ONE HUNDRED FIFTH YEAR NUMBER THREE

Food Stamp Use Trend Upward

While local officials are cautiously optimistic that the economy has bottomed out, those who issue the food stamp program for Wayne County view the situation with a different outlook.

DEPENDING UPON which agency one believes, leading government indicators show the economy slowly is strengthening. And locally, the net taxable retail sales picture also appears to have bottomed out.

But Thelma Moeller, County Welfare Department director, says the food stamp business is getting busier every month. She wishes she and her staff could see a little relief.

According to Mrs. Moeller, the average number of households on food stamps has increased substantially this year compared to last. And although there was an actual decrease from July to August of this year, the figures for September are heading to an all-time record. As of Tuesday, 63 households were receiving or were scheduled to receive food stamps this month.

HER FIGURES indicate that in August, there were 57 households receiving food stamps compared to 38 for the same month in 1979. This is substantiated by the total number of persons receiving food stamps — 158 this August compared to just 89 a year ago.

To support her contention that food stamp use has increased as the economy has worsened, Mrs. Moeller provided the following figures for 1979 and 1980.

There were 57 households in January of 1980 receiving food stamps compared to 35 for the same month last year; 63 in February of 1980 compared to 37 for the same month last year; 62 in March of 1980 compared with 37 in March of 1979; 62 in April of 1980 compared to 37 in April of 1979; 64 in May of 1980 compared with 37 in May of 1979; 62 in June of this year compared to 40 in June of last year; 63 in July of this year compared to 38 a year ago; 57 in August of this year compared to 38 year ago.

Total number of people receiving food stamps was 138 in January of 1980 compared to 90 in January of 1979; 158 in February, 1979, compared to 92 last February; 152 in March of this year compared to 91 last year; 161 in April of this year compared to 90 last year; 163 in May of this year compared to 90 last year; 154 in June of this year compared to 96 last year; 162 in July of this year compared to 95 a year ago; and 158 in August compared to 89 a year ago.

"Many of these are on unemployment insurance and once this runs out the food stamp dollars will go up."

Mrs. Moeller said the average amount of total coupons issued per month last year was $2,722. So far this year, the average has been $5,016 per month.

The crunch was first felt about mid-winter of 1979 when local industries and businesses began to lay off employees, the welfare director said. Some larger businesses went to half-time help, thus reducing employees' incomes below the maximum food stamp limitations. Since then, figures indicate there has been a gradual increase in all aspects of food stamps.

BACKING UP Moeller's words are the number of food stamp applications already in for September. There are 10 in addition to those already being served.

The Welfare Department also is seeing more working families applying for food stamps. Because of the economy, families are finding they do not have enough money to adequately feed themselves. However, Mrs. Moeller said the vast majority of those on food stamps are either unemployed or elderly persons.

Food stamps may see another surge, she explained, when unemployment insurance runs out. Many of the food stamp users currently are on jobless benefits from when they were laid off last winter. When this source of income is gone, then food stamp dollars likely will increase.

THERE ALSO has been a trend toward more single households on food stamps.

Whereas in past years elderly people have tended not to use food stamps because of pride, the situation has worsened to the point that even that tradition is being overlooked, Mrs. Moeller explained.

"There has been and will be a constant increase in all programs involving the Welfare Department," Mrs. Moeller said, "until the government begins to crack down on the requirements."

THE LAYOFFS also are affecting the Aid to Dependent Children program, although the increase has not been too substantial. The difference is due mainly to layoffs of working mothers.

The welfare director said two federally mandated changes which will become effective Oct. 1 should reduce the number of food stamp users.

The first is that to be eligible for food stamps, a person must be actively employed for a minimum of 20 hours a week. Currently, a person only has to register for work to be eligible for stamps.

THE NEW RULE does not apply to a spouse or head of household with one or more dependents. So, Mrs. Moeller explained, the change should eliminate some college students who are involved in the program.

The other change is that the maximum resource limit will be decreased from $1,750 to $1,500. Currently, if anyone has a checking account, or bank balance or any type of financial accumulation of $1,750 or more, then they are ineligible. After Oct. 1, that limit will be $1,500.

The second new rule will make it more difficult for persons with any type of cash accumulation to be eligible for stamps, Mrs. Moeller explained. However, a $3,000 limit is applied when a member of the household is 40 years or older and there is at least two persons living in the home.

MRS. MOELLER and her assistant, Linda Baddorf, have been handling the increase in work load. There is little they can do since the welfare rules and regulations are handed down by the state and federal authorities.

In Nebraska, the eligibility rules for food stamps are the same everywhere and include the following basic requirements:

Applications are made as a household. It may be one person who lives alone, a family or a group of unrelated persons who live together and share a common food supply.

Only household members who are U.S. citizens or legally permanent may qualify.

In food stamps, net income is determined by a series of deductions. To qualify for stamps, the net income must meet certain levels. The deductions include:

A 20 percent earned income deduction, a $75 standard deduction, single deductions of $90 for care and/or high housing or utility costs.

Sherry Named Director

The board of directors of Haven House Family Services Center announce the appointment of Halleluiah Sherry as coordinator of services effective immediately.

MRS. SHERRY is a graduate of Wayne State College and has done graduate work at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln. She replaces Jan Stalling who was coordinator from the inception of Haven House.

In addition to teaching in the Wayne-Carroll School District, Mrs. Sherry has taught in the GED (general education degree) program for the Corrections Division of Southeast Community College. This experience included teaching prisoners at the central prison and the medium security prison, both in Lincoln.

She also was a teaching houseparent counselor for the Youth Service System of Lincoln.

HAVEN HOUSE, a non-profit organization, offers emergency shelter for an abused spouse or child as well as support, transportation and counseling during a time of crisis. Victims of domestic violence may call the 24-hour hotline number at 1-800-672-8923, or Haven House from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 375-4633.

Mrs. Sherry is available for church, civic, fraternal, social or school programs to educate the public regarding the Haven House project. Volunteers are needed in this program. For more information, call Haven House, 375-4633, or write Haven House, Box 44, Wayne, Neb., 68787.

The Day Was For The Kids

WAYNE'S BAND Day Saturday drew 14 bands, hundreds of spectators and at least one concessionaire and his assistant to the downtown area. The unidentified balloon and gadget vendor (right) walked the streets selling his wares while well-rehearsed bands marched in precision for judges. Placing first in Class I was Sergeant Bluff-Luton, Iowa, with second going to Emerson-Hubbard. In Class II, Rolfe, Iowa, took top honors and Allen Consolidated High School (below) was judged the second best. Although Wayne State College, Wayne-Carroll High School and Wayne seventh and eighth grade bands performed, they were not judged since they were the host bands.

Stop Sign Removal Program Hasn't Caused Any Accidents

In this case, no news appears to be good news.

A check Tuesday by The Wayne Herald of intersections that were targets of a citywide stop sign removal campaign indicates there haven't been any accidents at any of them.

DESPITE WHAT neighbors, passersby, disinterested parties and taxpayers believe, removal of some 37 stop signs has not resulted in any traffic accidents reported to the Wayne Police Department.

Police Chief Vern Fairchild said he has been watching the situation closely since early in June when the signs were removed. Unless some accidents have not been reported to his office, the removal campaign has been successful.

Fairchild first recommended to the City Council that 43 signs be removed and six stop signs be installed for a net loss of 37 signs. After subsequent consideration and discussion, the Council voted to remove all those recommended.

BY REMOVING the signs, the Police Department established through streets which conform with present traffic patterns around schools, medical facilities and shopping areas. In addition, the chief's recommendation stated, "we will have eliminated time and money consuming problems to both the city and the motoring public."

Before the sign removal effort began, there were 53 stop signs located in the city of Wayne. That included 40 signs erected by the state on Main Street and on Seventh Street. None of these was removed.

Removal of the signs has not been all honey and milk, however. There have been some complaints, and Council members succumbed to criticism by reinstalling signs at several intersections, including Eleventh and Pearl Streets, Ninth and Logan Streets, Eighth and Logan Streets and 11th and Lincoln Streets.

OVERALL THIS year, there have been 36 traffic accidents reported. None was reported at any of the intersections before the signs were removed and none was reported after removal of the signs, Fairchild noted.

Last year there were 40 accidents reported up until this date in September. And most of the accidents last and this year have been on Main Street which is guarded at every intersection by stop signs and/or traffic signals.

In recommending the signs be removed,

Fairchild said it was estimated at a Uniform Traffic Control conference in Norfolk last spring that it costs the motoring public 30 cents each time a motorist is required to stop for a stop sign. The loss comes in wasted gasoline, wear and tear on the vehicle and lost time.

CRITICS OF THE sign removal program countered that serious injury or even death is not a justifiable sacrifice for saving money.

A review of traffic accident records in the city reveals that the placement of stop signs does not necessarily prevent accidents. In fact, the report indicated, a major portion of the accidents occur on intersections that are posted with stop signs.

In his recommendation to the Council last spring, Fairchild noted that national standards now call for stop signs to be installed at a distance of seven feet from the ground to the bottom of the sign.

NONE OF THE signs (as of June) in the city met this standard with the exception of several around the college that were raised last spring. It will cost the city $9.40 each when buying the posts to meet the new standard. The figure does not include labor costs to raise each sign.

Prior to going to Africa, Cheney pastored at churches in Kansas and Nebraska. In 1971 he and his family left their Nebraska home for their first term of service in Swaziland. They served at the Joy Mission in Swaziland for several years before being transferred to the larger Ebenezer Mission, where Cheney was in charge of the total program involving oversight of organized churches, village evangelism, educational and medical work. Cheney will tell about his work in South Africa and of the people and growth of the church. Curious will be on display.

Community Fair Emphasizing Health Awareness

THE Wayne and Dixon County Home Extension Clubs are sponsoring a Community Health Fair this Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Wayne city auditorium.

Two major aspects of the fair will be a program of speakers scheduled throughout the day and from 25 to 30 health-related exhibits.

DIABETES screening will be offered free of charge at the auditorium from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. and from 1 to 3 p.m. The diabetes test involves pricking the finger for a blood sample to detect high blood sugar readings. Persons with positive results will be referred to a physician for further testing.

Mrs. Bernice Loetscher, chairman of the local Diabetes chapter, said only persons who have eaten a big meal 1 1/2 to 2 hours before coming to the fair will be tested.

Mrs. Loetscher said a big breakfast should include three or four servings from the bread group, such as three or four pancakes or waffles with syrup, or cereal with sugar, with at least two slices of toast and jelly (or large sweet roll or two or more doughnuts). Also include sweetened fruit juice or fresh or canned fruit, milk or coffee or tea with sugar. A big lunch should include potato, bread, a sweet dessert and any other food desirable.

"EARLY detection, followed by prompt medical advice and proper care improves the diabetic's chances to lead a productive life," said Mrs. Loetscher. She pointed out that diabetes runs in the family and urged that relatives of diabetics be tested. Mrs. Loetscher stressed age and weight as risk factors and said she would "especially encourage anyone either overweight or over 40 to be tested, as well as women who have had babies weighing over nine pounds at birth."

She described the most common symptoms of diabetes as excessive thirst, frequent urination, constant hunger, loss of weight, itching, tiring easily, changes in vision, and slow healing of cuts and scratches.

VISION, hearing and blood pressure health screenings also will be offered the day of the fair.

Donna Schumacher, president of the Wayne Community Hospital Auxiliary, said Vials of Life will be available free of charge at the Hospital Auxiliary Booth for anyone wishing to take part in the program. The plastic vials, after the necessary information is placed inside, will provide ambulance personnel, nurses or doctors with vital medical information in the event of an emergency.

INFORMATION contained in the vials is to include the person's doctor, his address, hospital preference, next of kin, allergies, medicines presently being taken, medical history, blood type, etc. The vial will be located inside each person's refrigerator so it can be easily located.

To alert personnel of the Vial of Life, each resident will have a sticker on the front door of his residence and on the refrigerator door for use by medical authorities.

Sponsoring the program are the auxiliary,

Wayne County Home Extension Clubs and the American Red Cross. Vials will be available at both the First National and State National Banks in Wayne after Friday.

ALSO sponsoring a booth at the Health Fair will be the American Cancer Society. Mrs. Donna Hansen, county president, said emphasis will be on the sites of the greatest number of cancer cases in the State of Nebraska.

Mrs. Hansen said estimated cases in 1980 include colon-rectum, 900 cases, lung, 700, and breast, 750. Of those developing these cancers, estimated deaths are colon-rectum, 450, lung, 650, and breast, 275.

MRS. Hansen said the effects of smoking on lung tissue will be graphically illustrated. A Betsi breast model also will be available for persons to try and feel for a lump in the breast.

Also available at the booth will be information on the "I Can Cope" program slated to begin Sept. 26 at Providence Medical Center in Wayne. "I Can Cope" is a patient education course for persons with cancer and their family members. The course provides the opportunity to study and share problems and concerns encountered in living with cancer.

SHARING the booth with the American Cancer Society will be the local Ostomy Association, headed by Virginia Holtgrew of Winside. Mrs. Holtgrew said information will be available for persons who have had ostomy surgery.

The Ostomy Association is sponsored by the American Cancer Society and is designed to help persons who have undergone an ostomy operation.

OTHER booths will include dentistry, dialysis, exercising and independent living for the handicapped. The Wayne Rescue Unit and Jaws of Life also will be displayed.

Students from Wayne State College will give exercise demonstrations at noon, under the direction of Ralph Barclay.

SPEAKERS will be Holly Alexander of the Displaced Homemaker Program; Tywanne Paul of the Food and Drug Administration; Sister Barbara Markey, a family counselor; Lori Gutz, an alcoholism counselor; Neal Boeshart, an alcoholism counselor; and Bob Jonas and Bill Straight from Shriners in Sioux City.

Topics will be "Alcohol, Drugs or Alternatives," 10 a.m.; "Women in Transition," 10:30 a.m.; "Total Care — Help for Crippled Children," 11:35 a.m.; "Fraudulent Health Practice," 12:15 p.m.; "Scoliosis Screening Program," 12:50 p.m.; "Dealing With Family Stress," 1:15 p.m.; "X-Ray, Get the Picture on Protection," 2:30 p.m.; "Burns and Orthopedic Research and Training," 3:10 p.m.; and "Alanon: The Recovery Program," 4 p.m.

PAT MAXWELL (22) streaks down the sideline for Wayne State's first touchdown on a 51-yard punt return. The Wildcats never trailed as they defeated Chadron State 14-9, Saturday. Wayne blockers are Jay Sandy (21) and Paul Sobansky (53).

Wildcats Open Season With Win Over Chadron

With the new decade comes new hope for the Wayne State College football team. The Wildcats, playing the role of the hero before a good sized home crowd on Band Day, opened the 80's on an optimistic note with a 14-9 win over Chadron State, Saturday.

The victory brought the Cats' lifetime record against their oldest rival to 25-28-1. The Cats were particularly pleased with the win as it was their first victory over their western rivals in the past six meetings.

Wayne State continued its reputation as a hard-nosed defensive team by holding Chadron to 168 total yards. Offensively, the Wildcats rushed for 197 yards and passed for 68.

The first quarter of the game was marked by a defensive battle between the two teams. Neither team could put together a drive until the Wildcats moved the ball to the Eagles' six-yard line where they fumbled it away on a first down play.

The Eagles took over possession of the ball but had no luck moving the ball up-field and were forced to punt. Pat Maxwell grabbed the punt on the bounce and dashed 52 yards around the right end for the first touchdown. Freshman Gary Cook of John Nebraska, South Africa kicked the PAT.

Wayne State didn't have much success moving the ball the air. Starting quarterback Rick Lade completed four passes in 10 attempts and threw one interception. Backup quarterbacks Kelly Neustrom and Mike Warren were also responsible for one interception apiece.

One of the interceptions led to Chadron's only score in the first half. With two seconds on the clock, place kicker Ray Hoffman booted a 36-yard field goal, reducing WSC's advantage to 7-3.

Defenses dominated again in the third quarter and neither team was able to score. When the Cats put together their first drive of the second half a penalty and interception put an end to it. On another occasion, Wayne State drove to Chadron's 10-yard line but failed to convert a fourth down play.

The Cats had another opportunity to score but officials ruled that a field goal attempt by Cook hooked wide to the left in the cross wind. Chadron took over the ball but two plays later, WSC's defense forced a fumble and recovered at the Eagle 26. Lade soon hit Ed Blackburn on a 30 yard pass for a TD and Cook's PAT made the score 14-3 early in the fourth quarter.

The Eagles, fighting to get back in the game, wasted little time before scoring their only touchdown. A six yard run by J.D. Hill capped an 88-yard scoring drive. Trailing by five points, quarterback Scott Wickard attempted a two-point conversion but was caught behind the line.

Chadron elected not to try an on-side kick with nearly four minutes left in the game and the move paid off. A WSC fumble gave the Eagles the ball in Wayne territory and suddenly Wayne's lead was in jeopardy. A personal foul penalty moved the ball deeper into Wildcat territory and moved fans onto the edge of their seats.

However, Chadron repaid the favor when Hill was called for a personal foul a few plays later as he tried to trip a Wayne player after the play was dead. The Eagles failed to convert on fourth down and WSC took over.

With 1:50 remaining, the Cats couldn't run out the clock but relied on a long punt by Maxwell to put the visitors back in their own territory. Chadron failed to pick up a first-and-10 in four consecutive pass attempts as time ran out.

Leading rusher for Wayne was Anthony Marinella with 74 yards. Lade ran for 53 yards and Clark Benne added 49 yards. Defensively, Steve Dennis, Steve Hawkins, Tony Scudder, Kirk Schroeder, Mark Alderman, Ron Berrle and Steve Atkaman were the leading tacklers.

Wayne State is scheduled to travel to Fremont Saturday to face the Midland Warriors. Wayne State's migration is planned with game time set at 7:30 p.m. Last season, Midland broke a four season losing streak against the Wildcats by taking a 24-9 win.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

A TOUGH SCHEDULE would be terming it mildly, taking a look at Wayne High's football schedule this season.

The Blue Devils opened with Class A's South Sioux City, which is proving itself as a power. Then came Class B's fourth ranked Blair.

Now the Devils will face Lakeview, Wisner, Pilger, Albion, West Point, CC, Emerson, Hubbard, Hartington, CC and Madison.

Lakeview is ranked at the top of the Norfolk Daily News' top 10 and favored to win the West Husker Conference. Wisner slid in to Class C's top 10 rankings. Albion is second rated in the Daily News' top 10 and West Point, CC and Hartington, CC received honorable mention tabs in the Norfolk ratings. Emerson and Madison are also capable of playing good football.

A CHARTERED BUS will be making the trip to Albion for the Wayne Albion football game if interest is great enough. The Wayne Carroll athletic boosters are planning to charter a bus to the Oct. 3 game.

Anyone who is interested in riding down to the game should call either Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Nissen or Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Sperry. The deadline to sign up is Wednesday, Sept. 24.

NORTHEAST TECH in Norfolk will rely on area girls to spark this year's volleyball team. Second year student Peg Pinkelman, a Wayne High graduate, will return to the squad as one of the veteran standouts. She is the only sophomore on the team.

Joining her this season will be freshmen Marci Thomas of Hoskins and Joanie Bowers of Winside. Thomas and Bowers graduated from Winside High School last year.

WHILE ATHLETICS at some high schools are declining, some other schools are picking up a new sport this year. The sport of girls' cross country has been added to the athletic programs at 49 schools this fall according to Nebraska School Activities Association information.

Because interest for the sport is high, the NSAA announced plans for a state meet which will have team and individual competition in three classes (A, B, C). The girls will compete in Kearney on Oct. 24, the same site and date for the boys meet. The boys will run 5,000 meters, the girls 4,000.

Each state meet will have trophies for the first and second place teams in each class and medals for the top 10 leading individuals. Schools which are competing in girls' cross country may automatically send their teams to state. No districts are planned. If interest increases, district competition will be considered at a later date.

The cross country meet becomes the eighth girls' state championship sponsored by the NSAA. Others are track (1971), volleyball (1972), swimming (1973), gym nastics (1974), tennis (1974), golf (1974), basketball (1976).

Some of the closer schools which will compete in girls' cross country are Albion, Lakeview, Scotus, South Sioux, O'Neill, David City, Aquinas, North Bend and Crofton.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL standings have been released by the NSAA. Two area teams figure high in the standings at this time as do opponents of several area teams.

In Class C's district 2 standings, Bancroft ranks first, Winside second, Coleridge third and Wakefield fourth. In district 3, Wausa is fourth. South Sioux City is second behind Grand Island in the Class A, district 5 standings. Blair is fourth in the Class B, district 3 group and Lakeview and Albion are third and fourth respectively in district 4.

In Class C, Wisner ranks first in the district 3 standings and Ponca is fourth. Randolph is fourth in the district 4 standings.

BECAUSE high school sports and activities are of great importance across the country, the week of Sept. 28 to Oct. 4 has been declared National High School Activities Week.

AND IF YOU'RE PLANNING to attend the football game between Wakefield and Wausa Friday night, forget it. Make a change on your calendar to attend the game tonight (Thursday).

Due to conflicting schedules of the officiating crew, the game has been rescheduled at 7:30 tonight. The game will be played at the Wakefield football field.

NAIA'S STATISTICS for football have been released and Kearney State end John Herz was named defensive player of the week. He joins offensive player of the week Kenny Phillips of Mars Hill College NC on this week's selection.

Herz, a 6'2", 195 pound junior from Lawrence, NE, was credited with eight solo tackles, two assists and a quarterback sack in Kearney's 30-6 win over Mankato State. He also intercepted two passes to stop Mankato drives.

Trojans Surprise Winside Field, Bring Home Second Place Trophy

Playing some of its best volleyball of the short season, Wakefield fell just short in its bid to win the Winside Tournament, Tuesday night. The Trojans had to be content with the second place trophy, losing to Wynot in the finals.

"The team is playing better than I expected. We can't be disappointed. We're happy with our effort. The girls never laid down," Wakefield coach Ernie Kovar said.

The Trojans, now 3-2, were caught in their tracks in the first game of the championship match. Wynot's Deb Stratman opened the game with four consecutive ace serves and scored the first 10 points to put Wakefield in a deep hole. Wynot held on to win the first game 15-1. Wakefield made some changes and came back to win the second game 15-11 and send the match into a third and decisive game. The Trojans were led in serving by junior Kris Mitchell who scored the final four points and Deb Foote and Teri Schwarten.

The third game turned into a battle as the Trojans made an attempt to down Wynot. Wynot led for the entire game but Wakefield rallied to within three points. Wynot scored the final two points for a 15-10 win.

Shelley Paul and Rita Wilson were the leading players for the locals.

Wakefield vs. Wausa

The Trojans defeated Wausa 15-4, 17-15 to advance to the tournament finals. Joan Miller had eight points to lead the winners and Jenni Tullberg and Shelley Paul added four points each.

Wakefield vs. Laurel

Wakefield handed Laurel a 15-8, 11-15, 15-6 loss in this opening round match. The winners were led by Miller, Paul, Wilson and Foote. For Laurel, Cyndi Jonas, Kay Anderson and Anne Schulz led the scoring.

Wausa vs. Hartington

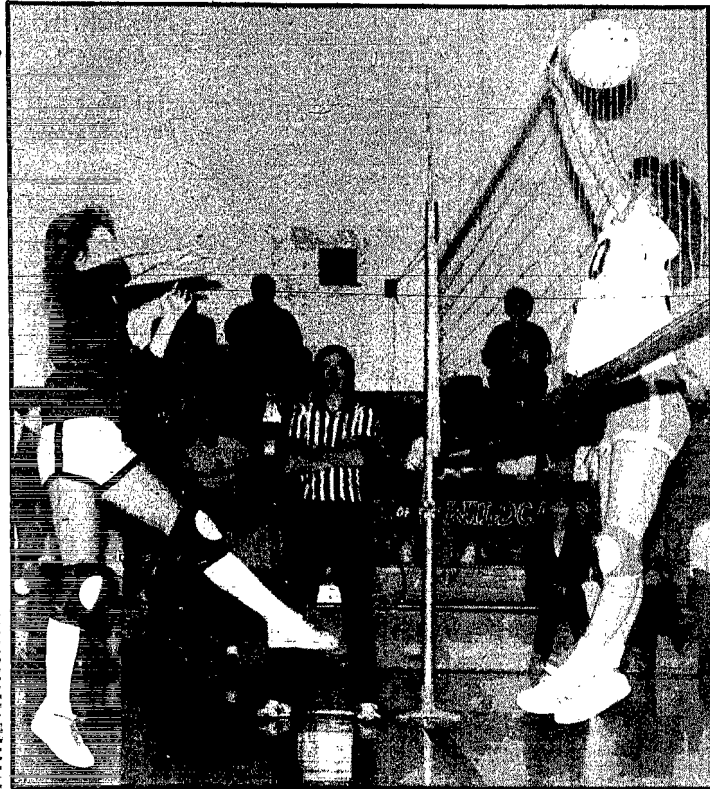

Wausa won this match 15-11, 10-15, 15-12 to capture third place in the tourney.

Winside vs. Hartington

Hartington advanced through the first round of the tourney by ousting the hosts 15-10, 12-15, 15-12. Leading players for Winside were Robyn Winch, Joni Jaeger, Coleene Miller, Lori Langenberg and Tammy Thomas.

Other results

In other first round action, Wynot defeated Coleridge 15-11, 15-10 and Wausa defeated Osmond 15-9, 15-13. Wynot defeated Hartington 15-7, 10-15, 15-9 in the semifinals.

SHELLEY PAUL of Wakefield gets high above the floor to spike the ball for a point against Wynot. The Trojans lost this match but placed second in the Winside Tournament, Tuesday.

The Blue Devils defeated Norfolk CC 30-0 in Norfolk. Wayne scored two touchdowns in the second quarter, one in the third and one in the fourth.

"We played hard with lots of intensity. Desire showed the way with hard hitting and hard running," Wayne eighth grade coach Al Hansen said.

Kevin Koenig, who rushed for 118 yards on 10 carries, scored touchdowns on runs of one yard and 70 yards. Steve Overin scored on an 11-yard run and Chris Wieseler ran the ball in from eight yards out for the other TD.

Brad Moore ran in a couple of two-point conversions and Peter Warne added the other on a pass reception from Overin.

Other rushing leaders in addition to Koenig were Moore with seven carries for 46 yards, Overin with seven carries for 40 yards and Wieseler with six carries for 31 yards. Darrin Barber carried the ball twice for 11 yards. Jeff Sherer added eight yards on three carries and Terry Schulz made six yards on two carries.

In the passing department, Overin completed two of four passes for 13 yards. Wieseler caught one for 30 yards and Warne had one reception for three yards.

Defensively, Koenig had five tackles and one assist. Wieseler had two tackles and two assists. Rob Allen had two tackles and two assists. Overin had three tackles and Moore had three tackles.

Next action for the Wayne eighth grade is scheduled at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 30. The Blue Devils will host Hartington CC at that time.

Lady Cats Challenge Oklahoma State in K-State Tourney

The Lady Wildcat volleyball team traveled to Kansas State last weekend to participate in the fourth annual K State Invitational Volleyball Tournament.

This was the first preseason tournament for the Lady Wildcats and considering that fact and the competition, the Lady Cats did quite well.

The tournament was set up such that on Friday, all teams played in a bracket with four other teams. Each team within that bracket played two games with each of the other teams. Out of the win-loss record in this play, teams were placed in brackets to single elimination competition.

In early pool play, the Lady Cats had matches with Wichita State; Missouri Western; Northern Iowa, and the University of Missouri/Columbia. In this competition the Lady Wildcats had a 2-6 record.

In tournament play, the Lady

Cats were matched against a strong and tall Oklahoma State team. The Lady Cats surprised the Cowgirls 15-10 in the first game. In the next game the two teams played the first six points back and forth until the Cowgirls broke the game open and won 15-7. In the third game the Lady Cats were feeling the pressure and lost 3-15.

Coach Fulton was pleased with the way her team worked together. A few girls had first game jitters, but that is to be expected, she said. Often in volleyball the score is not indicative of the way the game is played, the scores can be deceiving. Fulton added.

The Lady Cats traveled to Sioux City Wednesday for their first league game against Morningstar College. On the weekend the Lady Wildcats will again be in Sioux City for the Briar Cliff tournament, another preseason outing.

Lawyers Promoting Themselves

A billboard, TV and newspaper advertising campaign designed to encourage consumers to "Ask a Lawyer" got under way across the state this week under sponsorship of the Nebraska State Bar Association.

Billboards carrying this message — "The Law is Everyone's Business. It's Not Everyone's Profession. Ask a Lawyer" — are now on display in 27 cities, with multiple showings in larger cities. The same message also will be carried in ads scheduled to appear in all UN-L home football game programs.

According to NSBA President Robert A. Barlow of Lincoln, the message is designed to convey the idea that the law has an impact on the life of every citizen and that it is beneficial to seek the services of a lawyer on legal problems or potential legal problems.

This general message is made more specific in a series of three newspaper ads which will appear in 34 daily and weekly newspapers starting this week. One ad reminds the reader, "At least one relative stands to gain if you die without a will." A drawing of Uncle Sam brings home the message of who that "relative" is, and explains that a carefully drawn estate plan can minimize an individual's federal tax liability.

A second ad advises, "You can get yourselves into a marriage easily. But don't try to get yourselves out." Barlow notes,

"Many people who are seeking a divorce do so without any legal guidance. Then after the decree is issued they feel that the property settlement is inadequate or the custody and visitation arrangements unfair, because they had no one to adequately represent their interests. Even couples who think they have everything worked out between them often find that they might have fared better in the divorce had they had an attorney representing each party."

The third newspaper ad is on the subject of legal fees. Barlow explains, "We did a survey of public attitudes towards lawyers last year, and one of the most striking findings was the lack of information, and the misinformation, about the costs of legal services. This ad advocates talking with your attorney at the first opportunity about legal fees, and working out an arrangement that is suitable to both parties. As the ad says, it's often the people who need legal advice the most who hesitate to see a lawyer's services because they are concerned about the costs involved."

The final component of the advertising campaign is an animated television spot, again of a general nature, which was developed and used last year. The ad advocates having a family lawyer to help you through the complicated legalities that affect your home, business and family. The ad is scheduled to run on Omaha, Lincoln and Scottsbluff stations during four separate weeks beginning Sept. 15.

The concept of institutional advertising by bar associations is not new. Many state and local bar associations throughout the country have advertising programs of some kind. Though Nebraska's billboard campaign is considered unique, a recent survey conducted by the American Bar Association found that while lawyers are reluctant to advertise on their own they overwhelmingly approve of institutional ads aimed at promoting professional legal services.

Child Car Seat Use Urged

In Nebraska between 1976 and 1979, 71 children under 13 years of age were killed in car accidents, according to the Nebraska Department of Roads. Almost half were under five years of age and none was using passenger restraints.

The University of Nebraska Medical Center is trying to change those statistics by increasing the use of child car seats and passenger restraining systems.

Through a $28,710 grant from the Nebraska State Highway Commission, the Medical Center has instituted a car seat loan program for parents whose children are born or treated at the hospital and for hospital personnel.

For a $10 deposit, a parent can obtain a car seat to fit a child up to 20 pounds and receive educational materials on its use.

When the infant outgrows the seat, the parents may return it for a refund, or exchange it for a larger seat for an additional $5. The latter will accommodate children up to 40 pounds.

The car seats can also be purchased.

To insure proper use of the child car seats, the university will install without charge in the parent's car a special bolt on which to anchor the car seat.

Dr. George Miyazaki, associate professor of pediatrics, said that a car seat is the only method which has proven effective in preventing injury to a child. He said studies have shown that car seats can reduce the possibility of death or injury by 90 percent.

"Parents often assume that the possibility of accidents are during long trips and at high speeds," said Dr. Miyazaki, who is head of the car seat loan program. "Yet, 75 percent of the crashes occur within 25 miles of home and nearly 80 percent of crashes occur at speeds of less than 40 miles an hour."

Dr. Miyazaki said national statistics show that 200 infants die each year in car accidents on their first trip home from the hospital.

"Physicians are becoming stronger advocates and encouraging parents to use child car seats," said Dr. Miyazaki.

The child car seat is an expression of love and safety. It is a very small investment of time and money by parents, resulting in life long benefits for their children.

Computer Solving Problems

Students at the University of Nebraska Lincoln College of Agriculture are learning how a computer can help solve complex problems of equipment and crop production planning by using Linear Programming according to an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources staff member.

Kenneth Von Bargen, professor of agricultural engineering, said that Linear Programming provides a means of reaching an objective of maximum profit or minimum cost. Planning to achieve this objective is complicated by limitations such as the equipment available, time for field work and farm land.

"In practical use, Linear Programming could help a farmer decide on crop acreages with his equipment or identify equipment bottlenecks that would make it more profitable to expand his equipment," he said.

According to Von Bargen, Linear Programming was developed during World War II when it was used for military planning. Because of the scope and complexity of many problems, computers must be used.

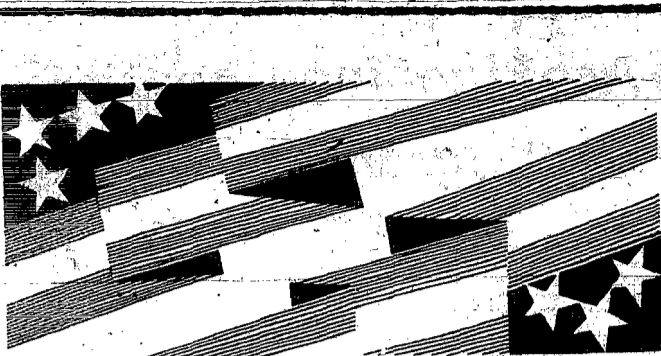

Purdue University at West Lafayette, Ind., was one of the first to develop a computer program for farm equipment and crop planning involving corn, soybeans and wheat using Linear Programming. However, when this program was brought into the western Corn Belt, other variables entered the picture, which made it difficult to apply the program directly to the Nebraska farming situation.

"Farmers here grow both dryland and irrigated corn, soybeans and milo. That is six crops right there and wheat, hay and other crops haven't been included," he said.

Von Bargen said he is teaching his students to plan agricultural equipment systems. Both variable and fixed costs must be included in farm planning. Decisions, such as estimating the equipment service life and trade-in values, as well as future grain prices and yields, are made just as farmers must do, he added.

"These numbers are averages and we don't know for sure what they are. A sensitivity analysis is run which tells us how much these estimates can vary without affecting the cropping acreages. We also get an estimate of how much an hour of time is worth at planting or harvesting time."

Although the equipment-crop planning program is not offered to farmers from the university, Von Bargen said one is available through the computer system of a major equipment firm. This program is designed to deal with the larger scale, problem of equipment systems and crop production planning.

Energy Volunteers Are Planning Community Education Programs

ACTION volunteers working with the Small Farm Energy Project here will hold a series of community education programs during Solar Action Week (Oct. 4-11).

The programs will feature audio-visual presentations of efforts by 24 farm families cooperating with the project during the past three years to become less dependent on petroleum-based energy sources and fertilizers.

"Solar energy is no longer the energy source of tomorrow," commented Rob Alken of the Small Farm Energy Project in announcing the programs. "Cooperators in our Project have shown there are easily constructed and adaptable solar energy applications available today for use on the farm or in the home."

Some of the solar energy applications to be featured in the programs include: solar water heaters, vertical wall solar collectors for home heating, solar grain dryers, and multiple-use portable solar collectors.

Education programs will be held near Hartington and Wisner, Nebraska; Wadena, Minnesota; Brookings, South Dakota; and in the Vermillion-Yankton area of South Dakota. The Small Farm Energy Project is currently looking for local sponsors to provide or arrange meeting locations for the programs, and to help in promoting attendance. Persons interested should contact Rob Alken, Small Farm Energy Project, Box 736, Hartington, Neb. 68739, phone 402-254-6893.

The programs are made possible through a grant from the Community for Renewable Resources and the International Solar Energy Society — two groups working toward the commercialization of solar energy. The Small Farm Energy Project was one of 16 applicants selected from a group of 100 nationwide.

The Small Farm Energy Project is a four-year-old research and demonstration project sponsored by the Center for Rural Affairs of Walthill.

The collection of photos features Mona Martinsen Neihardt's sculpture work from 1907 to 1958.

Mona Martinsen Neihardt (1884-1958) was the daughter of Rudolph Vincent Martinsen and Ada Ernst. As a child, Mona was shuttled back and forth from New York to France and Germany. She went to private schools in New York and was sent to Dresden to further her education where she studied voice and violin and learned three languages.

When Mona was 18 she studied sculpture with Frank Edwin Elwell, curator of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. After two years of rigorous training, Mona went to Paris to study with Auguste Rodin, the man who created the famous "Thinker" statue. She had the honor of exhibiting three of her works in the Paris Salon before the age of 20.

In 1907 Mona read "A Bundle of Myrrh," a collection of love lyrics by Nebraska poet John G. Neihardt who was living in Bancroft at the time. She wrote to young Neihardt and he wrote back. Soon a steady flow of correspondence began, and six months later on Nov. 28, 1908, Mona arrived in Omaha. John Neihardt met her at the train station with the marriage license in his pocket. The couple was married the next day in his friend's apartment.

The photo show may be seen at the Neihardt Center from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is free at the Center as well as other branch museums of the Nebraska State Historical Society.

Heart Attack Death Rate Dips

State Health Department statistics concerning out-of-hospital deaths from cardiac arrest show a 15 percent decrease since 1977, according to Dr. Stephen W. Carveth, chairman of the Nebraska Statewide CPR campaign.

Dr. Carveth, a Lincoln cardiovascular surgeon, said that during the three-year period 1975-1977, almost 1,100 Nebraskans died of heart attacks each year prior to reaching a hospital. By the end of 1979 that number had dropped to 934.

Carveth feels that the ongoing statewide CPR campaign has helped reduce the pre-hospital death rate from cardiac arrest but he is quick to credit the education programs of the American Heart Association, the Red Cross, the State Health Department and others for helping to get the message of prevention and early attention to heart attack symptoms across to the general public by emphasizing various risk factors involved.

He said that Nebraskans can be justifiably proud of the progress of the Statewide CPR campaign. The five-year campaign goals (and achievements to date) include:

1. Reduce rate of pre-hospital deaths due to cardiac arrest by 30 percent (15 percent decrease to date).
2. Train 500,000 Nebraska citizens in CPR (245,000 trained through August, 1980).
3. Install CPR training in high schools (80 percent of high schools offering CPR).
4. Conduct CPR instructor training in Nebraska Colleges and Universities (60 percent).
5. Provide advanced cardiac life support training in medical schools (100 percent).

While the instruction is free, there is a small charge for instructional materials. He advised that interested persons contact their local Heart Association, Red Cross or Community College representatives for information on how to enroll in a course.

Reflecting on the statewide CPR campaign success story Carveth said, "We're number one! As Cornhuskers we won't settle for anything less."

State Hiring Freeze Cuts 459 Employees

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Since Gov. Charles Thone's hiring freeze went into effect on July 1, the number of state employees has been reduced by 459.

The number of state workers dropped by 288 during August at which time 14,555 people had full-time state jobs, not including those at the University of Nebraska.

According to State Budget Administrator Don Leuenberger, Thone is satisfied with the job freeze program's progress. Just when the program will end, Leuenberger said he did not know.

During August, he said, 401 jobs became vacant and 113 employees were hired with much of the hiring being done by the Department of Public Institutions which signed up 45 workers during the month.

Thone has given the DPI exemptions to the freeze so that staffing in critical positions can be maintained. He has granted the same exemption to the Department of Corrections Services, which hired one new employee last month.

Thone hired a kitchen aide for the governor's mansion, but the position of administrative assistant to the governor still remains vacant more than two months after the departure of Randy Moody.

Data on the hiring freeze indicates good compliance with it, even though agencies not directly under the control of the governor are not mandated to go along with it. The governor, though, did ask those agencies to cooperate.

Leuenberger said the governor does not plan to grant any more exemptions and that requests for authority to take on new employees had dwindled to a very few.

Leuenberger speculated agency directors have not made more requests because they have been successful in consolidating jobs when vacancies occurred.

Trial date set

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha announced recently Oct. 7 has been set as the trial date on his lawsuit that challenges the employment by the Legislature of a chaplain to open each day in the Unicameral with a prayer.

The chaplain is paid about $300 a month when the lawmakers are in session, and Chambers says public money should not be spent to pay a minister to observe his particular religion.

Last year, Chambers was unsuccessful in an attempt to abolish the chaplain's position through legislative procedures.

He makes it a point not to be in the legislative chamber when the opening prayer is being recited. He says he does that to avoid what he calls "unnecessary friction" that would result if he remained seated at his desk and continued working.

Chambers has also argued that because of the religious activities, his use of the legislative chamber is restricted, as is his ability to represent his constituents completely.

He has also said his "personal sensibilities are trampled each day that temporary control of the legislative chamber is given over to the practitioner of the Christian religion for the purpose of practicing religion."

Plans pay bill

"Nebraskans" would vote annually on judicial salaries under a bill that is being prepared by Sen. Rex Haberman of Imperial.

As mentioned in this column last week, District Judge Ronald E. Reagan of Papillion, president of the Nebraska District Court Judges Association, said such judges ranked 24th in pay among the states in a 1979 survey.

Reagan agreed with Nebraska's Chief Justice Norman Krivosha that most judges could make more money in private practice than the approximately $40,000 they are paid.

In a recent letter to Reagan, Haberman said, "Due to you and the chief justice being so disappointed and unhappy with the salary scale that the Legislature has set for the judges, I am asking that a bill be drafted to have the judges' salaries be put on the ballot every year."

If his bill became law, Haberman said, the voters would determine the salaries and that would do away with the need for judges to lobby the lawmakers for higher rates of pay.

Other benefits, the Imperial lawmaker added, would be that judges would have more time to hear cases and the chief justice could "stay in his chambers and not have to come to the rotunda to lobby."

Wants more names

Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney has proposed that a minimum of five senators be required to sign any bill before it is introduced in the Legislature.

He made the suggestion in a letter to his colleagues. If his idea were implemented, bad legislation would be eliminated before it reached the legislative floor, Clark said.

He would require five senatorial names on each bill during a 90-day session and eight names on bills submitted during 60-day sessions. In addition, resolutions would have to carry 12 signatures.

"When one person introduces a legislative bill, opposition and support zero in on one person," Clark said. "It seems that this person is left alone either to win or lose."

The Sidney legislator also proposed stopping the carrying over of bills from the long session to the short session but would continue the practice of letting the governor and legislative committees sponsor bills.

More vet college talk

Iowa State University has offered Nebraska 14 more student slots in its College of Veterinary Medicine.

The 14 would increase to 30 the Nebraska slots in the school whose dean said its officials "selfishly hope" to expand the arrangement under which it contracts with Nebraska for the training of veterinarians.

The offer was made during a recent meeting of the Legislature's Education Committee which wanted to explore various alternatives to the proposal that a regional vet school be established in Lincoln.

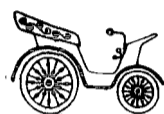

The dean of the Iowa State school — Phillip T. Pearson — told the committee if his offer is accepted, he would recommend the contracts be for a period of 10 to 15 years. Pearson said he would also like to study a "sharing" arrangement with the University of Nebraska.

Also in attendance at the meeting were officials from the universities of Wisconsin and Minnesota who were invited to discuss any veterinary education plans in their states that might affect Nebraska.

Bill Krejci of Fairmont, chairman of the Nebraska Committee for a Regional Veterinary College, told the committee North Dakota and Wyoming plan to participate once Nebraska commits itself to a regional school. Krejci said state agriculture industry officials are embarked on a campaign to raise $2 million to help pay Nebraska's share of the funding.

He said the estimated cost of the school is $30 million, of which the federal would furnish about $15 million, Nebraska about $7 million and other participating states about $8 million. He added the state pays about $1.1 million annually to have its veterinary students trained in other states. That amount, Krejci said, is close to Nebraska's estimated annual cost of operating a school in Lincoln.

USDA Red Tape Cuts State Ag Income: Thone

"Income to Nebraska farmers — the backbone of the entire state's economy — is being reduced by U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) paperwork that serves no purpose.

"A part of the difference between the per pound price that Nebraska farmers receive for steers or hogs and the per pound price that the consumer pays for beef or pork is the result of USDA required paperwork by meatpackers that is duplicative and in some cases is just thrown away.

"U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen, Democrat-Texas, chairman of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, summarized a U.S. General Accounting Office study of USDA paperwork with this statement: "...it documents that the department illegally used hundreds of different forms in violation of the Federal Reports Act. It also documents that the department collected a particular form from thousands of firms in the meatpacking industry for seven years, none of which were ever used and many of which were simply thrown away."

"In 1979, Nebraska producers received more than $3 1/2 billion for the livestock that they marketed. If the elimination of unnecessary USDA paperwork could have resulted in just a one percent saving that was passed on to farmers, the agricultural income in Nebraska could have been raised $35 million without any increase in consumer prices.

"Four different agencies within USDA were collecting the same information without even knowing that they were duplicating each other's efforts.

"USDA requirements for approval of meat labels have been absurd. For example, consider a ham. That ham is canned ham label that was used as an example for weight. If the firm produced the ham in five sizes at five geographic locations, it would have to submit 25 separate applications and 100 labels before USDA would give approval.

"The delay in label approval has become so bad that more than 60 percent of the meatpacking firms are hiring Washington-based 'expediting services' to get their labels approved. A USDA official admitted to the General Accounting Office that applications that were just mailed in by packers waited while the department gave faster treatment to the applications being handled by 'expeditors.' Such actions arouse strong suspicions of misconduct.

"Before additional paperwork burdens are put on the public by USDA agency officials, they are required to obtain approval both from the top level of the department and also from the U.S. Office of Management and Budget. The General Accounting Office study found that the public or businesses were being required to fill out 38 forms that had approval from neither agency.

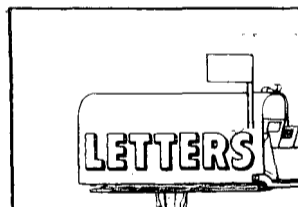

"The Nebraska farmer has little bargaining power. In the main, he must take what is offered him for his crops and livestock. Anything that can be done to lower the cost of processing food makes it likely that the farmer can get a better price. We just must eliminate unnecessary federal red tape that is stealing income from Nebraska farmers' pockets; and, by the way, if you run into any state rules you consider unnecessary, let me personally hear from you."

Ak Sar-Ben Festivities in Omaha, 1902
The civic organization Knights of Ak Sar-Ben was founded in 1895 by Omaha businessmen to attract and entertain visitors during the Nebraska State Fair, then held in Omaha. Since that time Ak Sar-Ben (Nebraska spelled backwards) has carried on agricultural, educational and charitable programs and sponsored annual fall celebrations. The 1902 "Omaha Evening Bee" (Sept. 25 Oct. 4), on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society, reported that Ak Sar-Ben festivities during 1902 included a street carnival, parades and the

To the Editor:
Several years ago, I wrote you about Costa Rica and our planned retirement there (my husband is retired Navy). You asked that I write again, when settled, but I have been so busy living I haven't had the time!

However, today, listening to the news, gloom, wars, energy crisis, the shrinking dollar and poor Jimmy Carter... it occurred to me your readers might enjoy the second episode in the "Saga of the Birds."

We moved, bag, baggage, grandmother, teenagers and all, to Costa Rica four years ago and have been happily settled in Rancho Maricosta. Our experiences deserve a book. They have not only been exciting but, at times, hilarious. The only flaw was our inability to find easily-accessible, registered beach property. Probably a blessing in disguise. It made us look to Colombia (another democratic republic, where, it turned out, it cost even less to live than Costa Rica).

There we found Palmas de Oro, a lovely, old coconut plantation on the Caribbean. And, to complete its unique setting, when we looked away from the sea we saw, towering over everything, 19,000 feet high and snow-capped, majestic Mount Columbus of the Sierra Nevada.

It may be hard to believe... hundreds of green palms, blue sky and ocean, pounding surf and golden sand, snow-capped mountains... but it is all there in Palmas de Oro; on the Pan American Highway near Santa Marta, oldest and most fascinating city in all of the Americas.

So, now we have two loves: our ranch in Costa Rica and beach in Colombia. We feel customary coronation ceremonies for the King and Queen of Ak Sar-Ben.

The Sept. 25 "Bee" reported that thousands from throughout the Midwest, including a special delegation from the Black Hills, were converging on Omaha. The street carnival was officially opened by Sorentino's Grand Rossa Band, which gave afternoon and evening concerts. President Theodore Roosevelt had been expected to attend but did not.

"When the lights at the carnival grounds were turned on last night there was a jam at the gates to get in. The first of the crowd was on the grounds before that time, the turn stile recording the first paid entrance about 4:30 o'clock, and by 8 o'clock Douglas from Sixteenth to Seventeenth was packed with those who desired to enter the grounds. The committee in charge of the fair had not expected such a rush the first night, as none of the free attractions were to be given, so but one ticket seller was at work. The crowd was too large for him, however, and for some time Fred Metz, chairman of the committee, sold tickets until the pressure at the gates was relieved."

The large number of people and holiday atmosphere occasioned some complaints of disturbances on the carnival grounds. "Several women reported to the chief (Omaha police chief John Donahue) this morning that they had been caught and held and confined to the necks of their dresses. Others had bruised faces where persons had struck them with strong wind bags fastened to sticks," Donahue announced that "such practices will not be tolerated" and added that "the practice of young men who join hands and rush through the crowds, knocking women and children in various directions, would not be allowed to continue" ("Omaha Bee," Sept. 26, 1902).

"On Oct. 1 an afternoon civic and military parade included almost 1,100 participants. On the following evening of Oct. 2, King Ak Sar-Ben VIII and his knights entered Omaha, accompanied by an "electrical pageant" with the theme "The Festival of Fairyland." The Oct. 3 "Bee" reported that thousands of people viewed the "royal" party and accompanying parade floats, each with its own theme.

Since the beginning of the order, the coronation ball for the King and Queen had been the highlight of Ak Sar-Ben festivities. Elaborate decorations and costumes were designed to honor the reigning "monarch," his lady and their attendants, chosen in recognition of individual and family civic contributions. The Oct. 4 "Bee" included a detailed account of the 1902 coronation ceremonies and ball.

"Thomas a Fry (head of the Fry Shoe Company and partner in the wholesale fish and produce Fry-Cole Company) sat last night upon Ak Sar-Ben's throne, the only monarch of a proud, unfeared West... Ella Cotton (daughter of Omaha banker Herman Kountze) sat beside him (as queen), sharer of the power, the pleasures, and the prestige that were his... The coronation, as in previous years, climaxed a kingdom's jubilee. Exuberant subjects... have paraded by day and innocently reveiled by night, defiant of a clouded heaven and a frowning constabulary (evident references to intermittent rain and Police Chief Donahue)... The musicians breathe forth the seductive strains of the "Sweet Remembrance" waltz, dainty feet that move to the pulsations of light hearts are caught in a mazy whirl, and the great ball of 1902 is on..."

Give Us A Break

Will Mother Nature ever give us a break? Normally, there is at least one or two months a year when neither air conditioning nor heat is needed. Traditionally, those months are April and September.

However, if the trend downward continues, the utility bills for September will not see any relief. The high this month was some 96 degrees. The official low recorded so far this month was 33 — and that was Wednesday morning.

There are about two weeks left in the month, and all bets point toward a light frost and the heat turned on for the winter. Oh, those drafted utility bills. Dan Field, Editor.

We have discovered a new, exciting American frontier and are eager to share our find with others. (If you think you are too old for adventure, we are 59 and 63 and both of us have battled and, so far, conquered cancer!) Write us at P.O. Box 157, Liberia, Guanacaste, Costa Rica and send your letters by international air mail (25 cents 'per half ounce). We promise to answer.

Now, from Latin America, we wish you salud (health), dinero (wealth) and amor (love!)

Dear Sir:
I guess procrastination is the word for it. I've meant to write this letter for over a month and kept putting off until tomorrow. Anyway, here it is.

I've read several things about Greenwood Cemetery and how the looks are starting to deteriorate. I remember it as a beautiful place, but, as with everything else, the cost of keeping that place up has grown, too.

I have a sister and father, aunts, uncles and grandparents at Greenwood. Wayne people have always cared for their dead. Though I live in California now and make a living here, I still want to end up at Wayne, even if I have to wait until they send me back. In the meantime, maybe there is a way to spruce it up.

Does the City of Wayne have complete control of the Cemetery? If it does, and cannot afford to keep it up, why not start a Cemetery Association or District? Sell memberships to families at ten dollars, first year, and possibly less each year thereafter. It wouldn't have to be mandatory but I'll bet you would have the money to properly care for it in no time.

If that can't be done, I would be more than happy to donate on a yearly basis and most likely there are many more. In my position that would do the same. If they were asked, William O. Martin, Manager

Farm

Organic Farming Has Poor Image

There are a lot of things organic farming is not.

It's not a throwback to agriculture of the 1930's, as popular belief may hold, and it's not just a practice for small-scale farm operations. And it doesn't mean farmers must sacrifice yields or profits.

Most importantly, it's not an impractical or impossible farming method, as an experiment in organic crop production practices at the University of Nebraska Field Laboratory near Mead has shown.

The Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources (IANR) project may show, in fact, that organic crop production in a drought year or a marginally productive year may net as good or better yields than conventional practices that use chemicals to aid the process, said Gary Lesoing, research technician at the Mead site, and Warren Saha, director of the Mead laboratory.

Organic farming is a production system that avoids or largely excludes the use of commercial fertilizers, pesticides and herbicides. It includes any of the best management practices needed to increase the organic matter of the soils, reduce soil erosion and pollution from silt and conserve energy through crop rotation, proper use of manure fertilizer and conservation tillage practices.

Organic farming has grown out of concerns about protecting the soil and human and animal health from potential hazards of pesticides, the desire to lower production costs and concerns for the environment and protection of soil resources.

IANR officials are not professing concrete results about their organic and partially organic plots that have been planted since 1975, because they want to have eight years of data before making any conclusions about the crop rotations in the plots.

But if this year is any indication, organic corn for one is a crop that has fared better than continuous corn, a monoculture which receives fertilizer, insecticides and herbicides and is a common growing practice among Nebraska farmers.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's new study on organic farming is drawing attention to the need for more research on the organic approach to farming, but the IANR, according to Saha, was "ahead of the pack" with its experiment started in 1975.

The Mead project involves crop rotation of oats, clover, corn and soybeans, the use of manure in place of chemical fertilizers and conservation tillage in place of herbicides for weed control and insecticides for corn rootworm control.

The experiment at Mead includes 16 completely organic plots, 16 rotation plots that are given fertilizer only, 16 rotation plots that have both herbicide and fertilizer applied and four continuous corn plots.

Organic crop production is a continuum of practices. On one end are farmers who would not use chemical fertilizers or pesticides under any circumstances and along the continuum are flexible farmers who strive to avoid the use of chemicals without ruling them out entirely.

"Failure to recognize that the organic farming movement is distributed over a spectrum can often lead to serious misconceptions," according to the USDA report. "We should not attempt to place all of these organic practitioners in the same category."

Although organic farming in Nebraska is limited to a few hundred farmers, there has been much interest shown in the Mead experimental plots, Lesoing said. Visitors have viewed the experimental site each summer.

"We want to compare organic farming methods with rotation and continuous corn," Lesoing said of the project.

Weed control in the organic plots and in the half of the rotation plots not receiving herbicide is by mechanical means.

"The biggest problem with organic is the weed control," Lesoing said. "It takes really good management."

The soybean crop grown under purely organic conditions, Lesoing said, should be a good one this year because of recent rains.

"Continuous corn looks like it's been hurt more by the drought," Lesoing added. "In a normal year, this method (continuous corn with herbicides, insecticides and commercial fertilizer) might be better. In a drought or a marginal year, organic will be better, or just as good."

"Hopefully, we'll prove this." There are obvious differences this year among the plots at the experiment site. The rotation crops with herbicide are not as weedy as the organic plots. The organic corn crop may have more weeds, but its stands are thinner and greener and its ears are bigger and fuller than the continuous corn.

"The organic crop looks pretty good considering the drought," Lesoing said.

Organic farming, he said, requires better management by the farmer, but it is more economical if the yield is equal to yields of conventionally produced crops because it saves money spent for expensive chemicals and fuel and it saves energy.

"I think it's a thing of the future," Lesoing said.

"This organic farming project relies solely on rainfall, which is the most limiting factor for field crop production in Nebraska," Saha said. "Dryland research involving crop rotations is longterm. Results from eight years of research will be necessary before definite differences due to rotation can be determined. Crop yields have been outstanding at times, but for the most part somewhat disappointing because of drought."

Saha has made some observations about the organic plots from the first five years of production.

In 1978, when soil moisture was adequate for a full corn crop, all corn plots yielded from 128 to 140 bushel per acre with no significant differences among treatments.

Soil tests taken in the fall of 1979 showed a buildup of phosphate and potassium in the organic plots because of the full treatment of manure to furnish sufficient nitrogen for a crop crop. The manure plots showed a slight increase in organic matter content over those plots receiving chemical fertilizer.

— In three of the five years, the corn and soybean yields were half of normal because of a lack of rainfall.

— The rotation of oats, clover, corn, soybeans, then corn again eliminated the need for corn root worm insecticide.

— Timely rotary hoeing and cultivation essentially has controlled weeds in soybean and corn plots.

"While results of organic farming cannot be immediately determined," Saha said, "interest in this method of growing crops will become heightened in future years and the USDA's call for further research will expedite work done in this area."

The future looks bright for organic farming methods research, which in the long run is bound to help the farmer.

Corn Production Estimates Could Be Down By 19 Percent

Corn production, as of Sept. 1, is forecast at 639.2 million bushels, 1 percent above the August estimate. Total production, if realized, would be 19 percent below last year's record crop of 793.5 million bushels.

Average yield is forecast at 94 bushels per acre, up 1 bushel from last month's estimate but 21 bushels below last year's record 115 bushel average. This compares with the 1975-79 average yield of 99.4 bushels. The acreage intended for grain is unchanged from last month at 6.8 million, 1 percent below last year's harvested acreage.

Dryland corn production is forecast at 84.8 million bushels, 54 percent below last year. The yield is forecast at 45.8 bushels per acre, 40.5 bushels below last year's record 86.3 bushel yield on dryland corn. The 1975-79 average is 64.6 bushels per acre. Farmers plan to harvest 1.85 million acres of dryland corn for grain, 14 percent less than a year ago.

Irrigated corn production is forecast at 554.4 million bushels, 9 percent below last year. The yield is forecast at 112 bushels per acre, 16 bushels below last year's record high irrigated yield. The 1975-79 average yield is 118.7 bushels. The acreage intended for grain harvest is 4.95 million, 4 percent more than last year.

Production of sorghum grain is forecast at 111.94 million bushels, 23 percent less than last year but 9 percent above the August forecast. Yield per acre is forecast at 58 bushels per acre, down 21 bushels from last year's record yield. This compares with the 1975-79 average of 67.4 bushels per acre. Acreage for harvest at 1.93 million, 5 percent more than a year ago.

Soybean production is forecast at 49.8 million bushels, down 11 percent from last year's record crop of 54.7 million bushels but 4 percent above the August forecast. The forecast yield of 28 bushels per acre is 6 bushels below last year. The 1975-79 average yield is 30.2 bushels per acre. Acreage for harvest at 1.8 million exceeds the previous record set last year by 11 percent. Dry bean production was forecast at 2.4 million cwt, up 11 percent from last year. Sugar beet production was forecast at 1.56 million tons, up seven percent from 1979.

Swiss Farmland at $16,000 An Acre

Buyers may cringe at the high price of farm land in Nebraska but in Switzerland it is running roughly $16,000 to $24,000 per acre, according to a University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension agronomist.

Corn Borer Problems Cause Economic Loss In Several Sections

The 1980 crop season has been a favorable one for the European corn borer, with economic infestations scattered throughout the southwest, south central, east and northeast crop districts, according to Dave Keith, extension entomologist in the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

"Before the harvest season is upon us, farmers should check corn fields for second generation corn borers. Fields with high borer populations should be harvested first, provided of course, that the crop has matured," Keith said. Delaying harvest or borer infested fields will increase losses from breakage, lodging and ear drop, he said.

Corn borer larvae have brown heads and gray bodies with rows of dark spots down the back. Borers tunnel through corn stalks and ear shanks and often feed on the developing and maturing grain. Borer excrement often is pushed outside the tunnels and is readily visible clinging to corn stalks and ears.

"Tunneled stalks often break over, making it difficult or impossible for the combine header to pick up the ear. Infested ear shanks often break also and ears then fall to the ground," he said.

Losses can be reduced considerably by early harvest, Keith advised. Increased costs associated with drying high moisture corn would likely be offset by the savings realized in getting the crop out of the field earlier, he said.

Land weed control and for helping to organize a series of Crop Protection Clinics in Nebraska.

"The benefits of the award trip are intangible but reinforce the idea that our activities, research and otherwise, are all interrelated," Martin said.

Sightseeing included the cities of Basel, Geneva and a CIBA GEIGY research field testing station, vineyards and a farm and dairy operation.

Agriculturally, the Swiss import most of what they need, Martin said. "The Swiss are not self-sufficient at all, but they have the desire for it."

"I think the Swiss people have done a good job with the resources they have, though I didn't see any waste or slum areas. They seem to have things well in hand and their standard of living seems every bit as high as ours."

The size of the farms is limited, Martin noted, and it is exceeded government controls tax the farm so high that it is unprofitable to own more than allowed.

The Swiss farmers, he added receive over 50 percent of their income in direct payment from the government.

The Swiss government wants the people to farm the land, he said.

Land is priced by the square meter so Martin said he converted that to acres to compare it to our land prices.

"Since the land is so high priced, it doesn't change hands very often," Martin said.

The average farm size is about 40 acres and usually is broken up into several crops so that it looks more like gardening to us.

In addition to Switzerland, Martin and seven other agricultural journalists and scientists visited the CIBA GEIGY branch in Greensboro, N.C. and cheese-making operations, a china shop and land reclamation areas in Holland.

As a tourist a person will draw his own conclusions about what he sees, but Martin said he felt he saw and heard more than the average tourist.

They are halfway around the world, but their interests are similar to ours," he offered.

Handicapped Ramps at Wayne State

WAYNE STATE COLLEGE is in the process of complying with federal law that says its facilities must be accessible to the handicapped. WSC will spend about $600,000 to alter its buildings and facilities. Workers above are removing old curbs and replacing them with roll-over curbs for wheelchairs. The State College board of trustees last week approved spending more than $190,000 for ramps, restroom changes and more accessible entryways in five buildings at Peru State College.

Recipients of SSI Must Tell Changes

People who receive supplemental security income (SSI) payments are responsible for reporting any event that could affect their right to payments or the payment amount. Date Branch social security district manager in Norfolk said recently.

SSI makes monthly payments to people 65 or older, or blind, or disabled who have little income and who do not own much in the way of property.

It is important that any change in a person's situation be reported promptly. Branch said this way the payment rate can be adjusted quickly so that the person is not inconvenienced.

People getting SSI can make their reports in person, by mail, or by telephone. But no matter how they report, they should include the person's name, the correct social security number under which payment is made, the change being reported, the date it occurred, and if the report is in writing, the person's signature and address. Everyone getting SSI payments should report the following:

Any move or change of address, even if checks are deposited directly into an account at a bank or other financial institution.

If there is any change in the household, whether anyone moves into or out of the home, whether there are any changes in the amounts people contribute to expense.

If a person enters or leaves an institution.

If a person leaves the United States.

If a person marries or marriage ends.

Any change in income of any person in the household.

Any change in resources, what the person owns, including real estate, car or other personal property, addition to savings account or other investment. Blind or disabled people should report any improvement in condition, taking any job and any change in earnings.

If a student stops or starts attending school regularly. Someone should report for the person getting SSI payments if:

A drug addict or alcoholic stops treatment.

A person becomes unable to manage own funds.

The person dies.

More information about these reports can be obtained at the Norfolk social security office. The people there will be glad to answer any questions. The office is located at 1310 Norfolk Ave., Norfolk, and the telephone number is 1-800-642-8310.
