Dear Editor,

Recently the Association for Retarded Citizens-Nebraska and the Association for Retarded and Developmentally Disabled Citizens-Wayne County sponsored a Skate-A-Thon which was successful in earning over $4,000 to aid the mentally retarded and disabled citizens of Nebraska. All of the participants are to be commended and we gratefully acknowledge the numerous local citizens who responded with contributions.

In addition, several businesses and local groups helped in the arrangements and completion of this project. We wish to express our thanks to Ken Dodson of Pamida, Inc. in Wayne, and the Sods of Pamida, Inc. in Wayne, and Ken Phipps of the Wakefield Recreation Center for their cooperation and support. We would also like to extend our appreciation to Waldbaum's and the Fair Store of Wakefield for their contributions and to the First United Methodist Church of Wayne for the use of their bus.

Last, but not least, we wish to thank the local newspapers and KTCH for their help in publicizing the event. Through everyone working together this became a community event of which we can all be proud.

Dear Editor

The Nebraska Water Resources Association was privileged to host the 49th annual convention and meeting of the National Water Resources Association in Omaha two weeks ago. The meeting drew more than 1,100 people from across the nation, principally from the Midwest and West. It was one of the largest assemblies of top water authorities ever gathered in the Midwest.

Because the meeting was of national scope, many of the leading Nebraska water officials were not included in the program. But the participation of water authorities from Arizona, Colorado, California, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, North Dakota, Oregon, Texas, Washington, and other states enabled us to have the input of leading water officials from around the nation on all aspects and interests in water.

Our program included extensive presentations, seminars, and sessions on ground water, hydroelectric generation, federal and state legal issues regarding water, the potential and needs for future surface water storage and development in conjunction with ground water, and the economics of water resources development for irrigation, energy, and recreation and fish and wildlife enhancement.

While the program was of national and interstate scope, many of the participants recognized Nebraska's past policies, laws, and record of water resources use and development, particularly our existing policies for local options and controls regarding water use, as being among the best in the nation.

Participants and officials from various states in their presentations and discussions at numerous meetings in the convention said they experienced the same conditions as Nebraska, with wide variances in climate, soil, and precipitation between areas of their states. And they concluded that it is difficult and not advisable to have general state laws governing water use development, and controls.

The recognition by many of these other state water leaders of Nebraska's present policies for local options and controls is most gratifying. The Nebraska Water Resources Association long has recognized such policy as in the best interest of our state. We believe it is significant that such officials and leaders verify the conclusions and findings that have been made in Nebraska from the information, data, and research compiled by our leading water authorities, including University of Nebraska Conservation and Survey Chief, Vincent Dreeszen, and State Department of Water Resources Director, John Neuberger.

Many of the arid and semiarid western states rely almost exclusively on either surface or ground water. Few states have an abundance of both as does Nebraska. Where other states are experiencing ground water declines, they do not have the abundance of surface water for development to supplement and recharge ground water supplies as does Nebraska.

It is clear that Nebraska is in an enviable position compared to many other western agricultural states. Officials from those states concurred they would like to be in Nebraska's position of having additional potential for surface water storage.

We believe Nebraska is fortunate to have current policies and policy proposals by such leaders in water and agriculture as State Senators Maurice Kremer of Aurora and Lorán Schmit of Bellwood, chairman, respectively of the legislature's Public Works and Agriculture and Environment committees.

Nebraska should continue its existing policy of local options and controls while doing more to provide for storage and surface development to harness floodwaters for ground water recharge and supplemental irrigation water. This was the major recommendation that emerged from water leaders in other states at the recent convention.

Our forefathers and the pioneers who settled Nebraska led the way in our extensive development of irrigation — both surface and ground water — that has enabled Nebraska to attain its current level of prosperity and economic well being. Now it should be evident that we must provide for reasonable state legislation and programs that retain local options and controls while promoting additional storage and development of our abundant but unused surface water supplies. Only in this way can we maintain the continued agricultural production to ensure our economic prosperity and growth for the future.

The Nebraska Water Resources Association has been dedicated to objectives that will achieve such continued prosperity and serve the best interests of the State of Nebraska. We will continue our efforts in this regard and we welcome the interest and participation of all Nebraskans.

The 'Poisoning' of America?

Richard L. Lester, President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

In its Sept. 22 issue, "Time" magazine devoted its cover story to a problem of increasing concern to the American public — chemical waste dumps.

Entitled "The Poisoning of America," the magazine's cover showed the remains of a human being peering from a pool labeled "Those Toxic Chemical Wastes" with the skeletons of fish floating nearby.

One of the nation's largest corporations, the Dow Chemical Company, was quick to cry foul. It noted that while the intent of the article may have been educational, its cover, together with the manner in which the story was written, could only frighten an already nervous public.

For example, Dow listed a whole series of scare words it found littered throughout the article. They were, in approximate order of appearance:

throat	meance	nightmare
concoction	ooze	seep	brew
haunt	taunting (as in	outing our own nest)	alarming	ominous
frightening	festering	sinister
Dantesque	horrific	dangerous
environmental	nightmare	environmen tal emergency	tip of iceberg	flicking time bomb

Get the picture? For its part, Dow concedes "If there is any 'poisoning' of America going on, it's not chemicals that are the culprit (which is not to deny the problem of orphan dump sites and certain other chemically related problems). It is the media, which all too often seems intent on burying us in piles of purple prose — a sort of verbal poison."

It is certainly true that by sensationalizing a problem about which too little is still known, unquestionable psychological damage has been done. Some of the media's coverage on chemical waste dumps has transformed what was formerly a healthy public concern to higher levels of anxiety, and at times to downright panic. Yet in fairness to reporters, who sincerely believe they have an obligation to tell the public the truth, the problem goes much deeper.

The media depends for its source material on studies conducted for and interpreted by such federal agencies as the Environmental Protection Agency and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Unfortunately, we're now seeing more and more evidence that some of these key studies are scientifically worthless, and that the agencies have used them anyway and misled the public and the media.

For example, in our September issue of "Regulatory Action Network: Washington Watch," the U.S. Chamber presented the findings of a special team of eight scientists appointed by New York Governor Hugh Carey to investigate the EPA "study" on the Love Canal. In case you've forgotten, that EPA funded study purported to show that Love Canal residents had absorbed abnormally high rates of chromosome damage, miscarriages, birth defects, and other maladies. Understandably, these conclusions generated an outbreak of panic in the community that culminated in the relocation of some 2,500 residents, and in a rash of divorces and psychological disorders among the terrified residents.

After carefully analyzing the EPA report, the scientists concluded that it was not a study at all in scientific terms, had no scientific value and could not be salvaged. Simply stated, the scientists charged that EPA has no evidence that Love Canal residents are running greater risks from their proximity to the waste dump. To cite just one example, EPA's claim of an increase in chromosome breakdowns was based on slides taken by one Dr. Dante Picciano. However, when confronted by the New York Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), Picciano refused to release his medical slides. Photocopies obtained later showed no breakdowns, and an article in "Science" magazine called his study "botched."

Ernest Hook, a member of HHS, concluded "I for one will never believe anything the EPA says or releases again unless it has been peer reviewed."

Just recently I was pleased to see that "The Wall Street Journal," "The Washington Post" and "Time" are reporting the new conclusions. It's a good thing too, because EPA itself has done little to publicize the truth. In fact, the EPA official who was responsible for administering the agency's Love Canal activities, Eckhardt C. Beck, the assistant administrator of Water and Waste Management, has just been awarded a $20,000 bonus by President Carter for meritorious service. That's what they call putting your taxes to work.

Having the elections over, the bombardment of media advertisements behind us and our lives returning to normal is paramount to a clear mind and a clean conscience.

There is no one — save the candidates themselves — more anxious than I to see Tuesday night pass.

The mail day after day after day has been filled with one candidate's charges against another, letters to the editor from Texas born-again anti-abortionists, Colorado born-again environmentalists, Pennsylvania born-again laborers — all claiming one candidate or another is the only choice.

This will be the final column for a long, long time dealing with anything even remotely political. I'm glad to know that and am certain everyone else is, as well.

As for my predictions of last week, nobody's perfect and even the big boys with the computers, the scientific polls and the like were wrong.

I said Ronald Reagan would be our next President by a margin of fewer than five percent. Reagan did win, but the margin was closer to 10 percent.

I hit the nail on the head with Doug Bereuter. It was an embarrassing defeat for Rex Story.

In the District 17 State Senate race between Gerald Conway and Merle Von Minden, I predicted Von Minden would win the rural areas and the election by just a slim margin. The most official results I've been able to compile show Von Minden taking the election by exactly 100 votes, and a difference in total vote of 1.7 percent.

I said Jim Craun would win in Ward I City Council. He did, but by 10 votes. I said Cliff Ginn would be re-elected in Ward IV City Council, but he wasn't. He lost the race to challenger Gary Vopalensky by a difference of 57 votes.

It was in the race for Wayne Carroll board of education that I really missed the boat. I said Becky Keidel would be the one tossed out, but she received the most votes of any of the candidates.

So, I hit four of six races for an accuracy ratio of 66 percent.

Weekly gleanings.

Grain Agreement With China — Really New

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M.M. Van Kirk,
Director of Information

All the tub thumping about the U.S. Chinese grain agreement had the aroma of political motivation just before election and the message to the nation's farmers was, "Look what we've done for you now so you can forget about the Soviet wheat embargo."

There is plenty of precedent in this latest government-to-government grain deal. The history of government intervention in agricultural exports, whether the party in power has been Democrat or Republican, has been a "mixed bag" at best, with little extra in it for producers and more political liabilities than assets.

The agreement negotiated between the U.S. government and the People's Republic of China calls for the U.S. to export 6 to 9 million metric tons of grain to China each year for the 4-year term of the agreement. The Chinese will have the option of buying a maximum of 9 million tons of grain within a year without prior notice to the U.S. If they make additional purchases, they must consult with the U.S. government.

The agreement also provides for consultations if "exceptional circumstances" reduce the U.S. grain supply or curtail Chinese purchases. In addition, China has agreed not to resell any U.S. grain without prior U.S. approval.

So what's the big "breakthrough"? The Chinese through private trade channels already were expected to purchase more than $2 billion worth of U.S. farm commodities in fiscal year 1980-81 including about 6 million tons of wheat, 2.5 million tons of corn, almost 1 million tons of soy beans and 2 million bales of cotton.

A review of the history of governmental intervention in the grain trade is recommended for those who hail the agreement with China as a great achievement. In 1973, responding to pressure from labor groups for anti-inflation moves, the Nixon Administration, in addition to a disastrous freeze on wholesale meat prices, halted shipments of soybeans to Japan, on sales which had already been made. Japan, to insure future supplies of soybeans, made capital investments that expanded soybean production in Brazil to a point that it is the world's second largest soybean producer and our chief competitor in the world market.

In 1975 in response to demands by the U.S. Maritime Union, President Ford suspended grain shipments to the Soviet Union for a number of months, supposedly to insure adequate domestic supplies of wheat and feed grains. The restraints were imposed despite the fact that USDA analysts said supplies were entirely adequate to meet all of our export and domestic needs, and they were proved correct. In every case, the restraints and interruptions had severely depressing effects on farm prices.

In the 1976 presidential campaign, incumbent Ford and then challenger Carter vied with each other in promising that never again should restraints on farm product exports be imposed — except in event of national emergencies.

The present 5-year trade agreement with the Soviet Union was negotiated by the Ford Administration and became effective in October 1976. The Soviet Union agreed to buy at least 6 million tons of grain each fiscal year with the option to buy an additional 2 million tons without further approval. About one-half of the purchases were to be of wheat.

At the time the Carter Administration suspended sales to the Soviet Union last January above the 8 million tons in the agreement, the Soviets had placed orders for 25 million metric tons because of a short 1979 crop. U.S. grain producers well remember what happened to market prices when those 17 million tons suddenly became available to domestic and world markets. The Soviet Union has again sustained a short crop in 1980 and would undoubtedly be buying more than 8 million tons of U.S. grain this year if it could. Incidentally, Soviet military forces are still carrying on their war of domination in Afghanistan which was the excuse for declaring the embargo.

Exports are critically important to the health of the U.S. agricultural industry but so far it has not been demonstrated that the Federal Government can do a better job of marketing U.S. farm commodities than the private grain trade. Four years from now the nation's farmers will be in a better position to judge whether the U.S. Chinese grain agreement was a victory for them or something they could have better done without.

Voters to Be Surveyed

Did you vote on Nov. 4? Were you registered but did not vote?

The Bureau of the census will ask these and other questions about voting in the 1980 elections in a sample of households in this area during the week of Nov. 17-21, 1980.

Leo C. Schilling, director of the Bureau's regional office in Denver, stressed that no questions will be asked about party affiliation or for whom a person voted. The survey will provide a profile of American voters and non voters by characteristics such as age, sex, residence, education and labor force status.

These voting questions are in addition to the usual ones asked in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted nationwide by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Results of the monthly employment survey provide data on conditions in the labor force, prime indicators of the economic health of the country. For example, in September the survey indicated that of the 105 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 97.2 million were employed. The nation's unemployment rate was 7.5 percent, compared with 7.6 percent in August and 7.8 percent in July.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Food Waste Increases With the Cost of Food

Although it may sound ridiculous, when food prices increase, people tend to throw more food away. That's the word from an extension food and nutrition specialist in the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

To prevent waste it makes good sense to buy what is needed and will be enjoyed, but during times of high inflation that's not always what happens," Teresa Shaffer noted.

Food budgets in line that they were changing their eating patterns drastically.

"Economy" foods served may have been so different from what the family was accustomed to and liked, that more of the food was rejected and wasted.

"This kind of waste is disastrous to food budgets so when planning budget stretching meals, incorporate foods that you know your family likes. That sounds incredibly simple, but it's essential," Shaffer noted.

Shaffer said that during the recession of the early 1970's a University of Arizona at Tucson study showed that more edible food among middle class families was disposed of as garbage than was true during more prosperous times.

Youth for Understanding Seeking Host Families

Youth for Understanding, a non-profit student exchange program, seeks responsible, caring host families who are willing to open their hearts and homes to South American exchange students from January to July. Students (aged 14-18) will be carefully matched with local families and will attend high school during the exchange experience.

Host families provide room and board for the student welcoming him or her as a family member not as a guest.

Program fees medical insurance and personal expenses are provided by the student's natural family. YFU international students are highly motivated, speak English, and are eager to learn about the American way of life by firsthand participation!

With a philosophy based on increasing global understanding through the host family experience, YFU is supported by hundreds of dedicated volunteers and professional staff members throughout the world.

For more information on becoming a Host Family or other YFU opportunities, contact your regional office: Youth for Understanding, 7 10th N.W., P.O. Box 29, Mason City, Iowa 50401.

Eagles Fall Apart in State Tourney Quest

Half-way through the first set of the Class D regional volleyball playoff in Howells, it looked like Allen would blow Hordville out of the gym. But the Bulldogs turned the tide in the final two sets and rallied for a 11-15, 15-6, 15-10 win, Friday night.

The Eagles, who were Class D-3 district champions, were well on their way to a state tournament berth in the first game. Allen scored the first two points of the game and later putted away for the victory.

Backed by a large vocal following, the Eagles took the lead for good at 4-3 and were never again challenged. A strong setting and spiking game put Hordville on the defensive.

Janet Peterson and Lisa Erwin took turns spiking the ball with great force as the locals built leads of 8-3, 9-4 and 10-6. Colette Kraemer, Des Williams, Ann Gwin and Loree Rastede did their part by setting the ball with pinpoint accuracy.

Hordville scored three straight points to pull bring the score to 14-11 but a good serve by Williams and a hard spike by Peterson secured the win 15-11.

However, the Howells gym has been unkind to Allen teams. Two years ago, Gary Troth's volleyball team was defeated by Shelby in a regional playoff game.

This year, Allen faltered in the final two games and Hordville took advantage to upset the Eagles.

Hordville, which defeated Rising City in D-4 districts, used a strong defense to counter Allen's spiking. The Bulldogs built a 6-0 lead and never let the Eagles within four points.

Allen failed to cover the holes on defense and accurate shots led to Hordville's success. Allen's setting and serving, which were successful in the first game, suddenly went sour. Hordville won the game 15-6.

After regrouping, the Eagles returned to the court for the third set and scored the first two points in front of a cheering pro-Allen crowd.

A 3-1 lead vanished and Hordville pulled into the lead. The Eagles lacked the spark that had gotten them into the regional game with a district win over Walthill.

Neither team could control service long enough to string together several points. Each member of Allen's team played well at times but the team performance was below par for the Lewis Division powers.

Down 6-12, Rastede nearly put the Eagles back in the game with some accurate serving. She scored four consecutive points as Allen pulled back within two points at 10-12. The serve exchanged hands two more times before Hordville clinched the match 15-10.

"We didn't play well. We pressed too hard instead of playing to have fun," Allen coach Gary Troth said. "Everyone played well at times but our defense didn't do a very good job and our setting was off target in the last two sets. I think we had pretty much made up our minds that we would win in two sets."

After discussing the loss, Troth turned his thoughts to a more optimistic view. "We had a tremendous season. This is the closest knit bunch of girls I've coached. They handled their losses well and came back after losing to play well."

"I wouldn't trade this team for any bunch. I had as much fun this year as any year. I'm as proud as a person can be. I think we earned the respect of every team we played. And the fan support was tremendous. I think this positive attitude will carry over to basket ball," Troth added.

The Eagles finished the year with a 12-4 record, losing to Walthill three times and Hordville once.

Avenge only Losses

Allen's volleyball team entered Class D-3 district action with three losses. The Eagles avenged all three losses in the finals of the district tourney with a 15-9, 8-15, 15-10 triumph over Walthill.

Walthill had handed Allen all three losses while winning the Lewis Division title in the Lewis and Clark Conference. Allen finished second in the division and had a score to settle for the champions when districts opened.

"I don't know if this was our best game of the year but I'd say it was our best team performance," Allen coach Gary Troth said. "We set and spiked constantly and controlled the tempo of the game. We're extremely happy. Our setters set the ball clear across the gym with accuracy."

A balanced scoring attack paced the Eagles to the win. Tami Jewell was the leading server. Carmin Lubberstedt served well and did a good job in the back court. Janet Peterson and Lisa Erwin were team leaders at the net as Allen collected 21 spike kills.

Troth was particularly pleased with the setting of Colette Kraemer and Des Williams. Kraemer had 14 sets for spike kills. He credited Loree Rastede with a good all around game. Eight players saw considerable action in the victory.

Troth said that serving wasn't his team's strong point but added that they got the ball on the court when they needed.

"I have to compliment Walthill. Everytime we play, it goes right down to the wire. They're definitely one of the better teams around. It's too bad that one of us had to lose," Troth stated. "Walthill has a good serving team. This time we handled their serves. The crowd and band deserve credit for keeping the team up. They (the band) really earned some of the final points. They kept us fired up."

ALLEN EAGLES score a point here as Lisa Erwin puts full force into a spike against Hordville as Des Williams watches. Allen won the first game of this regional match but lost the match in three games. Hordville qualified for state with the win.

WSC Groups Unify Athletically Inclined

The Wayne State College Women's Athletic Association (WAA) and the Health, Physical Education and Recreation (HPER) clubs are formed to unify those people who are athletically inclined.

The WAA is the group responsible for running the concession stands. They invest all the money that they make into the development of Rice Auditorium. Recently, through the efforts of WAA, new water coolers and ice machines were installed at Rice. Every year at Christmas time, the girls draw the name of a faculty member from a hat. Secretly, they begin to decorate their faculty member's office and leave clues as to who is doing it. Then at a Christmas party, the girls are revealed.

The WAA is open to all females who are out for a sport and there are no dues required to join.

The HPER consists of students who are majoring in health, physical education and recreation fields. The group meets on the first Thursday of every month and discusses the various aspects of its individual fields. The members also enjoy the comments of a guest speaker and initiate new games that the club can participate in.

The club plans to tour the training room during its November meeting.

Valerie Eschenbacher of Lincoln, president of the club, said that fund raising activities are only in the planning stage, but that any funds raised would be used to send members to the district convention in Minneapolis, Minn. next spring. Eschenbacher also said that health, physical education and recreation majors are urged to join HPER. Dues for the club are $2.

Other officers for HPER are Darlene Dvorak of Brainard, vice president; Patty Johnson of Ralston, secretary; and Sue Chevalier of Omaha, treasurer.

Trainers Spend Many Hours on the Job

Even the best of athletes get hurt from time to time, and when they do the athletic trainers are there.

The athletic trainers are a valuable, but sometimes unnoticed part of any athletic program. Wayne State College trainers are no exception.

Besides taking care of the minor cuts and bruises, they also do the taping, and the rehabilitating of athletes who have met with serious injuries. They also look for ways to prevent possible future injuries.

To become an athletic trainer, a student must "train" for 1,800 clock hours under a certified trainer and take a test given by the National Athletic Trainers Association. The test involves such fields as anatomy and health.

Kris Gutz is one of seven student trainers at WSC. She said that she became interested in the field when she sprained her ankle playing volleyball three years ago. Kris is from Osmond.

"The toughest thing is the hours," she said. Gutz added that it was often hard to raise money for training equipment because a lot of people fail to realize the importance of the athletic trainer.

The trainers did, however, purchase some rehabilitation equipment, by sponsoring a log-a-thon.

Other student trainers include Jeff Harrison, Norfolk; Jim Brown, Alma; Jon Johnson, Valley; Ladonna Robinson, Tekamah; Susan Proett, Wayne; and Paul Fenster, Bellevue. These students, however, are not yet recognized by the NAT as certified trainers.

Helgenberger Heads Weight Program

As weight-lifting becomes a large part of many Wayne State College students' physical fitness training, the need for proper facilities and supervision also increases.

Realizing the need for weight-lifting supervision, the WSC Student Senate has granted Dan Helgenberger $295 to provide supervision. Helgenberger, one of Nebraska's top weight-lifters, will employ three supervisors through Student Senate funds, with one additional supervisor being provided through work study funds.

Helgenberger feels that supervision is necessary due to an increased number of inexperienced weight-lifters and misuse of the equipment. Helgenberger said, "With more and more people concerned about staying in shape, it's important that they learn to use the correct weight-lifting techniques." Helgenberger's supervisors will help students to train properly and avoid injury. The supervisors will also take care of any maintenance work required for the weight rooms.

The weights available for students include free-bar weights, which are used in Olympic competition and a universal weight machine, which is commonly used by many high schools.

The WSC weight-lifting rooms are located in the lower level of Rice Gymnasium. The rooms are open for the Barbell Club and athletes from 2 to 6 p.m., with hours of 6 to 9 p.m. available for all students' use. Helgenberger said rooms will be supervised Monday through Thursday on an experimental basis.

Trojans End Year at 9-8

A loss to Homer in the semifinals of the Class C-2 districts put an end to Wakefield's volleyball season, Wednesday night in Lyons.

Homer won the match 16-14, 15-7. The Trojans reached the semifinals by defeating Winnebago on Monday.

Leading scorer against Homer was Jeanni Tullberg with nine points. Teri Schwartz was the leading setter with 10 good sets in 11 attempts and Joan Miller was the net leader with three ace spikes.

The loss ended Wakefield's season with a 9-8 record. Trojan coach Ernie Kovar said he was pleased with the way the season went. "We played pretty well. We didn't expect to have a winning season when the year began," he added.

Winside Wins First Match; Eliminated by Top Seed

The volleyball season came to a close for Winside as the Wildcats were defeated by top seeded Coleridge in Class D-3 districts Monday in Pender.

Winside defeated Newcastle 15-7, 15-4 in its first district match. Lisa Jensen was the team's leading server with 13 points.

"We really had a good game against Newcastle," Winside coach Paul Sok said. "We were down in the first game against Coleridge but came on strong in that game. In the second game, we couldn't seem to do anything right. Coleridge did a good job serving."

Coleridge won the match 15-8, 15-0 ending Winside's season at 3-10. The Winside reserves finished their season with a 5-5 record.

Leading scorer against Coleridge was Joni Jaeger with five points. She finished the year as one of the state's leading setters with 114 good sets in 115 attempts.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hecoff

I HAD TO CANCEL my motel reservations for the state volleyball tournament in Kearney.

It appeared until Friday night that the Allen Eagles were going to compete in the Class D state volleyball tournament scheduled Friday and Saturday. I really felt that that Allen would win its regional match over Hordeville, the only stepping stone between a finished season and a state berth.

I had made plans to attend the state tourney in Kearney. In 2 1/2 years as sports editor of this newspaper, teams in the area have taken me to state competition 13 times. No teams have qualified for state in boys' basketball, volleyball or golf as long as I've been here. I felt this was the time I would get to attend the state volleyball tourney. Shucks.

THE REGIONAL volleyball playoff was one of those times when I felt the weaker team prevailed. Don't get me wrong, I don't want to take anything away from Hordeville. After all, the Bulldogs won their district and qualified for state.

However, while watching the match, I felt all along that Allen was winning. The Eagles are an aggressive offensive team and Hordeville appeared to be a defensive team that covered spikes well.

If the Eagles would have played as well as they had in the past two or three weeks, I feel certain they would have won the match. But, what is done is done and it doesn't do any good to make excuses.

I HAVE BEEN employed at The Herald for three football seasons and this year's Winside team was the first in our coverage area to qualify for the state playoffs.

The Wildcats were within one play of winning their first round match against Ewing, Tuesday. A long touchdown bomb turned the game around when it appeared the Cats were on their way to a victory.

WAYNE STATE'S football team finished its season Saturday against CSC rival and old nemesis Kearney State. Although the Wildcats were a definite underdog, they were hoping to upset the ninth ranked team in the NAIA.

Honorary coaches for the Kearney game selected from the Second Guessers Club were Roberta "Mom" Welte and Lyte Garvin. Honorary coaches at last week's Missouri Southern game were Rowan Witte and Bill Workman.

THE HIGHLIGHT of Thursday's Second Guessers meeting was the "Rawhide Review".

This song and dance rendition was performed by Wayne State basketball coaches Rick Weaver and Clark Coco and members of the men's basketball team.

The act is practically indescribable but was hilarious. The group first sang the old "Rawhide" theme song from the series of the same name. Then, they did another version with main lyrics of "Go Cats". This one was a pep song for the Wayne State-Kearney State football game.

If you run into a Second Guesser on the street, ask him to explain the routine. It really went over well.

THANKS TO Willis Mahannah of the Pender Times for taking some pix for me at the finals of the Class D-3 district volleyball tournament in Pender this week.

I was tied up and Willie did double duty while covering Walthill's team. If Mahannah's name sounds familiar, that's probably because he covered some high school games for me when he was attending Wayne State College.

More thanks to the Art Center Studio for sending down a picture of Winside's football team. I didn't have a photo of the full team in my files and it would have been difficult to get one up in time for this issue.

We had made plans last week to run a congratulatory page in the paper for Winside's football team following the season. The studio in Hartington happened to have a picture that it had taken for publication in the Winside yearbook.

WAYNE HERALD'S Football Contest

$25 1st Prize GIFT CERTIFICATE
$5 2nd Prize GIFT CERTIFICATE

The football star of the week feature comes to a close this week now that football season is over. The final star of the year was probably the most difficult choice of the season. Players from all six schools had fine performances but no one performance really stood out above the others. Only two of the area teams won their games so special consideration was given to those teams. Jerry Roberts of Wakefield has been selected as the star of the week. Roberts carried the ball 11 times for 79 yards while leading Wakefield to a 14-6 win over Laurel. He scored the tying touchdown on a 15 yard run. Other players who were nominated for the award for last week's performances were Todd Twiford of Laurel, Brad Roberts of Winslow, Pat McCright of Wayne, Kevin Johnson of Wayne State and Randy Smith and Terry Brewer of Allen.

The annual cycle of job hunting by 1979-80 Wayne State College graduates has come to an "official" close, according to Deryl Lawrence, director of the college's Placement Services Office.

"Reports from graduates have been compiled, along with other placement records," said Lawrence, "and our annual report is now a written history of activity in this important area." Some of the highlights were as follows:

Teacher education graduates secured positions in nine different states and one U.S. Territory (Alaska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, New York, South Dakota, Wyoming and Guam.) Of the 127 reporting, 115 (90%) entered teaching, six (5%) obtained non-teaching jobs, and six (5%) enrolled in graduate schools. Of those entering teaching, 84 (73%) secured positions in Nebraska and 20 (17%) began teaching careers in Iowa.

The remaining eleven (10%) secured teaching positions in the other states mentioned. Most positions for new teacher education graduates locating in Nebraska were in Douglas County (14) and Wayne County (13). The remainder located in 26 other Nebraska counties.

Salaries reported by beginning teachers in Nebraska ranged from $8,000 (rural, K-8 school) to $13,827 and averaged $10,416. First year salaries paid in Iowa ranged from $10,800 to $13,000 and averaged $11,707. Salaries paid in the other states ranged from $8,700 (Missouri) to $13,600 (Wyoming) and averaged $11,026.

Non-teaching graduates secured positions in five states: 74 percent in Nebraska and 26 percent in other states (Iowa, Kansas, South Dakota and Louisiana).

Of the graduates locating in Nebraska, 10 (44%) secured positions in Douglas County. The remainder located in seven other Nebraska counties.

Position titles for non-teaching graduates included staff accountant, loan officer, administrative assistant, auditor, analyst, programmer, news director, supervisor, sales manager, research technician, purchasing agent and manpower specialist.

Salaries reported by business majors ranged from $9,320 to $15,900 and averaged $13,109. Salaries reported by persons majoring in other areas ranged from $7,800 to $16,800 and averaged $10,765.

Utilization of the WSC placement services office was quite extensive during the October, 1979, through September, 1980, period, according to Lawrence.

Other details regarding the college's placement services activities are contained in the 19 page annual report document, and may be reviewed in the WSC Placement Office (Hahn Administration Building, Room 311).

Circle K Helping People

Circle K is a Wayne State College campus service organization that was established to help the people of Wayne.

The group is affiliated with the local Kiwanis Club which is the same type of service on a much larger scale. Frank Teach is the advisor for Circle K and is also a member of the Kiwanis Club.

There are about one dozen members in Circle K. They conduct both fund raising and non fund raising projects. Some of the projects include a blood donation to be held next semester and painting house numbers for residents in Wayne.

Friday, Oct. 31, the group gave a Halloween party for children in grades K through 4. Next month Circle K is doing a project to get money for the CROP charity organization.

Circle K has been putting up the flags for special community and college occasions. The voting for Homecoming king and queen was also organized by this organization.

There is no prerequisite for anyone interested in joining Circle K. The members of the group say they get a feeling of accomplishment from the organization because they are helping other people.

Trees may be ordered from either the Soil Conservation Service or Wayne County Extension Service in multiples of 100. But order now, says Spitzer, while there is still a good selection.
