Council Tackles Conflict Policy

A proposed policy designed to prevent future instances of conflict of interest between the city of Wayne and contractors occupied about 30 minutes of a regular City Council meeting Tuesday night.

ACCORDING TO a Council member, and later confirmed by a member of the engineering firm Bruce Gilmore & Associates, the following is a summary of actions leading to the proposal:

A local developer requested the engineering firm to be its engineer for development of a subdivision. The engineer also was the agent for the city of Wayne and the problem of conflict thus arose since the firm would be designing the subdivision and inspecting its own work on behalf of the city.

IT WAS suggested the firm contact City Administrator Darrell Brewington as to the city's policy on the situation before any contracts were signed. The administrator explained there was no policy, but said he also felt the situation was a potential conflict of interest.

However, when asked to provide the firm with his opinion in writing, the administrator declined, saying any written statement was not needed. It was a few days later that the proposed policy surfaced to Council consideration.

DENNIS Hirschbruner of Gilmore & Associates said the firm was "somewhat bothered" by Brewington's decision not to provide a statement in writing and then his subsequent policy proposal.

One Council member agreed, saying "I'm concerned with the city's failure to provide written word on the policy. It's the ethics of the matter that bothers me."

THE PROBLEM involving the contractor, the city and the developer was new information to at least two members of the Council. This, coupled with the city attorney's concern about language in the policy, resulted in action on the proposal being postponed.

The Memorandum and Proposal

In a memorandum from City Administrator Darrell Brewington to the Council concerning potential conflict of interest, the following was discussed:

"TO AVOID any possibility of conflict of interest, the city has recently adopted a policy whereby the engineer representing a subdivider or builder would not at the same time be retained as the city engineer.

"In those construction instances where the builder or subdivider elects to personally pay for the required public improvements (as opposed to the city creating improvement districts), the policy has proven to be a wise one.

Those speaking on the policy said they were in basic agreement with it, but that timing of its introduction to the Council seemed to be poor.

IN OTHER action, the Council:
*Approved an ordinance annexing between three and four acres of property owned by Tom McCright. The land is located south of U.S. 35 approximately across from The Amber Inn.
*Approved the recommendation of Mayor Wayne Marsh to appoint Glen Ellingson to the Planning Commission. He would fill the unexpired term of Wall Moeller who resigned recently.

*Approved the application of Randy Davie, Wayne, to the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department.

*Approved application for a liquor license and new manager at The Pizza Hut. This is a formality required by state statute.

*Decided to place on the next meeting agenda a burning request by James Coan of Coan Construction Co. He wants to burn a pile of lumber on W. Third St.

"HOWEVER, in the case of builders or subdividers electing to petition the city for improvement districts, we believe the policy should not apply.

"Our reasoning is that in the first instance the subdivider's engineer is subject to the subdivider's direction and control in preparing plans and specifications. The builder or subdivider then presents his plans and specifications to the City Council for approval.

"A CONFLICT would exist if the city engineer were also the subdivider's engineer and subsequently would be recommending approval of specifications prepared by himself while in the employ of the builder or subdivider. The same conflict would exist in inspection required for assurance of construction in accordance with the plans and specification. It is difficult to serve two masters.

"In the instance of builders or subdividers electing to use the improvement district approach, upon council approval of the district, the city assumes full control and responsibility for preparation of plans and specifications, bid letting, construction and project inspection. This then eliminates any possible conflict of interest.

"WITH THE adoption of city standards CONFLICT POLICY See Page 12

Jean Hornbeck Wins State Essay Contest

Jean Hornbeck, 23-year old secretary for Northeast Nebraska Family Health Services here, has been named state winner in the First Amendment Essay Contest.

READERS WILL recall that Mrs. Hornbeck was The Wayne Herald's first-place winner and that she received $100 for her local accomplishment. The essay contest was sponsored by Nebraska newspapers through the Nebraska Press Association as a highlight of the recent observance of National Newspaper Week.

MRS. HORNBECK said she was motivated to write the essay out of a feeling of deep concern over today's world problems, particularly the crisis in Iran where 50 American diplomatic personnel have been held as hostages for more than three months.

She and her husband, Bill, are relative newcomers to Wayne, having moved here from their hometown of Logan, Iowa, so he could attend Wayne State College. He is a history major with a minor in physical education.

SECOND PLACE honors went to Mrs. Clarice Orr of Lincoln, who is a secretary in the College of Engineering at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln. Christi Little, a 17-year old senior at Pierce High School, won third place. The three finalists were among 14 winners statewide who submitted essays on the subject, "What the First Amendment Means to Me." Prizes of $100 for first, $50 for second and $25 for third were awarded the winners.

MRS. HORNBECK'S winning entry will compete in the national contest where prizes are $1,000 for first, $300 for second and $200 for third. Mrs. Orr's second place essay was selected as the best of more than 100 submitted in the contest sponsored by The Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star. Other entries received by The Journal-Star came from numerous towns throughout the state and were entered by persons of many different ages.

CLARICE ORR and her husband John have kept a guest book in their home for the last 23 years and have gathered the names of more than 250 foreign visitors. Through this, they feel they have gained a wealth of understanding.

Christi Little, the high school senior, was selected for first place among the entries received in the contest sponsored by The Norfolk Daily News. She wrote the essay at the suggestion of her teacher in a college-prep English class. Although she is 17, she chose to write her essay through the thoughts of a 9-year-old fourth grade girl.

Other participating newspapers submitting entries of their winners were The Beatrice Daily Sun, David City Banner-Press, Hastings Daily Tribune, Imperial Republican, Kimball Western Nebraska Observer, Loup City Sherman County Times, North Bend Eagle, North Platte Telegraph, Ord Quiz, Sidney Telegraph and Wisner News-Chronicle/Pilger Herald.

Mrs. Hornbeck will be invited to read her essay before a session of the annual NPA Convention in Omaha April 18-19.

School Board Compromises on LD

Proponents of a learning disabilities policy for grades K-12 in the Wayne-Carroll School District made some headway Monday night when a policy for grades K-8 was adopted by the board of education.

HOWEVER, a motion to pay tuition of teachers who want to take additional LD classes was defeated by a vote of 4-1. Voting in favor of paying tuition was board member Dorothy Ley, author of the LD policy.

Money for the tuition would have come from a surplus remaining after a Title I teacher was not hired this year. The special offer would have been a one-time-only shot.

THE POLICY as approved establishes a written guideline for learning disabilities within the school system up through the eighth grade. A complete text of the policy can be found elsewhere on this page.

Four persons were present to urge the board to extend the policy through all 12 grades in the system.

"We feel this is a superior school system," Mrs. Dick-Kiedel told the board. "I don't think this school district should take a back seat now after leading the state in implementing LD instruction."

SHE SAID SHE had discussed with Wayne State College personnel the problem of colleges not offering LD courses on the secondary level. She was assured, she explained, that WSC is ready to implement that type of courses.

"Once the need was there, once the school system said we want our teachers to have this, then the courses were there," she noted in reference to LD courses on the primary level.

REGARDING A somewhat negative reaction among teachers about taking additional courses, Mrs. Kiedel said "our concern is that you think of what the kids need, not what the teachers want."

Supr. Francis Haun provided a brief report on a survey of school district teachers he made recently. The survey asked if teachers would be willing to take additional LD courses if the district paid tuition.

Of an estimated 61 teachers, only 12 indicated they would be willing to take more courses. The majority was not in favor while others were undecided.

THE SUPERINTENDENT said he felt more could be accomplished through periodic teacher workshops rather than by taking college credit. College courses, he said, are geared toward graduation requirements rather than to fill the needs of an innovative program.

"Kids coming out of the seventh and eighth grades have the tools to handle problems that arise in high school," he told the board.

BATTLE LINES were drawn for negotiations between the Wayne Education Association and the school district.

The board accepted a request by the WEA to begin negotiations for the coming school contract year. In doing so, the board rejected one paragraph of the request and four employment matters.

THE ITEMS offered for negotiation by the WEA included salary schedule, insurance, career increments, extra duty schedule, leave policies, RIF policy, grievance procedure, vacancy preference and transfer policy and agreement of conditions affecting placement and salary.

The board rejected the final four items, and a paragraph that read as follows:

In all other respects, the terms and conditions of employment are acceptable to the association and shall continue unchanged.

THE WEA NOW has some 30 days to reply to the board's action.

An energy audit report from the Nebraska Energy Office on the West Elementary School was reviewed, with no action needed or taken. Some of the recommendations were as follows:

A variety of standard weatherization techniques which board members felt would apply to any building or structure.

CONSIDERATION should be given to increasing the amount of insulation in the roof-ceiling areas. Throughout the facility, the roof area is a considerable source of heat loss as well as a tremendous source of heat gain during warmer months.

The use of shades and curtains should be understood and reinforced. Not only will shades reduce thermal gain during warmer weather, but properly fitting units also can reduce thermal loss during the heating season.

THE USE OF incandescent lamps should be restricted as much as possible, and phased out when appropriate. Lamps should be turned off in areas not in use.

Advanced courses An advanced driver's education course devised by The Nebraska Safety Center, Kearney State College and the state Department of Education was taught to 11 students in the Wayne-Carroll system last semester. Ron Carnes, driver education instructor, said pretest and post-test results show that all students benefited from the course. The course consisted of both classroom and in-car learning, he explained in the report.

CLASSROOM topics included car maintenance and energy, alcohol and its relationship to the driver, personality factors relating to the driver, legal responsibility and perception training.

Driving experiences covered off-road recovery, evasive actions, braking and brake failures, manual clutch driving with a pickup and parking of all kinds.

IN OTHER action, the board decided to apply for a mini grant not to exceed $5,000 for career education courses in grades K-12.

There would be no cost to the district and another school would get the grant if Wayne-Carroll declined. None of the money would be used for salaries except clerical.

Voting against the grant was board member Wilbur Giese.

THE BOARD viewed samples of proposed band uniforms, but made no decision.

IT also heard reports from elementary principal Dave Luft involving nutrition curriculum and elementary science curriculum.

The constitution for the Wayne schools in the area of vocational education advisory council was reviewed. The revised edition was approved.

All board members were present except Dale Stoltenberg and all actions were unanimous unless noted otherwise.

Learning Disabilities Policy Is Approved

In order that every student may be better served in reaching his potential, all new teaching staff on the elementary and lower middle school level (K-6) will fulfill one of the following options:

(1) Before being employed, staff members will have taken eight hours or more of SLD training focused upon teaching techniques proved effective with youngsters who have specific learning disabilities; or

(2) In the SLD area, new staff members will accumulate four or more hours their first year in the Wayne system and a total of eight or more by the end of their second year.

They will confer with the director of special education and their respective principals to work out a program which will be of most benefit to students who have differing learning styles and thereby need alternative teaching techniques;

or

(3) They will participate in a year of classroom training in which the SLD resource teacher will first demonstrate effective SLD teaching in the new staff member's classroom, then team teach with the new teacher, and finally act as a consultant to the new staff member.

(4) If there are extenuating circumstances, the superintendent may at his/her discretion extend the time limit for completion of the policy option.

On the upper middle school level (grades 7-8) for those who have an elementary endorsement the first two options apply except in the English area, where all three apply. The requirement is reduced to four hours for all but English teachers. English teachers whatever their endorsement are also required to complete the summer practicum in SLD unless they have elected option three.

Homebound Now Have Health Services

Homebound persons needing special medical care now have available to them a variety of home health services through Providence Medical Center.

ANN WITKOWSKI, Wayne, will head the program which is available to persons in a 25-mile radius. The program initially will include skilled nursing services, physical therapy and speech therapy. The nursing services include changing dressings, injections, teaching and evaluations.

Home health services are intended for patients who are homebound and who require services of a registered nurse but do not need to be in a hospital or nursing home.

Mrs. Witkowski added that the patients must live within the 25-mile radius but can be referred from anywhere. The patient must be under a physician's care or authorization—or the services must be ordered by a physician, she explained.

"WE'RE TRYING to provide continuity of care," the Catholic University of America graduate said. "We want to help bridge the gap between the hospital and the home by continuing proper health care."

The federally funded program is not a Medicare program, she explained, but rather is approved by Medicare. Persons qualifying for Medicare will have from 80 to 100 percent of their costs paid, Mrs. Witkowski said.

"THE MAJORITY of patient costs will be taken care of by Medicare," she explained, "or by individual insurance companies. There also is a set fee for those who use the services and pay privately."

Mrs. Witkowski is salaried through Lutheran Community Hospital in Norfolk like any nurse would be. Supplies she uses for her patients are provided by the Norfolk hospital, and Providence Medical Center provides the office space for her.

PMC AND THE Home Health Care Agency of the Norfolk hospital are sponsors of the program, with Lutheran Community Hospital acting as the primary agent. Mrs. Witkowski said PMC is to be credited for offering the opportunity for a satellite office to be located here. In addition, Providence Medical Center provides considerable support for her also.

"The program gives a patient a choice to stay at home. It provides him or her with more independence in health care. That type of program is quite important to a community, she said.

The services will be provided roughly from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday by calling Mrs. Witkowski at 375-3800, or by having the patient's physician contact her.

ANY BILLING for services to be paid by a patient will come from Lutheran Community Hospital since administration of the program and financial records will continue to be handled from there.

Mrs. Witkowski received a bachelor's degree from Mt. Marty College in Yankton, S.D., and a master's degree in public health from the Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

She also has had experience as a public health nurse in Des Moines.

HER HUSBAND, John, is an entomologist with the Northeast Nebraska Experimental Station near Concord. They have three children.

Mrs. Witkowski noted that Thurston, Cedar and Dakota counties have had similar programs for some time.

Medicare, Insurance Pays

In a story relating to home health services now available to Wayne area residents, which appeared in the Feb. 11 Wayne Herald, Marci Thomas, administrator at Providence Medical Center in Wayne, wishes to re-emphasize that Medicare and most insurance companies will pay for the service if patients meet the qualifications.

Mrs. Thomas said the home health service is available through the Lutheran Community Hospital in Norfolk, an approved agency for Medicare and health insurance benefits.

The administrator said persons who do not have private insurance or Medicare also may receive the service, with each patient paying for his or her services.

Home health services are intended for patients who are homebound and who require services of a registered nurse but do not need to be in a hospital or nursing home. The services must be ordered by a physician.

Business Notes

George Phelps, CPF, Wayne, local representative for Investors Diversified Services (IDS), the nationwide financial services firm, announced that the company's 1979 sales of $2.067 billion in weighted production were highest in the history of the company.

The $2 billion figure surpasses by $41 million the previous record set in 1969.

According to Phelps, one factor contributing to the record year was increasing awareness about the need for personal financial planning. Also, new IDS products, like tax-exempt income funds, have gained popularity, and an investment certificate designed for retirement plans has received an enthusiastic response. Significant changes have increased sales of single premium annuities and various life insurance products, as well.

Phelps works out of IDS' Sioux City division, one of 159 divisional offices throughout the United States.

Officials Seek Tax Levy Extension

Capitol News
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Officials of Nebraska's technical community colleges are asking for an extension of their authority to levy taxes for capital construction projects.

Under current law, that authority will expire on June 30, but a bill sponsored by the Legislature's Education Committee would extend it for another eight years.

The technical community colleges are empowered to levy a tax of 2 mills for operational expenses and 1 mill for capital construction, but the combined levy may not exceed 2.5 mills.

The bill the Education Committee introduced provides for cutting to half a mill the capital construction levy and for that authority to expire on June 30, 1988.

During an interim committee study last fall, it was found that at least two areas, Central and Western, will have general obligation bonds for building projects still outstanding after next June 30.

In addition, many spokesmen for the tech schools without bonded indebtedness said a need for capital construction money will remain after their authority to impose the mill levy expires.

Mentioned as projects that would require capital construction funds were energy conservation, improvement of building access for the handicapped, the deferred maintenance and safety improvements.

Bill Hart, who is a member of Metropolitan Technical Community College's governing board, said the school will need the authority to finance new construction at its Fort Omaha site. The Metro area has several projects for which new construction funding will be needed, he said.

The Education Committee also took testimony recently on another bill that proposes to phase out the technical community colleges' authority to levy any property taxes by June 30, 1988. Similar bills have been introduced annually since 1975 and all have been unsuccessful.

Higher pay requested

There is no way of knowing how much of a salary increase state employees will receive starting July 1, but about 200 such employees jammed into a legislative hearing room one night recently to urge the Appropriations Committee to reject Gov. Charles Thone's suggested 7 percent hike for them.

Many of the employees are members of the Nebraska Association of County Employees. They described Thone's proposal as "totally inadequate" because of inflation and the size of raises they received last year and during the administration of former Gov. J. James Exon.

The committee was told it would take a 15 percent salary increase to get state workers closer to equity with their counterparts in the private sector.

An employee of the state Roads Department, Shirley Daugherty, noted a survey last summer by the state Personnel Department showed state employees' pay 5.5 percent lower than paid by private industry and business.

Some legislators, including several members of the Appropriations Committee, have indicated they believe Thone's 7 percent hike that went into effect last July 1 was too low.

But one member of the committee said state workers may be better off than those in the private sector who are subject to layoffs when a downturn in the economy occurs. Sen. Don Dworak of Columbus said there have never been "massive layoffs" of state employees for any reason.

Referee system debated

The Legislature has given first round approval to a bill that would authorize county boards to hire referees to deal with property tax protests.

The measure was introduced to help out Lancaster County's Board, which during an earlier Revenue Committee hearing said it has only a short period of time to process the numerous protests it receives.

Douglas County officials have said the referee system works well for them.

The bill was amended, at the suggestion of Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh, so its provisions would apply to all counties.

Several opponents argued the referee system would insulate county boards and might have the result of making local government less responsive to taxpayers.

According to DeCamp, opponents were fearful a county would appoint a referee who would use actual values and report the rate at which land should be taxed.

Sen. Howard Lamb of Anselmo characterized DeCamp's argument as a "red herring," and Sen. William Nichol said county boards already are authorized to spend whatever they need in order to get necessary assessment and valuation information.

Excise gas tax proposed

Highway interests are for and petroleum interests are against legislation that proposes an excise tax starting at 2 percent on the wholesale price of gasoline.

The proposal, sponsored by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, was described by former Gov. Robert Crosby as an excellent one because it would generate state funds for road projects that would match appropriations.

But Vince Brown, lobbyist for the Nebraska Petroleum Council, wasn't at all enthusiastic, labeling the measure as a "PITS" bill. PITS, Brown added, stands for "perpetual increasing taxing scheme."

The legislation calls for levying the excise tax on the average wholesale price of gasoline. The state Board of Equalization would insure that the revenue matched that appropriated for road projects.

Warner said his bill was prompted by the "PITS" — perpetual increasing profit scheme of the Petroleum industry.

The Waverly lawmaker said, "It is incredible that the representative of an industry which measures its annual profits in double or triple digits has the audacity to make such a charge against a bill which literally has been mandated because of the inflation caused by skyrocketing oil prices."

Veterans bill moves ahead

The Legislature has voted 35-2 second round approval of a bill that would convert the Douglas County Annex in West Omaha into a state veterans home.

The bill has been fought without success by Lincoln Sen. Don Wesley who said the annex is a "white elephant" that will prove costly to the state in the long run.

The measure provides the annex, which has an estimated value of $14 million, would be leased to the state for $1 a year.

Sen. Bernice Labez of Omaha, one of the sponsors, said it is currently estimated 80 veterans would be moved into the facility this year and that it might house as many as 300 in 1982-83.

During earlier debate of the legislation, it was noted that a majority of Nebraska veterans live within a 50- to 60-mile radius of Omaha. Many of those veterans are too far separated from family and friends if they go into the nearest state veterans home at Grand Island. The Legislature was told. In addition, there is a long waiting list for those who would go to Grand Island. Mrs. Labez said.

February 11, 1980

Dear Editor:

I feel I need to speak out against the drafting of young girls. For older women to be in military service is reasonable, but how can anyone say it would be right to force 18 year old girls into such a hard life. It's bad enough for 18 year old boys to go into such completely different life from what they are used to but let's face it - God did create us a little differently - no matter what the "libers" say - we are the weaker sex. Besides, the "big mouths" who preach women's lib so arrogantly would not be the ones to go into service. It would be our young, inexperienced girls who would be forced into a life they would be totally unprepared for.

And as for women not wanting to help in the defense of their country - I feel most of us did a great deal in the second World War. I'm sure women did in the first one too by working in airplane factories and other war related factories and by volunteer work in the Red Cross, canteens, etc. By the way, staying at home working and waiting isn't so darned easy either.

It would be absolutely inexcusable to draft young girls. Those that want to help in that way can volunteer. No Mr. Pied Tyler, you needn't worry about us "fairer sex" doing our equal share at the time comes for it. I don't think we have let you down in that department before.

OUT OF OLD NEBRASKA

The "Nebraska Patron" Grange Newspaper

The Patrons of Husbandry, or the Grange as it is popularly known, was founded by Oliver Hudson Kelly in Washington, DC, in 1867. The organization was intended to band farmers together nationwide and provide them with business, educational, and social advantages.

On January 1, 1872, Harlan County Grange Number 1 became the first Nebraska Grange to apply for membership in the national organization. Instrumental in its organization was Joseph A. Painter, who several years later helped edit the "Nebraska Patron," a semi-monthly Grange journal published in Lincoln. The first issue (on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society) appeared on July 1, 1874. Painter's staff on the "Patron" included A.K. White, a farmer; J.W. Pearman; Professors Samuel Aughey and S.R. Thompson of the University of Nebraska; and Mrs. Lizzie C. Aughey, who wrote a column for women readers — one of the first such columns published in any Nebraska newspaper. (Painter was the husband of Dr. Hettie Painter, Civil War physician, who practiced in Lincoln and operated the Lincoln Sanitarium.)

The July 1 issue stated the paper's purpose: "It is our intention to establish a paper that will meet the wants of the people and more especially the order of the Patrons of Husbandry. Agriculture will be a leading feature, as it is the most important subject to society. The prosperity of all interests rests upon it — the more successful and prosperous it becomes the more prosperous and happy are all other interests."

Painter stressed his determination that the paper remained politically independent and promised a "straight-forward course, turning neither to the right nor to the left. We shall not advocate or encourage the claims of any party, persons or cliques of office or position." Thompson, "Patron" columnist, was more blunt: "We have a better opinion of the intelligence of the readers of this paper than to suppose that we could tie them to anybody's political chariot."

In its efforts to "promote the interests of our people and our order, and to elevate the standing of the farmer and laboring man," the "Patron" promoted cooperative purchasing: "The state (Grange) agent has made arrangements to supply patrons with coal direct from the mines, by the car load, at reduced rates. Parties south of Plattie will receive Iowa coal via Omaha. Wm. McCaig, state agent."

However, the Patron noted that Grange cooperative buying ventures could not be expected to supply all needs quickly. "It appears that an impression exists amongst our members, that the (state Grange) agent is abundantly supplied with all the machinery needed on a farm. That he can at any moment fill an order, and wait for the wherewithal to suit the convenience of the person ordering. Others imagine that he is a dealer in all kinds of articles, and that as a matter of course he is anxious to effect a sale. This class often write him to know if he cannot throw in a cradle with a harvester if they buy of him; or, if a wagon, if he cannot put in an extra seat; or, if a riding cultivator, if he cannot put in an extra shovel, so they can cultivate their grain in. This is of so frequent an occurrence as to lead us to believe that the next order for a corn planter will be accompanied with the request to throw in a boy to work the dropper."

The benefits of the Grange were many: savings in buying and selling, establishment of libraries, formation of social communities, and an increase in neighborliness. The "Patron" noted that Antelope Grange, Lancaster County, "has voted to expand all its surplus funds in purchasing agricultural books to form the nucleus of a farmers' library. This is a good idea and might be imitated with profit. A good collection of books on farming, thus made accessible to a neighborhood, cannot fail to be highly useful." The paper also noted upcoming July 4 celebrations by various Granges: "The most extensive preparations seem to be making at Syracuse, Otse County. Jefferson County anticipates an immense gathering at Fairbury. Several Granges of Lancaster County will celebrate the day. Hamilton County has made arrangements for a county celebration, and many others throughout the state of which we are not advised."

The Nebraska Grange after 1877 almost ceased to exist on the state and local levels. The failure of several manufacturing enterprises, the 1874 grasshopper plague, and an inadequate money supply that prevented grangers from patronizing their own stores all contributed to its dissolution. On March 1887, the Nebraska Grange was reorganized but with fewer subordinate Granges than at the order's zenith in the 1870s. However, drought in the 1880's-1890s drove farmers from the conservative Grange into the more radical Farmers Alliance.

Not until 1911 did the Nebraska Grange reorganize for the third time. Care was taken to create subordinate Granges close enough to each other to offer mutual support and encouragement, and they were established only where conditions promised success. Members began cooperative buying of apples, fence posts, salt, and coal in carload lots and even formed a mutual insurance company. Local Granges have again spread over the state and are noted for their contributions to community life and farm policy. Pat Gaster, Editorial Assistant Nebraska State Historical Society.

Embargo Hinders Russia But Harms U.S.: Thone

"The grain embargo may possibly hinder the Soviet Union, but it will most certainly seriously harm the United States. History has treated all embargoes badly!

"America's present tactics against Russia remind me of the plight of an unskilled boxer. After the first round, the fighter's cheek was bleeding, his eyes were swollen and his lips were cut. As he returned to his corner, he was encouraged by his manager, 'Keep up the good work. I think you may break your opponent's hand.'

"America's most serious international economic problem is its terribly unfavorable balance of trade. This would be much, much worse than it has been if it were not for the sale of American agricultural products abroad. Farm products — principally grain — are the only element of trade that is keeping other nations of the world from losing the last shred of confidence in America as a trading partner. It was disastrous economically to the entire nation to cut off the Soviet Union, a cash customer for U.S. grain.

"Just how much of a blow was it to the U.S. economy when President Carter cut off the sale of 17 million metric tons of grain to Russia? That tonnage is equal to 29 percent of the wheat produced in America in 1979, or more than seven times as much wheat as was harvested in Nebraska last year.

"The 17 million metric tons of American grain that would have been sold would fill 223,000 railroad hopper cars — stretching from Omaha to Portland, Oregon.

"The cutoff comes at a time when U.S. stocks of corn, other feedgrains and soybeans are at all time record peaks. The disastrous effect that the cutoff had on grain prices will not be just temporary. It will be years before the U.S. farmer recovers from this blow.

"Evidently, the federal government intends to compound the surplus of grain that it has created in recent years, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has had a set-aside program, giving farmers incentives not to plant some acres. As of this writing, there is no such program for 1980. The lack of it, combined with the stoppage of flow of products abroad, could well have a near ruinous effect on U.S. farmers.

"The steps that the federal government has taken since announcing the embargo have seemed designed more to help the major U.S. grain companies than to rescue the farmer who has had his livelihood endangered. Our State Department of Agriculture has estimated that the cost to Nebraska farmers will be between $150 and $175 million. Any farmer can figure his own cost by multiplying his 1979 corn, wheat and grain sorghum production bushels by 15 cents. This is a minimum figure.

"The only real victims of the embargo will be American farmers. It's a bitter, bitter blow to take when a step intended to harm our adversary hardly inconveniences that nation but has devastating consequences upon several million of our own citizens."

Washburn University used a strong second half performance to down Wayne State 73-59 in CSIC action Saturday night.

The Ichabods used a string of six straight unanswered points early in the second half to open a 40-33 lead. Wayne State closed the gap to five on five separate occasions after that but could get no closer. The win improved Washburn's record to 15-4, 6-2 in the CSIC.

The Cats will travel to Missouri Southern Friday and Pittsburg Saturday for two more conference games.

Balanced Scoring for Cats

Four players scored in double figures as the Wildcats defeated Emporia. Leon McRae led the way with 20 points followed by Willie Summers with 16, Wattle Rhoda with 14 and Jay Bellar with 10.

The Wildcats shot 58 percent from the floor while improving their overall record to 6-13 and their Central States-Intercollegiate Conference record to 3-7. Emporia dropped to 3-6 in the conference.

Wayne State led 36-31 at the half and led by no more than six points at any time in the second half. Emporia's Paul Sanger hit a short jumper in the lane with 2:41 remaining in the game to knot the score at 67-67.

Grady Hansen scored a lay up and converted the front half of a one-and-one with 2:03 left to put the Cats ahead to stay. McRae scored four more points and Summers and Joe Lindsey added late free throws for the win. George Jerman kept the Hornets close with a brilliant 34 point performance, canning 16 of 32 field goals.

Ladies Upset Hornets To Complete a Sweep

Baskets by Lisa Draper and Lynn Brandt put Wayne State's Lady Wildcats ahead by five points and a free throw in the final seconds by Deb Emanuel put the icing on the cake as Wayne State upset Emporia State 63-61 Sunday night in Rice Auditorium.

The strong finish gave the Lady Cats an upset win over the leading team in the conference and back to back wins over the weekend. Wayne defeated Washburn 63-69 on Saturday. The Emporia State game was originally scheduled for Friday but postponed because of a snow storm in Kansas.

Winning Streak Started

The win over Emporia not only evened up the CSIC race but also extended Wayne State's conference winning streak to three games.

The Lady Wildcats led 38-35 at the half and relied on an early second half surge to gain the victory. Wayne outscored Emporia 12-4 in the first 12 minutes of the second half to grab a 50-39 lead. The Lady Hornets made a late comeback effort but WSC was able to hold on for the two point win.

Lisa Erwin, Lisa Draper and Julie Petronis led Wayne State with 16, 14 and 12 points respectively. The Lady Cats saw their lead diminish to one point late in the game but Draper and Brandt hit shots in the final minute of the game to put the hosts up by five.

Emporia pulled back within one point and then fouled Emanuel in a desperation attempt with only four seconds left. She canded the front half of a one-and-one for a 63-61 lead and Emporia failed to get off another shot.

The Lady Hornets fell to 16-6, 9-3 in the CSIC while WSC is now 13-12 and 5-7 in the conference.

Wayne State led 6-5 with 16:08 remaining in the first half when the Erwin gals stung Emporia for 10 straight points. Lori scored six points and Karl added four as the Cats jumped out in front by 10 points.

After that brilliant offensive display UNO could get no closer than eight points. Wayne State led 40-24 at half-time and held on in the second half.

Wayne State SID

Ed Blackburn, a Central States Intercollegiate Conference champion hurdler and distance specialist Dave Hauser head Wayne State College's list of top returnees as the Wildcats prepare for their first indoor track meet Feb. 16 at Doane College, Crete.

Blackburn was the CSIC's best 100-meter hurdler last year. The 6-4, 205 pound sophomore from Malvern, Iowa, is expected to be a consistent place-winner throughout the indoor and outdoor seasons. Blackburn is also the starting tight end on the Wildcat football team.

Head track coach LeRoy Simpson describes distance specialist Dave Hauser, Marshalltown, Iowa, as a team leader and "one of our best runners." The 6-3, 165 pound junior considers the 800-meters his best event, however, Hauser may be expected to perform in longer distance events after an encouraging cross country season this past fall.

This year's Wildcat track team is young. Only one senior dots the nineteen man roster and coach Simpson said he is expecting strong performances from two freshmen and a sophomore. Simpson indicated freshman sprinter Ellis Nash, Chicago, Ill., "has the most potential of any sprinter I have coached since I have been at Wayne State." Nash's specialty is the 100-meter dash. Another top freshman, Jeff Kretzlars from Springfield, is expected to be a solid performer in the 800-meters.

Sophomore Jeff Heindol could be a key performer in the triple jump. Last year the Pilger product placed sixth in the conference in that event. The 6-4, 210 pounder is also expected to contribute in the weight events (discus and shot put).

The lone Wildcat senior, David McNeel, is expected to be a consistent point winner in the pole vault. McNeel, Grand Island, could have a shot at a school record if he can stay away from injuries. Last year the senior suffered a broken hand early in the indoor season.

Two other returnees could be important factors in the Wildcats' season: Arld Johnson, South Sioux City, and Merlin Lahm, Nehawka, should be strong performers in the 800-meters and long jump respectively.

Other members of the 1980 Wildcat track team include: Randy Heng, and Rick Lade, Tekamah; Steve Marlin, Pender; Kevin McNichols, O'Neill; Randy Nielsen, Plattsmouth; Joe Ortmeyer, West Point; Dave Sklenar, Linwood; Gerry Steinbauer, Omaha; Dominick, Trojanowski, Dixmoor, Ill.; Daniel Warnke, Meadow Grove and Andy Warren, Uehling.

Wayne Frosh Start Slow, Lose to Pierce

A fourth quarter rally wasn't enough as the Wayne freshman boys lost 54-47 to Pierce, Monday afternoon in Wayne.

Shaun Niemann finished with 27 points—more than half of Wayne's total. Tim Heiler scored 10, Todd Schwartz hit 6 and Jeff McCright and Mark Kubik added 2 points each. Wayne coach Duane Blomkamp said his team speed around for three quarters and couldn't make up the lost ground in the final period. "We didn't play well," said Blomkamp, "and Pierce played a smart game."

The Blue Devils trailed by seven points after the first quarter and by 14 at the half. They pulled within four points and had possession of the ball with 1:30 remaining in the game but couldn't gain the lead.

Wayne will take a 5-3 record into action against O'Neill in the Randolph Tournament Monday. Game time was not yet scheduled at press time.

NE Nebraska Baseball Clinic Planned Soon

Coaches and athletes of all ages will be able to get a good start toward the 1980 baseball season because of a clinic offered at Wayne State College. The second annual Northeast Nebraska Baseball Clinic is scheduled from 9 a. m. to 12:30 Saturday, Feb. 23 in WSC's Rice Auditorium. Registration will be held from 8:30 to 9 a. m.

The clinic will include four programs: stretching techniques, pitching fundamentals, playing the outfield and hitting fundamentals. Directing the programs are Wayne State baseball coach Ron Jones, Wayne State athletic trainer Regg Swanson, Laurel High baseball coach Bob Weisenberg and Creighton Prep baseball coach Mike Evans.

The clinic is open to any players or coaches ranging from Little League to the collegiate level. All ages are welcome. Admission is $1.50 for the entire clinic. Ed Osada, Ponca High baseball coach, is director for the clinic.

Swanson will present a series of basic stretching techniques and explain how to keep pitchers throwing. He is the head athletic trainer at WSC and was assistant trainer for the 1976 and 1980 Olympic Trials. He was also assistant trainer for the United State swim team in the AAU West German Swim Meet.

Weisenberg will present a program on fundamentals of pitching. He has coached high school and legion baseball teams at Laurel for the past five years. Weisenberg played baseball for three years at Omaha North High School and was selected as a third round draft choice by the Minnesota Twins in 1966. He pitched in the Minor Leagues for seven years and was a Major League roster player for three of those years. His pitching coaches at that time included Arli Fowler and Early Wynn.

Evans will present a program entitled "Playing the Outfield." He is entering his fifth year of coaching at Creighton Prep High School and Roberts Aids Legion teams. His Legion teams have won an unprecedented four straight Class A state titles and have compiled a 248-33 record. Evans has been named coach of the year three times by the Nebraska Coaches' Association.

Jones will present a program on fundamentals of hitting. He is entering his third year as head baseball coach at Wayne State. Jones served as an assistant baseball coach for four years and also was head basketball coach at Wayne State for four years. He has coached baseball for 12 years and in that time has had experience with coaching at all levels of competition from Little League through college.

The game was tied after three quarters of play as Dave Hix hit eight points in that period to help offset a 10 point performance by Keating. Rick Mitchell scored eight fourth quarter points for Team One but that wasn't enough to stop a strong finish by the opposition.

Board Names Scholarship Winners

The Nebraska State College's board of trustees has awarded 20 outstanding high school seniors board of trustee scholarships to attend Wayne State College.

THE SCHOLARSHIPS provide full college tuition at WSC and are renewable for up to four years, providing the student maintains an acceptable academic standing. More than 100 high school seniors apply for the 20 WSC scholarships annually.

The board of trustee scholarship program began in 1971 and has been awarded to nearly 600 students throughout Nebraska, including 88 recipients and 55 alternates this year statewide.

"We continue to be impressed with the contribution former board of trustee's scholarship recipients have made and continue to make to their state," said Ward Reesman, chairman of the board. Mrs. Ley Won't Seek Re-Election

Wayne-Carroll School District board member Dorothy Ley has announced she will not seek re-election to the board.

Her term expires next fall, and primary elections are slated May 13 to narrow the field. Mrs. Ley was elected to the board in 1963 and has been re-elected each term since then.

The following statement was submitted by her after the board of education meeting Monday night:

"IN ANNOUNCING I do not intend to seek another term on the Wayne-Carroll board of education, I want to take this opportunity to give recognition to the support the patrons of this district have consistently given to the creation and maintenance of high quality education within the Wayne-Carroll system.

"That patron support has made it possible for the school system here to provide excellent facilities, a superior staff and a program which has achieved double 'A' accreditation, all of which have combined to give the students in the Wayne-Carroll schools a precious gift: the opportunity to earn an education of excellence.

"PEOPLE sometimes say that there are no rewards for the person who serves the public. That may be true in some cases, but I certainly have not found it so in my 16 years on the Wayne-Carroll board of education. It has been a real privilege for me to have served a community which has through the years wholeheartedly with their time and tax dollar supported the concept that every student, whatever his abilities or disabilities, is entitled to the promise of an education of quality.

"My retirement from the board of education at the end of the current term certainly does not signal the end of my interest in serving the needs of children and youth. I will just seek other ways of serving those educational needs.

"THE SLOGAN we used at the time of the bond issue several years ago when the need arose for a new high school continues to be true. 'The future of America goes to school in Wayne, Neb. today'.

last winter, the sales for this winter are still about twice as much as last winter," Tompkins explained. "Housing has not only slowed down in the Nebraska and Iowa areas, but in the oil-boom area of Wyoming as well."

"THE WEATHER has been excellent for our delivery system. Aside from our field crews being better trained and more professional in cutting down the time involved in delivery and setting of each home, the weather has been very cooperative in allowing us to get each home delivered as it is produced.

"That is why you don't see the parking lot full of homes as it was last winter and spring. We are building and delivering about twice as many homes this year compared to last, he explained.

"WE HAVE slowed production down to 2 1/2 homes per week, which is a home completed every two days. Prior to this slowdown, production was at four homes per week. This, therefore, necessitated laying off some employees. We have laid off a total of 18 people since the beginning of December, and now have a work force of 96 people.

"Yes, aside from the Nebraska Mortgage Finance Fund money which will be available sometime in March to Nebraskans at around 9 to 9 1/2 percent, all Savings and Loan Associations in our area now have money available in the 12 1/2 to 13 percent range for homes," Tompkins explained. So be it for rumors.

NPPD to Appeal To State Court

The attorney for Nebraska Public Power District involved with a suit brought by Val and Bernice Damme has filed a notice of appeal to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

THE NOTICE was received in Wayne County District Court Monday. A Wayne County jury recently found in favor of the plaintiffs, the Dammes, and awarded them some $14,000 in compensation for anticipated damages to their property.

Noyes Rogers, defense attorney for NPPD, filed a motion for new trial, based on eight reasons, but District Judge Merritt C. Warren last week denied the motion.

THE DAMME vs. NPPD case involves construction of a 345-volt transmission line from near Hoskins to Rawn, Iowa. Several parcels of land in the county are involved and several land owners and tenants have appealed County Court appraisals.

Several other cases are slated for pre-trial conferences over the next few months.

This consequently has resulted in a slowdown for Heritage Homes' sales.

"However, since the Heritage Homes dealer network has increased about three times since

Conflict Policy

for water, sewer and street construction, the possibility of the city's engineers preparing less than an acceptable improvement design is eliminated. The required preparation of plans, prior to district creation, does not lend itself to a conflict position. In fact, platting and design are interrelated and separation may cause substantial duplication of effort, thereby causing unnecessary costs to the assessment district.

"IN VIEW of the above, we respectfully recommend the following policy adoption by motion:

"1. The city retain a separate engineer for review and inspection when a builder, developer or subdivider presents plans and specifications, produced by an engineering firm hired by and under the direction of the builder, developer or sub-divider. The city administrator shall seek proposals for city engineering from three qualified engineering firms and present the proposals to the Mayor and City Council for selection.

Some Question Value of Burning Wood

Many residents are trying to reduce their home heating costs by burning wood in a fireplace, stove, or furnace. Before getting too "fired up" over wood heating, it is a good idea to be able to answer "yes" to the question, "Is it worth it?"

The Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources says frequently people can justify burning wood for social reasons because it is fun, good exercise, an enjoyable family outing, or it gives a degree of independence from the use of non-renewable energy resources.

From a purely economic point of view burning wood may not always be to your advantage because of several factors, the institute says.

How much does a stove, chimney, and accessories cost?

What percentage of the house will it actually heat?

Will a chainsaw, woodsplitter, trailer or pickup (four-wheel drive, of course!) have to be purchased?

Where will the wood come from and how will it be stored?

Do I have time to harvest, transport, store and burn the wood?

Let's start with supply: If the wood you'll be burning is free and if you spread the cost of the wood burning hardware over a period of several years and keep your harvesting and transportation costs to a minimum, you may be able to reduce your home heating costs considerably during the winter. This is especially true if you use well-designed wood-burning stoves or furnaces which are as high as 40 to 60 percent efficient to heat a sizable portion of the house.

If your purchase wood, the economic situation is entirely different. Then, the total cost of the woodburning equipment plus the BTU cost of the wood needs to be carefully compared to the BTU costs of your present heat energy source.

The first thing to determine is the energy value of a one cord volume of wood. One standard cord of wood measures 4 feet x 4 feet x 8 feet with a volume of 128 cubic feet. One cord of wood contains an average of 80 cubic feet of solid wood. On a weight basis at 20 percent air dry moisture content, any wood contains a total of 7,700 BTU of energy per pound. Since the density of wood varies among species, a light wood such as cottonwood has a lower BTU content per cord than a heavy wood such as oak.

The heat that can be extracted from the wood for useful heat in a house also depends upon the efficiency of the wood heater.

Before the wood stove selection process begins, the heat loss in BTU's per hour at winter outdoor design temperatures should be determined for the house. This information can be obtained with the assistance of your county extension agent. He will provide you with a worksheet to list various data on your house which will be analyzed by the AGNET Computer program called, House. The winter outdoor design heat loss number in BTU's per hour can then be used to select the right wood heater for your house.

If a house has a 60,000 BTU per hour winter heat loss, it should be outfitted with a wood stove rated at or close to 60,000 BTU per hour. A stove matched accordingly should be able to heat the house 97 percent of the time; the remaining 3 percent (on extremely cold days) will be supplemented by the conventional heating system.

A consumer shopping for a wood stove for furnace should obtain the following information for units being considered:

1. Minimum, intermediate, and maximum power output in BTU's per hour
2. The time between fuel loadings
3. The stove's energy efficiency percentage
4. The stove's tendency toward creosote deposits
5. Some indication of the steadiness of the stove's heat output, and of course,
6. The price of the stove, chimney and other installation costs

Since information on these details will probably not be available, you will have to use the efficiency percentages or the maximum BTU output ratings the dealer or advertising literature provides. When this information is not given there is not much you can do except use the figures given in the literature or by the dealer. Then hope the stove will perform adequately in your home. Unfortunately there is no way to estimate a stove's output. This information has to be collected by laboratory testing. When comparing data on several tested stoves, most were capable of operating within the range of 60,000 to 120,000 BTU per hour at 50 to 70 percent efficiency. Therefore reducing the maximum power rating by 50 percent should give a reasonably low power rating for "airtight" stoves where the combustion air can be controlled. Stoves that are UL tested and approved will have more reliable performance data.

It is also important to remember that a specific wood burning heater will perform differently under varying circumstances. This variation is caused by the effect of the chimney and draft conditions, the length of exposed stovepipe and the way the stove is loaded and operated.

When a stove is expected to heat a major portion of a house, good air exchange throughout the house is very important or cold areas will develop in the house. Many people use existing forced air duct work to circulate heat from a wood stove throughout the house.

Most complaints concerning stove size come from owners of oversized stoves which produce too much heat even at their lowest powers. On the other hand, stoves that are too small will not be able to keep up with January home heat losses. Since the high quality, high efficiency stove can be operated over a wider range of heat outputs, proper sizing will optimize the wood stove's ownership costs and usefulness.

Stoltenberg Farms Named Member of Simmental Group

Stoltenberg Farms, owned by Loren Stoltenberg, Carroll, recently has become a lifetime member in the American Simmental Association.

ASA is unique among beef breed associations in that it offers only a one-time, one-payment life membership. Once a person joins the association, there are no future dues or membership payments.

"We want to extend our sincere welcome," said ASA executive secretary Earl B. Peterson from the association's headquarters in Bozeman, Mont.

Founded in 1968, the American Simmental Association now numbers more than 12,000 life members and the ASA herd book has exceeded the 525,000 figure in number of animals processed for registration.

Simmental cattle originated in the Simme Valley of Switzerland, and have been in North America only since 1967. In that time, the Simmental breed has grown enormously in numbers and in popularity. The breed currently ranks fourth among U.S. beef breed organizations in the number of animals registered annually.

"The Simmental Producer benefits greatly from his relationship with the ASA," Peterson said. Recognition of genetic trait leaders, the publishing of the National Simmental Sire Summary coupled with corresponding data on growth and maternal traits provide valuable management tools to the cattleman.

An awards program to honor

Beferendum Registration Listed at 448

In the northeast Nebraska counties of Dakota, Dixon, Thurston, and Wayne, a total of 488 cattlemen have registered to vote in the upcoming national Beferendum.

The Nebraska Beferendum Committee recently announced that more than 17,000 cattlemen have registered statewide.

Voting on the Beferendum will be held during the four day period Tuesday, Feb. 19, through Friday, Feb. 22.

"The reason this program has been proposed is to create a fund to help us sell our product," Tom Gustafson, farmer/feeder from Wakefield explained.

"The diet-health people, certain people within the USDA and vegetarian groups would like to see beef production reduced, if not eliminated," Gustafson said.

"We must have funds to prove that beef is healthful and nutritious and also to tell the consumer of this fact," he said.

"In the past few days some people have charged that the beferendum will create another government program," he continued.

"This charge is absolutely not true," Gustafson said.

"The Secretary of Agriculture can only confirm nominations of working cattlemen to the Beef Board from lists supplied to him by the cattle industry," he explained.

"The Secretary is also required to audit the Beef Board's expenditures for legality; but he cannot initiate programs," he said.

Funds raised in this program would be used for beef consumer education, nutrition and economic research, promotion, advertising, and foreign market development.

"If the Beferendum passes, the $40 million raised would enable cattlemen to spend about 16 cents per consumer to get them to maintain or increase their expenditures for beef," according to Steve Dittmer, Beferendum coordinator for Nebraska from Gibbon.

Youths Work on Alcohol

More than 1,500 Nebraskans last year participated in a 4-H education program concerned with alcohol's impact on youth. The program currently is being coordinated by 23 4-H junior leaders who serve as county team members from seven counties in northeast Nebraska.

Roy Stohler, district 4-H and youth specialist at Concord, said the program started with the goal of reaching the peer group of the junior leaders. Stohler has guided the program with the aid of Leon Rottmann, human development extension specialist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources and Betty Walters, area home economist.

"We thought the younger children might be particularly more inclined to listen to an older youth rather than an adult preaching to them," Stohler said. "This program started as a one year program, but the planning committee extended the emphasis on alcohol because it was going so well."

The junior leaders were trained on alcohol abuse at two workshops. Workshop leaders included state patrol officers, community alcohol workers, doctors, parents, teachers and representatives from Alcoholics Anonymous, Alanon and Alateen.

One 4-H junior leader, Jolene Workman, a senior at Neligh Oakdale High School, said youths hearing the program react positively.

"At first kids were saying they wouldn't have much to do with the alcohol program. But now they seem to admire us for what we're doing and in a small way, they are trying to help us," Workman said.

She added she has seen a drop in alcoholism use since the program has started.

"Usually the people who hear our presentation say they are surprised by the information. We try to give them information so they can make their own decision on alcohol. We let them know that alcohol abuse can affect the popular kids as well as the unpopular kids," Workman said.

Stohler said people in the alcohol field say there is a decrease in alcohol-related incidences in northeast Nebraska in the past year.

"It's hard to pin down and say this reduction is a direct result of the 4-H program, but I think we can take part of the credit," Stohler said.

Junior leaders have presented the alcohol program to youths in clubs, schools and churches and to adults in extension clubs and other groups.

Soybean Supply Sets Record

U.S. soybean supplies this marketing year total a record high 2.44 billion bushels, 20 percent more than in 1978-79.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, total soybean use is expected to expand only 8 percent to 2.2 billion bushels, so carryover stocks next September may rise to around 440 million bushels — 2 1/2 times greater than the September 1979 carryover and a new high.

Summarizing the fats and oils situation, economists with USDA's Economics, Statistics, and Cooperatives Service said the large excess of supply over potential demand resulted in downward pressure on soybean prices. Prices received by farmers for soybeans declined from $6.35 per bushel in October to $6.06 in mid-January, about 50 cents below January, 1979.

Soybean prices have recovered since the Jan. 4 suspension of agricultural exports to the USSR

But if the 1980 South American soybean crops come in at the projected record 19 million metric tons (30 percent more than in 1979), prices may be under pressure again during the spring and summer. World soybeans supplies will be large relative to expanding demand.

U.S. soybean crushings this season are running 9 percent ahead of 1978/79 pace and are expected to approximate 1.1 billion bushels for the entire marketing year. The December, 1979, crush hit a record 104 million bushels which utilized more than 90 percent of the industry's processing capacity. Increased crushings reflect relatively favorable processing margins, larger hog and poultry production, and heavier soybean meal feeding because of slightly lower meal prices. Soybeans inspected for export are running 4 percent ahead of last season, and for all of 1979-80 may total about 8 billion bushels.

Rural Affairs

Annual Session Set in Pender

Nebraska farm leaders will meet in the Pender American Legion Hall at 1 p.m. Saturday to discuss fuel alcohol, hog production trends, and Nebraska water policies as part of the Center for Rural Affairs' annual meeting activities.

Featured on panel discussion on these topics will be representatives of: Iowa Farmers Union, Lombardi & Associates, National Farmers Organization, National Grange, Nebraska Farmers Union, Nebraska Pork Producers Association, Sandhills Resource Council, University of Missouri and the University of Nebraska.

The panels will be moderated by the Center's Small Farm Advocacy and Energy Project staff. The meeting is open to the public.

Carrots, parsley, celery, parsnips, dill, anise and caraway are all part of the same plant family.

Some Changes Planned for Disclosure Act

Proposed changes in regulations governing the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act — which would alter the reporting requirement for foreign investors — were announced recently by Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

Fitzgerald said one change would raise from 5 to 20 percent the aggregate foreign interest in a company that would constitute "significant interest or substantial control," and make clear that when regulations refer to a "combination," they mean only a group of individuals or governments who are acting in concert.

The other change would generally exempt all agricultural, forestry and timber land not exceeding 10 acres in the aggregate from reporting requirements. However, if products grown on these under-10-acre tracts yield annual gross sales of more than $1,000, the land must be reported to ASCS, Fitzgerald said.

Fitzgerald said the public is invited to comment on the proposals which appeared in the Jan. 25 Federal Register. Deadline for submitting written comments is March 25.

Comments should be addressed to the administrator, USDA ASCS, Room 218-W, Box 2415, Washington, D.C., 20013.

Certified Crop Varieties Listed

The Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources has released a listing of certified crop varieties for Nebraska in 1980, categorized by adaptability for planting in the state's eight cropping districts.

The listing, in IANR Cooperative Extension Service campaign circular 178, includes agricultural experiment station releases, with a note that many good privately developed varieties or closed pedigree hybrids are also available. Specific performance data on alfalfa, corn, grain sorghum, proso millet, small grains and soybeans are available to crop producers from county extension offices.

The circular also lists and briefly describes 11 new varieties now available:

Agate alfalfa — A variety primarily for use on poorly drained soils where Phytophthora root rot is a problem. It also is resistant to common leafspot and bacterial wilt. Agate is winterhard with a fall dormancy response similar to Vernal.

Baker alfalfa — A winterhard persistent variety high in forage and seed yields. It has a high level of resistance to pea aphids, spotted alfalfa aphids and bacterial wilt, moderate levels of resistance to downy mildew and potato leafhopper yellowing and a moderate level of anthracnose resistance in the field. Adapted in an area similar to Ranger. Baker forage yields have been superior to those of Dawson and Vernal in most tests.

Bennett winter wheat — Selected from a cross of Homestead with a sister line of Hucksin and released in 1978. The purpose of this cross was to combine the stem rust resistance of both parents. Bennett is an early, moderately winterhard variety best adapted in south central and southeastern Nebraska.

Benson oats — Developed by the University of Minnesota and released in 1979. Benson is a midseason oat slightly later than Burnett. A white oat. It is resistant to smut and moderately susceptible to crown rust.

Russell oats — A white oat developed by the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, Canada. It is similar to Garry in adaptation and disease resistance. Russell, Kelsey and Garry have similar performance records in irrigated tests in the west cropping district.

Bowers barley — A 6-row spring feed barley developed by Michigan State University in three-year data. Bowers has been competitive in yield with Custer and Steptoe in eastern Nebraska. Bowers is about a day later than Steptoe and similar in height.

Centurk 78 winter wheat — An increase from a five-head selection from Centurk. It has been extensively tested and yield performance has consistently slightly exceeded Centurk.

Elf soybeans — An Illinois selection from a cross of Williams and Ransom varieties. It averages one-half the plant height of Williams. Its chief advantage over Williams is greater lodging resistance and higher yields where Williams lodges badly. Elf is more responsive to high populations and narrow rows than Williams. The short stature of Elf may cause harvesting problems and ridging should be avoided.

Lancer oats — A South Dakota State University selection, released in 1979. Lancer is a medium height oat with good straw strength. In maturity, it is the same as Burnett or slightly later. It has white, plump kernels, good test weights, a high percentage of groats and very high grain protein percentage. It is moderately resistant to crown rust.

Nebsoy soybean — The first soybean variety released by the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station. It was selected at the Mead Field Laboratory from a cross made at Purdue University. Nebsoy is of Group II maturity, similar to Amsoy 71. It has consistently been superior to Amsoy 71 and Beeson in seed yield. It is 3 to 6 inches shorter, has better lodging resistance and slightly better seed quality than either Nebsoy or Beeson. It has a high emergence under favorable conditions.

Riley alfalfa — An eight-clone reproductive physiologist is scheduled to report on that research during the afternoon session of the seminar.

Topics on the morning agenda are: "Keeping the Bulls Healthy," by Dr. Bob Bohlander, practicing veterinarian, North Platte; "Nutritional Management of Bulls," by Dr. Ivan Rush, IANR extension beef nutritionist at the Panhandle Station, Scottsbluff; and "Managing Bulls Purchased from Central Test Stations," by Dr. Art Linton, CSU extension beef specialist.

Following a luncheon, the afternoon program will kick off with Dr. Don Hanson, IANR extension veterinarian at the North Platte Station, speaking on "Breeding Soundness Evaluation," followed by Dr. Gary Rupp, DVM, CSU reproductive physiologist, on "Semen Evaluation."

At 3:30 p.m., a bull management panel composed of commercial and purebred producers will convene with Chuck Schroeder, a purebred Hereford breeder from Palisade, as moderator.

Commercial beef producers scheduled for the panel are Bill Callahan, North Platte; Jack Maddux, Wauneta, and Reed Hamilton, Thedford. Other panel members are Lowell Minart, a purebred Angus breeder from Dunning and Steve Radakovich, a purebred Hereford breeder from Earlham, Iowa.

Registration fee for the seminar is $10, payable at 8:30 a.m. at the registration desk. The fee covers the cost of the luncheon and information materials.

The seminar is the initial activity of the recently formed Beef Improvement Committee of the Nebraska Stock Growers Association and is sponsored by the IANR animal science department and the Cooperative Extension Service.

For more information or copies of the program contact Gosey at 207 Marvel Baker Hall, East Campus, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, 68583, or Gene Deutscher, district livestock specialist, IANR North Platte Station, North Platte.

variety. It has a high level of resistance to anthracnose, bacterial wilt, pea aphid and spotted aphid. It is moderately resistant to summer black stem and downy mildew and is tolerant to frost and potato leafhopper yellowing. It is susceptible to Phytophthora root rot. Riley is adapted to areas similar to Kanza and its yields are usually equal to or greater than Kanza.

Important Role Played In Development of Ag

The United States and the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources have an important role to play in the development of world agriculture, a former executive of the U.S. Agency for International Development said Saturday.

"It is not only our humanitarian responsibility, but also our responsibility as a world leader, to promote agricultural development" in third world countries, said Dr. Ned Raun, former head of USAID's livestock program.

Speaking to about 150 University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture alumni, Raun said, the United States' greatest contribution to agricultural development in third world countries "will be assistance in developing competency, developing programs and teaching them to run their own show."

He said USAID has been the target of a lot of criticism from people who believe that technical assistance in agriculture is not effective, needed or appreciated and too expensive.

To refute those arguments, Raun named USAID programs participated in by the UNL College of Agriculture, now IANR, which established agricultural universities, extension services and national research institutions in Turkey, Colombia and Afghanistan. Many of these countries' nationals were educated at UNL.

"Follow colleagues and sister institutions overseas are proud and appreciative of their U.S. connection," Raun said. "Today's decision makers in agriculture in developing countries are graduates of U.S. institutions."

Countries now or soon to be involved in technical assistance programs with IANR include Morocco, Tunisia, Syria and Brazil.

To those who say technical assistance from the United States is not needed, he replied, "Advanced training cannot be embarked on by any of the developing countries. Some have tried but they didn't have the knowledge or the resource base."

As for the amount of money allocated for technical assistance, Raun said, "Rather than our assistance being too great it's been too little. Less than one-quarter of 1 percent of the gross national product goes to programs of technical assistance," he said.

In the federal budget for 1979, Raun said, $2 billion was allocated for technical assistance programs while $130 billion was set aside for national defense. Of the 15 most highly developed countries in the world, he said, the United States ranks 11th in the amount of money spent on technical assistance programs.

"Technical assistance builds countries and makes friends," he said. "It gives them the ability to produce their own food and also helps build world trade."

'Bull Session' This Month

Commercial and purebred beef producers will gather here Feb. 28 for a "bull session" at the North Platte Holiday Inn.

Dubbed the "Nebraska Bull Management Seminar," the day-long event will give Nebraska cattlemen a chance to catch up on the latest research in sire management, said Jim Gosey, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension beef specialist.

Gosey said the program is designed for producers who are in the business of either buying or selling bulls and should be of interest to both groups.

Evaluation of libido (sexual behavior) in herd sires has been gaining attention in the beef industry, Gosey said. Colorado State University began evaluating herd sire libido in 1977 and Dr. Ed Pexton, CSU

USDA Actions Help Return Grain Prices

Actions taken by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to minimize the effect of the suspension of agricultural sales to the Soviet Union along with new sales to other countries, have restored grain prices which dipped sharply immediately following the suspension announcement, according to USDA economists.

Summarizing the Agricultural Outlook magazine, economists of USDA's Economics Statistics, and Cooperatives Service said, however, that repercussions are still being felt throughout the transportation, storage and shipping industries as grain supplies are being diverted to alternate markets and/or storage.

The longer range outlook is still unclear. Market conditions in the second half of 1980 will depend not only on world grain production but on Soviet action as well. Later this winter, USDA will announce whether a paid diversion program will be offered for 1980 crops.

The recession forecast for the last half of 1979 did not materialize because of continued strong consumer spending. It is now expected later this year. Output by the automobile and residential construction in industries has slumped recently, accompanied by a rise in unemployment. With real GNP expected to decline and unemployment to increase in the first half of this year, the demand pressure on food prices is likely to weaken. Although economic activity in the rest of the world is expected to ease, growth is projected to be positive for most all other countries. This plus continued good global demand for feedstuffs points to firm markets for U.S. agricultural products despite the suspension.

While the aggregate domestic demand for food probably will ease in 1980, food prices will continue to rise in response to increased processing and marketing costs. Price increases for the major components of the marketing bill — labor, packaging, and transportation — are likely to range from 9 to 17 percent. The farm value of domestically produced food is forecast to rise a modest 3 percent, significantly less than the double digit rates of increase in 1978 and 1979. Thus retail price increases are projected to range from 7 to 11 percent, with 8 percent the most likely based on current conditions.

Only one opinion poll (Gallup's) correctly forecast President Roosevelt's re-election in 1936.

Earned Income Credit Unique

The Earned Income Credit (EIC) has become a permanent fixture with a new look, the Internal Revenue Service says. More taxpayers will be eligible for more credit, and they can receive it in a choice of two ways.

The Earned Income Credit is a unique tax credit. It is refundable, which means it will be paid to the taxpayer if it exceeds tax liability.

Generally, the law now makes the credit available to married or widowed taxpayers with at least one dependent child and to heads of households who maintain a home for at least one unmarried child.

The base amount has been raised to 10 percent of earned income up to $5,000, for a maximum credit of $500. In prior years the credit was 10 percent of the first $4,000, for a maximum credit of $400.

However, like the Earned Income Credit in years before 1979, it phases out. For 1979 it phases out at $10,000, where it used to phase out at $8,000. In other words, the closer earned or adjusted gross income gets to $10,000, the smaller the credit, until it reaches zero at $10,000.

Until the law was changed, qualifying persons received their EIC in the form of a tax refund after they filed their federal income tax return. Now, taxpayers who are eligible may still receive the credit in the same way, or, if they wish, may get it in advance in small payments each pay day.

However, as in the past, taxpayers must still file a tax return to show that they are eligible for the credit.

To receive advance payments, qualifying persons must certify to their employers that they are eligible by filing Form W-5, "Earned Income Credit Advance Payment Certificate."

Persons who want additional information on the Earned Income Credit and Advance Payments should contact their local IRS office. Also, many state and local social service and welfare agencies offer information on the EIC and Advance Payments.

Curtis Backs

John Connally

Former U.S. Sen. Carl T. Curtis (R-Neb.) made an appeal this week for support for Republican presidential candidate John B. Connally.

Curtis is a member of the Connally National Campaign Committee.

"After watching the 1980 presidential campaign these last few months," Curtis said, "I am more convinced than ever that John Connally is the logical choice for the conservative and middle-of-the-road Republican. I joined John Connally's National Campaign Committee a year ago because I felt he had the superior qualities it takes to be President.

"In my 40 years of service in the Congress, I found John Connally to be the ablest Cabinet member that I observed. The times are difficult. In fact, in some respects, they are frightening, and I firmly believe that John Connally possesses the leadership that can meet the needs of our country at this time because he has the courage to act."

"I urge my friends and fellow Republicans to join together now to garner the financial and political support required to make John Connally the next President of the United States."

EXTENSION NOTES

By Tama Krause

DIET SKEPTICISM ADVISED

Diet books are consistent best sellers, indicating that one of Americans' great national pastimes is searching for the magic formula for weight loss.

The problem is, if it were easy, there wouldn't be any need for so many self-help diet books.

As many dieters have realized, choosing a weight-loss plan is just the first step in weight control. In order to be ultimately successful, the scheme must be one that can be adapted for a lifetime.

Here are some guidelines to help you evaluate if one of the many diets available meet that criteria:

1) Will someone make money on this diet, such as the author, publisher or the supplier of some drug or nutritional supplement?

2) Has the author of the diet tried it on hundreds, even thousands of overweight people, objectively compared the results against a similar number of people on other weight-reducing diets, and published the findings in a reputable journal? If the answer to any of these is no, regard the diet as experimental at best.

3) Is the diet based on some "secrets" no one has discovered before? If the answer is yes, move on. These "secrets" do not exist. Remember though, you can lose weight temporarily on any diet. Just paying attention to what you eat will do it, at least for awhile.

4) Is the diet well-balanced nutritionally? If the answer is no, be careful. Only well-balanced diets are safe. A weight-reduction diet should contain food from the basic groups: meat-protein, dairy, vegetables and fruits, and cereals and grains. Diets lower than about 1,000 calories a day should probably be medically supervised.

5) Is the person promoting the diet known in the field, well respected and knowledgeable in nutrition? If the answer is no, be careful. It is possible that the person has no regard for your health and safety.

While many physicians have published books on diets, simply being a physician does not make someone knowledgeable in nutrition or qualified to prescribe a diet of unique design.
