She Ain't Heavy, She's My Sister

THERE'S NOTHING quite like being outside when the temperatures get up in the 60's and 70's as they have recently. After being cooped up indoors for the winter, children are itching to play outdoors. Here Teresa Prokop, age six, gives little sister Tanya, age four, a wagon ride on the sidewalk near their home. The girls are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Prokop of Wayne.

Census Roundup Begins

Forget to fill out your census questionnaire? Some of the government jargon in the census form confusing? Think the feds are meddling in your business?

DON'T FRET, Bunky, for beginning next week, all of you who did not return your census forms will be contacted personally to find out why not and to help you in completing the necessary information.

Marie Hagemann, Route 1, Wayne, is in charge of about 13 census takers (or enumerators, as the government calls them) who will travel Wayne and Cedar Counties in search of wayward census forms. She is the crew leader for this area. Census forms were to be returned shortly after April 1, but persons not sending theirs in by Monday will be contacted by one of the census takers.

MRS. HAGEMANN recently completed training for her position, and has been instructed in how to recruit, train and supervise census takers who will be hired in the near future for this area. In all, there are seven crew leaders for Northeast Nebraska, with each having charge of from nine to 13 census takers.

For the most part, the census has been accepted rather well in the Wayne area, a brief survey by The Wayne Herald indicates. This is the 20th time in the nation's history that Americans have counted themselves.

Two different forms were sent out by the government this year, one a short form and the other a long form. The long form, naturally, contained more questions.

ONE WAYNE resident who received the short form had little problem with the census, and said "we should do it every year." Another said he was not offended by any of the questions, and that he felt there was nothing residents should be unwilling to answer.

But a couple of residents who received the long form were not quite as receptive. The long form required more work and more time, and two farm families that received the lengthy form indicated they were not pleased with the census questionnaire.

ONE FARMER said he did not want the government snooping into his business and refused to fill out the information. His wife ended up doing it.

Another farm wife, who also is a full-time bookkeeper, said she was "really honest" with the questions. As a result, she had to dig out last year's tax forms to find out exactly what last year's income was. No guessing for her.

Another thought the forms were "a bunch of baloney." Yet another was unsure how some of the questions related to counting the population of the United States.

IN NEBRASKA, about 2,600 people will be hired for short-term employment to take the census. They will work out of offices in Grand Island, Omaha, North Platte and Lincoln. Mrs. Hagemann said she will choose her census takers soon.

The original purpose of the census, as stated in the Constitution, is to provide the population totals needed to apportion seats in the U.S. House of Representatives. Although preliminary indications are that Nebraska will neither gain nor lose any Con-

Council Approves Conflict Policy

After more than two months of delays, the City Council Tuesday night approved a resolution establishing a policy which should avoid possible conflicts of interest between the city, its engineers and local developers.

MEETING IN regular session, the Council will debate approved the recommendation of Mayor Wayne Marsh. When the conflict policy was first introduced in January, it was recommended by City Administrator Darrell Brewington.

But after Council members balked at the proposal, Mayor Marsh submitted a recommendation of his own that was finally approved Tuesday. For more information on the approved policy and on the previous policy, see story elsewhere on this page.

A contract with DeWild, Grant, Reckert, consulting engineers of Sioux City, for a comprehensive study of the city's electrical distribution system was approved.

BILL DEVRIES OF DGR told the Council that the master plan would cost the city about $30,000 which will not come due all at once, but will be billed on a monthly basis.

The study, the first of its kind for Wayne, will examine the city's present system and determine what the electrical needs are for the next 20 years.

"We will take a look at expanding the system (to meet projected growth of the city) and decide if the main trunk lines can carry the load and if not, where and when the changes will have to be made," he explained.

THE STUDY WILL provide a guideline for electric crews in their work and will give the city a five year, step-by-step construction program.

Electric plant Supt. Bill Mellor said the study will "enable us to see if we're going in the right direction, to see if we're overbuilt in some areas, or underbuilt in other areas."

Mellor said the city is in the midst of a transition from a 5,000 volt system to a 15,000 volt system "and that requires additional care." The study will provide the city with the necessary information to maintain the electrical system.

Devries said the study will begin immediately and should be completed by Jan. 31, 1981.

THE POSSIBILITY of re-establishing the Mid Elkhorn Valley Council of Governments (COG) was discussed by Bob Wedge, administrator for the Tri-County COG in Hartington.

Wedge reminded the Council that the Mid-Elkhorn COG was disbanded in July of last year after participants decided dues were too high and the benefits too few.

The Tri County administrator said if the Mid Elkhorn Valley COG is re-established, the headquarters would be located in Wayne rather than in Norfolk as before. Although there would not be a director here, there would be a secretary and a "circuit rider" to cover area communities.

COUNTIES included in the Mid-Elkhorn vicinity would include Wayne, Antelope, Madison, Pierce and Stanton. All would be served out of the Wayne office, with administration of the office out of Hartington, Wedge explained.

The COG would provide assistance in obtaining financing for or expertise in community development, water and sewer construction, general administration, grantsmanship, planning and zoning, central purchasing, budgeting and finance, rural transportation, county-federal liaison, social waste, economic development, transportation administration, etc.

COST TO communities in the five counties would be on a per capita basis and would be at the level established when the Mid-Elkhorn Valley COG was disbanded.

The Council decided to review the proposal and take action at a later date.

BY RESOLUTION, the Council approved April 22 as Earth Day 1980 in Wayne. The date observes the 10th anniversary of Earth Day, and the resolution asks that "we rededicate ourselves to our great goal - freeing the people of this earth from disease, pollution and the spread of toxic and hazardous substances, from the lack of basic necessities and from the destruction of our common natural and cultural heritage."

"Let us recommit our efforts to expand our use of mass transit and other alternate forms of transportation, to protect and nourish our soil and trees, to foster job creation and to educate ourselves and our children to our responsibilities as stewards of our common natural heritage."

"LET US rededicate ourselves to the creation and maintenance of safe and healthy surroundings, and to the wise husbanding of the natural and human resources that are a foundation of our well-being."

In other action, the Council heard a recommendation from Police Chief Vern Fairchild to eliminate more than 40 stop signs around the city. Most of those to be removed are in the Northwest area of Wayne where there are no churches, schools or medical facilities.

In addition, the recommendation calls for installation of several others around town. By implementing the recommendation, Fairchild said "we will have established through streets that conform with present day traffic patterns around schools, medical facilities and shopping areas of the city."

The Council will review the recommendations and take action later.

THE COUNCIL ALSO gave its approval to placement of two handicapped parking signs in front of the Wiseman-Lindau Physician's Clinic on Pearl Street, and one sign at 206 Logan Street near the Region IV Developmental Disabilities facility.

A maintenance agreement with the state of Nebraska was approved, calling for the state to maintain Highways 35 and 15 within the city limits. However, the state no longer will maintain the two downtown signal lights, but will continue to maintain the light at Seventh and Main Streets.

All Council members were present and all actions were unanimous.

Old Policy vs. New: A Comparison

The city of Wayne now has a policy which is designed to prevent a conflict of interest between the city, its engineer and developers.

The problem arose in January when it requested of City Administrator Darrell Brewington that such a policy be developed.

SUBSEQUENTLY, the Council reviewed, reconstructed and tabled the recommendation until the last regular meeting in March when Mayor Wayne Marsh presented a recommendation of his own

It consequently was tabled when the city's attorney said he felt the policy constituted restraint of trade among developers. The policy then was revised and submitted for approval at Tuesday night's Council meeting, passing unanimously.

IN ITS APPROVED form, the new policy is as follows:

"Whereas, the city of Wayne requires the services of engineers for the city and to remove the possibility of a conflict of interest between developers, engineers and the city.

"Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Mayor and City Council as follows:

"That the term 'developer' as used herein is defined in Ordinance No. 947, Subdivision Regulations Ordinance.

"That the term 'subdivision' as used herein is defined in Ordinance No. 947.

"The city of Wayne shall employ an engineering firm or firms to act as the city engineer or engineers.

"The firm or firms upon being employed by the city agree, that while employed as a special engineer for the city, it will not engage, contract or subcontract for engineering services of any kind with a developer regarding subdivision work within the zoning jurisdiction of the city."

THE PREVIOUS policy recommendation was as follows:

"That the city retain a separate engineer for review and inspection when a builder, developer or subdivider presents plans and specifications produced by an engineering firm hired by and under the direction of the builder, developer or subdivider.

"The city administrator shall seek proposals for city engineering from three qualified engineering firms and present the proposals to the Mayor and City Council for selection.

"In those instances where the city requires engineering and the engineer is hired by the city to provide plans and specifications under the direction of the city and in accordance with the city standard specifications, that an engineering firm producing required plans, not be precluded from submitting a proposal for city engineering. The city administrator shall seek proposals from three qualified engineering firms and present the proposals to the Mayor and City Council for selection."

Economy Continues Slow

Wayne's economy continued to show a slowdown in growth last December that is being experienced across the state, according to figures released by the University of Nebraska College of Business Administration's Bureau of Business Research.

THE STATE'S overall economic condition was mixed in December, with the index of production falling 1.8 percent for the month.

Net taxable retail sales in Wayne for December were only 8 tenths of a percent ahead of the same period in 1978, according to the figures. However, Wayne continues to hold its own as compared to Region 11 and Norfolk as a whole.

Sales in December of 1979, based on the figures, were 2.4 percent below December of 1978 with net taxable sales in Norfolk running about 1.9 percent behind December of 1978.

BUT YEAR-TO-DATE sales for the entire region in 1979 still are slightly ahead at 3.2 percent above the same period of 1978.

According to Jerome Deichert, research associate for the bureau, December's decline was felt throughout the Nebraska economy. He reported that activity was up in only two of the five sectors.

According to the report, the decrease in state economic activity was concentrated in the agricultural sector, where activity fell 13.1 percent. Nonagricultural output rose 2 percent.

THE NOVEMBER-TO-DECEMBER changes for the nonagricultural sectors were: distributive, up .6 percent; manufacturing,

Allen Woman To Be Page

Lori Von Minden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Von Minden, Allen, has been selected to serve as a Lyndon Baines Johnson Congressional Intern in the office of Congressman Douglas Bereuter.

She will leave for Washington, D.C., the first of June and plans to remain there for the summer.

Lori Von Minden

Intern selection is based on scholarship, leadership and governmental experience. Interns must be students or faculty members in an institution of higher education during the academic year previous to the internship. Two interns were chosen from the First Congressional District for the 1980 summer.

Von Minden is a junior at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. She is majoring in political science with minors in English and economics.

3 Injured in Accident

THREE PERSONS WERE taken to Providence Medical Center shortly before 8 a.m. Wednesday after a two-vehicle accident east of Wayne on U.S. 35. Transported by PMC Rescue Unit were Bonnie Davids, 20, Homer, and Barbara Brown, 20, South Sioux City, both with minor facial cuts and possible knee injuries. Clarice O'Neill, 21, Ponca, was taken to PMC by private transportation complaining of possible minor back injury. All were treated and released. According to Highway Patrol Trooper Dave Headley, the car driven by Davids was westbound on U.S. 35 when the pickup driven by Timothy Boekenhauer, 21, Wakefield, pulled from a stop sign across the highway south. The Davids car was totaled, and the pickup was moderately damaged. Trooper Headley investigated.

Rural vs. Urban: Changes in the Water Law

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

The urban side was lined up against the rural side for the most part recently when the state's lawmakers set to work on a bill that would have made some major changes in water law.

On a 24 to 21 ballot — one vote short of the number required for approval — the Legislature turned down Public Works Committee amendments of LB643, which proposed a number of revisions of the statutes dealing with water matters.

next time the measure comes up for discussion.

Sen. Tom Vickers of Farnam, a rancher, accused the Legislature of "playing politics" while debating the bill. He said the state's water supply is too important for that. Although a rancher, Vickers lined up with the urban area senators and noted there are rural groups who backed the committee amendments.

He said members of those organizations, which included the State Grange, Nebraska Rural Power District, the Nebraska Livestock Feeders and the Nebraska Stock Growers, could not take time to be in the Capitol to lobby for the legislation. Many of them, he noted, were at home caring for livestock after an early spring blizzard paralyzed large areas of southwestern and western Nebraska.

Sen. Peter Hoagland of Omaha, one of the urban senators who had devoted considerable time to the legislation, said two lawmakers who favored the amendments were absent when the crucial vote on the amendments was cast. Hoagland said there could be an attempt to reinsert the amendments when the measure comes up for further consideration.

Much of the debate dealt with local regulation of permits for water wells. Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood, who disagreed sharply with Hoagland, said it was "disgusting" to have an urban senator like Hoagland telling those from rural sections how to handle their water problems. Schmit said Omaha pollutes the Missouri River and Lincoln can claim the distinction of having the "most polluted stream in the state." He was referring to Salt Creek.

More school aid debate

Just what the final school aid proposal the Legislature will present to the governor will be isn't known at this writing. A $75 million school aid increase has received tentative approval but most legislative observers give it little chance of survival.

Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston distributed computer printout sheets showing how the schools would fare in each legislative district if the proposed increase were enacted.

The printout sheets showed that the school districts received from the state in 1979-80 and what they would get if the $75 million increase were approved. Many schools would get twice as much state aid and many would receive even more.

Exceed 7 percent lid

More than 70 local governmental units have been found with 1979-80 budgets containing illegal expenditures that exceed the 7 percent lid on spending.

State Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson did not immediately release the names of the subdivisions but said he may do so at a later date. He and Attorney General Paul Douglas said they are asking the subdivisions to come into compliance with the spending limit law.

Johnson and Douglas said no action would be taken if the governmental units agree to stop their plans and pledge to hold actual expenditures below the lid.

But Johnson said if the subdivisions do not make such a promise, he will give their names to Douglas who then would file lawsuits to impound all monies in excess of the 7 percent ceiling.

Douglas said he could sue individual members of the subdivision boards and attempt to hold them personally liable for reimbursements of amounts spent in excess of the lid.

Another avenue could be lawsuits to collect against the surety bonds local officials post when they serve on government boards, Douglas said.

While none of the subdivisions that exceed the lid were identified, 42 are townships, 16 are fire districts and 17 are school districts. One is a sanitary improvement district.

Douglas and Johnson noted there are more than 3,000 subdivisions in Nebraska and those not in compliance with the lid statute are only 2.6 percent of the total.

Most of the subdivisions not in compliance had budget excesses of between $1,000 and $5,000 and several were only a few hundred dollars beyond the limit.

Get committee approval

Most gubernatorial appointments are handled quickly by the Legislature's Committee on Committees which usually recommends that persons appointed by the governor be confirmed by the Unicameral.

But the governor's reappointment of John Greenholtz of Lincoln as state Parole Board chairman and the appointment of Hal Daub of Omaha to the Environmental Control Council caused considerable discussion before both men were recommended for confirmation. The committee vote on Greenholtz was 81 and on Daub 71.

But that very probably isn't the end of the matter because committee members who opposed the appointments said they will take their fight to the full Legislature.

Sen. Don Wesley of Lincoln, who cast the dissenting ballot against Greenholtz, said he was not saying Greenholtz did not work hard as Parole Board chairman but was saying the reappointment "would not be in the best interest of the state."

During an earlier hearing, Greenholtz admitted he sometimes used rough language when talking to potential parolees but said he was trying only to use language they would understand. Some opponents said Greenholtz lacked compassion and had been on the Parole Board too long but his co-workers denied those allegations.

Sens. Dave Newell of Omaha and Barry Reutzel of Fremont abstained from the committee vote on Greenholtz.

Newell, who has been mentioned as a possible chairman of the Nebraska Democratic Party, voted against the confirmation of Daub, who is one of the Republican candidates for 2nd District congressman.

Newell has maintained Daub was unresponsive when he appeared before the committee and was asked about his possible connection with the Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress.

Allen Jones, one of the GOP candidates in the 2nd District, has said the committee offered to pay his campaign debts if he would get out of the race and make it easier for an established conservative candidate.

Daub said he was aware from news media stories about the allegation but said he had nothing to do with the matter, if it is true.

Daub was the GOP nominee in the 2nd District race two years ago. The seat he is seeking is being vacated by Rep. John Cavanaugh of Omaha, a Democrat.

Clean Community System Benefits State: Thone

"Encouraging location of new industry in Nebraska is one of my goals as governor."

"The Clean Community System can be a small but significant step toward attracting new businesses to our state."

"A community that is clean and neat is a pleasant place to live and is attractive to visitors, whether they be tourists or corporation executives looking for a new plant site."

"The Clean Community System uses psychological and motivational efforts to prevent littering. The system was developed by Keep America Beautiful, the privately funded nonprofit organization that has been fighting litter since the 1950s."

"Independent research has shown that communities that use this system have less than half the litter of comparable sized towns that don't use it.

"Two Nebraska communities are having very successful results using the system. The Clean City Committee in North Platte and the Clean Base Committee at Offutt Air Force Base are vigorous and active volunteer efforts which have improved the quality of life in both places. Col. A.J. DeCarlo, Offutt vice commander and coordinator of the clean base activity, reports that litter was reduced by 92 percent during the program's first year."

"Cities and towns can hire workers to clean streets and vacant lots until the cows come home. (When you'll probably have to clean them again) but concerned citizens can persuade their neighbors to change their bad habits."

"Many communities have a clean up, fix up week in the spring. The Clean Community System is built upon the tradition of cooperation among private citizens, industry and local leaders, with a minimum of governmental direction. The system builds on that tradition, expands the effort to 52 weeks per year."

"Interested local citizens can tailor their own program to get their community clean and keep it that way. The State of Nebraska through its Department of Environmental Control can help in training a local committee in the elements that have proved successful in anti-litter efforts in more than 175 communities."

"Now that spring is here, we're becoming more conscious of how fortunate we are to live in a state so rich in natural beauty. Information on how to establish and train a Clean Community System committee can be obtained by writing the Department of Environmental Control, Box 94877, Lincoln, Neb. 68509."

Dear Editor:
April 3, 1980

In regard to Wayne's proposed 1 percent city sales tax, has anyone considered how the rural community around Wayne feels?

The businesses of Wayne do a tremendous amount of trade with people other than those in the city limits. The dollar amount that a farmer spends in town is most likely to be considerably more than the average city person spends when one considers feed, seed and fertilizer bought there. Once again the farmer has to bear the burden. Wayne City Administrator Darrell Brewington has stated that a major use of these funds will be to provide real estate tax relief inside the city. Who is going to relieve the farmers of their real estate tax burden?

To the Editor:
I am writing this letter in response to Ken Linafelter's letter of last week. He stated he had attended the budget hearings, which consisted of two meetings.

I have attended most of the regular and special school board meetings this past year, and have watched this utterly disgusting chain of events develop that Ken mentioned. This could have and should have been taken care of a long time ago by our school board, but it has not.

It was asked that an independent auditor be called in to do a complete audit of the school records. And that a public hearing be called and let the auditor explain to the patrons where the money is being used.

The superintendent and school board say they have nothing to hide, but instead of getting an independent auditor they have got ten an auditor to come in that has done their audits before.

Talk about a waste of the tax dollars! This will cost $1,000 or more. If it isn't more complete than last year's 1978-79 audit it will be a total loss of money. The 1978-79 audit was a copy of the budget, except instead of showing several thousand dollars "miscellaneous", the audit showed several thousand dollars of "other."

I for one would like to meet Mr. Miscellaneous and Mr. Other, and I know that there are many more patrons in this community that are concerned about these gray areas, as the superintendent calls them.

I think it is time that the elected school board members start doing their jobs. It is utterly disgusting to hear them say they don't have the expertise or they don't have the time. If they are not willing to perform the function of the job, they had better step down.

Why people, do we with our hearts, hands and backs raise thousands upon thousands of dollars for the rescue squad services, Senior Citizens, cafe, and our fellow man, and with our mind and tongue try to destroy all we have done. Let's get back to pulling together, we have the best of everything here, let's not throw it away. I'm sure it is all worth holding on to.

WAY BACK WHEN

30 years ago
April 8, 1950: T.S. Hook, one of the few laymen to serve as moderator, opened the spring meeting of Nebraska Presbytery, Norfolk, and gave an address. Kenneth Whorlow and Dale Powers are Wayne's representatives to Boys' State, and Ethel Jean Olson is the candidate for Girls' State to be held in Millard. About 200 farmers of this vicinity plan to attend the 28th annual Feeders' Day at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture in Lincoln. John Kyt, Wayne, member of the 1940 senior class of W.S.T.C., has been selected to receive the University of Nebraska tuition scholarship and was recommended to the dean of the graduate school. Wayne will welcome about 3,000 high school students and instructors this Friday and Saturday when the 12th annual district music contest is held here. Joe Lynch won first place in the marble tournament Saturday at Bressler Park. Leroy Sund, second and Dan Farrell was third.

April 7, 1955: Ervin Hagemann Jr., Wayne Prep senior, was named a State Farmer at the annual FFA convention last week in Lincoln. Hagemann is the first member of the Wayne Prep chapter to receive this honor, limited to only two percent of the organization's state membership. Wayne city councilmen approved plans and specifications for new street lights at a special meeting Monday afternoon. The project calls for extension of the mercury vapor light system, now used in the downtown district, up Main Street from Fifth to 14th Streets and 10th Street from Main to Nebraska. Big hailstones, some an inch across, hit Winside Sunday afternoon. Little damage was reported. Strong winds broke windows in barns and outbuildings, but no serious damage was reported. Shortly before noon firemen were called to extinguish a chimney fire at the Charles Franzen farm.

April 7, 1960: Latest addition to the Herald staff is Jim Marsh. Marsh, a Wayne resident, has attended the University of Nebraska and W.S.T.C. He will assist in the Herald's advertising department. Members of the Wayne National Guard were called out Thursday night to aid in the West point area during the flood. The troops, with Lt. Mike Matsukis in charge, left Wayne at 8:30 p.m. The unit was ordered to secure the area from which families had been evacuated until gas leaks in the area could be found. In what is believed to be the largest turnout in the city's history, Alfred Koplin was elected Wayne's new mayor in Tuesday's municipal election. Koplin pulled 628 votes to 344 for Don Reed. ## 3 Questions for the Presidential Candidates

Richard L. Leshar, President Chamber of Commerce of the United States

The nation is totally preoccupied with inflation. Each of the presidential candidates has made the problem a top priority and has promised new leadership in trying to solve it. To date, however, there has been very little discussion of one of the most generous and dangerously inflationary programs of all — the federal retirement system. Consider:

A hypothetical individual, John Doe, has worked for the federal government for 30 years. Having reached the age of 55, he is now eligible for retirement a good seven to 10 years before most individuals working in the private economy. John earns $19,000, which is "about average" for a federal employee, and which the government's own statistics show is approximately 40 percent higher than the average non-government salary.

His starting pension will be almost $10,775. But since his pension is indexed to inflation, there is almost no limit to how high it could climb. Indeed, should the rate of inflation continue to increase by 14.2 percent for 10 more years, this merely average federal employee will be due an annual retirement of over $40,000. The 20 year figure, should he live that long, and he probably will, is a mind boggling $152,800!

Keep in mind that, although there is supposed to be a 50-50 worker/employer split to finance federal pensions, most federal employees currently pay only about 25 percent of the true cost of their retirement systems. The taxpayers pick up the rest of the bill because of the cost of living adjustments.

So Question Number One for the presidential candidates is this: By what standard of fairness should taxpayers be expected to continue financing the greatest share of a government retirement system which is far more generous than they can afford for themselves?

But that's just the beginning. The nearly three million federal employees are exempt from paying Social Security taxes, even though a majority of them qualify (through spouse benefits, moonlighting or second careers) for Social Security benefits. Actually, many government workers receive more than benefits; they receive an outright windfall, and here is why:

The Social Security benefits formula allows workers with low average career earnings to receive a higher return on their contributions than do workers with high earnings. This subsidy is obviously intended to benefit workers with a life-time of low wages. Unfortunately, it makes no distinction between these low income people and federal employees whose average private sector earnings are low only because they have worked so long in government employment. These unintended subsidies amount to millions of dollars each year.

Thus, government employees can receive the same subsidy as low wage workers—in addition to their indexed pensions that insulate them from inflation. How sweet it is!

Question Number Two for presidential candidates: By what standard of fairness should these nearly three million public employees — including members of Congress — be allowed to escape paying our second largest tax while they work in public service, when a majority of them qualify for Social Security benefits?

Reforming these inequities in federal pensions and Social Security becomes doubly important in view of approaching economic problems. Social Security, for example, is currently being propped up thanks only to a tremendous tax increase. But such tax increases eventually depress economic activity, and a severe recession could dangerously deplete the Social Security Trust funds. Also, starting in about 30 years, the post-World War II baby boom will become the Twenty-First Century retirement boom. That, combined with our present low population growth, means the ratio of Social Security taxpayers to beneficiaries will drop sharply, so a corresponding increase in payroll taxes will be needed.

Finally, unlike most private pensions, federal pensions and Social Security are not being kept actuarially sound. The funding system is based on the infamous Ponzi scheme. By some estimates, the long-term unfunded obligations exceed several trillion dollars.

Final Question for presidential candidates: Left unreformed, the eventual financing of these two systems will require paralyzing tax increases and/or an unrestrained inflationary expansion of the money supply. What is your solution?

The nation awaits your responses. We can no longer afford to ignore this issue.

Planning June Rites

Making plans for a June 14 wedding at the First Baptist Church in Fremont are Vicki Carsey of Wayne and Tom Brown of Fremont.

The engagement and approaching marriage have been announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Carsey of Fremont. Brown is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown Sr. of Fremont.

Miss Carsey, a 1976 graduate of Fremont Senior High School, is a student at Wayne State College, where she plans to graduate this month. She is majoring in physical education, with a business education minor. Her fiancé was graduated from Fremont Senior High in 1974 and is employed at the Nebraska Natural Gas Co. in Fremont.

Bring-Schmidt Exchange Vows at Moville, Iowa

Easter lilies decorated the altar of the Trinity Lutheran Church in Moville, Iowa for the March 28 wedding ceremony uniting in marriage Laurelee Bring and Bruce David Schmidt.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Aylene Scott of Moville and Leroy Bring of Sergeant Bluff, Iowa. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bring of Belden and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Bartels of Laurel.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Schmidt of Moville.

The Rev. Gary Olson officiated at the 7:30 p.m. double ring rites. Wedding music included

Speaking of People

Wouldn't it be nice if we could just think our troubles away? That old philosophy of mind-over-matter may not be too far-fetched.

Through biofeedback, ulcers, migraine headaches, insomnia, hypertension and teeth grinding have been controlled and even stopped, according to Catherine Lear. A biofeedback technician at the Northern Nebraska Mental Health Center in Norfolk, Lear conducted a workshop on biofeedback at the Helen Becker Conference on Family Health March 25 in Norfolk.

Lear explained that the concept of biofeedback is nothing new. "Yogis in India have been doing this for centuries. Science just never took them seriously. We found that yogis can control many aspects of the automatic nervous system," she said.

Biofeedback measures the electric responses in a part of the body. For example, if a man has a headache, the muscles in his forehead are tense. When electrodes are attached to his forehead, a machine will measure the intensity of the forehead's electrical activity.

The man also will be able to hear beeps through earphones. These beeps will become faster as the muscles tense. By trying to control or slow down the beeps, the man would actually be relaxing the muscles in his forehead. With practice, this man could "think his headache away."

Lear said the goal of biofeedback is to get muscles to relax as an involuntary reaction to stress.

"Many people respond to tension in various ways. Some get a headache, while others get cold hands. We can learn with biofeedback how to control these responses and to relax," she said.

Lear noted that biofeedback can accomplish many of the same goals as Valium and Librium.

"Biofeedback is a good alternative for those persons who do not want to take drugs to relax them," she said.

The Hospice Concept
Also directing a workshop at the Health Conference in Norfolk were June Eilers, a registered nurse at the University of Nebraska Medical Center, and Kay Connell, a volunteer with the Omaha Hospice Organization.

Their workshop focused on the hospice philosophy of caring for the terminally ill.

Eilers said that because the health professionals have oversold the treatment for cancer, cancer victims are shocked when they hear, "There is nothing we can do for you."

"It is at this time that hospice comes in. The focus changes from cure to comfort. We should spend as much time on comfort as we did on trying to cure," she said.

Connell and Eilers said the hospice concept also helps the family of the terminally ill person.

"Traditionally, the family has only been tolerated. As long as they stick to the proper visiting hours, the health profession doesn't worry about them," Eilers said. "Is it no wonder that the family wonders what to do with a terminally ill member?"

The hospice concept focuses on the physical, emotional and spiritual needs of the terminally ill patient. Upon entering a hospice, the patient is assessed by a medical team which decides what medication to give. Medication is then provided on a round-the-clock basis, so the patient does not have the discomfort of pain and is more aware of his environment and can enjoy it.

The emotional needs of the ill also are addressed, whether it is expressing anger, speaking about his or her death, or giving them a plot to plant a garden.

"Children of the staff are encouraged to visit or stay at a day care center at hospices. We don't want the ill to be deprived of children. If pets are important to the ill, they are allowed in. The idea is to keep their life as full as possible," she said.

Connell said the spiritual needs can be attended by a volunteer team of local religious leaders available for counseling, adding that chapels are built large enough so hospital beds can be accommodated.

For more information on hospices in Nebraska, contact Eilers at the University of Nebraska Medical Center, 42nd and Dewey Sts., Omaha, Neb., 68105, or phone (402) 541-4000.

Some Children, Adults Eligible for SSI Funds

Disabled and blind children as well as adults may be eligible for supplemental security income (SSI) payments, Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk said recently.

SSI makes monthly cash payments to disabled or blind people of any age who are in financial need. People 65 or over who have little or no income and few assets also may get SSI checks.

A parent or guardian can apply for SSI payments on behalf of a child. A child's Federal SSI payment can be as much as $208.20 a month. Not everyone gets this amount. Some get less because of other income they or their parents may have.

Children living in a public institution generally are not eligible for SSI payments. However, people who live in publicly operated community residences and under 21 if in school, depends on their parents' income and assets. Part of the parents' income add assets count in deciding the child's eligibility. Eligibility of an older child is based on his or her own income and assets.

People at the Norfolk social security office can provide more information about SSI for children. A free leaflet, "SSI for disabled or blind children," also contains additional information. Copies can be obtained at the Norfolk social security office, located at 1310 Norfolk Avenue.

Jon Erwin, who scored at will throughout most of the ball game, burned the nets, for 45 points but his team still lost, Monday night.

Team Seven's balanced attack prevailed in an 89-87 overtime win.

Five players scored in double figures for the winners to offset Erwin's one-man display. Team Seven jumped out to an early lead as Earle Overlin hit 10 first quarter points. Well balanced scoring in the second quarter led to a 35-32 advantage at the half.

Jon Erwin scored 27 points in the second half and Brad Erwin added 10 as Team Five pulled back into a tie. For Team Seven, Rob Mitchell and Mark Gansbom joined Overlin in double figures in the final two quarters.

The game was tied 77-77 at the end of regulation and a 12:10 advantage in the overtime secured the win for Team Seven.

Team Seven: Overlin, 24; Rob Mitchell, J. Davie, 16; Gansbom, 16; M. Hansen, 12. Team Five: J. Erwin, 45; B. Erwin, 22; Dunklau, 12; Brandt, 8.

Free Throws Decide Game
Bob Keating hit five of six free throws in overtime to lift Team One to a 75-72 win over Team Four and clinch a tie in the final standings.

Team One overcame an early deficit to take a 35-31 lead at the half with balanced scoring in the second quarter. Keating had the hot hand in the third quarter but Team Four rallied in the final period to force the overtime.

In the overtime period, Keating sank five free throws in six trips to the line to ice the win. Randy Workman scored four overtime points for Team Four in the losing cause.

Team One: B. Keating, 30; Dean Carroll, 10; Daniels, 2; Dougherty, 10; J. Keating, 10; Rick Mitchell, 13. Team Four: Stoltenberg, 4; H. Carroll, 7; Workman, 4; Schwartz, 34; Blohm, 23.

Wednesday's playoff schedule (April 16): 7 p.m.—Team 1 (Keating's) vs. Team 3 (Koll's); 8 p.m.—Team 5 (Erwin's) vs. Team 4 (Schwartz'); 9:15—Team 2 (Baker's) vs. Team 6 (Schultz'); Bye—Team 7 (Hansen's).

WSC Experienced Trainer

Regg Swanson Resigns

Regg Swanson, head athletic trainer at Wayne State College, has submitted his resignation, an undisclosed source informed The Wayne Herald, Wednesday morning. The resignation was submitted Tuesday afternoon to Dr. Ed Elliott, vice president of academic affairs.

Swanson cited an opportunity for advancement as cause for his resignation. He has been offered a job in sports medicine from an orthopedic physician in Colorado Springs, Colo. and is being considered for another job in Oregon.

The job at Colorado Springs would involve working as a trainer with high school athletic teams and possibly Olympic hopefuls. Swanson worked with the physician when both were members of the training staff for the United States swim team.

"I am looking forward to the move. It will really help as far as my profession is concerned," Swanson said. "I'm really excited about the job opportunity, but it's a mixed feeling. It's not easy to leave an institution that I've been with for three years. I've enjoyed being at Wayne State and this community. The community backed me 100 per cent."

"It was fun developing this athletic training program. Now, I hope to see what I can do in this profession."

The 1975 graduate of Wayne State College was hired as head athletic trainer at Wayne State in August of 1977. In his three years as head trainer, Swanson was largely responsible for organizing and expanding the program and training room. Facilities included in the training room are whirlpool baths, a taping center, ultra sound deep heating machines, hydrocubic (hot pack) machines, infra red lamps, hot wax machines and a variety of weights.

When contacted for comment, Wayne State athletic director John Merriman had nothing but praise for Swanson.

"Regg has done a lot for the college. He organized the athletic training program which has become very strong," Merriman said. "He organized student trainers and raised between $4,000 and $6,000 to remodel the weight room. Without his effort, we wouldn't have had any major improvement in that area."

"Regg has been a model of enthusiasm and dedication. He is an all around attraclive person for recruiting students and student athletes. It will be nearly impossible to replace him with someone as hard working and dedicated to the institution," Merriman said.

Students can now practice treating sports related injuries and earn up to four college credits while gaining hours toward certification through the National Athletic Trainers' Association. Upon graduation and the passing of a certification test, students will be certified to both teach and treat athletic injuries such as sprains, bruises, dislocations and others.

In addition to his experience at WSC,

Swanson has carried his training to international levels. He served on the training staff of the Amateur Athletic Union swim team and served on the staff for the Olympic trials held at Eugene, Ore. in 1976. Swanson received his athletic training certification at the University of Oregon.

During his training career at WSC, Swanson raised money through jog-a-thons, raffles, bake sales and other projects to improve the training facilities.

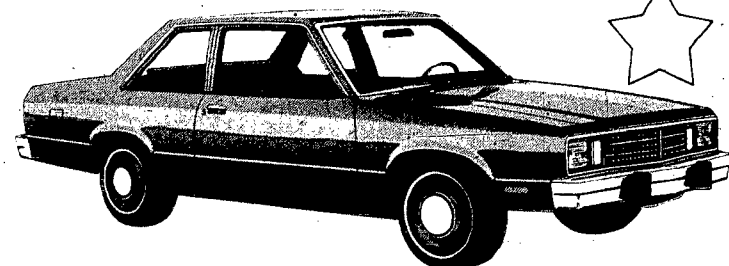

Swanson's resignation will not become official until approved by the Board of Trustees. The board is scheduled to meet on Friday, April 25.

Weather Hampers Government Day

Poor weather hampered this year's Wayne County Government Day which was held Thursday at the Courthouse. Sponsored by the American Legion and its Auxiliary, the event is held each year so junior students in Wayne County schools get a better understanding of how county government works. Students from Wayne, Winside and Carroll were to attend, but due to inclement weather, the Winside students did not attend. The respective school classes elected students to the county of fices recently, and these students attended the Government Day Offices filled for the one day in cluded Agriculture Agent, three Commissioners, County At torney, Sheriff, Treasurer, Welfare, two Probation Officers, Assessor, County Clerk, Superintendent of County Schools, Veterans Service Office, Clerk of District Court. During the day, Nebraska Highway Patrol Trooper Dave Heady presented a brief talk and showed a film. The oath of office was administered to the students by Associate County Judge Luverna Hilton, and the students were able to view court proceedings involving a check charge, a theft and a speeding charge. Lunch was provided at the Wayne Vets Club to all persons involved. Eveline Thompson acted as chairman of the Department County Government One Year Committee, and District III Auxiliary President Mrs. Elaine Tippery of Decatur was present along with Trudy Wagner, Wayne Auxiliary president.

Sturm Named As Top Salesman

JIM STURM, Wayne, one of Northrup King Co.'s top 20 salesmen, recently was named by President D.W. Lohmar to the firm's prestigious "Honorary Sales Council." The sales leader was selected from NK's nationwide seed sales force. Sturm and his wife Beverly were recognized recently at a three-day retreat hosted by NK executives at a noted Hilton Head, S.D., resort. Sturm's outstanding sales achievements last year were the basis for his selection to the council. His territory covers eight counties in Northeast Nebraska for the Norfolk sales branch. This is Sturm's third appointment to the council. He has been employed by Northrup King for 18 years. From left are Lohmar, presenting Sturm the honorary sales council membership plaque; and Mrs. Sturm accepting a charm bracelet from Northrup King board chairman Jim Massie.

Pork Producers Receive Good News, Bad News

Nebraska pork producers received both good news and bad news recently dealing with the use of sulfa drugs for pigs, according to an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources authority.

Dr. Bill Ahlswede, extension swine specialist, said both actions by the Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA), leave rules and regulations regarding sulfa drug use in swine ration unchanged.

Ahlswede said the FDA announcement earlier this year that no changes in regulations will be made at this time "is good news, because restrictive changes had been expected: FDA had promised that changes would be made by September, 1979."

The IANR swine specialist said the "no change" position by the government agency was the result of "an effective cooperative program in hog producing states aimed at reducing the number of illegal sulfa residuals in pork carcasses."

During the 18-month period of the national "Sulfa Action Program," the level of problem carcasses dropped from 15 percent to five percent, Ahlswede said, adding that Nebraska statistics are similar to the national figures.

The "Sulfa Action Program" was conducted by the FDA, USDA, National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) and the Cooperative Extension Service. Ahlswede said the Nebraska version of the program had three parts. The first phase was a statewide educational effort, including news articles and recommendations, as well as pork producers meetings in counties across the state which account for more than 80 percent of Nebraska's swine. A second activity was direct support for pork producers whose pigs were found to contain violative sulfa residues. While producers across the country had been having difficulty "clearing" their pigs of sulfa, Nebraska producers experienced little difficulty in clearing pigs for market.

The third aspect of the Nebraska program was a problem identification project. Withdrawal feed supplies were collected by approximately 100 Nebraska pork producers and analyzed for sulfa contamination. Nearly 3,000 samples were tested nationwide.

"Results of this investigation indicated that one feed sample in five contained sufficient sulfa contamination to cause problem carcasses," Ahlswede stated. This finding helped shape FDA's attitude regarding the cause of the problem, he analyzed.

The bad news regarding sulfa residues in swine was contained in a second FDA announcement early in March, Ahlswede said.

The FDA rejected a citizens' petition filed by the NPPC and the American Cyanamid Co., a manufacturer of sulfa-containing feed additives. The petition had requested that the action level for carcass residues of sulfa drugs be raised to a more practical level, particularly from kidney and liver tissue. By rejecting the petition, FDA maintains the 0.1 parts per million (ppm) tolerance and action level.

Because Sulfamethazine is such a stable and active drug, minute quantities can contaminate a ton of feed sufficiently to cause violative residues, Ahlswede explained.

"The 'state of the art' in feed manufacturing makes it difficult to consistently produce feed free of sulfa," he said. The action levels asked for in the petition would not bring action against the low level residues caused by the "minute" contamination of feed. "The wording of the FDA denial makes it hopeful that the action level may be adjusted in the future," Ahlswede suggested. "Industry representatives are negotiating with FDA on this prospect," he said.

Ahlswede reminded pork producers that both the so-called good news and bad news add up to no change in the status quo. "This means diligent attention must be paid to continued proper use of sulfa products," he said. Ahlswede advised pork producers to carefully read product labels and follow withdrawal instructions.

"The continued availability of sulfa drugs depends upon proper use by pork producers," he emphasized.

Trim Trees, Shrubs This Month

Lawn trees, junipers and flowering shrubs should be pruned in April (March through May permissible) for best results, reports Stan Starling, Dixon County Extension agent.

Use safety consciousness, sharp tools and proper cutting techniques. Large branches requiring the saw need undercutting. On small branches, the cutting edge of the shears should be on the under side of the branch.

System 1 involves annual removal of about one-third of the oldest, tallest stems, all the weak sucker shoots, and one-third of the strong new shoots. Leave new shoots within the size and shape limits wanted. Plants pruned by this system include red or yellow twig dogwood, lilacs, Russian almond, flowering almond, wild currants, mock orange, Forsythia, deutzia, viburnums, shrub cotoneasters, spiraea, privet, buck thorn, shrub euonymus, elderberries, snowberry and coral berry.

System 2 requires cutting over-size branches back to a smaller branch growing in the desired direction. This is called "drop crotching" and reduces height and spread without giving an unnatural shape. A proper leader or growing point should be maintained on younger plants. Plants include pfitzers, lamy junipers, horizontal junipers, yews, boxwood, rocky mountain juniper, cedar, tree cotoneaster, tree euonymus, flowering crabs, mountain ash, redbud, golden rain tree, hawthorn, tree lilac, green ash, hackberry, elms, linden, cottonwood maple, birch, oaks, nut trees and locust.

Renovation of overgrown deciduous hedges involves cutting the hedge to the ground and shaping the new growth by shearing or pruning when it is 10 to 15 inches tall. The drastic cutting is best done before rapid bud growth starts. One or two years of flowering will be lost during renovation. New growth should be kept wider at the base than at the top. Plants responding to this treatment include spiraea, ninebark, Russian almond, little leaf mock orange, shrub roses and flowering quince. For further information, ask for NebGuide, "Pruning Ornamental Plants" at your County Extension Office.

CCC Assigns Contracts

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said last week the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) has assigned contract rights for 6.4 million bushels (175,000 metric tons) of U.S. No. 2 or better yellow soybeans.

The soybeans were assigned by CCC as a result of the acquisition of exports to the Soviet Union. Bergland said the weighted average prices on the successful bids were $6 1/2 for April and $6 24 1/2 for May Gulf delivery. On March 27, the reported Chicago spot market price for soybeans was $5 77 3/4 per bushel.

These soybeans were scheduled for delivery FOB shipment during April and May from Gulf ports.

Offers will continue to be received for soybeans on Monday and Thursday of each week until the invitation (SB-1) is withdrawn, Bergland said. Successful offerors will be notified by 10:30 EST the day following the offer date. Public announcement will be made after the commodity markets close.

Offers are to be submitted to the deputy administrator for commodity operations, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, USDA, room 218-W, Administration Building, Box 2415, Washington, D.C., 20013.

Farm Safety Program Set

A farm safety program is being held at the Winside City Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 10.

Featured speakers include Roland Schneider, Extension safety specialist, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and John Witkowski, district extension entomologist, from the Northeast Station, Concord.

The program is being sponsored by the Northern Nebraska Medical Services Council of Norfolk. Ron Carter, executive director of the council, will explain how area people can best utilize their program.

Dan C. Spitz, Wayne County Extension Agent, said area people are even more aware of farm accidents than usual since the tragic death of a farmer west of Wayne recently. This program will emphasize how accidents can be prevented and if they do occur the emergency help that is available.

This program is designed for the entire family and children are welcome. Community church ladies will furnish lunch after the conclusion of the program.

Training Day For Home Ec

4-H home economic leaders are invited to attend a leader training day to be held from 8:45 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on April 16 at the Pender Fire Hall.

The program will consist of training in areas of clothing construction, basic food information, design principles and child development. A discussion also will be held on the philosophy of 4-H as it relates to project selection, planning club programs and helping 4-H'ers to set goals. Noon lunch will be available at the training.

4-H leaders planning to attend are asked to preregister by contacting their local Extension office.

Payments On Sorghum Set-Aside

Farmers who complied with the 1979 sorghum set-aside program will receive around $61 million in deficiency payments from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said recently.

The payments will be made by county ASCS offices in early April.

Nebraska producers will receive around $11.9 million in grain sorghum deficiency payments.

Deficiency payments are made to program participants when the national weighted average market price for the first five months of the marketing year (October-February) falls below the government-established target level for the commodity, Fitzgerald said. The payment rate is the difference between the target level and the five-month average price or the national average loan rate, whichever is higher.

For eligible 1979 sorghum acreage, the deficiency payment rate is 13 cents per bushel, the difference between the $2.34 per bushel target level and the $2.21 average market price. There will be no corn deficiency payments since the average market price of $2.31 exceeded the corn target level of $2.20 per bushel.

Fitzgerald also announced the final national program acreage for corn at 85.7 million acres and for sorghum at 15.9 million acres. The program allocation factor for each grain is 100 percent.

Allocation factors are determined by dividing the crop's national program acreage by the number of harvested acres. Since the allocation factor for sorghum is 100 percent, eligible producers will receive deficiency payments on their total 1979 acreage planted for harvest.

Eligible sorghum growers who have not signed applications for payment should do so as soon as possible through their local county ASCS offices, Fitzgerald said. Payments cannot be made until applications are signed and approved.

Corn Rootworm, Crops and Profits

The battle lines are being drawn again, like they have been for years — corn rootworm continues to expand its range and its populations throughout the Corn Belt, while entomologists and researchers intensify their efforts to help growers better protect their crops — and profits.

bean field nearby. Here, they will feed and lay eggs and again pose a threat for next year's crop.

Far more common is a third situation in which chemical treatment becomes necessary — production of continuous corn. Livestock operations, especially feedlots, are often locked into continuous corn and a chemical program for rootworm is frequently essential.

Threshold systems for detecting and treating rootworm with an insecticide vary somewhat from state to state, but generally summer population counts of adult beetles are used to measure next season's worm populations. Thresholds usually range from one beetle per plant during the peak summer infestation to one beetle per 10 plants.

WHEN CHEMICAL treatments is dictated, two classes of insecticides are commonly recommended: organophosphates or carbamates.

Several of these chemicals received high ratings in terms of effectiveness in a recent survey of growers throughout the Corn Belt, with the organophosphate, Dyfonate, being noted as somewhat less expensive to use. Cost of controlling rootworm with Dyfonate works out to about three bushels of corn p/a. Plus, it works on cutworm, too.

Both growers and entomologists, however, report some problems with chemical control, especially on continuous corn. They are finding that the efficacy of carbamates is fading when used for several years continuously. There are various theories to account for the problem, but until one or more of them are verified, most entomologists recommend rotating from one class of insecticide to another (e.g., carbamate to organophosphate).

THEIR recommendations differ only in one major detail. Some advise an annual rotation, while others suggest switching to another class of insecticide only if they see indications of loss of control. Still others caution growers not to wait for deterioration of control to occur before switching since a severe rootworm breakthrough could cost money in yield loss.

According to Dr. Doug Cates, entomologist with Stauffer Chemical Company, "We haven't observed or heard about any resistance or deterioration of Dyfonate since its introduction 10 years ago."

PROBABLY, the war will never be over, but increasing knowledge about the rootworm problem and refinement of control techniques make it plain that the nation's corn growers have more than a fighting chance against this ravenous pest.

A recent survey of top Corn Belt entomologists suggests that crop rotation is still one of the strongest weapons in a grower's rootworm arsenal. But even with rotation — usually to soybeans — there continue to be circumstances where chemical assistance is advised.

Two field situations stand out. First, excessive volunteer corn in a soybean field can attract adult rootworms. The adults lay eggs which hatch the following year. If the field is rotated to corn, another rootworm problem is almost a certainty.

SECOND, is a more remote possibility. When severe drought withers corn and kills it, adult beetles will move to a weedy soy-

Feeding cows after calving

The calving and rebreeding period is probably the most critical time of year for nutrition of the beef cow. The cow's workload peaks at 2.6 weeks after calving, yet normal feed may not be that good.

After she calves, her nutrient needs soar. Her total daily feed intake should be about 26 pounds or more, and it should include 2.2 pounds of crude protein and 14.5 pounds of total digestible nutrients. Her phosphorus level goes to 23 grams a day. Her calcium and vitamin needs near 1/2 double.

Why does this happen? She must produce milk for the calf and rebuild her reproductive tract back to normal so that she will be in condition to cycle and conceive. Hopefully, this won't take longer than 90 days from calving.

Feeding about 10 pounds of alfalfa hay per day should provide enough supplemental protein and energy until grass is available.

Weeds and more weeds

Just a few scattered weeds in a field can result in a big infestation the next year. It's done by seeds.

Lambquarter has an average of more than 72,000 seeds per plant. Kochia has more than 14,000 seeds per plant. That means just one lambquarter or six kochia per acre could theoretically produce enough seed to leave almost two of each weed per square foot the next year. One or two shattercane plants can produce enough seed to plant an acre if needed at rates used for planting milo.

Fortunately, some seeds don't live and some don't become established. Because weeds are such prolific seed producers, it is easy to see why nearly total control is needed to reduce the full seed supply.

USDA Offers Help to Farmers

Eligible corn producers who are unable to place their 1978-79 crops in the farmer owned grain reserve because of a shortage of local storage space will be of financial assistance by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to move the grain to areas where space is available.

Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said to be eligible farmers must have 1978 or 1979 crop corn already in the reserve or agree to place it in the reserve program. These farmers must be located within the area designated as a critical storage area, he said.

Assistance provided under this program will be accomplished by adding the actual truck or rail transportation costs to the Commodity Credit Corporation corn loan rate, Fitzgerald said. The assistance is only available to move corn beyond normal delivery points, he said.

Per bushel assistance will be 6 cents for corn transported 20 to 50 miles, plus one tenth of a cent per mile from 50 to 100 miles, plus four hundredths of a cent per mile for distances over 100 miles.

Therefore, Fitzgerald said, for corn moved 150 miles, a producer would be eligible for 13 cents per bushel assistance.

Fitzgerald said Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service county offices will contact all warehouses in their county to determine the availability of storage space for reserve grain. The county offices are to advise their state offices where storage is critical or expected to become a serious problem.

Wildlife Focus Of Banquet

A statewide recognition banquet to award a Nebraskan or former Nebraskan, an organization and a University of Nebraska-Lincoln student for outstanding wildlife conservation will be held April 19.

The banquet is being sponsored by the Lincoln Journal and Star and the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources-Wildlife Club.

Robert Herbst, assistant secretary of the interior, will be guest speaker. He is the past commissioner of Natural Resources in Minnesota and a past National Executive Director of the Izaak Walton League of America.

Other items on the program include academic recognition of juniors and seniors and a rundown of the club's activities.

Julie Hansmire is in charge of general arrangements with the assistance of Andrea Mann, Windsor and others around the state.

The banquet begins at 6:30 p.m. at the UNL East Campus Union and is open to the public. Tickets may be purchased from the Department of Forestry, Fisheries and Wildlife at 202 Former Vet Science, UNL, Lincoln, Neb., 68583.

Area Students To Conference

Twenty-one University of Nebraska at Lincoln 4-H Club students will be attending the National Collegiate 4-H Conference April 10-13 at the Iowa State University Center in Ames, Iowa.

Denise Rosno of Grand Island, director of programs and activities for the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources 4-H Club, said there will be workshops in recreation leadership training, service projects and parliamentary procedure plus various tours.

Mark Mayfield, a former national FFA president now with Farmland Industries in Kansas City, will address the conference on Friday, April 11. Speakers Saturday, April 12 will be Peggy Armstrong and Jerry Parsons. Armstrong, an ISU student, is a former national FFA officer and Parsons is Iowa's state 4-H youth leader.

Other students attending will include Cindy Bull and Doug Temme, Wayne; Anita Sandahl, Wakefield.

Health Care Is Goal

One of the top priorities in Nebraska is to enable every citizen to receive adequate health care services within a reasonable distance of their homes.

This priority is the basic idea behind a series of workshops entitled "Rural Health Resources Development Workshop," to be held at the Norfolk Holiday Inn April 10-11; the Ogallala Holiday Inn May 1-2 and the Lincoln Village Motel, 200 "O" Street, May 7-8.

Sponsored by the University of Nebraska Medical Center, the workshops are designed to bring small-town residents together in a group setting and show them ways to improve their towns' medical services and recruit physicians and other health professionals.

Said project administrator Joseph J. Giacalone, "We want to help the town plan for themselves. We are not going to tell them what to do but show them ways to go about doing it."

Giacalone said the workshops will provide residents with guidelines for planning health services, as well as present information on state and national resources available to their town.

Giacalone said the workshops will be especially useful for town or county officials, members or representatives of the chamber of commerce, health professionals or any other interested citizen or community official.

The workshops will stress group discussions where members can exchange ideas about their towns' health care services and decide where improvements can be made.

"We want to provide a setting where the residents can identify their towns' resources and show them some paths to take and let them decide which way to go," said Giacalone.

Participants in the workshops will hear several guest speakers from health agencies across the state and will have the opportunity to meet and work closely with them in small groups.

The workshops have been designed to accommodate a limited number of registrants and preregistration is advised. For registration information contact Sherry Cherek, Center for Continuing Education, University of Nebraska Medical Center, 42nd and Dewey Ave., Omaha, Neb., 68105.

Look Out Earl Anthony! Wayne Junior Bowling Stars

Second place went to the Hi Rollers composed of Steve Peterson, Joel Jorgensen and Brad Moore. Newspaper advertising is for the "smalls" as well as the "biggs"

All of the big stores started small. And the ones that grew the fastest were those that made the best use of their newspaper, the best friend small business ever had.

The smart businessman, large or small, reserves a permanent place in his sales promotion for newspaper advertising. He knows he cannot afford not to advertise. But with limited funds available, he must make every advertising dollar count. The small businessman who can capture the imagination of his own small segment of the public through newspaper advertising shows the results in increased sales the same way the big stores do. And in Wayne, it's The Wayne Herald that most retailers rely on for results at lowest costs.

Crop Insurance Adds All-Risk Yield Program

Under a new United States Department of Agriculture Federal Crop Insurance Corporation all risk insurance program, policy holders are offered a choice of three different yield guarantees.
In addition, the program, introduced this year for 1980 spring crops, offers three levels of indemnity payments. The amount of protection selected determines the cost.
The new program lets each policy holder decide how much or how little insurance he wants to carry against a partial or total loss of his crop. Vernon Overbeck, regional director for FCIC, said.

"Specifically, he added, a farmer can choose to insure 50 percent of normal yield, 65 percent or 75 percent. In this respect FCIC officials contend it is somewhat like insuring how large a deductible is wanted on an automobile insurance policy. The larger the deductible the less is paid.
Interested producers should contact the FCIC office at 301 Sunset Plaza, Norfolk 68701 or call 371-1600 before April 21 for corn applications and May 10 for soybeans.

WSC Choir to Perform Bi-Lingual Concert Here

The Wayne State College Choir will perform in a German-American bilingual concert at 3 p.m., Sunday in Ramsey Theatre of the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center.
The choir, directed by Dr. Cornell Runestad, will be touring Europe May 14-28. The April 13 concert will include the same program the group will perform in Europe.
The concert will consist of three parts: a German portion, which will include songs written by German composers and sung in German; an English portion consisting of songs written by American composers and sung in English. The final portion will include a variety of folk and spiritual numbers.

Soloists will include Wayne Lorenzen, Lyons; Kevin Johnson, North Bend; Lois Naber, Albion and Chris Crosgrove, Modale, Iowa.
The WSC Choir will also be performing at 10 a.m., Friday, April 11 at the West Monona High School, Onawa, Iowa; at 11:30 a.m. at the Westwood High School, Sloan, Iowa and at 3 p.m. in Eppley Auditorium at Morrisville College, Sioux City, Iowa.

Do you want to increase the profitability of your livestock operation? If so, consider the SLURRYSTORE Manure Management System. With the price of commercial fertilizer going higher and higher, SLURRYSTORE offers you increased profit potential. The SLURRYSTORE System lets you take advantage of one of your best natural resources and return it to the soil where it belongs.
Farmers who have used the SLURRYSTORE System have greatly reduced, and in some cases eliminated, all farm fertilizer purchases. It's the efficient and profitable way to go.
For more information on how the SLURRYSTORE Manure Management System might fit into your livestock operation, call Scott Klemetson, your local HARVESTORE Representative, at 375-4400.

Male Sexuality Lecture Set

Warren Farrell, a lecturer on men's liberation and male sexuality, will speak in a free program at 8 p.m., Monday in Ramsey Theatre of the Fine Arts Center at Wayne State College.

Farrell is author of the book "The Liberated Man." He holds a doctorate and has taught at Rutgers University, Georgetown University, American University and in San Diego State University's Department of Women's Studies. He was chosen by President Johnson in 1965 as one of the country's outstanding young educators. He has appeared nationally on the "Today," "Tomorrow," the "Mike Douglas" and the "Phil Donahue" shows.

His talks provide real-life illustrations of men's problems, of how men can change and of how men can see women's liberation as a freeing agent in their lives rather than a threat.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Tama Krause

TOO MANY OVERWEIGHT
While the disadvantages of obesity have been widely publicized, many Nebraskans have not taken the news to heart. Have you reviewed the needs for taking the potential problem of obesity seriously for your county, your community or for your clubs?

Health studies for our state show that about 10 percent of our adults are overweight to a degree that the condition may interfere with personal health or longevity.

That's one in five persons. For persons past 40 years of age, the figure jumps to a startling 35 percent or more than one out of three persons. Moreover, the school studies show that 10 to 40 percent of school-age children are overweight; the follow-up studies show that 50 to 85 percent of these children will remain obese as adults.

Although excess body fat is frequently blamed on glandular problems, these studies interpret that only one or two out of every 100 obese persons has a true metabolic problem related to weight. In other words, being overweight is generally caused by eating more than the body needs.

What is the situation in our county? Could you find even a few persons who would be serious enough about choices for themselves that they would be willing to make a long-term health commitment... to losing weight... for a better life... for a longer life.
