Wayne High Students Take Husker Honors

Wayne Carroll High School and one of its students took top honors at the West Husker One Act Play Contest here Saturday.

HONORS FOR the best play went to students at Wayne Carroll who performed "Endgame" featuring Lisa Remer, Suzanne Platner, Ben Cattle and Bryan Schmidt.

Also, Cattle was named best actor for his performance. Participating schools included Columbus Lakeview, Emerson Hubbard, Harlington Cedar Catholic, West Point Cedar Catholic, Wisner Pilger and Madison.

Judges were Art Dirks of Wayne State College and Bill Roundey of Seward.

THE PLAY THAT won Wayne first was written by Samuel Becket and was the story of the inner workings of a person's mind. High school drama instructor Ted Blenderman was the director.

Second place play went to Wisner for "Cagebirds." The cast featured Sally Podony, Joan Sluerve, Cathy Winer, Cara Winer, Linda Warling, Chris Biermann, Denise Doron and Janet Burris. Director was Gay Ocklander.

Other individual honors went to Jill Pinkleman from Harlington CC for best actress, to Damien LeHler of West Point CC for best supporting actor and to Joan Sluerve of Wisner for best supporting actress.

WAYNE CARROLL students competed about 6:30 p.m. in the District One Act Plays at Wayne State Wednesday. The top three plays will qualify for state competition, but this information was not available at press time. Fourteen schools are entered in the Class B District Contest.

Wayne Drama Club has won the conference contest for the last eight years, has won a superior rating at districts for the last nine years and won the state competition in 1975 and 1978.

High Court Halts Money

The status of considerable money is now in limbo because of a recent Supreme Court decision finding a state law to be unconstitutional.

DR. FRANCIS Haun, superintendent of the Wayne-Carroll School District, said Tuesday that the district may be forced to reduce its staff even further if some money is not received from state coffers.

Acting City Administrator Norm Melton has budgeted the money also, but says the city can absorb the loss if the legislature does not come up with the money. County Treasurer Leon Meyer says the county is in a similar holding pattern until it receives the money which has been frozen by the Supreme Court's action.

THE SCHOOL district had been slated to receive some $76,000 in state money over the next seven months, Haun explained. The city had budgeted about $11,500 and the county an estimated $80,000.

This was to be part of $70 million that the Legislature had intended for distribution to political subdivisions in reimbursement for revenue lost because of the repeal of business personal property taxes. All together, political subdivisions in Wayne County were to receive some $377,850 in seven installments, Treasurer Meyer explained.

Haun said the district has lost the interest on the money that could have been earned had the district received its share of the allocation. The lack of anticipated receipts is causing additional problems, as well.

SINCE THE $70 million has not at this point been appropriated, it is doubtful that a school district, or county or city can consider its share as anticipated receipts for the current fiscal year. Since school districts, for example, can borrow only against anticipated receipts for the current year, it is questionable whether they can borrow against their hoped-for share of the $70 million, Haun explained.

However, there is some hope that the problem will be rectified so political subdivisions can get their money. Gov. Charles Thone, in his annual "State of the State" message to the legislature, said it is "essential" that the legislature take "quick action" on the problem. Haun said that "if the money is lost to us," the loss will have to be made up by cutting salaries. This could mean a reduction in staff since the district is at its maximum budgeting capacity now.

MELTON SAID "I'm really expecting to get it by the end of the fiscal year, but if we don't, it (the difference) probably will be made up somewhere."

Treasurer Meyer said the county is the primary distributor of state funds to the various subdivisions.

Services Saturday for Dorothy Ley

Memorial services will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday for one of Wayne's leading persons in the field of education.

DOROTHY HOLSTROM Ley, 59, died early Sunday morning at Rochester, Minn., after a lengthy illness. Services will be from Redeemer Lutheran Church, the Rev. Daniel Monson officiating.

She was born Aug. 27, 1921, at Geneseo, Ill., to Edward and Sophia Holstrom. Her life included many achievements in education and politics. In 1957, she married Henry Ley in Greeley, Colo., who preceded her in death.

A member of the Wayne Carroll board of education from July of 1963 to January of 1981, Mrs. Ley is probably best known in the education field for her endeavors involving learning disabilities. She also was a learning disabilities author.

DURING THE 1970's, she was recognized as one of the few learning disability specialists in the region and the nation, having started the program in the Wayne Elementary School first, followed by the Wayne Middle School and later the Wayne-Carroll High School. During the summer of 1972, she was instrumental in developing a learning disabilities program at Wayne State College entitled Project Success. This program was developed in cooperation with the work that she was doing in the local public schools and became recognized as one of the top seven projects in the nation.

FROM 1972 until her death, she was instrumental in promoting learning disabilities programs in the Wayne Public Schools, at Wayne State, in the region and nationally.

In May of 1976, Mrs. Ley received the Outstanding Achievement Award from Augustana College. In November of last year, she received the Award of Distinction from the Nebraska State School Boards Association and the Distinguished Service Award from the Wayne-Carroll School District board of education.

Mrs. Ley attended Augustana College at Rock Island, Ill., from 1938 to 1944. She received an AB degree from there in 1944. She continued her education at Colorado State College of Education at Greeley, Colo., and attended Colorado State at various times from 1948 through 1951. Her master of arts degree was received in August of 1951.

SHE DID FURTHER graduate work at Wisconsin State University in Stephens Point, Wis., Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill., and Colorado State College of Education at Greeley, Colo.

Mrs. Ley first taught at Wayne State College from September of 1952 to September of 1954 as an English supervisor at the training school. She resigned her position at Hahn Training School to accept a position at Colorado State College in Greeley, Colo. She returned to teach at WSC on a part-time basis in 1960. She taught off and on from 1960 to 1968 in her area of undergraduate and graduate preparation.

MRS. LEY also was involved in the State Democratic Party. From 1972 to 1976 she was Associate Chairman of the State Democratic Party and in 1974 was a delegate to the National Democratic Party Charter Convention.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Ley was preceded in death by her parents.

Survivors include a son, Jonathan Ley of Wayne; two step-children, David of Wayne and Barbara of Wakefield; a brother, William Holstrom of Geneseo, Ill.; and a grandson, Matthew Ley.

A memorial has been set up in Mrs. Ley's honor to the charities of her choice.

Chamber Honors Arnie Reeg As Man of the Year

The annual Chamber of Commerce meeting Sunday night boasted a pair of surprises, including the Man of the Year Award and the announcement of an Academic Challenge Grant at Wayne State College.

ARNIE REEG, long time Wayne businessman, was named as the Chamber's Man of the Year. This is an annual honor bestowed on someone who has contributed to the betterment of the Wayne business community. Last year's honor went to Stan Morris.

It also was announced that an Academic Challenge Grant at Wayne State College had been established in honor of Dr. Walter Ben-thack who was the object of an appreciation dinner several weeks ago at the college. The Chamber provided $1,000 toward the grant and Dr. Ben-thack matched that amount.

The evening's events included presentation of a special plaque to Gary Van Meter, Chamber manager until November when he resigned to assume ownership of Mine's Jewelry; and presentation of the President's Plaque to outgoing President John Dorcey by incoming President Pat Gross.

BILL DICKEY served as Master of Ceremonies and introduced new board members for the new year. Reeg's involvement with the Chamber and the community has been extensive. He was President of the Chamber twice — in 1955 and in 1970, was President of Wayne Industries in 1972, was a board member of Wayne City Council from 1960 to 1962, was president of the College Community Committee in 1976 and 1978.

Reeg also was an original member of the Wayne City Planning Commission, is a past board member of the Wayne United Way, served on a committee of the Wayne Hospital Foundation for the new hospital, is a past member of the Wayne Retail Committee, was President of the Wayne Country Club in 1968, was a board member for the Country Club twice — from 1964-68 and from 1974-78.

HE ALSO IS a member of the St. Paul's Lutheran Church, is a member of the Wayne Masonic Lodge, is a past member of Second Guessers, is a member of the New Car Dealers Association, is a member of the National New Car Dealers Association, was in the grocery store business from 1949 to 1978 and presently is in partnership with his son and son-in-law in Arnie's Ford-Mercury here. In accepting the honor, Reeg said he was without words, but did add that "I believe in Wayne and I believe in the Chamber."

The other significant announcement was the establishment of the Academic Challenge Grant at WSC which will provide an opportunity for some department or division to improve itself.

The various departments on the WSC campus will be able to compete for the funds each year which will help improve equipment, materials, etc. WSC President Dr. Lyle Seymour described it as a type of supplementary improvement program for enrichment of the college.

MONEY RAISED through proceeds from the Dr. Ben-thack mellow roast and through donations was boosted by the Chamber to read $1,000. In addition, Dr. Ben-thack matched the Chamber's figure for another $1,000.

Also during the annual meeting, acting Chamber Manager Mable Tietgen was given special recognition for taking over after Van Meter's resignation. She has run the office now for about two months.

Outgoing board members John Dorcey, Bill Dickey and Dean Bruggeman were recognized, while new board members Randy Pedersen, Lyle Seymour and Ron Stadek were welcomed.

Basic Photography Workshop Scheduled to Begin February 4

AFS Sponsoring Soup Supper Friday Night

The Wayne Regional Arts Council (WRAC) will again sponsor a workshop in basic photography techniques beginning Wednesday, Feb. 4.

This workshop will be followed in early spring with a more advanced class. Both will be taught by Dennis Linster.

Mrs. Jane O'Leary, a spokesman for the Arts Council, said that because of the high degree of interest in photography workshops, plans were expanded to include one more course in the basics of photography before offering the projected intermediate class.

The basic technique workshop which begins Feb. 4 is open to anyone who has a 35 mm or larger adjustable camera that they can take to class. Instant cameras or Instamatics are not suitable.

The class will be held for five consecutive Wednesday evenings with sessions from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Room 103 of Ben Thack Hall on the Wayne State College campus.

Cost of the entire course is $30 for persons who are not members of the Arts Council, and $20 for WRAC memberships paid before Jan. 30, 1981. Class size is limited to 10 and early reservations are advised.

To register call Jane O'Leary, WRAC administrator, 375-2335.

Other winter projects of the Arts Council will include an oil painting and sculpture show, an oil painting workshop, and a guitar workshop. All shows and workshops are open to anyone in the region.

The public is invited to attend a soup supper this Friday evening in the Wayne-Carroll High School commons, sponsored by the American Field Service (AFS).

The supper, which precedes the Wayne High-Hartington CC basketball game, will be served from 5 to 7:45 p.m. and will feature homemade chili and potato soup and pie.

Tickets may be purchased at the door and all proceeds will go to the AFS.

Kathi Sekinger of Switzerland is this year's foreign exchange student at Wayne High and is making her home with the Cletus Sharer family. She is available to speak to area clubs and organizations.

Redeemer Circles Meet

Circles of Redeemer Lutheran Church met Jan. 14 for their regular monthly meetings.

Mary Circle met in church social room at 9:15 a.m. with 21 members present. Hostesses were Roberta Carman and Irma Baier.

The Rev. Daniel Monson presented a certificate of appreciation from the Wayne Care Centre to all circles for their kindness to residents of the Care Centre during the past year.

Marilyn Pierson and Sue Olson volunteered to visit the centre each Monday and assist residents in playing bingo.

Booster Club Giving Cakes

Several lucky winners will come away with cakes following this Friday night's home basketball game between Wayne High School and Hartington CC.

Policy on Weddings

The Wayne Herald welcomes news accounts and photographs of weddings involving families living in the Wayne area.

We feel there is widespread interest in local and area weddings and are happy to make space available for their publication.

Because our readers are interested in current news, we ask that all weddings and photographs offered for publication be in our office within 10 days after the date of the ceremony. Information submitted with a picture after that deadline will not be carried, as a story but will be used in a culline underneath the picture. Wedding pictures submitted after the story appears in the paper must be in our office within three weeks after the ceremony.

In the light on shining waters, in the whisper of the reeds one feels the desolation of loss, the loneliness of grief. Then to hear the voice of friends, to feel their support is to see that pain will pass. Remember, we're always here to assist you when you need us most.

You know us... you can always depend on us.

An open house reception at St. Paul's Lutheran Church near Concord Sunday afternoon marked the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Mattes of Allen.

The event, hosted by the couple's children, was attended by 250 guests present from Ames, Lawton, Merville and Sioux City, Iowa; Prescott, Ariz.; Billings, Mont.; Vermillion, S. D.; Wakefield, Waterbury, Wisner, Wayne, Winside, Dixon, Allen, Laurel, Concord, Bancroft, Harrington, Lincoln, Newcastle, Jackson, Emerson, Ponca and Norfolk.

The anniversary cake, which was baked and decorated by Mrs. Evelyn Rubeck of Wayne, was cut and served by the couple's daughter, Mrs. Sally Lubberstedt of Dixon, assisted by Mrs. Gilbert Mattes, Mrs. Ruth Mattes of Waterbury poured and granddaughter Mrs. LaRaye Alexander of Omaha served punch. Waitresses were Mrs. Mike Roeber of Laurel and Mrs. Mark Roeber of Allen.

Members were asked to bring old Sunday school and Bible school materials and old "Portals of Prayer" to next month's Aid meeting for the Paper Peace Corps. Women also are asked to save used postage stamps for Stamps for Missions.

The group is planning to order more cookbooks. Commemorative plates also will be ordered for the church centennial, which will be celebrated in May 1981.

Next meeting will be Feb. 5. Hostess will be Viola Wesemann.

Usual Reaction Is Expected to Thone's Budget

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Gov. Charles Thone called it "prudent" and "austere" but manageable and responsive. Some lawmakers called it "tight," "typical," "reasonable" or even "livable."

The "it" that generated such varied but predictable responses was the 1981-82 Executive Budget, unveiled recently for the Legislature by the state's chief executive. Thone recommended a $721.9 million state budget, which, according to state fiscal officers, translates into a 6.7 percent increase over the 1980-81 budget.

But the bottom line figure alone wasn't the source of all the reaction. Internal allocations and spending proposals contained in the massive budget most likely were the basis for the sighs, groans and smiles that followed Thone's hour-long state of the state and budget address to the Legislature.

Enough time has passed now since the ceremonious presentation that reactions are becoming more specific and fine-tuned.

As time passes, however, Thone's budget blueprint to many might somehow seem rather insignificant. It always does, and it's not because the Executive Budget is ignored.

What generally happens is that by the time the lawmakers have waded through Thone's plan, and agencies have personally taken their cases to the Legislature, the legislative budget — even if it closely mirrors Thone's — is the spending plan that is in the limelight. The governor's proposals are referred to occasionally, but regulars in the Capitol most often speak of the "Budget Committee's" recommendations.

That situation, although somewhat simplified, likely will occur again this year. And if past sessions are any indication, memories of the mid-January budget address will be jarred most often when a gubernatorial veto reminds us of what was recommended months ago.

But Thone's recommendations must not be ignored, for they alone trigger a session-long budget review. Agencies will refine for the Legislature pro-funding arguments that they now might feel weren't strong enough to convince the governor. And the Legislature, keeping Thone's spending plan in mind, will try to work something out to get what they want and, if possible, satisfy Thone, too.

Some of the key points in the governor's plan that probably will be referred to often are his proposed eight percent flat salary hike for state employees on July 1, his recommended 12.8 percent budget increase for the University of Nebraska and his especially tight capital construction proposal.

Regardless of any future bickering over internal allocations, early indications are that members of this year's conservative Legislature will follow Thone's lead.

Thone continually pledges to strive for a maximum, self-imposed state budget lid of 7 percent, and it looks like the state's lawmakers will try to follow suit. They seem set on maintaining tax rates and still meeting the state's needs.

The outcome, however, probably won't be known until May, when the 1981 session is winding down. Appropriations bills usually are the last measures through the legislative machinery and across the legislative scoreboard.

An overseas presence?
Creation of a Nebraska Development Council could do wonders for the state's international trade and in-state business and industry, Gov. Charles Thone believes.

Thone has proposed to the Nebraska Legislature that such a council be used to promote trade overseas and at home. Expanding international markets for Nebraska products has long been one of Thone's goals, and he says he's willing to spend state tax dollars on the effort.

In his recent budget address to the Legislature, the governor proposed a $715,000 state appropriation to the council, which would include representatives from various state agencies, including the University of Nebraska and the state departments of Economic Development and Agriculture.

Thone appears so sold on the idea that he has raised the possibility of establishing a Nebraska European trade office. He also suggested the council consider having a representative based in the Far East to tap another potential market for Nebraska products.

Thone's aides say the governor's proposal would more than double the state's effort in the area. The expanded effort apparently is going to occur; the question that remains is how much money the Legislature will be willing to contribute.

Initial legislative reaction to Thone's proposals seemed positive. And senators seemed to like the idea of emphasizing the at-home prospects as well as the overseas promotion.

But the bottom line, at least as far as the council's overall activities are concerned, likely will be the final legislative appropriation. And lawmakers are too early in their budget-setting process to even attempt to second-guess what the bottom line will be.

New Chapter Begins For Sen. Von Minden

A new chapter of my life has begun. Deenette and I are settled in Lincoln for the duration of the session and we issue an invitation to all District 17 residents visiting in Lincoln to stop by my office.

The first session of the 87th Legislature convened at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 7. The day was taken up with administration of oaths to new officers, election of officers and selection of committee members. The voting for chairmanships was very close and in one instance, a tie forced a re-vote. Never before have these races been so close. Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings was re-elected by unanimous vote, to an unprecedented second term as Speaker.

I will be serving on the Judicial Committee and the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee. The Miscellaneous Subjects Committee will offer me broad experience because of the range of issues. Both of these committees will handle influential and high priority bills.

As a subscriber to your newspaper and avid sports enthusiast, I was disappointed in the coverage that was given to the winners of the Girl's Wayne State Holiday Tournament.

Many fans were there to help support the team and tournament and think we deserve more than seven lines of publicity. Also, Randolph is in the Wayne radio station area and had many fans listening to the broad casts of the games.

First, none of the people who wrote the letter about Charlie Weibie is actually from Winside. But all of us are concerned with that community at times in one way or another.

Second, I'm sorry if the letter got libelous I guess we got carried away.

Third, I'd like to ask the readers what they would suggest on this issue.

Namely, is there a serious drug problem in Wayne County? If so, what can we do about it? I have the impression that the dealers are using a facade of respectability. How do we deal with that?

A group of people have become concerned for the moral attitudes of our community. A new organization — Citizens for Better Morals — has been formed.

It seems some stores of Wayne choose to display magazines that promote immorality. These magazines in the minds of many are perverted and lead to the moral decay of the community.

Concerned persons should check out magazine racks in Wayne stores. If you are upset with what you see and what any young persons can purchase, then please visit the owner or manager and voice your disapproval. These magazines explicitly show sexual acts and perversions. It's only by your concern that these proprietors will know how we feel.

If you are further moved to do something about this problem, come to the next meeting for Citizens for Better Morals. This will be held at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 2 at Columbus Federal.

Red Tape Cutting Is Non-Stop Job: Thone

"Cutting government red tape is a non-stop job. Government rules and regulations seem like a tropical jungle. New growth will overtake the clearing unless the hacking is continuous."

"During my two years as governor, I've taken a number of steps to reduce the amount of regulations imposed on Nebraskans by their state government."

"First, I asked each state agency to review all its existing rules and regulations with the aim of eliminating unnecessary ones and making the others easier to understand and obey. An example of the success of this effort is the Nebraska Department of Agriculture which has eliminated seven sets of regulations and revised 14."

"Second, I directed the Nebraska Policy Research Office to go over with a fine tooth comb all the regulations of each state agency. The chief result of this review has been to make directors of state departments more critical of proposed rules which their employees suggest."

"Third, a number of Nebraska-based businesses have been asked to comment on existing state regulations. One result of these comments has been to reduce the frequency of state inspection of hospital emergency generators. Another result is that the 1981 legislature will be asked to modify several laws in order to cut red tape."

"Fourth, I have required all agencies under my control to submit a fiscal impact statement with every proposed new rule. Any department suggesting a new regulation must estimate for me not only how much it will cost in state funds to administer but also how much it will cost individuals and businesses in the state to carry out."

"In three cases, I completely rejected proposed sets of rules and regulations because they would have had too high a cost for the public. In six other cases, I required considerable revision of the proposals before approving them."

"The progress is slow, however, and the battle against red tape must be never-ending. Almost every law passed by the Nebraska legislature requires some agency of state government to issue rules and regulations for its implementation. Many new federal laws provide for the states to adopt regulations and act as Uncle Sam's agent to carry them out."

"Red tape has long been with us. One of Shakespeare's bureaucrats admitted, 'I have not kept my square; but that to come shall all be done by the rule.' My promise is to work continuously to reduce the number and the complexities of state government regulations."

Governor Thone delivered his third annual hold the line budget message to the Legislature. Most senators welcomed the message and predicted that they will give the governor most of what he wants during the upcoming months. The message stated generally:

— The University of Nebraska would receive a 12.8 percent increase in state tax support.

— State employees would receive a minimum salary increase of eight percent, with an additional two percent if agency heads can supply funding from within the agency's budget.

— A $715,000 appropriation increase would double state efforts in agricultural marketing and support a Nebraska marketing presence in Western Europe and the Far East.

— Revenue from two cents of the current 13-cent state cigarette tax would be dedicated to water conservation and natural resource development.

— The Norfolk Regional Center would be closed, and the more than $2 million savings allocated to expand services at the regional centers in Lincoln and Hastings and to im-

Hog Market Could Average $50

Market prices for hogs could average $50 per hundredweight in 1981, an all-time high, according to an agricultural economist in the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Larry Bitney, extension farm management specialist, analyzed that "the higher market prices will be caused by lower pork production in 1981." Even though market hog prices may rise, Bitney predicted a mixed outlook for pork producers this year due to the sharp increase in production costs. Many producers may not be able to recover total costs, particularly in the first half of the year, said Bitney.

Because the cost price squeeze is expected to continue during much of 1981, Bitney urged continued attention to production, management and marketing practices by producers.

Beef and poultry production are expected to be up slightly, but not enough to offset the decrease in pork production, he said. Supplies of red meat and poultry in the United States may be three percent lower this year, strengthening the prices of these commodities. However, a depressed economy and continued double-digit inflation could put downward pressure on hog prices, the ag economist warned.

Hog marketings are expected to be nearly 10 percent under year ago levels in the first quarter of 1981 and the average price during the same period is expected to average $46 to $50 per hundredweight. In the second quarter the average market price likely will be $45 to $49 per hundredweight while marketings during the quarter are expected to be down six to eight percent from 1980 levels. Third quarter marketings could be expected to be down about six percent from 1980 levels, with the expected average price of market hogs to be in the low to mid-50's. Hog prices for the fourth quarter could average just above $50 per hundredweight, depending upon the size of the March-May pig crop, Bitney said.

The expected annual average hog price of $50 or over for 1981 represents a significant increase over the average of about $40 for 1980. By comparison, hog prices averaged $42 in 1979 and $48 in 1978.

Higher feed costs account for much of the expected increase in hog production costs for 1981, Bitney explained. In addition to higher feed prices than those which prevailed during much of 1979, utility costs are up 29 percent, transportation costs up 20 percent and veterinary, medicine and miscellaneous supply costs are expected to be up 13 percent.

Changes in corn and soybean meal prices also can affect hog production costs. A corn price of $3.10 per bushel and soybean meal price of $270 per ton would result in an expected total production cost of nearly $53 per hundredweight for 1981.

According to Bitney, "the total production cost changes $1 per hundredweight for each 17 cents per bushel change in the corn price. Thus, an increase in the price of corn to $3.50 would result in a total hog production cost of over $55 per hundredweight."

Individual producers' costs will likely vary widely from the "average" figures of $53 per hundredweight, depending upon such things as their management, facilities, breeding stock, financial situation and expertise in marketing, Bitney stated.

Farm business associations' summaries show that some producers make profits in years of lot hog prices while others show losses in years of high hog prices.

Hog producers will continue to be caught in the cost-price squeeze during much of 1981, despite an anticipated record high average market hog price. "Continued attention to production, management and marketing practices will be necessary in order to break even or show a profit," Bitney concluded.

If Demand Picks Up, Year Should Be Good for Beef

If the demand for meat, and beef in particular, picks up by mid-year, 1981 could be an excellent year for the cow-calf operator and feeder cattle producer, a University of Nebraska extension agricultural economist predicted.

Dr. Al Wellman said the key to an increased demand for beef is in the expected ending of the U.S. economic recession. But other factors lurk in the wings: rising production costs, a continuing dry spell causing adverse range and pasture conditions, higher prices for dwindling hay and forage supplies.

Rising fed cattle prices, which are expected to be stronger in 1981, are important because they determine what cattle feeders will pay for replacement cattle, Wellman pointed out.

The growth in cattle numbers that began in 1980 will continue this year, the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources livestock marketing specialist said. The 1980 calf crop was estimated at 45.5 million head, up six percent from a year earlier.

"The mix of young cattle will be slightly different in 1981," Wellman continued. Relatively large non-lerd steer and heifer slaughter during the last three quarters of 1980 will keep yearling cattle supplies tight during 1981. At the same time, call and lighter weight cattle supplies will be relatively large.

"A larger calf crop — up two to four percent — is expected this year if last summer's heat related conception problems were not severe," Wellman reported.

Prices for feeder cattle and calves are expected to be higher this year than those posted in 1980. He predicted levels similar to 1979, when choice 600-700 pound feeder steers averaged in the low $80's per hundredweight and steer calf prices were in the high $90's.

Feeder cattle and calf prices are likely to pick up steam by late winter and be challenging the 1979 levels by early summer," Wellman said. However, he cautioned that this forecast "assumes that the economy is recovering, pork supplies are dropping, slaughter cattle prices are rising, average spring weather will prevail, and there are no extreme world or domestic conflicts." Increasing feed costs, meanwhile, are expected to persist into at least the second quarter.

Reflecting a generally bullish outlook, Wellman termed the chance for higher feeder cattle and calf prices for 1981 compared to 1980 "excellent," even if all influencing factors are not positive. But for prices to equal or exceed 1979 levels, Wellman hedged, "certainly the positive factors must dominate and the negative influences be held in check."

He challenged feeder cattle and calf producers to "continually work on individual marketing plans and strategy." Forward pricing opportunities may arise for future dates that will provide excellent profits, he remarked.

He recommended that "the producer should consider pricing a portion" of his production for future delivery if he can reduce some of his future price risk.

Needed: Good Yields, High Prices for Good Year

Farmers who experienced crop disasters during 1980 or find themselves in highly debt leveraged situations need good yields and high farm prices to improve farm financial conditions in 1981.

This analysis was given by Dr. Ron Hanson, associate professor of agricultural economics in the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

In addition to high interest rates, severe drought conditions across many large regions this past summer were nearly disastrous for many farmers, Hanson said.

Sharply reduced farm earnings for 1980 have now caused loan repayment difficulties and have lowered the liquidity position, he noted.

However, "For those farmers fortunate to achieve normal or even above expected yields, improved grain prices in the second half of 1980 have boosted their farm earnings and improved the financial position of their farming operations."

"These farmers have been able to repay outstanding farm debts as scheduled and have kept their farms in a strong liquid financial position for the start of 1981," Hanson said.

Total farm debt increased another $23.2 billion during 1980 and now stand at $180.5 billion for Jan. 1, 1981. Although this 14.7 percent increase for 1980 just exceeded the 14 percent rise in total farm debt for 1979, it surpassed the record amount borrowed a year before by more than $2 billion.

The current farm real estate debt now stands at just over $96 billion, up 17 percent from last year.

The farm real estate debt now accounts for 53 percent of the total farm debt in the United States. In addition, farm mortgage lenders have seen a substantial increase in loan demands by borrowers to refinance their short term debts, a demand that is certain to grow in 1981.

The total non real estate farm debt is estimated at $84.4 billion. This represents a 12 percent or $9.2 billion increase, slightly smaller than the increases the two previous years, Hanson said.

Projects for next year indicate a much larger increase in non real estate farm loan demands as farmers buy more operating in puts and needed machinery and equipment that have been delayed from last year, he said.

The net farm income earned by the U.S. farming sector for 1980 is expected to be between $23 and $25 billion," Hanson said, down sharply from the $31 billion earned in 1979.

Projections for 1981 show that new farm income should be between $27 and $32 billion due largely to improved farm prices expected for 1981, he added.

A little time spent checking the battery in the car, truck or tractor can pay off this time of year.

The age of the battery and its condition will show up during cold periods.

Money spent to replace an aging battery is money well spent.

As temperatures fall, more energy is required to crank an engine. Stiff engine oil is the major reason, along with decreased battery output at lower temperatures. Some sources say that when the temperature is at zero Fahrenheit, a battery has only about 45 percent of the cranking capacity it has at 80 degrees. And the engine is about 2 1/2 to three times as difficult to crank at zero as at 80 degrees.

Here's the effect of battery condition, temperature and cranking power:

Battery Condition	Temperature	Cranking Power
Good	80 degrees F	100 percent
	zero degrees F	66 percent
Fair	80 degrees F	46 percent
	zero degrees F	32 percent
Poor	80 degrees F	20 percent
	zero degrees F	9 percent

This explains why you get all that advice to keep batteries fully charged during cold weather.

For the farmer whose tractor sits in the machine shop until he needs it, the best help may come from an inexpensive "trickle charger" connected to the battery overnight when it is known the tractor will be operated in the morning.

This device charges a battery at a very slow rate. But overnight it can restore a significant portion of the full cranking power. The flow of current into the battery helps keep it warm and boost its power. This double action makes trickle chargers a strong consideration for assuring essential cold weather starts on the farm.

Gasoline bought this past summer should not be used to run equipment this winter. There are wintertime and summertime gasolines, each with a different volatility point.

In order for gasoline to burn in the engine, it must change from the liquid to the gaseous state. During cold temperatures a gasoline with high vaporization is needed. Winter gasoline vaporizes more easily than summer gasoline because more volatile fuel for elements have been blended together.

Service stations and fuel manufacturers blend the fuel for this reason, so gasoline consumers do not have to worry about what type of gasoline they are buying as long as they don't use "left-over" gasoline. Gas tanks kept at least one-half full reduces the chances of gas line freeze-up from condensation and add needed weight to the back end of your car when driving on icy roads.

The Optimum Amino Feed

Golden Sun has done it again with Amino Mix — a formulation with the just right balance of amino acids for optimum pork production.

Loading a feed with protein doesn't necessarily provide the right levels and balance of amino acids. Too much of a certain amino acid can reduce feed efficiency just as too little of another can do the same.

Research has shown that lysine is one of the most important amino acids in swine rations. Many times however it is lacking in some rations. Golden Sun has researched an economical way to use lysine in its Amino Mix to improve herd feed efficiency and reduce protein costs.

New Golden Sun Amino Mix also has the right levels of vitamins and minerals as guaranteed on the tag. And it's formulated to fit many different types of swine feeding operations.
