Allen Housing Complex Underway

CONSTRUCTION IS NOW underway on Allen's new low rent housing complex on the east side of town. Main contractor is Woolworth Construction Co. of Sioux City, Iowa, and the 16-unit facility should be completed on or before Dec. 18. The elderly housing complex is federally funded and is under auspices of the Housing Authority of the Village of Allen.

Agency Nears 1st Decade

Family Planning Is 'A Right'

Helen was just 25 but was pregnant for the sixth time. She didn't want any more kids after this one, but was unsure where to turn for help.

Then she heard through a friend about Northeast Nebraska Family Health Services, Inc. in Wayne. Her friend's daughter had learned of the services through classes at her school in a nearby community.

After the birth of her child, Helen decided it was time to make a visit to the Family Health Services agency. She was glad she did, because she learned a tremendous amount of information about herself and about contraception.

Started in 1971 through the Goldenrod Community Action Program at Walthill, Northeast Nebraska Family Health Services, Inc., moved to Wayne in 1973. It was then that Ann O'Donnell became its administrator. She has been in charge since.

Serving Knox, Boyd, Wayne, Burt, Pierce, Cuming, Thurston, Holt, Stanton, Dixon, Dakota, Cedar, Antelope and Madison counties, the facility was established after a government study in the late 1960's determined that the low income and young were not receiving adequate family planning services anywhere in the country.

"The agency is based on the precept that everyone should have the right to and access to family planning," Mrs. O'Donnell said.

There are clinics in 14 communities corresponding with each of the counties served, and Wayne is the headquarters for them all. The program is funded through Title X of the Department of Health Education and Welfare. Mrs. O'Donnell said.

The annual budget is about $100,000 and the agency serves and estimates 2,000 clients each year. Services available include the following:

A physical examination - featuring a pelvic examination, pap test for cancer, breast exams for cancer, blood pressure checks, a urinalysis and assorted blood tests.

Laboratory tests - including pap smear, urinalysis, blood pressure, venereal disease testing, pregnancy testing and sperm tests.

Counseling - on birth control methods (including natural methods), infertility, problem pregnancy, sterilization methods and nutrition (information only).

Educational Services - speakers and a variety of films and literature.

Mrs. O'Donnell said first-time clients are counseled, provided with education on several subjects, are given an examination and receive lab reports on the findings.

The agency is in operation so husbands and wives "can plan their families." "We're centered on the philosophy of planning, not preventing," Mrs. O'Donnell explained. "And we have found that the services also provide medical care many of the clients had not had before."

Through the examinations and laboratory tests, the agency has found several women with medical problems and many with cancer. "We like to think we've saved a few lives," the administrator said.

Over the last nine years, the agency has found that its services "cut down on abortion and unwanted children," she explained. She added that "none of our funds go for abortion and never have."

"We also are here to help women who want to have children but for some reason cannot."

All matters are held in the strictest confidence, and fees are charged based on income. However, no one is refused service due to inability to pay, she explained.

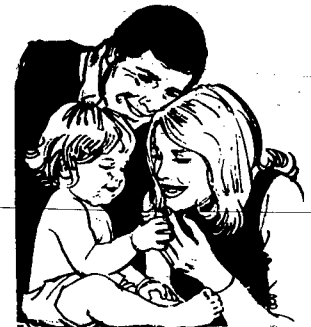

Natural family planning is one of the prominent services offered through Family Health Services, Inc. "We would like to see women know about this type of service we Agency are provided to the community through literature, films and talks to high schools and other organizations, she said.

The agency in Northeast Nebraska is one of several such facilities in various districts across the state, she added.

Clinics are located in South Sioux City, Norfolk, West Point, Pender, Creighton, Hartington, Oakland, Laurel, Winnebago, O'Neill, Lynch, Atkinson, Pierce and Wayne. Counselors are Karen Martin, Norfolk; Madelyn Kropf, South Sioux City; Roseann Ninas, Atkinson; Marlyce Bruning, Coleridge; and Diane Harrington, West Point.

For more information, Mrs. O'Donnell asks persons to call 375-1449.

have to offer. Women learn about their bodies and how they function" in relation to reproduction, she added.

Mrs. O'Donnell also pointed out that women give their consent for the examinations and for the prescribed contraceptives.

"If they want an examination, it is by consent and if they want to go on contraceptives, they do so by consent. This is to make sure they have the proper knowledge about contraceptives," she explained.

Sorry About Any Delay, But Our Computer Broke

Due to a malfunction in the Wayne Herald's primary typesetting computer, much of today's copy was processed at the Wisner News Chronicle.

The only aspect of the newspaper involved was the setting of type. We are thankful to Ted Huettmann, News Chronicle publisher, for coming to our rescue on such short notice.

Computer repairs from Kansas City were to be here Monday (today) to make the repairs.

We regret any inconvenience to any of our readers, and apologize if a particular story or picture was left out.

Electrical System Plan to Guide City's Expansion Over 20 Years

For the first time in the history of the city's electrical system, a comprehensive master plan will be developed.

The study, estimated to cost about $30,000, will give the city a plan to follow as it continues to grow over the next 20 years.

The engineering firm will be paid on a per diem basis, with fees to include payroll costs, overhead and profit, in-house printing and telephone. Additional charges will be made for computer and out-of-pocket expenses such as travel.

As per the Council's request, the engineer will submit monthly itemized statements on costs.

Three major subdivisions are planned here over the next 18 months, and each will require a significant increase in electrical needs, city officials have said. In adding the electrical requirement for these housing additions, the city's capacity likewise has to expand.

Experts from consulting engineers DeWild, Grant, Reckert of Sioux City, Iowa, will undertake the task of examining the entire electrical distribution system.

"We will take a look at expanding the system and decide if the main trunk lines can carry the load and if not, where and when the changes will have to be made," a representative of DGR said at the last City Council meeting.

Wayne Municipal Light Plant Supt. Bill Mellor told the Council that "the study will enable us to see if we're going in the right direction, to see if we're overbuilt in some areas, or underbuilt in other areas."

The first stage of the plan will be to make an analysis of the existing system. This will include development of an electrical system map, analysis of the electrical load potential, analysis of the existing system and a diagram of the entire system.

The second stage will be the planning report itself. This will consist of assembling and analyzing information on future load growth locations in the city, making projections on the system load growth, developing a long range primary distribution plan with consideration and analysis of any alternate plans that appear feasible.

Others include development of interim plans for approximately 5 and 10 years in the future, development of a tentative yearly construction program for the next five years, and review of the final report with the Council and electric superintendent.

Estimated completion date is Jan. 31, 1981.

Legislators Plan Strategy On Aid

The status of a bill that would significantly boost state aid to education across the state, including the Wayne-Carroll School District, was altered some Thursday.

The Nebraska Legislature discarded previously adopted school aid increases that would have boosted the $55 million fund to a total of at least $130 million (136 percent) and up to $162 million (194 percent) in the upcoming fiscal year.

The lawmakers then a school aid increase that, if approved, would boost the $55 million fund to $115 million (109 percent).

Thursday's action changed the strategy which the Legislature plans to use in getting the state aid increase approved.

Instead of a lump sum increase of $60 million, Governor Thone, who has said he opposes increases that would push the overall state budget increase above 7 percent, will have the opportunity to veto the increase in $20 million increments. The Legislature will then have the opportunity to set the final total at $55 million, $75 million, $95 million or $115 million.

If the governor had approved the $130 million increase in aid, Wayne-Carroll School District would have received a boost of about $175,000 in state aid. But with the maximum possible now $115 million, the amount Wayne will receive will be reduced somewhat, if the bill is approved fully funded.

College, High School Students Will Learn Of Health Careers

"We want to give students and community residents an idea of what it's like in medical education programs and how the medical field is leaning toward such things as the health team approach."

High school students in Wayne County and students from Wayne State College who are interested in pursuing a health career should be better prepared to do so after a program to be held in Wayne Wednesday.

An organization of students at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha is sponsoring the sessions.

The group also will hold a meeting for the general public on rural health care in Nebraska at 7 p.m. at the Black Knight in Wayne.

Tom Voss, a second-year medical student and president of SARH, said the association's main message will be conveyed at the meetings through a 20-minute slide-tape presentation, entitled "The New Alliance." Voss is a graduate of Wayne State College.

WRITTEN AND produced by SARH, the program explains the educational preparation necessary for various health careers and how the educational programs are structured at the Medical Center.

After the "New Alliance" showing, the four to six SARH members attending the meetings will give those in the audience an opportunity to ask questions and voice their concerns and interests.

"THE QUESTION-and-answer sessions are a chance for people in the audience to ask things they really want to know," said Voss. "It seems that in the past, the area of most interest among high school students has been in allied health."

While high school students have made up most of the past audiences, Voss said the SARH is giving equal emphasis this spring to the college crowd.

Voss said that Wayne State College will serve as a convenient location for the association to deliver its message to both groups of students.

"WE WANT TO speak to the greatest number of students possible," he said.

Voss said that Wayne will make the 20th community SARH has visited in the past two years, during which time they have talked to more than 1,000 high school students.

Wanted: Your Aluminum Cans

Region IV Adds New Dumpster

Need a place to take those bags of aluminum beer cans from Saturday's party? Or maybe the kids and you drink a lot of pop every week?

DON'T FRET, because Region IV Developmental Disabilities is working for you.

Although the service has been in existence for more than a year, Region IV only recently acquired a dumpster which it plans to use for recyclable aluminum cans.

Ron Millage, Region IV official and one of the coordinators of the project, said three or four local bars have contracts with the facility to pick up the recyclable cans.

IN TURN, THE Region IV Adult Developmental Center, where the dumpster is located at 206 Logan St., sells the cans to the area Coors Distributor for so much per pound. The extra revenue helps supplement the Region IV budget, Millage explained.

The cans are then taken to Norfolk to be processed for recycling. Region IV acts only as a collection point for the cans.

MILLAGE SAID residents or organizations with an abundance of aluminum cans are asked to leave the cans in the dumpster without creating a dumping ground of unpackaged cans.

Wayne Regional Arts Council will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Stratton House to organize for its Spring Arts Festival later this month.

Anyone interested in participating in the spring fling is asked to attend.

Committee on Handicapped to Meet

Region I Planning Committee for Handicapped Children Below Age Five will meet at 1 p.m. Thursday in the Educational Service Unit No. 1 Conference Room in Wayne.

All school district officials, service providers and parents are invited to attend. All services offered in the region and all planned changes will be described at the meeting. For further information, contact Kay Cattle at 375-4042.

Roundup Rescheduled

Kindergarten roundup, which was to have been held April 3 at Winside, was postponed until Wednesday, April 16.

Don Leighton, Winside School superintendent, said the roundup, which was postponed because of inclement weather, will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. All prospective kindergarten students and their parents should attend, he said.

Parents are reminded to bring their child's birth certificate and be prepared to fill out immunization records. Information concerning physicals, personal hygiene and immunizations will be given by a nurse from Educational Service Unit (ESU) No. 1. Other personnel from ESU will be on hand to screen students for possible speech and hearing problems.

Police Give Their Report

Wayne Police Department has provided the following information for its department's activities during March.

There were a total of 69 arrests made with speeding heading the list at 30. There were nine no valid registration, eight failure to dispose of parking tickets within 15 days, five expired inspection stickers, four thefts, three no operator's license, three assault, three consuming alcohol on public way, two traffic signal violations, one stop sign violation and one allowing unlicensed vehicles to accumulate.

Total amount of fines resulting was $474 with 23 cases to be heard. One case was dismissed and one arrest resulted in a jail sentence. There were a total of 143 parking tickets issued and 69 traffic warnings issued. This compares to 201 parking tickets in March and 71 warnings issued in March.

There were 46 emergency 911 calls in March compared to 46 a year ago. Of these, 38 were justifiable this year against 27 last year, the report indicates.

WPD cruisers were driven a total of 4,849 miles during March compared to 5,406 last year, using 394 gallons of gasoline this year compared to 697 a year ago.

Traffic accidents showed a marked decline this year compared to last, with six reported on public streets and five on private property, compared to 16 and 2 respectively last year.

Other police department activities include two officers taking eight weeks basic training at Law Enforcement Training Center in Grand Island March 2; two officers conducting junior police patrol for sixth grade students March 20, and talks on drugs to Wayne State College classes March 24 and 25.

Add Penalty If Early Grain Withdrawal

Corn, sorghum, new reserve agreement wheat and oats may not be removed from the farmer-owned grain reserve without penalty, Ray Fitzgerald, executive vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), announced.

Fitzgerald said he added oats because oats prices have trended downward slightly during the last 10 market days.

The $1.35 per bushel mid-March price for oats announced March 31 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service is also the release level for oats. However, the five-day moving average market price for oats computed yesterday by the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service was $1.34 per bushel.

When the ESCS mid-month price for oats is at or above the reserve release level and the AMS price is below that level, procedure provides that oats release be terminated if prices for the previous 10 days are trending downward, Fitzgerald said.

Reserve barley and rice remain in call status. Release will continue through April 30 for wheat in agreements signed under the original reserve. The mid-March national average market price announced by ESCS for wheat is $3.62 per bushel, 12 cents above the $3.50 release level for original

Soybean Seed Problems Arise

There has been a number of reports of soybean seed having poor germination, reports Don C. Spitze, Wayne County Extension agent.

Evidently this poor germination is due to extremely dry weather conditions at harvest last fall and farmers should consider sending their soybeans in through the Extension Office for a germination test says Spitze.

Farmers have a choice of two types of germination tests - the standard test and the stress test. Although the stress test cost twice as much as the standard germination test, it's considered to be more accurate because the test more nearly duplicates germination under field conditions.

Editorial Some Progress, More Research for Efficient Gasohol

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M.M. Van Kirk,
Director of Information
Researchers are making progress and scoring some advances in finding more efficient, economical ways of producing ethanol to blend with gasoline for gasohol. Gleanings from various alcohol fuels seminars and conferences indicate that some problems are being solved and some misconceptions are being corrected by a pooling of research and development information. Following are some revealing pieces of information on the subject:

From a report at a November 1979 meeting by Richard Burkett, vice president of Archer Daniels Midland (ADM) — ADM is currently expanding their production of 200 proof alcohol for use in gasohol. ADM is currently producing 60,000 gallons per day of 200 proof ethanol for gasohol and is expanding their facility to produce 150,000 gallons/day by the beginning of 1980. Burkett said that several pieces of equipment that ADM had bought for alcohol production were never installed because technology in the alcohol field has changed so fast in the last year. In two years, ADM has reduced the time of the fermentation process from 72 hours to 30 hours and hopes to get it into the low 20's.

From a report by Loren Alpers of M & W Gear Company.— M & W has developed a system for running a 50-50 alcohol/water (aquahol) mixture through the turbo-charger of big diesel engines, and the system can be ready for production and sale in 1980. Alpers said that their dynamometer tests on an International Harvester 986 engine showed that under full load the engine would use 8 1/2 gallons of diesel an hour. When the aquahol mixture was turned on, the diesel use dropped to 5 1/2 gallons per hour, a savings of 30 percent.

Alpers also said that the president of the company, Elmo Meieners, had traveled tens of thousands of miles looking at small on-farm stills and termed what he saw a "disaster," saying that it would be months and months before the small on-farm still industry could work out all the problems and come up with a good unit.

From Fred Welch, professor, University of Illinois, on the question of what happens to soil illth when crop residue is used to make ethanol, Welch responded: "We don't really know."

From Dwight Miller, USDA Northern Regional Research Laboratory, Peoria, Ill.— With regard to using spoiled grain, there is no problem with making alcohol from spoiled grain and using it for motor fuel. However, the problem is that any aflatoxin or other bacteria will concentrate itself in the distiller's dried grain making it unfit for livestock feed.

From Carroll Goering, professor, University of Illinois, concerning alcohol use in engines.— He noted that gasoline will vaporize at minus-20 degrees F, and therefore a gasoline engine will cold start at that temperature. However, to cold start an engine on alcohol, the temperature would have to be above 20 degrees.

From Larry Berger, professor, University of Illinois, speaking on nutritional value of distiller's feed for livestock.— To calculate the use of distillers by-product by cattle, you can figure an 800-pound animal could consume 25 gallons of stillage per day, or you could ferment on bushel of corn per 800-pound steer per day. (Generally, about 25 gallons of water are needed to cook and ferment one bushel.) For every million gallons of annual alcohol production, you would need about 1,054 steers.

From Frank Andrew, retired University of Illinois professor, advised: "Don't go out and buy a still until you've mastered the recipe." He compared it to getting a $1,000 range for your wife and then have a poor recipe for bread... it will flop every time.

There seems to be a consensus among energy experts that research and development of ethanol as a motor fuel must continue if it is to be made economically competitive and practical for transportation and agricultural fuel purposes.

the pied typer

That fellow Murphy sure knew what he was talking about when he told the world of his new law: that if anything can go wrong, it will.

Man and machine were made to be compatible, but it's true, folks, everything mechanical goes haywire on occasion.

At the busiest time of the day Friday, when all of us were pounding out copy, our primary typesetting computer, for which we have no backup, decided to take a vacation.

We all pushed a few buttons, wiggled a few wires and then called the experts in Kansas City. They suggested we push a few buttons, wiggle a few wires, recite a few incantations (which we already had done) and replace a few component boards.

Nothing Negatory. Nada. Nein. Nope. So yours truly and Mr. Sports Hassell spent until midnight setting all of our stories on our typesetting machines so the magnetic disks could be sent to Wisner early (as in 7 a.m.) Saturday for processing of our copy.

Although Wisner lacks the main typesetting computer, they have equipment which can be adapted to our capabilities. Lucky for us, or we'd be up the creek without a boat or paddle.

At this writing, I haven't the slightest idea what Saturday will bring. Our plans are smooth and organized, but as Mr. Murphy keeps reminding us, if anything can go wrong, it will.

Anyone else notice the steps of the Post Office Friday morning? With disgusting people and disgusting tobacco chewing messes like that, it's no wonder our forefathers had laws against spitting on the sidewalks.

Post Script to the Council meeting last week: Councilman Cliff Ginn noted publicly that Ye Old Editor had made a mistake in a previous paper. There had not, in fact, been a meeting of the city sales tax committee Thursday, April 3. It had been postponed, he said, and the meeting Thursday night was just a group of businessmen discussing the tax. The committee meeting had been postponed until Monday, April 7.

The Councilman also noted that information in The Herald about the sales tax issue had been misleading to some of its readers. There will not be a 40 percent reduction in property tax, he pointed out, but a 40 percent reduction in the city's share of property tax. I stand corrected.

Whatever a particular person's opinion of a sales tax or taxes in general, he would be blinded with tunnelvision by not acknowledging the fact the city has serious financial problems ahead.

The question is: do we bite the bullet, reduce services and reduce the budget next year? Or do we approve the sales tax issue and solve the problems that way?

The jury is still out on the subject, but if/have we can't see any harm in helping our city and its future. Spending an average of $60 next year through sales tax is a better choice than not having my street plowed next winter, or my son not having a full season of swimming.

Want to bet that these same people complaining about the extra sales tax costs to them will spend that much in booze next year, or on the horses in Omaha or Sioux City, or pay the rather prohibitive Country Club fee of $260. I can name several of the fellas who don't want the extra tax burden on their billfolds, but blow that much playing poker or pitch at the bars.

We'd like to have people view the facts as they are presented and listen to reason rather than sitting around the coffee shops every day spreading half-truths and falsehoods.

It pays to advertise. Believe it, it's true. The responses to my ad asking for garden space was satisfying, more so than the response from the same needs as expressed in the pied typer's own words here last week.

All but a couple of some eight responses were a result of the classified-ad, not from my column.

Unfortunately, that says people are reading the want ad page and not my column. Oh, well. They may not realize what they're missing by skipping the pied typer, but at least they're helping prove that advertising pays.

Kathy persuaded me to till a small portion of the back yard (oh, that poor and expensive grass seed) for onions, radishes, and other such salad and hamburger accoutrements. It would be much more convenient to step out the back door for a hamburger onion rather than driving across town, she reasoned.

Her point was well taken, but oh, the grass seed.

We did get a garden spot. As it turned out, one of our neighbors decided his last year's plot was too large and offered a segment to us. Now if that isn't typical Nebraska friendliness, I don't know what is.

No one responding to my ad asked for rent, but was strictly offering out of the goodness of their hearts: Love that Midwestern compassion.

LETTERS

April 11, 1980

To the Editor:
Concerning the April 10 letter from a farmer concerning the proposed city sales tax:
Question: Do farmers drive on city streets? Do farm families use the city parks and swimming pool? Do farm families take part in the city park and recreation programs? Do farm families use the library and auditorium? Who does a farmer call if he has an accident on Wayne city streets? Maybe the Wayne city police, Mr. Farmer, you should share the burden because you are part of the problem.
In regard to taxes, compare the taxes a farmer pays on several hundred acres to what a city dweller pays on a small lot. The farmer makes a living from his land while a city resident only dwells on his property with no income from it. It seems that in recent years, the farmer has been relieved of taxes on his livestock and farm machinery, etc. This increases the town people's tax burden. We realize that in these times, no one wants

News of Note around Northeast Nebraska

The Madison High School music department will present its annual spring concert on Tuesday, April 15, at 8 p.m. in the city auditorium. The 140-member concert choir will perform several songs. Also featured will be several small-groups, including the mixed ensemble, girls ensemble, double sextet and barbershop quartet. As a special feature this year, the contest choir and concert band will present their contest entries.

CAROL Frost, track coach at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, will be guest speaker at the Wakefield High School Athletic Banquet April 29. The event will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the auditorium and is being sponsored by the W-Club, Pep Club and Lions Club.

A Prague woman charged with motor vehicle homicide in the Nov. 3, 1979 death of Shirley Skovensde of Pilger will enter a plea of No Contest, Saunders County Attorney Loren Lindahl learned last week. The attorney of Delores Vlasak, charged in the incident, Brad Burden of Lincoln, notified Lindahl that the plea will be entered in District Court of Saunders County on Monday, April 21. A rescheduled jury trial was to have begun April 15.

LISA Lamplot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Lamplot of Thurston, was elected District Five president at the Nebraska Future Homemakers of America—1980 Leadership Conference recently in Lincoln.

Dear Editor:
We note in a recent issue of the Herald that a volunteer information committee is being formed to inform voters of the city about the proposed city sales tax proposal to be voted on in the May 13 election.
The Wayne County Farm Bureau included a questionnaire about the sales tax in its latest newsletter to its membership. Response has varied from disgust to near anger. Every response has been in opposition to the tax.
We would hope Wayne voters will realize farmers are consumers as much as anybody in the city limits. In addition, we are businessmen buying many business items in Wayne which would be taxed for the benefit of those within the city limits. The tax seems particularly unfair because many will pay it who have no tangible benefit and no vote in how it is spent.
When City Administrator Darrell Brewington discussed the issue with our Farm Bureau board recently, he indicated that a city sales tax is helping the city of North Platte with its financial plight with few if any problems. Dawson County Farm Bureau members, many of whom trade regularly in North Platte, see it otherwise as they are registering stiff opposition to similar proposals currently being considered by towns in Dawson County.
The term "Urban Sprawl" bothers many of us as we see acre after acre of good farm land go under concrete streets, housing and business development. Will it worsen when downtown businesses have to provide price and service incentives to compete with those just outside the city limits or in a neighboring town?
A new tax area in Wayne County is sure to put more pressure on existing tax structures. We are fortunate that our County Commissioners had so little snow to move this past winter as their budget has been close without any blizzard expense.
When the Sales Tax Information Committee starts putting out its information, we hope Wayne voters will remember that agriculture, industry and education might not always meet in Wayne.
Wayne County Farm Bureau
John Anderson, President

When City Administrator Darrell Brewington discussed the issue with our Farm Bureau board recently, he indicated that a city sales tax is helping the city of North Platte with its financial plight with few if any problems. Dawson County Farm Bureau members, many of whom trade regularly in North Platte, see it otherwise as they are registering stiff opposition to similar proposals currently being considered by towns in Dawson County.

The term "Urban Sprawl" bothers many of us as we see acre after acre of good farm land go under concrete streets, housing and business development. Will it worsen when downtown businesses have to provide price and service incentives to compete with those just outside the city limits or in a neighboring town?

A new tax area in Wayne County is sure to put more pressure on existing tax structures. We are fortunate that our County Commissioners had so little snow to move this past winter as their budget has been close without any blizzard expense.

OFFICERS for 1980 were selected by the Randolph Volunteer Fire Department recently. Pat Kaiser was elected vice president of the group while Gary Dominisse moved from vice president to president of the department. Kenneth Reineke will retain the office of secretary/treasurer for a second year.

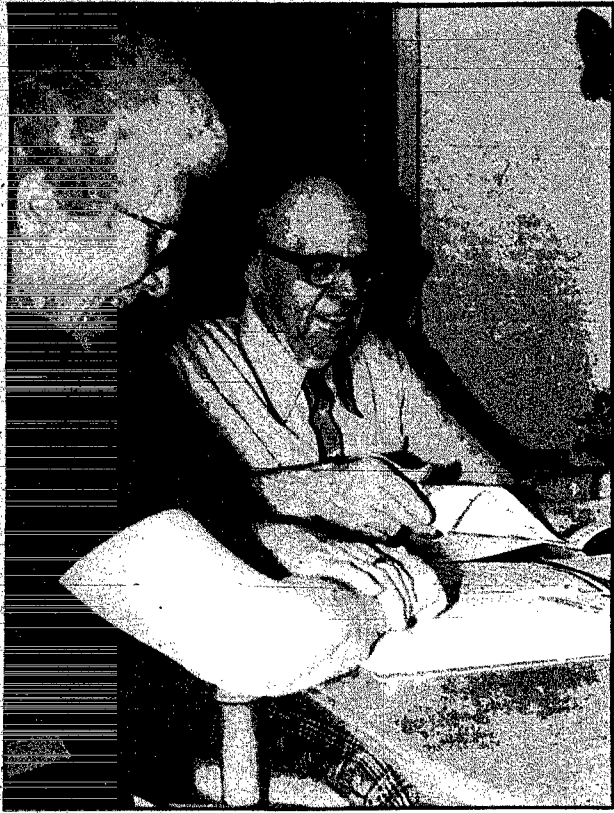

PLAINVIEW now has a full police force. That was the word from Mayor Warren Dickinson last week with the hiring of two individuals. R. Dale Kenny, Madison, has been hired as chief of police, and Cor-Hand Coy Tallow, Cedar Rapids, is a new police officer.

AN antique automobile show featuring John Walker of Lincoln, noted guitarist and folk singer, will be held Sunday, April 27, from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the high school auditorium in Neligh. Tietgens Discover They 'Can Cope'

CHRIS AND EDNA TIETGEN, who recently became involved in the "I Can Cope" program at St. Joseph's Hospital in Sioux City, would like to see a similar program established in Wayne. "I Can Cope" is a place where cancer victims and their families can share problems and concerns encountered while living with cancer.

By LaVon Beckman
"I Can Cope."
Today most persons seem to be finding it harder to cope, considering the spiraling inflation rate, job market, national and international tensions. Just going to the supermarket is enough to make you want to throw up your hands and say, "I give up!"
But what if your doctor told you that you had cancer? Could you cope then?
With the help of a recently established program sponsored by the American Cancer Society, persons stricken with cancer and their families now have some place they can go to study and share problems and concerns encountered while living with cancer.

Cancer patients and their families can share problems and concerns.

The program, entitled "I Can Cope," is currently being conducted at St. Joseph's Hospital in Sioux City.
Loreene Gildersleeve of Wayne, who has worked with the local Cancer Society for over 30 years, hopes to bring the program to Wayne with the cooperation of the American Cancer Society, the local cancer crusade board and Providence Medical Center.
Loreene became interested in the program while attending classes sessions in Sioux City along with Chris and Edna Tietgen of Wayne.
Chris learned he had cancer of the lung on Jan. 10 this year. He also was told that the cancer, which is located in the upper lobe of his lung, was inoperable. How did he take the news? "Not to good," he says, recalling that two of his brothers, both heavy smokers, died of lung cancer.
"We both shed a few tears when we heard the news," says Edna. Chris' wife of 56 years, then we proceeded to try and understand why God chose to grant us this burden in the balance of our lives." "But you know," Chris smiles. "I'm still pretty lucky. I could have gotten it 30 or 40 years ago."

Chris, who is 79, hasn't smoked for 20 years. The former Wayne mayor and city councilman was in the hatchery business in Wayne for over 30 years and says his doctors agree that the continuous inhalation of the dust while working in the hatchery may have been a significant cause of his cancer, even though he has been retired for over 20 years.
After learning of the news, Chris immediately began radiation therapy at St. Joseph's Hospital. That's when both he and his wife became involved in "I Can Cope."
The basic principle of radiation therapy is to bombard a cancer with rays which damage or destroy the cancer yet produce only minimum damage to surrounding normal tissues. Although skin reactions, nausea, vomiting and a general feeling of tiredness can be side effects of radiation, Chris never experienced any of these symptoms. He says he did, however, feel slightly dizzy after each treatment.
Mrs. Gildersleeve, along with other friends of the Tietgens, drove the couple to Sioux City each morning for Chris' 29 daily radiation treatments.

After receiving the radiation, Chris and his wife joined other cancer patients and their families participating in the "I Can Cope" program at the hospital. There they heard various professionals speak, including doctors, nurses, social workers, lawyers, dietitians, librarians and physical therapists.

"I Can Cope" involves persons of all ages.

The program, involving persons of all ages, consists of eight sessions, each one and a half hours in length. Topics center around learning about the disease, learning how to cope with daily health problems, how to express feelings about cancer, learning how to like yourself, how to live with limits, and helpful resources available to victims of cancer.

Mrs. Gildersleeve, who attended the daily sessions with Tietgens, echoed their sentiments concerning the program's usefulness. "You can't help but be enthused about it," said Mrs. Gildersleeve, adding that the program's main goal is to offer emotional support through discussion with fellow cancer patients and members of their families.
"The 'I Can Cope' program turns around a lot of people's attitudes about the dismalness of cancer, and it gives them hope where they didn't think they had any hope," says Loreene, who is currently serving as memorial chairman and vice president of the Wayne County unit of the American Cancer Society.

"I Can Cope Program would be a big asset to the community of Wayne."

"The togetherness is beautiful," adds Chris' wife, who several years ago served as county cancer crusade chairman.
Even though the Tietgens have never had a problem communicating, Mrs. Tietgen said the program afforded them the opportunity to share their feelings with other persons stricken with cancer. In addition, they learned valuable nutritional tips and were able to see exactly where Chris' cancer is located through the use of a specially designed mannikin.
Chris especially feels that the "I Can Cope" program would be a big asset to a community such as Wayne.
"People shouldn't be uncomfortable when the word 'cancer' is mentioned," says Chris, who speaks openly about his illness and believes that a big problem is the public's apprehension when speaking to someone with cancer.

"When people ask how I feel," says Chris, "I tell them that I've won the first round." "And," he smiles, "when they tell me how good I look, I remind them that there's nothing wrong with my face."

"People shouldn't be uncomfortable when the word cancer is mentioned."

Although many persons respond with disbelief when told they have cancer, Chris says he's broadminded enough to know that he's no different than anyone else.
Edna says their life hasn't changed much since learning of the news. Although Chris can't rake leaves or work in the garden, the doctor told him that fishing is still allowed as long as his catches aren't too big to haul in.
"Making the adjustment and learning to live with cancer is about like changing to a new job," says Edna, who was severely ill several years ago. In 1961 and '62 she underwent two operations for the removal of brain tumors.
"Way back then Chris and I discussed the possibility of death and how to cope with the future that God granted us," she says.
Chris has received all of the radiation treatments that he can take. Future forms of treatment will depend on the prognosis of his doctors in Omaha. Until then, he plans to get in a little fishing when the weather permits, continue his daily walks and keep in touch with his friends.
"No need sitting around feeling sorry for yourself," says Edna.
Edna too feels that the "I Can Cope" classes she and her husband attended in Sioux City were informative as well as emotionally and spiritually supportive.
Persons interested in learning more about "I Can Cope" are invited to call Mrs. Gildersleeve, who plans to establish a similar program in Wayne. If enough interest is shown

Inflation Got You Down? Look to Local Library

Saving money isn't the only reason to use the library, and in celebration of National Library Week, Nebraska's librarians and media specialists have presented 12 of 107 more reasons. At the library you can also fight inflation with information on how to beat the high cost of living.
You can keep up with the times — with newspapers and magazines from 1880 to 1980 — cook your goose with recipes from around the world, and astound your teachers — tell them the facts of triangulation and black holes.

In an effort to stem the rise of prices and the spiral of inflation, the Wayne Public Library will be offering high interest loans to its patrons during National Library Week, April 13-19, and throughout 1980.
With inflation at an annual rate of 18 percent, Kathleen Tooker, local librarian, urges patrons to ignore the economists and borrow, borrow, borrow from the library.
From books to records, the library has the latest best sellers and oldest classics. And, the price is right!

You can relax with large print books and lace the music from Bach to rock with records and cassette tapes. And discover who dunnit and who didn't in mysteries, romances, westerns and science fiction.
Your local library has stories to tell, games to play, and movies to enjoy. And they have your number and many more in telephone books and directories of colleges, government agencies, tennis resorts and more.
No library can afford to buy many of the more than 34,000 books published each year in the United States. But books and information — not available locally — are just a phone call away.

Nebraska Wesleyan Inviting Alumni

Birthday Party Held Tuesday at Senior Center

Helene Meyer, Besse Peterman and Shirley Wagner observed their birthdays during the monthly dance and sing-a-long Tuesday afternoon at the Wayne Senior Citizens Center.

There were 30 present for the observance. The honorees were celebrated with the traditional birthday song, accompanied by Genevieve Craig. Mrs. Howard Stoakes decorated the cake.

The center's Bobbles and Bub blettes band furnished music for dancing, and Genevieve Craig accompanied the sing-a-long of favorite hymns.

A light supper was furnished by the birthday honorees and Larry Osnowar, Virgil and Cordelia Chambers, Viola Lawrence, Ruth Reed, Albert and Emma Soules, Gladys Petersen, Mary Hansen, Myrtle Splitzgerber, Alma Splitzgerber, Anton and Rena Pedersen, Mrs. August Dorman, Bernitta Higgins, Harry and Lucille Wert, Erwin and Hilda Vahlkamp and Mildred Wacker.

The next dance, sing-a-long, birthday and anniversary party will be at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, May 13.

Anniversary Dance

Mr. and Mrs. Werner Mann of Winside will be observing their 35th wedding anniversary with a dance at King's Ballroom in Norfolk on Saturday, April 19.

Dancing will be from 8:30 p.m. to midnight and music will be furnished by The All Knights.

All friends and relatives are invited to attend. The couple requests no gifts.

Mixers Meet 25 Years

The Merry Mixers Club celebrated its 25th anniversary Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Werner Mann.

Attending were 10 members and seven former members, including Mrs. Don Milliken, Mrs. Ed Vahlkamp, Mrs. Ted Hoeman, Mrs. Marcella Wacker, Mrs. Leland Andersen, Mrs. Elmer Wacker and Mrs. Charles Maier.

The meeting opened with the song "The More We Get Together," followed with a history of the club during the past 25 years. Scrapbooks made since the club was organized were on display.

Several quizzes furnished the entertainment, with plants going to Mrs. Elmer Wacker, Mrs. Harvey Reeg, Mrs. Herman Vahlkamp, Mrs. Leland Andersen, Mrs. Lawrence Backstrom, Mrs. Don Milliken, Mrs. Kenneth Haller and Mrs. Don Luff. Receiving UNO prizes were Mrs. Charles Maier and Mrs. Edwin Vahlkamp.

The evening closed with a salad bar luncheon.

Mrs. Fritz Mann will be hostess for the next regular club meeting, at 1:30 p.m. May 13.

Energy Seminar Planned

Northeast Technical Community College will sponsor a free public forum entitled "Energy Saving and the Automobile" from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday in the Activities Center Little Theater at NTCC.

This is the second in a series of three funded through the Nebraska Committee for the Humanities. Panelists at the meeting will include Robert Leavitt, transportation and industrial coordinator from the Nebraska Energy Office, NTCC staff members, and several local high school students. The general public is invited to participate and share new ideas and information about the many ways of increasing gas mileage and to learn more about alternative fuels such as diesel and alcohol.

The third and final energy forum will be held May 22 and will discuss the current governmental and legislative issues regarding the energy shortage problem. Interested persons may obtain more information by contacting the Community Services Office at NTCC at 371-2020, Ext. 247.

Juniors Can Experience College

High school juniors will be able to experience college life early through a summer Pre-College Institute Program at Wayne State College beginning in June. The program, offered June 2 through June 20, will allow high school students to take college-level classes and stay on the WSC campus. The program is designed to orient and motivate high school juniors to the college environment before enrolling as full-time freshmen.

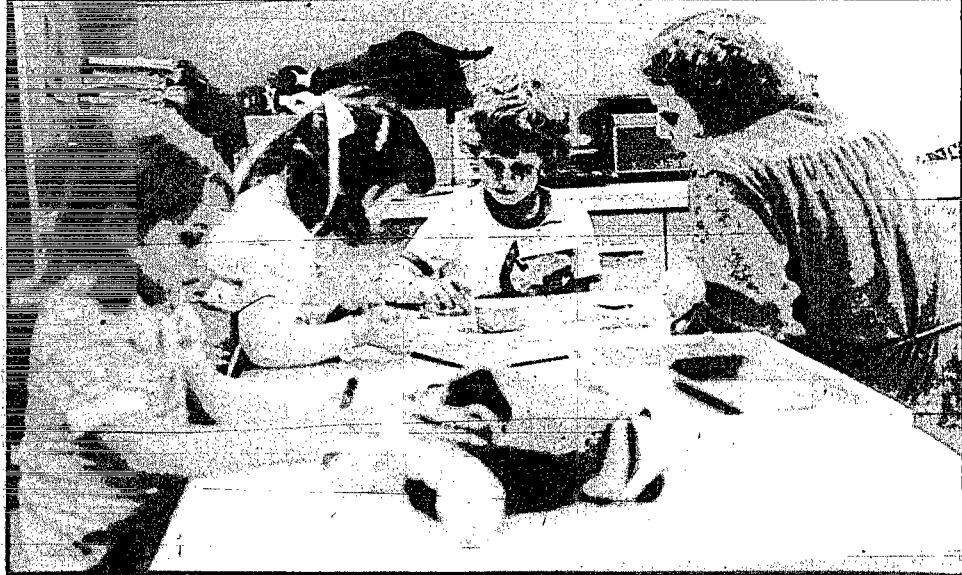

Participating students may enroll in one of three courses offered through the program and each course is worth three college credits which may be transferred to most colleges in the United States. Program courses include "Humankind in Post-Industrial Society: Problems and Prospects," "Alienation, Crisis and Expression in 20th Century American Culture" and "Modern Aspects of Human Nutrition, Physiology and Exercise."

Participating students will be housed in WSC residence halls and will have access to a variety of college recreational facilities. Counselors will work closely with participating students throughout all stages of the program. Admission to the Pre-College Institute is limited and students must be recommended by their high school principal or guidance counselor and by two classroom teachers.

The cost of the program, including room, board, tuition and health and activity fees, is $162 for Nebraska residents and $199 for non-residents. For information or registration, contact WSC instructor Margaret Hansen at 375-2200.

CCC Defers Late Delivery

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has announced that Commodity Credit Corporation has deferred to a later delivery month contract obligations covering corn and wheat which had been scheduled for May delivery. These contracts were acquired by the CCC as a result of the suspension of exports to the Soviet Union.

Rodents — rats, mice, beavers, chinchillas, etc. — are the most numerous order of mammals, with about 2,000 species distributed all over the world.
