A Glimpse of the Campus Mood

On many campuses across the nation, the proposal to require Selective Service registration has raised the ire of students. Many colleges have seen a revitalization of student protests much like those present during the Vietnam War.

ON THE WAYNE State College campus, the mood appears to be more reserved. But according to two staff members of the Wayne Slaters, the college newspaper, there remains a deep sentiment against registration and reinstatement of the draft.

Jeanie Ramold, co-editor of the Slaters last semester, and Mark Reinders, current co-editor, said their is a feeling of apathy and negativism on campus toward the proposal.

HOW DOES SHE personally feel about women being required to register for the Selective Service?

"I don't want to be drafted, but on the other hand I don't think it's fair for just one sex to register, either," she said.

One of her primary concerns about women and the military is the type of jobs women will be required to do.

"IF IT COMES down to sex being the criteria for a particular job in the military," then she is against women participating. Women and men should be treated equally in the service if they are going to be drafted equally, she said.

Women should not be placed in the traditionally female roles such as clerical, while the men are forced to assume other jobs, Ramold said. "One question that has to be cleared up in my mind is what types of jobs will be required of the women."

Although there probably would be some reliance by most women she knows to register, she feels most would do so "out of respect for the law."

MANY OF THE women she has talked with have equated the draft with combat. Many of them have not given the situation proper consideration, but instead have allowed registration to become an emotional issue.

When the possibility of women registering for the Selective Service became known, many women were upset at the thought of having to leave their husbands, boyfriends or fiancés, Ramold said.

"IT WAS AN emotional ordeal at first," she explained. But as the weeks have passed, the talk has subsided.

"I'd register if I have to," the senior English major said. "I just don't see the fairness of one sex having to register." Most of those she has talked to would register more out of fear of the law than for patriotism, she feels.

THE THREAT of draft registration or having to enter the military has not altered her plans for the future. "I have no commitments now, so I'm free to do as I please," she explained.

Ramold, a head resident assistant for Bowen Hall on campus, also has a minor in journalism and an interdisciplinary concentration in public relations. She has contact with a variety of grade levels in her dormitory, and has been able to gauge college atmosphere while with the college newspaper staff, she said.

REINDERS reflected similar sentiments of the males he has talked with on campus in the last few weeks. He, too, is not in favor of having to register for the service.

As with Ramold, Reinders said he would register for the service out of respect for the law. But if called to be drafted, Reinders said he was unsure if he would go.

"I would enlist for a legitimate cause," he said. But a major push by the Soviet Union into the Persian Gulf area is not a valid reason for him to become involved.

"I WOULD RATHER stop buying petroleum products than go to war," he explained. His personal involvement in the military would "largely depend on the circumstances. If the U.S. were attacked, then reinstatement of the draft would be justified," he feels.

Unless there was a serious threat to the U.S. or any of its close allies, Reinders said it would be difficult for him to allow himself to be drafted.

THE MOOD among his fellow male students is similar, he said. Most students say they wouldn't want to be drafted, but would register for the service if required.

"When the Iranian situation arose, the mood was that we'd join if anything happened to the hostages. When the Russians moved into Afghanistan, the mood began to change

"BEFORE BREAK, the mood was pro U.S., but after we got back, there were a lot of Canada jokes going around," he explained. Many of the males indicated they would find an alternative to the draft if called to active duty, Reinders said.

But as the hostage situation has improved in recent days, and the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan has become less important to the students, the campus mood has begun to return to normalcy.

REINDERS and RAMOLD said few students watch television news, or listen to the radio or read the papers. Their first concerns are the Top 40-songs, Mork and Mindy or their horoscope.

Both agreed the lack of involvement by students and their limited knowledge of the world situation is rather sad.

In the Nick of Time

A patch in time saved Nebraska some embarrassment.

IT SEEMS as though Julie Brinkman, a Wayne State College graduate athlete of the year there in 1976 and 1978 and official state torch bearer, found herself without the customary state insignia patches to wear on her uniform and swap with other torch bearers.

You see, Brinkman is representing Nebraska as one of 51 torch bearers for the XIII Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, N.Y. As reported in a Wayne Herald story several months ago, she was selected as the Nebraska Olympic torch bearer after a lengthy process.

THE PATCH problem arose, apparently, when Brinkman discovered she was without the traditional patches. All other torch bearers, who had carried the torch from Yorktown, Va. to Lake Placid, had such patches.

She discovered the situation just a few days before the games were to open Wednesday. But a few hurried phone calls to Wayne and the assistance of a long list of persons solved the dilemma.

JULIE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Brinkman of Rolfe, Iowa, made a somewhat frantic call to Becky Kelly, a Wayne State College admissions counselor. Unable to help her on the spot, Kelly called her bosses, Dr. Lyle Seymour, WSC president, and Jim Hummel, WSC director of admissions.

They, too, were stymied by the request and contacted Mrs. Wilmer Marra of Wayne, a sister of Ramona Dilemeyer, office manager for Congressman Doug Bereuter in Washington, D.C.

RAMONA finally got the ball rolling when she remembered a delegation of Nebraska postmasters had stopped by Bereuter's office handing out patches shaped like Nebraska and bearing an "NE" logo stitched in white.

After contacting a series of Nebraska postmasters in Tobias, Carroll, Table Rock and Holdrege, 60 patches were scraped together to send to Brinkman. They were sent via air mail, first class special delivery to ensure their arrival before the games opened.

BESIDES THE patches, WSC personnel and Chamber of Commerce staffers here sent another special delivery bonus, 60 T-shirts bearing the Wayne logo. Students and a local sporting goods store chipped in to supply and print the shirts on the spur of the moment.

Brinkman, as readers will recall, graduated from WSC 1978 with degrees in physical education and biology. Although she is taking graduate courses at Emporia, Kan., State College, she maintains Wayne and Nebraska as her home.

Brinkman was one of 6,000 runners who answered an ad for Olympic torch bearers early last year. Applicants were screened and five finalists were selected from each state, the District of Columbia and Lake Placid.

All were invited to Los Angeles for run-offs in Memorial Coliseum, site of the 1932 Summer Games. Each was picked on the basis of a well-rounded personality and background, as well as running ability. All of the torch bearers are recreational runners, although some also have had competitive experience.

BESIDES HER accolades as twice being named WSC athlete of the year, Brinkman was named all-conference for basketball in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference.

While working on her master's degree at Emporia State College, she has been acting girls basketball coach for the Hornets.

Allen Housing Authority Loan Approved by FHA

The Allen Housing Authority received word last week that a $449,500 loan for construction of low income elderly housing has been approved.

THE LOAN, approved by the Federal Housing Authority (FHA), is set up for the next 50 years at 10 percent interest. The money is to be spent on rental housing in Allen for persons 62 and older.

Initial plans call for construction of 16 units divided into four four-plex apartments. All are one-bedroom and are designed for the low income elderly.

THE DEPARTMENT of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) will provide rental assistance and the project is to include a small social room in addition to the four-plex units.

Bids on the project were opened earlier this month with Woolworth Construction Co., S. Sioux City, the low bidder at $382,500.

THE HOUSING Authority has taken an option on about two acres of land on the east side of town for location of the facility. Paperwork is expected to be completed Wednesday on the property.

Housing Authority members hope to begin construction this spring, with a 240-day construction period anticipated.

Allen Board Sets Hearing

Public hearing involving Allen School District Principal Dale Kennedy has been set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the high school.

POSTPONED from early January, the hearing is a result of Allen board of education action Dec. 15 concerning Kennedy's contract.

The board voted at that special meeting to notify Kennedy that if (the board) feels there may be just cause to not renew his contract for the coming year.

KENNEDY requested a hearing to publicly air the complaints against him. After setting the hearing, attorneys for both the board and Kennedy agreed to an indefinite postponement.

Neil Sandahl Latest Filing

Incumbent office holders on the city, county or school levels have until Thursday, Feb. 28, to file, reports County Clerk Orgrid Morris.

Non-incumbents have until March 15 to file, she added.

Neil Sandahl, president of the Wayne-Carroll School District board of education, is the latest person to file. He is an incumbent and is one of three board members whose terms will be open next fall.

Mrs. Morris said persons who will be out of town for the May 13 primary election may apply for absentee ballots. Deadline for returning the absentee is May 9. The applications must be made through the clerk's office at the Courthouse, she said.

Emphasis, Inc. Trial Set By Judge for Late April

Trial date of April 28 has been set by District Judge Merritt C. Warren in the case involving Emphasis, Inc.

AFTER A pre-trial conference Wednesday in District Court here, Judge Warren set the case down for trial.

The original suit was filed in March of 1976 by plaintiffs Lester L. Wacker, Delores A. Wacker, Andrew Manes and Marion Manes on behalf of themselves and all other persons. The "other persons" include scores of Wayne residents who bought stock in the enterprise.

The suit seeks that defendants "account for, restore and pay the funds misappropriated and damages resulting from their negligent failure to provide a reserve for restarting" the corporation.

ACCORDING TO the original suit, the Wayne Development Fund was established in 1973 to "promote, solicit and sell shares of common or preferred stock."

The suit says that after the plaintiffs paid $5,000 for stock, the defendants, by "manipulation of subsequent stock issue in some manner not known to the plaintiffs, retained control, domination and direction of the policies and actions of the corporation."

THE SUIT alleges that "no stockholder meetings were held, no officers or directors elected, no reports were made and no information was furnished to plaintiffs and other stockholders by way of prospectus, state ment of financial condition" until the events had occurred giving rise to these actions.

Faye Mann to Receive Honor

Wayne County Republican Chairman Faye Mann of Wayne will be awarded a certificate of appreciation for achieving Wayne County's 1979 financial quota, state GOP chairman Ralph Knobel announced today.

Mrs. Mann will receive her award at the next state Central Committee meeting in Grand Island March 8.

Wayne County's quota was $1,120 and Mrs. Mann was successful in raising $1,160 which is 104 percent of her goal.

Knobel said, "Mrs. Mann is to be congratulated on an outstanding job. Her performance is helping to strengthen the Republican Party."

Foreign Press Now Reporting Iranian News

by Rick Pomerville
Director of Public Information
Recent news on the hostage situation in Iran has been reported by members of the foreign press rather than American reporters.

AMERICAN journalists were ordered out of Iran by Jan. 18 because of what Wayne State College Broadcasting Professor Hal Drake says was a failure of American reporters to live up to the Iranian government's expectations.

"They (the Iranian government) were obviously hoping American journalists would aid their cause — and American journalists did aid them to a certain point," Drake said. "But beyond that point they found it was backfiring on them. The journalists were picking up data that was embarrassing for them."

DRAKE, a veteran newsmen, is somewhat of an expert on press activities in the Mideast. Though in Cairo as a guest lecturer in communications at Cairo University in 1978-79, he is one of few American reporters ever allowed to broadcast for Cairo Radio, the Egyptian Government's broadcasting network.

"My situation was atypical," Drake said. "While I was a journalist, I did not go out and collect the story because I was in a society where there were censors. I often read government-written stories that I would like to have re-written, but I knew that would be impossible and that I was a guest there. I was allowed to work as long as they knew I would not do anything to embarrass them."

DRAKE SAID his experiences in Cairo provided him with many insights to the problems faced by American reporters in the Mideast and Iran. Drake said American reporters could have avoided a direct confrontation with the Iranian government by taking a less abrasive stance when gathering news.

"Some Western reporters are not very tactful, especially the network reporters," he said. "They want to upstage one another when, in some instances, the stories they report are not that important to begin with."

"I THINK that if it had been possible, the bosses of the American companies that sent journalists should have programmed or talked to their journalists before they went to Iran, telling them to do the best they could, but do not be upset if you are asked to leave."

Good American reporters would not have had to compromise their ethics to be able to follow Iran's guidelines on reporting in their country Drake said, but they should have tried to understand the total Iranian lifestyles — the religion, pace of life, government and views toward the press.

"WESTERN journalists sometimes look at situations in an over-simplified manner with only one or two answers to a complex situation," he said. "That is part of our environmental makeup. It is not easy to understand that these people (people of the Mideast), are still in the process of joining the modern world." He added that American reporters felt "miffed" in Iran. The reporters were accustomed to better treatment in the U.S. than they were getting in Iran. Their attempts to report were frustrated by a mutual misunderstanding between the Iranian government and the Western press.

"We have our approach to journalism, which is one of the best — a free press, and I think that for the most part is good," he said. "In our country, the press is sometimes labelled the Fourth Estate, ranking comparably with the judicial, executive and court systems."

"THAT'S NOT the way it is in the Mideast. I think that while we have many fine features, sometimes we think our way is the only and only way and I think it is easy for our journalists to feel 'miffed.'"

Since Jan. 18 reports to the United States on the Iranian situation have had to come from members of the foreign press, the British Broadcasting System or independent reporters. Drake said these reporters were allowed to stay because their reporting styles are more like the styles the Iranians are accustomed to and they do not have a close interest in the hostage situation.

"THESE REPORTS are not any different in some instances, but I think the foreign press will abide by what the Iranian Government wants and will not report information that the American Press would have reported," Drake said. "In most instances they will simply be less obtrusive."

Wisdom of Big Brother

President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

"The Wall Street Journal" recently reported a story that should become a basic civics lesson for every child in America — and every politician as well.

If seems the town of Westfield, Mass., is involved with two, nearly identical sewer projects. There is, however, one minor difference. One project is locally financed; the other is being directed by the federal government.

The locally financed project has progressed so nicely that construction will begin in early spring. But the federal project is still bogged down in a bureaucratic maze, and has not even been granted approval for federal funding. For example, the government now wants the city to mail a questionnaire to every one of its residents, inquiring whether they use a septic tank or sewer line, and how effective it is.

As the government continues to dilly-dally, the delays are becoming more and more expensive. The cost of the original plan has already quintupled!

Latest bulletins from the energy front — The Department of Energy is busy, busy these days as its employees prepare draconian measures in view of forcing the public to conserve energy. Ironically, the building where all this activity is taking place has one of the nation's highest rates of energy consumption. According to the American Consulting Engineers Council, it takes more than 225,000 BTU's of energy per square foot to heat, cool and light the building for one year. By comparison, the average New York City buildings uses only 112,000 BTU's per square foot per year.

Meanwhile, down on the street the government's giant fleet of automobiles — the world's largest — is guzzling more gas than ever. Last year, government vehicles traveled 3.3 billion miles — 10.7 percent more than the year before — and used 320 million gallons of fuel. The total mileage driven by the federal government's vehicles has been increasing more than 50 percent faster than that of the general public.

A politician who doesn't like his job can junket.

Texas Congressman Ron Paul recently turned down what he termed a "14-day, all expenses-paid winter vacation to study alternative energy sources" in Capetown, South Africa, and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Spillsport Ron was overheard telling the newspaper, "Washington Weekly," "All the famous beaches and nightclubs along the route must be coincidences. When the average American can hardly afford to take a weekend away from home, thanks to all the congressionally-caused inflation and energy problems, politicians will be getting tax-paid fans."

Thanks, Ron.

Tourists are to be seen at a United States park ranger recently kicked about 100 teenage boys off the steps of the Jefferson Memorial in Washington, D.C., for singing — are you ready? — "God Bless America." The song was meant to be part of an American Legion Boys Nation program. However, the ranger said the boys' singing was disturbing the peace and disgracing the memory of Thomas Jefferson.

Whipping Inflation

The President wants to whip inflation, but he might do well to avoid emulating the example of Iran. According to the "London Daily Telegraph," Iranian shopkeepers are being given up to 15 lashes in an effort to encourage them to reduce prices.

Unfortunately, many Tehran merchants have retaliated by closing their shops. As one angry shopkeeper complained to a housewife: "Why should we be lashed when the prices we have to pay are so high?"

Final bulletin

The Community Services Administration, the government's anti-poverty agency, has anticipated the worst. It has spent $75,000 printing booklets entitled: "No More Heat? A Self-Help Booklet." Among other things, it advises people whose heat has been cut off: "A paper bag wrapped (or your head) can keep your warm — cut eye holes in the paper bag."

the pied typer

These subjects leap forward in the mind when giving some thought to what's happening in our fair city:

Feminism and the draft. Board of education and learning disabilities.

All three have caused some verbal heat in some circles of late, and need comment upon to some extent.

Feminism (a polite term for women's liberation), was the brief, and I mean brief, focus of a comment made by the pied typer in last week's column.

It always seems to be these mini-items (one woman says chauvinistic) that bring the most reaction from readers.

Jane O'Leary brought in a clipping from a recent issue of Time. It, too, was lamenting an apparent dichotomy among women's liberation proponents about the drafting of women.

I was a little confused, I said in the column, about the goals of feminists. Did they truly want equal rights?

Well, sirs and madams, the Time article says in part (and pardon me, Time, for a bit of plagiarism):

"But feminists are torn. Many are former antiwar activists and oppose a peacetime registration and draft of any sort; at the same time, they insist on equal rights and duties for women."

See, I'm not the only one confused. The article quoted four different women from four different feminist groups and received four different views on the drafting and registration of women.

Mrs. O'Leary said there are numerous feminists in Wayne and that my comments may have stirred them to some sort of reaction. Fine and dandy.

I am a firm believer that interaction between opposing groups or forces is healthy for a community or a nation as long as all parties involved conduct themselves in a rational and proper manner.

There are readers who believe anything and everything I have to say is far from rational. But let me remind them I probably feel the same about what they say, too.

There is a letter to the editor in this issue that addresses the draft, war, Cambodia and me. Quite a combination, don't you agree?

I've received another letter about the same subject, but it was addressed to me personally. Letters addressed to me won't get printed because I assume they are for my personal benefit.

And last, but certainly not least, the matter of a learning disabilities policy and the Wayne-Carroll School District board of education.

Board member Dorothy Ley, who has announced she will not seek re-election, has carried on a tug-of-war with other board members concerning implementation of a written policy on learning disabilities.

After several months of discussions and alterations in the policy, the board voted to include an LD policy in grades K-8.

Mrs. Ley had requested a policy through all 12 grades, but the board felt that would not be plausible since colleges have not yet developed learning disabilities courses for secondary teachers.

The board voted down the use of about $7,000 for teachers in the local system to take additional LD courses. The money was left over when a Title I teacher position was not filled this year, and Mrs. Ley felt paying tuition would be an incentive for primary and secondary teachers to expand their knowledge.

The board acted wisely in deciding not to spend the money. Firstly, it appears a dangerous vein of thinking when any governmental body spends surplus money just because it's surplus.

Congress has been spend crazy over the last decade and the nation's deficit has become awesome. Why not be a little more conservative when it comes to spending money?

The seven percent lid bill will begin to be felt in the school system in coming years, and any surplus now may help bridge a financial gap in the future.

Secondly, there were too many loop holes in the motion to allow teachers to use the money. The board would have paid the way for any teacher who wanted to take additional courses.

But there was no stipulation about where the courses were to be taken, or any limitation on the cost of each credit hour. In other words, under the board's initial consideration, a teacher could have attended the University of Hawaii tuition free, or Harvard, or anywhere.

We would like to see, however, learning disabilities courses established at WSC or at Nebraska colleges and universities for secondary teachers.

Many learning disabilities experts here feel there is a need for LD training among secondary teachers. Grades K-12 must adapt their curriculum to these students who have special problems in mathematics, reading and physical and mental handicaps, etc.

Teachers should have the training to adapt their curriculum in all grades. As one elementary LD teacher noted, for example, it is difficult for a high school teacher, untrained in learning disabilities, to work with a student who is in their class but is reading on a lower level, for example.

THERESA Nannen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Nannen, and Brian Bargstadt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bargstadt, were named the royal couple at the FFA-FHA Sweetheart Ball at Randolph High School Feb. 9.

The Coleridge Fire Department's Jaws of Life Fund Drive received two sizeable donations last week. A check for $150 was presented to the Department by the Coleridge Community Schools Student Council from proceeds of a school dance. The Department also received a $500 donation from the Coleridge National Bank.

PLANS are formulating to make the 10th annual St. Patrick's Day festival in Wisner the biggest and best ever. Already new activities are scheduled as the Wisner Hibernians try to outdo their O'Neill counterparts in celebrating the annual Irish day. A six-mile road race and horseshoe pitching contest are planned in addition to the regular annual activities which have been revamped slightly, according to Terry Kane, recently elected Wisner Hibernian secretary-treasurer.

The Pierce High School Concert Band, directed by Harold D. Willis, will present its annual mid-winter concert Tuesday evening, Feb. 19, at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. There will be no admission charge for the concert. Greg Schleppebach, a sophomore member of the band, will appear as soloist in the Rhapsody for Euphonium and Concert Band written by Jim Curnow in 1977. Greg is the son of Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Schleppebach.

THERE is little doubt now that Pender voters are strongly opposed to any dike project carrying a price tag right at $3 million. They defeated by an overwhelming 360-39 vote last week a proposal which would have allowed the city to assume an obligation of up to $1 million to help pay for the proposed flood control dike. That strong opposition will likely put the dike issue to rest for some time, according to Don Berg, chairman of the village board.

A 986 International tractor was destroyed at the Alan Thomsen farm eight miles south and a-half east of Wakefield last week. The fire was discovered by a neighbor, Ron Krusemark. Wakefield Fire Chief Short Kay said the apparent cause of the fire was from a short in wiring and estimated the damage at about $25,000.

MARK Dremer, a senior medical student at Creighton University, is presently serving a six-week preceptorship in the Ponca Medical Clinic. Dremer is a Public Health Service scholarship recipient. This scholarship pays for three years of education in medical school. In return, the student works for the Public Health Service for three years. Dremer hopes to work part of the six weeks in Winnebago and Sioux City so he can pick up additional clinic and hospital experience.

AN overflow crowd, one of the largest in recent years, turned out for the 100th annual Firemen's Masquerade Ball Feb. 9 in Madison. Judging the costumes were Alan Cooper, Keith Marr and Mrs. Rosemary Peters.

Dear Editor:
Mr. Dan Field's remarks concerning "women's libbers" must be answered; he always must get his little chauvinistic "digs" in weekly almost. Where are all the "women's libbers?" We are still here. But we resent mightily all the epithets men like you love to throw at us.

So President Carter is considering drafting women. We'll go and be proud to serve our country. I really think that women will be safer in the military in bomb shelters when the nuclear holocaust comes rather than in our homes absorbing all that radiation, Mr. Field.

Would you say that the Cambodian women are out of the war over there because they are not in the army? How naive you are about war? Those starving women with their starving babies are the result of war, Mr. Field — a war that no matter where you are, you are a part of. And they haven't been trained to defend themselves either; they are completely helpless. Do you think women will be safe at home in the next war? Again, how naive! Women will die by the thousands when they begin to throw those bombs around.

Yes, women want equal rights, Mr. Field. Why? Human decency — the decency that one human being should extend to another. You see, Mr. Field, I happen to have a brain, an I.Q., two legs, a head, a nose, and two eyes just like you. That is why — before the law — I want my equal rights.

Have you served your term in the military, Mr. Field? Or are you one of those war-mongers who wave the flag but nudge the other guy up to the registration line? Let us have no more "digs", Mr. Field, about women-libbers. You see, we are human beings, too.

Wakefield Tops Laurel Girls In High Scoring Area Matchup

In one of the highest scoring Northeast Nebraska girls' basketball games this season, the Wakefield Trojans used a big third quarter to defeat Laurel 62-52, Thursday night in Laurel.

"That is the best we've played. The whole team did fantastic. Kelly Murphy had by far the best game of the season. She was the general tonight," said Wakefield coach Dennis Wilbur following the win. "Laurel has a good ball team. We played well. I hope it carries over to districts."

The crowd witnessed an exciting, physical, high scoring game which saw both teams play well in spurts. Play became rough at times in the fourth quarter and six players fouled out. Paula Chace, Kay Anderson, Lori Carlson and Deb Thompson fouled out for Laurel. For the Trojans, Kelly Murphy and Kathy Gustafson left the game with five fouls.

Wakefield won the game at the free throw line by connecting on 22 of 37 free throws compared to 6 of 22 for Laurel.

Six girls scored in double figures for the two teams. Wakefield was led by Jolene Bartels with 18 points, Joan Miller with 16, Kelly Murphy with 12 and Kathy Gustafson with 11. Roxie Kraemer paced Laurel with 21 and Kay Anderson hit 12. Lori Carlson finished one point short with 9.

Led by Bartels, Wakefield opened up an early lead and held on to a 16-12 advantage at the end of the first quarter. The lead was increased to seven points midway through the second quarter but a three point play by Kraemer, a free throw by Chace and a basket by Anderson put the hosts ahead 23-22. The Bears went into the locker at the half with a 32-30 lead.

Miller scored eight points in the third quarter and Kelly Murphy assisted her as the Trojans opened up a 13 point lead — their biggest of the game.

Laurel, which fought back every time it fell behind, rallied again behind the fine outside shooting of Kraemer. Cooper, Carlson and Thompson added three buckets but Bartels scored inside and Murphy hit well outside as Wakefield held off the attack.

The Trojan win snapped a six game losing streak and improved Wakefield's record to 6-10. Laurel's record dropped to 8-7.

In the rebounding department, Wakefield held a 47-36 advantage. Bartels and Miller led the Trojans with 18 and 13 rebounds respectively. Laurel was led by Carlson with 12 and Thompson with 7. Chace made eight steals.

Wakefield shot 47 percent from the field and Laurel hit 33 percent.

Laurel won the junior varsity game 33-18.

Ann Schultz led all scorers with 10 points. Other Laurel scorers: Kim Sherry, 6; Dee Maxon, 6; Buff Nelson, 5; Jackie Crisp, 2; Cyndi Jonas, 2; Jayne Reynolds, 2. Wakefield scorers: Kim Fredrickson, 6; Connie Tullberg, 5; Kris Mitchell, 4; Teri Schwarzen, 2; Rita Wilson, 1.

Laurel has completed its regular season and will open C-4 district play at 5 p.m. Monday against Osmond. That tourney will be played in Plainview.

Wakefield has also completed its regular season and will open C-4 district play at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday against Winslow. That tourney will be played in Homer.

Emerson Tops Wayne Girls Tuesday

West Husker foe Emerson-Hubbard, which won the West Husker Tournament last week in Wisner, continued its dominance in the conference by downing Wayne 45-37 in girls' basketball action Tuesday in the Wayne High gym.

After falling behind by seven points in the first quarter, the Wayne Blue Devils pulled back within three points on several occasions but couldn't put together a complete rally to take the lead.

Jolene Bennett and Julia Dorsey paced the Devils with 10 and 9 points each but Emerson's Paula Rager racked up 26 points — the same as Wayne's top three scorers combined. Lori Tullberg added 10 points for the Piratettes. Lisa Peters scored seven points and grabbed 11 rebounds and Stacy Jacobmeier added six points for Wayne.

"We were within three points a couple of times but couldn't get ahead," said Wayne coach Curt Frye. "We had too many fouls; the score could have been worse if they would have hit more of their free throws. Paula Rager is an excellent ball player."

The Blue Devils hit 16 field goals — only one less than Emerson — but were behind at the free throw line. Wayne made five of eight shots while sending Emerson to the line 28 times. The Piratettes shot only 39 percent from the charity stripe but had 28 attempts and made 11.

Wayne, which dropped to 4-8, will complete its regular season at Wisner-Pilger tomorrow (Tuesday) and then open B-4 districts on Tuesday, Feb. 26 at Howells. The Blue Devils will play Columbus Scotus at 6:30 in opening round action.

Wayne won the junior varsity game 36-23 and the freshman game 45-38 over their Emerson counterparts. For the JV, which improved its record to 8-2, Jill Zeiss scored eight points, Jenny DeTurk scored six, Tammy Thomas scored six, Anne Liska scored five, Kris Proett scored four, Terry Johnson scored three and Deb Prenger scored two.

The Wayne freshmen, who won their second game of the season, were led by Pam Nissen with 20 points and Tamie Murray with 15. Other scorers were: Jill Mosley, 4; Deb Prenger, 4; Shelley Emry, 2.

Staters Lose On Road

Road games are always tough in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference and Friday night was an especially tough night for the Wayne State men's and women's basketball teams. Both teams lost to their Missouri Southern counterparts.

The WSC men were defeated 68-63 and the women lost 67-52. The Wildcats trailed in the first half but tied the score up 45-45 with 12:23 remaining. The game was close the rest of the way.

Wattie Rhoda fouled out with 22 points with 3:34 left. The game was tied 63-63 with only 49 seconds remaining but a Wayne State turnover cost the Cats the last shot of the game. Southern's Kenn Stoeber hit a field goal and two free throws in the final five seconds to clinch the win.

Willie Summers scored 12 points and Jay Bellar and Leon McRae added 11 points each as WSC fell to 3-8 in the CSC and 6-14 overall. The win improved Southern's record to 7-4 in the CSC and 11-16 overall.

Wayne State: Rhoda, 22; Summers, 12; Bellar, 11; McRae, 11; Lorick, 6; Milks, 1. Southern: Stoeber, 16; Shrum, 16; Starkey, 12; Merrifield, 9; Goughner, 7; Close, 4; Miller, 2; Wilson, 2.

The Lady Wildcats trailed by seven points in the first half and skidded to a 67-52 loss to Missouri Southern. Lori Erwin hit 22 points for the Cats and Lisa Draper followed with 11.

The loss dropped Wayne State to 5-8 in the CSC and 14-13 overall. Southern improved its record to 6-6 in the conference and 14-14 for the season.

Allen Girls Get Nipped

The girls' basketball game between Allen and Coleridge Thursday night may have set a record for fewest free throws attempted in one game. Allen lost to Coleridge 35-33 with both teams shooting only five total free throws.

"It was the worst officiating I've seen in any game this year. It was just ridiculous," said Allen coach Dale Jackson. "The game got rough and out of hand. We tried to foul late in the game but they (referees) wouldn't even call a foul. I'm not taking anything away from Coleridge, they had a real good defense."

Lisa Erwin scored 15 points to lead the Eagles. Stacey Koester and Des Williams added 8 and 6 points respectively. Janet Peterson was the leading rebounder with 11 cars.

Allen led 8-4 after the first quarter but Coleridge jumped out in front in the second period and held on for the remainder of the game.

The Eagles hit 16 of 42 attempts from the field for 38 percent accuracy compared to 17 of 72 for 24 percent for Coleridge. The winners were led by Smith and Kraemer with 13 and 12 points respectively.

Allen attempted two free throws and made one. Coleridge converted one in three attempts. The Eagles have completed their regular season and will take a 6-7 record into D-3 districts at Rosalie. They will play Macy at 7 p.m. tonight (Monday) in Rosalie.

The Eagles won the junior varsity game over Coleridge 28-15. Shari Jones hit 7 of 10 field goal attempts for 14 total points.

Bereuter Asks Ag Secretary For Waiver
Congressman Doug Bereuter has asked Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to waive interest on grain sorghum entering the reserve program to relieve feed grain growers in the wake of the grain embargo.

"Waiver of interest on grain sorghum would be an even-handed approach to feed grain growers who have been burdened by the embargo," Bereuter said.

In a letter to Bergland, Bereuter noted, "The Soviet embargo has affected the grain sorghum market in much the same way as it has affected the corn market, even though sales of grain sorghum were not directly involved in the embargo."

Corn and grain sorghum are virtually interchangeable as feed grains, Bereuter noted.

Bereuter said he recommended the action in response to constituent requests.

In separate action, Bereuter also recommended a decrease or freeze of current interest rates on loans for construction of on-farm grain storage and handling facilities. "Such action would relieve farmers asked to store more grain."

This Community of Ours Is Not Perfect

... but we don't make it better by hauling a lot of our trading money across country to the traffic-traumatized crime jungles that smugly call themselves our "area shopping centers."

Our necessary but necessarily rapacious big cities have ghosted out a lot of once-thriving smaller communities by siphoning off their lifeblood (trading money) with the cooperation of the victims.

After a community had city-shopped itself out of good sources of daily and emergency needs, good neighbors, good schools, good jobs and property values and other nice things, it is a little late to do much about it. Let's start stopping this development here. Now.

CCC Buys Corn From States

The Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) purchased 281,349 bushels of corn in response to an invitation issued Jan. 22.

Ray Fitzgerald, executive vice president of the CCC, said successful bidders were those who offered corn at a national average of $2.40 or less per bushel, adjusted for location. He said corn purchased will not be available at prices less than $3.15 per bushel.

Purchased were 140,762 bushels in Iowa, 50,000 in Indiana, 33,587 in Minnesota, 30,000 in Missouri, 17,000 in Nebraska and 10,000 in Illinois.

The decision to purchase corn was announced Jan. 19. Its purpose was to help stabilize prices and to relieve congestion in the transportation chain caused by the decision of longshoremen to not load ships bound for Russia.

Bids were received for 53,387,364 bushels from about 5,000 bidders in 19 states. Unsuccessful bids were those which offered sales at higher than the market price, Fitzgerald said.

"The U.S. Department of Agriculture will continue to monitor prices and congestion problems caused by suspension of exports to Russia and may offer to purchase corn at a later date if conditions warrant," Fitzgerald said.

Hospital Gets Fetal Heart Monitor and Treadmill

Health care services in the Wayne area have seen an improvement due to the cooperation of local doctors and organizations.

The Wayne Community Hospital Auxiliary recently purchased a Hewlett Packard Fetal Monitor for Providence Medical Center. A representative of the company was at the hospital recently to demonstrate the new machine, which is used to monitor a baby's heartbeat during labor.

Mrs. Marci Thomas, hospital administrator, said the equipment uses ultrasound to follow the baby's heartbeat and movement during labor. By using the equipment, which is optional to the patient, doctors can determine at what point a baby may be having a problem and take the necessary precautions.

Money used to purchase the monitor, $7,160, was raised by the auxiliary's annual fall bazaar, its gift shop proceeds, and from the rental of hospital televisions, which are also provided by the auxiliary.

Mrs. Thomas said the hospital did have a monitor which they were allowed to use for two years from the State Department of Health. Those two years expired recently.

Also new at the hospital is a treadmill exercise test which allows doctors to apply a measured amount of stress to the cardiovascular system and to measure the effects of that stress in terms of blood pressure, pulse, electrocardiographic changes, etc. Dr. Jim Lindau, who was instrumental in acquiring the new equipment, said the treadmill also will be used to screen at risk patients.

Dr. Lindau said the treadmill was acquired through Wayne State College. Other monitoring equipment was purchased by the hospital.
