Graduation Requirements Stiffened To Provide Students 'A Challenge'

It will be a little tougher to graduate from Wayne-Carroll High School after the board of education Monday night stiffened graduation requirements at the recommendation of Principal Dan Zeiss.

ZEISS, WHO HOLDS a doctorate degree in education, made his recommendation after completing a lengthy study of what other Class B and AA accredited high schools are doing. The last time requirements were updated here was for the 1974-75 school year.

The board also gave special recognition to Dorothy Ley who is retiring from the board effective this month. She has been ill for several months and unable to attend any meetings. For more details on the honors, see story elsewhere on this page.

The board's vote regarding requirements increases the minimum number of hours a student must have to graduate from 180 to 200. This brings Wayne-Carroll High into line with most other schools of similar format and geographic location.

"IN ADDITION," Zeiss said in his proposal, "as an AA accredited school we need to challenge our students to a greater degree."

Currently, seniors have only one required course — American government. Since students have met all requirements at the end of their third year, "in the fourth year we find a diminished lack of need, if you will, for school simply due to the fact no additional challenges confront them." He noted that many students sit in three study halls daily.

The board's decision adds one year of English and one year of math or science.

Currently, students are graduating with either two years of science or two years of math.

THE NEW REQUIREMENTS will affect only a small percentage of students, Zeiss noted. Eighty-eight of this year's 97 senior class members will have accumulated 200 or more credits without being required to do so. Of the remaining nine students, six are mid-term graduates and did not register for additional hours.

The three remaining students are and have been in difficulty all through their high school careers, regardless of hourly requirements, Zeiss said.

"In reality, increased requirements will allow us to set aside special class selections for the learning disabled student to allow attention to their special needs. At present, they are interspersed throughout many sections of a class, or simply don't register for the class. We are not assisting these youngsters by not offering them any challenge at all," Zeiss said in his report.

BESIDES WAYNE, the only Class B, AA accredited schools that do not require 200 hours are Alliance (180), Broken Bow (190) and Holdrege (180).

All others offer a minimum of 200 with Ord requiring 240 hours for graduation.

Marra Home Improvement Co., Wayne, was awarded the contract for insulation of the middle and elementary schools. Total bid by Marra was $8,627 for the middle school and $12,431 for the elementary school, a total of more than $21,000. Peoples Natural Gas Co., Wayne, bid $9,958 for the middle school and $13,289 for the elementary school.

Marra is expected to complete the work before school takes up in January after Christmas vacation.

THE BOARD ALSO waived tuition for a Latin American student to enroll at Wayne-Carroll High School for the second semester under the Youth for Understanding program.

Jack and Evelyn Rubock requested the tuition waiver after reading in The Herald that Youth for Understanding was looking for families to sponsor foreign students.

Tuition for one semester is $2,250. The student is expected to arrive in January and remain here until July.

The board also approved mid-term graduation for the following students:

ROYCE ANDERSON, Kevin Bartholomew, David Foote, Teresa Haines, Rosella Marshall, Karen Stuthman, Chuck Thomas, Kathy Tietz, Paul Warne and Chris Wert. All have fewer than 200 credit hours except Haines and Warne.

An executive session with board attorney Kenneth Olds to discuss litigation was postponed. There were no objections to a revised plan for Papenburg Second Subdivision.

Newly-elected board members take office Jan. 8 and will receive the oath of office at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 12, at the regular board meeting. Also at that time, the board will elect officers and will appoint an Americanism Committee.

ALL MEMBERS were present except Mrs. Ley and all actions were unanimous.

Council Members Inducted

Two new City Council members and two incumbents received the oath of office at Tuesday night's regular Council meeting, and one of these was elected president of the Council.

JIM CRAUN from Ward I, Gary Vopalensky from Ward IV — the new Councilmen; and Keith Mosley from Ward II and Darrell Fuetlberth from Ward III were given the oath of office by Mayor Wayne Marsh. Fuetlberth was re-elected president by unanimous vote.

The Council also postponed any action or any discussion on a recent decision it made involving general obligation participation in development of a subdivision.

The matter was placed on the Dec. 30 meeting agenda after City Attorney Kem Swartz indicated an item must be on the agenda before it can be acted upon or even discussed. Developer John Vakoc was addressing the Council under the agenda category of "visitors."

VAKOC SAID HE was disappointed the Council apparently had decided to provide some general obligation participation in developing subdivisions after he was informed the city would not. At the last regular meeting, the Council voted to pick up about $17,000 worth of work in Marywood Subdivision. The cost of the city, of course, will be spread among all taxpayers.

Vakoc said the former administration informed him the city no longer was willing to bear part of the financial obligation of developing a subdivision. Vakoc is developer of Sunnyview Subdivision and has foated the entire cost of development.

He said he had been led to believe that general obligation participation by the city was a thing of the past.

IN OTHER ACTION, the Council approved a revamped ordinance regarding removal of snow from sidewalks, closing a loophole that resulted in the unfair treatment of landlords and tenants.

The revised ordinance says it is unlawful for anyone who owns, occupies or controls any lot within the city limits to allow snow, sleet, mud, ice or other substance to accumulate or remain on the sidewalk adjoining the lot.

Persons are given 24 hours to clean the sidewalks or face the possibility of a fine. When there is no place except the street to place the snow, persons have 12 hours to clear the walks and may place the snow or material in the street.

The Council set a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 16, to discuss a detailed comprehensive plan and new electric rate study by DeWild, Grant, Reckert engineer firm.

ALSO SCHEDULED for the special meeting is consideration of an ordinance allowing the replacement of existing water meters with remote meters. The administration is proposing an extensive meter replacement program so residents will not be bothered by meter readers.

It will take five or six years for all old meters to be replaced, reported Public Works Director Vern Schutz. He is proposing replacement of about 30 meters annually.

By resolution, the Council accepted the work on Hillside Drive in Sunnyview Subdivision and set Dec. 30 as a hearing date for the levy of special assessments.

DEVELOPER VAKOC asked the Council if the proposed schedule of assessments included any general obligation and was told it did not.

Councilman Larry Johnson voted against accepting the work and setting the hearing date.

Public Works Director Schulz brought the Council up to date on the city's required development of a one- and six-year street plan. He said tentative work includes surfacing of portions of East 10th Street, Walnut Street between 12th and 14th Streets, about 150 feet of 13th Street and a portion of Shriner Drive.

He is in the process of developing a long range street program which must be submitted to the state by March 1 in order for the city of Wayne to receive financial help.

THE COUNCIL gave Schulz authorization to seek preliminary engineering on Walnut, 13th and Shriner. The other does not require engineering at this point.

The use of interest generated from the M.E. Way Memorial Fund was discussed briefly, with Attorney Swartz saying the money should be used for underprivileged families with children still at home.

It was discovered recently that the money was being used to buy fruit, vegetables and meat for low income elderly. However, a review of the agreement indicates the money should be used for needy families and children.

IN OTHER ACTION, the Council also authorized the bidding for a new police cruiser. The new model will be smaller and lighter than previous cruisers, but will carry the same heavy-duty equipment as in the past. The only significant change will be the use of nylon tires rather than radial tires.

All Council members were present and all actions were unanimous unless noted otherwise.

Smiling Faces, Happy Faces

A REAL BUNDLE OF JOY. Among the visitors to Santa's Headquarters at People's Natural Gas Co. recently was Retha Wood, six-month-old daughter of Matt and Karla Wood of Wayne. Little Retha was all smiles and eyes as she allowed Santa the pleasure of holding her for the picture. Santa will be at his headquarters from 6:30 to 8:30 on Tuesdays Dec. 16 and 23 and Thursdays Dec. 11 and 18. Youngsters are urged to stop by and tell Santa what favorite items they want for Christmas.

Still Behind A Year Ago

Economy Changes Little

After a brighter economic outlook in Wayne during June, the Wayne economy has backpedaled somewhat through August, figures released by the University of Nebraska Bureau of Business Research indicate.

THE LOCAL ECONOMY in August was 15.8 percent behind August of 1979, continuing a downward trend since spring. In July, the Wayne economy was 13.7 percent behind, the same period of last year.

However, in June the economy was only 8.3 percent behind a year ago, according to the figures.

Only other reporting communities to have poorer showings for August were West Point, Norfolk, Fairbury and Hartington. Three of these are in Northeast Nebraska.

COMMUNITIES reporting actual gains in net taxable retail sales over August of 1979 were South Sioux City, Grand Island, Ogallala, Kimball and Alliance.

Statewide, the economy's real output essentially was unchanged. Sectors recording increases in August included construction and government, while agriculture, manufacturing and distributive trades recorded varying degrees of decreased output.

has been speculated that some Nebraska farmers are waiting for higher prices before selling their grain.

THE CONSTRUCTION sector recorded its second consecutive monthly increase. Construction activity remained below year-earlier levels but signs of a modest increase were apparent.

Nebraska's manufacturing sector recorded a marginal decrease in output in August. Manufacturing activities seem to have peaked during the first quarter of this year and now appear to have stabilized, the report indicated.

Nebraska's distributive trade sector recorded a decrease in output of 6 tenths of a percent in August compared to July. Change in this sector has been erratic during much of 1979 and 1980 and, like other sectors, remains below 1979 levels.

THE GOVERNMENT sector recorded a 1.1 percent increase in output in August. This sector has changed little over the past 18 months, moving up and down. The government index for August, 1980, was three percent below year-previous levels. Spending limitations below the rate of inflation would appear to be having some impact on the public sector share in Nebraska's output, the report theorized.

Nebraska's retail sales in August were similar to year-earlier levels when deflated for price increases. Centers of strength in the Nebraska economy, as reflected by retail sales, include the communities listed above. These cities recorded real increases in retail sales ranging from slightly more than one percent to more than 12 percent above year-previous levels.

THE NEBRASKA economy appears to be moving upward in August, after declining rather dramatically during the second quarter of the year. Prospects for further improvement in Nebraska are good considering that December grain prices are above August levels and considering the recent gains in employment.

Although Wayne remains far behind economic levels of a year ago, the dollar volume of sales continues to show some improvement.

For example, in June retail sales were $2.07 million. In July, sales were $2.82 million and in August, sales were $2.7 million.

THE FOLLOWING table shows retail sales for January through August, both 1979 and 1980:

Month	1979	1980
January	$2,450,000	$2,763,000
February	$3,420,000	$3,765,000
March	$3,497,000	$3,401,000
April	$3,390,000	$3,472,000
May	$3,492,000	$3,514,000
June	$2,640,000	$2,875,000
July	$3,937,000	$2,930,000
August	$3,667,000	$3,712,000

White House Conference On Aging Planned Dec. 20

The third Nebraska Regional White House Conference on Aging will be held from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 20, at Northeast Nebraska Technical College Auditorium, Norfolk.

A direct result of those two conferences.

The next White House Conference on Aging has been scheduled for December, 1981. The White House Conference on Aging deals with national issues which affect all older Americans wherever they live.

Everyone is welcome. Persons may testify (there is a five minute limit), leave written material of any amount and/or just listen to what others have to say.

In 1961 and 1971, delegates from all over the United States gathered in Washington, D.C., to discuss what should be done for older Americans. Most of the services and benefits the older Americans are now enjoying are

House Okays Bereuter Amendment

The House has approved an amendment offered by Congressman Doug Bereuter that allows states like Nebraska to use federal funds for construction of grade separations at rail crossings.

The Bereuter amendment to a surface transportation bill gives each state the option of using up to 50 percent of rail impact funds to construct grade separations, starting in fiscal year 1982.

"This action means that we will make a small beginning in assisting those states with many communities bisected by rail traffic. Funds will become available to construct grade separations to relieve increasingly severe traffic and safety problems," Bereuter said.

"I cannot overemphasize the importance of this aid. My own hometown of Utica, with a population of only 700, is bisected by rail traffic averaging over 20 trains per day. Utica is just one of 99 communities in Nebraska which is bisected or skirted by major coal train traffic.

"The state itself has become the coal shute of the nation; it bears the most coal traffic of any non-producing coal state in the country," said the First District Congressman.

The bill, which was passed by the House, provides $300 million in FY 1982 with an additional $50 million for each of the following three years, to alleviate problems primarily related to rail traffic and coal transportation.

"My amendment prevents all the money from going exclusively toward studies, consultants' fees, or other non-construction remedies, such as staggering work hours to lessen automobile traffic. Those management-type remedies really are not relevant to Nebraska communities.

"Nebraska in particular suffers, because we don't have coal severance taxes or other energy-related taxes to bear the cost of constructing grade separations."

Bereuter also succeeded in adding language to the bill that gives funding priority for states that have experienced "substantial and/or increased" rail traffic.

"This language should work to Nebraska's advantage because, unlike eastern states that have had heavy rail traffic for many years, our state has recently experienced a substantial increase.

"As it is, many Nebraska communities have schools, police, and ambulance services on one side of the track, for example, and a hospital on the other. The delays caused at rail crossing created a threat to public safety. Commerce is interrupted, businesses suffer, and a generally unpleasant environment results.

"It's estimated that by 1990, some rail crossings in Nebraska will be blocked for 3 1/2 hours each day, unless action is taken.

"The money targeted by this bill really is only a drop in the bucket, however. An estimated $207 million is needed by the State of Nebraska alone to alleviate existing problems.

"Whether or not coal slurry pipelines are eventually constructed, rail traffic will increase in the state.

"The problems created by this necessary coal train traffic will continue to be one of my chief concerns as a legislator."

HOW'S YOUR CHRISTMAS I.Q.?
 Explanation of answers given last week. If you missed last week's questions and answers call or write Mr. Scott:

1. Esther says that Matthew gave the image of Joseph and Letic gave Mary's.
2. Jewish custom made the betrothal very important almost as sacred as the marriage and could only be broken by a bill of divorce. (Matt: 19:10; Mark: 10:11)
3. No mention is made of a donkey. If they had one it would have probably been used as a pack animal. Ever ridden a donkey? Mary would have been much more comfortable walking.
4. Luke 2:13 doesn't mention that they sang.
5. Angels announced shepherds seeing a star isn't mentioned.
6. Luke 2:17,18
7. Number of women not mentioned. Three gifts mentioned.
8. Names come from tradition not scripture.
9. The witness followed a star from Jerusalem to Bethlehem, a distance of about 8 miles. The star did not lead them to Jerusalem from the east - because the reigning king of the Jews lived in the capital of Jerusalem that was the logical place to look. They told Herod, "You have seen the star in the east?" and that they had followed it after having heard that star which they had seen in the east reappeared, coming north riding on their path, and this time it did lead them.
10. Jesus was in a house by this time. He longer called "baby" but "young child" Jesus could have been an old man by this time (17).
11. After 40 days of purification, according to the law, Mary fulfilled Mary and Joseph took Jesus to the temple in Jerusalem to present him to the Lord and to offer a sacrifice (Luke 2:22)
12. Consult any dictionary.

You may not agree with these explanations, and that's all right. I enjoyed giving you this information. Send me your knowledge of the Bible and what it probably means to be. All First Church of Christ are interested about Bible knowledge and we practice good common sense principles to understand the Word of God.

Crowd Attends Christmas Fair

ICY ROADS SATURDAY DIDN'T prevent hundreds of area shoppers from attending the eighth annual Christmas Fun Fair at the First United Methodist Church in Wayne. Betty Lawrence, chairman of this year's event, said nearly $3,000 was raised during the day, including about $1,182 in dinner proceeds. In addition to the many booths and gift shop items, special entertainment on stage featured the Methodist Bell Choir in the morning and the Solid Gold Combo, who furnished Christmas music for the shoppers. Local artist Marie Hagemann also was there to do cartoon sketches for many of the shoppers. Pictured posing for Mrs. Hagemann in the photo above is

Area Women Named 'Outstanding'

Women from Wayne and Wakefield have been selected for inclusion in the 1980 edition of Outstanding Young Women of America. Included on the list, along with approximately 15,000 fellow Outstanding Young Women of America from across the United States, are Lin Brummels, Cheryl Hill, Kimberly Ann Carhart and Joan Hochstein, all of Wayne, and Vickie Jo Schwartz of Wakefield. Their complete biographies will be featured in the annual awards volume. The Outstanding Young Women of America program is designed to honor and encourage exceptional young women between the ages of 21 and 36 who have distinguished themselves in their homes, their professions and their communities. The awards program seeks to recognize the talents, abilities and successes of exceptional young women throughout America. These individuals are being honored not only for their professional accomplishments but for important contributions to their communities, states and nation as well. "Accomplishments such as these are the result of dedication, service and leadership — qualities which deserve to be recognized and remembered," said a member of the Board of Advisors for the Outstanding Young Women of America program.

Women listed in the book will be presented in the annual awards volume. In addition, they are now being considered for one of 51 state awards to be presented to those women who have made the most noteworthy contributions in their individual states. From the 51 state winners, the Ten Outstanding Young Women of America will be chosen. The 10 national winners will then be honored at the annual awards luncheon to be held this fall in Washington, D.C.

Wakefield Students Presenting Concert

The music department at Wakefield High School, under the direction of Mrs. Diane Trullinger, will present a Christmas concert in the school auditorium tonight (Thursday). The public is invited to attend the 7:30 p.m. program. Students will be performing both traditional and contemporary Christmas carols, including "Tiny King" and "As Joseph Was a Walking" by the Patriots. Traditional music will include "Adeste Fideles," sung in both Latin and English, and "Messiah Overture," played by the Trojan Band.

Eagles Stop Laurel Rally to Gain Second Victory

Six unanswered points late in the third quarter enabled the Allen Eagles to pull away from Laurel and pick up win number two with a 41-30 triumph, Tuesday night in Laurel.

The Bears and Eagles were tied at 23-23 after 20 minutes of action when Lisa Erwin, Janet Peterson and Colette Kraemer hit consecutive field goals to give Allen a 29-23 lead at the end of the third period. Kraemer's basket came with one second left in the quarter.

The hosts cut the Allen lead to four points at 33-29 but could get no closer. Des Williams made two steals for layups and a 37-30 advantage with less than a minute left. A field goal by Beth Stalling and two free throws by Williams made the final score somewhat deceiving at 41-30.

Using its height advantage to gain a rebounding edge, Allen held leads of 10-6, 12-6 and 14-6 in the first quarter. Both teams were held scoreless during the first three minutes of the second quarter.

Then, the Bears rallied. A basket by Anne Schultz and a three-point play by Renee Gadeken pulled Laurel within three points 18-15 at the half.

The Bears, who operated out of a man-to-man defense earlier in the game, switched to a zone as the game progressed and kept Allen outside much of the second half.

Cyndi Jonas hit two buckets to pull Laurel within two points and the outside for a 23-23 tie with 2:07 remaining in the third quarter.

That's when the Eagles put together a good offensive showing to take a six point lead by the end of the quarter. Allen used a solid zone defense during most of the game.

"We shot well from the free throw line and our defense wasn't bad," said Allen coach Gary Troth. "Offensively, we didn't move well against the zone and we didn't shoot very well. We hurried and forced a lot of shots. We were too impatient."

Lisa Erwin led all scorers with 14 points. Des Williams scored 11 points and Beth Stalling, who had a good game, made 9 points for the Eagles.

For Laurel, Kay Anderson led the way with 13 points, mostly on outside shots.

"Our inexperience hurt us near the end. Toward the end of the year, it might have been different," said Laurel coach Dwight Iverson. "Kay shot well again. We were outrebounded in the first half but held our own in the second half. Allen is a very experienced team and we held out own against them."

The junior varsity game was won by Laurel 28-26. Laurel scoring: Jill Hanson 12, Kelli Johnson 8, Patsy Thompson 2, Jana Cunningham 4, Lynda Ebmeier 2. Allen scoring: Tami Jewell 11; Michelle Harder 2; Lisa Hansen 1, Jeanne Warner 6, Pam Kavanaugh 2, Machelte Pettit 2, Carmen Lubberstedt 2.

Allen is scheduled to host Bancroft tomorrow (Friday) and play at Homer next Friday. Laurel plays at Wausa tonight (Thursday), at Coleridge Monday and will host Wayne next Thursday.

Winside Girls Open Season With Road Win Over Coleridge

A big third quarter sparked the Winside Wildcats to a 40-35 win over Coleridge in girls basketball action, Tuesday night at Coleridge. It was the season opener for Win Side.

Key factors in the victory were Winside's edge in rebounding and free throw shooting. The Wildcats went to the foul line 29 times and hit 14 free throws while Coleridge made 5 of 17.

Winside held a rebounding edge of 45 to 47. Leading rebounders for the winners were Laurie Gallop with 16, Sue Meierhenry with 14, Tammy Thomas with seven and Darla Janke with six.

The Wildcats led by two points after the first quarter but Coleridge tied the score 24-24 at the half. An 11-2 advantage in the third period put the visitors on top to stay.

Gallop scored 14 points for Winside. Robyn Winch scored 11 and Tammy Thomas added seven. Coleridge was led by Penny Smith with 14 points and Angie Anderson with 10. Three of Coleridge's players fouled out of the game.

"We made a lot of turnovers but played well for our first game," Winside coach Kathy O'Connor said.

O'Connor had five assists and four steals and Gallop had five steals. Winside shot 30 percent from the field compared to 27 percent for the hosts.

Winside won the junior varsity game 30-19. Kelli Leighton was the leading scorer with 10 points. Pam Frevert scored six, Karlene Benshoof scored six, Kim Frederick scored four, Joni Jaeger scored four and Lisa Jensen added two.

Wakefield Falters in 2nd Half

A 40-point outburst by Vic Donnelly shot down Wakefield's hopes of a season opening victory in girls basketball action, Monday in Wakefield. Homer defeated the Trojans 70-43.

Wakefield coach Dennis Wilbur said that his team "played real well for 2 1/2 quarters" but fell apart late in the game.

Homer broke the game open halfway through the third quarter when the Trojans were hampered by turnovers and went scoreless over a five minute period.

"In the middle of the third quarter, we started standing and had a mental letdown. At times we didn't want to shoot the ball," Wilbur stated. "The team looked real respectable for our first game and I'm confident we can hold our own against most teams. I think the kids will come along and help us out."

Four seniors and junior Rita Wilson started the game for the Trojans and Wilbur said he thought the starting five played well together.

Teri Schwarten led the Trojans with 14 points and Rita Wilson and Joan Miller added eight points each. Wakefield hit 32 percent from the field compared to 37 percent for Homer.

According to Trojan statistics, Wakefield outrebounded Homer 49 to 29. Leading rebounders were: Joan Miller 11, Connie Tullberg 9, Kris Mitchell 9, Rita Wilson 6, Renee Wenstrand 6 and Coleen Neuhaus 5.

Coach Wilbur said he was particularly pleased with Kris Mitchell, who pulled down seven rebounds in the fourth quarter and came off the bench to play well on defense. Wakefield won the junior varsity game 18-17. Marci Nixon scored six points and Kelly Greve added five.

Next action for the Trojans is scheduled Tuesday at Winside. Wakefield will be at home against Hartington next Thursday.

Erwin, Williams Sisters Lead Allen to 51-40 Win

With three players in double figures, the Allen Eagles opened their season with a 51-40 win over Coleridge in girls basketball action Friday night.

Senior Lisa Erwin led the team with 19 points on nine field goals and a free throw. Freshman Shelly Williams scored 14 points in her first varsity game and her sister junior Des Williams hit six field goals for 12 points. Coleridge was led by Penny Smith with 28 points.

Allen coach Gary Troth saw good points and bad in his team's victory. "For our first game, I was pleased. We were in control," Troth said. "Most of our scoring came from the outside. We committed dumb fouls and let them shoot too many free throws. We weren't in their spot and didn't control the boards."

Junior Beth Stalling led the Eagles with 12 of the team's 28 rebounds. Allen hit 36.7 percent of its shots from the field.

Troth commended his freshman Shelly Williams for her performance. "Shelly is aggressive, handles the ball well and makes good jump shots."

Next action for Allen is scheduled tomorrow (Friday) against Bancroft.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

IF YOU HAVEN'T watched the Wayne State women's basketball team play yet, try to take in a game when you get a chance.

With the loaded high school winter sports schedule, I usually only get to watch each Wayne State team play a handful of times. The Wayne State-Midland College women's game, Saturday was one of those times.

I think it was one of the best women's games I've seen for quite some time. Midland has established itself as a women's basketball power and recruited some good players to strengthen this year's team.

Hopefully, Wayne State is building a strong program and the next few years should provide some good matchups in the intra-state rivalry. The Lady Wildcats nearly upset Midland Saturday.

Two things made this game exciting. First of all, women play with a 30-second clock. This prevents either team from taking the air out of the ball and slowing down the pace of the game. It's much more fun to watch the teams fastbreak or set up an offensive play and work for the field goal.

The other thing that impressed me was the outside shooting. Both teams hit from outside nearly at will. One team would bring the ball downcourt and hit a long jumper.

Then, the other team would do the same. The outcome of the ball game wasn't decided until the final minute and although the Lady Cats were on the short end of the score, it was still one of the better games I've witnessed.

SPORTS READERS probably noticed an interesting but disturbing article in the Sunday edition of The Omaha World Herald.

The Associated Press story tells of a sad affair at South Miami High School in Florida. The head football coach there resigned after his team taunted and jeered a player for fumbling away their championship hopes.

With less than a minute to play in a championship game last month, South Miami was leading Columbus 20-14 and had the ball. Running back Tim Anderson fumbled, Columbus recovered and returned the ball for a touchdown to win the game.

Anderson said his teammates called him names and wanted to fight before he even left the field. Some players threw helmets at him, teased and taunted him and refused to allow him on the team bus for the ride back to school. Police had to escort him out of the locker room.

When the coach tried to talk to the players, they walked out.

That's the kind of behavior and poor sportsmanship that deserves punishment from the state high school athletic association. In fact, I feel that the school doesn't even deserve to have a football program after that incident.

Randy's ratings:

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

IF YOU HAVEN'T watched the Wayne State women's basketball team play yet, try to take in a game when you get a chance.

With the loaded high school winter sports schedule, I usually only get to watch each Wayne State team play a handful of times. The Wayne State-Midland College women's game, Saturday was one of those times.

I think it was one of the best women's games I've seen for quite some time. Midland has established itself as a women's basketball power and recruited some good players to strengthen this year's team.

Hopefully, Wayne State is building a strong program and the next few years should provide some good matchups in the intra-state rivalry. The Lady Wildcats nearly upset Midland Saturday.

Two things made this game exciting. First of all, women play with a 30-second clock. This prevents either team from taking the air out of the ball and slowing down the pace of the game. It's much more fun to watch the teams fastbreak or set up an offensive play and work for the field goal.

The other thing that impressed me was the outside shooting. Both teams hit from outside nearly at will. One team would bring the ball downcourt and hit a long jumper. Then, the other team, would do the same.

The outcome of the ball game wasn't decided until the final minute and although the Lady Cats were on the short end of the score, it was still one of the better games I've witnessed.

SPORTS READERS probably noticed an interesting but disturbing article in the Sunday edition of The Omaha World Herald.

The Associated Press story tells of a sad affair at South Miami High School in Florida. The head football coach there resigned after his team taunted and jeered a player for fumbling away their championship hopes.

With less than a minute to play in a championship game last month, South Miami was leading Columbus 20-14, and had the ball. Running back Tim Anderson fumbled. Columbus recovered and returned the ball for a touchdown to win the game.

Anderson said his teammates called him names and wanted to fight before he even left the field. Some players threw helmets at him, teased and taunted him and refused to allow him on the team bus for the ride back to school. Police had to escort him out of the locker room.

When the coach tried to talk to the players, they walked out.

That's the kind of behavior and poor sportsmanship that deserves punishment from the state high school athletic association. In fact, I feel that the school doesn't even deserve to have a football program after that incident.

A new federal minimum wage of $3.35 goes into effect on Jan. 1, entitling an estimated 5.6 million workers, nationwide, covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), to pay increases. Everett P. Jennings, regional administrator, Employment Standards Administration (ESA), stated Tuesday.

The Jan. 1 increase, from $3.10 to $3.35, was provided for in the 1977 amendments to the act, according to Jennings.

Jennings stressed the need for employers to be aware of this change so workers covered by the act may be accurately compensated. Questions regarding the minimum wage should be directed to the following Wage and Hour Division Area Offices:

U.S. Department of Labor, Employment Standards Administration, Wage and Hour Division, 643 Federal Bldg., 210 Walnut St., Des Moines, Iowa 50309. (515) 284-4625

'Tree City' Recognition Applications Are Due

Applications for the 1980 Tree City USA recognition are due Dec. 31 in the office of the State Forester in Lincoln.

Joe Range, University of Nebraska extension forester said six Nebraska cities, Auburn, Broken Bow, Fremont, Lincoln, Nebraska City and Omaha — were among 138 communities in the U.S. which received the title Tree City USA for 1979. The program is an award sponsored by the National Arbor Day Foundation.

"Other Nebraska communities which meet the requirements could be flying the green and white Tree City USA flag if they make application," Range said. The four criteria to meet the requirements are: to have a legally constituted tree board or department, a city tree ordinance, a comprehensive community tree program and hold an annual observance of Arbor Day.

Applications are available from Nebraska State Forester, 101 Plant Industry Building, East Campus, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb. 68583, and must be returned to that address by Dec. 31.

Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment in this area during the work week of Dec. 15-19, 1980. Leo C. Schilling, director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Denver, announced today.

The survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor in a scientifically designed sample of approximately 84,000 households throughout the United States. Employment and unemployment

Dinner Honors Mellor

WAYNE CITY employees held a retirement dinner for Bill Mellor Friday night at the Black Knight. Mellor is retiring as electric distribution superintendent effective Dec. 31. He received several gifts including the metered desk lamp and the projection screen. With him is his wife, Erna.

No-Till Systems Might Lower Nitrogen Levels

No-tillage system reduce fuel costs, prevent soil erosion and increase moisture levels in the soil, but there may be lower levels of plant-available nitrogen with no-till than with conventional tillage.

That is the result of research by University of Nebraska-Lincoln graduate student Mike Broder, working with U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Scientist Dr. John Doran, stationed in the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. Broder presented his research at the American Society of Agronomy meeting Monday.

According to researchers, conventional tillage systems have many functions, one of which is controlling weeds. However, with no-till systems, weed control is achieved with the application of herbicides. These no-till systems have increased soil compaction and retained more moisture in the soil.

Although weed control has been sufficient with chemical use, the increased moisture content has not always been reflected in increased yields. That is, yields from the research plot near Sidney, Neb., have not been consistently higher with no-till methods when compared to conventional tillage methods. Nitrifier populations, which are responsible for nitrate (plant available) nitrogen, were higher under conventional tillage as opposed to no-tillage systems.

It also was found that denitrifiers, populations with the potential of depleting the soil of nitrate, were lower in conventional tillage methods. The higher populations of nitrifiers and lower populations of denitrifiers corresponded to higher nitrate-nitrogen levels in conventional tillage.

Tests to evaluate the populations of nitrogen metabolizing microorganisms were conducted to determine if this explained the different nitrate levels.

Researchers concluded that under reduced tillage systems there were increased populations of denitrifiers and lower populations of nitrifiers. These correlated with increased levels of soil nitrate-nitrogen, which presents a possible explanation of the inconsistency between expected yields and the yields actually produced with reduced tillage.

Board Honors Mrs. Ley With Pair of Citations

Wayne-Carroll School District board of education will be losing a veteran when Dorothy Ley retires officially Jan. 7.

MRS. LEY, WHO was first elected 17 years ago, has provided the board with progressive leadership during her long tenure. She has been ill periodically for several months.

In light of her contributions to both the Wayne-Carroll School District and education as a whole, the board of education and the Nebraska State School Boards Association have honored her with a pair of citations.

Because she was unable to attend any of the last several board meetings and receive her honors in person, they were read and recorded at Monday night's meeting and were to be played for her Tuesday.

THE HONORS were as follows:
"The Nebraska State School Boards Association, in cooperation with the National School Boards Association, hereby confers upon Dorothy Ley their Award of Distinction for 17 years of service to education at the local, state and national levels.

"This award is given to selected board members who have accumulated 150 points on a scale designed to measure specific contributions made to education in areas of leadership, legislation and local service."

THE OTHER WAS as follows:
"As president of the Wayne board of education and on behalf of all school District 17 residents, it is my privilege to present to you the school district's Distinguished Service Award for Education."

"This prestigious award is given with appreciation for the unselfish service to education that you have demonstrated over the past 17 years as a member of the Wayne board of education.

"As a board member, you have given of your time and talents in many ways as you have pursued the goal of providing quality education for all children of the school district. You have provided quality education for all children of the school district. You have been instrumental in up-grading curriculum offerings and the overall learning environment for children. You are to be particularly commended for leadership which made possible the development of a nationally acclaimed model program designed to serve the learning disabled student in a classroom setting.

"THERE ARE MANY untold and unmeasurable contributions that you have made in the field of education which will have long lasting and far reaching effects for children of all ages, and in all locations.
"You have and will continue to be an inspiration to all who have known and worked with you."

Sincerely,
Wayne Board of Education

Carroll Poultry Expert Given A National Honor

A longtime poultry producer and nationally known management consultant, Joe Claybaugh of Carroll, has been named Poultryman of the Year by Nebraska Poultry Industries, Inc.

CLAYBAUGH, WHO operates TWJ Farms in partnership with his wife, son and daughter, was described as having broad experience in the poultry industry, beginning in his youth with a farm flock.

Doyle Free, general manager of Nebraska Poultry Industries, Inc., who delivered a tribute to Claybaugh at the organization's annual meeting in Columbus, said Claybaugh's work in chicken house design, ventilation and the handling of poultry wastes has been adopted in several other countries.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture and former extension worker, Claybaugh in 1953 joined DeKalb Agriscience as hatchery supervisor for the eastern United States. In 1959, he was transferred to the DeKalb home office as production manager and later as management consultant.

IN 1976, Claybaugh took early retirement and returned to Nebraska to establish a farming and poultry operation. TWJ Farms includes 1,200 acres of feed grains and pasture with two 60,000-bird capacity cage houses with complete automation. The chicken cage waste is used on the farmland and also with a mixture of cornstalks to feed a 130-head herd of purebred Polled Herefords.

Claybaugh is a member of the Wayne First United Methodist Church, the Northeast Nebraska Farm Business Association and the Wayne County Farm Bureau Board.

Send Your Santa Letters

The Wayne Herald once again is planning to collect letters to Santa Claus from youngsters in the Wayne area.

Santa, who telephoned from his headquarters at the North Pole recently, said he plans to read each youngster's letter carefully and do the best he can to make everyone happy on Christmas Eve.

We told Santa we would be happy to collect his mail for him. To make sure he sees all the letters, we will print them in The Herald each week from now until Christmas.

Boys and girls are asked to mail their letters to Santa Claus, The Wayne Herald, 114 Main St., Wayne, Neb. 68787.

WAY BACK WHEN

30 years ago
December 14, 1950: Cars belonging to Harry McMillan and Robert Van Cleave, Wakefield, were damaged Saturday evening when they sideswiped on a bridge northeast of Wayne. No one was injured. After an extensive remodeling program, City Grocery has joined IGA Food Stores group and will celebrate with a formal opening this Saturday. Kenneth Olds, Burr Davis, H.E. Siman, W.R. Ellis, Budd Bornhoff and Mrs. Charles McDermott attended an income tax school in Norfolk Tuesday. Wisner grads and high school students were back at their studies last Wednesday after a one-day holiday caused by spontaneous combustions in the coal creating a gas, according to Supt. Henry J. Hageman.

25 years ago
December 15, 1955: Contracts were let Monday for a $7,800 remodeling project at Wayne's First Methodist Church, the Rev. A.B. Gray announced. The construction will include a new stone front entry and stained glass windows. A home on the William Willers farm seven miles southeast of Winside was completely destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. The ants of the farm, Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Landanger and two children, were at home when the fire was discovered. Purchase of a three-acre tract from Ross James for the proposed new National Guard Armory was approved by the City Council Tuesday night. Cost of the site, which will be deeded to the state, is $6,000.

20 years ago
December 15, 1960: William Mau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mau, Wayne, has enlisted in the U.S. Navy and is now taking recruit training at San Diego, Calif. He is a 1960 graduate of Wayne High School. Mary Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wright, Wayne, took part in Western State College's Christmas concert Tuesday Wednesday. The group appeared on TV for a half hour program which was also carried over the station radio facilities. Alex Hamilton, 17, Wayne, suffered a head cut Sunday afternoon when he lost control of his car and went into a deep ditch two miles west and four miles south of Wayne.

15 years ago
December 9, 1965: A new feature is being added to The Herald this coming week. A report on happenings in the Dixon County Courthouse will be carried each week. A six-acre parcel of land south of Winside has been secured for construction of a state-approved lagoon. Mayor N.L. Dittman said the lagoon would be a big improvement over the present system. For years, Winside has been dumping raw sewage into Logan Creek south of town. St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Wayne, will hold a mortgage burning ceremony Sunday, Dec. 12. It will mark the final payment of the building debt for the congregation.

10 years ago
December 10, 1970: Books and boots hit the dust Tuesday afternoon at the motel in Wayne climbed over 60 degrees. The Indian summer weather prompted a host of Wayne State students to kick off their shoes and boots, toss their books to the ground and take up a game of touch football. All burning within the city limits of Wayne is now prohibited. Penalty for breaking the law can range up to a $100 fine. Wayne police were called Sunday to investigate after a thief or thieves entered Swanson's TV store via a rear storage room window and took more than $1,100 worth of merchandise. Wayne County Rural Teachers met for a dinner Dec. 7 in the Woman's Club Room and honored Mrs. Gladys Porter, superintendent of rural schools, and her husband Steve. An appreciation plaque and gift were presented to the Porters for their work in the county superintendent's office and in the organization.

Politics for the '80's Shaping Up

CAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Paul
 Statehouse Correspondent
 The Nebraska Press Association

Republicans and Democrats alike have been talking about the 1982 and 1984 elections ever since the polls closed Nov. 4 and a Republican sweep was evident across the country.

At first it seemed Democrats, licking their wounds, were planning to regroup quickly to mount strong campaigns in 1982 Statehouse and congressional races and the 1984 presidential contest. That really hasn't changed, but now the GOP is entering the picture, too.

A possible re-election bid apparently is in Gov. Charles Thone's mind, although the state's chief executive won't disclose his plans right now. But the first-term Republican governor reportedly told some close friends and political associates recently that a re-election bid was in the picture.

One of Thone's associates said the governor gave the impression that he would seek re-election. Thone publicly reacted to the report by saying he didn't plan to make any announcement about his future until later next year.

The story doesn't end there, however. Nebraska Republican Party Chairman Ralph Knobel, a Fairbury farmer, says he wants to retain his office for another two years "to continue strengthening the party and to build on the GOP's recent success."

So while the Democrats plan ahead for the 1982 and 1984 elections and set their sights on making up the ground they lost this year, the Republicans are not sitting idly by.

Knobel, in announcing his decision to seek a second term as state GOP chairman, listed his goals for the next two years. Among them was election of a Republican governor, which should make Thone happy if he does in fact run again.

Knobel for that matter wants to retain Republican control in the Statehouse. That means, in addition to having a Republican governor, again electing Republicans to the secretary of State's office, the state auditor's office, the state treasurer's office, the attorney general's office and, of course, the lieutenant governor's office.

Not to be outdone, Knobel also has set a goal of claiming a seat in the U.S. Senate and retaining Nebraska's GOP stronghold in the House of Representatives.

Knobel's success in reaching his goals in a large part may depend on Thone's eventual announcement of his political future. Thone's decision also will be important to the state's Democrats, who reportedly have already begun a search for a gubernatorial candidate who could beat Thone in 1982 — if the governor throws his hat in the ring again.

Relinquish those cars!
 Too many cars, says Gov. Charles Thone. But governor, we need them, say some agency heads.

Thone has begun an effort to cut back the number of state-owned vehicles from the present 3,500, but some agencies apparently don't like the idea. Agency heads in some departments argue that a reduction in the number of passenger-carrying vehicles they have will diminish their efficiency.

The legislative fiscal office and the Governor's Task Force on Government Improvement disagree. A reduction is essential, they say, using dollar signs to prove their point.

The Government Improvement Task Force, formed by Thone to improve and streamline state government, said a "drastic reduction" is needed in the state's vehicle fleet. The task force said one passenger vehicle exists for every eight employees.

Based on task force estimates, the state could save $700,000 a year if the state's vehicle pool weren't quite so large. But a recent count, after the Thone administration's push to reduce the size of the fleet, showed less than 50 cars had been relinquished by state agencies.

Most of the cars that have been relinquished so far came from the state Labor Department, which pared its fleet of 54 to 37. Other departments have turned back a few cars, and still others say they intend to.

For example, the Department of Administrative Services plans to reduce by 25 percent the 843 passenger vehicles controlled by DAS. Whether DAS achieves its goal could have an impact on what other agencies do, because DAS is implementing the Thone administration's push to cut the number of state cars.

Labor employee wins suit
 More than five years ago, a manpower specialist in the state Labor Department was fired for such reasons as incompetency, inefficiency and negligence.

This month, after almost continuous litigation since the firing, Fred Nevels III won his federal court suit.

U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom agreed with earlier rulings in the Lancaster County District Court and the Nebraska Supreme Court that there was good cause for the firing. But Urbom said he had to rule in Nevels' favor because Nevels was denied due process in the termination proceeding.

Under Urbom's order, Nevels was ordered returned to the state payroll. The judge also said Nevels is entitled to about $59,000 in back pay, benefits, attorney fees and court costs.

In his ruling, Urbom said the state has several options in deciding how to proceed. The judge said the state could grant Nevels full reinstatement, or settle for temporary reinstatement until a new decision is made to discharge him.

But even though Nevels won his appeal to Urbom's court, the matter is not completely settled. The lawyer who handled the case for the state, Assistant Attorney General Jerry Fennell, is permitted to appeal Urbom's ruling to the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

Legislative organization
 Holler and make noise is what outgoing state Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island thinks liberals will have to do if they want to get anything going in the Legislature next year.

But Kelly isn't predicting success for the liberals, who by his count — and by the count of most others — are a minority in the new Legislature. With that in mind, Kelly says leadership battles when the Legislature convenes in January will be between liberals and conservatives.

But because a minority of lawmakers are what Kelly refers to as liberals, the Grand Island senator said "they haven't got a chance to get anything going."

Kelly, who retires from the Legislature when the new session officially gets underway in January, also said liberals will have trouble winning chairmanship positions because they will have to "sit on the sidelines."

Whether Kelly's predictions come true is, of course, for time to tell. But if party affiliations offer any insight into liberal and conservative convictions, it would appear the retiring senator is pretty much on target.

The composition of the Legislature is heavily weighted in favor of the GOP, the party that usually carries the conservative label. The 1981 Legislature will have 32 Republicans, 16 Democrats and one independent.

Out of Old Nebraska

Dec. 15, 1981, will be the 200th anniversary of the adoption by the states of the first ten amendments to the Constitution — the Bill of Rights. These ten amendments which constitute the bill of rights relate to: (1) freedom of religion, speech, press, and assembly; (2) right to bear arms; (3) quartering of troops; (4) unreasonable search and seizure; (5) capital crime; (6) rights of the accused; (7) trial by jury in common-law cases; (8) bail, fines, and punishments; (9) fundamental rights of the individual; and (10) powers reserved to the states. This charter of liberties was obtained, and has been retained, at a great price. It is "a reminder that men went cold and hungry, that their bare feet left blood stains across the snow, that they hugged the holy ideal of liberty to their hearts in spite of all the odds that lay against them, in spite of suffering, deprivation and discouragement."

Yet each of the guarantees in the bill of rights, at one time or another, has been placed in jeopardy — either by our federal and state governments, by foreign powers, or by groups within our population. Thus in 1941, on the 150th anniversary of the bill of rights, Editor S. Edward Gilbert published a plea in the "Omaha Sun" for equal rights denied the Negro. (The "Omaha Sun" can be read on microfilm at the Nebraska State Historical Society.) Excerpts follow:

"A house divided against itself cannot stand. This is an enduring truth for all peoples and all nations. Even the unscrupulous Dictators, who now grapple at our very life line in their greed for world domination, know this. They know that to conquer a nation, its people must be divided, one group against another, race against race, religion against religion, class against class.

"Even in America inscrutable men have very effectively inscribed into our democratic structure, race as well as religious hatred, namely Anti-Negro, Anti-Semitism and Anti-Catholic, all of which has served a devastating wedge into the very foundation of our Bill of Rights.

"(On Dec. 15th) as we celebrate the 150th anniversary of the 'bill of rights'... there (is) being denied 13,000,000 American citizens, because of their color, the right guaranteed all Americans by the second amendment: 'The right to bear arms.' No Negro is allowed to fire a gun on the boats of our Navy. Clamor though we may to fight for our democracy, the Navy continues to say 'Not Clamor though we may for the right to work in all defense industry, signs are still to be found, 'Wanted: White Help Only!'

"Now... this nation finds itself gripped in a war filled with treachery and propelled by a man by the name of Hitler, whose philosophy of life is that (with apology to our great President) 'the individual being has no right to a soul of his own, or a tongue of his own, or a trade of his own, or even to live where he please, that his only duty is the duty of obedience, not to his God, and not to his conscience, but to Adolph Hitler.' Such is the form of dictatorial rule that if we as a nation will inevitably succumb to it we continue... dual standards of living and acting.

"Therefore, in the name of God and in behalf of Black America, the 'Omaha Star' extends to White America Best Wishes for Tolerance. Tolerance that will do away with the dastardly color line that divides the people of our great country, playing in the very hands of our enemies, and commend them to move towards a principle of one nation, one flag, one God, and if you please, one inalienable right for all mankind."

There is no denying that intolerance and discrimination exists even today in the United States. Nonetheless, the majority of its citizens believe that the ten paragraphs in the Bill of Rights of 1791 have been, and always will be, "worth defending, preserving, and advancing."

Getting Better

While test scores of high school students across the nation continue to show disappointing results, students at Wayne Carroll High School are much better educated than the average student nationally.

The board of education has taken steps to further insure an excellent education here by increasing the number of required hours needed to graduate. Effective next school year, students will need 200 hours to graduate rather than the current 180 hours.

Some students are sure to grumble. Most will not be able to graduate at mid-term as has been the tradition now for several years. They will, however, be receiving a more detailed and complete education by being required to have a minimum of 200 hours to receive a diploma. Even with the additional class load, they will have free time to take college courses as some of them have.

The board's decision will benefit students as they enter jobs or go on to a trade school, college or university.

Students will be required to take more English and more American government. We applaud the additional instruction in these two areas since they are two of the fundamentals of our nation. Wayne State College Professor Allan O'Donnell has noted that state government is not a requirement for graduation, but should be. We agree. We hope the administration is considering a course on how the government of Nebraska operates. Dan Field, Editor.

More for Local Units In State Budget: Thone

"I think you'll agree, the state has done an amazing job in being able to provide about $70 million more in aid to local governments and tax breaks for individuals in this year's budget and still reduce the state income tax rate by one-sixth.

"Of the $79 million total, approximately $19.9 million will go to individuals. When each taxpayer prepares a state income tax return at the end of 1980, he or she will be able to take an $8 greater food sales tax credit for each member of the family. This will reduce the state's revenue from individual income taxes by an estimated $12.1 million.

"The other $7.8 million going to individuals will be through increased exemptions from property taxes on homes owned by those over 65. The state, of course, does not collect any property taxes. It does, however, reimburse local governments for the revenue lost because state law provides a property tax break for senior citizens.

"The 1980 legislature passed, and I signed into law, a bill raising the exemption on a home owned by a person over 65 from $25,000 to $35,000. It will take an estimated $7.8 million from the state treasury to reimburse local governments for the property taxes they will lose from this increased exemption.

"The other $50.1 million will be in the form of additional aid to local governments this year from the state treasury. The largest portion is a $40-million increase in state aid to local school districts.

"The state also increased its payments to local governments for types of personal property that have been exempted from property taxes. That increase will take $7.8 million from the state treasury.

"The state this year is reducing the share of Medicaid paid by counties from 18 percent to 16 percent. This 2 percent increase in the state's share is expected to cost $2.3 million this fiscal year.

"The state through very prudent and conservative handling of your tax funds, has been able to provide $70 million more in aid to local governments and tax breaks for individuals and still cut state personal income taxes by 16.6 percent from the 1979 rate.

"It will be my intent to continue cautious fiscal policies throughout 1981."

Coal Production Should Be Expanded

Unless a much more intensive alternative energy program is developed, fossil fuel resources—primary coal production—must be developed to meet U.S. energy demands.

This word came from Dr. William Splinter, head of the University of Nebraska Department of Agricultural Engineering, in an address before the Pan American Union of Engineering Association meeting here recently.

"Certainly direct capture of solar energy for space heating is an immediate alternative," Splinter said. Both passive and active solar collections are currently being developed commercially.

Of the various alternatives for using biological materials for energy, ethanol production from grain or sugar cane is being most intensively developed. Exploration of the use of vegetable oils as a replacement for diesel fuels also is being carried out, he said. Direct combustion and methane generation from wastes also have development potential, he added.

Nearly 30 percent of the energy use in the U.S. is in the form of space heating, he said, and successful research has been done in solar energy. Both farm and urban experience with passive solar collectors indicate that from 25 to 80 percent of the building space heating needs can be provided, he said.

Splinter told the group about an experimental system at the NU Field Laboratory near Mead, Neb., which uses photovoltaic cells to convert the sun's rays to electrical energy. The system, built in cooperation with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Lincoln Laboratory, has been in operation for three years. It powers an irrigation pump in summer, dries grain in the fall and operates an arc process nitrogen generator in free periods.

Splinter also looked at wood fuels and crop residues, citing transportation costs as a major limiting factor when considering burning crop residues.

Cellulose materials can be converted to methanol, he said, but ethanol has fewer usage problems than does methanol. However, he said that alcohol stills have been built throughout the U.S. but results to date indicate that gallons of ethanol realized are only one half to two thirds of the potential from a bushel of grain.

Dynamometer tests were run in 1949 at NU, using diesel engines running on a blend of diesel fuel and soybean oil, tung oil and castor bean oil. They found that gumming problems developed over time.

Total on-farm use of energy amounts to three percent of the total U.S. use, he said, and best estimates are that seven percent of the U.S. energy can come from non fossil fuel or non-nuclear sources by the year 2000.

State Should Promote Image of 'Tree Planter'

Nebraskans must continue to promote the heritage of their state as the Tree Planter State. Lt. Gov. Roland Luedtke said recently on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus. Luedtke's opening remarks at the Plant 2 Trees Conference, kicked off a statewide program which encourages planting two, 200, 2,000, or 20,000 trees. He presented a proclamation by Gov. Charles Thone inaugurating the program.

In his remarks, Luedtke noted that by the year 2,000, 40 percent of forest areas remaining in the less developed countries will be razed. "Conservation and replanting falls to people like us," he said.

Recalling a trip to Israel in 1976 when he planted a tree in the Jerusalem Peace Forest, he said, "Tree planting really is symbolic that we as God's people on earth, as stewards of what God's given us to account for, must put down our own spiritual roots in our own community."

"The Good Life" will continue only as long as Nebraskans continue to plant trees and perform other acts of stewardship, he added.

Nebraska's Plant 2 Tree program will be modeled after the "Plant Iowa" program, the director of the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service noted in later remarks. Leo Lucas said goals of the program include a more pleasurable environment, greater awareness of plant values and helping people to understand the use and care of trees.

The program shouldn't be the project of any specific organization or group, he said, but instead should bring together civic, fraternal, governmental and other groups "to turn around depletion of our tree resources."

The program must be developed at the local level, he said, with county tree planting committees encouraging a type of project appropriate for the area, such as wildlife plantings or rejuvenation of city parks.

The role of the extension service will be to "work with groups or individuals to define local problems, seek solutions and provide information that will help them solve them," he said. Extension's role will primarily be in the technical area, Lucas added.

Representatives of numerous statewide organizations attended the conference, sponsored by the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

LT. GOV. ROLAND Luedtke presented a plaque to the Milton G. Waldbaum Co. in Wakefield Thursday afternoon for the company's untiring willingness to resettle, house and provide employment for the Indochinese refugees who have settled in Wakefield. Lutheran Family and Social Service of Nebraska is recognizing the excellent cooperation by Waldbaum's in employing numerous refugees who have been resettled by the efforts of the Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Service. Lieutenant Governor Luedtke is at left making the presentation to Dr. Waldbaum.

Stay Warm Safely Urged

Now that most gas furnaces are probably switched on for winter, Rolin Schnieder, extension safety specialist at the University of Nebraska, urges families to stay warm safely.

Schnieder says carbon monoxide, an odorless, poisonous gas, can build up when a burner is out of adjustment and doesn't get adequate air supply, or combustion is incomplete. Improper venting also can create dangerous concentrations of carbon monoxide in the home.

Be aware of the possibility of carbon monoxide buildup or gas leakage. The specialist at the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources gives three warning signals:

- You or your family have persistent headaches or nausea
- You notice the distinctive odor of gas.

- You notice any unusual odors from the furnace.

In any of these cases, immediately open doors and windows to ventilate the house. Shut off the gas at the main valve to the appliance or house and call your gas company, furnace servicing agent or fire department for help.

Schnieder says carbon monoxide buildup or gas leakage hazards can be prevented with proper furnace maintenance. "Your family's safety is worth a service call," he says. "Besides, you may be wasting energy dollars with inefficient combustion."

To insure safe operation, ask the service representative to check the carbon monoxide level in the furnace flue. The ventilation system and burner adjustment should also be checked.

One routine maintenance task you can do yourself is to check the belt for cracks and brittleness. If you change belts, Schnieder recommends saving the old one. It may come in handy on a cold Saturday night when no parts are available.

Take care that the belt isn't too tight. This can cause premature

Protecting your home
Like to slow the wind down? Research has proven that a properly established and cared for windbreak can reduce wind velocity up to 70 percent. This means that for each 200 feet on the leeward side a windbreak could reduce a 30 mile per hour wind to just 10 miles per hour.

How much more comfortable would your home be with this protection? You should order your Clarke-McNary shelterbelt trees from the Extension office while a good selection is still available.

Acclimatizing your house plants
When you purchase a new plant you are greatly changing the plant's environment. Leaf drop, yellowing or browning leaves, and eventual death of the plant often result from this abrupt change.

What are the major environmental factors your plant must adapt to in the new setting? There is less light and less humidity than outdoors or in the greenhouse, and generally higher night temperatures. In addition, plants from commercial sources may have soil nutrient content. When these highly fertilized plants are grown under low light intensity foliage burn and leaves drop. The plants alter its structure to meet the demands of the new environment (for example, larger leaves).

The plant hobbyist should aid the plant during this transitional period if the plant is to survive. Gradually reduce light intensity and, if possible, use supplementary light. Use a humidifier, especially during the heating season. Apply sufficient water to drain through the soil column in your plant container.

Fertilize house plants to maintain satisfactory color, but don't overfertilize. Remember, plants require less fertilizer when grown under the lower light intensities of indoors. Acclimatized plants will not only live longer, but they also will be an attractive addition to your interior decor.

Call SSI Before Visiting

It is a good idea for people in the Northeast Nebraska area to call social security before making a visit to the office. This is because most social security business can now be conducted over the telephone, Dale Branch social security district manager in Norfolk, said recently.

"Unless a person's business is urgent, it is best to call after the middle of the month. Inquiries can be handled more efficiently in that period," Branch said.

Examples of the things that can be handled by telephone include:

- Applying for social security benefits. A claim can be started over the phone and completed by mail.
- Applying for Medicare.
- Changing name or address in social security records.
- Reporting a change in marital status.
- Reporting stopping or starting work or to report any event that may affect checks.
- Reporting a lost or stolen check or delayed payment.
- Getting help in filling out a Medicare form.
- Arranging for direct check deposit.
- Getting an estimate of benefit amount.
- Getting help in requesting that claims decision be reviewed.
- To ask any questions about social security or to request free publications.

The telephone number for the social security office is 1-800-642-8310. The people there will be glad to help.

NEW HYDRA-PUSH™ SPREADER DESIGN HELPS ELIMINATE FREEZE-UP PROBLEMS

John Deere introduces a better way to spread manure... the new 450 Hydra-Push Spreader with 217 cu. ft. capacity (heaped, single beater). Hydraulic push-off design replaces the conveyor chain, thereby eliminating the chance of conveyor chain and flights freezing down during cold weather spreading. Piggy-back hydraulic cylinders move the front part of the floor and blade, pushing and carrying manure to the beater. The cleanout stage is eliminated, so you can finish spreading faster than with conventional spreaders. Sides and floor on the Hydra-Push Spreader are bonded with a corrosion-proof material—manure won't freeze or stick to it. Spreader sides and floor are scraped clean as the blade moves the load to the beater. The 450 Hydra-Push spreader has fewer moving parts than conventional spreaders, minimizing maintenance.

Stop by today and see the new 450 Hydra-Push Spreader.

Centennial Coins

Centennial coins are now available at most business places in Wakefield.

In an effort to circulate the coins, businessmen are distributing them to customers as change. The coins are worth 50 cents each and may be used to purchase items in local stores.

The coin, gold in color, is slightly larger than a U.S. 50 cent piece and features Wakefield's Centennial logo on the front. The back states that the coins are to be used to purchase merchandise at the Centennial Store. However, Centennial officials wish to point out that the coins may be used as currency in any local store from now through the last day of 1981.

Centennial Store

Barb Sampson, co chairman of the Wakefield Centennial Committee, announced last week that through the generosity of Dan Gardner, president of the Milton G. Waldbaum Co., the former Humpty Dumpty building on Main street has been cleaned up and will be used as the Centennial Store.

Garden Ideas for Christmas?

Thinking up the right Christmas gift is often difficult, but if that "hard-to-please" person happens to be a gardening enthusiast, your worries are over.

Friends and relatives will be tickled with a unique gift reminding them of spring, sunshine and warmth, says Katherine Weiss, extension home gardening coordinator at the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Surprise the vegetable gardener with a new tool or two. A shiny new hoe or strong garden rake will thrill the young gardener. Older gardeners will appreciate extra tools that will allow gardening chores to be shared by two. Flower gardeners will enjoy a new hand trowel, a hand weeder, a spading shovel or a spading fork. "Spading forks also are available with long handles that make spading easier than with a short handled fork," she notes.

For the homeowner, buy the pruning equipment needed to properly maintain shrubs, trees and hedges, Weiss suggests. Small hand-held scissors-like pruning shears are invaluable for trimming the pencil-thick branches of shrubs, young trees, roses and flowers. Two hand loppers tackle large branches and a pruning saw will delight the fruit tree grower.

"Purchasing Christmas gifts for a houseplant enthusiast is a cinch, Weiss says. How about extra clay pots of assorted sizes, a bottle of fertilizer, or an exotic plant? Wouldn't a friend be surprised to discover a bag of peat moss under the Christmas tree next to your favorite plant clippings already rooted?

A gift certificate from a local garden center or nursery could spruce up a relative's yard. Next spring they'll be able to cash in the certificate and choose among bedding plants, perennial flowers, shrubs, raspberry bushes or a young tree.

And anyone could use more sprinklers, buckets, hoses and hose holders, and small hand sprayers. If your budget is limited, but you have free time, try making a batch of tomato cages from scrap lumber and chicken wire.

"Another inexpensive idea would include starting an avocado plant or sweet potato plants," Weiss says. "Some sweet potatoes at the store are treated so they won't sprout, so select sweet potatoes that already show sprouts."

Equipment for indoor sprouting is another unique gift idea. This would include sprouting kits or mason jars, screens and seeds.

"This isn't exactly what they mean by an inflation hedge, George."

The Amazing World of Kreskin

Welcome to the amazing world of Kreskin. Kreskin, known nationally and internationally as a mentalist, captivated, astounded and entertained an estimated crowd of 1,200 in Wayne State College's Rice Auditorium, Monday night. It was Kreskin's second appearance at Wayne State in the past three years.

The entertainer, who has made 88 appearances on "The Tonight Show", walked on stage to an ovation and greeted the crowd by saying, "It goes without saying that I know what you're thinking."

His two hour and 40 minute program consisted mainly of "reading minds" and "using his power of suggestion". Kreskin surprised members of the audience by reading their thoughts, finding his hidden check and getting volunteers to do strange things on stage. While "reading minds" Kreskin revealed friends' names, birthdates, anniversaries, license numbers, home towns, hobbies, injuries, telephone numbers and other miscellaneous information.

Just prior to his 15 minute intermission, four members of the audience hid Kreskin's check while college Administrators Dr. Ed Elliott and Dr. Jack Middendorf and Student Senator David Shively occupied Kreskin in his dressing room. According to Kreskin, he has failed to find his check on nine previous engagements during his career. The entertainer was paid $3,000 plus expense money.

The mentalist asked Jeff Kirsten to accompany him in his search for the check. Kirsten was one of the four individuals who hid the check. Leading Kirsten around with a handkerchief, Kreskin wasted only a few minutes before finding his check inside the battery compartment of a flash attachment of this photographer's camera.

In the second portion of his show, Kreskin asked for volunteers and was overwhelmed as dozens of college students jumped on stage. He permitted 40 persons on stage before he turned people away.

Using his power of persuasion, Kreskin asked the volunteers to rotate their arms faster and faster until they found out they couldn't stop. He convinced them they were exposed to extreme heat and cold and even made a handful of students believe that they were "Moon people." At the end of the program, 10 volunteers found themselves "glued" to their chairs and their feet "glued" to the floor.

ESpecially,
Kreskin

A Look at the Future of Eating

Dr. Arnold Schaefer, a former Health, Education and Welfare official and past president of the American Institute of Nutrition, has sharply criticized the Carter administration's nutrition policy and urged cattlemen to produce leaner meat.

Dr. Schaefer, now director of the Nebraska Council on Public Relations for Agriculture (NCPRA) at the Douglas County Cooperative Extension Service office Tuesday night, Dec. 2.

According to Dr. Schaefer, under the Carter administration, people were told what to eat — especially in the school lunch programs. Calling for the consumer's right to food choice, Dr. Schaefer said nutrition education should be stressed, along with a return to the "good old school lunch."

But his talk didn't focus on past eras. Dr. Schaefer gave the audience of about 75 persons his predictions of what Americans will be eating in the 21st century. "Women will forget how to cook food. They'll just pop meals in a quick oven," he said.

If that sounds like today's TV dinners, Dr. Schaefer insisted that the future's fast meals will be different.

"Industry will have to provide meals that are high in nutrients and low in fat," he predicted. Nutritional data and amount of calories per meal will have to be supplied. "If we can supply that information now for dogs, chickens and swine, we ought to be able to supply that information on human food."

Americans will get less exercise in the year 2050, Dr. Schaefer said, and added that there will be an increased need for recreational activities.

Although he didn't see the need for extenders in meat being used in the U.S. now, Dr. Schaefer said soybean extenders will probably be the lifesaver of the rest of the world.

He said the world population will increase to 6 billion in the year 2000 — compared to the present 4.5 billion. Latin America has the highest rate of population explosion, doubling its current population by the year 2005, Dr. Schaefer said it would take the U.S. 70 years to double its current population.

"You often hear people say that the U.S. can feed the rest of the world. We can't feed the rest of the world. What we have to do is to take our technology over to countries and teach them so they can feed themselves," Dr. Schaefer said.

Food quackery is another of Dr. Schaefer's targets. Quoting a 1900 Journal called "What to Eat," concern was being raised about the fad of vegetarianism, restaurants which won't serve meat because it's hard on the human digestive system. The article continues by saying that good nutrition starts with a variety of foods and meat is still one of the best protein sources.

"You see, things haven't changed much," Dr. Schaefer noted. "I don't condemn vegetarianism, but I want to have a choice. I don't think we should tell children they have to eat certain foods. We should provide kids with material that will help them decide for themselves whether the food quackery is right, whether the food advocate is right or whether common sense is right."

Dr. Schaefer also stressed that heart disease has decreased. "Stomach cancer, which they also to associate with animal fat, has decreased. Today our biggest fatal problem with men and women is lung cancer."

If there's a nutritional problem the American public should be concerned about, it's obesity, he added.

"People often give the excuse that obesity is hereditary. But a study on whether adoptive children became overweight if their foster parents were overweight shows that obesity is not inherited. If the parents were overweight, then the chances of the children being overweight increased. The problem is the family's eating habits. Kids do mimic their parents," he said.

The NCPRA's reactor panel of Evelyn Birkby, a broadcaster and editor from Sidney, Iowa and W. Wayne Hendrickson, owner of a land, grain and cattle business in Kearney, generally agreed with Dr. Schaefer's statements.

The only slight disagreement came from Mrs. Birkby, who said she couldn't foresee women forgetting how to cook.

"That's part of the nurturing aspect of being a mother and wife — cooking a good meal for your family. There's a lot more that goes with foods than just eating. The meal is a time for family fellowship," she said.

Stats Show State No Longer Losing Residents

ALLEN NEWS / Mrs. Ken Linafelter 635-2403

More than a quarter of the people interviewed in the 1977 and 1979 Nebraska Annual Social Indicators Survey (NASIS) changed residences in the two years between the surveys, according to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Bureau of Sociological Research.

Of the total number of NASIS respondents, most moved to another residence in the same county, while 4.3 percent moved to another county and only 6.7 percent left the state entirely.

These are some of the findings in a 1980 NASIS report titled "Migration in Nebraska: Movers and Stayers 1977-79," which was prepared by Dr. Lynn White, professor of sociology and director of NASIS.

While less than seven percent of the total number of NASIS interviewees in 1977 and 1979 are no longer Nebraskans, Dr. White found that of the 25 percent who did move, 25 percent left the state, which she said was comparable to the national average of 23 percent who move from one state to another.

"The data suggest that Nebraska is no longer experiencing the high exodus of previous decades," Dr. White said. "In fact, the last census data for Nebraska, 1970-77, showed that there were slightly more people moving into Nebraska than moving out during the '70's."

The NASIS survey found that the older one gets, the less likely one is to move, but of those who do move, it is the middle age group that is most likely, because of career considerations, to leave the state.

The survey also found that residents of very small cities are more apt to move than residents of big cities, and that people without strong ties to the community are more likely to move than those without such ties.

In terms of background factors, the NASIS survey found that in spite of the high cost of moving, the poorest and least educated segment of the NASIS sample were the most likely to have moved in the 1977-79 period.

Lincoln, according to the report, has an "exceptional level" of out-of-state migration, which Dr. White said "is probably a result of the high proportion of college-educated professionals employed there."

In general, however, few people move from Lincoln or Omaha to other locations in Nebraska — three out of four movers leaving those cities leave the state entirely.

Dr. White said NASIS data clearly show that those most apt to leave the state are college graduates, from big cities, married with children, and poorly integrated into their communities.

Asked if they intended to return to Nebraska, only 6 percent of the out-migrants said "yes," whereas 60 percent said definitely not.

Contrary to some beliefs, Dr. White said that the NASIS survey does not point to a "rural renaissance" in Nebraska. Rural areas are not growing faster than urban areas even though large proportions of the population prefer small town living.

"There is no convincing demonstration of an exodus to small towns, especially in Nebraska," Dr. White said. "While the data shows an end to the 80-year drain from rural counties, it is more of a stabilization than a renaissance."

"For the first time in decades," she said, "non-metropolitan Nebraska is experiencing a slight growth, but the fastest growing counties in Nebraska, as shown by census figures, are the metropolitan Dakota, Douglas, Lancaster and Sarpy counties."

"All of the current data on migration in Nebraska indicates slow growth in the state as a whole with a stabilization of out-migration rates for rural areas and small communities and continued growth of the four or five larger cities in the state."

Shoe Party Set Dec. 24

Letters of invitation have been sent out to hundreds of boys and girls, inviting them to come to Wall Street Mission Goodwill Industries for a shoe fitting. This being part of the preparation for the 39th annual Children's Christmas Shoe Party to be held on Dec. 24.

The fittings which were held on Dec. 9 and 10, are carried out by shoe store personnel along with Goodwill Industries staff members and volunteers from around the area.

At the party, on Dec. 24, each child receives a new pair of shoes, two new pairs of stockings, a pair of hand knit mittens and a bag of Christmas treats. Entertainment is provided throughout the day by volunteer groups, the highlight event being an appearance by Santa Claus.
