Golf, Baseball Given A Reprieve

By the narrowest of margins, the Wayne-Carroll School District board of education voted Monday night to reinstate golf and baseball as spring sports.

THE DECISIONS insure that golf will be available to high school students indefinitely, while baseball was given a one-year reprieve contingent upon a pledge of some $2,400 by baseball boosters.

The road leading to Monday's decisions has been long, controversial and mostly confusing. The board voted 5-1 in June to eliminate baseball. But in July, after discussing the matter with a contingency of sports boosters, the board voted to drop golf from the program and agreed to give baseball another chance by meeting with the boosters at the September meeting.

VOTING 3-2 MONDAY night in favor of a motion to reinstate baseball for one year contingent upon pledged funds were Dale Stollenberg, Jim Hummel and Milton Owens. Voting against were Wilbur Giese and Neil Sandahl. Board member Dorothy Ley was absent due to ill health.

Prior to that, Hummel introduced a motion to reinstate baseball on the same contingency as golf — that being that the pledge not be included but with the option of considering at a later date if needed. It died for lack of a second.

The golf motion (as described above) was approved 5-0. Giese, who had voted at a previous meeting to drop golf, said he changed his vote because "the majority (7 of 11) of kids in golf don't participate in any other sport."

The vote to reinstate baseball came despite news that the Ponca School District board has voted to drop baseball for next spring also, and that renovation of the city ball park will not be completed in time for high school use next spring.

ABOUT 50 golf and baseball supporters along with their children and some students were on hand for the board's discussion and subsequent action. Wayne Nissen was primary spokesman for the group, while several members of the audience offered opinions.

Nissen asked that "proper consideration be given to both of these sports (golf and baseball)." Each has been offered complete financial support by boosters, he noted.

Mike Perry, speaking mostly on behalf of the golf program, reminded the board that golf was being offered relatively free since the Country Club board of directors has waived fees and is providing a pro without charge.

"WE WERE in awe" that the board decided to drop golf, he said.

Darrell Moore cited Supt. Francis Haun's July recommendation that golf be kept. It was a viable program, Haun had argued, since 55 Class B schools were involved.

TO THE applause of the boosters, one participant said "fellas, please, you don't know how you're going to affect these kids" if baseball and golf are eliminated.

Baseball coach Mike Mallette's comments that he "would hate to see these young kids not have the opportunity" also brought enthusiastic applause from the boosters. "It's a good plus to see our boys develop the skills and go on to use them" on the college level, he also offered.

Board president Sandahl, responding to boosters' comments, said he "had been in the dark" when he voted in July to drop the golf program. He did not realize, he said, that the fees for use of the course and the golf pro had been waived.

NOTING PONCA'S baseball decision, which according to Mallette resulted from Wayne's decision, Hummel said the amount of Class B competition was a factor to consider. "Is baseball a sport that is coming back into Northeast Nebraska," he asked?

"With the continuing declining enrollment that Wayne is experiencing, it is difficult to support academic programs let alone athletic programs," he added.

Superintendent Haun explained that he had been ordered by the board several months ago to come up with viable cuts in the school district's budget in light of inconclusive teacher negotiations and a 7 percent limit on tax receipts.

HAUN SAID he looked at all areas of the budget, and rather than make cuts in the academic programs, offered the board the least viable programs, including baseball.

"We will continue to make cuts in activities" rather than in academics, he said, "but we can't go on this way and not cut academically," the superintendent said.

In response, Nissen said he felt cuts in the administration and facilities should be considered before cuts in activities.

"I also expect to be respected as a professional in making these decisions," the superintendent shot back.

AN UNIDENTIFIED voice in the crowd then reminded the board that it was elected by the taxpayers of the district and should act accordingly.

The decision to keep baseball was followed by cheers and applause from the boosters. Golf and baseball will continue to be sponsored by the school district. Baseball will be financed primarily through pledges and will pay for salaries of coaches. Golf fees will be waived by the Country Club but the coach will be paid by the school district.

In other action, the board gave Superintendent Haun the authority to investigate the possibility of insulating the middle and elementary school roofs.

HAUN ALSO will look into the possibility of hiring an athletic trainer during football season. Salary would be paid out of gate receipts.

Distinguished service and merit honors to board member Mrs. Ley will be presented at the next board meeting. She was unable to attend Monday's meeting due to ill health.

It was noted that head custodian Dick Powers underwent unexpected triple bypass heart surgery recently and will be absent for several weeks.

AN UPDATED teacher assignment sheet was reviewed for the coming year and the board entered into executive session to discuss teacher negotiations.

The board voted 3-2 to accept the fact-finders recommendation on salaries for the coming year. Voting against were Milton Owens and Wilbur Giese. For more details, see story elsewhere on this page.

Water Problems Spur Council

Unexpected problems in the city's water system moved the City Council to action Tuesday night, as the group gave its engineers permission to develop a cost analysis of several short-range projects.

DENNIS HIRSCHBRUNNER, engineer with Bruce Gilmore & Associates, told the Council that city wells 3 and 4 will have to be shut down because they no longer are producing. This leaves the city with only three wells — 5, 6 and 7 — to support the water distribution system.

The city has experienced some supply problems in the last few days, he said, and the three working wells have been hard pressed to maintain an adequate water level in the standpipes on the northwest side of town.

Gilmore & Associates will undertake a rate study to see if the current rate structure can financially support planned projects, and will develop a "road map of how the city will proceed with the projects."

THE COUNCIL had been considering several short-range and long-range projects over the next 20 years, but the recent problems with the wells spurred them into more immediate action.

The most immediate project apparently will be construction of a new well in the northeast section of town. This would provide the needed gallons per minute to replace what has been lost by the shutdown of wells 3 and 4.

Revamping of several water transmission lines, installation of a central control panel for monitoring of water and elimination of water pressure problems in the Roosevelt

Park Subdivision area are other immediate considerations.

Increasing the pumping capacity on wells 6 and 7 also will be undertaken in the near future.

TOTAL PROJECT cost would be a maximum of $386,000, and probably less depending on the extent of each project, Hirschbrunner said. While some of the costs could be paid through general obligation bonds, most would be paid through revenue bonds. In other words, the system would be able to pay for itself.

The engineering firm is expected to conduct the rate study and an analysis of costs and report at the next Council meeting this month.

IN SOMEWHAT of a related matter, the Council had considerable discussion on water metering problems involving Muhs Acres northwest of town.

Although each house in the subdivision has a water meter and is being charged accordingly for use of the city's water, there is no meter to tell how much water is reaching Muhs Acres.

When the development was constructed more than five years ago, the developer placed a meter at the start of the private water line just past the city's line. However, that meter has been inoperable for several years and the city has no idea how much water is being used through the lone fire hydrant at Muhs Acres.

AS A RESULT of this problem, the Council moved swiftly to place a meter — estimated to cost more than $1,500 — on the end of the city's water main. Readings from the city's new meter and from individual Muhs Acres meters will be compared, and the difference in water use will be charged to the owners.

Considering but no action also was given to metering all unmetered water to determine potential losses of revenue. Eventually, the Council hopes that all city parks, buildings and the golf course will be metered. The golf course is one of the major users of water and probably uses more than homes in Roosevelt Park, the engineer pointed out.

AFTER CONSIDERABLE discussion, the Council voted 5-1 to accept a Planning Commission recommendation that a requested lot split not be approved.

The request was made by Joe Lowe of Joe Lowe Realty and involved Lots 1-3, Block 2 in the Original Town Addition of Wayne. The Council and Planning Commission based their decisions on a city ordinance which requires a lot depth of at least 100 feet.

If the lots were split, one lot would not have been in compliance with zoning regulations since its depth would have been only 90 feet.

City Attorney Ken Swartz said "If you do approve this, then in effect you are appealing the city's zoning ordinance. The Council is obligated to look at the lot split and see if it meets the existing legal framework that you already have established, whether you like it or not."

VOTING TO stay with recommendations of the attorney and Planning Commission were Council members Darrel Heler, Leo Hansen, Larry Johnson, Cliff Ginn, Keith Mosley, Carolyn Filter and Sam Hepburn. Voting against was Darrel Fuelberth.

Councilman Ginn then moved that officials investigate the rationale behind establishing the 100 foot lot depth. Fuelberth and Lowe argued that many similar situations exist in the older parts of the city and the present ordinance crimps certain types of development of these areas.

Muhs Acres generated some additional discussion even though action on a public hearing and ordinance was tabled.

Under the existing ordinance approved about a year ago, Muhs Acres was rezoned from residential to agricultural. Now, persons wanting to build in the subdivision must have a minimum of 25 acres. The action on the hearing was tabled so Planning Commission members — who previously approved the rezoning — could investigate the matter further.

ACCORDING TO Jim Holtgrew, the city's building inspector, the area was rezoned because of a high concentration of septic tanks. A report will be made on the problem at the next meeting.

In other action, the Council approved the low bid of Concrete Specialties Inc. of South Sioux City for construction of two street improvement districts. Total project cost is estimated at $78,630.

The Council also approved a janitorial agreement with Lance L. Roberts for the City Auditorium and City Hall.

All members were present and all actions were unanimous unless noted otherwise.

What Goes Up,.....

PROGRESS CONTINUES in dismantling the city ball park this fall in preparation for reconstruction next spring. Stacy Swinney of Wayne donated use of his crane and his expertise, while Stan Morris donated use of a welding truck. Volunteers are providing much of the work, machinery and tools in preparing the park for renovation. The major expense involved with the park is being paid by a grant.

Negotiations Are Settled

After several months of negotiations, an agreement has been reached on a salary package for Wayne-Carroll School District teachers.

THE BOARD voted 3-2 Monday night after executive session to accept a fact-finder recommendation which will cost the district an extra $138,000 for the coming fiscal year.

The closed session came at the end of a regular meeting. Voting to accept the fact-finding recommendation were board members Neil Sandahl, Jim Hummel and Dale Stollenberg. Voting not to accept were Wilbur Giese and Milton Owens.

The salary package will give a beginning teacher a salary of $10,500. This represents an 11 percent increase over the present starting salary of $9,450, according to Supt. Francis Haun.

IN ADDITION, the fact-finding committee recommended that an additional step be added to the master's degree column and each of the three succeeding columns. The bachelor's degree columns will remain the same as last year.

Teacher salaries fall into four different columns according to the type of degree and the number of hours each teacher has accumulated above the degree. For example, under last year's schedule a teacher with a master's degree and who had up to 36 additional hours received $11,340 his or her first year in the local district and $15,120 in the 11th year. After reaching the 11th year and not obtaining additional education hours, the salary would increase at a much slower rate. Each step upward on the column is based on a certain percentage of the base salary. A teacher does not advance to the next column until he or she completes additional hours of education.

UNDER THE new schedule, each column will have one more step before a teacher must acquire more education.

The fact-finders also recommended that the board pay the full cost of family health insurance rather than only for the teacher as in past years. This will be a considerable expense to the district since the insurance package here was less expensive than those of comparably sized schools.

Total increased cost of the package represents an estimated 13 percent increase over last year. Superintendent Haun noted that he was only able to budget 10 percent for the coming year in order to keep the budget under the 7 percent lid limit.

THE DIFFERENCE between the 10 and 13 percent will mean that some $35,000 to $40,000 will have to be taken from the school's reserve funds to meet the additional demand.

Total salary package cost to the district will be some $975,516 for certified staff. This compares to $1,012,397 for Albion, $990,882 for West Point, $989,702 for Gretna, $988,310 for Central City, $984,957 for Fairbury, $974,292 for Broken Bow, $961,199 for Wisner, $923,782 for Randolph and $917,818 for Pierce.

HAUN SAID the fact-finders agreed on 10 schools of comparable size and with other similar traits to help determine what Wayne's salary package would be. A midpoint was struck within the 10 schools and Wayne was placed there.

In salaries alone, the cost to the Wayne-Carroll District will be $103,000 more than last year. The remainder is in fringe benefits.

Negotiations stalled last spring between the board of education and the Wayne Education Association. After failing to agree, a fact-finding committee of three persons was selected, representing the board, the WEA and an independent fact-finder.

SUPERINTENDENT Haun said fact-finders supposedly do essentially what the Court of Industrial Relations would have done had negotiations been appealed to that level.

Industry Salute This Month

In an effort to promote Wayne's industrial development, Wayne Industries, Inc. will feature a salute-to-industry outing Sept. 24. The event will include an old-fashioned country hayride and barbecue, according to Mike Perry, chairman of this year's event.

"COME SEE THE SIGHTS" is the theme of the program which will begin at 5:30 p.m. Valley Engine, the newest local industry, will be the gathering site with tractor-pulled haywagons leaving every 30 minutes for a tour of the industrial park.

"Wayne Industries will use this opportunity to show its members just what their support has accomplished," Perry said. "We'll also be inviting several prospective members to come along for the ride in an effort to interest them in our activities."

The organization currently has 144 individual and business members. ANOTHER PURPOSE of the program is to invite several industrial prospects for a look, according to Bob Jordan, president of Wayne Industries, Inc. The organization has been in contact with several prospective industries and invitations will be extended to them for an opportunity to see the sites.

A COUNTRY style beef will be prepared for those attending.

Pedestrian Safety Award

THE CITY OF Wayne was presented the American Automobile Association's Pedestrian Safety Achievement Award Monday for the excellence of its pedestrian safety program. Presenting the plaque to Mayor Wayne Marsh and Police Chief Vern Fairchild was Keith Ragen, area district manager of the Nebraska AAA affiliate, the Cornhusker Motor Club. Band Day This Saturday

A Wayne State College Band Day will highlight the opening of this year's football season at WSC this Saturday, Sept. 13.

FOURTEEN AREA bands, comprised of more than 700 students, will participate in the event, sponsored jointly by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce and WSC. Adrie Nab, WSC director of college relations said, "The combined sponsorship of Band Day by the Wayne Chamber and the college is another opportunity and effort to introduce the area schools to the city of Wayne and Wayne State College, and to bring the city community and college community even closer together than they are already." Band Day chairman is Paul Peterson, manager of Kuhns Department Store, Wayne. A parade, starting at 10:30 a.m. from the WSC campus through Main Street to First Street, will be judged by Jim Johnson, Wisner; Bob Widener, Lyons; and Jim Luellen, Norfolk. The judges' stand will be located on Main Street, in front of the First National Bank.

TROPHIES will be awarded for first and second places in two classes: Class AA, A, B for larger schools; and Class C, D, for the smaller schools.

Band Day this year will have fewer participants than last year due to this year's early date. According to Dr. Ray Kellon, WSC director of bands, this date was picked because it was the first WSC home football game. The 14 bands also will perform at a 12:30 p.m. pre-game parade on the Wildcat football field and massed bands will join the Wayne State College band once more during half-time.

NRD Okays MIP for Next Year

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District board of directors Monday approved an agreement to extend the Model

Implementation Project (MIP) through September of next year.

The MIP, located on the Middle Fork of Maple Creek near Clarkson, is an effort to improve water quality by constructing soil and water conservation practices on the land.

The agreement includes the Department of Environmental Control, Nebraska Natural Resources Commission, UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service. The MIP receives a special allocation each year for cost sharing practices with landowners. Some $200,000 is still available to landowners at a 90 percent cost share rate.

Directors elected William Meyer of Pierce, voting delegate, and Ray Vogel of Battle Creek, alternate, to the Nebraska Association of Resources Districts Conference in Kearney Sept. 22 and 23.

Delegates will vote on six resolutions on which LENRD has taken these positions: support proposed legislation for reclamation of sand and gravel mining areas, oppose prohibiting application of chemicals in irrigation systems, oppose district court awards regarding land rights, oppose constructing or buying NRD administrative offices, oppose a change in the interpretation in ACP irrigation water conservation practices and support Nebraska's interests in the High Plains study.

The next meeting will be Oct. 6 at Norfolk.

Local Abstract Office Is Sold

Wayne County Abstract Co has been sold effective Oct. 1.

Mary Ellen Jackson, owner for the last five years, said the firm was sold to Security Land Title Company of Omaha. Mrs. Jackson said she bought the abstract company from Walt Moller in 1976. She has been in the abstracting business 11 years.

Dick Horton Selected 'Volunteer of the Year' At Wayne Care Centre

The Wayne Care Centre has named Dick Horton of Wayne its "Volunteer of the Year."

The announcement was made recently by activities director Roberta Carman.

Mrs. Carman said Horton was chosen because of the nearly 300 hours he voluntarily spent with residents of the Care Centre during the past year.

Horton's name has been submitted to the Nebraska Health Care Association, which will choose a state winner when it meets for its annual convention later this month in Omaha. The names of state winners will be forwarded to the American Health Care Association for national competition in Atlanta, Ga.

Horton, 73, has been a volunteer at the Wayne Care Centre for about the past four years. He visits the Centre as often as four times a week and spent between 250 and 300 hours with residents during the past year.

In addition to furnishing the residents with fresh garden produce and flowers, Horton purchased each one a Christmas gift last year. These were purchased at his own expense.

Horton was responsible for forming a Saturday afternoon rhythm band, which has grown from about 10 members to 40. He furnishes the instruments and arranged for volunteer organists to practice with the band.

He also assists with the Centre's own regular band, the Do Whack Adoers, which meet every Tuesday afternoon.

Horton also enjoys playing cards and dominoes with the residents and helped form a domino group.

A former school teacher and county school superintendent, Horton encourages senior citizens to remain active and often takes them shopping and on various other trips.

Wayne State College opens its 1980 football season Saturday, Sept. 13 in a game against rival Chadron State. Kick-off time is slated for 1:30 p.m.

The Wildcats open their season a week late after a schedule change eliminated South Dakota from the schedule. At the late date another opponent could not be found.

Chadron comes to Wayne on the wake of a win over South Dakota Tech, a game played last Saturday in Rapid City. Chadron won the game 21-10 despite a 0-10 deficit at one point in the game.

The Wildcat offense this season will be strong in some areas and weak in others with the major problem being a lack of depth. Four of five starters return to the offensive line with the major hole being that of center after the graduation of Kevin Savio.

Bill Milks (6-5, 242 lbs.) from Springfield, will be moved from the tackle position to center, though he may play at both positions. At the guard positions are junior Kevin Johnson (5-11, 207 lbs.) from Mallard, Iowa and sophomore Ron Price (5-11, 195 lbs.) from Lincoln. Returning at offensive tackle is junior tackle Steve Zelinsky (6-3, 235 lbs.) from Wheaton, Ill. The other tackle position is still open, but freshman Paul Zelinsky (6-2, 225 lbs.), Steve's younger brother, is tabbed to start.

In the backfield the quarterback slot is pretty much up for grabs between senior Rick Lade (6-1, 190 lbs.) from Tekamah; junior Kelly Neuström (6-0, 165 lbs.) from Malvern, Iowa; and Mike Warren (6-2, 166 lbs.), a sophomore from Papillion.

At the present time, Lade is scheduled to start against Chadron. Coach Stoltenberg indicated his confidence in all three Wildcat quarterbacks. As the Cats play a running offense that makes the quarterback more susceptible to injury than other styles of play, it is a definite advantage to have equally talented quarterbacks to depend on, Stoltenberg said.

The offensive punch is lacking in depth at both the fullback and tailback positions. At fullback, a much improved sophomore, Anthony Mariella (6-3, 220 lbs.) is expected to see a lot of ball carrying. He will be competing against by freshman standout Wally Emerson (6-1, 215 lbs.) from Sioux City, Iowa. For this opener, Emerson is questionable due to an ear infection.

The replacement for Bob Barry at tailback, the Cats' all-time leading rusher, will not be filled by just one player. Several players, among them two freshmen, will be looking to the tailback duties. Senior Clark Benne (5-10, 185 lbs.) from Scribner, appears to be starting pick though freshman Todd Pflanz (5-9, 175 lbs.) from Emerson and Pat McKeown (5-10, 180 lbs.) from Sioux City, Iowa have shown a lot of talent and improvement during the pre-season and should log plenty of playing time.

The receiving department of the Wildcats is fortunate to have senior Jeff Ingram (6-5, 195 lbs.) returning to the split end position. Ingram earned another year of eligibility due to an injury he received during last season's opener against Chadron.

Pat Maxwell (5-11, 185 lbs.) stepped in for the season as split end to replace Ingram and lead the team last season in pass receptions. With these two talented receivers on the Wildcat offense a lot of explosive excitement is sure to be generated.

At the tight end position, junior Ed Blackburn (6-4, 195 lbs.) returns to add the explosive speed element to the Wildcat offense.

Six out of seven starters return to the defensive portion of the Wildcat game. Last season, as in many past seasons, the defensive squad was ranked among the top squads in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference.

Top returners are junior linebackers Steve Dennis (6-1, 195 lbs.) and Tony Scudder (6-2, 240 lbs.). Dennis and Scudder were the second and third leading tacklers for the Cats last season and are expected to create havoc with opposing offensive strategy this season.

Junior Ron Berrie (6-3, 225 lbs.), Davenport, Iowa, will anchor the defensive line at the tackle position, while the defensive backfield is expected to be led by senior Steve Atiamian (6-1, 172 lbs.) from Schaumburg, Ill.

Pat Maxwell returns to do punting duties for the Wildcats. Field goal duties will be taken over by Gary Cook (6-1, 165 lbs.), a freshman soccer player from Johannesburg, South Africa. Stoltenberg feels that Cook will be a great asset to the Cat offense, though the question will be his adjustment to football from soccer. In practice on Friday, Cook hit three out of five from 52 yards, which indicates his potential strength and accuracy as he progresses.

Stoltenberg is satisfied with the results of the pre-season — the players are strong and healthy with the loss of only two players with major injuries. Junior defensive end, Bill Schwartz, suffered a broken leg in practice and will be lost in the lineup for at least three weeks. Freshman quarterback Jeff Philby suffered a dislocated shoulder in practice and will be out at least six weeks.

The rating of WSC at sixth in the conference is somewhat of a disappointment for Stoltenberg, given the performance last season. Wayne State was tied with four other teams for third place last season, pointing out the balance and strength of the conference.

Stoltenberg would not comment on the outcome of the Saturday game except to indicate that the Wildcats are ready and eager to play. "It will be interesting to see whether or not the extra week of practice will offset the fact that Chadron has a game under their belts," commented Coach Stoltenberg, "we will take what they give us."

Solid Nucleus Returns For Lady Wildcat Team

By Diana Daniels
Wayne State SID

The Wayne State College Lady Wildcat volleyball team will open its 1980 season this weekend at the Kansas State Tournament in Manhattan, Kan. The tournament is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Sept. 12 and 13, with play beginning early tomorrow (Friday) morning.

The roster for the Lady Cats includes seven returnees from last season's squad. Overall record for the Lady Cats last season was 17-23-6 and 4-10 in Central States Intercollegiate Conference (CSIC) competition.

Top returnees are Marlene Morgensen, a senior from Cedar Rapids and Cheryl Abts, a junior from Dixon. Both players were named to the CSIC all-conference volleyball team last season.

Morgensen was the only Lady Wildcat named to the first team. The senior tallied 877 total points, 372 of which were spike points. The 5-10 spiker was the Lady Wildcats' leader on the front line. Picked to the second team of the all-CSIC team was junior Abts. The 5-8 Abts led the Lady Cats in total points scored with 1,163.

Also returning to the line-up are Kelly Frevert Heitold (5-10, junior) from Wayne who was fourth in team scoring and Judy Jarecki, a 5-8 sophomore from Omaha.

Outstanding freshmen on the Lady Wildcat squad are Ann Montag, a 5-9er from David City and Laura Asmusen, a 5-3 setter from Emerson.

Coach Bernice Fulton is in her ninth year as leader of the Lady Wildcats. Her teams have compiled a 143-113-6 record in overall play and only two losing seasons in the nine year span.

The schedule for the Lady Wildcats is a tough one with the first half of the season played on the road. The HFS conference match is against Missouri Western at St. Joseph on Oct. Lady Wildcat fans will have to wait until Oct. 3 and 4 to see them play at home when Wayne State hosts Pittsburg State University, Kearney State and Washburn University in a triangular conference match.

The Lady Wildcats look very strong and have been working on drills and ball control since Aug.

18 when practice started. Pre-season drills were often three per day in anticipation of a run for the conference title. Coach Fulton is noted as a team coach and her squad plays in that manner. "It takes three well executed hits to play the ball correctly and score points, so all must play well in order for that to happen." "There are no team leaders in that respect."

Star of the Week

Brian Foote

The first "Football Star of the Week" award will be given to Brian Foote this week. Foote, listed as a 130 pound senior halfback on Winside's roster, had a tremendous all-around game against Allen, Friday night.

The hard-nosed three sport standout, who is also a defending state champion wrestler, rushed for 88 yards on 11 carries and scored one touchdown while leading the Wildcats to their opening season win. He returned the opening kickoff back 71 yards and returned another kickoff back 13 yards later in the game.

Foote had one interception while playing defense and kicked three consecutive successful field goals of 26, 29 and 27 yards. Another kick of 28 yards crossed the uprights but was called back because of a holding penalty. Another long punt return of his was also called back because of a penalty. The senior also had one quick kick which covered 43 yards.

Other nominees for this week's award were Joe Olsen of Laurel, Frank Lanser of Allen and Aaron Schuett of Wayne. Wakefield coach Dennis Wilbur said that because his team's victory was such a team effort he couldn't nominate a player of the week for the first game. Wayne State was idle this week and thus didn't nominate anyone.

Olsen, a senior quarterback for the Laurel Bears, passed for 262 yards. He completed 16 of 29 passes in a losing effort against Randolph.

Lanser, a senior end for the Allen Eagles, was nominated for the award for his performance against Winside. He had four receptions and played a solid game for the Eagles.

Schuett, a Wayne senior, played well as offensive guard and defensive tackle in a loss to South Sioux City, according to coach Lonnie Ehrhardt. Schuett punted eight times for a 33 yard average and had four solo tackles and eight assists.

Trojans Get 1st Volleyball Win Over Emerson-Hubbrd, Tuesday

The Wakefield Trojans controlled the momentum throughout most of their match against Emerson-Hubbrd to take a 15-4, 13-15, 15-7 victory, Tuesday night in the Wakefield High School gym.

The Trojans jumped out in front by scores of 6-1 and 9-2 in the first game and never buckled while holding on to win 15-4. Deb Foote led Wakefield.

Emerson came back in the second game and gained the momentum which had belonged to Wakefield. The Pirateettes scored the first six points and held advantages of 10-2 and 12-4. Wakefield refused to give up and put together a rally which nearly won the game. The Trojans patiently pulled back within five points at 14-9 as Joan Miller led a balanced team attack.

Led by the setting and spiking of Miller and Deb Foote, Wakefield closed within one point and threatened to win the game, despite trailing 14-13.

WAKEFIELD'S Teri Schwarden (8) sets the ball up following a spike by an Emerson-Hubbrd player Rita Wilson (7) stands by to aid the team and Shelley Paul (2) watches the action.

Emerson took the early lead in the final game by scoring the first three points. A nicely blocked shot by Coleen Nauhaus gave Wakefield control of the serve. The Trojans regained the momentum and rallied for a 7-6 lead behind the fine play of Shelley Paul.

From that point on, the hosts took complete control, scoring eight of the next nine points for a 15-7 win.

"We played a lot better than we did a week ago (against Sioux City East) and we needed to play better," Wakefield coach Ernie Kovar said. Kovar pointed out that despite losing the second game, the effort gave his team a psychological advantage. "We were down but came back and played the best volleyball of the night in that second game."

Joan Miller moved into a setting position for us and did an outstanding job. The position was completely foreign to her yet she had a fine floor game," Kovar said. "It was a good night for us and we won all three matches (varsity, reserves and freshmen). That makes things go better and the players work harder in practice."

Leading servers in the varsity contest were Foote with nine aces and 18 points and Paul with 4 aces and 9 points. Teri Schwarden was the leading setter with five sets that were spiked for aces. Foote and Paul were the leading spikers with five and four aces respectively.

Wakefield won the reserve match 15-9, 15-8 and won the freshman contest 15-13, 8-15, 15-8. Next action is scheduled against Laurel at 8:30 p.m. Monday in the Winside Invitational.

Wakefield lost its season opener to Sioux City East 15-0, 15-4 last week. The reserve and freshmen teams also lost. The Trojan freshmen gave East's sophomore team a good run before finally losing 10-15, 15-11, 4-15.

Blue Devils Second at Beemer, Gain Dual Win over Schuyler

The opening tournament of the season was a successful one for Wayne's volleyball team. The Blue Devils placed second in the Beemer Invitational, played Thursday and Saturday.

Wayne opened the tournament against Scribner and came out on top 15-3, 15-5 in the semifinal round, the Devils dropped Fremont Bergan 15-4, 15-9.

The finals matched long-time arch rivals Wayne and Wakefield. Wisner won the championship by nipping the locals. Wayne won the first game 17-15, lost the second game 6-15 and lost the final game 14-16. For Wayne the leading server in the tournament was Lisa Peters with 26 points. Peters was also the leading spiker with 30 spikes, 10 of which were aces. Jenni DeTurk was the leading ball handler with 56 sets.

"Overall, we played consistently good, aggressive volleyball. Wisner is a good team," Wayne coach Mavis Dalton said. "Our weak point was our serving percentage. As a team, only about 72 percent of our serves were good."

The Blue Devils continued their winning ways by bombing Schuyler 15-6, 15-5 on the Warriors' home court, Tuesday night. The win improved Wayne's record to 3-1.

Lynn Surber led the Devils in two departments in the varsity win. She was the leading server with nine points and three aces. She also scored 11 points on spikes with one ace.

Jill Zeiss was the leading setter with 21 successful sets. "We took to the offense and moved the ball well," Wayne coach Mavis Dalton said. "We kind of took the wind out of Schuyler's sails." Wayne is scheduled to host Laurel on Thursday.

In reserve action, the Blue Devils defeated their Schuyler counterparts 15-12, 10-15, 15-7. Kris Proett was the leading server with nine points, Missy Stofenberg led the spikers with 10 and Tam Murray was the floor leader with 22 sets.

In the freshman match, Schuyler topped Wayne 15-4, 15-3. Christy Nelsun had four points for the locals.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Mascoe

THE DECISION by the Wayne-Carroll board of education to reinstate baseball and golf should be a relief to fans in Laurel, Wakefield and Bancroft.

Those three schools had a lot riding on the decision which was reached Monday night. Only five schools outside of the metropolitan areas play high school baseball. Ponca, which joins the four schools listed above, is also a member of the Northeast Nebraska High School Baseball League. It has been reported that Ponca has dropped baseball from its athletic program.

If Ponca has officially dropped the sport and sticks by its guns, only four teams will remain in this part of the state. If Wayne's school board had held its ground, that would have all but eliminated baseball in outstate Nebraska. A league of three teams couldn't very well survive. It will be difficult enough for a Ponca-less conference to continue.

If high school baseball is to gain new life in the future, it appears that one or two schools would have to add the sport to their athletic programs. At the present time, I doubt that any school will find it financially feasible to do so.

KEVIN SAVIO, former Wayne State football star, has gained more honors in his career as a football player.

In his first year with the Shreveport Steamers of the professional American Football Association, Savio was named first team All-Pro.

Shreveport won its division of the AFA with a 9-1 record and was scheduled to play in the playoffs. Five offensive and three defensive players from the Steamers' team were chosen for the All-Pro squad.

Shreveport head coach Jim Williams had plenty of praise for the 6-3, 243-pound center who helped anchor his offensive line.

"He is one fine football player, the type of guy you have to have to win in this league. He not only has athletic ability but has intelligence as well," Williams said. "Kevin got out of college with a degree and that's important. We have committed ourselves over the last three years in recruiting quality young men with good backgrounds as much as good athletic ability. We believe you can get that in the same package and he is a good example of that."

The AFA, which encountered some financial difficulties this past season, is discussing a television package with Miz-Lou Television Network for next year. If the deal is made, the network will carry one game a week on TV and provide about $1.5 million per season to the league.

Savio also gained fame of another sort because of his connection with Louisiana's professional team. He and four other players were selected to be in one of the new CBS "Looking Good Together" commercials. The commercial was filmed in Shreveport and will be aired in the southern states.

Because of the past heatwave in Shreveport, Savio said he was looking forward to fall and winter. He said he lost 10 pounds in one game.

YOUNG HUNTERS in the area should be interested in the hunter safety classes offered at the Wayne Middle School.

The courses will be given from 7 to 9:30 p.m. on Sept. 15, 22 and 29 (all Mondays). The class is open to adults as well as youths but is especially important to the younger hunters, age 12 through 16. These individuals must have a course completion card in order to hunt legally.

All equipment is furnished by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, which is sponsoring the classes at the Middle School shop. Bill Wilson and Jack Bruna of Wayne and Clayton Stalling of the G & P Commission will instruct the classes.

Allen Third In Tourney

A strong team from Waitstill ended Allen's hopes of winning the Pender Invitational volleyball tournament this past weekend.

The Eagles placed third in the tourney, losing to Waitstill in the semifinals. Waitstill defeated Allen 15-12, 2-15, 15-2 on Saturday.

Allen came back after the semifinal round loss to dump Pender in the consolation finals 15-2, 15-9.

"It was a good team effort," Allen coach Gary Troth said. "Des Williams had a good tournament."

Hunting Hints

Communicate with Landowners

The two keys to finding hunting opportunities on private land are asking permission prior to hunting and cultivating a good relationship with the landowner in advance of the coming season.

A survey conducted by the National Shooting Sports Foundation among landowners in a representative sample across the country, showed that one-third of the landowners would allow hunting on posted land if the hunter would merely exercise common courtesy and ask permission to hunt.

Game and Parks Commission District 5A Conservation Officer Supervisor Ted Blume says that complaints from landowners regarding people hunting on their land without permission and trespassing are "probably the most common complaints we receive."

He said there have also been complaints about people damaging fences and fields. "If the situation warrants it, we prosecute violators for any of these illegal activities," Blume said.

A Saunders County landowner who farms over 1,000 acres said he will allow hunters to use his land "if they come and ask me first."

Hunters should begin early in the year to line-up areas to hunt the next season, and should try to plan their trips with other hunters — in a type of car-pooling effort — to conserve on fuel. By planning a hunting trip in advance a lot of driving around and looking for a place to hunt can easily be avoided.

'Promise Them Anything' Film Open to the Public

In order to give students at Wayne State College and the general public a better understanding of the use of television by political campaigners, WSC will show the highly acclaimed film "Promise Them Anything" at 8 p.m. Monday, Sept. 15 in Ramsey Theatre on the college's campus.

The film is free and open to the public. The producer and narrator of the film, James Hall, has put together a 50-year retrospective of political campaign spots. Fifty years of U.S. history — the depression, the cold war, the bomb, civil rights, Vietnam, the peace movement, law and order, nuclear energy — in a 70-minute original collection of political and campaign television commercials and short films.

The highly acclaimed film includes campaign spots for: FDR, Eisenhower, JFK, LBJ, Nixon, Reagan, Goldwater, Humphrey and Carter in addition, there are "celebrity endorsements" from John Wayne, Burt Lancaster, Chuck Connors and Janet Leigh.

The fascinating, uniquely American practice of turning vital social issues and political causes into flashy 30 and 60 second commercial spots is the subject of this timely film and lecture program presented by James Hall. In this 50 year retrospective of political campaign commercials and short films, the impact of television advertising on the electoral process is revealed. The commercials presented in "Promise Them Anything" have been selected not only for their historical significance, but also for their sophisticated production and entertainment value.

James Hall recently spent a year traveling throughout the nation gathering material from film archives, libraries, advertising agencies, campaign headquarters and presidential libraries. He interviewed producers, campaign managers and the candidates themselves, collecting anecdotes and digging deeply into the compelling and little understood field of political

Story Criticizes Rep. Bereuter

Rex Story, Democratic candidate for Nebraska's First Congressional District, criticized his opponent for failing to actively serve the needs of his constituents in his first term as a representative.

"Bereuter has not introduced or sponsored any significant legislation at all, let alone authoring any bills that would be useful in solving any current problems of Nebraskans. He has constantly ignored the interests of his constituents instead of earnestly working to relieve some of their current hardships," Story charged.

Story said that as a Congressman he would be an outspoken representative of his constituents, particularly those in the agricultural sector. Story emphasized his opponent's lack of an agricultural background, saying "Bereuter is a Harvard grad with a degree in community development, has worked as a consultant in urban affairs — how could you expect a man with this type of background to be a diligent representative of the people of an agricultural state?"

Story stressed his farming background and experience in stating that he is "familiar with the plight of the farmer and will be working energetically for Nebraskans when he is elected." "The family farm must be protected so that young men and women are encouraged to remain on the farm and live in rural America. As long as we are faced with inadequate representation commercial film making.

Hall is a freelance writer, media critic and production staff member of a major Los Angeles advertising agency. In addition, he serves on the documentary selection committee of Filmex, the world's largest public film festival where "Promise Them Anything" premiered March, 1980.

This will be an impossible goal to attain. With appropriate tax incentives and revisions I feel we could assure those engaged in farming that their farms will remain in the family, instead of being eaten up by income, property and estate taxes.

As your representative, I would be a spokesman for the farmer, something the current representative has not been. I would expect to be considerably more active in sponsoring legislation to serve my constituents, rather than being a do-nothing representative," Story said.

Consumer Items Covered in Lecture

Bernie Grossman, chief investigator of the Consumer Protection Division, from the Nebraska Attorney General's Office in Lincoln, was guest speaker at Wayne State College Tuesday. The lecture was organized by Marie Hoyt, instructor of applied science. Hoyt's family economics course will be dealing throughout the fall semester with contemporary issues in consumer economics that effect the individual, family and larger social systems. She has invited a diversity of guest speakers to address various issues. Speakers will range from local family health experts to state senators. The public is invited to attend all lectures which will be held in Benthack Hall, Lecture Room 103, on the WSC campus. Lectures will begin promptly at 2 p.m. and will continue until 3:15. Hoyt requests that there are no late arrivals or early departures. Grossman provided Wayne State students with information on the involvement of his office and other government agencies in contemporary issues in consumer economics. His lecture, entitled "Issues in Consumer Protection by the Government Agencies," focused on issues that affect the individual, family and large social systems. He presented an overview of how Consumer Protection Division was created in the Attorney General's Office, its power, its purpose, and its main function as that of being a mediator between the complainant and the company involved. Grossman also discussed the various types of complaints, and the various state agencies that are involved in consumer protection and handling complaints. "The best consumer protection a consumer can have is to be well informed and cautious," Grossman said. He pointed out to his WSC audience that the best ways to stay informed are to keep up on the news, and to read press releases from the attorney general's office warning consumers of frauds, etc. "Being well informed on consumer protection is not enough — the consumer must be cautious as well," he added. He explained that the knowledge will not do a person any good if he or she does not apply it. Next week's guest will be Ann O'Donnell, director of family health services in Wayne. O'Donnell's lecture will be entitled: "Family Health Services and the Consumer."

State Heritage Center May Be Across From Capitol

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

The former Elks building near the downtown University of Nebraska campus may not be converted into a state heritage center.

The state purchased the property in 1979 for $950,000 and the intention at that time was to renovate the facility into a heritage center, rather than erect a new structure.

But Gov. Charles Thone has confirmed that he is giving up on abandoning that concept in favor of an earlier one that called for the new center to be across the street south of the Capitol.

The Legislature this year provided $1.1 million to remodel the Elks building, and Marvin Kivett, director of the Nebraska Historical Society, says it will seek another $700,000 for second-year financing, although the agency has not yet spent any of the money.

Thone acknowledges there has been some criticism of the decision to use the Elks building but says that didn't trigger the reconsideration of the project.

A couple of months ago, Thone stopped planning for spending $180,000 to pave the block south of the Capitol and directed a study be made of alternative uses of the site. Two options are being considered for the block — continued use as a parking facility or a new heritage center, according to Ken Fougerson, administrator of the state building division.

Fougerson said if a decision is made in favor of a new building, he does not think any money for it would be included in the budget Thone will submit to the next Legislature.

Kivett said he has not discussed the reconsideration with Thone. Kivett has estimated it would cost $6 million to $8 million to construct a new building.

Until a decision is reached, he added, he has no option except to proceed as directed by the governor and the state lawmakers through appropriations bills that called for acquiring and remodeling the Elks building.

At the same time, Kivett says the state would be better off with a new facility south of the Capitol. He says the Elks structure can be converted into a suitable museum but that the Elks site is deficient in parking, indoor space and the outside environment.

Kivett noted the Elks building is situated in a commercial area that is heavily traveled while the site south of the Capitol is quite some distance from commercial travel and is near the Kennard House and Ferguson House, historical sites his agency operates.

If the decision on the Elks building is reversed, Kivett said, there probably will be business interests interested in the building. He noted the state bought the facility for less than others bid for it.

The chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, said the state might think about keeping the former Elks structure and consolidating state offices renting space in it. Warner has always favored erection of a new building to house the heritage center.

Pay about average

The president of the Nebraska District Judges Association says salaries of Nebraska judges are near the national average and ranked 24th among the states in a 1979 survey.

District Judge Ronald Reagan of Sarpy County said if another survey were taken next January, Nebraska's ranking would be about the same. The judges will receive a raise next year.

Reagan said the attraction and retention of judges pose problems. "Even though we continue to have qualified people; you certainly don't want to lose experienced trial judges," he said.

Norman Krivosha, Nebraska's chief justice, said recently the difference between what most judges make and what they could earn in private practice is a serious problem that he will raise with the Legislature. He said the bench has lost a number of competent judges to private practice in recent months.

Starting next year, all 47 district judges will be paid $44,382 annually. The current base salary for district judges is $39,500, except for those in Lincoln and Omaha who receive $41,000.

Former District Judge Burke of Omaha, who resigned recently to join the Boys Town staff, said the work done by district judges is comparable to that done by federal district judges, who are paid $54,000.

Burke described being a judge as probably the toughest task in the legal profession.

Voters must approve

The state Justice Department says the voters must give their approval before a village can buy or build a public building.

Assistant Attorney General Mel Kammerlohr wrote the opinion, which was requested by Dakota County Attorney Maurice S. Redmond.

Redmond asked if a county and village could, under the Interlocal Cooperation Act, legally agree to let the village buy a storage facility from the county at a future date at a predetermined price.

He said the purchase price might be less than the property's fair market value because the sale price did not include a provision for the appreciation of the building's value.

According to Kammerlohr, the village and county could not have such an agreement without the approval of the village's voters.

He explained the Interlocal Cooperation Act restricts the powers that can be jointly carried out to those that a public agency can legally carry out alone.

If the village approved the purchase, Kammerlohr said, the county would be authorized to enter into the contract unless the contract price was "grossly inadequate, even after taking into consideration the contemplated advantage to the county of making the agreement."

Task force created

A task force set up to combat the increasing incidents of auto theft will probably review Nebraska's system of vehicle titling, according to Harry Peterson, director of the state Department of Motor Vehicles.

The group held an organizational meeting recently. Members of the group include representatives of various governmental agencies and of the insurance, automobile and auto salvage businesses.

Charles Kneip, associate director of the department, said the group is concerned about reports of counterfeit Nebraska titles used in the sale of stolen vehicles in other states.

Nepley blamed part of the problem on the different systems of record keeping in the various states and proposed that security features and title certificates should be standardized.

Col. Elmer Kohmetscher, State Patrol superintendent, said thieves probably make their biggest profits by selling the parts of vehicles separately. The patrol chief said risk of detection is slight when parts are sold because most of the parts do not have serial numbers or other identification.

WAY BACK WHEN

September 14, 1950: Henry Westerhouse, who resides on a farm east of Winslow, fell from a door in the hayloft of the barn Monday evening. He fell about eight feet, fracturing his right hip.

Approval was granted to the appointment by Mary Glen Houshield of R.H. Hansen to patrol with the new police car. Wayne County's 4-H judging team placed seventeenth among 48 such teams at the Nebraska State Fair last week. The team included Norval Waller and Larry Jordan, Carroll, and Bob Hansen, Wakelief. The mortgage on the Beiden Presbyterian Church was burned by Elder R.K. Draper at a service Sunday afternoon. Rev. F.B. Heisma was in charge.

September 15, 1955: Sen. Roman Hruska, Omaha, will be guest speaker Saturday night at Wayne city auditorium as part of a program to highlight the 20th anniversary of REA. The program and an afternoon open house are being sponsored by Wayne County Rural Public Power District.

Two Wayne youths were among the University of Nebraska students announced as pledges to fraternities and sororities this week. They were Jim Marsh, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Linda Beck, Kappa Delta. Bob Longe, Wayne, was one of six Northeast Nebraska 4-Hers, who received 5¢ per pound for their purple ribbon steers at the Nebraska State Fair Friday. Longe received a total of $49.36 for his shorthorn steer.

The building will be located at the northeast corner of the present athletic practice field. Wayne County delegates to the State Home Extension council meeting at McCook Sept. 20-22 were named this week. They are Mrs. James Robinson and Mrs. Walter Fenske Hoskins, and Mrs. Gus Longe, Wakefield. A Massachusetts youth who never had been near Nebraska arrived in Wayne last week because WSTC had just what he wanted in a college. So doesn't it seem just a bit ironic that this same government, which does not hesitate to trample over the rights of its own citizens, now allows Iranians, literally, to walk all over us? Some people maintain, of course, that our government must submit to the Iranian antics, because the First Amendment provides for freedom of speech and for the September 10, 1970: Wayne County non resident tuition mill levies have jumped from 10.98 to 17 mills this school term, an increase of slightly more than six mills. William L. Bill Kugler, a member of the WFD for 22 years, will be among Nebraska firemen to be honored at a buffet supper and ceremony at the Ak Sar Ben Rodeo in Omaha given by the Knights of Ak Sar Ben. Werner Janke's request for permission to build a trailer court just west of Oak Drive was voted down 4-2 for what seems to be the final time Tuesday night.

Whose Side Is This Government On?

Richard L. Leshar, President Chamber of Commerce of the United States

Back in school, we learned that the founding fathers added the Bill of Rights to the Constitution to protect the individual liberties of the American people. Just imagine then how stunned these men would be if they returned today and saw how federal bureaucrats abuse the Constitution. Our own government trying to harass Americans and violate their Constitutional rights, even as it protects the "rights" of Iranian demonstrators intent only on disrupting our country. It sounds like a bad dream, but it's actually happening.

Five years ago, a gutsy small businessman from Pocatello, Idaho, Bill Barlow turned away a federal inspector who tried to enter his plumbing and heating plant without a search warrant. Barlow felt the inspector who worked for OSHA, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, would have violated his rights as spelled out by the Fourth Amendment which reads: "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

Barlow battled the federal government all the way to the Supreme Court. Incidentally, we were proud to take part in that case on Barlow's side, and to see the Supreme Court finally uphold him in 1978 when it ruled that a warrant is required for OSHA inspections when the employer demands it. Through its decision, the Court made an important statement that all employers have Constitutional rights which must be protected.

Almost immediately, however, the Department of Labor went to work to undermine the Barlow decision. Now it has proposed a new rule which would allow OSHA inspectors to obtain warrants from local magistrates before even attempting to inspect workplaces, and without the opportunity for employers to have notice or response.

So doesn't it seem just a bit ironic that this same government, which does not hesitate to trample over the rights of its own citizens, now allows Iranians, literally, to walk all over us? Some people maintain, of course, that our government must submit to the Iranian antics, because the First Amendment provides for freedom of speech and for the right of people to peaceably assemble. I disagree. Although we must be as vigilant protecting the First Amendment as all others, that is not at issue here. What is at issue is whether a foreign power can pay aliens to demonstrate in and disrupt American cities while that same foreign power holds innocent Americans hostage at gunpoint.

The 191 Iranians who were arrested in Washington, D.C., July 27, following violent demonstrations on behalf of the Ayatollah Khomeini, were held in custody for only six days. Then, under pressure from Khomeini, and reportedly from our own Justice Department, all were released. Not one was deported. Adding insult to injury, they returned to the streets to demonstrate again. No one will ever convince me that all the people who demonstrated did so voluntarily, without any coercion, that all of them did so without pay and without being given transportation, food and shelter, or that all of them are here legally.

What has become of this great country? Isn't it time we restore our self dignity by treating our own citizens at least as well as we do the scavengers who roam our streets denigrating America? Isn't it time we restore the strength of America and our leadership around the world by making those in Washington understand that we must have a government of the people, by the people and for the people?

WE ALL WANT TO HEAR ABOUT IT!

WRITE A LETTER TO THE EDITOR

OUT OF OLD NEBRASKA

by the Nebraska State Historical Society

From Lincoln to Atchison Over the Atchison and Nebraska Railroad, 1872

The first railroad line to reach Lincoln was that of the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad from Plattsmouth via Ashland in July of 1870. Seven others arrived before 1900, including the Atchison and Nebraska (later the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy line) in 1872. The newly completed Atchison and Nebraska, as well as the countryside and towns through which it passed, were described by D.W. Scott in the July 2, 1872, (Lincoln) "Daily State Journal", on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society. Scott was one of a party of Lincolnites treated by railroad officials to an excursion over the new road.

"Mr. Editor: With your permission, we desire to furnish some stray jottings of a flying visit we made on the 27th, to Atchison, Kansas, and back, over the newly constructed A. & N. R.R. Seldom do so many circumstances conspire to make a trip agreeable, especially to those of our party innocent of railroad and aldermanic honors, of whom were the majority...."

"We left Lincoln at 2 o'clock p.m. in three hours we greeted Maj. Wyatt... a worthy successor of the late lamented superintendent, Maj. Firth, whose youthful energy and business character was perhaps unequalled in the United States (former superintendent of the Atchison and Nebraska, Frank R. Firth, died in June of 1872 in a railroad accident. The town of Firth, Lancaster County, was named for him)... In company with the superintendent and Mr. Hoffman, the genial correspondent of the Atchison "Champion", we were comfortably quartered in a special train, and lost no time in prosecuting our journey...."

"Starting is a new town, situated in Johnson County, with three or four stores, a finished hotel, and a good mill. Its advantages are its eligible site, and rich agricultural surroundings. Our party was here furnished with a very superior entertainment by John Tripp, Esq., with the same genial though somewhat soporific effect...."

"The distance to Tecumseh from this point is twelve miles. Its court house square is situated similar to our market space, very elevated, with the Temple of Justice built and enclosed. The residences are built on every side, and are in every way superior to its business houses...."

"Fifteen miles from Tecumseh we stop at Table Rock in Pawnee County. Here the road has located its machine shops and a new hotel and stores have immediately given new life to the place. Humboldt is another thrifty town eight miles below. It is well built and gives promise of becoming a place of importance...."

"Falls City is the county seat of Richardson and crowns the summit of a high undulating prairie, a half mile from the track.... It contains, I am told, 2,500 people. Richardson is undoubtedly one of the richest counties in the state, and Falls City the most important Nebraska town on the road.... Rulo in this county is situated on the Missouri River, and is connected by a switch with the A. & N. R.R. A bus was in waiting to convey passengers on our return, although there is an accommodation train which runs to the town distant from the Y depot two miles...."

"We have only time to speak at Atchison, Kansas, where we arrived at about ten a.m., the 28th. This city is evidently just entering upon a new era of prosperity. Its system of railroads is very extended, and most of the lines are now complete. To a casual observer it has outflanked St. Joseph, and will yet control and command the trade west of the Big Muddy. It has the air and movements of a commercial city. Its main street for several blocks is built solid of brick. Its stores are crowded with wares and fabrics and were hives of activity while we were there. We everywhere received the kindest attentions, and the expression of congratulations for our new region was earnest and frequent...."

"The A. & N. R.R. extends from Lincoln to Atchison, a distance of 150 miles, the two thirds of the same being in Nebraska. The road is built, and supplied with rolling stock, and but for the sad accident occasioning the death of Mr. Firth would have been completed to Lincoln by the 4th of July. It opens up one of the finest parts of the state, and will make every citizen feel prouder of his commonwealth for the seeing. Its importance to our capital city will be realized in the future, but can't be appreciated at the present.... D. W. Scott."

To the Editor:

I could not believe that The Wayne Herald would stoop to such poor taste, as that exhibited in the front page feature story, "Laurel Loses It's Only Doctor," especially since the story in the adjoining column was retracting the headline from the previous week's story, that Dr. Walter was retiring. Since these stories appeared, I've heard many comments about this prize example of irresponsible journalism, and many have shared my immediate reaction that when one considers the source, such articles do not deserve even negative attention. However, after more serious reflection, I have decided that if we truly give something, we no longer exercise control over that gift.

Many of the larger items that had been on "loan" to the Nguyen family were very carefully returned to the original lender before their sale. If other people had wanted specific items returned to them, it would have been much more courteous to have gone to the family and asked for those specific items back, rather than to complain about it to a newspaper reporter. It is interesting to note that the editor of the "Daily Nebraskan," who was a student learning about journalism, was fired for violation of journalistic ethics. Yet his transgression would be found much less offensive to many readers than this story, which contained several factual inaccuracies, some correct facts and a great many personal interpretations evidently based on gossip. Gossip and personal opinion presented as fact have absolutely no place in a well written news story.

The Wayne Herald should feel a keen responsibility to provide a good sample of journalistic practices for the journalism students at Wayne State College. The Wayne Herald also has a responsibility to provide its readers with accurate facts. Not only have basic ethical principles of newspapering been violated, but also basic human rights have been violated in this article. There are three basic rules of behavior, that need to rule all basic human relationships, and I am hopeful that after serious thought that you will realize that you have violated them in this news story.

They are: 1. Respect for our own person; 2. Respect for the property of others; 3. Respect for the person of others.

To the Editor:

If the merchants of Wayne really mean it when they say that they want winners every week for their Grand Give-A-Way on Thursday nights, they need to rethink their planning.

In this day of tremendous gasoline costs, and often both parents working away from home, it seems grossly unfair to limit the winners to only those persons who have had the time to be in Wayne on Thursday evenings. The sponsoring merchants often benefit by the added business brought to them during the week by people for 20-30 mile radius who are in town during the day for medical appointments, banking, farm implement repairs and many other places that are not open on Thursday evenings. You could not cope with the crowds if all business were transacted around the 8 p.m. Thursday drawing time.

It would seem much more fair if shoppers could drop their registration in a container in the various stores, then every Thursday, all gathered in a large rotating barrel, and winning name drawn, and then first thing after completion of one week's drawing, entries could be deposited for the next week's drawing. That way any week that a shopper visited Wayne's stores, he'd have a chance in that current drawing.

Video Tape Attracts Thousands

A half-hour video tape on the city of Wayne and Wayne State College was shown daily at the Nebraska State Fair in Lincoln last week.

The informative program was produced last fall by KETV, Channel 7, Omaha.

Adrie Nab, director of college relations at WSC said, "It was the only video tape shown at the exhibit hall for higher education in Nebraska and was received very well."

Many state fair visitors stopped in to see the exhibit and watched the program, he said. The half-hour video tape was shown three to four times per day, and introduced thousands of visitors to the city of Wayne and the college.

"During low attendance hours, the sound on the television set was turned up high, which in turn attracted passersby to enter the exhibit hall," Nab said.

The video recorder was provided by the WSC library and the television set by the University of Nebraska at Lincoln.

Nebraska Dairy Industry: Where Is It Going?

1979 was a comparatively good year for the Nebraska dairy industry. It showed the greatest returns to dairymen of any of the last six years. Nevertheless, it was not without its problems.

Costs went up much faster than the price of milk. Feed increased by 14 percent, wages by 12 percent and cow prices by 22 percent while milk prices increased only 8 percent compared to the previous year. It seemed that dairymen who needed to purchase more cows were hit not only by the high cost of replacements but also by the high interest required to finance the investment. And those who needed to make major equipment or facility purchases were similarly hit by their elevated costs as well as the interest problem.

Income from dairying increased by 12 percent in the past year, resulting in $150 million total gross return. This reflects both the 8 percent increase in the price of milk as well as the 5 percent increase in milk per cow, both of which help to compensate for the 3 percent reduction in cow numbers. Cow numbers now stand at 119,000 located on about 6,000 Nebraska farms. This compared to 12,000 farms reporting milk cows in 1971. Of these farms, today only 3,500 are classified as commercial dairies.

A major shift in Nebraska's dairy industry during 1979 was seen in cheese production. Over a number of recent years, Nebraska's production of cheese has steadily increased. This past year the production of cheese increased by 18 percent, but the most phenomenal change was in the production of Italian cheese. Production of Italian cheese was up 70 percent to a total output of 51 million pounds. Our total cheese production was 70 million pounds.

What changes can be looked for in the dairy industry during the decade of the '80s?

Undoubtedly, many more of our cows will be bred by artificial insemination. This will occur primarily by the increase in trained herd owners and herd managers doing their own inseminations. More attention will be given to selection of bulls for their transmitting ability for milk yield. In addition, attention will be given to their conception rate and the ease with which their calves are born, especially for servicing first calf heifers.

Computerized mating services are now beginning to have more impact and will undoubtedly have strong effects on future herd breeding. Greater use of artificial insemination and higher conception rates are expected through the use of hormonal control of the reproductive cycle. Ova transplant, now in its initial phase of usefulness, is expected to have wider application through the '80s for the maximization of the genetics of the highest ability cows.

We expect much greater use of electronic computers and the applications of computer techniques toward feed selection and ration formulation as well as mechanization of the feeding operation. This technology provides for automated sorting of cows into feeding groups and for the control of individual cows in a single group. Feeds they may eat are determined and they are limited to a certain amount each day, while recording exactly how much each actually ate a day — all automatically.

The milking operation will be further mechanized on many of our farms. The automatic take-offs which are now beginning to come into use on more of our larger herds are expected to save a highly significant amount of labor. The available estimates indicate a 50 percent reduction in the labor related to the milking operation.

Advances also will be made in disease detection and control. First, equipment is being initially marketed which will automatically flush out and clean in the milking machine so that when applied to the following cow she will not be subjected to mastitis micro-organisms from the previously milked animal. We also see two other potentially effective approaches toward controlling this disease. One is an intra-mammary device which appears to be beneficial in improving the resistance of a cow's udder to mastitis and another is an automated and routine method for early detection of infected udders by a milk analysis.

The area of herd management is also receiving considerable attention since the advent of computer programs for such purposes. One major use of the computer in herd management is for evaluating various management alternatives to determine their economic impact before making major changes or investments.

The University of Nebraska now has a program in its AGNET computer system which will estimate for dairymen the effect on his returns of adding cows to his herd, or on purchasing a new labor-saving piece of equipment such as automatic take-offs, an automated feeding system, or different manure handling equipment. This technique is helpful especially when a change in investment costs is going to affect labor requirement and milk yield or otherwise involve several shifts in income and costs at the same time.

Computers are beginning to be of more value for maintaining herd inventories and records of breeding, feeding, health and finances. They are of special value to managers of large herds in keeping their cow inventories and for culling them on special changes that may have to be made on a given day or week. As an example, he can call up the number of cows that are to be dried off, those cows that are to be bred or those that should be in heat. This will help him to select those animals that are no longer economical to maintain and which should be sold.

It is obvious that dairying in the '80s is going to become much more specialized and therefore will require more training, studying and attention as an enterprise than ever before. In addition, because of the cost and limited availability of labor, it will be necessary that dairymen invest heavily in automated labor-saving equipment. Many will need to expand their size of operation to justify these added costs. It would appear that the dairy industry in Nebraska does have a bright future for those who will devote the time and effort needed to become highly specialized and who can manage a large investment and very complex kind of operation.

Renovating your lawn
NOTE: I've been getting so many questions recently concerning renovating lawns that I've decided to print this article by John Furrer, Extension Specialist from the University of Nebraska.

Is your weedy lawn a source of embarrassment? Tempted to rip it up and start over? You don't have to go to that extreme, if at least half of your cool-season lawn is covered with desirable grass. A good facelifting job will almost do miracles.

Think of Aug. 15 to Sept. 15 as "nature's time" for seeding bluegrass. Whether renovating or starting from scratch, you'll find that seeds planted in fall and kept moist will sprout sooner than seeds planted in spring. The grass also will grow faster and compete more vigorously with weeds.

But, whatever you do, don't scatter seed on the ground, water and hope for a nice weed-free lawn that will be the envy of your neighbors.

No lawn can survive a Jackdawsical approach. Besides, the price of seed is too high to waste in that manner.

Prepare your existing lawn for overseeding by mowing to a height of 1 1/2 inches. That may hurt the grass, but the setback will be only temporary. Use a grass catcher on the mower or sweep off the clippings, then power rake, setting the machine low enough to cut lightly into the soil. Make several passes over the lawn to create furrows at right angles to each other.

Remove the thatch and other debris from the lawn and apply a nonburning fertilizer at the rate of one pound actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet. The lawn is ready for seeding. Use a lawn seeder, if possible, and apply half of the seed in one direction and the rest at a right angle to the first. Water lightly and keep the surface moist until the grass breaks through.

You may notice the grass coming up in the small trenches created by the power rake. That just means you've done a good job.

The earlier you overseed, the better your chances of getting through the winter without turf damage. Waiting also invites henbit and chickweed invasions.

State 4-H's Studying Up For Range Judging Contest

It may be that "the grass is greener on the other side of the fence," as the old adage goes, but it has been more than just a saying to scores of Nebraska youth who have been preparing this summer for range judging competition.

While they've helped to tend cattle or put up hay on pasture or rangeland, they've had an opportunity to "bone up" for "exams" this fall — not in the classroom but rather on a grassy knoll or wet meadow.

Four H and FFA members will put their practice into play during the annual series of range judging contests. Range judging is a growing activity, according to Patrick Reece, extension range management specialist at the University of Nebraska Panhandle Station, Scottsbluff. High premium prices being put on land and increasing concern for natural resource conservation and environmental protection have stimulated recognition of the values of range judging.

Range conservation and management is included in 4-H projects and in the curriculum of vocational agriculture departments. Range plant identification, range sites, range condition and range problems are all part of the contest.

The Nebraska Section of the Society for Range Management sponsors the seven area contests, in cooperation with a number of other organizations and agencies which help conduct the contests and/or provide awards.

These include the Cooperative Extension Service, Soil Conservation Service, Nebraska Association of Natural Resource Districts, State Department of Education, the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, and the Nebraska

Vocational Agriculture Association. Each area contest has a planning committee including the host county extension agent, a vocational agriculture teacher, NRD representative and SCS representative.

Both urban and rural residents have participated in past contests, and there are adult divisions for men, women and professionals. The first range judging contest in Nebraska was held in 1954 at Ainsworth. Contests have been held every year since then and are now conducted in seven area locations across the state followed by a state contest in one location.

"Range contests provide a good place for people interested in one of Nebraska's most valuable resources, grassland, getting together to talk shop," Reece said.

The complete schedule of range judging contests: Sept. 16 — Valentine, Hayes Center and Ord; Sept. 17 — Gering; Sept. 18 — Norfolk and Weeping Water. The State Range Judging Contest will be held at Atkinson on Oct. 4.

Studded Snow Tire Rules Now in Effect

Col. Elmer Kohmetscher, commander of the Nebraska State Patrol, reminds Nebraskans that it was no longer legal to buy or sell studded snow tires unless the vendor and the purchaser had valid permits to do so.

"According to the language of LB419, passed by the 1980 Legislature," Col. Kohmetscher said, "dealers must obtain a permit to sell studded snow tires from the Nebraska Department of Roads, and buyers must do the same thing."

The patrol commander also pointed out that the only ones allowed to have tires with studs are law enforcement vehicles, fire and other emergency vehicles, vehicles driven by emergency medical personnel when necessary to their duties, rural mail carriers on duty and vehicles which display license plates carrying the wheelchair symbol of the handicapped.

Kohmetscher said that according to the law, the use of studded snow tires by anyone other than the emergency vehicles and the other exceptions will be illegal after April 16, 1982.

"The law states that it is illegal to buy or sell studded snow tires to anyone after Aug. 31 unless both the buyer and the seller have a valid permit," he said.

Story Proposes Grain Cartel

Rex Story, Democratic Congressional candidate from Nebraska's 1st District, has proposed the organization of an international grain cartel, much like that cartel involving the major oil exporting nations.

Hoping to eventually recruit the major grain producing nations of the world into this cartel, Story feels that this organization could work as a deterrent to the threat of rising oil prices.

Recently, Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D. Neb., reached an agreement to promote establishment of a joint wheat export coordinating commission with members of Canada's parliament.

Story's proposal would expand a commission of this type into a worldwide organization that would work to control the price of grain sold to grain importing nations just as OPEC controls world oil prices.

Until alternative energy sources can be implemented to lessen our dependence on foreign oil, Story feels a grain cartel would insure the United States of stable prices without threats of sharp and unexpected fluctuations. The threat of higher food prices on the world market would serve as a deterrent and a warning from the U.S. to all producing countries that the U.S. will not sit idle while OPEC price increases continue to place an energy burden on our nation.

Not only would the cartel serve as a deterrent, but the possibilities of higher grain prices for farmers and a closer working relationship between food producing countries would greatly benefit the farmers in Nebraska.

Although President Carter has been hesitant to consider the idea of using food prices as a weapon to offset the costly oil we import, Story feels that if we are to stay in the ballpark we must learn to play the same game our oil supplying counterparts have been participating in for years.

Story's grain cartel proposal is consistent with other energy solutions that have been the basis of the Story campaign. "The barrel of oil for a bushel of grain theory could be and should be interceded," Story commented.

Foods Rule Tightened

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has extended to Sept. 25 the deadline for commenting on proposed regulations that would tighten controls on the processing or repackaging of donated foods for programs such as the National School Lunch Program.

Register. Comments on the proposal should be sent by Sept. 25 to Forrest Moore, acting director, Food Distribution, FNS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Under the proposal, certain commercial foods that meet USDA standards can be substituted for donated foods during processing. In the past, some processors substituted inferior products for the commodities given to schools by USDA. The proposed rules would require processors to document that any foods they substitute are of the same quality as the donated foods that go into processed products.

The proposed regulations also require federal inspection of certain products, limit inventories of USDA foods that processors can keep on hand and require closer federal monitoring of each state's
