag mechanics division, Allen placed sixth and again just missed state qualification. Team members included: Gregg Raff, red ribbon; Mark Kdch, blue ribbon; Steve Stewart.

Two other individuals placed in the welding division. Scott Carr placed sixth in the oxy-acetylene group and Bruce Malcom finished 10th in the arc welding class.

Crop Residues Should Increase

Increased use of crop residues in beef cattle forage systems will increase as the world demand for grain goes up, a professor of animal science with the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources said Jan. 17.

John Ward, who spoke at the Nebraska Forage and Grassland Council winter meeting, said the use of residue of grain production is becoming an important component of beef cattle production systems and will be most useful in maintenance type rations for dry gestating cows. The main crop residues available in Nebraska are from byproducts of corn, wheat and grain sorghum, he said.

"Most of the nearly two million beef cows in Nebraska are spring calving. The nutritive requirements for the spring calving gestating cow are lowest during the fall-winter period when row crop residues are available for grazing," he said, adding that this fits in when grass is low in quantity and quality and when the beef cow has its lowest nutritive requirements.

Deficiencies in protein, phosphorus, vitamin A and energy in crop residues can be made up in part by select grazing of the more nutritious parts of the remaining residue. Ward compared the 18.4 crude protein and 57 percent total digestible nutrients of early bloom alfalfa hay forage to wheat straw forage which has 3.6 protein with only 46 percent total digestible nutrients. Although the fall-winter period is the most economical for utilizing row crop residue, Ward said that weather is the single most important factor to deal with.

Research at the University of Nebraska Field Laboratory near Mead indicates that an average of 88 days of continuous residue grazing can be expected in Nebraska after Nov. 1. Snowfall and accumulation, he said, are the primary factors affecting the length of grazing season and cow performance.

"Nebraska data indicate satisfactory performance of mature cows on either corn or milo residue early in the grazing season without supplementation other than salt, minerals and vitamin A. The feeding of a natural protein supplement tended to improve daily gain by approximately 2 pound or from about 59 to 77 pound daily," Ward said.

However, the use of a nonprotein nitrogen source such as urea increased gains by about 1 pound daily over non-supplemented cows. Ward added that cows gaining 59 pound daily without protein supplementation did not suffer detrimental effects in terms of calf weaning weight or cow reproductive efficiency.

Stacked or baled harvested row crop residues can be used as supplemental winter feed during periods of snow cover or limited grazing, he said.

Wheat straw residue has only limited grazing potential but can produce from 50 to 75 tons per acre in the form of harvested combine fallings or wheat straw baled. Ward said nutrient composition varies with maturity at harvest, variety, location and growing conditions, but the differences are not enough to alter the cow's performance.

Performance of dry gestating beef cows on straw ranges from daily weight loss of about 1 pound on rations with straw as the only roughage to moderate weight gains when one third to one-half of the straw is replaced with grass hay, legume hay or two-thirds wheat straw with gains of 40 pound daily.

ALLEN STUDENTS Dave Hansen (left) and John Stapleton will compete in the State FFA Contest during the first week of April in Lincoln. Hansen will compete in arc welding and Stapleton will compete in acetylene welding.

Large Hog Operations Depress Prices: Center

The Center for Rural Affairs has charged large scale hog operations with depressing hog prices to family farmers by expanding their inventories at a rate 3 1/2 times greater than their smaller counterparts during 1979.

Citing USDA's December Hog numbers report, center spokesman Chuck Hassebrook said the largest 4 percent of the nation's hog producers accounted for more than two thirds of the increase in hog numbers during the past year.

"The majority of the nation's hogs are raised on smaller, family type farms which increased their inventory by less than 6 percent last year," Hassebrook said. "By increasing their inventory by over 20 percent, the larger operations have severely depressed hog prices." Hassebrook predicted the low prices would force many of the nation's smaller operators to stop raising hogs in the future, while large operators will be kept in business by federal tax subsidies.

The dramatic influence these large operations now have on hog numbers and prices will continue to reduce the importance of hog production for young and beginning farmers, who have traditionally capitalized on labor intensive hog production as a means of building equity in their small farming operations, Hassebrook said.

These and other factors influencing the future of hogs on the family farm will be discussed by a panel of farm organization representatives and farm structure experts in a seminar entitled "The Hog, Mortgage Burner or Tax Shelter?"

The seminar will be held at the Pender American Legion Hall at 4 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 16, as part of the Center for Rural Affairs annual meeting activities.

Panel participants will include V. James Rhodes, a nationally recognized agricultural economist from the University of Missouri at Columbia; Ed Trudy, state president of the National Farmers Organization; Neil Oxton, state president of the Nebraska Farmers Union; Everett Holstein of the Nebraska Grange; Dorchester, Nebraska farmer Tony Skutchan, a state director of the Nebraska Pork Producers Association; and Chuck Hassebrook of the Center for Rural Affairs' Small Farm Advocacy Project.

The seminar will follow to others on water policy and farm fuels. For more information contact the Center for Rural Affairs, Box 405, Walthill, Neb. 68067.

Cattle-on-Feed Inventory Is Down

The number of cattle on feed in Nebraska feedlots on Jan. 1 was 1,680,000 head. This inventory was down 7 percent from last year and 1 percent below Jan. 1, 1978.

During the October-December quarter, Nebraska feedlots marketed 865,000 fat cattle, 22 percent below the corresponding period last year. Placements during the quarter totaled 1,210,000, down 10 percent from 1978.

The Jan. 1 weight breakdown showed steers and heifers on feed weighing 900 pounds or more totaled 800,000, down 5 percent from Jan. 1. Those in the 700-899 pound group numbered 564,000, 15 percent below last year. The under 700 pound category totaled 308,000, up 7 percent from a year ago. There were 1,050,000 steers on feed and 622,000 heifers.

Nebraska feedlots intend to market 1,050,000 cattle for slaughter during the January-March quarter. This would be 5 percent below the same quarter in 1979.

Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in 23 states on Jan. 1 totaled 117 million head. This number was down 7 percent from Jan. 1, 1979, and 8 percent below Jan. 1, 1978. Placements during the October-December 1979 quarter were 8.10 million, 7 percent below 1978 and 15 percent lower than the 1977 fourth quarter. Other disappearance of 571 thousand leaves a net placement of 7.53 million. Marketings of fed cattle for slaughter during the October-December 1979 quarter were 5.73 million, 15 percent and 6 percent below 1978 and 1977, respectively.

The Jan. 1 number of cattle on feed included 7.91 million steers and steer calves, 7 percent below Jan. 1, 1979 and 5 percent below Jan. 1, 1978. Steers and steer calves accounted for 67 percent of total cattle on feed. Heifers and heifer calves totaled 3.72 million, 9 percent below 1979 and 16 percent below 1978. Heifers and heifer calves accounted for 32 percent of all cattle on feed.

Cattle feeders intend to market 6.38 million during the January-March quarter of 1980. If this total is realized, the first quarter marketings would be 5 percent below 1979 and 6 percent below the same period of 1978.

New Programs to Offer Advice

Four new programs, which give advice on anything from saving energy, to tennis to becoming a leader, are being offered by Nebraska 4-H Clubs, according to an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources assistant extension director.

Dr. William Caldwell said some of these new programs are special interest projects while some involve the community. The programs are Leadership I and II, Lifetime Sports, Energy and Family Life.

The leadership programs are designed to provide information that helps youth in self-discovery of leadership abilities and in understanding group roles and decision making. According to Caldwell, this isn't a club project, but a personal program for development into leadership qualities.

"The approach for teaching leadership is difficult to handle. We assume everyone is a natural leader, that there's nothing really to teach them how, they just do it," Caldwell said, adding that people don't learn to lead until they have the basic understanding of group and leadership roles.

In Leadership I, training includes identifying personal leadership strengths, becoming an effective communicator, understanding group roles, learning the basic skills involved in decision making and how to be a follower. Leadership II deals with group decision making, communication within groups, leadership styles and group effectiveness.

Attention to energy and the problems the future faces in part of the Big E project for 9 to 11 year olds, Caldwell said. It is an easy to follow project for improving home energy usage. A special television series will be aired next fall on energy in conjunction with the project and additional books are being written for older club members.

Encouraging adults and children to learn a sport together on a noncompetitive basis is the idea behind the Lifetime Sports Program. Caldwell said this includes a leader's guide so parents know what to expect from their child at a certain age both emotionally and physically. Learning pamphlets are available in bowling, tennis, archery and golf, he said, and gives instructions so life skills can be learned individually or with parents.

The other program, Family Life, focuses upon the need for family members to share experiences, Caldwell said. This family-oriented project is to teach parents and their children how to work out differences in a diplomatic way.

A new membership packet is also being sent to Nebraska 4-H Clubs for 9-year-old youths who are interested in joining. Caldwell explained that the packet is designed to get the child immediately involved in the club and includes the 4-H pledge, objectives, and other information.

Farmers Plan More Planting

Nebraska farmers as of Jan. 1 intend to plant more acres of corn, soybeans and sorghum while acreage of sugar beets, oats and barley are expected to be unchanged.

Actual plantings are subject to departures from prospective plantings as farmers evaluate this report and other factors at planting time. The effects of the announced grain embargo to Russia on Jan. 4 are not reflected in these intentions.

Corn producers expect to plant 7.6 million acres to corn in 1980, 3 percent above last year, the largest acreage since 1949.

Sorghum growers plan to plant 2.1 million acres to sorghum, 5 percent more than a year ago.

Soybean plantings, if materialized, would total 1.8 million acres, 10 percent above 1979 and would be a record high.

Sugar beet intentions at 77,000 acres to be planted are unchanged from a year earlier.

Oat planting intentions, at 500,000 acres, and barley intentions, at 30,000 acres, are both unchanged from the preceding year.

Winter wheat seedlings of 3.1 million acres, as estimated in December, were up 3 percent from the previous year.

Beefendum Could Be Answer to Problems

The response of enthusiastic cattlemen statewide at Beefendum informational meetings seems to indicate a confidence that the self-help program is an answer to some of their more pressing problems. Chuck Schroeder, Nebraska Beefendum Committee chairman from Pallasde said last week.

"The commercials and ads that cast 'unfair' doubt on the healthfulness of beef as a food, the sluggishness of beef demand when our fed numbers say beef prices should be good, the preaching of government agencies and so-called consumer groups against red meat and all attempts by groups inside and outside of government to destroy the free market nature of the cattle business — these appear to be the kind of worries that have convinced even some of our most reluctant cattlemen that it is time we do something, and do something big," Schroeder said.

The cattlemen's Beefendum is an industry wide effort to establish a program of nutrition and health research, beef promotion and advertising, foreign market development and economic research and information by cores of cattlemen's organizations nationwide. Major cattlemen's organizations in Nebraska, including the Nebraska Livestock Feeders, Nebraska Stock Growers and Nebraska Farm Bureau, have expressed strong support of the program.

Schroeder said it has been interesting to note that many of the cattlemen attending informational meetings in the past month have been people who didn't come to meetings three years ago, the first time a referendum was tried.

"In the intervening three years, these fellows have watched our growing problems in the beef industry and realized that there is no one to help us but ourselves," he said. "The old saying 'If you want something done right, do it yourself' is coming alive for them."

Many more cattlemen are coming to the meetings with questions on how the beef industry can fight back and tell its side of the story, he said. The members of the Nebraska Beefendum Committee, who speak at the meetings, explain that scientific nutrition and health research, communication with America's consumers through education and advertising, economic and marketing research and direct promotion in retail stores are just some of the ways, Schroeder said.

"There are a lot of positive messages about beef that the public would be interested in knowing," he points out. "For instance, it should come as no surprise that the numbers of heart attacks are greater now than they used to be — our population includes a much higher percentage of older people now."

"When death rates from heart disease and stroke are adjusted for age, it becomes evident that the rates of occurrence of these diseases have been decreasing rather than increasing," Alfred Harper, chairman of the food and nutrition board of the National Academy of Sciences, said recently. "A far stronger case can be made for concluding that the changes in our food supply during this century have been associated with improved rather than deteriorating health."

Schroeder points out that most of the American public are not aware of facts like these because the beef industry hasn't the wherewithal to tell them. He also noted that preliminary research has indicated that the only fatty acid that raises blood cholesterol levels is not even present in beef, but again, funding has been lacking to pursue the research further or inform the public that these possibilities are indicated.

Voting dates for the Beefendum are Feb. 19-22 at local ASCS offices. Cattlemen who have owned cattle in the previous 12 months are eligible voters, but they must register at the ASCS office between Jan. 28 and Feb. 6. Forms for registering or voting absentee or available, but a phone call or written request to the ASCS office is necessary before the forms will be mailed. No forms will be sent out unless requested.

Grain Grading Schools Planned

A series of four grain grading schools, designed for grain and feed firm owners, managers, employees and office workers, will be held in February, according to Duane Foote, secretary of the Nebraska Grain Improvement Association.

Foote said one of the schools is scheduled Feb. 22 at the Villa Inn in Norfolk.

All programs begin at 9 a.m. with registration and conclude at 4 p.m. The agenda at all locations is: "If you want something done storage exams and special grading problems. Instruction in wheat grading will be given at Ogallala, Grand Island and Lincoln; in soybean grading at Lincoln and Norfolk; in sorghum grading at Ogallala, Grand Island and Lincoln; and in corn grading at all four locations.

A registration fee of $8 should be returned to Duane Foote, 344 Keim Hall, East Campus, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, 68583, by Feb. 9. The schools are jointly sponsored by the Nebraska Grain & Feed Dealers Association, Nebraska Grain Improvement Association and Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Cooperative Extension Service.

Swine Nursery Program Set

An informational program on swine nursery facilities and management has been planned for Feb. 11 at the Newcastle Legion Hall, reports Stan Staring, Dixon County Extension agent.

The meeting starts promptly at 10 a.m. and will conclude by 3 p.m. Featured speakers are Mike Brumm, new district swine specialist at the Northeast Station; Dave Shelton, district agricultural engineer; and local veterinarians.

Special emphasis will be placed on flooring materials, health requirements and elevated pig decks. Slides and samples of flooring will be used to illustrate comments and a question and answer session will be included.

This is an excellent opportunity for swine producers to gather ideas and home management skills to survive lower prices by exchanging ideas and visiting with specialists. Lunch will be on your own.

Northeast Pair Honored

Feed Future Less Positive

With the embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union, the outlook for feedgrains in 1980 is less positive than last year.

Dean Linsenmeyer, assistant professor of agricultural economics in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, expects to see depressed feedgrain prices the first quarter of the year, but after March prices should improve.

Coarse grain production in the U.S. increased by 5 percent to a new record level of 229 million metric tons in 1979-80.

Linsenmeyer said because of an 8 percent increase in average yield which offset a 3 percent decrease in harvested acreage. Total domestic use of feedgrains will increase only slightly over last year because fed cattle numbers seem to be down, he said, but consumption by the hog and poultry industries appears to be higher.

Total Harvest Down
Outside the U.S., total harvest of coarse grains was about 5 percent less than a year earlier. And total feedgrain exports from our major foreign competitors appear to be about 9 percent less than in 1978-79, Linsenmeyer noted.

On the demand side, major world importers of feedgrains anticipate a 12 percent increase in their export demand. Livestock production is up about 1 to 3 percent from the previous year.

"As a result, total world coarse grain consumption is projected to increase by 9 million tons in 1979-80 in spite of a 15 million ton decrease in production," he explained.

Linsenmeyer noted that the dampening effect of our closing the door on these export sales may be partially alleviated, depending on the producer's response to increased incentives by the Commodity Credit Corporation and broadened grain reserve program.

Those incentives include increased loan prices (10 cents additional for corn), an increase in the reserve release price (about 5 percent additional for corn), an increase in the reserve release price (up 10 percent for corn), increased storage payments, and waiving of interest costs on the first 512 million bushels going into the reserve. The 512 million bushels is the amount involved in the embargo, he said.

"There's none so blind as they that won't see," Jonathan Swift

Community Improvement Deadline Next Week

Nebraska communities are reminded that entries for the Nebraska Community Improvement Program should be in during the first week of February.

NCIP coordinator Nancy Donovan said 1980 is the 17th year for the nationally recognized program. She explained the program as "a total approach to community development."

"The NCIP's main purpose is to provide an incentive for community wide efforts to identify needs and resources," Donovan said.

The program offers three major areas for community involvement. The community recognition program is open to all communities under 50,000 population. These communities with a population over 50,000 may enter the neighborhood recognition program. Finally, all incorporated municipalities in the states are eligible for the All Nebraska community program, and may enter it alone, or in combination with one of the other two programs.

The program concludes in the fall with a statewide televised banquet honoring communities and neighborhoods which have been judged outstanding in various improvement categories. The NCIP is co-sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Economic Development and the University of Nebraska Lincoln Resource and Research Center.

The 1980 NCIP manual, which explains the program and contains entry forms, has been sent to city clerks and mayors. All local NCIP leaders for communities participating in 1979 have also received the manual. For more information or a copy of the manual, contact the Department of Economic Development, Box 94666, 301 Centennial Mall South, Lincoln, Neb. 68509.

College to Sponsor 'Sound of the 80's': Truly Original Band

The West Coast's "Sound of the 80's" will be introduced to Wayne State College students and area residents when "The Truly Original Band" from Nashville will present a concert/dance Monday, Feb. 4, in the Student Center at WSC.

The Student Senate-sponsored event will be held from 8 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. in the basement of the center. It will have a "Sadie Hawkins" leap year flavor where the gals are the aggressors and the guys are the aggressives.

Dale Irvin, Laurel-Concord High School music instructor, has been invited by the band as a guest artist. He will be featured on trombone solos for long-time favorites such as "Do You Know What It Means to Miss New Orleans," "Georgia" and "Gerwyn's" "Summertime."

The "Original Band" is a group of young professionals who blend big band, swing with jazz, country-western, blue grass, rock and contemporary with a touch of light classical.

A variation of this sound is building in a wave of acclaim on the West Coast a spokesman for the band said. The band recently completed a three-week engagement at the Wagon Wheel in Laurel.

David Truly, business manager and leader of the group, said the Wagon Wheel session was the first opportunity for them to test the band's sound before an audience of critical college students.

Members of the band had extensive, formal training tempered with practical experience. The group is not yet a year old and the average age of the members is 24.

They also have worked Miami-Key West, Fla., resort area. The band plays many of the standards of the 30's and 40's, adding their own interpretation. They also play with basic jazz, blues, country-western and rock, using their own arrangements for string, bass and woodwind instruments.

Truly said the concert/dance will cover a wide spectrum of music. "We hope to provide something to which everyone can relate."

Students will be admitted free to the event. There will be a $2 general admission charge for the public.

The 13th annual Junior Lawmen Program has been scheduled for June 9 to 13, at the Nebraska State Patrol Training Center at Lincoln Air Park, according to Commander Don J. Coslor of The American Legion, Department of Nebraska.

Participation in the one-week program is open to boys completing the 11th grade. Two students will be endorsed from each of the 15 districts of the Department of Nebraska. Application forms are available from the American Legion Post Commanders or the local high school superintendents.

The scheduled activities include classroom studies in such subjects as motor vehicle laws, court procedure, human relations, safety education and first aid; tours of city, county and state law enforcement offices, and are highlighted by field activities that include marksmanship, VASCAR and radar operation and maximum performance driving.

Evening classes will be devoted to the defensive driving course developed by the National Safety Council. Each day will begin with before-breakfast calisthenics. The participants will remain "in residence" during the period and will be awarded Certificates of Achievement at concluding ceremonies at 2 p.m. on June 13.

Commander Coslor said, "This program was developed by the Law and Order Committee and is offered in cooperation with the Nebraska State Patrol. Other states are now following Nebraska's leadership in developing similar programs which help youthful participants better understand the true "role" of today's professional police officer."

The American Legion and State Patrol also announced that an identical program will be offered to girls beginning in 1981.

The members of the Law and Order Committee are Sheriff Lloyd Pontine of Clay Center; Virgil Ferguson of Barneston; Arnold Kuhn of Hemmingford; Eimer Schroeder of Lincoln; Jim Weber of Bellevue; and the chairman is Col. E.J. Kohmetscher of the Nebraska State Patrol.

The choir, which has received critical acclaim in both America and Europe, will perform more than 30 such concerts this year. The Wayne performance, sponsored by the Wayne State College Special Programs Committee, was scheduled at the high school because of a scheduling conflict at WSC.

Paul Christiansen, the group's director, is the son of F. Mellus Christiansen, composer and conductor at St. Olaf College, who pioneered the art of a cappella singing in the Midwest that was to become world famous.

Tickets for the event are $2 adults and $1 children and are available at the door or through the WSC Fine Arts Division.

The scheduled activities include classroom studies in such subjects as motor vehicle laws, court procedure, human relations, safety education and first aid; tours of city, county and state law enforcement offices, and are highlighted by field activities that include marksmanship, VASCAR and radar operation and maximum performance driving.

Evening classes will be devoted to the defensive driving course developed by the National Safety Council. Each day will begin with before-breakfast calisthenics.

The participants will remain "in residence" during the period and will be awarded Certificates of Achievement at concluding ceremonies at 2 p.m. on June 13.

Commander Coslor said, "This program was developed by the Law and Order Committee and is offered in cooperation with the Nebraska State Patrol. Other states are now following Nebraska's leadership in developing similar programs which help youthful participants better understand the true "role" of today's professional police officer."

The members of the Law and Order Committee are Sheriff Lloyd Pontine of Clay Center; Virgil Ferguson of Barneston; Arnold Kuhn of Hemmingford; Eimer Schroeder of Lincoln; Jim Weber of Bellevue; and the chairman is Col. E.J. Kohmetscher of the Nebraska State Patrol.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM Proposed Flood Elevation Determinations

AGENCY: Federal Insurance Administration, FEMA
ACTION: Proposed rule
SUMMARY:

Technical information or comments are solicited on the proposed base (100 year) flood elevations listed below for selected locations in the nation. These base (100 year) flood elevations are the basis for the flood plain management measures that the community is required to either adopt or show evidence of being already in effect in order to qualify or remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP).
DATES:
The period for comment will be ninety (90) days following the second publication of this proposed rule in a newspaper of local circulation in each community.
ADDRESSES:

Washington, D.C. 20410

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:
The Federal Insurance Administrator gives notice of the proposed determinations of base (100 year) flood elevations for selected locations in the nation, in accordance with section 110 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (Pub. L. 93-234) 87 Stat. 1980, which added section 1302 to the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Pub. L. 90-448), 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 44 C.F.R. Part 67.4 (a).
These elevations, together with the flood plain management measures required by section 603 of the program regulations, are the minimum that are required. They should not be construed to mean the community must change any existing ordinances that are more stringent in their flood plain management requirements. The community may at any time enact stricter requirements on its own, or pursuant to policies established by other Federal, State or Regional entities. These proposed elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents and for the second layer of insurance on existing buildings and their contents.

Aerospace Teams With Most Classroom Topics

Many teachers in Northeast Nebraska have been adding something new to their regular classroom teachings in recent years, thanks to an Aerospace workshop that has been presented during the past few years at Wayne State College.

The workshop, offered during June and July annually, helps instruct high school and elementary education teachers on how to combine aerospace topics with their regular classroom curriculum. Though the program is open to all interested, the instruction is designed particularly for teachers.

"There are a wide number of classes that aerospace topics fit in with," says Dean Metz, WSC physics instructor and a coordinator of the program. "The history of air flight and technology could fit into a regular history course - analyzing air photos in one of these workshops could help a teacher in teaching geography. For two years we have presented a NASA program that helped participating teachers order moon rocks to study in their classrooms."

"(Aerospace study) is a relatively new field that has only recently been combined with high school and elementary classroom study," he added, "but I'm sure that area teachers are finding the program valuable."

About 250 teachers have participated in the WSC program since its inception in 1965. Participants in the WSC program earn college credit for their workshop study and classes have studied a variety of topics ranging from aircraft construction theory and rocket launching to air photo interpretation and global weather.

Most participants also are given several hours of flight instruction and flight time through the program. Instructors for the workshop, in addition to regular WSC faculty, have included representatives from NASA, the Civil Air Patrol, the Nebraska Department of Aeronautics and Federal Aviation Administration. Air Force representatives are also on hand to provide instruction.

The 1979 class was flown free of charge by the Air Force on a transport plane to the NASA Museum in Huntsville, Ala.

"That is always a fun part of the program," Metz said. "We schedule that every year, but we do not always get a flight

It usually depends on whether or not they are available through the Air Force."

Metz added that the summer 1980 program will include a trip to the Earth Resource Observation System's (EROS) Data Center at Sioux Falls. While there the class will examine the facilities used to gather satellite photographs of the earth. EROS personnel will also come to Wayne State to provide a segment of instructions for the workshop.

"We are lucky to have this in the program for next summer," Metz said. "Government employees are usually the only people invited to study this."

"The people at EROS can get a good idea from satellite photographs about the amount of crops in Nebraska or even a particular county," he added. "They can even determine the stage of development, the amount and type of insect infestation long before such things are visible on sight inspections. This is definitely something that teachers can use when they return to their classrooms."
