Up, Up and Away

AN ESTIMATED 150 balloons, minus a few halted by balloon eating trees, soared to unknown destinations Monday afternoon in Allen. Students in grades K-6 began a national balloon race under sponsorship of Weekly Reader's Writing Pal program. A message attached to each balloon explained the project and asked that the finder return it to the school. Weekly Reader, which furnished most of the balloons, also will present a $500 prize to the school that gets back the message that has traveled the farthest distance. Also, 100 runner-up prizes will be awarded.

Final Filings Announced

With the primary election fewer than two months away and the filing deadline past, no one has indicated any interest in one of four Wayne City Council seats up for grabs.

THE WARD 1 Council seat held by Sam Hepburn is open and Hepburn failed to file by the February filing deadline. As a result, there isn't anyone running for that position. There will be spaces on the May 13 ballot for write-in candidates, says County Clerk Orgetta Morris.

But while there is a lack of candidates for that post in Wayne, there are three seats in area school board elections that have a multitude of filings.

COUNTY CLERKS in Dixon, Cedar and Wayne counties say the primary election will be needed to reduce the number of candidates for boards of education in the Allen Consolidated School District, the Laurel-Concord School District and the Winside School District.

Fifteen persons have filed for the Allen school board, while eight have filed for the Laurel board and seven for the Winside board. The general election ballot in November must carry the names of no more than six persons in each position.

Wayne filings
There are three seats open on the Wayne Carroll School District board of education and four persons have filed for the posts.

THOSE FILING include Bob Jordan and Becky Keldel and incumbents Jim Hummel and Nell Sandahl. Incumbent Dorothy Ley indicated previously she would not be a candidate.

There is only one contest for Wayne City Council, that one in Ward IV. Gary Vopalen-sky has challenged Councilman Cliff Ginn after Vopalen-sky withdrew from the school board race to file against Ginn.

Other seats open are held by Keith Mosley and Darrel Fuelberth. Both have filed and are unopposed. As noted, the other seat to be open is held by Hepburn who will not be running.

IN OTHER FILINGS, Kenneth Eddie, Carroll incumbent, has filed for re-election to the Wayne County board of commissioners. His is the only position open this year.

All incumbents have filed for the three seats on the Wayne County Nuisance Weed Control Board. These are Duaine Rethwisch, Wayne; and Enos G. Williams and Lester Menke, both Carroll.

TWO PERSONS have filed for two openings on the Wayne Airport Authority currently held by Bob Reeg and Frank Prather. Dean Craun and Charles (Chuck) Barnes are the only two to indicate interest.

Other Wayne County City Council, board of trustees or school board filings are as follows:

Kiwanis Pancake Feed Set

Wayne area residents are invited to eat pancakes with their friends and neighbors Thursday evening (today) during the annual pancake feed sponsored by the Wayne Kiwanis Club. Serving will be from 5 to 8 p.m. at the City Auditorium.

Koerber added that tickets are on sale from club members and will be available at the door for $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

The Wayne County Home Extension Council, Kiwanis and Red Cross are co-sponsoring a free blood pressure clinic during the pancake feed for persons who want this valuable health check.

Wayne County 4-H'ers also will be displaying several exhibits during serving hours.

Proceeds from the pancake feed are used by Kiwanis to support many community betterment projects including a youth golf tournament; Circle K Halloween party for area youngsters; the annual scholastic achievements banquet for students in Wayne-Carroll schools; and 4-H awards.

The Kiwanis also sponsors Boy Scout Troop 175 and Cub Scout Pack 175. Donations last year were made to the Nebraska Children's Home, Children's Memorial Hospital, Wayne United Way and Jaws of Life.

Council, Developer and Attorneys Reach Agreement on Sewer Line

By split decision, the City Council Monday night during special session approved an alternate route for construction of a sewer line from Claycomb Road to a Wayne State College maintenance building.

THE NEW ROUTE places the sewer line across Lot 4 in Tara Ridge rather than along the north side of 14th Street through the yard of developer Pat Gross as originally had been planned by WSC.

Wayne attorney Duane Schroeder, representing WSC, and Norfolk attorney David Domina, representing Gross, told their Council they were in agreement that Lot 4 was the only legal alternative open to the Council.

THE PROBLEM arose several weeks ago when developer Gross requested that the college delay construction of the sewer line. He said the trench needed for the line would be a hazard to his children.

The sewer line trench would have run some 18 feet deep along the south side of Gross' yard (also the city's right of way). Gross said he feared for the safety of his children and his neighbor's children in asking the construction delay until legal authority for the construction was determined.

FROM THE START of the conflict, Gross maintained that only the city had legal authority to construct the sewer line along the right of way, and that WSC did not. What recourse did he have, Gross said, if WSC constructed the line rather than the city?

After the issue was tabled at the first meeting and again at its next meeting, the Council held a special meeting Monday with all parties involved attending.

Attorney Schroeder said only three alternative routes were available: the route originally proposed on the north side of 14th Street, on the south side of 14th Street and then under Providence Road, or across Lot 4 in Tara Ridge.

SCHROEDER SAID the first and third alternatives were acceptable to the college, but the third choice was not being considered because of an additional $7,500 cost.

Speaking on behalf of his client, Domina cited two court cases supporting his contention that the only legal alternative was across Lot 4 of Tara Ridge. He said Gross, owner of the lot, had agreed to grant a permanent easement to the city for the sewer line.

"The city does not have a choice about where to locate the sewer line," Domina explained. Based on the court cases, "WSC

WSC ATHLETIC DECISION EXPECTED

A final decision on a Wayne State College proposal to drop men's track, women's track, men's tennis, women's tennis, golf and wrestling is expected to be announced at 5:45 p.m. today (Thursday) at a press conference scheduled in the Hahn Administration Building at Wayne State.

can construct sewer lines on land it owns, not land it does not own," he said.

THE NORFOLK attorney noted that the city's Comprehensive Plan says such utility lines should be constructed on the right of way. But based on the test cases, "the law compels an exception to the Comprehensive Plan," he said.

The court cases in effect say that a sewer line cannot be constructed on public property if not more than one person will benefit from the construction, or if it is not in the best interests of the public. According to Domina's interpretation of the law, only WSC would benefit from construction of the line if it were constructed on the city's right of way.

MAYOR WAYNE Marsh said his primary concerns were which location would best serve the taxpayers and what extra cost would be involved by going across Lot 4.

The mayor was assured by Domina that the only legal solution to the problem was the use of Lot 4, and that there would be no additional cost to the city.

Schroeder reminded the Council of the possibility of a temporary injunction to hold up construction which would result in further delay and additional costs.

MAYOR MARSH also confirmed that if Gross had not granted the easement across Lot 4 the college would have not been able to extend the sewer at all.

The vote was 4-2 in favor of a motion to place the sewer on Lot 4 and accept easement to the line. Voting in favor of the motion were Council members Carolyn Filter, Leo Hansen, Darrel Fuelberth and Keith Mosley. Voting against were Sam Hepburn and Larry Johnson. Cliff Ginn, WSC professor, abstained because of a potential conflict of interest.

AFTER THE VOTE and just prior to adjournment, Council member Carolyn Filter said she was unhappy about recent accusations that the Council was evading decisions on several issues.

These actions, she said, were based on legal opinion and were made carefully and with considerable forethought.

All Council members except Darrel Heier were present.

Energy Audit Grant To Wakefield Hospital

Wakefield Community Hospital has been awarded a matching grant in the amount of $1,000 for technical assistance to improve the energy efficiency of their buildings.

HOSPITAL Administrator Russell Swigart said Tuesday that the grant will enable the hospital to obtain the services of an engineering firm to analyze the needs of the hospital building. The nursing home will not be included, he added.

The announcement came this week from the U.S. Department of Energy Regional Office in Kansas City. Similar grants were awarded to the Lincoln board of education, Dodge & Saunders County No. 95 in North Bend and Community Memorial Hospital in Syracuse in Nebraska's First Congressional District. The grants totaled $19,235.

LINCOLN BOARD received $16,035 for audits of six buildings. Dodge & Saunders County received $1,300. Wakefield Hospital $1,000 and Community Hospital $900.

A DOE spokesman said "these improvements (energy) will provide direct and measurable savings, which can result in substantial dollar savings over many years to come as fuel costs rise."

The objective of the federal Institutional Building Grants Program is to reduce energy use by first offering matching funds to eligible public institutions for professional energy audits.

THESE AUDITS measure specific costs, payback period and projected energy savings from the use of energy conservation measures.

Swigart explained that an energy audit by the state already has determined some needs at the 30 year old hospital, but the engineering study will locate many others. He anticipates the energy audit to begin within 60 days, with the report available next fall. More funding is expected next year before the energy needs are implemented, he said.

THE DOE said that among measures institutions may implement are energy saving building operation and maintenance procedures, installation of insulation, addition of storm windows and doors, automatic thermostat controls, improvements to heating and ventilation systems and addition of solar water or space heating systems.

The grant cycle is the second phase of a multi-year $900 million program authorized by the National Energy Conservation Policy Act of 1978.

After applications were reviewed and ranked by the energy office, they were forwarded to DOE's Regional Office in Kansas City. After further review, the Regional Office awarded grants to some 630 schools and hospitals in the four state region of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri.

"To stumble twice against the same stone is a proverbial disgrace."
 Cicero

We should try to learn and benefit from our mistakes, bypassing the pitfalls that have claimed us before. To make the same mistake twice is an admission that we have difficulty in learning.

It is sad but true that some of us tend to stumble not only twice but many times and against the same "stone" before we learn certain lessons that experience should teach. We could save ourselves trouble by learning from the first stumble.

We are able to arrange for funeral services anywhere in the country. At a time of need, your first call should be to us. We will provide the kind of help you would expect from a friend.

'Coalition' Seeks Public Vote on Drinking Age

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

An organization known as Coalition 21 is involved in a petition drive which has as its objective amending the constitution to raise the legal drinking age to 21.

Chairman of the coalition is James S. Hamilton, who says he's sure the proposed amendment would be approved if the issue were placed on the ballot.

It will take more than 49,000 legal signatures from across the state to place the proposal before the voters, and the names will have to be collected by July 3. Hamilton said the coalition is aiming for submitting of 55,000 signatures.

This year's Legislature has enacted into law a bill that will raise the drinking age from 19 to 20, effective 90 days after final adjournment of the legislative session.

Hamilton told a recent press conference that during the 1971-73 period many states lowered both the age of majority and the legal drinking age to 18.

"Since August 1973, no state has lowered its age level," Hamilton said. "Since that time, a large number of states have raised the legal age back to 21. We believe that is the age level which ought to be here in Nebraska."

Hamilton said the coalition has received expressions of support from a number of organizations, including the Nebraska Conference of the Free Methodist Church, the Nebraska District of the Church of the Nazarene; the Midwest District of the Evangelical Free Church; the Executive Board of the Nebraska Association of Evangelicals, the Nebraska Women's Christian Temperance Union, and the Nebraska Council on Alcohol Education Inc.

Alcohol supplies reduced
Todd Sneller, executive director of the Nebraska Gasohol Commission, reported recently that some alcohol manufacturers are cutting back sharply in their deliveries to some Nebraska service stations.

One station's alcohol allocation was reduced to 90 percent, he said.

The reductions are occurring when demand for gasohol is increasing considerably, Sneller said.

Service stations sign contracts with manufacturers for the alcohol which they then mix with gasoline.

Sneller said an Omaha truck stop contracted for 20,000 gallons of alcohol a week but was received only 2,000 gallons. A Norfolk station reported its allocation of 32,000 gallons weekly was cut in half.

Amoco recently opened 640 of its stations nationally to gasohol sales and Texaco is also adding the product at hundreds of its stations on the East Coast.

Sneller said alcohol plants can't be constructed fast enough to keep up with the demand. He said it takes a minimum of 18 months to build an alcohol-producing plant.

Tax bills advanced
The Legislature's Revenue Committee has reported to the full Legislature two property tax bills that are competing for favorable attention from the lawmakers.

One of the measures, LB882, has the support of a farm-business coalition and is designed to solve constitutional flaws in the way $70 million in the Property Tax Relief Fund is distributed to local governments to make up for monies lost because of personal property tax exemptions.

The committee also advanced its own proposal. As revised, the bill provides for a 10 percent increase in the corporate income tax rate and for increasing the size of the tax relief fund annually by the percentage property taxes increased in the previous year.

The distribution formula would be based on a county's property valuation the first year. After that, population would gradually be phased into the formula until the distribution of the relief fund was based equally on population and valuation.

Opponents of LB882 claim it still does not adequately address the problems with the distribution formula being used now and which is being challenged in a lawsuit filed by the Nebraska State Education Association. The major problem with LB882, opponents claim, is that it would continue to base payments on the amount of exempted personal property on 1976 tax rolls.

Attorney General Paul Douglas said it would be difficult to defend the constitutionality of the suggested changes.

Sen. Vard Johnson of Omaha said it was a mistake to advance the bill without the question of constitutionality settled. But Sen. Cal Carsten of Avoca, chairman of the Revenue Committee, said it was too late in the session to debate the personal property tax exemption fund in committee.

A majority of the panel agreed and voted the measures out of committee for debate by the entire Unicameral.

Drug paraphernalia bill advanced
The Judiciary Committee has sent to the Legislature a bill that proposes banning sale and use of drug paraphernalia in so-called "head shops."

Controversy over the measure attracted a packed house for an evening hearing that lasted nearly five hours.

The committee advanced the bill despite warnings during the hearing that the legislation, if passed into law, would probably lead to a court battle because of its vague and overbroad language.

Another criticism was that the bill proposes a criminal solution for a social problem.

But those supporting the proposal defended it on grounds it would help protect youths from exposure to drugs and eventual drug abuse. Proponents also said the Legislature should be afraid to make moves designed to stop promotion of drug use.

On another matter, the Judiciary Committee sent to the full Legislature a revised bill that would help adopted adults find their biological parents.

The measure is similar to one that was passed this year but which was vetoed by Gov. Charles Thone. Supporters of the second bill said it addresses concerns Thone expressed when he vetoed the original bill.

There are enough safeguards in the legislation to protect all parties if an adopted adult decided to use procedures outlined in the bill to learn about his or her natural relatives, the supporters said.

Most Elected Officials Are High Caliber: Thone

"Based on my years of experience in both state and federal government, I want to reassure citizens that most of their elected officials are of high character.

"Because of the recent 'Abscam' investigation conducted by the FBI and resulting in allegations against eight of the 535 voting members of Congress, I feel that it is important to emphasize my belief that the great majority of those who hold office in America have high ethical standards.

"Certainly I can testify that the great majority of the elected officials I have worked with in state and federal government have been dedicated people. Many of them I disagreed with on philosophical grounds, or on how best to correct problems, but nearly everyone sincerely had the interests of those they represented uppermost in their thoughts.

"We must not lose faith in our system of representative government if we all become cynical and, as a result, take a less active part in the election process, we will not only have worse elected officials but might even lose some of our freedoms.

"The only way to have a better government is for each individual citizen to work harder at it. We must scrutinize those who seek office very carefully. We must attempt to judge not only the programs that they say they advocate but also their moral character. That's a tough job for a busy citizen, but it's a necessary responsibility to assure a successful representative form of government.

"Nebraska has been very fortunate with its elected officials. There have been few major scandals regarding office holders. We must work to keep that good reputation.

"Nebraska's office holders by April 1st each year are required to report property owned, other forms of wealth, sources of income, sources of any gifts and loans outstanding to the Nebraska Accountability and Disclosure Commission. This is one means of finding out if there were any questionable activities on the part of public officials.

"One of my first tasks as governor was to direct each of the directors of agencies that report to my office to adopt a code of ethics. We in government ought to be working constantly not only to maintain high standards of conduct but also to avoid actions that could in any way be misinterpreted as questionable by the citizens we serve.

OUT OF OLD NEBRASKA

Gov. Charley Thone

"Why does the boy become dissatisfied with the farm?"

The steady migration of Nebraska's farm population to towns and cities has been of continuing concern to the state's rural leaders since well before 1900. Greater job opportunities in urban centers and less need for manpower on increasingly mechanized farms were important reasons for the shift. But some farm spokesmen believed that making farm life more attractive and comfortable — especially for young people — could slow the trend. The March 5, 1903, "Nebraska Farmer" on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society publishes the text of an address delivered by G. Babsen of Seward before a 1903 Farmers' Institute at Tamora, Seward County. Babsen, who entitled his speech "Why Does the Boy Become Dissatisfied With the Farm," urged parents to provide their sons with better equipment and more education to make rural living as attractive as urban life. Babsen first addressed fathers:

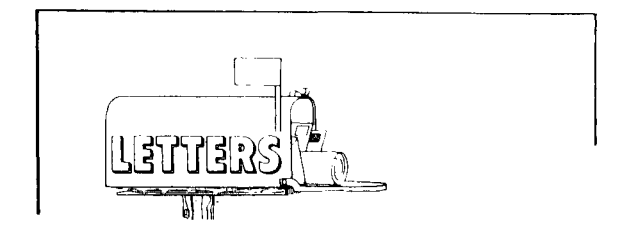

with a look that plainly says: "John, I always knew it was your fault that Charley left the farm." But, mother, I have a word for you, too. You have been a good mother at heart, and you wonder what guilt I can find with you. Why, the earliest recollection of almost every boy is the association of his mother's voice, pitched in a rather high key. "Now, Charley, don't make so much noise; you had better go outdoors if you are going to be so noisy." And as the boy must make noise he goes, and not wishing to give his mother any more trouble he stays out as long as he can, and returns only to hear about the mud he is tracking on the new carpet.

"Now this boy has one or two sisters, whom he is all the time compared with, to his disadvantage. He must always give up to sister, if she is older because she is older, and if younger he is told it is because she is younger. The boy gets the short end all the time. Sister always has lots of new clothes, in fact, she is dressed far better than mother, while the boy wears father's cast-off clothes made over, and when the family goes to town he is left at home, because his mother says "he has no clothes fit to be seen." A little later mother insists on sister having a piano and three hundred dollars goes into a piano for sister, and she goes to town every week for lessons.

"The boy has a little musical taste, too, and he wants a horn, but he don't get it. Mother holds up her hands in holy horror and says a horn would drive her crazy, and father assures her that she need not worry as money is not so plentiful that he could spare ten dollars for a horn. Sister has her girl friends come and spend the afternoon and stay to supper. If supper is not an early one, and they have gone before the boy gets in, mother says: "Charley must wait, as his clothes are so dirty." In any case he gets what is left — "short end" again.

"There is another suggestion that I wish to make here. Plan next winter to send at least one of the boys to the Winter School of the Agricultural College (University of Nebraska). He will learn a great many things which you don't know, and the knowledge that he will get, combined with your mature judgment, will make a combination hard to beat. He will have such a new world opened up before him that if the mother tries to make home what it should be, he will stay at home until he goes to make a home for himself."

Dear Sir,

In regard to the proposed sales tax, I feel that it is not a good deal for the city. The people that it will hurt the most, are the ones of low income and do not own property.

Food and general merchandises are expensive enough without an added 1% sales tax. A lot of people from Wayne are already going to Sioux City for their groceries as there are no sales tax on food in Iowa. All of Wayne's Merchants will get hurt if we have a city tax. Shoppers will go elsewhere. Less sales in Wayne will mean less revenue for the town through local taxes.

Maybe we need to have an expert look into our financial difficulties and help us out. Also the tax table published in The Wayne Herald is not a good base as comparison, to day's prices are somewhat higher now than they were 3 years ago.

Thank you for hearing me out.

Dear Editor

All burned up? You bet. Another $2 parking ticket has prompted me to write about Wayne's unique parking plan on most of its residential streets: No Parking from mid night to 5 a.m.

Before coming to Wayne, I had lived in several cities, both large and small. Most every city of any size has some kind of parking ordinance to facilitate snow removal. However, these regulations are only enforced on the days when the snow plows are actually out. This system makes most everyone want to cooperate because of the advantages of getting snow off the streets.

In Wayne, they want our cars off the street every night, whether it be winter or summer. I cannot see any reasonable explanation for this. In my time here, I have never seen any work done on the residential streets between midnight and 5. — may it be snow removal, street cleaning or other work. Other people I have talked with have told me the same thing. Yet, this parking law is rigidly enforced all year long. What is the big deal?

Several months ago, I came upon a Wayne police officer at night writing parking tickets to cars. (Mine was included.) I asked him why these cars had to be ticketed. The officer said it was a part of the night shift's assigned duties. I then asked him if he personally felt this midnight to 5 thing was so important. The officer smiled and said: "No. Apparently the city council does. I will not give you this policeman's name, because I respect him for giving me honest answers. I realize that the police are not to blame — they are only doing the dirty work for the city lawmakers."

One day while driving around, I took notice of all the people that have to park on their lawns at night. This law is forcing many of them to ruin their beautiful yards. I'll bet that all of the council members have nicely paved driveways!

People of Wayne, wake up. Just because one soul said it was the right thing to do 20 years ago, doesn't mean it has to be right to day. If there are others of you who feel as I do, make yourself known. For now, will the Mayor, Police Chief, or a Council Member please explain as to why this parking regulation is so important? Signed, a habitual parking criminal.

WSC Opens Wednesday

Softball Outlook Rosy

With all but two Lady Wildcat starters returning, Wayne State College's 1980 softball fortunes look bright as the women prepare for their 1980 season opener against Nebraska Wesleyan at 2 p.m., Wednesday in Wayne.

Third year coach Susan Kovar welcomes back four women who were selected honorable mention All-Central States Intercollegiate Conference last year. Vicki Carsey, Teri Rademacher, Diana Hall and Lynne Larson all are back for the 1980 season. In 1979, Kovar directed her squad to an 18-13 record. Here is how the Lady Wildcats look position-by-position in 1980:

INFIELD: Three of last year's CSIC All-Stars return to starting infield positions making this area one of the team's strong points. Vicki Carsey of Fremont, will be back at second base after batting .239 last year with 14 RBIs, a team leading figure.

Two players from Whiting, Iowa, Teri Rademacher and Diana Hall, will be back at catcher and third base respectively. Though Rademacher batted only .181 last year she is regarded as one of the team's better defensive players. Hall batted .246 and made only nine errors in 25 games.

First baseman Robin Walsh of Mapleton, Iowa, is also a returning starter. The lone newcomer will be shortstop Connie French, a freshman from O'Neill. Three other freshmen probably will see playing time in the infield.

Lady Wildcat basketball players Lori Cadwell, Dallas Center, Iowa, will play some of first base and Lisa Draper, Council Bluffs, Iowa, should back-up French at shortstop. Reserve catcher Deanna Reic, Elkhorn, completes the list of freshmen infielders. Another returnee who could see playing time is Patti Johnson who will probably split time between the outfield and third base.

OUTFIELD: The outfield positions may be Wayne State's weakest area. Five sophomores and two freshmen will be competing for the starting spots and though all five sophomores played last year only one played in more than 20 of the Lady Wildcat's 31 games.

Patti Johnson played in 23 games last year batting .308 with eight RBIs. However, as indicated, Johnson will probably split playing time between the outfield and third base. Other players competing for an outfield spot are: Lynn Brandt, a sophomore from Papillion; Renee Fernau, a sophomore from Butte; Susan Plumb, a sophomore from Kirksman, Iowa; Linda Prchal, a sophomore from Millard; Deb Janssen, a freshman from Kingsley, Iowa; and Devrie Soulek, a freshman from Nelson.

Coach Kovar indicated she will look to her outfielders for offensive punch saying that "The Kids (from the group of seven) that are hitting the best will play in the outfield."

PITCHERS: The Lady Wildcats' pitching staff is probably the team's best area. Lynne Larson of Irwin, Iowa; Pat Lenihan of Council Bluffs, Iowa and Cindy Stella of Bellevue who comprised last year's pitching staff, all are back for the 1980 season. Larson posted a 7-8 record with a sparkling 1.23 ERA last year. Lenihan was 6-4 with an equally impressive ERA of 1.80, and although Stella pitched in only six games she compiled a 4-1 record.

Kovar said the three have improved from last year and "all of them are strong and could probably pitch two games in a row if they had to."

Last year the threesome combined for a team ERA of 2.06 while limiting opposition to a combined batting average of only .194.

Zeiss, Nelson Named All-West Husker

Two Wayne Blue Devils were named to the West Husker All-Conference team announced at a conference meeting Tuesday night. Senior Jeff Zeiss and junior Perry Nelson join 10 other West Husker players on the boys' first team. Girls' selections were not available as Wayne coach Curt Frye was attending a meeting out of town, Wednesday.

Coach of the year and player of the year honors, to no one's surprise, were awarded to coach Bob Uhing and brother Russ Uhing of state championship Hartington Cedar Catholic.

The 5-6 Zeiss and 6-5 Nelson were both named to the first team and 6-0 junior Kevin Nissen was selected to the honorable mention list. Season statistics of the individuals were not available at press time but will be included in a season wrap up later.

First team selections include Zeiss and Nelson of Wayne; Russ Uhing, Mark Becker, Jon Kathol and Jeff Zimmer of Hartington CC; Ron Deets and Kent McCallum of Madison, Mark Dea and Pat Toby of West Point Central Catholic; Randy Fuscher of Emerson Hubbard; Ryan Went of Columbus Lakeview; Nelson and McCallum were the only juniors named to the team. The others are all seniors.

"This is the most talented group, by far, we've ever had," Wayne coach Bill Sharpe said of the All-Conference team. The selections expanded from eight players last year to 12 players this year. West Point CC joined the West Husker Conference this season.

Old-Timer Wrestling Planned

Dana College of Blair will host an Old Timers Wrestling Tournament in Berup Coliseum Saturday, March 22. Dana wrestling coach Ernie Abarlotes has announced.

Abarlotes said that all area wrestlers are eligible for the competition, except for high school students and 1979-80 college and university wrestling team members.

Weighing in is set for 8-9:30 a.m. that day, Abarlotes said. The entry fee is $8, with an additional $1 charge for team members.

The weight classes for Juniors are 126, 134, 142, 150, 158, 167, 177, 190, 215, and heavyweight. For seniors they are 140, 150, 160, 170, 180, 195, and heavyweight.

For additional information about the tournament, call Abarlotes at 402-426-3459 after 6 p.m.

Women's Track To Begin Friday

The Wayne State College women's track team will be relying heavily on four freshmen and three seniors when the Lady Wildcats open their 1980 season Friday, March 28 in Wayne against the University of South Dakota at Springfield and Dana College.

Two women who were consistent point winners in field events last year, Sue Fricke of Monroe, and Lori Ann Gostar of Charter Oak, Iowa, are expected to provide senior leadership this year. Fricke's best event is the shot put while Gostar doubles in the javelin and discus.

Another top senior is Joan Hochstein of Wayne Hochstein along with freshman Deb Litz of Snyder, are expected to be top performers in distance events.

Second year head coach Helen Carroll indicated three other freshmen could be consistent point winners. Marian Borgmann of Osmond, will be a threat in sprint events while the middle distance and hurdle events will be led by Debra Deitering of Missouri Valley, Iowa, and Marie Schwartz of Omaha respectively.

State Parks Require Vehicle Entry Permits

Park entry permits will be required on all vehicles entering Nebraska state parks and most recreation areas beginning April 1 through Oct. 31, according to assistant Game and Parks Commission director Dale Bree.

Bree, who is in charge of the State Parks System, noted that conservation officers will be enforcing the law requiring the park permit more vigorously than in the past. "We're in the third year of the park entry permit program, and we feel that there has been plenty of time for everyone to become familiar with this law," Bree said.

In the first two years of the program, conservation officers issued warnings and sold permits, except in the cases of chronic repeat offenders. "This year, conservation officers will enforce the park permit law with citations in the event of non-compliance," he said.

"We are expecting a lot of people on our areas as soon as spring weather arrives, and we hope that they all have a good experience. But, anyone enjoying our parks and recreation areas has the opportunity to help build and maintain these facilities by purchasing a vehicle permit. That's what the park entry fee is all about," Bree said.

According to Bree, the park permits are available from some 1,200 permit vendors across the state, as well as Game and Parks Commission officers and conservation officers.

Permits are $5 for resident annual permits, $1.50 for resident daily, $10 for non-resident annual, and $2 for non-resident daily.

A duplicate permit for households with more than one vehicle is also available. These additional permits each cost $1, and must be bought at the same time the original permit was purchased. The registration certificate for these additional vehicles must be presented at the time duplicate permits are purchased.

Team Three cut at the deficit for the next two quarters but couldn't make up enough ground. Darrell Hahn scored eight points in the second quarter and Fritz Weible and Doug Sturm took over in the third quarter as Team Three rallied back to within four points.

The Laurel girls basketball team had its ups and downs while compiling a 9-8 record this past season. Head coach was Ev Jansen and assistant coach was Dwight Iverson.

Laurel made 276 field goals compared to 227 for the opposition during the winning season. Junior Kay Anderson made 86 baskets in 269 attempts and hit 42 of 66 free throws for 64 percent accuracy. She scored 214 total points for an average of 12.5 points per game. Anderson was also the rebounding leader with 133.

Roxie Kraemer, whose aggressiveness sparked her team in many victories, shot 41 percent from the field while scoring 123 points for a 7.2 scoring average per game. One of her biggest team contributions came in the area of steals, a category where official statistics were not kept. Her defensive play made her presence vital to the team.

The other two main team leaders were seniors Deb Thompson and Paula Chace. Thompson pulled down 128 rebounds and scored 106 points for the season. Chace scored 108 points and made 60 rebounds for Laurel.

Laurel outscored its opposition 710-617 in 17 games, while averaging 41.7 points per game, 5.5 points more than the opponents.

Team Six took the early lead 13-11 as Lynn Lessmann scored seven first quarter points. The momentum shifted in the second quarter as Team Two outscored its opposition 18-10. Bob Ridings was responsible for seven points in that quarter.

An explosive third quarter put Team Two on top by 15 points. Fleer hit 12 points in the period as his team put the game out of reach. An even fourth quarter enabled Team Two to hold on for the victory.

Energy Help For Nebraskans

The Nebraska Energy Assistance Program (NEAP) reported that some 7,000 Nebraska households have applied for financial assistance with their increased heating costs this winter.

Program officials reminded eligible households and persons that April 30 is the deadline for making application for help from the federally-allocated, $4.2 million energy assistance fund.

Application assistance is available from the Wayne County Welfare Office or by calling the statewide tollfree number of 800-472-7630.

Those households whose income is at or below the 125 percent of poverty guideline may be assisted with their heating costs up to a maximum of $400.

Eligibility guidelines, based on household size and maximum average monthly income, are: household of one person, $350 maximum average monthly income; household of two, $463; household of three, $575; and household of four, $683. Income guidelines proportionately increase for larger households.

The Department of Public Welfare was designated by the governor's office to administer the Nebraska Energy Assistance Program which was begun Feb. 1.

The Department estimates 15,000 low-income households may be eligible for energy assistance in addition to those 30,000 households whose eligibility is established through other programs.

Allen Student Is Initiated

Members of the Wayne State College Chapter of the National Cardinal Key Honorary recently initiated nine new members for 1979-80.

New members are selected from outstanding junior Wayne State coeds with a 3.0 (on a 4-point scale) average or better. The girls are nominated by faculty and through campus organizations, based on character, scholarship, participation in campus and community organizations and on leadership abilities. Current members of Cardinal Key then elect members, based on the above qualifications. The organization is limited to 25 top WSC students.

New Cardinal Key members include: Lori Erwin, Concord; Deann Feagan, Bellevue; Rhonda Johnson, Centereach, N.Y.; Renae Kehrberg, LeMars, Iowa; Deborah Nissen, Albion; Shawnee Plock, Burwell; Joy Stewart, Albion; Kathryn Test, Norfolk; and Christina Valasek, Palmer.

Erwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Erwin of Concord, is a 1977 graduate of Allen Consolidated High School and a junior physical education major at WSC.

Choir-Clinic Set at WSC

The voices of students from 13 different high school and college choirs will combine in a free mass concert Saturday in Ramsey Theatre as part of the Tenth Annual High School Choir Clinic Festival at Wayne State College.

The concert, beginning at 2:30 p.m., will include performances by students from throughout Nebraska and Iowa, along with the Wayne State College Choir. Students will rehearse throughout the day for the performance, under the direction of WSC Choir Director Dr. Cornell Runestad.

Each high school choir will also perform separate numbers at the concert, with the groups combining for the mass concert. The WSC Concert Choir and WSC Madrigal Singers will also sing in separate performances.

Omaha North High School, selected as this year's Honor Choir, will perform in a separate concert at 11:45 a.m. in Ramsey Theatre.

High school choirs currently scheduled to participate are Omaha North, under the direction of Robert Jones; Creighton, under the direction of Harold Roemer; Clarkston, under the direction of Terri Hankins; Valentine, under the direction of Jack Erickson; Kingsley; Pierson, Iowa, under the direction of Mary Wachter; Omaha Benson, under the direction of Terry Theis and Wayne under the direction of Matt Smith.

State Energy Picture to Improve Overall

Improvement in the overall Nebraska 1980's energy picture was predicted by energy experts speaking Wednesday, March 12, at the 1980 Nebraska Water Conference in Lincoln.

The two-day conference was sponsored by the Nebraska Conference Council and the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources in cooperative with the Division of Continuing Studies, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"From the standpoint of electric power in Nebraska, we are in a very comfortable position for the 1980's," said D.A. Blatchford of Columbus, assistant general manager with the Nebraska Public Power District. He noted, however, that rates would have to be increased as the cost of fuel goes up.

Nebraska natural gas reserves increased by the late 1970's, said S.D. Whiteman, Jr., of Hastings, vice president with the Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Co. He said his company improved its reserve by acquisition and exploration efforts.

"While more gas is available," said Whiteman, "the ability to get it out of the ground has not increased substantially over the immediate past." He reported that 16,400 irrigation wells are powered by natural gas through his company's system. Last year, he said, there were 500 to 600 wells added to the average of 275 wells.

"About the only certainty I have for you is that natural gas will cost more in the future," said Whiteman. "We feel that natural gas — even at increased costs — will still be an energy bargain."

The outlook for petroleum was not as hopeful, however. Charles J. Mankin, director of the Oklahoma Geological Survey, said: "The future is indeed uncertain. The rate of decline of our proven petroleum reserves may be more rapid than earlier expected."

He said half of U.S. petroleum is being imported today, mostly from the Middle East, and that it is used for automobile fuel, which now requires 300 million gallons daily.

"We must have 10 million barrels of crude oil just to supply motor fuel needs every day in the United States," said Mankin.

"We are producing 8 1/2 million barrels a day in the (contiguous) United States and Prudhoe Bay is producing about 2 million barrels a day. But experts expect that 7 million barrels of crude oil a day will be a maximum effort of the future." It is unlikely that gasohol can make a contribution to the national energy problem, he said, although it may help locally, especially in Nebraska where the local supply is great.

Assessing the future role of renewable energy sources, Darrell W. Webber of Denver, assistant regional director with the Department of Interior's Water and Power Resources Service, told of continuing experiments with solar mirrors, solar heating, low-head hydro power and wind energy.

He said wind energy technology has been changing dramatically and that experiments in this area are being conducted in Wyoming. He was enthusiastic over the prospects of developing energy from "wind farms" powered by giant wind towers. One citizen of Wyoming, speaking in a short film on wind power, put the issue clearly: "Over the years," he said, "I think there has been a lot of wind wasted in Wyoming."

One conferee, in apparent agreement with that statement, suggested that more wind towers ought to be put up in Washington, D.C.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Tama Krause

TO HIT YOUR STRIDE EAT SMART

"To Hit Your Stride — Eat Smart" is the theme for National Nutrition Month, sponsored by the American Dietetics Association each March.

Millions of Americans think of diet when nutrition is the topic. And "diet" usually means "reducing diet."

In order to "hit their stride," Americans need to reach and maintain their correct weight. The Nebraska Dietetic Association and the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service emphasize that a good way to lose weight is by exercising to burn more calories than are consumed.

These two professional organizations offer the following speedy quiz for you to measure your nutrition savvy. Compare the calories burnt in these exercises and answer the questions.

A. If Sally (120 pounds) swims for 25 minutes at a speed of 20 yards per minute, the calories burnt would be equal to or more than which of the following?

- a) 8-oz. skim milk (90 calories)
- b) one medium orange (64 calories)
- c) 1 cup cooked spaghetti (190 calories)
- d) 1/6 cherry pie (412 calories)

B. Dan (240 pounds) swims for 25 minutes at a speed of 20 yards per minute; the calories burnt would be approximately equal to:

- a) 8-oz. skim milk (90 calories) calories)

b) one medium orange (64 calories)
c) 1 cup cooked spaghetti (190 calories)
d) 1/6 cherry pie (412 calories)

C. Mr. (190 pounds) and Mrs. (160 pounds) Webster walk for one hour after dinner at 4 miles per hour. Will they both exercise enough to burn the calories in the Big Mac (543 calories), small fries (269 calories) and Coke (97 calories) they had for dinner?

- a) yes
- b) no

D. In the spring, Harry (200 pounds) rides his bicycle. If he rides his bicycle 35 minutes every day for 30 days at 10 miles per hour, but continues to eat the same number of calories per day as in the winter, approximately how many pounds might he lose?

- a) 1 pound
- b) 3 pounds
- c) 5 pounds

E. If Harry would cut down by eating 350 calories less per day, how many pounds would he lose in the same period?

- a) 1 pound
- b) 3 pounds
- c) 5 pounds

ANSWERS: A. Sally will burn less calories than Dan because she is less heavy. Sally would burn 97 calories so answers a and b would be correct. B. Dan would burn 194 calories so answers a, b and c would be correct. C. Mr. Webster will burn 445 or approximately 50 percent and Mrs. Webster will burn 375 or approximately 40 percent of what they ate. Isn't that better than sitting around watching TV after dinner? D. Harry will lose 3 pounds in 30 days with exercise alone. answer b. E. Harry will lose another 3 pounds, answer b, with a decrease in calories. This is why a program is usually successful that uses a combination of exercise and diet.

"To Hit Your Stride — Eat Smart!" (but don't forget to exercise).

Allen School Budget Subject Of 'Hold The Line' Petition

A petition calling for a freeze on the 1980-81 Allen Consolidated School District budget was to be filed with the Dixon County Clerk Wednesday afternoon.

AN ESTIMATED 111 persons signed the petition which asks the Allen board of education to set up an election at which time the no-growth budget question would be posed to Allen voters.

The Dixon County Clerk was checking names Wednesday to determine if the required number of voters was recorded on the petition. Under state law, the names of at least five percent of the total registered voters in the school district must appear on the petition before it is binding. THE PETITION was expected to be presented to the Allen board of education later this week. The board then must place the issue up for election, either by special election or on the primary ballot May 13.

If approved, the special issue would require the board to hold the line on the budget. In other words, the 1979-80 budget would be required to remain the same for fiscal year 1980-81 beginning Sept. 1.

Additional details will appear in Monday's issue of The Wayne Herald.

Constant Pig Supply One Cause of Disease

A constant supply of newly born pigs is one reason transmissible gastroenteritis (TGE), has become not only a wintertime disease, but also a problem for larger production units throughout the year, said an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension veterinarian.

ALEX HOGG said TGE, a highly contagious disease of the small intestine, affects swine of all ages but often is fatal in pigs under three weeks of age. However, a federal license has been granted for a new TGE vaccine to combat the disease.

The vaccine is administered in three steps, he said. Two doses are given orally five weeks and three weeks pre-farrowing and a third dose is given intramuscularly one week prior to farrowing.

ALTHOUGH label recommendations do not advise using the vaccine after an outbreak of TGE occurs, reports from the field indicate the oral vaccination of young pigs before they are exposed to the disease is helpful in reducing losses, Hogg said.

Since milk flow stops in sows with TGE, Hogg suggests feeding a diluted good quality milk replacer in a shallow pan to save pigs that otherwise would die of dehydration. Supplying fluids to sick pigs also helps to prevent dehydration.

According to Hogg, introduction of TGE into a herd can be prevented.

MAINTAIN a closed herd because the pig can be a carrier of TGE virus for several months after recovery from the infection and keep visitors at a minimum, Hogg advised producers. Also, never bring purchased feeder pigs to a farm that is farrowing sows, he said.

"Use the 'two boot' system — one pair for your farm and a different pair to wear to town where other pork producers congregate," Hogg said.

He also suggests using freshly prepared foot baths of a good disinfectant solution and using the TGE vaccination schedule recommended by the local veterinarian.

Spring Is Time To Take Action Involving Birds

With spring approaching, people are eager to leave thoughts of winter behind. But for wildlife lovers, it's not too early to think about next winter and the food and cover wildlife will need then.

RON JOHNSON, extension wildlife specialist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said spring is the time to take action to make next winter a little easier for birds and other species which winter in Nebraska.

"Young people can have a special role in helping wildlife," he said, because of a cooperative program between the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission and the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service.

The Game and Parks Commission is making available 595 five-pound bags of seeds for wildlife plantings through many county extension offices, Johnson explained. Seeds are free and will be available to youngsters in April and May for young plantings.

EACH BAG of seed contains enough milo, millet and sunflower or safflower seed to plant a quarter acre food patch. Seed from the bags must only be used for planting and not for direct feeding, he warned, because the seed may have been treated with chemicals such as insecticides.

Having a natural food supply for wildlife is much better than providing for artificial feeding when weather is bad, Johnson said. Many wildlife areas are inaccessible during bad weather. Young people should plant their food patches fairly close to good winter wildlife cover, so wildlife will not have to travel very far to feed, Johnson said.

JOHNSON NOTED that the food for wildlife planting makes an excellent school or youth group project. Complete planting instructions are included with each bag of seed. Youngsters can observe the wildlife who use the food, perhaps taking photos of the animals who visit or making posters, he suggested.

Medicare Deadline Is March

March is the last month of the 1980 general enrollment period for people who failed to sign up for Medicare medical insurance at their first chance.

There's a general enrollment period during the first three months of each year. Also eligible to enroll at this time are people who once had medical insurance but who dropped this protection.

Medical insurance protection will start July 1, 1980, for people who sign up during this period. The basic monthly premium for medical insurance is $9.60 starting July 1. The basic premium is increased by 10 percent for each 12 months a person could have had this protection but did not.

The premium paid by those with medical insurance represents less than one-third of the cost. The remaining amount is paid by the Federal Government from general revenues.

Medical insurance helps pay for doctors' services, outpatient hospital services, and many other medical items and services not covered by the hospital insurance part of Medicare.

In general, after a person has had $60 in reasonable charges for covered medical expenses in a year — the annual deductible — medical insurance will pay 80 percent of the reasonable charges for any additional covered services a person has during the rest of the year.

Anyone who has a question about either part of Medicare, hospital insurance or medical insurance, can get the answer at the Norfolk social security office. They have free leaflets which tell about the protection offered by Medicare.

Combination Kids The Combination Kids 4-H Club met Jan. 14 in the home of Gerald Grone. The president opened the meeting and the pledge was recited.

The new officers for 1980 are Debi Penn, president; Rebecca Ostendorf, vice president; Marvin Hansen, secretary; Dale Hansen, treasurer; Connie Hansen, news reporter; Debby Bull, historian; and Mrs. Grone, leader. Other project leaders were elected.

A skaling party was planned for March and new members were discussed. Secret friends and dues also were discussed. Connie Hansen, news reporter.

Hoskins Honeys The Hoskins Honeys 4-H Club met March 10 at the Hoskins Public School library. Six members and leaders Mrs. Larry Neltzke and Mrs. Richard Behmer were present.

The meeting was opened with the 4-H pledge, and slides on tips for speech contests were shown. Color notebooks were finished and plans were made to attend the Officers Training Workshop in Wayne on March 25.

Mrs. Neltzke served refreshments. Members will review their speeches for the speech contest to be held later this spring when they meet April 1 at the fire hall.

A farmer in Japan claims to have created the world's first odor-free garlic.

'Big Band' Dance Set

The "big band sound" of the Eddy Haddad Orchestra will be featured at a free community dance beginning at 8 p.m., Saturday, March 29, in Rice Auditorium at Wayne State College.

The 11-piece orchestra's music ranges from fox trots and polkas to waltzes and the new sounds in music. They have performed at Ak Sar-Ben shows in Omaha with various performers including Robert Goulet, Neil Sedaka, Victor Borge and Leslie Uggams. Featured vocalist for the evening will be baritone Subby Caniglia.

The dance, sponsored by the WSC Student Senate, is open for the public's enjoyment.

VFW Auxiliary Meets in Wayne

Members of the VFW Auxiliary met March 10 at the Wayne Vet's Club with 15 members. President Neva Lorenzen called the meeting to order.

A letter was read from District III commander LeRoy Kirkman announcing that the district meeting will be held April 13 at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Elgin.

Women planning to attend from the Wayne unit are Mrs. Albert Soules, Mrs. Erving Doring, Mrs.

Wendell Korh, Mrs. August Lorenzen, Mrs. Marvin Draghu, Amy Lindsay, Mrs. George Hoffman, Eveline Thompson and Mrs. Ernest Sietken.

It was announced that the rehabilitation chairman attended the mid-winter conference at Grand Island in February and visited with the national commander in Norfolk on Feb. 27. She will be sending Easter cards to shut-ins.

A donation was given to the department president's special project.

On the serving committee were Mrs. Gordon Helgren, Eveline Thompson and Elaine Howell. New officers will be elected at the next meeting, slated April 14.

Poet to Give Public Reading

Poet Mark Vinz, currently an English instructor at Moorhead State University, Moorhead, Minn., will present a free public reading at 7 p.m., Thursday (today) in the KWSC-TV Studios at Wayne State College.

Vinz, author of the chapbook collections "Songs for a Hometown Boy" and "Deep Water, Dakota," has had works published in over 100 magazines and anthologies. His most recent book, "Red River Blues," will be published in 1980.

He is a recipient of a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship in poetry and is the founder and editor of the poetry journal "Dacotah Territory."

Vinz is the fifth of six poets to give readings at WSC through the WSC Plains Writers' Circuit. The readings are sponsored by the Program for the Arts in Communities and Education (PACE), which serves to promote the arts in Northeast Nebraska communities.

Cattle on Feed Show Decline

Nebraska cattle feeders had 1,470,000 cattle on feed on March 1. This inventory was down 12 percent from last year and was the lowest for the date since 1976. Fed cattle marketings for the month of February totaled a record high 375,000, an increase of 15 percent from 1979 and 7 percent from 1978.

Placements of cattle into feedlots during February totaled 330,000. This was up 3 percent from last year and 8 percent above the February, 1978, placements.

Cattle and calves on feed March 1 for slaughter market in the seven states preparing monthly estimates totaled 7.44 million head, down 9 percent from a year ago and 10 percent less than March 1, 1978. Marketings of fed cattle during February totaled 1.57 million, down 5 percent from last year and 7 percent less than February, 1978.

Placements of cattle and calves on feed in the seven states during February were 1.21 million, down 8 percent from last year and off 21 percent from February, 1978. Net placements of 1.05 million head were down 7 percent from a year ago and 21 percent below 2 years ago. Other disappearance totaled 155 thousand compared with 170 thousand in February, 1979, and 181 thousand in 1978.

Lithographs on Display

A variety of Lithographs and intaglio prints, which have been executed and printed in limited editions by Lloyd R. Menard, an associate professor of printmaking at the University of South Dakota, Vermillion, will be on exhibit March 17 to April 4 in the Nordstrand Arts Gallery at Wayne State College.

Menard, who has developed and directed a major national exhibition and symposium on printmaking, has displayed his works at more than 125 international, national and regional competitive and invitational exhibitions and one-man shows. His work is represented in over 30 permanent collections.

Menard's WSC exhibit will be open free to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. A reception for the artist will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Nordstrand Gallery and will be followed by a slide lecture by Menard.

Some Optimism That Embargo Won't Be Adverse

Government and agribusiness representatives are optimistic that American farmers will not suffer adversely from the Soviet grain embargo, but instead will increase production to meet world demand.

THE EFFECTS of using agricultural products to influence international affairs were addressed by Stan Smith of the marketing division of Cargill Inc. and Kelly Harrison, general sales manager for the United States Department of Agriculture, at the Alpha Zeta Ag Forum March 5 at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Union.

Internationally, America supplies 64 percent of the total world exports and the amount is increasing, Harrison said, noting that one out of three acres of farm production is exported.

"THE WORLD demand is likely to grow in the next decade and the American farmer has the ability to produce for this increasing demand," he said.

The ability to increase production, in terms of per capita acreage required to produce food and fiber for domestic use also has Smith optimistic about the 1980s. He said the free market system is working with all segments of the agricultural economy to increase U.S. exports, which now account for about two-thirds of world grain and soybean trade.

SMITH SAID President Carter's grain embargo to the Soviet Union is proof that agriculture products are used as a political weapon or tool, but added "the 1980 embargo is the first foreign policy/national security embargo ever."

Major problems arise when a "food weapon" strategy is used to tilt the terms of trade to one's own advantage or achieving foreign policy goals, according to Smith.

Such attempts stimulate increased output in other countries and expand production in competing exporting nations, reducing the demand for American grain exports. These effects are unfair, he said, and hurt those least able to bear the cost. Another implication would be government involvement in complex costly management activities, he said.

"THE EMBARGO was not an attempt to tilt the terms of trade. It was not designed to secure advantages for the U.S. Its purpose was to demonstrate American disapproval of Soviet action in Afghanistan," Smith said.

Harrison agreed, noting that food has always been a means of influencing foreign policy objectives. He cited the use of embargo-type measures implemented by previous presidents.

"Any nation should use the tools at its disposal to protect national interests," he said, but how responsibly the tool is used tends to be the main issue. He said the embargo was the most appropriate action that the U.S. could take to show disapproval of the Soviet invasion, although it wasn't expected to be highly successful.

HARRISON also predicts an increase in the world demand for food and added that consumption rates will outgrow production, thus having a "wash out" effect of the embargo.

He said a possible benefit from the embargo would be lower domestic food prices. The national security could benefit in foreign policy matters by "imposing pain" on countries who act contrary to the best interest of the U.S.

The biggest disadvantage, Harrison said, is the short-term cost to farmers and the long-term market effect. "This could adversely affect buyers' behavior by making the U.S. seem to be an unreliable supplier. It also encourages foreign buyers to seek out other suppliers, increase their own production and to find substitutes."

UNFORTUNATELY for the farmer, Harrison said the U.S. advantages tend to be political while the disadvantages tend to be economic. Yet, alternatives leave little choice for decision makers, he said.

"One extreme could be taken which would be the refusal to use agriculture to influence foreign policy under any circumstances, but the past three presidents did when they said they wouldn't. So this position is unrealistic."

"Instead there could be the suspension of agriculture exports only to nations we are at war with or that take actions that lead to international disruption without direct war. This would be similar to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

"THEN THERE is the extreme of withholding agriculture exports to any country without discrimination to rich or poor, friend or foe. Action like this, which may be used to influence the vote of a country at the United Nations would be a frivolous use," Harrison said.

Smith said the embargo has threatened to put pressure on grain prices, reduce farm income, devastate markets, disrupt grain flows and weaken the dollar. However, the Carter Administration took action to mitigate these effects "with a good deal of success."

Initial USDA steps to offset adverse effects included opening farmer-held corn reserve announcing wheat purchases for an emergency reserve and expanding grain usage intended to speed the release of excess stored grain, he said.

ACCORDING TO Smith, if the administration had stopped there, actions could have led to severely depressed prices resulting from massive selling of futures contracts and cancellation of millions of bushels of cash grain purchases which would ultimately affect the producer.

Instead, the administration "picked up the chain of commitments" to ensure that those entered in good faith would survive.

Not all losses will be avoided, he cautioned. The embargoed contracts taken over by the USDA cannot be handled without disruption to the market and already plans and procedures for moving the grains have been costly. However, these costs, he said, are minuscule compared to those confronted on Jan. 4, the day the embargo was announced.

SMITH ADDED the farmers have to face the loss of the Soviet market which accounted for 10 to 15 percent of U.S. grain export during the 1970s. He said U.S. producers have to start looking for new markets instead of hoping the Soviet market will return.

Rising populations, expanded export credits and reorientation of U.S. trade policies could provide new grain markets, Smith said.

Smith admitted exports would be non-existent and the social economic structure of the U.S. would be adversely affected if the grain producer refused to invest in expanded productivity in response to demands. He said the Nebraska corn farmer revealed the ability to respond by a 427 million bushel increase in production from 1970 to 1979.

THE IMPORTANCE of expanding interior transportation systems to increase efficiency and effectiveness of the marketing system also was stressed by Smith.

"Exporters have played a vital role in moving grain from surplus to deficit areas thus serving the function of time and place utility in the market," he said. "In order to effectively compete in a growing world market, the U.S. export industry had expanded seaboard capacity to the point that we were able to export about 1.5 billion bushels during the October-December quarter of 1979."

Neither Smith nor Harrison could offer suggestions for farmers who are asked to keep producing or even increase production, at below cost.

SMITH SAID, "A serious concern of farmers is the cost of production. Inflation is the big enemy and we must find ways of controlling this."

For Harrison, the question is "unresolvable by nature" and said acceptable results depend upon which side of the issue the person is on.

According to Harrison, agriculture products will probably continue to be used to influence international affairs, but should be used infrequently and only when necessary. "People in Washington are discovering that agriculture is a hot issue and it is being discussed in places where it hadn't been a central issue before it became internationalized."

HE STRESSED the need for agricultural input at high levels because "budget cutters cut where they are not getting direct reaction."

"The key problem is to find ways for farmers to take the role of influencer. They must pull together where economic interests are involved with farming and get others to realize that 25 percent of the Gross National Product is in one way or another associated with farming," Harrison said.

Computer Service Is Tool In Marketing Most Grain

Corn, wheat and soybean producers have a marketing tool that's as close as their county extension office.

Lynn Lutgen, extension marketing economist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, explains that the tool is a program called "Basis," available on the AGNET computer service.

BASIS is the difference between the local cash market price for a commodity and the futures market price being offered for that commodity on a given day. Developing your own local basis program is one way to improve your guess when you enter into a futures contract or a forward cash contract, according to Lutgen.

The AGNET system has on file the Thursday closing prices for wheat, corn and soybeans for all trading months for the past 10 years and is updated approximately every two weeks. The last three years probably would be the most relevant for the producer, Lutgen says.

TO TAKE advantage of "Basis," the producer must first obtain the Thursday cash prices for the period he's interested in. For a three-year period, that would be 156 weekly prices. It may be possible to obtain historical cash prices from a local elevator. No cash prices are on file with the computer because only the producer's own local basis is important to him.

Equipped with this data, the producer is ready to use the computer terminal at the extension office. After logging on to the AGNET system and calling up "Basis," the computer will offer a description of the program if desired. If not, it will ask for the commodity, the month of the futures contract the user is interested in, the year the contract matures and the location of his cash bid prices.

NEXT, THE computer asks for the starting date — month, Thursday, year — and the number of weeks to be looked at. Now the user enters his cash prices. When this is done, the computer provides an opportunity to correct any item in case errors in entering were made.

When all data are entered, the computer will subtract local cash prices from the futures option for the corresponding week to form a basis pattern for the futures contract month under consideration.

The program has the option to make changes, allowing the user to look at all futures months and time periods during the year. But if additional patterns are desired, they should be run before turning off the terminal because the data entered by the user will disappear when the power is cut off.

WITH COMPUTER printout in hand, the producer can see when the basis is narrow and when it is wide, Lutgen said. "It gives you a better feel for how forward cash contracts operate in your area and a better idea of local demand." He notes that "once you've entered a futures contract, only the basis can change to affect what you take home."

Knowing the local basis helps improve the guess, he adds. For example, a producer might be considering either a December or March contract and knowing the local basis pattern will help improve the decision.

Producers who have used "Basis" before will find that the current program is "new and improved," Lutgen says. Coincidentally, the first basis program "fell apart" the day after the Soviet grain embargo. Lutgen and another IANR extension economist, Mike Turner, developed the new program.

Construction Down

Housing construction in Nebraska was down sharply during the fourth quarter (October through December) of 1979, according to building permit data analyzed by the Nebraska Department of Economic Development.

During the fourth quarter of 1979, a total of 1,656 new housing units were authorized for construction in the state—a 35.2 percent decline from the fourth quarter of 1978. For the year of 1979, new housing authorized in Nebraska totaled 9,026 units, down 20.3 percent from the 1978 level of 11,320 housing units. Nationally, authorized new housing construction was down 22.8 percent from the fourth quarter of 1978, and for the year of 1979 was down 14.5 percent from 1978.

A breakdown of construction permit data by type of housing shows that single family home permits in Nebraska in the fourth quarter of 1979 were down 36.9 percent from the same period in 1978, and for 1979 totaled 6,954—a 21 percent decline from the 8,806 single family homes authorized in 1978.

Multiple family unit permits issued during the fourth quarter were down 29.4 percent from the fourth quarter of 1978, and for 1979 totaled 2,072—a 17.6 percent decline from the 2,514 multiple family units authorized in 1978. Nationally, single family permits were down 30 percent during the fourth quarter from the same period in 1978, and for 1979 totaled just under one million—a 17.9 percent decline from the 1.2 million houses built in 1978. The drop in multi-family units was less severe across the nation with a 10.4 percent drop during the fourth quarter. 568,200 multi-family unit permits were issued nationwide in 1979, an 8 percent slip from 1978.

Mobile home shipments to Nebraska during the fourth quarter of 1979 totaled 282—down 15.6 percent from the fourth quarter of 1978. Total mobile home shipments to Nebraska for 1979 were down 15.3 percent from 1978 to 1,390.

Figures from the Federal Home Loan Bank in Topeka show that the total amount of mortgage money loaned by the 38 federally insured savings and loans associations in Nebraska during the fourth quarter of 1979 was down 11.9 percent from the fourth quarter of 1978. Mortgage lending in Nebraska for the year of 1979, however, was 9 percent greater than 1978—totaling $921.2 million.

Net new savings at savings and loans during the fourth quarter dropped almost 55 percent, to $56.7 million, from the fourth quarter of 1978 and for 1979 as a whole were 21.5 percent below the 1978 level.
