Laurelites Gather Thursday to Find Answers to Various Garbage Woes

There's a stink about garbage in Laurel, and the federal government has its nose in the middle of it.

IT SEEMS as though Laurel's landfill is in violation of federal pollution requirements, and there is a difference of opinion about which alternative would best fit the city's finances.

The state Department of Environmental Quality, Solid Waste Control Division, is acting as an agent for the federal government. Two representatives from the state DEQ attended a public meeting about the problem Thursday night at the city auditorium.

AN ESTIMATED 25 persons attended the meeting, seeking answers to the inevitable questions: what will Laurel do with its garbage? Will there be an increase in garbage fees? Is there a deadline for making a decision?

City Manager L. J. (Ole) Mallott conducted the meeting, saying he does not feel the city can afford a landfill based on projected costs.

CURRENTLY, the city spends about $10,000 annually to operate the landfill. According to Mallott, the budget would have to be tripled in order to afford a licensed landfill, something the federal government is pushing.

The city charges residents on the garbage route $2 a month. Under one plan suggested Thursday, residents would be charged $4 a month. "Laurel's landfill is not licensed now, but has served needs of the community for several years. Three alternatives are being considered, and another town meeting will be held in about 30 days to further research the problem, the city manager explained.

THE CITY COULD contract garbage collection to an outside firm to be hauled to a nearby landfill; the city could haul the garbage itself to an area landfill; or the city could incinerate the trash through a resource recovery system.

This system uses heat from the burned trash as an alternative source of energy. However, there still would remain a problem with disposal of the burned trash.

The nearest licensed landfill is Norfolk, Ponca or Crofton.

ALTHOUGH THE city of Laurel is operating at a break even point now in its trash operation, Mallott said federal requirements will increase the overall cost. Representatives of licensed garbage contractors and of area communities will attend the next meeting.

Despite the recent pressure by feds for Laurel to upgrade its landfill, there is no set deadline for doing so. But the longer the community waits to make a decision, costs continue to rise.

Delegates to Conventions Are Needed

Republican and Democratic delegates to their respective county conventions are needed, reports County Clerk Ongretta Morris.

WITH THE March 14 deadline fewer than two weeks away, Mrs. Morris said persons wishing to become delegates may register in the clerk's office at the Courthouse.

Faye Mann, GOP county chairman, has certified that anyone who files as a delegate will be eligible to attend the county convention and will not be placed on the ballot.

A SPOKESMAN for county Democrats said persons registering as delegates will be placed on the ballot. However, if two or fewer file, they will not be placed on the ballot because each party is allowed a minimum of two she explained.

For more information, contact Mrs. Morris at the County Clerk's office.

Temperatures Above Normal

January temperatures in Northeast Nebraska were above normal, ranging from 2.9 degrees higher than usual to 3.3 degrees higher.

A report released by the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources shows the average daily maximum for Wakefield, the closest reporting station to Wayne, was 31.9 degrees and the average daily minimum was 12.6 degrees.

Local Guard Enlists Handful

STATUS OF THE local National Guard took a major step forward Friday afternoon with the induction of six Wakefield students at the local army. Denny Spangler, local Guard recruiter, said the six are the most inducted at any one in recent memory. A Guard official from Lincoln said it was uncommon for that many to enlist and be inducted at once. Those inducted were from left: Dennis Lee Tulberg, Gerald Lee Obermeyer, Kelvin John Paul Wurdeman, Loren Jay Erlanson, Roy Fredrick Jerry Rewinkel and Alan James Thomas Ruzicka, all seniors at Wakefield. Swearing the six in was Chief Warrent Officer Loyal D. Gerberding (right), military personnel officer from Lincoln. The six will enter basic training about June 1 after completing school this spring. They will return in time for schooling next fall under the Guard's new enlistment program. Spangler said hard work by area recruiters resulted in the hayday, with three more inducted Saturday and possibly five in the next two weeks. Al Gusner, Norfolk, a fulltime recruiter for this area, primarily is responsible for enlistment of the Wakefield youth. Under the Guard's incentives, the new enlistees will receive a $1,500 bonus payable in four increments. In addition, they will receive $448.80 per month for basic training and then $59.84 for each weekend of active duty. The enlistments are for six years, with the group receiving $2,650 the first year including drills, active duty and the first part of their bonus, $750. The rest of the bonus will be received on their first, third and fourth anniversaries of their enlistment.

Drinking Age Riles Some

The legal drinking age in Nebraska, if Gov. Charles Thone signs the bill, has been raised from 19 to 20 years of age and people of all ages have mixed emotions about the new law.

MANY STUDENTS at Wayne State College are affected by the law, which will become effective 90 days after the Unicameral adjourns this spring. Some recently shared their views with The Wayne Herald.

The majority of students who were interviewed indicated they opposed the increased drinking age. Some said they approved of it and others felt the drinking age should have been raised to 21 rather than 20.

"I THINK the new law is stupid. Kids will drink anyway. They get liquor now when they're under age and they'll continue to get it," said one Wayne State coed who recently celebrated her 19th birthday. "I think they should have left the drinking age at 19."

State Senator Ralph Kelly of Grand Island introduced the LB 221 and Governor Thone is expected to sign the bill soon.

According to the 15-page bill, a minor is defined as any person, male or female, under 20 years of age, regardless of marital status.

THE LEGISLATION also has a "grandfather" clause which means persons 19 when it officially becomes law can continue to consume alcoholic beverages. Nine teen year olds still will be allowed to serve or sell liquor as part of their jobs.

The bill states, "No minor may sell, dispense, or have in his or her possession or physical control any alcoholic liquor in any tavern or public place, including streets, alleys, roads, highways, state owned property, or inside any vehicle while in or on any of the previously mentioned places. The only exception to this is if the minor is in his or her permanent place of residence."

MOST WSC STUDENTS interviewed said drinking establishments in Wayne check age identifications on a regular basis, but a few stated that they have purchased alcoholic beverages in taverns while under age. They said they don't feel the situation will change as a result of the new law.

Generally, most students under age 19 are upset with the new law. Many not affected by the legislation said they didn't care one way or another. A few said they felt the new law was a good one.

"I THINK the new law will cut down on car accidents that involve drunken teenagers. Fewer teens will be able to obtain alcohol legally with the new age requirements," said one student.

Another male student said he felt the drinking age should remain at 19. "I feel that 18 was wrong. When they raised it to 19, they took much of the alcohol out of high school," he said. "I can see a big difference between 18 and 19 year olds. I think the age belongs right where it was at 19."

SENATOR KELLY, who has tried to raise the drinking age for the past three years, said he created the bill to reduce alcohol related teenage traffic accidents and fatalities. Another purpose of the law is to cut down on the availability of liquor to younger teens, he said.

The Unicameral voted 31-13 to put Kelly's proposal into the statutes.

MINORS ARE SUBJECT to 60 days in jail, a fine of $250 or both. Adults who purchase alcohol for minors are subject to a $500 fine and 15 days in jail.

Only time will tell whether the new law is effective in reducing accidents. Meanwhile, regardless of individual opinion, Nebraska residents will have to live with the new law.

A Narrow Escape

A WAYNE MAN escaped serious injury, but was treated for smoke inhalation, after his trailer at Woehler Trailer Court was gutted by fire about 1:35 a.m. Thursday. Barry Barge was taken to Providence Medical Center by PMC rescue unit and treated and released. Fire Chief Dick Korn said investigation continues by the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department and State Fire Marshall's office.

Area Officials Pick Up Tips On Economic Development

A relatively small but intense group attended this area's first Economic Development Conference Thursday at Wayne State College.

PERSONS FROM an 18-county area learned about community improvement financing, the needed relationship between the public and private sectors of the economy, business improvement districts and Councils of Government and Economic Development Districts.

There were nearly as many program speakers attending as there were community representatives, but most of those attending showed a genuine interest in the topics. All were concerned with methods of improving their communities without major burden to taxpayers.

WAYNE WAS well represented, with businessmen, Chamber of Commerce representatives, WSC personnel, City Council members and city administration on hand.

Probably the primary topic Thursday morning was community improvement financing and Nebraska's community development law. Both are designed to provide communities with tools to help redevelop blighted or deteriorating areas.

GARY E. CARLSON, principal planner for MAPA (Metropolitan Area Planning Agency), Omaha, explained that state lawmakers realized communities needed an alternative plan to help them revitalize blighted areas.

As a result, the community development law and community improvement financing were implemented. "These enable a community to be involved in a public/private relationship," he said.

Although no communities in the state as yet have completed a project through the use of CIF (Community Improvement Funding), Carlson said he encourages communities to participate.

A TYPICAL redevelopment project using CIF is as follows:

According to Carlson, a Community Development Agency must be established by city ordinance, but a City Council can double as the agency.

In addition, a private developer must be contacted to ensure his participation, and the involvement of a planning board (such as the Planning & Zoning Commission) is required.

THE REDEVELOPMENT agency (or development agency) must declare an area as blighted or substandard and then develop a preliminary plan for its improvement. Formal proposals must then be submitted and reviewed for feasibility, cost/benefit and conformance to the redevelopment plan.

A public hearing then is held on all proposals with preliminary approval of a selected proposal to follow. If the planning board rejects the proposals, then these must be resubmitted for approval.

The final redevelopment plan must include a redevelopment contract with the private developer, land use plans, a building design, construction plans and financing plans. After this step is completed, a city ordinance adopting the plan must be approved and a public hearing held on the ordinance.

ANOTHER PUBLIC hearing on a city ordinance authorizing CIF bonds must be held. Bonds issued must be used for acquisition of land, demolition or clearance of land and public improvements such as sewer and water utilities.

The transfer of the redevelopment site to the developer is the next step with reconstruction of the approved redevelopment plan to follow.

Carlson said one of the problems to date has been to make the redevelopment plan attractive enough to the private developer so he will get involved. He added that there is no cost to the municipality or the taxpayer since bonds are involved.

THE MAJOR benefit of the community development project is that once the area has been declared as blighted, the declining assessed value stabilizes and property taxes also level off. Once the project is completed and the bonds are paid off, there is a tremendous increase in the assessed value of the property and in the amount of taxes generated. In other words, improvement of the project helps expand the community's tax base.

Property taxes on the increased value (paid by the owner of the redevelopment site) are applied to the bonds until they are paid off, the planner explained.

GENERAL RULES of thumb for financing redevelopment projects are as follows:

The increased value of the project area should be at least six times the net project cost to be fully self-supporting.

Because of the time lag of acquisition, site preparation, construction, assessment and first increased tax-payment, two or three years' interest must be capitalized into the maximum allowed 15-year bond issue. Thus, only 80 percent or less of the bond proceeds can be used for project costs.

OTHER FUNDING sources may be needed to make a redevelopment project financially feasible. Other funds should be integrated as much as possible, Carlson said.

Sheppard Perkins, Lincoln, deputy director, Division of Community Affairs, Nebraska Department of Economic Development, told the group that "today, there seems to be more emphasis on economic development concerns, probably because the post-World War II boom is over."

Northeast Nebraska has experienced a net loss of population for several years, he noted, which now appears to have subsided. Medium and small sized communities have realized a modest boom recently, Perkins noted, since many innovations have come from these sectors of the economy.

WAYNE COUNTY, however, has been one of the larger losers of population in the 1970's, Bill Martin, Department of Economic Development representative from Norfolk, said. Even in Wayne County, he added, the population slide appears to have halted.

Martin lauded the city of Wayne for its efforts in attracting industry and for buying its own industrial land. "This is going to be an important factor in the growth of the area," he said.

Many Northeast Nebraska communities need to take a lesson from Wayne, Martin said. "Wayne has gone out and gotten its own industry. These are the kinds of efforts all communities should make with a vengeance over the next few years," the DED representative said.

COUNCILS OF Governments (COG) also were discussed in the afternoon session of the meeting, and the possibility of placing an office in Wayne was mentioned.

Herman Tushaus, a Council of Government representative from Yankton, S.D., explained COG accomplishments achieved in South Dakota. He said the COG has created 200 jobs a year, developed safe rural water systems to approximately 4,000 farms and generated $30 to $35 million in a 17-county area.

BASICALLY, COGS provide consulting services, said Dwight Hansen, director of the Extra-Metropolitan Council of Government based in Fremont. Communities involved in the organization "hang together and wait their turn" for improvements, he pointed out.

Bob Wedge, director of the Tri-County Council of Governments which encompasses Cedar, Dixon and Knox Counties, gave a detailed report on the specific duties of COG's.

COUNCILS OF GOVERNMENTS are capable of aiding community improvement in the following ways, Wedge explained: review, community development, water and sewer systems, planning and zoning, general administration, grantsmanship, central purchasing, county-federal liaison, budgeting and finance, rural transportation, transport administration and solid waste.

Bound Over on Theft Charges

Two area men were bound over to Wayne County District Court Thursday after a preliminary hearing in Wayne County Court.

County Judge Stephen Finn of Neligh continued $5,000 bond on Frederick Brink of Wayne and Robert T. Zimmerman, a Wayne State College student from Columbus.

Judge Finn set March 5 for their district court appearance. Zimmerman's case will be heard at 9:30 a.m. with Brink's case scheduled for 11:30 a.m.

The burglary charges stem from break ins at the Wayne Country Club Dec. 22 and at The Joynl, located on the Mineshaft Mall, Dec. 27. Two Norfolk policemen, Robert L. Lankford and Bernard Wynant, were enlisted Jan. 10 by the Wayne Police Department to serve as undercover agents in the investigation.

During testimony Thursday, Wayne police officers, who conducted the investigations, learned through an informant that Zimmerman, who was living in a student residence hall on the WSC campus, reportedly had stereo equipment for sale.

The two agents said they contacted Zimmerman in his room and asked him if he had stereo equipment for sale, telling him they were from Omaha and needed equipment for a lounge they owned.

The Norfolk policemen testified that Zimmerman first denied he had equipment for sale, but later sold him two pieces of equipment which have since been identified as that taken in the two break ins. The purchase was made with $20 bills, whose serial numbers were recorded by Wayne police.

The two Norfolk policemen told the court they were able to identify other stereo equipment in Zimmerman's room. Wayne Police Chief Vern Fairchild obtained two search warrants and picked up the equipment which later was identified as that taken in the break ins.

Zimmerman was arrested by Wayne police Jan. 11 and subsequently charged with possessing and selling stolen goods. After being advised of his rights, he told authorities he purchased the equipment from a third party he could not identify.

Later, after talking with his father, Zimmerman said he and Brink broke into the Country Club and The Joynl. Two of the $20 bills used in the purchase were found in his possession.

Police arrested Brink at his home here Jan. 11 after being implicated by Zimmerman. Police recovered more stereo equipment stored in plastic garbage bags in the Brink home.

Meet America's Biggest Growth Industry

Richard L. Leshner, President Chamber of Commerce of the United States

Congressman Herb Harris is not one who fears adding insult to injury. At a time when inflation and taxes have risen to their most punishing levels in postwar history, the Northern Virginia legislator has dreamed up the ultimate cure for an ailing economy—a bill to significantly increase the size of the federal bureaucracy.

At first glance, the bill, (HR-4717), seems quite innocent. In fact, it's loaded with lots of reassuring rhetoric like "cost-effectiveness" and "personnel ceilings." But these are mere buzz words. In truth, the legislation would present the federal government with an almost irresistible temptation not to contract out with private firms for goods and services it needs.

As a federal reporter for "The Washington Star" matter-of-factly explained: "Those agencies that increased in-house activities would be rewarded as far as their personnel ceilings are concerned, while those expanding their contracting out functions would be penalized." Not surprisingly, the nation's principal federal union, the American Federation of Government Employees, is a strong supporter of the Harris bill.

One of the longest standing traditions of this country has been for government to rely upon competitive private bids for the goods and services it needs. President Carter put the issue in a nutshell when he started in 1976: "When there's a choice to be made between the private sector and the government, my option would be for the private sector to assume the responsibility."

The reason this policy has endured so long is quite simple—it works. Take a look at the space program. When most Americans think of our space effort, they think only of NASA, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Actually, by the mid-1960's, some 20,000 companies were all working together on a least cost bid basis to spend our astronauts to the moon and bring them back.

Nowhere in the Harris bill is there any affirmation that the government will continue relying upon competitive enterprise to supply needed goods and services. Instead, the bill could literally devastate small business while placing the country squarely on the road to socialism. One top official of the Office of Management and Budget, W. Bowman Cutler, publicly testified that it would add a new bureaucratic machine, generate enormous paperwork and provide subtle but clear incentives to agencies not to contract out in order to increase their staff.

And why not? Unlike private industry, where career progress depends upon one's ability to minimize costs while accomplishing objectives, a government employee's promotion often depends upon the size of his budget and the number of people who report to him. There are built-in disincentives to reducing the size of the bureaucracy. But the Harris bill would transform this bad situation into a dreadful one. Once a federal agency head knew he could acquire additional personnel simply by converting a project to in-house performance, and that he would risk losing personnel by contracting out a new project, guess which option he would choose?

Ironically, Mr. Harris argues his bill would help taxpayers, claiming government grows because of excessive contracting out, and contending federal employees can do the same work more cheaply themselves. He puts the cart before the horse. The reason there is more contracting out is because people in Congress especially people like Mr. Harris, keep voting to spend more of the public's money.

To contend government usually can do any given job more efficiently than private industry is truly to believe in the Easter Bunny or the Tooth Fairy, but not in tangible realities like free competition. Cities all across the country are saving taxpayers millions by contracting out for such services as fire protection, garbage collection and even limited police work. A recent study by the Rand Corporation concluded the Defense Department alone could save $1 billion a year by using private firms to perform work now done by 250,000 civil service employees. Scores of competitions between government and industry document the cost-effectiveness of contracting out.

Mr. Harris' bill represents one of the biggest federal employee relief bills ever. How your Congressman eventually votes on this bill will tell you a lot about where his or her priorities really lie—with those who pay most of America's taxes... or those who spend them.

An Anti-Inflation Strategy for the 80s

Chamber of Commerce Business News Feature

Americans are not saving as much of their earnings as they used to. And without adequate savings, the nation cannot invest in new plants and new technology. Without such investments, productivity declines. When productivity declines, consumers get less for their money. Inflation.

This sort of thinking currently is picking up momentum in the nation's capital, and it explains why so much is heard today about the low savings rate in the United States. Actually, we have had a poor record in this respect for the past decade.

From 1970 through 1978, the rate of personal savings in the United States ranked at the bottom (6.6 percent of disposable personal income) in a list of industrialized countries led by Japan (20.5 percent).

Not surprisingly the same list showed that in capital investment—the lifeblood of new plants, machinery, technology and jobs—we also ranked at the bottom of the list.

Similar problems confront both individuals and corporations. The combination of high inflation and higher taxes has undercut purchasing power and the ability of either to set aside earnings for investment.

taxpayers primarily, also are proposed:

- Reduce the maximum tax rate on investment income from 70 percent to 50 percent, the same as for earned income.
- Defer taxes on savings accounts by allowing the interest, dividend or gain to accumulate tax free until it is withdrawn.
- Defer tax on stock dividends (30,000 for joint returns) of stock dividends which are immediately reinvested in new stock of the same company. Capital gains tax would be paid when the stock is sold.
- Allow employees tax deductions for contributions to an employer's retirement plan or an individual retirement account (IRA) and increasing limits for tax free contributions under IRA plans and Keogh plans.

— Add an exclusion for interest income to the present exclusion of the first $100 of dividend income.

The new approach for economic policy in the 1980's also has received endorsement from President Carter, who in his recent State of the Union message, said: "... a significant part of any tax reduction should be directed to the provision of incentives for increased investment, to improve productivity, expand capacity and adjust to higher energy prices."

But he insisted now is not the time for tax reductions.

Seriously, though, isn't it time for a fundamental change in economic policy?

Year	Inflation Rate	Hourly Earnings Increase	Savings: Passbook Yield	Dividend Yield	Savings Rate
1973	6.2%	6.2%	5.25%	3.06%	7.8%
1974	11.0	7.9	5.25	4.47	7.3
1975	9.1	8.4	5.25	4.31	7.7
1976	5.8	7.2	5.25	3.77	5.8
1977	6.5	7.5	5.25	4.62	5.0
1978	7.7	8.5	5.25	5.28	4.9
1979	11.3	8.0	5.5	5.28	4.5

But there are other pervasive if subtle reasons why savings are on the decline. And the government itself is the fault.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce, in recent testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee, explained how our tax laws currently discourage savings and investment and why they should be changed to spur investment that will improve productivity and help restore the U.S. dollar.

Instead of continuing government policies designed to encourage spending, or consumption, the Chamber favors use of tax laws to make savings more attractive.

As matters now stand, the Chamber said, tax laws are biased against earnings from investments, such as savings accounts, bonds and stocks.

"Other sources of income, such as wage or Social Security benefits, are better protected against inflation since they are adjusted or indexed for changes in prices," said Donald C. Alexander, a former Commissioner of Internal Revenue, testifying as a witness for the Chamber.

This "disparity"—as the Chamber terms it—is illustrated by a charge submitted to the House Ways and Means Committee.

The table shows how hourly earnings rose with the cost of living, although never quite catching up, of course, while earnings or investment income fell behind.

The Chamber recommends tax relief for 1980 of about $25 billion, accompanied by significant cuts in federal spending, with approximately half of the tax relief directed to capital investment. It supports a proposal called the Capital Cost Recovery Act, which would accelerate tax write-offs to which business is normally entitled for its investments in new plants and equipment.

As they used to say in the social columns of yesteryear, a good time was had by all. We're referring, of course, to the Wayne Herald-State National Bank encounter on the basketball court last Sunday.

The meeting, the first of its kind, was to raise funds for establishment of a scholarship for a Wayne-Carroll athlete to attend Wayne State College.

Staffers at the bank and the paper have been avid backers of athletics at Wayne State and are concerned about ways to improve the programs. One way, we all feel, is to keep some of the local talent here.

Considerable talent has slipped through the fingers of WSC recruiters in recent times, and other colleges have benefited while Wayne State has not.

Take for instance Peg Pinkelman of Wayne who is one of the league and team leaders at Northeast Nebraska Technical College in Norfolk. There are many who wonder why she chose Northeast Tech over WSC. So do we.

And how about Tom Ginn, whose father is a political science instructor at WSC. He is attending Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln and is expected to be a baseball standout there in short time. He was at Wayne-Carroll High, too.

Vic Sharpe, whose father is Wayne Carroll High basketball coach, is yet another example of talent out the door. He is attending York Junior College and will play baseball for them.

There is other talent in the area which apparently has escaped the grasp of WSC recruiters. Susie Erwin, Allen, is attending Doane and plays basketball. Her sisters are top talent here. Steve Anderson, Laurel, is at Platte College. Jill Stenwall, Winside is at Kearney, etc., etc.

Critics of the WSC athletic program say recruiters here overlook local and area talent in favor of imported material. Hundreds and hundreds of dollars have been spent attracting athletes from as far away as North Carolina and Illinois, yet athletic programs here continue to decline.

The use of such money could be better used, and could be spread farther, locally. The import of athletic ability apparently isn't making sports here any better.

Many will jump up and say, yeah, but don't you think academics should be emphasized more than athletics? You bet your sweet bippy, I do. But I also am open minded enough to realize a good, well rounded athletic program will help attract more and better students.

OUT OF OLD NEBRASKA

by the Nebraska State Historical Society

The "Narrow Gauge Mule," Or the Nebraska jack rabbit

Humor was "stock in trade for the old time Nebraska weekly editor. He was never backward about inserting bits of it into ordinary news articles to enliven his writing. Often his own "compositor," that is, putting his own thoughts into type—a long, painstaking procedure—was reluctant to "kill" the product of his labor even when it was bad humor. When he reflected unduly on the idiosyncrasies of his readers, and there is considerable evidence of it (see newspaper files at Nebraska State Historical Society), they took violent exception on occasion.

But when he sat down to do a humorous essay on a topic that amused him, he might come up with a line piece of writing. From the following feature article set two-column width in the same battered "body type" as his news columns but dressed up with a swash initial letter, it can be seen that editor J.W. Wright of the "Chadron Journal" (March 26, 1897) felt a bit of pride in his treatise on jack rabbits.

"The natives call him a 'narrow gauge mule', Noah Webster in his famous treatise on 'Verbosity,' calls him a jackrabbit. He stands about eighteen inches high—when he's standing on all fours. He's lying most of the time, however, having been obliged to adopt this plan to keep pace with the fellows who hunt him and tell you about what great luck they had. In actual length he is about two and a half feet, his apparent length being from six feet to a quarter of a mile, depending upon the proximity of the dog. The casual observer watching a heaped chase sees a light grey speck rise about two feet in the air at the nose end of a greyhound. In the fraction of a second the head end of the speck can be readily distinguished from the tail end, and from that moment the head end appears to travel while the tail end remains stationary until the light-grey speck has developed into a light-grey line anywhere from six feet to a quarter of a mile in length. The greyhound, be it remarked, never seems to get any nearer the tail end than he was when he started. In about two minutes by the watch, the head end of the light grey line has advanced another quarter of a mile and has disappeared over a sandhill, and the chase is over.

"The narrow gauge mule is a very reticent fellow, but is a remarkably good listener, as you will be convinced if you ever get near enough to see his ears. Next to his legs these are his most important organs. Lying well hidden in the long grass he elevates them above the waving blades and hears everything that is going on for miles around. He is able to use them, also, to scratch the small of his back—the spot that a man cannot reach and that always itches the most persistently.

"With the aid of powerful field-glasses, or by noting the foot-prints in the snow where he has traveled, you are able to get some idea of his peculiar gait. The right front foot is advanced a couple of inches beyond the

Baseball Team on Southern Trip

Building on the strength of a National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics All-American, two other district all-stars and the momentum gained from last year's District 11 Championship, the Wayne State College baseball team was scheduled to open its 1980 season at 1 p.m. Sunday against Central Oklahoma State in Edmond, Okla. The doubleheader against Central Oklahoma opens a six-day, 12-game southern swing for the Wildcats.

The Wildcats, 23-22 in 1979, will be relying heavily on the play of sophomores Bill Schwartz and Mike Meyer and junior Brian Blatchford. Schwartz and Meyer, both from Wayne, were District 11 all-stars last year. In addition, first baseman Schwartz used a team-leading .384 batting average, 7 home runs and 32 RBIs to earn a NAIA All-American berth. Meyer batted .337 with 4 home runs and 15 RBIs, plus the sophomore was outstanding in the field. The Wayne product was errorless in 39 games last year. Blatchford, Ponca, was a .324 hitter last season with 5 home runs and 29 RBIs. The junior was tied for third in total hits last year with 36 while earning District 11 all-star status.

Other returning Wildcats expected to fill starting roles are: senior Mike Test, Norfolk, at third base; senior Tony Piscicola, Aurora, Colo., at second base; senior Dewey Edgar, Millard, a pitcher; senior Mark Larson, Millard, Iowa, a pitcher; and senior Lenhy Klaver, Kamrar, Iowa, also a pitcher.

Head coach Ron Jones, who missed last year's district championship season while on sabbatical leave, said the Wildcat pitching staff is his biggest concern. Despite having three of last year's top hurlers back (Edgar, Larson and Klaver) Jones indicated that two newcomers will need to have strong seasons in order to give the Cats needed depth and relief help.

Wildcat basketball player Grady Hansen, an all-Metro performer in baseball last year at Omaha Central High school will see some early action on the mound. The 6-7 freshman will probably be worked in gradually since he has had limited time to throw while a member of the basketball squad. Rocky Thompson, a freshman from Neligh, is also counted on for some early pitching help.

Defensively the Wildcats are untested at two key positions, shortstop and center field. Junior College transfer Mark Glatzer, Shelby, will get the nod at shortstop while sophomore Ken Murcek, Omaha, will start in centerfield. Glatzer transferred to Wayne State from Sioux Empire Junior College in Hawarden, Iowa, and head coach Jones said he has been impressed with the junior's hitting. Murcek transferred to Wayne State from Mid-Plains Community College in North Platte.

Track Team Takes Second

Wayne State College used two first place finishes in field events and a first place finish in the two-mile run to capture second place in the Nebraska Wesleyan Indoor Track Triangular Thursday in Lincoln.

The Wildcats swept the long jump competition with Merlin Lahm, in first; Rick Lade in second and Kevin McNichols in third. Lahm's winning jump covered 20 feet 7 inches.

Wayne State's other first place finishers were Dave McNeel in the pole vault and Gary Steinhauer in the two-mile run. McNeel vaulted 13 feet 4 inches to win while Steinhauer finished the two-mile run in a

Chadron Ends Bleak WS Season

By Kevin Weiberg
Wayne State SID

Wayne State College ended its 1979-80 basketball season with a 56-52 loss to Chadron State Thursday night in Wayne.

The Eagles won their 20th game of the season at the free throw line downing 20 to 23 charity shots, while the Wildcats could manage only 14 of 19. Tony Smith gave Chadron the lead for good with 2:30 left in the first half when he made both ends of a one and one free throw to give the Eagles a 24-22 lead. Smith then scored the game's next three points, all at the free throw line, and the Eagles were on their way to a 31-27 halftime lead.

In the second half, Chadron led 49-41 with 6:38 remaining when Wayne State pieced together a final comeback effort. The Wildcats scored seven straight points, five by senior guard Willie Summers who ended his career with 15 points, to close the gap to 49-48 with 5:25 left.

The Eagles then took over at the charity stripe making seven of eight free throws down the stretch to secure the 56-52 win. Chadron State sophomore Mike Miller made four straight free throws in the last 22 seconds, both one and one free throws and both with the Eagles in front by only two points.

Turnabout is fair play and the Allen Eagles took advantage of Leap Year Day to jump into a brand new season by qualifying for the Nebraska Girls' State Tournament, Friday night.

After an ice cold first quarter, Allen put its offense to work and gained a 48-39 win over Humphrey in Class D regional playoffs at Winside. The win sends the Eagles to the state tourney, scheduled Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 6, 7, and 8 in Lincoln.

The Allen girls and coaches were greeted by a 22 car caravan just south of Allen on their return trip from Winside.

About 350 Eagle fans turned out for the game, which was played before a full house.

Class D action will open at Lincoln High School, Thursday with games scheduled at 12 noon, 2 p.m., 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. Semifinals will also be played in Lincoln High's gym at 3 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. on Friday. Finals are scheduled at 3 p.m. Saturday.

As a wildly excited mob of fans burst onto the Winside gym floor, no one could have been more elated than sophomore Des Williams or junior Lisa Erwin. Those two led the three quarter offensive display which was responsible for the victory.

This will be the second state berth in three years for the Eagles, who competed in the 1978 tournament. Last year, Allen finished the season undefeated only to be upset by Bancroft 34-32 in districts.

Humphrey and Allen were both lighter than a violin string in the first quarter. After a scoreless four minutes of play, Humphrey opened up an 8-2 lead at the end of the first quarter. Des Williams scored the only basket for the Eagles that period.

Williams and Stacey Koester wasted little time leading a rally which tied the game at 10-10 and led to an eventual advantage of 22-16 at the half. Allen's pressure defense bothered the Bulldogs and forced several turnovers.

Koester scored all six of her points in the second quarter. Williams, who definitely had the hot hand, more than made up for the cold shooting of most of her teammates. The Eagles needed a scoring threat and she took over, hitting 10 points in the quarter — two points more than the entire Humphrey team.

Humphrey pulled back within one point at 25-24 but that was as close as they got. Lisa Erwin warmed up her shooting touch and took over where Williams left off, scoring 14 points in the second half, mostly from the outside.

"The last five games, we decided we can play together as a team," said Allen coach Dale Jackson. The Eagles have defeated Coleridge, Macy, Walthill, Decatur and now Humphrey in their last five games, improving their record to 10-7.

"I think it just took the girls that long to get used to a new coach and new system," said the first year coach. "We knew we had the capability of playing this well. It was just a matter of time."

Blakeman: "Refing is First Love"

Put a whistle in his mouth and a striped shirt on his back and Glen Blakeman is ready to go to work.

The 47-year-old Norfolk native started refereeing in 1949 and has had a full basketball schedule (50 games or more per season) for 18 years. During the 1979-80 season, he was scheduled to work 71 games.

Blakeman has been a familiar face at the Nebraska Boys' State Basketball Tournament. He has worked the tourney for the past five years and would be back in Lincoln again this year if rules permitted. But Nebraska School Activities Association rules force Blakeman to take a two-year break after the five year tenure.

So instead, he has applied for a similar job in the Nebraska Girls' State Tournament, scheduled March 6, 7, and 8 in Lincoln.

One look at Blakeman and you know he's not your everyday, ordinary, run of the mill referee. With his whistle stuffed up in his cheek like a plug of chewing tobacco, Blakeman is seen constantly talking to players.

"Watch your hands, number 45," Blakeman can be heard to say. "We want a basketball game not a free throw shooting contest."

What umpire Ron Luciano does for professional baseball, Blakeman tries to do for amateur basketball. He adds color to the sport.

A habit that got started several years ago has turned into a trademark for the Norfolk native. He's known in Northeast Nebraska as the ref with the whistle in his cheek. He prefers to encompass the entire whistle in his mouth for two basic reasons.

"If I put my whistle in my mouth, I can tell a player to keep his hands off and I don't have to take the whistle out to warn them. It's also safer during jump balls. Before, if I threw up the ball for a jump, I could get hit by the whistle and cut my lip," Blakeman explained. "It has become a habit and a trademark. It's always a conversation piece for the kids. They get a kick out of it."

Former Golf Pro

Blakeman was a golf professional at Norfolk for 15 years and now works as a representative for Nebraska Sports Industries of Norfolk.

During his 30 years of refing, Blakeman said he has worked many exciting games and has had several embarrassing moments.

One of his most important refing was the University of Nebraska at Omaha versus Kearney State game to decide a regional playoff berth in 1974, he said. But, Blakeman insists every game is a big one.

One of the most embarrassing moments on the basketball court occurred when Blakeman was working a game between Hastings College and Concordia. Just as second half action began, the seat of his black trousers split up the middle. He was forced to referee the entire second half of the game under the uncomfortable conditions.

Also a College Scout

The veteran ref has traveled as far as 250 miles one way to work a game and has seen many talented athletes in action. For that reason numerous college coaches contact Blakeman to inquire about possible recruits. Representatives from Hastings College, UNO, Morningside, Northeast Tech, Yankton, Briar Cliff and Wayne State all have discussed recruits with him.

"I've seen so many players that I know which ones have college potential. Year in and year out, Northeast Nebraska has lots of good players. I really think that we have better players than many other areas," Blakeman said.

"You can't find talent any better than Lyons had last year. Hartington Cedar Catholic has four or five guys this year who can play small college basketball. Bloomfield has a 6-4 junior who is a heck of a player. Dan Falter of Creighton will be a dandy for someone to catch and Mary Jo Riley of O'Neill is an excellent player. Those are just a few."

Blakeman is a firm believer in recruiting area athletes and points out the success that Northeast Tech of Norfolk has had in recent years.

Three or four years ago, Northeast Tech recruited area talent and now they're winning with Northeast Nebraska kids. That's proof that there are good ball players in the area. Coaches must show interest," said Blakeman. "The crowds at Northeast Tech are tremendous. They draw 1,500 to 1,800 people for every home game."

The Wayne State graduate says he refs because he loves high school and college athletics. "They need dedicated officials. Like my wife said, I'd work for nothing. Each year I get more and more jobs. I already have 41 games under contract for next year," Blakeman emphasized.

Referees average about $30 for a high school game and between $50 and $60 for a college game, Blakeman said.

Long Road to the Top

To become a registered referee in Nebraska, a person must pay a $7.50 fee and pass an open book test. After three years, a registered ref may become an approved official by passing a closed book test.

After two years as an approved official, the next step is to become a certified official. To do this, a referee must score at least 90 percent on a closed book examination. Blakeman has been certified for eight years. All officials must be re-certified every three years.

"I want players to know I'm not their enemy. I talk to the kids for fun and tell them to keep their hands off. I don't want a free throw shooting contest," he stated.

"It's gratifying to walk in a gym and have the kids know me. I try to get a closeness between the official and the players. I warn the players before the game about fouls so they know what to expect. They don't shoot as many free throws as most teams do in a normal game."

According to Blakeman, fan reaction has improved in the last five years and he credits a relatively new bench decorum rule for a major portion of the improvement. The rule requires the coach to stay in his area at the bench. With the coaches restricted, the fans don't get upset with the officiating as often as they did in the past, Blakeman explained.

"Sometimes fans try to intimidate young officials. I try to go over there and visit with the coach and fans during a timeout," he said.

Blakeman has been invited to work the National Small College Tournament in Indiana City, Indiana. He worked part of the same tourney when it was played in Norfolk in the past couple of years.

Coached at Herman

Before becoming a ref, Blakeman coached basketball at Herman for seven years and compiled a 143-23 career record. His teams twice reached the finals of the Class D State Tournament.

Although Blakeman is on the road nearly every night, he says his family doesn't mind. His youngest son often travels with him. His other son Cleve will be playing for Norfolk High School next year so Blakeman hopes to thin down his schedule, allowing him to watch his son play.

"My wife Marlene knows refing is my first love so it's no problem. It's the thing I really enjoy doing and I plan to do it as long as I can."

Teams Seven, One Top C League Race

Team Seven held onto first place in the Men's Recreation C League standings by nipping Team Six 44-40, Wednesday night. In other action, Team One remained in second place with a 57-53 overtime win over Team Five and Team Four edged Team Two 56-53 in another overtime game.

Sixth Win Not Easy

Team Seven won its sixth game in seven starts this season 44-40, despite an upset threat by scrappy Team Six.

Sid Hillier scored 17 points and Bill Corbit hit 13 to lead Team Seven to the win. An eighth point first half lead slipped in the third and fourth periods as Team Six rallied. Don Zeiss and Duane Blomkamp paced the losers with 10 points each and Bob Ensz added eight.

Team Seven (6-1): Hillier, 17; Dufman, 5; Corbit, 13; Casey, 5; Jerry Dorcey, 4. Team Six (2-5): Zeiss, 10; Blomkamp, 10; March, 6; Ensz, 8; Wriedt, 4; Rise, 2.

Four Points in Overtime

Two free throws by Ric Wilson and a field goal by Bill Blacke provided the winning margin for Team One in a 57-53 overtime triumph over Team Five.

The game was tied 53-53 at the end of regulation and Team One scored all four points in the overtime.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Mascell

I ENJOYED myself at the Nebraska State Wrestling Tournament but was also glad to get back into good old quiet Wayne, last Saturday night. Congratulations to the area wrestlers who qualified for the state meet and even more congratulations to the medal winners.

I got back into Wayne just in time to watch the second half of the Wayne State - Kearney State basketball game, last Saturday. It was nice to see Rice Auditorium packed to the brim for once, although some of the fan reaction got out of hand.

Then, on Sunday, the employees of The Wayne Herald and the State National Bank employees played a benefit basketball game. It was a lot of fun for both teams.

The proceeds of the game will be used to help send a Wayne High athlete to Wayne State College. The athlete will be selected later in the school year. Special thanks to Frank Teach, Mike Carney, Dale Boyle, Chuck Barnes, Hank Overin, the score keepers and the State Bank employees for making the game possible.

THE EAGLES of Allen qualified for the Nebraska Girls' State Tournament with a big win over Humphrey Friday night in regional playoffs. To reach the regional game, Allen defeated Waitstill in a rematch and upset number one rated Decatur in districts. Congratulations and good luck at state.

SOURCES REPORTED to me last week about a couple of area residents who went golfing out west while on vacation. Jim Marsh, business manager of The Herald and his wife drove out to Phoenix, Arizona with Dick Pfanz and his wife.

When they reached Phoenix, they planned to visit former Wayne resident Roy Hurd. Jim, who is famous at The Herald for always planning ahead, pulled a typical stunt. He had no street address or phone number of the Hurd family with him and had a hard time finding his home.

Jim kept insisting that he would be able to recognize Hurd's house if they ever got close but after 2½ hours of driving around Phoenix, they had to give up. Because Hurd's phone number is unlisted, Marsh had to place a phone call back to Nebraska to learn Hurd's phone number and address.

They finally reached their destination and realized that they had been within three or four blocks of the Hurd residence.

Another story comes back from California. Wayne businessman Joe Nuss took his vacation on the west coast and while staying with friend Dave Hauk, constantly boasted about his fine golf game. After listening to Nuss brag about his game during the recent rain storms, Hauk and two friends took Joe out on the local course and whipped him badly. It seems Nuss was stretching the truth about his golfing prowess.

Jaycee Wrestling Planned

Elementary school wrestlers will take to the mats, Saturday, March 22 in the second annual Wayne Jaycees' Wrestling Tournament, planned in the Wayne High School gymnasium.

The tournament will be open to any boys in kindergarten through sixth grade. Entry fee is two dollars per individual. The tourney is divided into junior division (kindergarten through third grade) and a senior division (fourth grade through sixth grade). Wrestlers will compete in various weight classes within the divisions.

Weight-ins are scheduled from 8 a.m. to 9:30 the day of the meet and first round competition will begin at 10 a.m. Divisions will be limited to eight wrestlers in each weight class and medals will be presented for first, second and third places.

Entry forms are available through Wayne wrestling coach Don Koenig, tournament director Gary West or wrestling coaches at various schools. They should be filled out and returned by March 15 to Don Koenig, Wayne High School, Wayne, Nebraska 68787.

Wayne High School wrestlers will assist Koenig and the Wayne Jaycees in coordinating the tournament.

Proceeds will be used to purchase warm-up uniforms for the Wayne High wrestling team. Any remaining proceeds will be put into a scholarship fund to help send a Wayne High senior to college.

A concession stand, operated by the Mrs. Jaycees, will be open all day.

Ponca Stops The Trojans

Meeting the same team twice within one week can sometimes be dangerous, especially if a team is as talented as Ponca. The Wakefield Trojans, who defeated Ponca 70-66 in overtime last Friday, were soundly defeated 71-51 by the same ball club, Thursday night in Class C-4 boys' districts at Laurel.

The Trojans got off to a slow start and found themselves behind 16-8 after the first quarter and 36-18 at the half. Four players scored in double figures for Ponca with Kevin Dohma hitting 14 points.

"Ponca played real well and their defense caused us a lot of problems. It was a credit to them, they had command of the game," said Wakefield coach Ernie Kovar. "We had a good year and played good basketball in Wakefield, which had a 6-5 record at one time this year, finishes its season at 12-6. Ponca scored the first seven points of the second quarter before the Trojans even crossed the half court line, stretching a five point lead into a 12 point advantage."

Scott Hallstrom led Wakefield with 20 points and Barry Jones added a dozen points and a dozen rebounds. Tom Preston made four assists. The Trojans hit 38.5 percent of their field goal attempts compared to 49 percent for Ponca.

...how trading at home
makes more sense today
than ever before

Economic disarray cramps our national economy at times, and naturally affects our individual and local financial well-being.

At such times, it becomes even more worthwhile to keep our money turning over—and over—at home, where $1 can generate $4 or $5 in trade volume to help keep our stores well-stocked, our people (us) employed, and our public services efficient.
