An Offer You Can't Refuse

Richard L. Leshar, President Chamber of Commerce of the United States

In recent days, reports have been surfacing about a warming in relations between President Carter and the leadership of the labor movement. I want to reveal some details about the new relationship which are not widely known, and which have had an important bearing on recent economic problems, especially inflation.

It's no secret, of course, that this is an election year, and that the administration has made strong and sustained efforts to win the support of key labor leaders. Those efforts, and the basis of the new relationship, began with an agreement negotiated last summer by the administration and the AFL-CIO — an agreement they ambitiously call the National Accord. On the surface, the National Accord was meant to be an anti-inflationary weapon with business and labor establishing committees that would devise ways to hold down wages and prices.

Right away, we can see the focus is all wrong. Inflation is not caused by too many people working, but by governments creating money out of thin air to finance wasteful expenditures, and to reward consumption and debt, rather than investment and savings. Moreover, except for the already mentioned committees on wages and prices, the business community has been virtually excluded from all other arrangements and agreements, both formal and informal. One look at what the administration and labor have been up to, and you will understand why.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland has stressed that the basic principles and promises of the National Accord stem from the Humphrey-Hawkins Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1978 — legislation determinedly socialist in orientation. Labor has also won informal commitments from the administration on a broad number of other issues: general economic policies; energy policy; maritime industry policy; health services and occupational safety and health; international trade policy, and probably most important of all from labor's point of view — the major administration actions on the budget.

For example, thanks to the National Accord, the AFL-CIO hierarchy received the most detailed opportunity imaginable to spell out its priorities in the 1981 fiscal budget before it was officially presented to Congress. One executive branch agency official remarked that the AFL-CIO leaders "knew more about the budget of our department at some points in this process than we did."

Indeed, I was shocked to learn that the Office of Management and Budget shipped a huge library of its key documents to the AFL-CIO headquarters for review by those union leaders. A White House official admitted: "There has been nothing comparable to this in the history of the American government."

Nor anywhere else! Not even in some European countries, where unions and leading political parties historically work closely together, does there often occur such an example of intimate and specific collaboration. The same White House official went so far as to boast this recent process is "probably without parallel in annals of Western democracy."

I should add I see absolutely nothing wrong with consultation; in fact, I expect it. However, there is a distinct difference between consultation, and collaboration to the point of organized labor becoming deeply involved in the budgetary and policy making functions of the executive branch. The latter constitutes a dangerous precedent.

Perhaps that explains why, despite a runaway rate of inflation, the labor leadership no longer criticizes the President and now even sings his praises.

Perhaps that explains why, despite all the promises of fiscal restraint, spending for the originally proposed fiscal 1981 budget was scheduled to increase by an irresponsible 16 percent.

Perhaps that explains why, despite all the administration's rationalizations, our economy is in such a mess and pressure is growing for genuine budget cuts.

Legislation Seeks Equalization

Prospects look "excellent" for Congressional approval of legislation to equalize competition between state and national banks. Congressman Doug Bereuter said today.

The legislation which Bereuter is cosponsoring has been incorporated into an omnibus banking bill just reported out by the House Senate conferees and due for final action shortly.

The legislation, if enacted, will equalize competition between state and national banks by allowing state chartered financial institutions the same discretion national banks have on interest rates, notwithstanding state usury restrictions.

"The vitality of Nebraska communities depends a great deal on the financial stability of state chartered banks. They must be able to compete on an equal basis," Bereuter said.

It's becoming more and more apparent that the Wayne City Council needs a Wizard of Oz type — someone who can take charge and lead Kingdom City out of troubled times.

But that might just be a fantasy, since the Council has failed to address itself to a variety of problems without first finding the nearest hole in the ground and hiding there.

We've watched them in action (more inaction, lately), and understand quite well the complexities of the problems. There are no easy solutions to any of them, but continual tabling decisions has proved not to be the solution.

A policy recommendation from the City Administrator has been a bugaboo, with a decision tabled and tabled and tabled. Meanwhile, contractors and developers from the eastern half of the state are waiting patiently for some type of guideline.

We realize there are personnel problems relating to the policy, and the Council has held two closed sessions to discuss these problems. But as one Council member noted recently, the group should either fish or cut the bait.

A face-off between a local homeowner and Wayne State College over construction of a sewer line has caused the Council some grief. But again, rather than continually turning its back on the situation, the Council should discuss the item in open, seek advice from its counsel and make a decision.

We aren't saying the Council should rush to judgment. What is needed is some intelligent and open discussion on each of these matters instead of Council members discussing problems among themselves or behind closed doors.

And speaking of thorns in one's side, the Allen School District board of education certainly has its hands full.

A story on today's front page reports the actions taken by the Allen board after a lengthy public hearing last week. The board wants to fire (terminate his contract is the accepted terminology) Principal Dale Kennedy.

We won't speculate on his guilt or innocence, since the court now must make that judgment. What disturbs us is how difficult it is for a board of education to fire a faculty or administration member.

If it was you or me who was deficient in our duties, insubordinate, had bucked the law or failed to inform our employer about a major expenditure, we'd have our pink slip in hand.

But unions which represent teachers and administrators have lobbied successfully over the years for a strong grievance procedure. Now, it's almost impossible to get rid of an ineffective or poor teacher.

The Allen board has followed all the necessary steps in firing the principal. Instead of showing a teacher the door, the board first must notify him there might be just cause to send him on his way.

Under state law, the teacher or administrator can request a public hearing so the employer can air the complaints. After the hearing, the employee has the right to appeal the board's decision to District Court. The appeal process potentially ends with the Supreme Court.

This procedure in effect locks in all teachers and administrators regardless of their quality. The financial burden to the Allen School District will be awesome, since it has two attorneys working for them. And if the board loses the court case, it undoubtedly will have to pay Kennedy's costs as well.

There fundamentally is something wrong with a system that perpetuates inefficiency.

You and I work on a day to day basis knowing that if we screw up, we're out the door. Teachers work on a day to day basis (nine months a year), knowing that if they make a mistake, the school board more than likely will let it slip by because of the difficult procedure in ending a contract.

But the law is the law, and until it is changed, Dale Kennedy is following the proper procedure in trying to save his job.

Kennedy's attorney summed up the problem best when he said no school board will have the final say so in destroying a man's career. Why shouldn't the board have that right? The board hired the man and it should have the right to fire him as well.

We're not saying that workers should not have rights. They should, and do. But when a system is set up such that it protects ineffective or defective teachers, then the system should be changed.

A major reason for the problem is the influence that labor unions have had on teacher organizations. Labor has been a major force in the near destruction of England's economic system, and unions appear to be having similar success with our economy.

Read the other day was a report that inflation will remain in double digit figures for the rest of the decade because of cost of living clauses attached to labor contracts.

Teacher organizations, which can be compared to loosely structured unions, have sought to improve the lot of their members while ignoring the potential consequences to the economy.

YOU PROFIT TWICE WHEN YOU SPEND YOUR TAKE-HOME PAY IN YOUR OWN HOME TOWN!

It's really true! You profit twice when you spend your take-home pay at home. It doesn't make any difference how much you make or what kind of a job or business you have. What is important is that a community grows in relationship to the number of business transactions it makes, and about a third of these dollars help pay for community needs like hospitals, streets, schools and churches, police and fire departments and much more. So when you spend at home you strengthen the local economy so it is easier for everyone to pay taxes and support community projects. Four Recruits Sign Letters

Wayne State College added four players to its list of 1980 football signees Friday. Kelvin Patrick and Troy Thiem, South Sioux City, joined Mike Morgan, Sioux City, and Doug Ptacnik of Bloomfield on the Wildcat newcomer list.

Two of the new signees, Thiem and Ptacnik are linemen while Morgan and Patrick played linebacker in high school. The 6-1, 195-pound Thiem and the 6-1, 225-pound Ptacnik are expected to give the Wildcats much needed depth in the interior line positions.

Morgan (6-0, 190 pounds) played his high school football at Sioux City East High School while the 6-0, 210-pound Patrick doubled as a linebacker and fullback for the Cardinals of South Sioux City.

WSC Signs Pflanz

Todd Pflanz, a standout running back for the Emerson-Hubbard Pirates, has signed a "letter of intent" to play football at Wayne State College in 1980.

The 5-9, 180 pound tailback rushed for 1,052 yards last year leading the Pirates to the West Husker Conference Championship and a 7-2 record. Pflanz rushed for over 150 yards on several occasions last year including 178 yards against Homer and 188 yards against Laurel. He is known for his outside running speed and led the Pirates in kickoff returns having averaged 25.6 yards per return.

In addition to football, Pflanz has lettered in basketball and track at Emerson-Hubbard. He is the son of Dick Pflanz, Wayne and Mrs. Melvin Kubik of Emerson. Above: Pflanz signs with WSC coach Del Stoltenberg.

REDUCED TILLAGE SAVES DOLLARS

When was the last time you had an opportunity to work less and make more money? There is increasing evidence that reduced tillage offers you just such an opportunity. Reduced tillage is not a magical practice that guarantees increased yields and income. What it does do is lower production costs, maintain and sometimes increase yields, and conserve soil and water resources.

These days of unbelievable fuel costs, any time you can save a trip over the field, you are putting money in your pocket. Each trip saved also means less soil compaction and moisture loss, which in a dry year can mean a big difference in yields.

In some circumstances traditional tillage methods may be necessary, but some of the disadvantages of working the soil are:

1. It takes the weed seeds from the soil surface and plants them.
2. It stirs up the soil so it will dry out faster.
3. It requires more man hours when labor is in short supply.
4. It compacts the soil.
5. Tests show no improvement in yields from working the soil.

Reduced tillage can be used to any degree that fits a particular operation. For some, this may be merely retiring the mold board plow, while others may go to a no till system. The greater the reduction in tillage, the more benefit will be realized.

Leaving residue from last years crop on the soil surface acts as a mulch which cuts down evaporation from the soil. It is also a buffer which prevents soil erosion from spring rains and winter winds.

Test plots in several areas of the Midwest have shown savings (earnings) of $10-$20 per acre with reduced tillage as compared to conventional tillage. This amount will vary with weed control measures, soil moisture, and the amount of tillage done. Savings also depend on the price of the fuel you are saving, and you know what those prices are doing.

SAVE A PLACE FOR WILDLIFE

March 16-22 has been proclaimed National Wildlife Week with a theme which encourages people to think of the needs of wildlife populations.

The National Wildlife Federation has assembled 394,000 education kits for distribution to schools all over the nation. In Nebraska, the kits are available from the Game and Parks Commission. These kits are for the use of teachers in arranging class room and outdoor activities for their students. The activities illustrate for the children some of the necessities of a healthy wildlife population. Adequate food, winter shelter and nesting cover are the three basic needs, but are by no means, the only requirements.

Winter shelter is just one of the basic needs of all wildlife.

$35/acre PAYMENTS FOR WILDLIFE HABITAT

Lower Elkhorn NRD will continue to accept applications through March, from landowners wishing to participate in the Wildlife Habitat Program. This program of Lower Elkhorn NRD and Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, pays landowners $30 per acre for converting marginal crop land to habitat. The program also offers $5 per acre for allowing public access for hiking, hunting, fishing, or trapping.

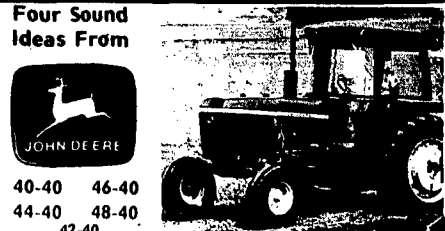

The program offers an opportunity to utilize the small, hard to farm patch and to increase the number of wild animals and birds at the same time.

For information or to apply for the program, contact your local Soil Conservation Service office.

Recreation Department, Wayne Volunteer Fire Department and the Wayne Jaycees. The Wayne Softball Association has not yet been contacted. Overin said one person in each organization will probably be contacted to head a certain phase of the improvement. Contractors will be given checks for their labor and time. They will endorse the checks and give them back to the city. The city will in turn send the checks to Lincoln for credit. Overin explained. Volunteer labor is also needed from persons who do not belong to the five organizations listed above. Any volunteer help will be appreciated. Overin said. Future work which needs to be done on a volunteer basis includes laying concrete, putting up fence and sodding (if done instead of seeding).

INTRODUCING
RED, WHITE & YOU DAYS
AT YOUR DODGE DEALER
Celebrating The Chrysler Guarantees from The New Chrysler Corporation.

- 1. A 30-day/1,000 mile money-back guarantee.
Buy one of our new 1980 cars or trucks. Drive it up to 30 days or 1,000 miles, whichever comes first. If you're not completely satisfied, you'll get your money back. But not the finance and insurance charges. All you do is bring your vehicle back to your dealer in good condition without metal damage. When he receives clear title, he returns your money. Refund on traded vehicle may be lower than the trade-in allowance.
- 2. The first guarantee of no-cost scheduled maintenance.
When you buy or lease a new 1980 car or truck, we'll provide oil changes, oil filters and other scheduled maintenance required for each vehicle. For 2 years or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first. For 1 year or 12,000 miles on our imports. At no charge.
- 3. The first guarantee of no-cost motor club membership with emergency road service.
The New Chrysler Corporation provides a two-year membership in the Amoco Motor Club at no cost to you when you buy or lease a new 1980 car or truck. Benefits include emergency road service, emergency towing car theft reward. And a lot more, subject to the conditions of membership.
And a $50 test drive offer to prove our confidence in Chrysler Engineering.
Test drive one of our new 1980 cars or Ram Tough trucks. Buy or lease one of ours or any qualifying new car or truck from one of our competitors within 30 days. Then return the test drive certificate with proof of purchase or lease. And the fifty dollars is yours. One payment per customer.

These New Chrysler Corporation commitments apply to new 1980 vehicles for personal use only. Your participating Dodge dealer will provide all the details.

Social Security Misinformation Is Circulating

Many people have the mistaken idea that employees in the social security office decide whether an applicant for disability benefits is able to work or not. Dale Branch social security district manager in Norfolk said recently. This just is not so. Branch said. People at the social security office do decide if a person meets non-medical requirements, such as whether having worked long enough and recently enough under social security to be eligible for checks.

But the information an applicant provides about his or her medical condition, including names of doctors or hospitals who did examinations, or provided treatment, and his or her work experience is sent to the disability determination unit in the Nebraska Disability Determinations Unit in Lincoln.

There is a team of professionals, one of whom is a doctor, reviews the claim. This team decides if the applicant is disabled within the meaning of the law and whether the person's condition prevents him or her from working for a year or more.

The team obtains medical reports from doctors and other sources of treatment or examination. If more information is needed, they may refer the applicant to a physician, clinic, or some other facility for another examination or test.

In addition to deciding if the applicant is disabled, the State agency considers whether or not vocational rehabilitation services could help the person return to work.

More information about disability benefits, as well as other social security programs, can be obtained at the Norfolk social security office located at 1310 Norfolk Avenue.
