ONE HUNDRED FIFTH YEAR NUMBER NINE

Economy Continues to Improve

The economic situation in Wayne continues to look brighter, as Wayne showed the smallest decline in economic activity in several months.

A REPORT issued by the Nebraska Bureau of Business Research in Lincoln this week indicates that the Wayne economy in June was only 8.3 percent behind the same month of a year ago.

According to the most recent figures, Wayne had net taxable retail sales of $2,075,000 in June of this year. This compares to $2,640,000 for June of 1979.

After a state leading first quarter, Wayne saw its economy plummet in April. With sales 37.1 percent behind April of 1979, Wayne was tagged as having the worst economic showing of any reporting city.

SALES FOR May of this year were 17 percent behind those of May of 1979. So, it appears the local economy is improving since leading indicators jumped about 9 percentage points upward, according to state compiled figures.

Only two other reporting communities had figures better than Wayne for the month of June. Kimball had sales 19.8 percent ahead of last year and Scottsbluff/Gering was only 1.6 percent behind a year ago. Next was Wayne.

Norfolk, which is the other city in Region 11 besides Wayne, had sales 25.5 percent behind June of last year.

THE CONDITION of the state's economy continued to weaken in June, however. Declines were recorded in most of the major economic indicators for the state.

The physical volume index for the state was 2.8 percent below its value of May and fell 6.2 percent from its level of June, 1979. The comparable index for the United States fell .7 percent from May and was down 4.2 percent from last year.

This month's decline in economic activity was felt throughout Nebraska's economy, with only the government sector showing an increase in activity. Both the agricultural and nonagricultural indexes fell during the month, as agricultural activity declined 5.3 percent and the index for the nonagricultural sectors decreased 2.4 percent.

THE MAY-TO-JUNE changes for the four nonagricultural sectors were as follows:

Government, up 5 percent; construction, down 3 percent; manufacturing, down 1.8 percent; and distributive, down 3.4 percent.

June marked the end of the second quarter of 1980 and was accompanied by the persistent symptoms of an economic slowdown for the state and the nation, the bureau of research said.

The bureau's physical volume index for Nebraska showed considerable softness during the second quarter of this year. The index fell 2.3 percent when compared to the first quarter of 1980.

The bureau said this lackluster performance was shared by all sectors of the economy, with only the agricultural and government sectors registering quarterly growth. Activity in the manufacturing and distributive sectors was down moderately, but losses were severe in the construction sector, the bureau explained.

AT THE national level developments were similar to those in Nebraska, with some differences in the magnitude of the changes. Overall, the second-quarter physical volume index for the United States was down 3.1 percent from the first quarter; June was the weakest month of the quarter for the state's economy, while it was the strongest for Wayne's economy.

With the exception of construction, the sectors either recorded their largest declines or smallest increases during this month. This may be an indication that the economy is rapidly approaching its low point and will level off or begin to turn around later in the year, the bureau said.

IT IS encouraging to note that June's drop in construction was the smallest monthly decline since May of last year. Many economists have begun to suggest that prospects for a reversal of the current national downturn are getting better. This may carry over to some of the sectors of the Nebraska economy, but overall improvements in Nebraska will depend to a larger extent on developments in farm income.

STATEWIDE, employment fell .9 percent (7,300 persons) compared to June, 1979. At the same time, unemployment increased by nearly 7,000 persons, pushing the unemployment rate to its yearly high of 4.2 percent.

The decline in unemployment was the first in more than a year and was the culmination of a trend begun earlier this year during which the gains in employment had become successively smaller, the bureau of business research said.

Construction and manufacturing experienced the largest losses in employment while the distributive sector continued to post gains.

The following table shows retail sales for January through June, both 1979 and 1980:

Month	1979	1980
Jan.	$2,450,000	$2,763,000
Feb.	$2,420,000	$2,765,000
March	$2,497,000	$3,401,000
April	$3,390,000	$2,412,000
May	$2,493,000	$2,514,000
June	$2,640,000	$2,075,000

Garbage Talks Occupy Council

In a special meeting lasting past 10 p.m. Monday, the Council made two changes in a proposed garbage fee ordinance and then passed the ordinance with only one dissenting vote.

Ward 1 Councilman Sam Hepburn voted against the ordinance after voting in favor of both changes.

THE MEETING was called as the result of a Cliff Ginn motion Oct. 7 at the Council's regular meeting. At that meeting, Class A commercial garbage hauler Vern Russell protested the proposed increases in garbage rates, charging the city with discrimination against himself and Frank Msrny, the other Class A hauler.

For the Oct. 7 meeting, the city's administration had prepared extensive income and expense figures which indicated the transfer station had lost some $8,000. It is estimated that the city must generate an additional $13,000 this fiscal year to break even since the city is subsidizing the garbage facility to the tune of about $5,000.

THE SPECIAL meeting was billed as an "informal" session so the Council and commercial garbage haulers could hash out differences. But despite more than two hours of haggling, only two changes were made.

Rather than charging residents who use the transfer station on an individual basis by the cubic yard, the Council decided to charge by the bag.

Russell has argued that "a bag of garbage is a bag of garbage" whether it is compacted in his truck or whether it is brought in personally by a resident. He feels residents should be charged the same for a cubic yard of garbage as he is — $3.27. Under the proposed ordinance, residents were to be charged $2.50.

HOWEVER, after considerable discussion, the Council voted to charge residents 50 cents per bag, with a maximum bag size of 35 gallons. The Council estimated that five bags of uncompact garbage equal a cubic yard. So, five bags of garbage will cost residents $2.50.

The other change involves the collection of garbage on holidays and whether or not the transfer station can be used by commercial haulers on holidays.

Under the proposed ordinance, Class A haulers would be charged double the normal rate for dumping garbage on all holidays observed by the city. This charge, the city felt, would cover the expense of having a city employee on duty on holidays.

HOWEVER, Russell said the proposed double fee was unfair, and should remain at 1 1/2 times the normal rate, or the same as last year's ordinance.

After discussing for about 30 minutes exactly what constituted a national holiday, the Council voted to close the transfer to everyone — including Class A haulers — on six holidays.

Commission Rezones Muhs Acres

Wayne Planning Commission Monday night approved the rezoning of Muhs Acres, returning it to the type of zoning it had before the city adopted its comprehensive plan about 18 months ago.

IT WAS discovered recently that under the city's zoning ordinances, the area was zoned agricultural and a home could not be built there on fewer than 25 acres. So, the Planning Commission rezoned the area back to residential so homeowners could build on one-acre plots, which is now considered the minimum.

One acre is a minimum if septic tanks are used. There is no city sewer service to the area.

UNTIL ABOUT 18 months ago, Muhs Acres had been zoned residential. But when the city's zoning ordinances were revamped, the planners apparently overlooked the area as residential and placed it in agricultural.

There were no other agenda items.

College Board Lowers WSC Resident Rules

Wayne State College students are among those of the four state colleges in Nebraska that will be affected by a change in residence requirements.

The requirements were lowered from one year to six months during a State College board of trustees meeting held in Peru Saturday.

THE NEW policy is expected to boost out-of-state enrollment for WSC since the college is located close to the border. Non-resident students are currently paying $34 per credit hour for tuition, while residents of Nebraska are paying $19 per credit hour. The law provides that non-residents must take official action to become residents.

The change will take effect in July, 1981. The proposal was approved unanimously. The 1980 Legislature had redone residence statutes to give governing boards more flexibility.

THE BOARD also voted to reject a subcommittee recommendation that a Wayne State College remodeling contract be awarded to the second-highest bidder. The vote was 3-2. The low bid was by Beckenhauer Construction Inc. of Norfolk. The company omitted a completion date, but later agreed to a July 31, 1981 date.

The second-high bid was by Christiansen Construction Co. of Pender. Their bid of $1,412,000 was the one recommended by the committee.

DR. LYLE Seymour, president of WSC, attended the trustees meeting.

Project to Plan State's Future

First 2000 Session Here

Nebraska 2000, Gov. Charles Thone's long range planning project, will hold its pilot legislative district meeting in Wayne Nov. 3.

SHERYL MARRA, Wayne, has been named district coordinator and meetings are planned for each of the 49 legislative districts. The public is encouraged to attend any of the meetings.

Purpose of the project is to involve citizens of the state in charting the course Nebraska should take in heading into the year 2000.

Governor Thone announced the project in his Statehood Day address recently and named Wayne Herald Publisher Alan Cramer and Lt. Gov. Roland Leudke as co-chairmen.

COMMITTEE members were named several months ago and monthly meetings have been held since. Assisting Mrs. Marra are John Kingsbury from Dixon County and Henry Trysle from Dakota County. Wayne, Dixon and Dakota counties comprise legislative District 17.

The committee has identified 14 areas for citizen study. These include the following: Water, housing, food, health care, protection, education, transportation, environment, cultural enhancement, energy, recreation, human services, economic development and government.

A "TOWN HALL" type of format will comprise the meetings. As citizens arrive for the meetings each will be asked to join one of the groups. A workbook with questionnaires pertaining to the individual category will be provided for each attendee. Each participant will be asked to answer the questionnaire and group discussion will follow. In addition, questionnaires will be available in all categories so citizens can address and have input into areas in which they have special interest even though they may have participated in a different category for group discussion.

"WE PURPOSEFULLY selected Nov. 3 as the date for our pilot meeting," Cramer said. "It's the day before the election and it is the committee's feeling that citizen interest should be high. We want to enforce the idea that one person can make a difference and we are hopeful that selecting this date for the kick-off will enhance the idea."

Additional information will be published over the next three weeks to provide area residents with the opportunity to participate in any of the Nebraska 2000 meetings.

One of the Wayne State College Homecoming Queen candidates was named incorrectly identified in Monday's Wayne Herald. Information supplied by the WSC Wayne State newspaper indicated that Mary Meyer is a candidate. It should have been Mary Meyer. The name in an obituary in Monday's Herald was listed incorrectly also. It should have been Mrs. Helmer (Rosalia) Pufahl, not Mrs. Helmer (Rosalee) Pufahl.

'I Can Cope' Class Friday Will Focus On Communication

"Communication — Expressing Your Feelings" will be the topic of the next "I Can Cope" class at Providence Medical Center (PMC).

The class, which is scheduled to meet this Friday at 2 p.m. in the Chaplin room at PMC, is the third in a series of eight sessions focusing on problems and concerns encountered in living with cancer.

The "I Can Cope" program is jointly sponsored by the American Cancer Society and PMC and is designed for persons with cancer and their family members. Classes in Wayne run from 2 to 4 p.m. each Friday.

Sessions began Sept. 26 and will end Friday, Nov. 14 with graduation and evaluation. At the final session, participants in the program will evaluate each course and offer suggestions for improvement.

Speakers this Friday will be Sister Garrude of PMC and the Rev. Kenneth Edmonds, pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Wayne.

They will help participants understand and select effective ways of communicating, focusing on acknowledging feelings and the importance of listening.

Mrs. Loreene Gilderleeve, who is heading up the program in Wayne, said persons need not pre-register to attend the classes and a doctor's referral is not required.

She said "I Can Cope" is not intended for use only by those experiencing difficulty coping, but rather as an integral part of the treatment program of any cancer patient. The eight-session program is designed to help people regain control over their lives through better knowledge of the disease and its impact on them physically, emotionally and socially.

Course sessions encourage discussion and sharing, backed by a sequence of information on medical terminology, treatments, symptoms, nutrition, exercises, feelings and fears relating to cancer.

Persons who would like more information about the program are asked to contact Mrs. Gilderleeve, 375-3484, or Mrs. Chris Tietgen, 375-1423.

Upcoming sessions will deal with learning about the disease, coping with daily health problems, learning to live with limitations, and learning about resources that can help.

How to select the right Nursing Home.

We Americans are not just living longer, we're living more useful, productive lives.

But an increasing number of the chronically ill, the old, the convalescent, need some place other than the hospital and their home where they can receive personal health care, round-the-clock attention and the opportunity to continue to live their lives with meaning.

At your community extended health care facility we want to help you make the right decision. Here are some guidelines: see your family physician to determine the kind of care needed; feel free to visit our facility; ask us for our costs in writing and financial advice about Medicare and Medicaid; examine all of our facilities; check our food quality; verify our safety features; and finally, observe how our residents spend their time.

There's a lot more to selecting the right nursing home. We want to help. If you have any questions, please call or visit us.

Cast Rehearses for 'Little Foxes'

Rehearsals are well underway for the upcoming Wayne State College Theater production of 'The Little Foxes.'

The show will be presented Oct. 19-21 in Ramsey Theatre in the Fine Arts Building on the Wayne State College campus. Performances are scheduled Sunday, Oct. 19, at 2 p.m., with shows at 8 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday. General admission is $3.

The play centers around the unscrupulous dealings of the Hubbard family in the deep south of the 1900's.

The action takes place in the home of Regina Hubbard, an ambitious and greedy woman who has decided to invest her husband's money into a business deal arranged by her brothers.

Ben and Oscar, designed to make them all millionaires. Realizing that her brothers are eager for the money, Regina presses them to give her husband, Horace, a larger share of the profits.

Complications arise when Horace, who has been sick in Baltimore for five months, returns home and chooses not to invest the money into the business. Ben and Oscar, who don't want control of the business to leave the family, come up with a quick, if illegal, method of raising the money.

Caught up in the shady wheeling and dealing of the Hubbard family are Birdie, Oscar's intimidated wife; Alexandra, the innocent daughter of Horace and Regina; Leo, Oscar's corrupt son; Mr. Marshall, the businessman from Chicago with whom Ben and Oscar deal; and Cal and Addie, two servants of Regina's family.

Dr. Helen Russell, who is directing the production, says the play gives a fascinating account of life in the deep South at the turn of the century. "It also gives a thorough study of three of the most unscrupulous characters to appear on the American stage," she says.

Tickets for the performance will be available at the door or may be purchased in advance by calling the Wayne State theater department.

In 1974, Payne was awarded the Golden Mike Award by Singing News and In, and in 1979 he was presented with the Million Mile Safe Driving Award.

The Rev. Eddie Carter, pastor at First Baptist Church, said he is confident Payne has a message to communicate and invites the public to hear him.

Parents Invited to Join Youngsters During 'National School Lunch Week'

Parents of youngsters in Wayne Elementary School are invited to eat lunch with their children during "National School Lunch Week," Oct. 13-17.

"The youngsters really enjoy having parents eat with them during this week," said elementary principal Dave Luff.

Theme this year is "Eat to Learn — Learn to Eat." The theme is part of a five-year program developed by the American School Food Service Association designed to focus attention on the importance and benefits of good nutrition. Emphasis this school year is on "Nutrition Through Social Awareness."

"Grandparents Day" will again be observed this year in Wayne. Grandparents are welcome to join their grandchildren on Friday only, Oct. 10.

Eating times are as follows: first grade, 11:10 a.m.; second grade, 11:20; third grade, 11:40; and fourth grade, 11:45. Luff said second through fourth grade lunch times are approximate depending on the total number eating in each group.

Luff said families with more than one youngster in school may choose to have the younger student eat with the older one. He asks that parents inform their children that they will be eating with both of them.

Due to the lunchroom size, said Luff, we will limit the number of adults per day. He asks that parents call the office two days prior to the day they plan to eat and specify if they want the regular meal or salad tray.

Following is the weekly menu so parents can pick the day of their choice. Price for adults is $1.10.

Friday, Oct. 10 (Grandparents Day): Fish with tartar sauce, whipped potatoes and butter, carrot strip, strawberry shortcake with whipped cream, roll; or chef's salad, carrot strip, strawberry shortcake with whipped cream, roll.

Synod Bishop Speaking At St. Paul's

To help kick off a Growth in Christian Giving Emphasis this fall at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Wayne, Dr. Dennis Anderson, Bishop of the Nebraska Synod, Lutheran Church in America, will speak at St. Paul's this Sunday.

Worship services are scheduled at 10:30 a.m. and the public is welcome to attend.

Dr. Anderson will participate in a congregational covered dish dinner that day, and will give an inspirational message to members who will be making stewardship visits to others in the congregation from Nov. 2-16.

The Rev. Donliver Peterson, local pastor, said other interested persons are invited to hear this inspirational message, as well.

In its Growth in Christian Giving Emphasis, St. Paul's Lutheran Church is encouraging each of its families to increase its givings to the church by 1 percent of its income. The congregation will share one-third of the increase in giving with the Nebraska Synod and Lutheran Church in America.

As part of this Emphasis, congregational committees are proposing several goals for 1981 to involve congregational members more fully in worship, witness, education, service and support.

Dr. Anderson attended public school at Morris, Minn., Gustavus Adolphus College at St. Peter, Minn., and the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago. He was ordained in 1963. He served parishes in Texas, Illinois and Nebraska and was Secretary for Interpretation and Regional Secretary, Board of American Missions, Lutheran Church in America.

Dr. Anderson has served as Bishop of the Nebraska Synod, Lutheran Church in America, since 1968.

Candlelight Ceremony in Omaha

Unites Goblirsch-Gonderinger

St. Cecilia's Cathedral in Omaha was the scene of the Sept. 26 candlelight wedding uniting in marriage Georgianne Goblirsch and Charles Gonderinger, both of Omaha.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Goblirsch of Wayne, and the bridegroom is the son of District County Judge and Mrs. C. Norman Gonderinger of O'Neill.

Bouquets of mums and gladiol and seven-branch candelabras graced the sanctuary and candles decorated with greenery and white bows lined the aisle.

The Rev. Gerald Gonderinger, cousin of the bridegroom, officiated at the 7:30 p.m. nuptial mass and double ring ceremony. Chris Schentelzer of Cincinnati, Ohio served as altar boy.

The Cathedral Church organist played as guests were ushered in to the church by John Rooder and Francis Satrienek, both of Omaha.

Dick McCallam of Omaha sang "The Wedding Song," "Ave

Maria" and "Since You Asked." He joined Mrs. Pat North of Omaha in singing "With You I'm Born Again."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a white chiffon gown featuring a beaded Alencon lace bodice and a regina neckline with an added cameo design. The sheer lace bishop styled sleeves were cuffed and the waistline fell into a floating chiffon skirt and chapel train.

Her hair, length single-layered veil, which fell from a headpiece covered with re-embroidered Alencon lace and pearls, was bordered in wide bands of lace forming a mantilla effect. The veil was edged in a double row of pearls and fell to a point decorated with a large lace applique and pearl design. She carried a cascade of cymbidium orchids, yellow sweetheart roses, baby's breath and springer fern.

Maid of honor was Jo Anne Konz of Rockford, Ill., and bridesmaids were Jane Loveland of Vermillion, S. D. and Annie Binder of Omaha.

Their formal length gowns of mallard blue Quiana were styled with wrap skirts and shoulder strap bodices. The fashions featured silk Venice lace short sleeved jackets. They carried nosegays of tiger lilies, yellow sweetheart roses and blue baby's breath with yellow lace streamers. A cluster of yellow roses adorned their hair.

Elizabeth and Megan Krick of St. Paul, Minn. were flower girls.

The bridegroom was attired in silver gray talls, a white shirt and gray bow tie. Robert Gonderinger of Omaha served—his brother as best man, and groomsmen were John Cunningham and Kevin Scott, both of Omaha. They wore silver gray tuxedos and rose boutonnières.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Goblirsch chose a peccan beige floor-length knit with beaded trim. A cluster of silk mini orchids adorned the sash. Mrs. Gonderinger selected a mint green floor-length chiffon fashion. She wore a white orchid corsage.

Following the wedding ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. James Goblirsch of Milwaukee, Wis. greeted the 250 guests who attended a reception, buffet and dance at the German-American Society Hall in Omaha.

Shelly Scott of Omaha was at the guest book. Mrs. Donna Strong of South Sioux City and Mrs. Janice Youngren of Omaha cut the wedding cakes. Gifts were arranged by Julie and Susie Youngren, and Lori Strong served punch.

A pre-nuptial dinner was served Sept. 25 at Ross' Steakhouse in Omaha and was hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Following a honeymoon at Tanager Resort at Lake of the Ozarks, the newlyweds will reside in Omaha, where both are employed.

Cats Rally for 34-30 Win

By Diana Daniels
Wayne State SID

The Wayne State College Wildcats put a damper on the Ft. Hays homecoming Saturday though at the opening of the first quarter it looked very much as if the Tigers would have a lot to celebrate. WSC won the game 34-30.

The Tigers scored two touchdowns in the early part of the quarter. The first touchdown was set upon a 32-yard punt return by Brent Blau. Robert Stewart crossed the line on a 10-yard run with 10:47 on the clock to complete the scoring drive. The Wildcats coughed up the ball on the next down and the Tigers recovered and scored on a one yard run by Jeff Briggs. Kicker Mike Ellsworth failed to convert either one of the extra points.

The Wildcats came right back with a touchdown of their own, this one a 71 yard pass play from Kelly Neustrom to Jeff Ingrim. Neustrom would throw two more long passes in the afternoon for Wildcat scores. Kicker Gary Cook seemed to be plagued by the same ailment as Ellsworth and missed the extra point attempt.

The second quarter was a reverse of the first with the Wildcats in command and the touchdowns coming on Neustrom passes not rushes. The Cats' first score came early in the second on a 73 yard pass play from Kelly Neustrom to Pat Maxwell with 12:19 remaining in the half. Neustrom threw another touchdown pass on the next Cat possession, this one a 20 yarder to Ed Blackburn. Gary Cook redeemed himself and made both PAT's.

It looked very much like the Cats would take the eight point lead to the locker room but the Tigers gave their homecoming crowd of 8,000 plus something to cheer about. A Maxwell punt from deep in Wayne's territory gave the Tigers good field position on their own 46-yard line. A 15-yard penalty and a 15-yard Mike Moore to Todd Dobbs pass set up a 15-yard run by Dobbs for the touchdown. The Tigers tied the score at 20-20 with 7:43 remaining, on a two-point conversion play which was a Mike Moore to Robert Stewart pass.

The second half opened with the ball changing hands several times on two punts and a Ft. Hays' interception. The Wildcats went ahead in the third on a 54-yard punt return by Pat Maxwell with 8:47 on the clock. Gary Cook made the extra point to put the Cats in front 27-20, a lead they held on to into the fourth quarter. Ft. Hays came back with a score of its own on a 39-yard field goal by Mike Ellsworth with 5:32 left in the third.

The Wildcats held the advantage through most of the fourth quarter but saw their hopes diminish on a 70 yard run by Jeff Briggs. Mike Ellsworth converted the extra point to put the Tigers up 30-27 with 6:07 remaining.

Wayne State hung in there through, playing tough defense and holding the Tigers back. Rick Lade came into the game for an injured Neustrom and threw the winning touchdown, a 20-yard pass to Randy Frink with 2:42 remaining. Cook's PAT made the score 34-30 which stood until the final gun.

Coach Stollenberg was pleased with the win. "Our kids hung in there and didn't give up," commented Stollenberg. "Kelly threw pretty well, he was able to find the openings for us."

The Wildcats are now at the 500 mark in the conference and overall, the other win over Chadron in the opener and the other loss to Missouri Western, the first conference game.

This week's game features the team with the best offensive passing team in the NAIA.

Washburn University, a conference foe, will be in Wayne this weekend for the annual homecoming football game which is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m.

Washburn is coming off a big win over 17th ranked Pittsburg State. A game in which Washburn's quarterback threw for 387 yards. The final score was 38-36; the game winning score for the Ichabods a 36-yard field goal by a freshman kicker with nine seconds remaining in the game. Washburn is ranked first in passing offense by the NAIA and also has several players making national ratings.

Quarterback Mike Atkins is the NAIA leading passer with 1,004 yards in four games and wide receiver Ron Hamilton leads the NAIA in pass receiving. Atkins and defensive member Alex Sias were both named as CSIC players of the week and Atkins was also named the NAIA player of the week.

The Wildcats will have their work cut out for them this weekend. Coach Stollenberg commented on the Washburn win over Pittsburg. "It just goes to show how close our conference is. Anyone can beat anyone else." He also added, "We'll have to work a lot on our pass defense. Washburn obviously likes to throw the ball and is very effective. We'll be looking for them to do that against us, as well."

Black Belt Gives 'Smashing' Demo

JAMES WILLER of Wayne ends a taekwondo karate demonstration in style at Wayne Carroll High School Tuesday afternoon. Willer, who is a karate instructor, has a black belt in taekwondo and shorin-ryu. He and his advanced students gave a demonstration in the Wayne Carroll lecture hall here. Willer breaks a flaming five inch thick piece of concrete with a karate chop. Willer's classes will begin Tuesday (Oct. 14) in the Mineshaft Mall.

Eighth Grade Continues Winning Pace

The Wayne eighth graders breezed past Schuyler 22-0 Tuesday afternoon for their third consecutive victory of the season. The Blue Devils are still undefeated and have held all three opponents to minus yardage. The game was played at the Wayne Carroll High School practice field.

"Everyone played great ball. They did a good job of blocking, running and tackling," Wayne coach Al Hansen said. "Wayne played with great desire. The defense played great."

Many penalties slowed Wayne on scoring drives. Hansen said his team was over-anxious to get going. Two touchdowns were called back because of illegal motion. The hosts opened their scoring in the first quarter when Kevin Maly rolled 20 yards for a touchdown. Steve Overin scored the two-point conversion.

The lead was stretched to 14-0 at the half when Overin scored on a 12-yard run in the second period. The PAT attempt failed. Kevin Koenig scored the final TD of the game on a 10-yard run and added the two-point conversion for a 22-0 count.

Koenig carried the ball 16 times for 101 yards and Overin carried 12 times for 99 yards. Other leading rushers were Brad Moore with seven carries for 54 yards, Chris Wieseler with five carries for 32 yards and Kevin Maly with 34 yards in only two carries.

Overin completed one pass in three attempts for 17 yards. Maly was on the receiving end of the completion for 38 of 17 yards. Defensively, Maly had five tackles and Rod Lutt, Moore and Koenig had four tackles each. A fifth quarter was played for practice to give the two teams some extra experience. That quarter was scoreless.

The fourth and final game of the season for the eighth graders is scheduled at 4:30 p.m., Tuesday (Oct. 14) on the home turf against West Point CC.

Lady Cats Split CSIC Matches

The Wayne State College Wildcats played tough matches over the weekend against their conference opponents, beating Washburn but losing to both Kearney and Pittsburg.

The Lady Cats played Pittsburg State dropping three straight games (14-16, 11-15, 6-15). The first match was extended into extra points against the Gussies who are now ranked second in the conference. The second match of the weekend was against fifth ranked Washburn University. This match went four games with Wayne State emerging 15-9, 15-9, 10-15 and 15-6.

The third match was against rival Kearney State. The Kearney team had just played a five game match against Pittsburg, but the Lady Cats lost the match in four games 3-15, 2-15, 15-10 and 6-15.

Wayne State's conference record stands at 1-4, the other loss at the hands of top ranked Missouri Western last week.

The Lady Cats were scheduled to play at home yesterday (Wednesday) against non-conference foe Nebraska Wesleyan and Platte Community College. Platte Community College is 10-5-2 overall, leading the national Junior College Athletic Conference, region 9 with a 7-0 record. In the Nebraska Junior College Conference, Platte leads with a 6-0 record.

Trojans Handle Osmond in Three

Wakefield's varsity volleyball team improved its record to 6-4 with a victory over Osmond 13-15, 15-8, 17-15, Tuesday night in Osmond. The Trojans had split action with Wynot, West Point and Hartington in the last two weeks.

Terl Schwarten and Jeanni Tullberg were the leading setters. Coach Ernie Kovar reported that Schwarten and Tullberg played well.

Schuyler Defense Trims Wayne Junior Varsity

Defense was prominent as Wayne's junior varsity football team lost a heartbreaker to Schuyler 6-0, Monday afternoon at the Wayne High School practice field.

Wayne's final threat was set up on a 53-yard pass play from Mark Hummel to Terry Gilliland. The threat ended at the Schuyler 12-yard line.

trilled 12-9 in the final set but came back to win that one 17-15. Wakefield won the B team match 11-7, 11-6 and lost the freshman match 6-11, 11-8, 5-11.

Wayne Places 6th

Tough competition and tough luck resulted in Wayne settling for sixth place in the South Sioux City Volleyball Invitational, played Monday and Tuesday.

Sept. 25. Deb Foote scored 13 points and had 11 ace spikes for Wakefield. Coleen Neuhaus had nine ace spikes.

SPORTS BRIEFS

"The girls had a good tournament considering the competition and other circumstances," Dalton said. "We will try to revamp and rebuild for the rest of the season."

Wakefield defeated Hartington 15-9, 15-13 on Tuesday, Sept. 23. Terl Schwarten scored 13 points, Coleen Neuhaus had six ace spikes and Rita Wilson had five ace spikes.

Next action for the Trojans is scheduled, Tuesday at once beaten Walthill.

According to Randy Hascall

WHEN WAKEFIELD AND WINSIDE clash on the football field Friday the 17th, there may be more riding on the game than a shot at the Clark Division title.

has won at least 34 percent but not more than 66 percent of its games played e.g. 5-3, 5-4, 4-4, 4-5, 3-5.

I'M SURE MANY people still don't understand the point system used by the Nebraska School Activities Association to determine playoff teams.

Oh, by the way, scores of games do not affect the number of points a team receives for a particular game. In other words, a score of 7-6 will result in the same number of points as a score of 84-0.

The following point evaluation scale will determine a team's total points: victory over first division team 50 points, victory over second division team 45 points, victory over third division team 40 points.

FOLLOWERS OF Wayne's successful cross country team (unfortunately there aren't many in this sport but Wayne probably has more followers than most teams) may be interested to know that the top three teams in each district and the top five individuals will advance to the state tournament.

A first division team is a team which has won more than 66 percent of its games e.g. 9-0, 8-1, 7-2, 6-3.

VOLLEYBALL STATS have again been released by the NSAA and several local players are among the state leaders in various categories.

63 attempts. Winside teammate Laurie Gallip is the 10th place individual in the ace spikes department. She has 42 ace spikes.

OUT OF CURIOSITY I searched back through our files to see how my pre-season Major League baseball predictions compare with the actual division champions.

I picked only two division champions: Houston in the National League West and Kansas City in the American League East. However, I had picked California to place second in the AL West and Cincinnati to nip Los Angeles for second in the NL West.

I HAD HOPED to move Nebraska up to number one in my top 10 this week after a win over Florida State. So much for that.

Randy's ratings:

- | Top 10 | Bottom 10 |

| 1. Texas (4-0) | 1. Northwestern (0-5) |
| 2. Alabama (4-0) | 2. Texas-Paso (0-4) |

Eagles Dominate Home Opener

Allen coach Gary Troth must have felt like King Midas, Tuesday night. His volleyball team had a touch of gold while easily defeating Bancroft 15-0, 15-8.

"It seemed that everytime we touched the ball it turned to gold," Troth said after the win. "Our setting and serving was excellent. Lisa Erwin's spiking was real good."

Allen dominated the first game from the opening serve. The Eagles played nearly flawless ball while breezing past their Lewis Division counterparts 15-0. Bancroft had a difficult time controlling Allen's spikes and serves throughout the match.

In fact, while attempting to return a serve that was drilled across the net, a Bancroft player bumped the ball to the ceiling and the ball came to rest on top of an air vent, where it remained the rest of the evening.

Allen dominated the second game but not to the same degree as the first. The hosts scored two or three points in surges and eventually came away with a 15-8 win and a two-game sweep. It was Allen's first home match of the season.

"We played well and put constant pressure on them (Bancroft)," Troth said. "We needed the win. We had played well most of the season but still had three losses to Walthill.

JANET PETERSON (21) sets the ball up for a spike as Lisa Erwin (23) prepares to do the honors. Also in the picture is Colette Kraemer (10). Allen defeated Bancroft Tuesday night.

Allen lost the B team match 14-16, 12-15. Because there was no freshman match, Troth played 18 girls in the reserve contest. "We were flat. The subs did as well as the starters," said Troth.

Corn Board Examines Sugar Use

The American consumer, increasingly concerned with the impact of diet on health, is turning more and more to corn as a source of sugar.

One form of sugar found in corn is called fructose. The American corn industry's production of corn syrup with high concentrations of fructose increased five fold from 1974 to last year.

This year, consumers in this country and abroad are expected to use 4.7 billion pounds of fructose, Andrea Roberts of the Nebraska Corn Board, said. This should increase by almost 47 percent to 6.9 billion pounds in the next two years, she said.

The increase in consumer interest has caused the corn board to seek more information about the effects of larger amounts of fructose on the human body.

The board awarded a $40,000 one-year grant to Dr. Robert E. Hodges, University of Nebraska Medical Center nutritionist, to study the effects of fructose on diabetics and on the improvement of athletic performance.

Dr. Hodges, a native of Marshalltown, Iowa, is chief of the Clinical Nutrition Section in the Department of Internal Medicine at the Medical Center. He arrived there in June from the University of California, Davis, where he headed a similar unit for nine years.

"Table sugar," Dr. Hodges said, "is called sucrose. One of the two molecules that comprise sucrose is glucose.

"There is a reason to believe that protein changes caused by excessive levels of glucose in the blood cause accumulation of abnormal proteins in the small blood vessels of various organs and might be one of the early factors in the diabetic complications affecting the kidney, the retina of the eye and other organs."

Fructose from corn as a substitute sweetener in the diets of diabetics could be important, Dr. Hodges said. Studies indicate that to most persons fructose tastes sweeter than table sugar and it is available in the body longer since it is absorbed into the blood stream more slowly. As a result, it is less apt to trigger a rapid release of insulin within the body.

If the conclusions of the previous studies are confirmed by Dr. Hodges' work, it might show that diabetics could eat foods sweetened with sugar from corn and, in the process, actually achieve more effective control of their diabetes.

In a second study, Dr. Hodges will repeat tests that demonstrated that athletes performed better if they ate large quantities of carbohydrates for three days before competing in athletic events.

He will determine whether fructose from corn can provide an athlete with a carbohydrate supply for longer periods than table sugar or starch.

Dr. Hodges published two textbooks on nutrition in the last year. He has served as president of the American Society for Clinical Nutrition and the American Board of Nutrition.

He was a consultant for the Federal Food and Drug Administration and the World Health Organization. Dr. Hodges was a member of a food and nutrition board of the National Academy of Sciences and served for 10 years on a nutrition advisory committee for the U.S. Army Surgeon General.

Railroad Retirement Act Passage in Senate Urged

Congressman Doug Bereuter has urged the Senate to pass legislation to extend certain cost-of-living increases for railroad retirement benefits and to direct labor and management to come up with a long-term solution to financial problems of the railroad retirement system.

"This legislation would guarantee railroad retirees their cost of living adjustment in 1981, while negotiations proceed for a long-range solution to financial problems of the retirement system," Bereuter said.

Bereuter called for Senate passage of the Railroad Retirement Act Amendments (H.R. 8195), which the House approved this week.

"Unfortunately, the Senate will not act until after Nov. 12, when it reconvenes."

The bill provides for one additional cost-of-living adjustment for certain railroad retirement benefits, called Tier II benefits, to take place in June, 1981.

The bill also requires railroad labor and management to submit to Congress by March 1, 1981, a joint proposal for a long-term solution to the system's financial difficulties.

"The railroad retirement system is in serious financial trouble," Bereuter said. "The system is now running at a four percent deficit and will run out of funds sometime between early 1982 and 1984, unless action is taken."

Students Sought for Australia

Are you a high school student (14-18) who always dreamed of spending a high school year in another country but were afraid to apply because of the language barrier?

Well, now's your chance to make your dream come true.

Youth for Understanding International Exchange Program (YFU) is offering high school students in Wayne the chance to attend school while living in a foreign country where English is the primary language! Australia - land of the Outback and Koala bear - can be your host country for the academic experience of your life.

YFU, one of the largest nonprofit exchange programs, has just a limited number of openings available for the upcoming cycle, so you better apply fast! Because of the different academic year (from January to December) student applications must be received no later than Nov. 1.

Interested in going to Australia but worried about the expense? Stop worrying. YFU has financial aid scholarships available to those who qualify, based on scholastic ability and need. But don't delay. Financial aid applications must be received by YFU no later than Oct. 15.

Accepted student applicants are matched with carefully selected host families in Australia, and are treated as family members, not guests.

Since its inception nearly 30 years ago, YFU has arranged the exchange of more than 70,000 students in 40 countries, supported by a dedicated professional and volunteer staff throughout the world.

YFU receives an annual grant from the federal government's International Communication Agency (formerly the Bureau of Education and Cultural Affairs) in addition to foundation and corporate donations. With an underlying philosophy based on improving cross-cultural relations through its unique host family program, YFU maintains program offices (in the U.S. and abroad) which offer guidance and support services to all involved, throughout the exchange experience.

YFU also sponsors other exchange programs (summer and academic year) in countries including the Far East, Europe and Latin America.

For more information, write: Director/U.S. Programs, Youth for Understanding International Exchange, 3501 Newark St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20016 or call 202 966 6808.

Pork Producers Cite Lameness As Major Production Problem

Lame pigs are a nuisance. Lame pigs may cost money. Lame pigs are a problem.

For some pork producers, lameness in pigs is a major production problem; for others, these types of problems are infrequent.

According to Bill Ahlswede, extension swine specialist at the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, University of Nebraska, pork producers rate feet and leg problems of pigs among the hardest to solve.

One of the reasons that the problem persists, Ahlswede said, is that there are many causes, involving cuts, bruises, infections, genetics and nutrition.

Ahlswede said he suspects that most lameness problems are related to cuts and bruises to the feet and legs.

"We've shown at the University of Nebraska Northeast Station near Concord that the type of floor can cause major changes in the condition of the foot," Ahlswede explained.

Rough slot edges can tear up the bottom of the foot. These cuts can lead to infections which apparently migrate to the higher joints, the specialist continued.

"The effect of rough concrete on the pig's foot is increased by fighting or pushing among pigs. Fighting or rough handling often causes permanent injuries to the joint such as damage to the bone surfaces," Ahlswede reported.

And continued wetness seems to make the problem worse, he added.

Genetic causes of feet and leg unsoundness are much discussed in the industry, the university specialist said. Yet, available research does not provide as much assurance of genetic involvement in feet and leg soundness as many producers feel it does, he pointed out.

Two recent studies indicate that there are genetic differences in soundness. However, researchers were unable to show that unsound boars sired pigs that were unsound. Pigs sired by sound and unsound boars received equal soundness ratings, Ahlswede stated.

Ahlswede said he concluded from this research that while there likely are important genetic differences in pigs, boar selection alone is not sufficient to cause a change. He pointed out that this doesn't mean producers should disregard soundness when selecting boars and gilts.

"The breeding stock must be sound enough to be productive," he stressed. Boars with sore feet and legs will not breed. Sows must be sufficiently sound to receive the boar and to function in the farrowing house.

Ahlswede said that breeding stock should be able to move free and easy and have a skeletal conformation which will allow them to function in the producer's system.

Finally, nutritional causes of lameness need to be considered when lameness problems occur, Ahlswede said. When problems arise, producers should check diet formulation and mixing procedures to be certain that

Saving Natural Resources, Making A Profit Are Topics

Conserving natural resources while making a profit in farming formed an unofficial theme for the annual Agronomy Field Day at the University of Nebraska Field Laboratory near Mead Sept. 12.

More than 400 farmers and agribusinessmen attended the field day, which spotlighted research by NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources agronomy department staff members.

When water for irrigation becomes generally limited, farmers in corn-dominated Nebraska may want to consider growing grain sorghum, said Professor Jerry Eastin. Research conducted at Mead and at Garden City, Kan., suggests that sorghum may have the advantage over corn when low to intermediate levels of water are available.

"Kansas results show that sorghum gives about 1.5 more bushels per acre inch of water under those conditions," he said.

The difference is attributable to the growth patterns of the two crops, Eastin said. Corn was still filling grain on the field day, he noted, while sorghum had finished about two weeks earlier. Additional water in the latter part of the growing season would not benefit sorghum, but could be used by the corn.

Eastin said farmers who irrigate are probably best off continuing with corn, but those who need or want to "stretch" their water should consider growing sorghum. Farmers should look closely at subsoil moisture in the latter case, he added.

Sorghum grown in rotation with soybeans provides another opportunity for resource and dollar savings, field day participants were told. Max Clegg, sorghum physiologist, discussed results of a seven-year study comparing continuous sorghum with a sorghum-soybean rotation, with and without added nitrogen.

Because soybeans are a nitrogen-fixing crop, the experiment was designed to see if and how much nitrogen would be available to sorghum after soybeans. The soybean variety used was Amsoy 71 and the sorghum hybrid was DeKalb E-597. In 1975 - a year with moisture conditions much like 1980 - continuous sorghum grown without added nitrogen yielded 70 bushels per acre. Sorghum grown in rotation with beans with no added nitrogen yielded 80 bushels per acre.

In that same year, continuous sorghum with 100 pounds of N added per acre yielded 88 bushels while the sorghum in rotation with 50 pounds of N added yielded 96 bushels per acre. "Depending on the year, grain sorghum could obtain a major portion of its nitrogen requirement from a soybean crop grown in rotation," Clegg said.

Another element, phosphorus, also can be conserved and the soil and the corn crop will benefit in the process, said Professor Robert Olson. "You can't manufacture phosphorus out of nothing - you have to have mineral phosphorus to begin with," Olson reminded participants.

In a continuing study begun seven years ago, Olson is studying the rates of applied phosphorus needed to maintain satisfactory soil levels for optimum yields of irrigated corn. Soil at the Mead field lab and in much of southeast Nebraska is a Sharpsburg silty clay loam, Olson noted. After seven years, the experiment shows an average seven bushel per acre yield response at the 175 bushel level to 20 pounds of applied phosphorus, with no additional response to higher rates.

"When you have more than enough already, it won't do any good to add more," Olson said. "Twelve to 15 pounds of P would maintain sufficient levels for acceptable yields," he said.

Excessive use of nutrients can have a depressive effect on the farmer's pocketbook, too, according to results in another long-term study by Olson. From 1973 to 1979, soil samples from Mead corn plots were submitted to five testing labs, including the NU Soil Testing Laboratory. Corn plots were then grown using the labs' recommendations.

Over the years, there was no significant difference in yield between the five labs, but the per-acre cost was significant, Olson said. The highest-yielding plot averaged 160 bushels per acre per year at a cost of $39 for added nutrients. The lowest-yielding plot, the one grown according to NU recommendations, averaged 157 bushels annually, but cost of added nutrients was only $31, Olson said.

At the beginning of the study, the five labs varied widely in their recommendations for adding nitrogen, he said, but they are now much closer together in the amount they advise. Currently, there is more variation in amounts of micronutrients, potassium and sulfur recommended by the five labs, he said.

Another field day presenter, Professor Jim Williams, pointed out that one of the most efficient and cost effective ways to combat a crop disease is with resistant seed. Field day participants got a close look at Nebraska soybean breeding projects which include variety evaluation for desirable characteristics. Williams noted that while phytophthora root rot is more a problem for soybean growers further east, some few cases of the disease have been reported in the Nebraska area. Four varieties being evaluated at Mead are showing resistance to phytophthora, Williams said: Wells 11, Corsoy 79, Beeson 80 and Williams 79. These could be important if this disease problem developed here, he said.

Other energy and dollar efficient developments presented at the field day included the top 10 corn hybrids, results of corn population studies, nitrate management, minimum tillage and soybean weed control with height-differential herbicide applicators.

Top Rating to Newspaper

The Wayne Star, the Wayne State newspaper, earned a Five Star All-American rating for its editors in the spring term 1980. Editors Karen Forrester of South Sioux City and Mark Reinders formerly of Curlew, Iowa, now resident director of Nelhardt Hall, received the rating announcement Thursday from Associated Collegiate Press, a national organization which judges several hundred newspapers and yearbooks each semester.

The Five-Star rating is a first for the Star. It goes to newspapers that earn the ACP Mark of Distinction in all five categories of judging: for coverage and content; for writing and editing; for editorial leadership and opinion features; for physical appearance and visual communication; and for photography, art and graphics.

An All-American rating requires four Marks of Distinction, which the Star has received three times previously, advisor Dick Manley said.

The Five-Star rating makes the Wayne Star eligible for a still higher award, that of Pacemaker National judging for this honor selects a few newspapers of exceptional merit. Key staff members of the Spring Star, in addition to Forrester and Reinders, were Pat Lenihan of Council Bluffs, Iowa, as photography editor and Nancy Rude of Hornick, Iowa, as sports editor.

For Reinders it was the second All-American. He and co-editor Mike KOKORUZ, formerly of Tekamah and now living in Springfield, Ill., and their staff gained the honor in spring term 1979. Reinders is one of the few to serve three semesters as Star editor.

Karen Forrester is a senior, majoring in Journalism and Spanish. Reinders graduated last May with an English major.

Housewives Right: Cold Water Washes Well

American housewives knew it all along, but now comes the Veterans Administration to prove them right: You can do the wash just as well with cool water and save money to boot. With burgeoning energy costs boosting the amount VA (and taxpayers) must pay to provide clean linens for the nation's largest health care system, officials sought ways of trimming the bill.

The problem was to reduce energy usage but assure that VA laundries were still able to produce hygienically clean linens. To solve it, the agency's Building Management Service turned to the VA Medical Center in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and the Val Chemical Co., of nearby Sayre.

Sensors were installed in the laundry's water heater to control the temperature at 85 degrees Fahrenheit, and a Val Chemical technician set up special washing formulas, and supervised the training of VA employees in their use. Some minor problems cropped up, but were soon solved. Grease-type stains, for example, were found to need warmer water, so linens from the hospital kitchen were washed the first load in the morning at 115 degrees.

The results were dramatic, according to VA officials. During the first six months, BTU requirements have been reduced 40 percent — 250,000 BTUs weekly. The test data also shows that the cost of washing supplies for a 400 pound load has been reduced from $2.09 to $1.71 when using the cooler water. And VA engineers now calculate that the washing techniques will result in a VA-side savings of two billion BTUs annually.

In addition, fabric tensile strength and whiteness retention have been "excellent" under the cool water procedure and the Wilkes-Barre hospital's bacteriologist reports that cultures revealed no pathogens present.

Story Chides Bereuter

Rex Story, Democratic candidate for First District Congress, has charged his opponent with serious abuses of congressional privileges. A recent mailing from Bereuter to select constituents under the Congressional franking privilege highlights the abuse the incumbent has demonstrated during his first term in Congress.

The recent mailing, targeted to members of the National Rifle Association, informs the recipients that he is a co-sponsor of an NRA endorsed bill on gun control. Great pain is taken to give the appearance of a non-political message and thereby avoid the legal definition of abuse. However, Story contends that "since the letter was sent to NRA members and is designed to show Bereuter's agreement with the Association's bill, it can be for no other reason than to show he has earned their support and (the letter) is geared primarily to gain him votes in the election."

"If the letter was to be informational, why wasn't it sent to all constituents rather than just those who he feels would agree with his stand? Could there be a specific reason why Doug Bereuter would want to appease the NRA and inform their members about it?" Story questioned. "Maybe it's because

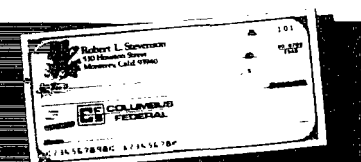

Doug Bereuter has received more money from the NRA than any other Congressman. Over $15,000 from one special interest group. I am not advocating gun control or anything either pro or con NRA. I just feel that one person should not be so influenced by any special interest organization. There is definitely an appearance of impropriety here and I believe an explanation from my opponent is not only justified but absolutely necessary.

As a Congressman I would represent all my constituents and not be bought off by any special interest groups or use my Congressional privileges to conduct a purely political activity. Bereuter apparently lacks such scruples, as he has used his franking privileges to send out a politically motivated, targeted mailing to a select group of constituents," Story proclaimed.

Story emphasized his views are basically in agreement with the NRA's positions. His criticism is due primarily to the fact that he believes no public official should be so influenced by any special interest group.

"The issue is not the support or lack of support for gun regulation, but is the acceptance of a considerably large contribution and the subsequent catering to the members of the special interest group making the contribution. No matter what the initial intentions are, a recipient of large contributions is going to feel some obligation to return the favor in some form or another. There is just too much opportunity for abuse in a situation such as this. To eliminate any confusion that may have arisen, my opponent should make a complete disclosure of these related activities," Story challenged.

Editorial Task Force Suggests Government Changes

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Significant changes in the organization of the state government would result if 88 recommendations of a 55-member task force were implemented. The group recently submitted its suggested changes to Gov. Charles Thone, who said he would work for implementation of those recommendations with which he agrees but reserved the right to turn down those he didn't like. The task force's 159-page report said the executive branch is too big and expensive and should be reorganized. The task force, whose members came from the private sector in all parts of the state, proposed trimming expenditures and the number of state employees by 15 percent over a three-year period, the elimination of advocacy agencies, and shifting some agencies such as the Health Department and the Game and Parks Commission to the direct control of the governor. The programs of the advocacy agencies, such as the Mexican American Commission and the Commission on Aging, would come under the control of other agencies. Another task force proposal was that many agencies be placed under five executive offices, which would help eliminate duplication and aid the coordination of services. Also proposed was that the daily operation of the executive branch be given to a chief of staff who would double as director of the Department of Administrative Services. Such an arrangement, the report said, would allow the governor and his executive and administrative assistants more time to address "substantive issues." The task force said implementation of all of its recommendations would result in a saving of $19 million, far below what would be needed to arrive at the recommended 15 percent reduction. The task force said other needed cuts would be left to the discretion of administrators. The report said the authority of the governor should be strengthened because the governor is held responsible for all state government operations but controls only about half of the budget and 25 percent of state employees.

Project meetings to begin
Wayne will be the site on Nov. 3 of the first in a series of 49 meetings across the state that will be part of Nebraska 2000 — Gov. Charles Thone's long-range planning project designed to encourage the public to help seek solutions to state problems in the next century. During a recent briefing on the project, Lt. Gov. Roland Luedtke said the proposed solutions will then be available as long-range policies for consideration and implementation by the Legislature. He said there will be public meetings in each of the 49 legislative districts between Nov. 3 and next summer. Legislators will be encouraged to take an active part in the meetings that will be aimed at having citizens involved in charting the state's course in the years ahead. Thone announced the Nebraska 2000 project during his first Statehood Day address in 1979. Luedtke and Alan Cramer, Wayne Herald publisher, were named several months ago as co-chairmen of a planning committee of 20 members. The committee has identified 14 areas for study — water, housing, food, health care, protection, education, transportation, environment, cultural enhancement, energy, recreation, human services, economic development, and government. Cramer said Nov. 3 was selected for the pilot meeting because that will be the day before the election when citizen interest should be high. Luedtke said citizen input will be advisory only but added the project is "an attempt to plan ahead responsibly and intelligently." Gas tax increased

On Oct. 1 the state gas tax increased 2.8 cents per gallon under a law passed by the 1980 Legislature. The increase boosted the tax from 10.5 cents to 13.3 cents per gallon. Of the increase, one cent is a fixed tax to generate more money for road building and maintenance by city and county governments. The other 1.8 cents isn't a fixed figure and may vary month by month. The variable tax was designed to make sure the state Roads Department has a reliable source of funding. The department's income had been falling because of a decline in gas consumption. The tax is computed as 2 percent of the average price the state paid for fuel for state vehicles during the previous month. But in October the tax is figured on the basis of the 90 cents a gallon the state was paying when the law was enacted last spring. Also, the rate set for November will be kept in December to make it possible to print forms Nebraskans use to obtain tax refunds for off-road fuel consumption. After the new law has been in operation for one year, the state Board of Equalization will be able to raise the 2 percent figure to ensure that the amount collected will be enough to cover spending authorized by the Legislature that year. Waiting for federal evaluation Philip Garon, a U.S. Energy Department spokesman, has advised many states are waiting for federal officials to evaluate Nebraska's emergency energy conservation plan before devising their own plans. A 1979 law urged states to submit plans to the Energy Department but Nebraska is the only one to have done so. The plan would be used in cases of severe fuel shortages. According to Garon, many states are viewing the Nebraska plan as a precedent and are waiting for comment from federal officials before submitting their plans. He said a preliminary version of the federal plan would require motorists to leave their cars home one or more days a week and would require employers to shorten the work week as a fuel-saving measure. Nebraska Energy Director William Palmer said his office prepared the state plan and sent it to federal officials last summer. The Nebraska plan emphasizes voluntary measures but would empower the governor to require minimum gasoline purchases if lines formed at service stations. How much of a minimum purchase would be allowed would be left to the governor's discretion. The state plan would also call on drivers not to use their cars on certain days. If the state had to reduce fuel consumption by 10 percent, drivers would be asked to leave their cars at home one day in 12. If a 15 percent reduction was needed, drivers would be asked not to use their vehicles one day of every six days. Palmer said Nebraska motorists reduced gas consumption by 11 percent during the first seven months of this year.

We Salute Our 4-H'ers

A letter to the editor elsewhere on this page calls readers' attention to the objectives and accomplishments of Wayne County 4-H'ers. Using the theme "Expanding Horizons", more than 30,000 Nebraska 4-H'ers and 306 Wayne County 4-H'ers are celebrating National 4-H Week through Saturday. Throughout the week, members of the state's largest out of school organization are taking part in special activities focusing on 4-H values. The theme challenges 4-H members to seek new knowledge, acquire life skills and build on personal strengths. Members are encouraged to strengthen their leadership abilities and to assume positive roles in society. Wayne County 4-H'ers are no different in their objectives than others in the state. The 26 4-H clubs and the Teen Supreme Junior Leaders elect their own officers, help plan their own programs and choose their own projects, selecting those which meet their interests and life style. 4-H members learn by doing, becoming involved in a variety of practical, real life activities which help develop individual potential.

Most 4-H clubs put special emphasis on community responsibilities — citizenship, consumer education, environmental conservation, health, safety, leadership development, community beautification and nutrition. The five most popular projects last year among Wayne County 4-H'ers and the number of participants were as follows: Beef project, 64 members, junior leader project 41 members, swine project, 34 members, fashion flair project, 32 members, design all around project, 32 members, tricks for treats, 32 members. The enthusiasm of county 4-H'ers is evident by these figures. This is one youth organization that is not lacking because of apathy. We would like to think that other youth organizations could look to the Wayne County 4-H program for leadership. The Wayne County program has a diversity of personnel as well. There are 54 men plus 94 women leaders, 90 different projects and 13 boys and 28 girls who are junior leaders assisted. We would like to officially recognize the efforts of our Wayne County 4-H members and congratulate them for their continued success.

Oct. 7, 1980

Dear Editor:
This week, Oct. 5-11, is National 4-H Week. It is a very special week all across America. As the nation's largest youth education organization, 4-H reaches approximately 5 1/2 million youth today.

These young people, regardless of sex, color, creed or national origin, carry out the principles of 4-H as developed by volunteer leaders, county extension agents and other personnel of the Cooperative Extension Service of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, University of Nebraska.

Members between the ages of 9 and 19 come from every community — rural, suburban and metropolitan. They may enroll in almost any project or activity imaginable. These projects range from home economics to agriculture, from citizenship to photography. Activities range from meeting government officials to pizza parties; from county fairs to national competitions.

Over 64,000 4-H'ers in Nebraska are instructed in leadership, citizenship, community development and beautification, sportsmanship, consumer education, health, safety and nutrition. Members of organized 4-H clubs elect their own officers, help plan their own programs, and choose their own projects, selecting those which meet their interests and life style.

It should be noted that your newspaper has been very supportive of this group of young people through your excellent coverage of their activities throughout the year. On behalf of the 4-H clubs of Northeast Nebraska, I would like to take this opportunity to thank The Wayne Herald for the time it devotes to informing the public of the 4-H activities in this area. Keep up the good work!

Thank you very much!

Issue 2: Judge Discipline

Editor's Note: Nebraskans will be voting on 4 issues when they go to the general election polls on November 4. So that voters can better understand these important issues that would change the State's Constitution, the Nebraska Press Association in cooperation with this newspaper, has prepared a series of news reports on each of the 4 proposed issues. Each story in the series concentrates on a single issue, briefly defining the issue, explaining its purpose and finally stating the arguments both for and against the issue.

2. JUDGES' DISCIPLINE AMENDMENT

"Constitutional amendment to change membership of the Commission on Judicial Qualifications and to provide additional disciplinary measures and an additional ground for discipline applicable to a Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge."
PURPOSE: Nebraska's Constitution currently includes provisions for a Commission on Judicial Qualifications with the power to remove judges from office if it finds them guilty of offenses such as misconduct in office, intemperance or moral offenses. The amendment would change the membership of the commission, add an offense under which proceedings could be initiated against judges, permit lesser sanctions in addition to removal from office, and provide for more public access to proceedings. Specifically, the composition of the commission would be three judges, three lawyers, three lay persons and the Chief Justice, instead of the current six judges; two lawyers and two lay persons. The new offense would be "conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute." In addition to removal from office, the amendment would permit reprimands, suspensions and censures. Where much of the commission's business is now conducted in secret by law, the amendment would require open hearings in some cases.

SUPPORT: Legal community sources that support the amendment contend that the addition of lesser sanctions will make the disciplinary process more effective in cases previously not considered serious enough to warrant removal of a judge from office. The proposed composition of the commission would be better balanced, and public awareness would improve the process, they said.

OPPOSITION: The major opposition arguments arose during discussion of the measure in the 1980 Legislature. Among them is the charge that allowance of lighter penalties would permit judges to remain on the bench who previously could have been removed and the complaint that the amendment's provision for private reprimands in some cases would represent a "slap on the wrist."

Theodore Roosevelt holds the record for president's handshake. He shook hands with 8,513 people on New Year's Day, 1907.

Match Authority with Responsibility: Thone

"Many Nebraska citizens have complained to me about certain policies of state executive agencies and have been shocked to learn that the Governor has no authority to change many of those policies. The Governor's Task Force for Government Improvement has just submitted a comprehensive report on Nebraska state government, and one of their findings confirms rather forcefully the expectations of Nebraskans. The report states... the people do hold the governor responsible for all that state government does or fails to do. The task force concluded the governor's authority falls seriously short of that needed to match his responsibilities." "During its recent study of Nebraska state government the task force determined that the governor directly supervises less than 25 percent of the state work force. The report of the task force was delivered to me in the last week of September. I am going to spend considerable time reviewing it to decide which of the detailed recommendations will have my personal support." "The 55 members of the task force who donated their talent, their time and their money to make this study deserve our gratitude. They paid for their own travel, food and lodging expenses during the almost five-month study. They attended countless task force meetings, committee meetings and 15 public hearings in every part of Nebraska. At their normal rate of compensation in the private sector, plus their expenses, their donation to the state amounted to more than a quarter of a million dollars.

"I will always be thankful to Earl T. Luff of Lincoln, chairman of the task force, and to each of the other 54 members. The task force's report emphasizes that there are 71 state agencies, boards and commissions which are a part of Nebraska's executive branch of government but over which the governor has minimal authority.

"My chief goals as governor are to make government more responsive and accountable to taxpayers, to improve delivery of unneeded services while eliminating unneeded services, to limit regulations of state government upon businesses and citizens, to make state government more cost effective and to reduce the number of state employees. "The recommendations from the task force that I take to the legislature and the people will be those which complement and aid in reaching all those objectives. Nearly every citizen of the state will agree, I believe, with the task force's conclusion that Nebraska can no longer afford a government which has grown like Topsy and which includes many activities it does not need."

Out of Old Nebraska

Memories of Buffalo Bill, 1917
William F. "Buffalo Bill" Cody was one of the most famous personalities in Nebraska — and American — history. After his death in Denver, Jan. 10, 1917, the Jan. 27, 1917, "Nebraska State Journal" reprinted from the "Tacoma (Washington) Ledger" a tribute to Cody by former Nebraska Governor Ezra P. Savage, then living in Tacoma. Savage had known the famous frontiersman and show business personality as a boy and had followed his later career with interest. Despite some exaggeration of Cody's abilities and personal qualities, Savage's reminiscences are of interest. "When biographers and historians have written their final word of Colonel William F. Cody and the career of this internationally famous character, 'Buffalo Bill' will have had no finer or more sincere tribute paid to his memory than that spoken by his life-long friend, E. P. Savage... as he sat before the fireplace in his home at 5201 Alaska Street," the "Ledger" said. "Colonel Cody and Governor Savage were schoolboy pals in Davenport, Ia., in the early '50's, and the friendship that began in the school yard has survived through more than a half century, rekindled and re-emphasized by occasional meetings in various parts of the United States." "Did I know Bill Cody? — and Governor Savage looked into the flames of a crackling wood fire for a full minute, and emitted musically, reminiscently, 'I knew him from one side of the continent to the other; from San Francisco to New York; from Cody, Wyo., to New Orleans, and many places between...'" "It was along in 1856 that Cody came down from LeClaire to go to school in Davenport — it was a new country in those days and along the river schools were scarce. Professor Kissel — I recall him, too. He was our teacher. Cody, Park, McManus and myself were great friends. We were all strong, husky boys over six feet and of about the same age. I do not believe there was over three months difference in our ages. (Savage is mistaken. He was born in 1842 and Cody in 1846.) "Cody started his first show at North Platte and came down to Omaha, where on the fair grounds he assembled his horses, Indians and outfit in the early '60's. I saw the first rehearsal of the show, and, in fact, was in it with my oldest son. I rode in the stage coach that was held up as a part of the entertainment. "There was nothing of the bully about Bill Cody. Even among the cowboys, he was peaceable and quiet and never was in any fuss or trouble of his own making.... While he had only a common school education, in fact, quite common, I do not know another man that had his practical education.... He was reared in what might be called, and what, in reality, was rough life, yet whether it was when dining with Queen Victoria at a ball given by the queen and attended by Europe's nobility, or at receptions, inaugurations or fetes in his own country, there was not a more graceful or more polished gentleman present than Cody. He learned from observation, but improved on his teacher. Such men are scarce. "He exerted a wonderful influence among the western cowboys.... One time at Ogallala I had come up to buy some cattle with a friend and we met Cody. We arrived there from North Platte about 3 o'clock in the morning and the only light burning in the town was in a saloon. About 100 cowboys had been making things interesting, ordering out all the lights or shooting out those that were not put out willingly. We got off the train and Cody suggested we get a drink before going to bed. When we went into the bar room there was a fearful din going on — shooting and a general 'big time.' We had not walked the length of the room until Cody was recognized. 'It's Buffalo Bill, boys,' was the word passed, and the noise died instantly. Cody said nothing. He tosses a $20 gold piece on the bar and said, 'Come on, boys, have a drink.' They all responded and it probably was twenty minutes later that Cody turned and said: 'Well, boys, it's about time to turn in now. Good night.' And there wasn't another yip out of the crowd that night. They did more than merely fear and respect Buffalo Bill. They loved him." "When Colonel Cody was in Tacoma in 1915 (there) occurred the last meeting of the long friendship. He was dinner guest of Gov. and Mrs. Savage. A highly prized memento is a pass given to Gov. Savage in 1908, which reads: 'Col. Wm. F. Cody, Buffalo Bill.' In the handwriting of the giver, and opposite the date line Cody wrote, 'Good Forever.'" Pat Gaster, Nebraska State Historical Society.

TRACY OTTE, Wayne, a member of the high school marching band, has been nominated for McDonald's All American Band. If chosen, she will be among 104 band members to perform at several prestigious locations this year.

Tracy Otte Nominated To All-American Band

Dedication, long hours of hard work, tough practice and field drills sound like the schedule of a star athlete.

But for Tracy Otte, Wayne daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Otte, these same daily rigors have paid off musically. She has been nominated to the 1980 McDonald's All American High School Band.

Otte's nomination was announced by Howard Hall who operates the McDonald's restaurant in Norfolk.

Only the finest high school musicians are considered. Hall explained, "Being nominated to the band is a real tribute to an individual's talent, and we're proud of each student nominated."

Otte was nominated for the McDonald's band by Wayne Carroll High School band director Ron Dalton on the basis of her musical honors and solo contest ratings.

The band was formed in 1967 to honor outstanding high school musicians. Each year, students from each state and the District of Columbia are selected to represent their states in the all American unit. This year students representing the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico will boost the band's ranks to 104.

Annually, the all Americans appear in the celebrated Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade in New York City and perform in a special holiday concert at famed Carnegie Hall.

All band members will be eligible to compete for music scholarships to be awarded by the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich. and Livingston College at Rutgers University, Newark, New Jersey.

Yamaha International Corporation will award new professional model instruments to outstanding players in the band who are selected by the band music staff.

Nominees selected to be members of the all American band will be notified in early October.

Energy Workshop Planned

ACTION volunteers working with the Small Farm Energy Project will hold a series of community education programs during Solar Action Week (Oct. 4-12).

The programs will feature audio-visual presentations of efforts by 24 farm families cooperating with the Project during the past three years. The farms have become less dependent on petroleum-based energy sources and fertilizers by implementing a variety of energy conservation and alternative energy technologies.

"Solar energy is no longer the energy source of tomorrow," commented Rob Aiken of the Small Farm Energy Project in announcing the programs. "Cooperators in our project have shown there are easily constructed and adaptable solar energy applications available today for use on the farm or in the home."

Some of the solar energy applications to be featured in the programs include: solar water heaters; vertical wall solar collectors for home heating; solar grain dryers; and multiple-use portable solar collectors.

The programs are made possible through a grant from the Community for Renewable Resources and the International Solar Energy Society — two groups working toward the commercialization of solar energy. The Small Farm Energy Project was one of 16 applicants selected from a group of 100 nationwide.

Workshops will be held at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 9 at the county courthouse in West Point, and at 2 p.m. Oct. 12 at the Hartington Fairgrounds.

Nutrient Cycle Unequaled

"Intensive modern agriculture, with its fertilizers, pesticides and mechanized irrigation, has not risen above the constraints imposed by the natural nutrient cycle which determines the availability of food on this planet," Anson R. Bertrand, director of science and education for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said recently.

Speaking at the International Symposium of Nutrient Cycling in Agricultural Ecosystems meeting at the University of Georgia at Athens, Bertrand said the nutrient cycle is not obsolete. "We have simply supplemented the system with mined resources from earlier eras," he said.

Soil erosion, declining water tables, pesticide residues and water pollution resulting from intensive agriculture are urgent problems that need to be addressed, Bertrand said.

"Agriculture also is facing a major new demand for productivity to help meet fuel needs. There is potentially a huge demand for biomass which can be fermented into fuel alcohol. As a result, we have a relative shortage of the organic material which is vital to the continuation of the nutrient cycle and the protection of soil structure against erosion and loss of productivity," he said.

Models which simulate long time periods and many alternative situations hold great promise as a technique to resolve nutrient cycling problems, Bertrand said. Fully developed modeling techniques could be of tremendous importance in assessing the costs and benefits of conservation methods, complex tillage practices, crop rotations, double-cropping and catch cropping.

"Until the last few years, little effort was devoted to examining the relationships between tillage and nitrogen transformations. Nitrogen was relatively cheap and the ecological problems had not yet been fully appreciated," Bertrand said.

"Now, of course, the situation is quite different. USDA's Science and Education Administration realizes the importance of research in this area and has stepped up funding for both in-house and cooperative research with state experiment stations," he said.

Some major changes in our nutrient cycle appear inevitable over time, Bertrand said. Since natural processes cannot support the current intensity of modern agriculture, they must be supplemented by inorganic fertilizers. These, in turn, have inevitable impacts on the ecosystem — especially on water quality, he said.

Research now is, and will continue to be in the future, the key to maintaining the essential balances within the agricultural ecosystem, Bertrand said.

Farm Facility Loan Rates To Decrease

Interest rates for farm facility loans made through the U.S. Department of Agriculture will be reduced by one-half percent — to 12½ percent — effective for loans made on or after Sept. 29, according to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland.

Farm facility loans help farmers build needed farm storage and drying equipment, Bergland said.

The reduction is a result of a continual review of interest rates charged farmers, Bergland said.

The interest rate for farm storage facility and drying equipment loans is based on the Commodity Credit Corporation's cost of borrowing money from the U.S. Treasury and was last changed on April 15 when it was set at 13 percent, he said.

County Youth to Enter Land Judging Contest

Two hundred and seventy-five 4-H and FFA members are expected to participate in the Northeast Land Judging Contest to be held at Schuyler on Oct. 15th.

The contest will include Cedar, Dixon, Wayne, Dakota, Thurston, Stanton, Cuming, Dodge and Colfax counties.

The Area Land Judging Contest is sponsored by the Lower Platte North Natural Resource District. Technical assistance is provided by the Soil Conservation Service and the Cooperative Extension Service.

The top teams of the area contest will be eligible to participate in the State Contest Oct. 21 at Wayne.

Contestants will register at the Oak Ballroom in Schuyler from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Presentations of ribbons provided by the Natural Resources District will be made at approximately 1 p.m.

Contestants will evaluate four sites on soil features that favor good rooting depth, soil surface texture, permeability, thickness of surface soil, moisture content of the soil and its potential for flooding, slope, organic matter and its state of erosion. Once the contestant has classified the land, he must recommend land treatment practices for the particular soil.

The third section of the contest requires the contestant to evaluate the crop residue left for surface protection from erosion.

AT LEAST ONE RELATIVE STANDS TO GAIN IF YOU DIE WITHOUT AN ESTATE PLAN.

If you think Uncle Sam claims the bulk of your earnings now, just die without leaving an estate plan and guess who could walk off with a hefty share of your estate? Without a properly prepared will and estate plan, Uncle Sam could get the lion's share. And that would be bad news indeed for your family.

The good news is that with the advice and help of your lawyer, you can prepare a plan that minimizes what Uncle Sam stands to gain from your estate, and keeps your hard-earned cash where it belongs: in the family.

And we think you'll like what we can do for you.

Joining together to serve you better.

In September, 1980, it became official. Wayne Federal Savings & Loan and Midwest Federal Savings merged to become an even stronger financial force in Wayne. This merger means the people of Wayne now have the strength of Midwest Federal's $130 million in assets working for their community. As one of Nebraska's largest savings and loan associations, Midwest Federal offers the resources, ideas and services to help Wayne grow and prosper.

Your savings will continue to earn the highest interest rate permitted by law. And every penny you deposit is insured safe up to $100,000 by the F.S.L.I.C.

Familiar Faces and friendly people will continue to serve you.

The same folks who served you when we were Wayne Federal are working under the Midwest Federal banner. Our staff includes Betty Addison, Scott Lingenfelter, Nancy Meyer and Evelyn Doescher, as well as support from Home Office personnel in Nebraska City. Stop by and say hello to them.

Modern Financial Services

Some people think only our sign has changed. Not true! We are now offering a host of new financial services, plus we've improved some of our existing ones. We also offer Prestige Statement Savings, 90-Day Passbook Savings, a new Bill Paying Service, Christmas Club Savings, Student Loans, G.I.F.T. Annuity and NOW checking accounts are coming soon.

Open House, Oct. 11

Stop by during our big Open House celebration. Try your key in the Treasure Chest lock. You could win one of many valuable prizes. We're also serving FREE refreshments. And everyone who attends will receive a FREE gift. Midwest Federal officers from Nebraska City are looking forward to meeting you on Saturday, October 11, 10 a.m.-4 p.m. No business will be transacted. Our Open House Celebration will be during regular business hours from October 11 through October 18. Plan to be here.

Midwest Federal offers strength and security throughout eastern Nebraska.

Midwest Federal also has offices in Nebraska City, Auburn, Crete, Plattsmouth, Weeping Water, Syracuse, Falls City and Humboldt. That's financial strength and security.
