City Council Rejects Double Bid

Rejecting an opinion by its attorney, the City Council Tuesday night voted with its conscience in awarding a bid involving water line construction in Marywood Subdivision.

CITY ATTORNEY Kem Swarts recommended that based on his interpretation of state statutes the Council was legally bound to accept the low bid of Haas Industries Inc. of Fremont for construction of a water extension district in the new subdivision.

But the Council felt otherwise, agreeing by a 4-3 vote with contractor Cliff Albin of Oakland who said Haas had been allowed to submit a double bid, a "highly irregular" situation.

VOTING FOR a motion to accept the Albin bid based on the fact that Haas submitted two bids were Council members Sam Hepburn, Darrel Heier, Leo Hansen and Larry Johnson. Voting against the motion were Darrel Fuelberth, Carolyn Filler and Cliff Ginn.

Attorney Swarts agreed that the situation was in fact unethical, but said he felt the Council was bound by laws of the state to accept the low bid of Haas Industries.

THE PROBLEM arose at the last regular Council meeting when bids were opened on three construction phases in Marywood Subdivision: extension of water, sewer and paving facilities.

When specifications on the water extension district were drawn up by the city's engineer, only one fire hydrant was listed. However, realizing its error, the engineering firm of Bruce Gilmore & Associates mailed an amendment (or addendum) to the specs saying that three hydrants were to be bid rather than one.

APPARENTLY through oversight, Haas Industries bid a unit price for one hydrant while other bidders bid on three. Seeing that Haas had made an oversight, and because it was the apparent low bidder, Gilmore and the city attorney allowed the contractor to rebid the item. As a result, Haas provided the two other hydrants free of charge, thus keeping the original bid as the lowest.

Despite his legal opinion to the contrary, attorney Swarts said "from an ethical standpoint, maybe you (Albin) should have had the bid, but from a legal standpoint, Haas should have."

DENNIS Hirschbruner, representative from Gilmore & Associates, agreed that "normally in the (construction) industry, we go by the unit price" in accepting a bid. And based on the unit price, the Haas bid would have been higher than the Albin bid, he said.

In a related matter, the Council approved resolutions accepting bids on the three phases. The bids totaled $121,054, with construction expected to begin in about six weeks.

The bid for paving went to Gill Construction Co., Jackson, in the amount of $78,050; Haas Industries for sewer in the amount of $22,983; and Albin Construction Co. for water in the amount of $20,020.

ACTION ON A proposed policy recommendation involving conflict of interest between the city, area developers and engineers once again was delayed.

Tuesday night's meeting was the third time the item had been included on the agenda. However, without taking any kind of Council vote, the item was shoved back another week.

At the last regular meeting, City Administrator Darrell Brewington, who made the original recommendation, was instructed to contact other communities comparable to Wayne about their policies.

BREWINGTON had done as instructed and had provided the Council with his findings. However, without explanation, Councilman Cliff Ginn suggested the Council wait two more weeks before taking "definitive action."

The Council also deferred action on its involvement in construction of a sewer line from Claybamb Road to a Wayne State College maintenance building west of Pat Gross' home in Tara Ridge Subdivision.

AT THE LAST Council meeting, Gross asked the Council to investigate the responsibility of constructing the sewer line. He requested that attorneys for the city and for the college review state statutes to determine who has legal authority to construct the sewer line.

Duane Schroeder, attorney for Wayne State College, also tossed the ball into the Council's court by asking three questions:

Does the college have the right of legal access to the city's sewer?
Who pays for access to the city sewer?
Where is the access to be located?

"IT APPEARS to me to be more of a matter of engineering and politics than a matter of law," Schroeder told the Council. "But I trust the city is not going to prohibit access to the city's sewer."

He asked that the city make its determination "fairly promptly because time is against us."

In rebuttal, Gross said he feels the city has the legal responsibility of constructing the sewer. "The college does not have the authority to put it (the sewer) in, but the city does," Gross contended.

Gross said he does not want the sewer line, which will involve a construction trench some 18 feet deep, to cross his property, which he admitted was the city's right of way.

IF THE CITY constructs the sewer, "I have someone to come back to" if something goes wrong, he explained. "But if the college constructs the line, 'I don't have any recourse.'"

In other action, the Council approved resolutions involving the Nebraska Community Improvement Program and Community Recognition Program. For more information, see story elsewhere on this page.

THE COUNCIL also approved a resolution amendment involving the baseball park and accepted the resignation of John Dorcay as a member of the Board of Adjustments. The position will be filled later.

All Council members except Keith Mosley were present and all actions were unanimous unless noted otherwise.

Only His Shadow Knows

DUBIOUS DUKE THE Dog, buoyed by unseasonably chilly temperatures of late, peeks ruefully from the shelter of his dog house for a glimpse of his shadow. Will there be more winter, he ponders? A year ago, Duke recalls, the Wayne area was suffering aftereffects from a late winter blizzard which paralyzed the area. Spring, officially scheduled to arrive next Thursday morning, surely won't be as elusive this year.

Kiwanis Names Ring Outstanding Farmer

Merle Ring, Route 2, Wayne, is recipient of two honors this week. First, being named the Wayne Kiwanis Club's Outstanding Farmer of the Year, and second, he has been named Outstanding Farmer in Kiwanis District 14.

RING AND HIS wife, Donna, received the Wayne Kiwanis honor Monday noon during the regular Kiwanis luncheon meeting.

Ring's name and materials have been forwarded to the Nebraska-Iowa District chairman for regional competition.

A 1949 graduate of Wayne State College, Ring owns a half section of land four miles east and about a half-mile south of Wayne. He began farming in 1951 shortly after getting married, renting from his parents at the time.

IN 1971, he bought the ground he now owns. He is a long-time promoter of minimum tillage and uses equipment which helps promote this.

Ring's entire farm is contoured and terraced and all waterways and field borders are seeded to brume.

The bottomland has been filled and now consistently produces 130-140 bushels of corn per acre.

BECAUSE HIS college degree was in business and accounting, he does all of his own bookkeeping. Anything and everything is accurately accounted for, he explains. A follower of the latest ideas in computer-age farming, Ring monitors his corn planter for more precision planting rates.

In 1965, he built his first 20 x 60 upright silo and added an 8,000 bushel high-moisture bin in 1966. In 1972, another upright silo was added.

EVERYTHING produced on his farm is fed and marketed through his cattle, but some additional purchases of corn are needed. He has expanded his cattle operation gradually, he explained, feeding out about 600 head annually now.

He has been a member of the County Extension Board for three years, is an 18 year member of the American Legion Post No. 81, is a member of Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association and National Cattlemen's Association and the County FHA board.

HIS FAMILY is one of nine that organized the Wayne County Farm Bureau about 18 years ago. He has held various positions in the organization as it has grown into 340 families. The two years he served as membership chairman, Wayne County was the first in Nebraska to achieve membership goals.

The Ring family takes an active part in the Christian Church at Wakefield. He is an elder and has served as chairman of the church during the construction period of the new church and parsonage.

HE AND HIS wife have served as youth sponsors several years involving trips to the Rock Mountains, Black Hills, various camping trips, etc. Ring has been church organist for 25 years and his wife the church pianist.

The family takes an active part in community and civic affairs in the area, particularly in the area of music. All of the family plays musical instruments.

Board Okays Contracts

All Wayne-Carroll School District certified staff were approved for contracts by the board of education at the regular board meeting Monday night.

UPON recommendation of all three district principals and Supt. Francis Haun, the board moved to offer contracts to all faculty for the 1980-81 school year.

Haun noted this year is the first in several that the staff has not been reduced by one full time person. However, he added that due to declining enrollment, there has been some reduction in staff assignments.

IN A RELATED matter, Haun said there is little chance that negotiations between the Wayne Education Association and board will be completed before mid-April.

The board entered into executive session about 8:30 p.m. to discuss negotiations strategy, returning to regular session and adjourning about 10 p.m. The board will meet with representatives of WEA March 19 for negotiations. No other action was taken.

THE BOARD gave its approval to purchase of 101 band uniforms and incidentals for the district's marching and concert bands.

A committee consisting of representatives of the school board, faculty and band parents has been meeting for several weeks, reviewing uniform styles, materials and bids.

The tentative bid of Medalist Stanbury Co., Brookfield, Mo., has been accepted. The total amount is $18,974.41 and includes uniforms for the flag corps, two drum majorettes, etc.

OTHER BIDS were $19,026 from Fruhauf Uniform Co., Wichita, Kan., and Niscenger Uniform Co., Topeka, Kan. The Stanbury bid was chosen because of higher quality materials and craftsmanship in their uniforms, reported band director Ron Dalton.

The board also received a position booklet on driver education as prepared by the State Department of Public Instruction.

Purpose of the booklet is to provide school board members, superintendents, principals and driver education instructors with a ready reference for those occasions when questions arise concerning driver and traffic safety education.

THIS INFORMATION is intended to assist decision-making in determining quality education programs for young drivers, the booklet said.

The booklet compiles pertinent material drawn from a number of sources, into one brief publication. As a result, it can be an especially valuable orientation tool, it stated.

The board instructed Superintendent Haun to take the necessary administrative steps in deciding whether to plant a hedge along the south edge of school property.

PROPERTY OWNERS in the area have asked permission to plant a hedge, at their expense, to act as a windbreak and snow barrier. Haun will make further inquiries before making a decision.

In other action, the board heard a report from board President Neil Sandahl about a Legislative Day he attended recently sponsored by Nebraska State School Boards Association.

All board members were present with member Dale Stoltenberg arriving about 8 p.m.

GARY Vopalensky, who has filed for school board, and Bob Jordan were visitors. All actions were unanimous.

ANOTHER FILING Becky Keidel, Wayne, is the latest person to file for Wayne Carroll School District board of education. This brings the total number of persons filing to five, with only seals held by Jim Hummel, Neil Sandahl and Dorothy Ley up for grabs May 13. Gary Vopalensky is the other person to file.

'Suite' Set

THE WAYNE Community Theatre is in its final week of rehearsals for "California Suite," an adult comedy by Neil Simon. The play will be presented at 8 p.m. this Friday and Saturday in the Little Theatre located on the second floor of the education building at Wayne State College. Under direction of Dr. Bob Johnson, the play includes four independent scenarios, each of which takes place in a suite of the Beverly Hills Hotel. Rehearsing the scene "Visitors from London," pictured above, are Karen Achor and Jim Zynda. Tickets for the production will be available at the door. For other pictures and a story, turn to page 4.

MERLE AND DONNA Ring show off the framed certificate received after Ring was named the Wayne Kiwanis Club Outstanding Farmer of the Year Monday noon. He also won District 14 Kiwanis honors and is now competing for the regional award.

Wayne Enters Betterment Contest

The Wayne Chamber of Commerce was designated as a co-sponsoring organization at the Council meeting Tuesday night for Wayne's entry in the Nebraska Community Improvement Program.

THE PROGRAM, administered by the Department of Economic Development, is sponsored by 13 statewide investor-owned gas and telephone companies.

Specifically, the program encompasses two individual contests: The Community and Neighborhood Recognition Program, and All Nebraska Community Program, explained Chamber Executive Vice President Gary Van Meter.

THE NEBRASKA Community Improvement Program was created in 1963 to encourage and recognize communities for their outstanding improvement efforts. Categories covering the following will be reviewed from September, 1979, to September, 1980, for the Community Recognition Program:

Community development process, downtown improvement and business development, economic development, environment and energy, farm and ranch development, health and safety programs, human services, public facilities and governmental services and recreation, arts and humanities.

LAST YEAR, Van Meter said, Wayne entered the Nebraska Community Program portion and met or exceeded standards in 14 of 15 categories, with health services the exception.

Categories covered in the NCP are airport improvements, health services, planning, solid waste, education, fire protection, industrial development, law enforcement and criminal justice, library services, parks and recreation, street improvement, street lighting improvements, wastewater collection and treatment, water supply and housing.

VAN METER said the lack of a home health agency was cited as the reason for the deficiency last year. The recent announcement by Providence Medical Center that a Home Health Service has been formed will fulfill that need, he added.

"This provides Wayne with an excellent chance to capture superior ratings in all 15 categories and to possibly win the coveted All-Nebraska community title for Class V, communities with 5,001 to 50,000 population," he explained.

VERNEAL Ellingson has been designated as chairman for the program. Vice chairman is Debbie Ensz. City Clerk Norman Melton was appointed as official city liaison, with Van Meter to act as secretary of the project.

Sponsoring groups include the following: Cenagas, Continental Telephone Co. of Nebraska, General Telephone Company, Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company, Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co., Natural Gas Distributing Co., Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America, Nebraska Natural Gas Company, Northern Natural Gas Company, Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., Northwestern Public Service Co., Peoples Natural Gas Co., Unitel of Nebraska.

Legislature Again Seeks Gasohol Promotion

Capitol News
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

The Legislature is taking its second crack in two years to promote gasohol production in the state by permitting the state to guarantee bonds to construct alcohol plants. A bill, which received 25-5 preliminary approval recently, proposes a constitutional amendment that would be placed before the voters in next fall's general election. Last year, the lawmakers enacted a bill that provided for the state to guarantee bonds issued by political subdivisions for construction of alcohol plants. However, the state Supreme Court ruled that bill unconstitutional because indirectly it allowed the state to go into debt beyond $100,000. After the Legislature convened this year, Milligan Sen. Richard Maresh introduced a new piece of legislation calling for a constitutional amendment that would permit the 49-member Legislature, with 30 votes, to authorize the state to guarantee local bonds for the erection of agricultural alcohol plants, as well as facilities for producing, storing and distributing ethyl alcohol. According to Maresh, most communities would be willing to donate land for an alcohol plant. He said his bill would also provide for an in-state market for grain and would create jobs. Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood said it is "way past time" that Nebraska did what Maresh is attempting to do. The subject of gasohol also popped into the news when Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh accused U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland of lying to a Nebraska delegation in Washington. The delegation was in Washington to seek an $11 million Commodity Credit Corp. loan guarantee. The money, which would have been used to build an alcohol fuel plant at St. Paul, was given instead to Liberal, Kan., for a similar plant. DeCamp claimed Bergland told the Nebraskans that St. Paul would get the funds. "Somebody lied and I guess it's the secretary of agriculture (who lied) right to our face," DeCamp said.

The lawmakers have given 34-0 first-round approval of a bill that would raise the maximum interest rate to 16 percent on loans of less than $25,000. The bill proposing the increase was sponsored by the Banking Committee, whose chairman, Sen. DeCamp, said he thinks the state is in a "crisis situation" in terms of financing. The current usury rate is 12.5 percent on loans up to $100,000. DeCamp said the bill is essential because lending institutions are now asked to pay more for money they loan than they receive for making loans. He added that in light of the current economic situation, the senators may have to reconvene later to up the maximum usury limit even more, or abolish the limit. During the discussion, Sen. Schmit said the suggested 16 percent ceiling may already be out of date because the prime rate had increased 1.25 percent since the lawmakers discussed the bill several days earlier. Schmit said "unless the bubble breaks," the 16 percent charge will not be adequate before the summer passes. Among other provisions in the bill is one providing for an 18 percent across-the-board installment sales contract rate. At the present time that rate varies from 12 to 18 percent. Helmet law killed The Public Works Committee has killed a bill that would have required motorcycle riders to wear helmets. The proposal triggered considerable opposition during a public hearing earlier this session. Motorcyclists from across the state jammed into a hearing room to speak out against the measure, which was sponsored by Sen. Dave Landis of Lincoln. The committee vote to kill the bill was unanimous. Also discarded by the committee was Landis' LB940, which called for motorcycle safety instruction. Landis had said he wanted the bill passed in some form but would settle this year for an interim study of the issue. Safe from interference Laetrile, the controversial drug used in cancer treatment, can be shipped into Nebraska and used by cancer patients without interference from state authorities. In a recent opinion, the state Justice Department said the drug can be used at least for the time being. The reasons, the department said, is that Laetrile does not fall within certain federal provisions that ban its interstate transfer and is not being used for experimental purposes. The department said since the ban originated with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, federal, not state, officials would have to enforce the ban. Student regent candidate A University of Nebraska-Lincoln student who lives in Fremont, Richard Register, wants to run for the 6th District regent seat held by Scottsbluff attorney Roberts Simmons. But two fellow students who reside in Simmons' district contend their regent and all regents should live in the district they represent. Register claims there is no constitutional or statutory requirement that he live in the 6th District to represent it. The constitution merely says regents are to be elected "from and by districts." After protests to Register's filing were received, Secretary of State Allen Beer-mann conducted a hearing to take evidence. After the hearing, Beermann said the residency question has been argued before, especially in regard to legislative seats. He asked both sides to present briefs and added he expected to rule two or three days after the briefs have been received. Simmons' district includes the Panhandle and north central Nebraska. The 3rd District in which Register lives covers northeastern counties. Work on aid increase The Appropriations Committee has agreed to work on a plan members say could provide property tax relief by increasing the present $55 million in state aid to schools. Committee Chairman Jerome Warner of Waverly noted, however, the relief plan wouldn't work for Omaha and Nebraska City schools because of their zero percent, voter-initiated budget ceilings that were adopted last year. On another matter, the committee is proposing an 8 percent salary increase for most state employees on July 1, and another 3 percent increase that could go into effect by May 1.

WAY BACK WHEN

- 30 Years Ago
March 16, 1950: A brooder house on the Carlyle Garvin farm, Dixon, was completely destroyed by fire during a blizzard last week. Waldon Brugger, who lives eight miles west, reports last week's storm the worst he has ever seen. The drifting snow was so heavy in some places on his farm the snow reached the power lines. Three adults and a baby were stalled 18 hours in a pickup truck south of Wayne. Mrs. Walter Lerner, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Greenwald and nine-month-old Rodney Gene came out of the ordeal with colds but no other ill effects. They kept moving throughout the night to keep warm.
- 25 Years Ago
March 10, 1955: Patty Kay and Sonia Sue Anderson, Wayne, won the radio talent search contest Sunday at Norfolk with their vocal duet. They now are eligible to compete in the finals for a $25 prize. Jack Miller, Wayne, was named this week as one of 19 Nebraska winners of citizenship awards presented by the National Association of Food Chains. He received the award at a meeting of Wayne Lions Club Thursday night. Jerry Stirtz, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.C. Stirtz, Wayne, was elected to the editorial staff of Nebraska Law Review, legal publication for Nebraska lawyers. University of Nebraska officials announced this week. He was named an associate editor. Ralph Austin, Wayne, was recently proclaimed Wayne County corn growing champion at a banquet held in honor of Nebraska corn growing champions. His yield of 101.56 bushels per acre was top yield for Wayne County in a national five-acre contest.
- 20 Years Ago
March 10, 1960: Mrs. Emily Hansen, Wayne, who recently celebrated her 90th birthday, received a congratulatory letter from Mamie Eisenhower for the occasion last Saturday. Harold Gaithe, Wayne, was one of 23 eastern Nebraska sheepsman who attended a sheep shearing school at the University of Nebraska college of Agriculture Monday and Tuesday. The snow storm which left much of Northeast Nebraska floundering also bogged down the U.S. mails. Pictures sent to be engraved for this week's issue had not yet arrived as The Herald went to press Wednesday afternoon.
- 15 Years Ago
March 11, 1965: Fire destroyed a one room school east of Carroll Thursday night. Wayne's city council has instructed Attorney Budd Bornhoff to start proceedings at once for annexation of the Fred Rohrke property west of the present elementary school site. A junior at Wayne high, Doreen Diamon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Diamon, has been chosen as this community's Girl Stater for the session in Lincoln in June. Morris Sandahl, Carroll, has been named by the board of education of District 17 (Wayne and Carroll) to be a member of the board to fill out a vacancy on the board caused by the resignation of a member. April 13 is the date set by the Wayne Board of Education for the bond election to provide the proposed new high school in the Wayne-Carroll district. In a meeting Monday, the board voted unanimously to issue bonds not to exceed $867,000 calling for an initial 6.5 or 7 mill tax increase to decrease as valuation in the district goes up.
- 10 Years Ago
March 12, 1970: Two more people filed for city council and one more for school board earlier this week. Latest to file include Chris Tietgen for mayor, Jim Thomas for councilman from the First Ward and Dick Braunger for school board for the Wayne-Carroll school system. Mrs. Faye Mann of rural Wayne has been named the crew leader for this area for the 1970 census of population and housing. Wayne recorded an official 10 inches of snow which, according to the U.S. Weather Bureau, was more than received by surrounding areas. Three Winside High School students plan to participate in the annual bookkeeping contest sponsored by Pi Omega Pi. Robert Holtgreve, Nancy Diehlrichsen and Sandra Deck, all of Winside, will be participants in the contest which covers the complete bookkeeping cycle. The Laurel Bears, first basketball team from the Wayne area to win a district tournament for several years, go up against Lincoln Plus X today.

State Spending Lid Will Be Held: Thone

"It's time to reaffirm my determination to hold the lid on state spending. "One of the greatest achievements of Nebraska state government in 1979 was holding spending to a 7 percent increase. In the previous 10 years, state spending had skyrocketed by substantially more than 200 percent—an average of more than a 20 percent increase per year. "When I gave my budget message to the Legislature on January 10, 1980, I said it is my goal once again to keep state spending at 7 percent for the 1980-81 fiscal year. Today, I am even more firm in my dedication to that objective. "Again I want to remind the members of the Legislature that Nebraska's local governments are living under a 7 percent lid mandated by the Legislature. We in state government can't do no less than to abide by the standards that we impose upon others. "There are special interests advocating big spending policies and putting pressure on state senators. Those pressures can, and must be, resisted.

"It isn't easy to hold to a 7 percent increase in state spending at today's rate of inflation. I am convinced, however, that we must strive to do it. "The majority of the money raised by state taxes is sent back to localities and individuals. In the budget I recommended to the Legislature for the year beginning July 1st, about 53 percent would be allocated to state aid to local governments and to individuals.

"Another 24 percent of state tax revenues would go to support the University of Nebraska and the four state colleges. That would leave only 23 percent to finance all the other categories of state government. "Nevertheless, I believe the budget I proposed, although austere, is one under which Nebraska can progress. Through fiscal prudence, through cutting back on some of the least necessary government programs, through eliminating duplication, we can improve the quality of state services under my budget. "Every citizen who wants to hold the line on state spending has my support. I will work with each member of the Legislature to insure a budget is produced that holds down spending. "The folly of federal deficit spending has never been clearer than it is today. The wisdom of holding down and curbing state spending is more certain now than ever before. We will persevere in keeping a lid on Nebraska state spending."

Dear Editor:
This response is in regard to the pied typer column of March 3, on "recruiting, and the money being spent hasn't made sports any better."
I would like to meet the "we" the pied typer keeps referring to from The Wayne Herald and the State National Bank and also the critics of the WSC program he hides behind. I thought the "we's" and the critics met most Thursday noons at a local restaurant. The pied typer, a "johnny come lately," needs a special invitation. I think it is unfair to question why the young people referred to in the article chose other schools. I think you might find personal considerations were involved. It is really sad that you compare the programs at NE Tech, York and Platte Colleges with Kearney and Wayne. But as you state, other colleges have benefited and WSC has not. In 1976, WSC took a step up in competitive sports when it joined the Central States Conference. At that time it became apparent that the program had to be constantly improved for WSC to compete. Your statement, "Athletic programs here continue to decline and the import of athletic ability apparently isn't making sports here any better," is the comment of a know nothing, do nothing. Don't lay the problems on the athletes from North Carolina and Illinois. I can't imagine where we would have been without them. There is no question, a better job of recruiting has to be done. The "we's" and critics should take time to learn how little money is available, how little time is allowed for recruiting, and how tough the conference is. If nothing else, I hope your article got to the top brass at WSC and they reevaluate their total recruiting program. Pied typer, let's try to find out what is in the pot, and not just be a stirrer. Dan Gardner P.S. All those involved are to be commended on the funding of a WSC athletic scholarship for a Wayne-Carroll athlete.

Danish Surprise Parties In Weeping Water
Among the Danish people who emigrated to Nebraska in the late 1800s and early 1900s Danish surprise parties are still mentioned, especially by Danes around Weeping Water. It was the custom to have a party every five years a couple celebrated an anniversary. In some cases it was a birthday celebration for someone who was a part of the Danish community. The Danske Kvindes Forening (Danish Ladies' Aid Society) in Weeping Water originally sent flowers to couples celebrating an anniversary. This revived the Danish custom of having surprise parties — which usually surprised no one. A one most remarked, "If they hadn't come we would have really been surprised!" Jean Marie Johnson Matheson of Lincoln recalls party experiences, now on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society, from her childhood. Preparations for the day of the "surprise" were extensive. The father of the family cleaned the barn or corn crib and set up makeshift tables and benches for the men who always played pinochle and poker. The yard was manicured to perfection and all the junk that had accumulated was hauled to the dump. The parties sometimes fell during the busy season of planting or harvest, but if it was your turn for the Danish people to come you simply slept less and worked more. The house was the woman's domain and it was in a state of great upheaval. Everything was scrubbed and polished until it screamed with pain. The kitchen received special attention as much of the day's activities would be centered around it. The iron kitchen monster was freshly blackened and its nickel trim polished until it gleamed like silver. The reservoir was carefully filled with water needed for lunch dishes that were washed in chain fashion all day. The cob box got a fresh coat of paint, and extra supplies of wood and cobs were carried to the back porch within handy reach of the ladies of the kitchen. A lovely new set of tea towels was used to dry the lunch dishes. Of course one borrowed dishes from Aunt Sine or extra silver from Aunt Maria. At last the day arrived! The father, looking a bit uncomfortable in his Sunday suit and tie, was the first to sound the warning. "Velkommen, velkommen, (welcome)," he shouted, as he pumped the hands of those who had come to wish them well. As each family carried its delicacy to the kitchen and it was carefully unpacked no finer Smorrebrod (open faced sandwiches) was ever set before royalty. Mrs. Matheson recalls: "The Smorrebrod was placed on large platters and plates and in such a wide variety one never knew which one to take. Homemade Pumpernickel, Danish rye and white bread were spread thickly with butter and many kinds of cheese. Danish names swirled about the Smorrebrod. There was havarti, molbo, esrom, mycella, danablu, samso, elbo, lybo, Dansk Brie, Dansk Camembert, danbo, maribo, Dansk Emmentaler and Fynbo. Along with the Cheese came Rullepose (Rolled Meat Sausage), Hakket Aeg og Sild (chopped egg and herring), liverpastej (Danish liver sandwich spread), laeskkesteg (roast pork), Sylte (head cheese), Hakkebof (roast beef), and Medisterose (pork sausage), and a wide selection of aeg (egg) sandwiches. There was flodebolter (cream puffs), Dansk kringler, Dansk Kleginer (genuine Danish pastry), lodkekager (Danish almond cookies), kaffekage (Danish coffee cake — this was my mother's specialty), Wienerbrod (Danish pastry pretzels), aebleskage (apple cake), Dansk lagkage (Danish layer cake), brunsvigerstang (fruit filled pastry strips), sosterkage (sister's cake), mor's sur flode kager (Mother's sour cream cookies), and madel kranse (almond rings). The day was spent with much visiting by the ladies and card playing by the men. Many older ladies refused to give up their Danish language so the day was a mixture of both worlds. When a couple celebrated a golden wedding they had a Kransekage Marzipan Kage (traditional Danish wedding or confirmation cake), always topped with the Danish flag. A collection was taken up from the guests to give to the honored couple for a remembrance of the day. My parents' anniversary and my grandfather's birthday were both in the golden month of October. As long as he lived with us we had the Danes more often than most of the other families in the neighborhood. We never ceased to look forward to it with much pleasure. Time passed and the elderly Danes left us one by one. The younger Danes had other interests, and the custom of the five-year parties died out. However, the community still celebrates the silver and golden years. Those happy days are recalled now only by those of us who lived them. It is a great pleasure to recall them again and to think about all those wonderful old Danes and how they dearly loved to have those "Danish surprise parties."

Dear Editor:
Your comments this past week prompt these comments. How long has it been since any Wayne State athletic team has won a conference championship or even been a serious contender? Even the most rabid fan does not expect a championship in every sport every year, but certainly he should be able to expect an occasional contender. It is no secret that Nebraska prep coaches do not look with favor on Wayne's athletic programs nor are they inclined to urge their outstanding players to attend Wayne. This is primarily because Wayne, in its search for a director, coaches, and others connected with the athletic programs, have overlooked outstanding Nebraskans and has seen fit to import them from other states. This does not set well with these prep coaches. Recruiting, too is a sore spot. Why go to far distant states while our own area athletes seem to succeed in other colleges in the state? Another off-shoot of this problem is reflected in the sites of the various high school basketball tournaments. Just a few years ago the college hosted several of these every year. Now none are held here. The reason for this change is obvious. Some pertinent questions: 1. Why was our men's basketball team forced to have a four-week Christmas vacation with no games? 2. Why did Wayne State abandon its Holiday Tournament for colleges? 3. How much longer will Wayne State try to compete in the CSIC Conference where even an occasional win is meaningless to a Wayne fan? The present situation will exist, I'm afraid, until such time as the athletic department is staffed with Nebraska-oriented personnel. Concerned Citizen's Name Withheld by Request

'California Suite' Opens Friday

Members of the cast of "California Suite" are busy rehearsing this week for the production, which will be presented this Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre located on the second floor of the education building on the Wayne State College campus. Following is a review of two scenes in the play, "Visitors From London" and "Visitors From Chicago." The play, which is being presented by the Wayne Community Theatre, is under the direction of Dr. Bob Johnson. Tickets for the performance are $3 each and will be available at the door.

Wayne State College student Karen Achor and Jim Zynda, an audiologist from Wayne, play a middle-aged British couple who come to grips with what they really are in "Visitors From London."

Miss Achor is cast as Diana Nichols, a neurotic actress who becomes obsessed about an Academy Award nomination. Her husband, Sidney Nichols (played by Zynda), a homosexual antique dealer, proves little comfort to her when she returns from the Academy Award ceremonies without an Oscar.

Miss Achor, a Wayne State sophomore, appeared in several high school productions. She has also appeared in several college plays, including "Shadow Box," "Beauty and the Beast," "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," "Hot L

Baltimore" and "Night of the Iguana," and was assistant director for "The Bald Soprano."

The Bellevue native says she loves theatre and tried out for her role in "California Suite" for the opportunity to work with the community and director Johnson.

Zynda appeared in several productions while he was in college and said he tried out for "California Suite" for "the fun of it." He also feels the community theatre is a good opportunity for residents to show off their talents.

In the final playlet, "Visitors From Chicago," Mort and Beth Hollender, played by Ted Blenderman and Pat Berg, thought they were best friends with Stu and Gert Franklyn, played by Jed Friedrichsen and Brenda Dorcey, until the couples take a long vacation together.

As the vacation winds up, both couples part miserable and hating each other. Blenderman, drama instructor at Wayne-Carroll High School, has been involved in theatre for the past 20 years, both as an actor and director. He currently is co-directing "Once Upon a Mattress," which will be presented at Wayne High on Friday and Saturday, March 28 and 29.

Mrs. Berg is a housewife and mother from Laurel who feels the community theatre gives her the chance to express herself and "escape for a while." Her husband, Keith, is a machinery salesman with McCorkindale Implement in Laurel.

Mrs. Berg appeared in several productions while she was in high school and feels the community theatre offers her the chance to meet and work with new persons. In addition, it provides the community with excellent entertainment at a very minimal cost.

Friedrichsen, who plays Stu Franklyn in "Visitors From Chicago," is a student at Wayne State College, where he has appeared in "Doing a Good One for the Redman," "The Night of the Iguana" and "Hold Me." He also was active in theatre while attending high school in Alton, Iowa.

"Community theatre involves residents in the beauty of the fine arts," said Friedrichsen, adding that it adorns the mundane lives of the community with interesting and whimsical entertainment.

Cast as Gert Franklyn in "Visitors From Chicago" is a local housewife and mother, Brenda Dorcey, who has resided in Wayne with her husband, John, for the past four and a half years.

Mrs. Dorcey, who appeared in high school theatre productions at Papillion, said she was overwhelmed with the Wayne Community Theatre's production last fall, "Carnival," and decided it would be fun to become involved in any way possible.

Mrs. Dorcey said she feels the community theatre could continue to be a very popular event and a big asset to the community. "It's a nice organization to have in a small community," she added, "because it affords the chance to become involved and it's amusing to watch friends perform."

"California Suite" is a warm, funny sample of Neil Simon at his best, said director Bob Johnson, adding that it is an adult comedy not suitable for young family members.

Hollender's friends, Stu and Gert Franklyn, are Jed Friedrichsen and Brenda Dorcey. "California Suite" will be presented this Friday and Saturday evening in the Little Theatre in the education building on the campus at Wayne State College.

Brinkman Shares Her Olympic Experiences With WSC Alumni

Julie Brinkman, Nebraska's torch carrier in the 1980 Winter Olympic ceremonies, spoke about her experiences to a group of about 80 Wayne State alumni and administrators at an alumni gathering, Saturday night in the Old Mill Holiday Inn at Omaha.

The 1978 Wayne State graduate was selected as a runner after a lengthy process, she told the audience at the gathering. She answered an ad in "Runner" magazine, was chosen as a finalist, was interviewed in Denver and had to run four miles at an eight minute a mile pace. One runner was chosen to represent each state as well as one runner each to represent Lake Placid, NY and Washington, DC.

The Olympic torch arrived in Yorktown, Va. from Olympia, Greece and the crew of runners began carrying the torch on Jan. 31. The group included lawyers, doctors, dentists, graduate assistants, mothers and persons with other various occupations, Brinkman said. Ages ranged from 15 years to 57 years.

The runners left Yorktown on the 31st and ran all day and all night on the first day, Brinkman said. Each individual was on a running team one day and on a ceremonial team the next day. The ceremonial team gave speeches and conducted interviews at most of the communities along the route.

Each runner took his turn carrying the torch between three and five miles at one time. If a runner's arm happened to get tired, he traded off with another runner, said Brinkman. A van preceded the runner and another van followed the torch carrier. Runners, who were resting, rode in the vans.

The route followed less traveled highways and stayed off of interstates. Guest runners from each community were allowed to join the torch carriers during their journey.

JULIE BRINKMAN, who graduated from Wayne State College in 1978 and represented Wayne as an Olympic torch carrier, displays one of the Olympic torches, here at an alumni gathering in Omaha.

Brinkman said that the carriers were warmly greeted by parades and celebrations at all communities along the way.

"We went through many small towns and there were crowds of cheering people, showing patriotism and loyalty. Some of them tried to grab at the torch," said the Emporia State graduate student. "The young kids were great. Over 3,000 people showed up for a ceremony at Time Square in New York but running through the Bronx was the neatest. The kids were hollering and screaming. They wanted autographs and wanted to touch you. It was a big deal to them."

Runners were given two outfits, a jacket, ski overalls, boots, shoes, hats and gloves for their journey. All along the trip they were offered money for their possessions, Brinkman said.

The route split into eastern and western routes at Albany and Brinkman said she ran along the western route, which journeyed through the mountains. The view was beautiful she said and the residents of that area said it was the most remarkable winter in years.

Seven days later, the two routes met at Lake Placid. The oldest runner, a 57 year-old native of Lake Placid, carried the torch for 30 miles non stop, Brinkman told the WSC alumni. He was a former participant in the Boston Marathon.

Once at Lake Placid, the runners were admitted to all events free of charge when there was standing room. Brinkman said she witnessed the United States versus Russia hockey game and attended every sport at least once.

Brinkman said that she tried to get into the Olympic Village but wasn't allowed in. "Runners weren't accredited to get in the Olympic Village," she said. "So three of us got together and delivered 10,000 valentines that had been sent to the Olympic Committee from all over New York. We boxed them up and hoped to get into the Olympic Village but all we did was get a bunch of dogs sniffing at our boxes, checking to see what was in them. The boxes got in but we didn't."

"One night we got into the ice arena about 11:30 after they closed it down the night after they finished with figure skating," the Rolfe, Ia. native said. "We put on some skates and tried everything the figure skaters did. I've got a bruise here and a bruise there."

The torch carriers practiced two or three days in preparation for opening and closing ceremonies, Brinkman said. The flame was extinguished to indicate the end of the games and the runners returned to their homes, she explained. "We had a lot of fun, met a lot of people and made many friends," she said.

Jones: Baseball Trip Is Extremely Worthwhile

Coach Ron Jones and the Wayne State Wildcats returned home from their tough six day 10 game southern trip with a 1-9 record but Jones said the trip help his team a great deal.

"The trip was extremely worthwhile. We learned a lot. It strengthened our belief that pitching and team speed are our weaknesses," said Jones. "We didn't play well behind our pitching staff. The defense committed 37 errors in 10 games and that's way too many. We also aren't showing enough patience in ball control in hit and run situations."

Although Wayne did show weaknesses in some areas, Jones also stressed the positive spots his team displayed. "We knew we could hit the long ball and we proved that with eight home runs. By the end of the trip, our defense looked much improved."

The Wildcats not only proved their long ball capabilities but also proved that they have a balanced threat. Seven players were responsible for the eight homers. Mark Glatler pounded two home runs and Brian Blatchford, Mike Test, Bill Schwartz, Mike Meyer, Tom Carden and Mike Walter each hit one homer.

Wayne State stole only five bases in the southern series. Freshman Tom Todd of Bridgeton, N.J. collected four of those stolen bases in one game. Another bright spot was the pitching of Grady Hansen.

Hansen, who had been attending basketball and baseball practice until basketball season, ended, was the winning pitcher in the Cats' lone win. He gave up seven hits in seven innings for a 7-2 victory over Dallas University. Of the 98 pitches thrown by Hansen, 77 were strikes.

Mark Glatler was the offensive hero in the victory when he blasted a grand slam home run, scoring Bill Schwartz, Mike Meyer and Ron Kreber. Schwartz and Meyer singled and Kreber walked to load the bases.

In the second game of the doubleheader against Dallas University, Wayne State lost 3-2 in a game which was called after five innings because of darkness. Jones said that a bad call by the umpire cost his team the win.

With runners on second and third and two outs, a Dallas batter hit a line drive to score two runs. According to Jones, the hit was fouled by about three feet but ruled fair by the umpire. Wayne State had runners on base and a good chance to win when the game was called because of darkness, Jones added.

Line scores and results:

Wayne faced the top three Southeast Oklahoma pitchers and managed only 13 hits in four games. Oklahoma had been practicing outside since January and has a class program according to coach Ron Jones. Last year, Southeast had six players drafted by major league teams and this year expects to draft at least three. Their record was improved to 10-0 with the wins over WSC. Wayne State pitchers in the four game series were Al Voigt, Rocky Thompson, Jerry Goeden, Doug Carroll, Lenny Klaver and Don Hames.

Wayne State	7	11	2
Dallas Univ.	2	7	3

Wayne State	2	5	1
Dallas Univ.	3	5	1

A grand slam homer by Mark Glatler was the turning point in the first game as Grady Hansen picked up the win on the mound. Don Hames suffered the loss in the second game.

Wayne State	4	5	3
Dallas Baptist	10	12	0

Wayne State	3	4	2
Dallas Baptist	17	15	2

Jones said his team "didn't play well at all" and was "worn out after the hectic schedule. The Cats used Dewey Edgar, Al Voigt, Lenny Klaver, Don Hames and Mark Larson as pitchers in the doubleheader.

Winside Will Drop Down Into Class D

Winside High School will drop into Class D in all sports except football, for the 1980-81 school year. The Wildcats competed in Class D wrestling but competed in Class C for all other sports during the 1979-80 school year.

Schools are classed according to the State Department of Education enrollment figures of the previous year for grades 9-11. The Class A, B, C, D designations do not pertain to all activities but are the basis for most athletic classifications.

The drop from Class C to Class D for Winside is the only major change in The Wayne Herald area. The Winside enrollment dropped from 91 to 77 and Class D ranges from enrollments of 81 to 8. Allen remains in Class D with an enrollment of 76, down one from last year.

Laurel, with an enrollment of 136, and Wakefield, with an enrollment of 102 remain in Class C. Class C ranges from 204 to 82. Once again, Wayne is the only Class B team in the area with an enrollment of 277. Class B ranges from 547 to 199 students.

Census Bureau Will Conduct Job Survey

The U.S. Bureau of the Census will conduct its regular survey on employment and unemployment in this area during the week of March 17-21, according to Leo C. Schilling, director of the bureau's regional office in Denver.

In addition to the usual questions on current employment, the March survey will have questions on the work experience and income of household members last year and whether they have moved since March 1975.

Households in this area are part of the sample of 84,000 across the country scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all U.S. households.

The monthly survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor and provides a continuous record of activity in the labor force. The January survey indicated that of the 104.2 men and women in the civilian labor force, 97.8 million were employed. The Nation's unemployment rate was 6.2 percent, compared to 5.9 percent in December.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

YOU PROFIT TWICE WHEN YOU SPEND YOUR TAKE-HOME PAY IN YOUR OWN HOME TOWN!

It's really true! You profit twice when you spend your take-home pay at home. It doesn't make any difference how much you make or what kind of a job or business you have. What is important is that a community grows in relationship to the number of business transactions it makes, and about a third of these dollars help pay for community needs like hospitals, streets, schools and churches, police and fire departments and much more. So when you spend at home you strengthen the local economy so it is easier for everyone to pay taxes and support community projects. Farm High Hog Numbers Predicted

An unprofitable year for pork producers... That's the continued assessment of swine supply-price-demand outlook by Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension agricultural economist Al Wellman. Hog prices are likely to be near or moderately below full costs of production for most producers much of the time in 1980, according to the livestock marketing specialist.

THIS UNFAVORABLE situation seems assured for the first half of the year, Wellman said, although uncertainty prevents a clear picture from emerging on supply and price levels during the last six months.

Large supplies of pork, which have kept hog prices well below 1979 levels — and below breakeven figures for most producers, — are expected to continue throughout 1980, Wellman explained.

Hog slaughter through the first seven weeks of this year was up a fourth from 1979. While later winter slaughter is expected to increase moderately, volume for the first quarter may be up at least 20 percent from last year, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln staff member said. Second quarter hog slaughter is predicted to be up from 7 to 10 percent above 1979. All in all, projected slaughter during the first half of 1980 would be the largest for that period since 1971.

WHILE THE slaughter figures will be the most important influence on hog prices, the volume of pork marketed at the retail level also will be critical, Wellman stated. While the recession will have some impact, pork demand is expected to hold up quite well, he continued, and will continue to be one of the few food items priced cheaper to the consumer than a year ago. "It's likely to receive strong retail promotion," he commented. Supplies of red meat competitor, beef, will be somewhat smaller than last year through the first quarter, and probably in the second quarter as well.

A negative influence on pork will be larger supplies of poultry.

WELLMAN predicts some downward pressure on hog prices by late March, with Omaha prices for 300-230 pound barrows and gilts in the mid $30s. Seasonal strength should pull prices back around $40 in June, he believes. The size of the December-May pig crop — and it's uncertain how large it will be — will largely determine hog prices in the last half of the year, Wellman analyzed. He pointed to a major shift in USDA estimates of December-February farrowing plans from the September to December quarterly reports on hogs and pigs. Farrowing plans for this period for 14 states, including Nebraska, were estimated in September to be 10 percent above 1978, but the December estimate for the same months was that farrowings would be the same as the previous year.

A SMALL increase in December-May farrowings is likely, Wellman said. Winter weather has been favorable for farrowing and disease losses appear lighter than a year ago. March-May farrowings may be close to a year earlier. Thus, third quarter slaughter would be three to four percent larger than in 1979 and fourth quarter volume would at least match the larger slaughter a year ago, the economist said.

Wellman's further predictions — Hog prices should show a moderate seasonal rise into summer — probably into the low $40s and possibly to the mid $40s at times. Seasonally larger supplies may push prices down to the high $30s or below in the last three months of 1980.

— 1980 PORK production will be up about seven percent from 1979, raising the per capita supply to about 69 pounds in retail weight. This compares with 65.4 pounds in 1979 and 56.9 pounds in 1978.

— Look for the average Omaha price for barrows and gilts for 1980 to be about $39.50, down from $42.15 last year.

— While prices at the levels forecast would dip below full costs of production for most producers, prices should exceed variable production costs and cover a portion of fixed costs.

REDUCING the number of farrowings about 10 percent from 1979 during the period of late spring on through the balance of the year would go a long way towards returning prices to profitable levels in 1981, Wellman advised. Nonetheless, a significant reduction in farrowings is doubtful during the first half of 1980. Expected to limit farrowing cutbacks are large corn supplies, moderate corn prices and substantial investment in new or improved swine production facilities, he concluded.

Gingham Gals 4-H Club met March 4 in the home of Julie and Jennifer Wessel. Fifteen members answered roll call with a report of progress on their projects.

Upcoming events were announced by Mrs. Sandahl, leader, and include 4-H A to Z, Officers Training Workshop, and the County Speech Contest. Members also were encouraged to attend the UNI Outreachers Concert, scheduled March 18.

Club projects were discussed, including "Building Family Strengths" and "Know Your Heritage" Shelley Emry, Fran Gross, Laura Keating, Margo Sandahl and Maria Sandahl gave speeches, and a team demonstration on O Henry Bars was given by Katy Griess and Julie Wessel. Lisa McDermott gave an illustrated demonstration on cross-country skiing, and Jennifer Wessel gave a demonstration on downhill skiing. Easter baskets were made for delivery to Region IV on March 31. A memory game was led by Mary Pat Gross, and lunch was served by the Wessels.

Next meeting will be March 31 in the home of Shelley Emry. Karen Sandahl, news reporter

Cattle Profits Elusive

The average annual retail beef price may increase 10-12 percent by the end of this year, about one-half of the 1979 increase.

Meanwhile, cattle feeding profits probably will be elusive in 1980. Feeder cattle, calf and cow prices will continue to move in relation to the slaughter cattle market, but other factors, such as abundant feed and forage in the 1980 crop year, will influence price fluctuations.

THESE PREDICTIONS are part of a supply-price outlook issued by Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension livestock marketing economist Al Wellman.

Wellman sees choice slaughter steers at Omaha possibly averaging $66-$72 per hundredweight the first six months of 1980, then moving into the low to mid $70s the second half of the year.

Noting that the cattle feeder "has experienced some red ink in the past few months," Wellman said the excellent market and managers of finished beef will "have a decided advantage for most of the year." But, he warned, "rapid price fluctuations may keep profitable periods short."

Wellman bases his projections on the ending of the 5-year cattle liquidation by the U.S. cattle industry along with continuing expansion of pork and poultry supplies.

While the systematic trimming of cattle numbers has ended, the U.S. cattle and calf inventory declined 15 percent from Jan. 1, 1975 to Jan. 1, 1979, and the 111 million head of all cattle on calves on Jan. 1, 1980 was up only 100,000 head over a year earlier, Wellman pointed out.

"IN FACT, beef supplies in 1980 are expected to decline another 2 to 4 percent from 1979 levels as producers withhold cattle from slaughter to continue to expand the cattle herd," Wellman explained.

Pork and poultry meat supplies are each expected to increase 4 to 6 percent this year, more than offsetting declining beef supplies. The result is predicted to be an increase of about 1 percent in total red meat and poultry supplies this year, to a volume near the record levels of 1976 and 1977.

CATTLE NUMBER trends in Nebraska differ slightly from the U.S. figures, Wellman said. The 6.4 million cattle and calves of all classes in the state on Jan. 1, 1980 were down one percent over the previous year. Calves born on Nebraska farms and ranches in 1979 totaled 1.9 million, down 3 percent from 1978 and 5 percent from the 1977 crop.

The rate of cow herd expansion nationwide in 1980 and beyond is a much debated figure, Wellman said. Producers indicated they were holding back 5.9 million beef replacement heifers on Jan. 1, 1980, an 8 percent increase over 1979.

"A CONTINUATION of favorable cattle prices and signs of an improvement in demand for beef might lead to a 2-4 percent increase in the cow herd during 1980. If the incentives for expansion diminish or level out in the months ahead, a 12 percent increase in the cow herd seems more realistic," Wellman reasoned.

Flood Watch

Meeting Set

A flood watch meeting, chaired by the State Civil Defense Agency, will be held at the Norfolk National Guard Armory in Norfolk on March 20 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. The meeting, only one of five to be held this year, will provide information to local government officials and the public in flood preparedness — Response and Recovery.

The meetings were organized by Major General Edward C. Binder, state civil defense director, to enable response personnel to meet face-to-face with local officials and the public, concerning potential flood threats which may exist in their areas due to adverse spring weather conditions.

A panel consisting of representatives from the State Civil Defense Agency, Natural Resources Commission, Department of Water Resources, Department of Roads, American Red Cross, Nebraska State Patrol, Corps of Engineers, National Weather Service, Game and Parks Commission and UNL Ag Extension Service will be available to answer questions.

Saving tractor fuel
Tractor fuel continues to go up and is an ever more important part of the cost of raising crops. Any tillage methods that will reduce fuel use will help reduce costs.

Two methods to conserve fuel in tillage operations are to adopt reduced or conservation tillage systems.

Tillage operations generally are conducted to either prepare a seedbed or to control weeds. The number of trips to perform these essential operations depends on soil type and condition, weather conditions and type of tillage systems utilized. The number of trips over a field also depends on the time available.

When utilizing a spring disk tillage system for corn, the number of trips ranged from a low of one to a high of six in a recent survey. Excessive tillage operations increase fuel consumption, operating costs, labor requirements and generally increase the potential for soil erosion.

Reducing tillage operations
A farmer can reduce the tillage trips over a field in order to conserve fuel by (1) eliminating one or more tillage operations (2) substituting one type of tillage for another or (3) combining tillage operations into one pass.

The energy savings depends on the changes made. For row crop production moldboard plowing requires about 2.2 gallons per acre and chisel plowing requires approximately 1 gallon per acre. Savings of more than a gallon per acre are possible by changing from a moldboard to a chisel plow. Disking requires about .75 gallon per acre and secondary operations such as spraying requires about .25 gallons per acre. Combining these secondary operations with primary tillage or plantings can save from 12 to 33 gallons per acre. Substantial savings in fuel can be accomplished by adopting reduced tillage systems.

In general, the diesel fuel requirements for the conventional moldboard plowing tillage system will be approximately five gallons per acre. Only about three gallons per acre are required for a double disking tillage system, a savings of 40 percent. Adopting a no till system can save over 75 percent of the fuel required for the conventional system.

Adoption of reduced or conservation tillage systems and minimizing trips over the field also lessens the potential for soil erosion, thus conserving two resources — soil and energy.

Weed Control Plagues Farmers

Farmers never tire of talking about last season's successes — or problems, for that matter. Both are important, as right now many Nebraska corn producers fine tune their crop planning for 1980.

ALWAYS a major concern, of course, is weed control. A lot depends on it — most important, yields and profits — so it always pays to consider improving last season's weak points. Two major problem weeds are getting a lot of attention — shattercane and sandbur.

Shattercane (wild cane) is an increasing problem in Nebraska. Once it appears, control, or suppression, is tough. The seeds may continue to be distributed by cattle, machinery and water, and they can lie dormant for years before germinating.

ORIGINALLY the weed was a forage sorghum, but it's gone wild. Often found in bot tomlands, this annual reseeds itself year after year and may reach a height of ten feet if left unchecked.

"The main concern is that those growers who have it are not getting rid of it," states John Furrer, University of Nebraska agronomist. Shattercane, as the name implies, shatters its seeds readily at maturity. It is then spread by equipment when corn is being harvested, or spread with manure onto other fields. A few plants can infest an entire field in just one season.

CONTROL requires rotations, cultivation and chemicals. For best control in corn this season, he recommends Eradicane. Sutan+ may also be used. Cultivation after planting also helps.

Growers should be aware that manufacturer Stauffer Chemical Company does not recommend Eradicane for shattercane control east of Nebraska 81 and south of 180 or east of Nebraska 11 and north of 180. Furrer suggests this is due to such heavy populations of shattercane that even with a very high control percentage, a substantial amount of the weed is still left in the field. However, he continues, "Eradicane is still an effective herbicide for shattercane control in those areas."

Sandbur is most prevalent in southwest, west and northcentral Nebraska. The annual reproduces from seeds and has extensive fibrous roots.

Found mostly on sandy soils, it grows on heavier soils as well. This weed is particularly troublesome because the spiny burrs cause harvesting problems as well as discomfort to farmers and livestock.

ECONOMIC LOSS due to sandbur may be substantial but can be avoided if proper control measures are taken. This spring, plan on using atrazine with either Sutan+ Eradicane, Lasso, or Dual for corn. If layby treatments are needed, Lasso, Prowl, or atrazine are recommended.

Energy Seminar On Irrigation Planned Soon

A seminar and equipment display dealing with irrigation and farm well products will be held at the Osmond City Auditorium on Wednesday, March 19.

The all day program is being sponsored by the Buchanan Well Company, Inc. Approximately 30 equipment representatives and experts are expected to be on hand to display their products and assist anyone having questions concerning equipment and its operation.

The exhibits and equipment displays will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., and a free lunch will be served by the sponsors from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Highlight of the day's activities will be an energy conservation seminar pertaining to the operation of irrigation equipment. The seminar will be presented by a noted expert in the field, Jim Gilley, PhD, of the University of Nebraska.

Dr. Gilley holds his PhD in agricultural engineering and has conducted more than five years of research in the field of agricultural engineering as it pertains to energy conservation. His main responsibility on the staff of the agricultural engineering department at the University is in the conservation of energy with regard to irrigation.

Dr. Gilley has been working under a grant from the U.S. Department of Energy for the past three years on the concept of "low pressure" center pivot irrigation systems.

In addition, information will be presented on "fine tuning" the existing irrigation systems to conserve energy. It is estimated that more than one-half of the energy used for agriculture in Nebraska is for pumping water for irrigation.

See the ad in this issue for additional details.

National Flood Insurance Can Reduce Costs

Each year, the floods of winter and spring sweep across the United States, bringing loss of life as well as devastation that totals in the millions of dollars. The year 1979 was particularly brutal. The Pearl River in Jackson, Mo., crested at 43 feet over flood stage, spilling foul, chemical-laden flood waters over a wide area. More than 17,000 families were evacuated, and when allowed to return to their homes and businesses, faced property damage totaling more than $500 million. Snow melt raised the Red River to more than 48 feet, 20 feet above flood stage in the Grand Forks, N.D., area, causing $16.3 million in damage. These were not isolated instances. Scenes like this were repeated across the nation as the waters from snow melt and heavy rains left their mark on communities from California to Massachusetts, Texas to Minnesota. Some property owners fared better than others. The fortunate ones had their property protected by flood insurance policies from the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP). NFIP paid 24,453 policyholders $108.7 million during the first six months of 1979. Since then, the number of NFIP policyholders has increased from 1.5 million to 1.8 million as property owners sought to protect their homes, businesses and possessions from the dangers of flooding. NFIP now has $72 billion in coverage on policyholders' property. "The unpredictability of flooding makes it most important for property owners to review their need for flood insurance before the danger of flooding occurs, since there is a five-day waiting period from the time of application and payment of premium until the flood insurance policy goes into effect," says Mrs. Gloria Jimenez, Federal Insurance administrator.

Current policyholders should review their coverage to make certain that the amount of insurance they have will be sufficient to permit them to rebuild. Because inflation has driven prices to unprecedented levels, flood insurance coverage that would have been sufficient even a year ago may not be enough today.

The National Flood Insurance Program is administered through the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), by the Federal Insurance Administration. Low cost National Flood Insurance is subsidized by the Federal Government, providing potential flood victims with the opportunity to purchase flood protection at reasonable rates. In order for a community's residents to be eligible to buy National Flood Insurance, the community must participate in the National Flood Insurance Program. To do so, the community's local government must agree to adopt required Flood Plain Management measures to insure the wise utilization of flood-prone areas. Flood Plain Management, defined as the conscientious regulation of new development in areas that are likely to flood, is a major concern of FEMA, which handles all disasters, including flooding, throughout the nation.

To further control development in Flood Plain areas, Federal law requires flood insurance of anyone who buys, builds or improves property in those areas of the community. "Flood insurance may be obtained through any licensed property/casualty insurance agent," Mrs. Jimenez said. More than 110,000 independent insurance agents and brokers, as well as those agents who are directly employed by one specific insurance company, are actively engaged in selling flood insurance for the National Flood Insurance Program.

Beef Referendum in Area And Nationally Doesn't Pass

Preliminary results of a nationwide referendum indicate cattle producers have voted against inaugurating a national beef research and information program. Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, which conducted the referendum, said of the 231,032 ballots cast, 151,119, or 65 percent, were against the program. There were 79,913 votes in favor. Fitzgerald said there were 288,445 beef producers registered and eligible to vote in the referendum conducted Feb. 19-22. If the referendum would have passed, the program would have provided for assessments on beef producers to finance research and information activities designed to improve markets for cattle, beef and beef products. The Beef Research and Information Act was enacted in May 1976 and amended in August 1978. It could not become effective, however, until three items had been accomplished: — Eligible beef producers had to register to vote. — At least 30 percent of those registered had to vote. — A majority of those voting had to vote affirmatively. The following table shows an area breakdown of the voting:

State	Number Yes Registered		No		Total
	Yes	No	Yes	No
Iowa	10,538	2,952	4,995	7,947
Kansas	23,093	7,400	13,063	20,463
Missouri	13,492	4,092	5,909	10,001

More Census Takers Needed In This Area

More applicants for full-time, temporary work as census takers for the 1980 census are urgently needed, according to Judy Backhaus, manager of the district office in Lincoln.

Lincoln's District Census Office cover 32 eastern counties of Nebraska, excluding most of Omaha's city limits. Nearly 900 jobs lasting 3-5 weeks or longer will be available to people in the district in early April. Although clerical positions will be available only to those living within driving distance of the district office in Lincoln, most positions will be those of field census takers. The field jobs will pay $4 per hour or more.

Census takers will be assigned to their own neighborhoods or counties whenever possible, Backhaus said. Paid training will begin very soon, followed by full-time work visiting homes and interviewing residents.

Applicants should have a home telephone and a car. Mileage will be paid when a personal car is used for census work.

Potential census workers must be tested before interviewed for hiring. Testing in our area will take place at Room 2, Connell Hall, Wayne State College on March 13, 20, 27 at 10 a.m. Persons can fill out applications at the testing site.

The Census Bureau is an equal opportunity employer. Anyone having questions about census work can call the Lincoln District Office, 402-471-5209 or the local Job Service.

Persons who have already applied and been tested will be contacted soon about employment, Backhaus said.

No Land Diversion Planned

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland announced the U.S. Department of Agriculture will not institute a paid land diversion program for the 1980 crops of wheat, corn and other feed grains.

He said the decision was based on prospects for continued growth in the world consumption requirement for these crops. "Our grain exports will be at record levels this year and will continue to grow in the future,"

Psychologist To Talk Free

Dr. Vince Savage, a counseling psychologist who has used Gestalt Therapy methods for 10 years, will present a free talk on "Discovering Your Own Wholeness: A Gestalt Approach" March 17 at Wayne State College. The presentation, beginning at 7 p.m. in the North Dining Room of the Student Center, will present an overview of Gestalt Therapy as an approach to personal counseling, psychotherapy and/or a way of life based on increasing awareness of one's present experience.

The program is open free to the public and designed for those interested in learning how to place themselves into experiences to grow as individuals.

"While U.S. producers enjoyed record large production in 1979-80, world production of grain actually declined. This has boosted demand for U.S. crops," Bergland said. "According to our estimates, we are expecting U.S. feed grain exports to reach a record 68 million tons in this marketing year and U.S. wheat exports to total 36 million tons — also a record amount."

"Obviously, we cannot make any precise estimates of what 1980 world feed grain production will be but we know world grain demand will continue to grow. As long as we have adequate supplies, we can expect our exports to continue to increase. World grain stocks are declining this year and prices are higher than a year ago," Bergland said. "Stocks are likely to decline again in 1980-81," he said.

"The actions the administration took in January to suspend shipments of agricultural products to the Soviet Union above the 8 million tons allowed under the U.S. USSR Grains Supply Agreement have not fundamentally altered the long range supply-demand picture for U.S. agriculture," Bergland said.

"We made the commitment and have taken steps to offset the impacts on farm prices associated with the suspension. U.S. producers still have strong domestic and world markets for their farm output and prices are near levels expected before the suspension. Nonetheless, the administration is still reviewing all programs and considering possible legislative changes which we will pursue in cooperation with the Congress, to assure the impact of the suspension is fully offset and to alleviate the short-term credit pinch felt by producers."

WSC Debaters Take First Place Honors

Wayne State College debaters Gerald Ladd and Brian Wansink won first place honors in the Beginners Division of debate at the 1980 Cornhusker Forensics Tournament held Feb. 22-24 at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln.

The Beginners Division is limited to debaters in their first year of interscholastic debate competition, and the WSC pair compiled a record of six wins and no defeats on their way to victory. A second Wayne State team of freshman Julie Bulcher, Morrill, and freshman Marlene Schieffler, Crofton, had a 3-3 record and did not place in the tournament.

All the debaters argued the Proposition Resolved: That the Federal Government Should Significantly Strengthen The Regulation of Mass Media Communication in the United States.

Wayne State's last debate tournament of the year will be March 8-9 at Metropolitan State College in Denver. At that tournament there will be only one division, and WSC's beginning debaters will find themselves debating teams with untried experience. Ladd is a 1972 graduate of Ben son High School and is a senior social science major at WSC. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Milton Flesham of Omaha.

Wansink is a 1978 graduate of East High School and a sophomore business administration major at WSC. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Wansink of Sioux City, Iowa.

Butcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Butcher of Morrill, is a 1979 graduate of Morrill High School. She is an elementary education and speech communications major at Wayne State.

Schieffler, daughter of Laurence H. Schieffler of Crofton, is a 1979 graduate of Crofton Public School.

Astrochemist Contributions To Be Shown

A planetarium show that emphasizes the contributions of astrochemists to the growing knowledge of the universe will be presented at 3:30 p.m. Sundays, March 16 through April 20, at the Wayne State College Dale Planetarium. The shows are open free to the public.

The show, "Springtime of the Universe," includes a look backward through time to the beginning of the universe and forward to the time when the last stars will die and the universe will become dark. The program is the final of four presented at various dates this year at WSC.

The Dale Planetarium, located in the Carhart Science Building at WSC, uses a dome-shaped screen, star projectors, special effect projectors and sound systems to blend art and science.

For information or reservations for the free showings phone Carl Rump at 402-375-2200. Group reservations are invited.
