ONE-HUNDRED FIFTH YEAR NUMBER FORTY-ONE

ESU Board Appoints Shaw To Replace Election Winner

By split vote, Randy Shaw of Wayne is the newest member of the Educational Service Unit No. 1 board of directors.

HE WAS runner-up to Sharon Boeckenhauer of Wayne in the November General Election and was chosen after her election was declared invalid in November. Shaw is employed by the industrial arts department at Wayne State College.

Shaw was appointed on a motion approved by a 4-1-3 vote. The motion was the final regular action of the ESU board at its regular meeting Tuesday in Laurel. Voting to appoint Shaw were board members Bill Norvell, Leo Krampfer, Darrell Merry and Barneal Gustafson. Voting against the appointment was Dave Hay, and declining to vote were Kenneth Olds, Bill Wiese and Claes Hansen.

In voting against the motion, Hay said his negative action was "not out of disrespect" for Shaw, but because, in his opinion, the board had failed to act in due process. Hay said he preferred to appoint a committee that would interview prospective candidates and then make recommendations to the board.

MRS. BOECKENHAUER told the board that although she was unable to serve on the board because of a technicality, she was still concerned about children. Therefore, she added, she believes Shaw to be qualified for the position.

Prior to the vote, Shaw said he would "dedicate myself to be hardworking and to improve the already quality board."

Hansen, one of three who declined to vote, said he, too, preferred that a committee be selected with one of the committee members from Wayne County. "I want it known I'm not against Randy, but there are many who are qualified (for the position) who otherwise would not put their name on the ballot."

Introducing the motion to appoint Shaw was board member Bill Norvell.

THE "CONTROVERSY," as termed by one board member, involved a concern that former board member and board chairman Gene Bigelow of Wayne would be reappointed to the position rather than the General Election runner-up. However, Anis Campbell, commissioner of education for Nebraska, said in a letter to ESU Administrator Harry Mills Jan. 2 that state law dictates in this instance that "the incumbent shall not be entitled to hold over the term."

Bigelow had declined to seek re-election in November. Candidates Boeckenhauer and Shaw sought the position, with Boeckenhauer defeating Shaw by just 111 votes. However, because she registered her candidacy in the wrong county, her election was declared invalid.

In a letter to board members Jan. 26, Mrs. Boeckenhauer said "Randy...has already demonstrated his willingness to meet with parents of handicapped children in order to better understand our concerns. He has had 12 years of experience as a professional educator. In addition, he has already met with many of the teachers and administrators of the schools within the ESU No. 1 through his profession. This experience will be a valuable asset as Mr. Shaw begins serving as a member of the governing board."

IN OTHER ACTION, the board voted to provide educational services for the severe and profoundly handicapped children who are residents of Region IV Office of Developmental Disabilities in Wayne. Only students from Walthill, Hartington and Coleridge will be affected initially, but ESU is expected to contract with other school districts later.

Region IV will continue to provide full-time, round the clock residential services, but ESU will assume responsibility for the educational services. The transition would become effective Sept. 1.

Region IV board voted last month to discontinue educational services. As a result, the responsibility of providing educational services fell back on each school district. They in turn requested that ESU No. 1 provide the services. ESU's involvement in this program will be similar to a program it has established in South Sioux City.

Costs of the educational services would be charged to each individual school district that has a student at Region IV. ESU would be charged for use of the Region IV

Why Me, Lord??

"IF I MUST WEAR THIS AROUND my neck at least let me keep my eyes closed," says Amy Starling, a student at Allen Consolidated High School. Amy was one of several "volunteers" who assisted Ralph Carey during an assembly on reptiles Monday afternoon at Allen. Carey's appearance in Allen was scheduled through the Dakota Assemblies at Fargo, N. D. He brought with him lizards and snakes in a variety of sizes to show the students, including the boa constrictor pictured around Amy's neck. Looking on, unaware that she may be next in line to handle the large reptile, is Shawna Dickins. Carey is making his annual tour of area schools, where he shows students his collection of snakes and lizards and explains their functions, both good and bad.

The public is invited to attend the competition. For more information, contact Lyle Droeschler at 375-4713.

Commission Approves Plat

The Planning Commission Monday night wrestled with some philosophical questions posed by a visitor and then approved a subdivision preliminary plat that did not meet three ordinance requirements.

MEETING IN regular session at the City Hall, commission members heard Gary Vopalensky argue that there needs to be some consistency in planning subdivisions for the city of Wayne. Vopalensky, Ward IV City Councilman, said he was speaking as a resident and not as a member of the Council.

Vopalensky also posed other informational-type questions including the whereabouts of a sidewalk survey the commission wants reviewed. He also fielded some concern about the Council's failure to ask the commission's opinion on the one- and six-year street plan.

Regarding preliminary plats for subdivisions, Vopalensky said "I think it is important that some consistency be established." He explained that he is in favor of growth in Wayne, but that the growth "should" be organized and consistent.

IT HAS COME to light at recent Council meetings that subdivision rules and regulations have been applied differently to various subdivisions. But, Vopalensky pointed out, "The Council is taking more and more time in reviewing the preliminary plats" when they are presented with the hope of eliminating the inconsistencies.

During further discussions with the commission, Vopalensky said he felt engineers of the preliminary plats were being incomplete in their presentations. "There does not seem to be any changes being made on the preliminary plat before it goes to the Council," he told the commission members.

According to commission members, they are, in fact, approving the preliminary plats with certain conditions. However, these conditions are not being completed by the engineers before the plats reach the City Council for their review.

"I GUESS WHAT needs to be done, I would appreciate it anyhow, is that the commission should stress the importance of making sure the changes are made. I think you need to reinforce that the problems need to be straightened out" before the Council gets the plats, Vopalensky said.

In discussing legal questions that commission members have had concerning the subdivision ordinance, it was revealed that the Planning Commission had been asked to pay for legal opinions of the city's attorneys, Olds, Swarts and Ens.

The commission has asked for legal opinions before, it was explained, but was told it would have to pay for the legal services. Vopalensky said he was of the opinion the commission was entitled to some general fund monies to pay for such services.

IN OTHER ACTION, the commission approved the Jones Subdivision preliminary plat even though it did not meet at least three subdivision ordinance requirements. The approval was given with the condition that the preliminary plat show access routes, the location of culverts and the location of existing utility lines.

These changes are to be made before the plat is reviewed by the City Council, the commission said. The subdivision is located north of Wayne along Nebraska 15, outside the city limits but still within the two-mile jurisdiction of the Planning Commission.

Also in granting approval, the commission approved several plat-related variances. Attorney Duane Schroeder, acting on behalf of buyer Leonard Jones, said that several subdivision requirements were not applicable from a practical standpoint.

FOR INSTANCE, he said, it is not practical to require curbs and gutters, street lights, trees, and all provisions relating to streets since the subdivision is in the country and not within the city limits.

However, commission member Dick Keidel argued that "I think those are required for good reasons. If the city continues to grow, we don't want the city growing around a plat that has been poorly thought out."

In other action, the commission approved a rezoning request by John Vakoc at Sunview Subdivision. The zoning change is from residential to commercial to allow construction of a neighborhood shopping facility.

There were no written or oral objections at a public hearing.

IN OTHER discussions with Vopalensky, commission members said they were disappointed that the Council did not ask their opinions of the one- and six-year street plan.

In previous years, the commissioners have been allowed, apparently as a courtesy, to review the street plans and make recommendations.

The topic of sidewalks also surfaced, with Vopalensky asking commission members for a copy of a survey the commission completed several years ago. Chairman Dan Sherry said he was unsure where the original sidewalk map was. However, Vopalensky was assured he would get a copy of the survey.

Dan Kohls Is Electric Supervisor

No substantial changes are planned by the city's new superintendent of electric distribution in the operation of the city's electric system.

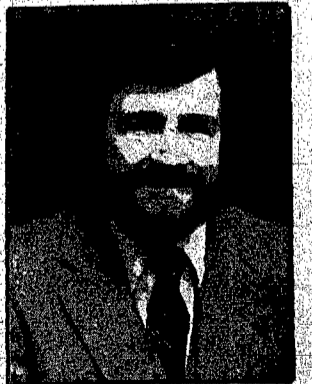

DAN KOHLS, 29, formerly of Hartington, assumed the new position Jan. 19, filling the slot vacated when Bill Mellor retired after some 30 years with the electric department.

Kohls came to Wayne from Lincoln where he was a lineman with the Lincoln Electric System for 6½ years. Prior to that, he spent two years at Northeast Technical Community College studying electricity and its applications.

A 1970 graduate of Hartington Cedar Catholic High School, Kohls spent two years in the U.S. Army.

THE NORTHEAST Nebraska native says he does not foresee any major changes in the electric plant's operation. Mellor ran a smooth system and any changes would be minor, Kohls said.

He and his wife, Marlene, have a two-year-old daughter, Katie.

Dickey Named Executive V-P

Bill Dickey, 31, has been appointed executive vice president of the First National Bank of Wayne by its board of directors at the annual meeting.

Dickey fills the position vacated when Bob Reeg was elevated to bank president about a year ago.

Dickey started with First National in January of 1976 as a loan officer. In 1977, he was appointed vice president.

He moved to Wayne from Naperville, Ill., where he was employed as operations officer in the Naperville National Bank. Dickey has been in the banking business since 1972.

Not Much of A Storm

WHAT WAS BILLED AS a major winter storm turned out to be a disappointment for many Saturday and Sunday as the Wayne area once again escaped the brunt of a storm. While Sioux City, Iowa, received six inches of snow and Omaha 10 inches, Wayne received just two inches of wind-whipped snow. Even more disappointing was the moisture content which was measured at a negligible .03 of an inch. One of the "worst" drifts in town was this one on U.S. 35 across from Wayne-Carroll High School.

Drug Arrest Hearings Today for 4 Persons

Preliminary hearings for four area persons arrested recently on various drug charges will be held today Thursday starting at 10 a.m. at the Wayne County Courthouse.

The following hearing times are scheduled:

APPEARING AT 10 a.m. in County Court will be Dale Busskohl, 27, Winside, charged with four counts of possession of cocaine and marijuana and possession with the intent to deliver; possession of marijuana of more than one pound; possession of cocaine with intent to deliver; possession of cocaine; and possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver.

Appearing at 10:45 a.m. will be Vernon Sahr, 30, Laurel, charged with two counts of possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver; possession of marijuana of more than one pound; and possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver.

APPEARING AT 1 p.m. will be Charles Weible, 27, Winside, charged with four counts of possession of cocaine and marijuana with the intent to deliver; possession of cocaine with the intent to deliver; possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver; possession of cocaine; and possession of marijuana.

Appearing at 2 p.m. will be Diane Coyle, 24, Winside, charged with possession of cocaine with the intent to deliver, possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver, and possession of marijuana of less than one ounce.

Busskohl, Sahr and Weible were arrested early morning Dec. 19 at the Busskohl residence near Winside. Coyle was arrested Jan. 8 as a result of information gathered by prosecuting attorney Thomas DeLav of Norfolk.

THE PRELIMINARY hearing will be held to determine if there is just cause that the case be transferred to District Court. If the presiding judge determines that there is sufficient evidence that a crime was committed and that the persons charged could have committed the crime, then the cases will be bound over to District Court.

It has been estimated that some 81 pounds of marijuana and 4½ ounces of cocaine were confiscated in the arrests.

A preliminary hearing set for Jan. 9 was continued until today (Thursday) at the request of the attorneys.

Special Talents Group Formed

The Wayne Community Council is hoping to address the topic of Special Talents through a sub-committee it recently formed.
The council has met several times already on this subject. The council's next meeting — 7:30 p.m. Tuesday — will include discussion on Special Talents and will be held in the Middle School library.
According to federal and state guidelines, children with special talents are defined as those who consistently excel or show the potential to consistently excel above the average in one or more areas of human endeavor to the extent they need and can profit from specially planned educational services. These areas are as follows:

General intellectual ability, specific academic aptitude, creative thinking, leadership ability, visual and performing arts ability and psychomotor ability.

"We all should be concerned about meeting the needs of all children, including those with special talents," a Community Council spokesman said. "This concern is being manifested across the nation and in Nebraska with the introduction of LB 423 which concerns persons with special talents."
The council member continued that "many children have one or more of the above talents or abilities, but they need direction. Without direction, many schools have disinterested students and many dropouts in this group because the needs of these children are not being recognized."

"In general, the myth that these children can take care of themselves in the school systems with no special guidance and direction has proven otherwise," the spokesman said.
Interested parents and/or community members are urged to attend the Tuesday meeting.

ESU Board Appoints

facilities, but would pass that cost along to the participating school districts.

AT ITS JAN. 23 meeting, the Region IV board discontinued support of educational services. These, the board said, would be provided by the public schools through special education programs in the schools or through contracts with the respective Educational Service Units.

Not included in the decision were children aged 16-21 who will continue to receive both educational and residential services through contracts with the schools and Region IV.

The board also unanimously approved raises to certified personnel not on the salary schedule.

The board approved a motion granting $2,000 annual raises and full family insurance to Larry Clay, ESU director of psychological services; Gary Vopalensky, director of speech, hearing, etc.; and Duane Tappe, director of special education.

Not including benefits, Clay's salary will be $28,071; Tappe's will be $23,160; and Vopalensky's will be $20,500.

The board also granted $2,000 annual raises to four other persons, but did not offer full family insurance. These are Tom Kotterling, psychologist, $22,660; Salma Flatmo, psychologist, $22,660; Tom Flor, psychologist, $22,660; and Arlys Saol, part-time psychologist, who will receive a raise proportionate to three-fifths of $2,000 based on her current salary of $11,794.

IN OTHER action, the board elected officers for the coming year. Named chairman was Bill Wiese who has been acting chairman since board member Bigelow became ineligible after declining to seek re-election. Wiese defeated Darrell Merry who also was nominated for the top board position.

Named vice chairman was Darrell Merry; Bill Norvell will be secretary and Berneal Gustafson will be acting treasurer until a member of the Wakefield National Bank is notified about serving as treasurer.

Named to the annual negotiations committee were Hanson, Krampner and Norvell.

Hansen was appointed to attend the National School Board convention in Dallas this April.

Dalton reported that student participation will be voluntary but added that no student will be left home because of lack of money. Students will be given the opportunity to raise money through special projects.

Dalton sent in an application for the festival last month and received word this week that the band's application was accepted. Competition at the two-day festival is scheduled from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. both days.

Competition will be divided into three different classes with Wayne participating in Class A. Judges are from Texas, Missouri and Illinois.

Dalton said that he expects the Wayne band to benefit in the multi-state competition. "This will provide an additional experience to our band program and give a new climax to our concert band contest," Dalton stated. "And, of course, the trip should be fun and entertaining."

Dalton added that band members will not solicit donations or sponsor door-to-door sales drives. Possible fundraising ideas include slave auctions, car washes, activity concessions and others.

Rolf Bjorling to Perform At Wayne State College

Rolf Bjorling, Sweden's leading tenor, returns to Wayne State College for a performance in Ramsey Theatre on Tuesday, Feb. 24, at 8 p.m.

Since his student days in Chicago, Rolf Bjorling, son of the late Jussi, has built for himself a brilliant career as he carries on the tradition of the great tenor voice.

Rolf Bjorling has sung in the finest opera houses in Europe and the United States to wide acclaim. He is the leading tenor of the Stockholm Royal Opera in Sweden, and his role with Birgit Nilsson in Turandot warranted him this praise: "Rolf Bjorling's tone was so rich and brilliant that we haven't heard the like since his triumph in Il Trovatore. The aria 'Nessun Dorma' was a hit, comparable to Nilsson's staircase scene."

His successful debut as Pinkerton in Madame Butterfly at the Gothenburg Opera in 1962 led to numerous appearances in Carmen, La Boheme, Aida and many others.

Recent U.S. appearances include the Seattle Opera and Memphis Opera; performances at Carnegie Hall and the Bethany Bach Festival; and the tenor role in the Mahler Eighth Symphony. Recent recitals include Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, Washington and cities throughout the Midwest and West. He also performs in Canada with the Montreal Symphony.

at Carnegie Hall and the Bethany Bach Festival; and the tenor role in the Mahler Eighth Symphony. Recent recitals include Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, Washington and cities throughout the Midwest and West. He also performs in Canada with the Montreal Symphony.

Bjorling returns each season to the United States for recitals, presenting a new program designed to commemorate the twenty-second anniversary of the death of his father, Jussi.

Wayne State College Special Programs Committee organizes the event with state funds as budgeted in the general college budget, with occasional help from outside agencies. Other events presented by the WSC Special Programs Committee were the performances of James Whitmore and St. Olaf College Orchestra last fall. The fourth and final event of the WSC Special Programs will be a performance by the Omaha Ballet in April.

Tickets for the Rolf Bjorling performance will be available at the door of the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center at 7 p.m. on the night of the performance at a cost of $2.50.

Admission is free for college students, faculty and staff and holders of "special activities" tickets.

Speaking of People

IT'S BEEN A BUSIER THAN USUAL year for band students at Allen High School. In addition to regular band activities, the students are hoping to earn nearly $7,000 by the end of May when they plan to

Band Students Earning Trip

Allen High School band students are hoping to raise nearly $7,000 during the next few months with the help and support of local and area residents.

The students have planned a variety of special events and fund raisers in an effort to raise the money by May 28 when they will board buses to attend Dakota Band Days in Rapid City, S. D. Helen Mogen, band director, said as of last week the students had collected a little over $1,000 and are asking for the continued support of the community in their efforts to raise the remainder of the needed funds.

The director said nearly 60 students are planning to make the trip to Rapid City, where they will spend four days taking part in a band clinic and festival involving about 35 high schools from throughout the nation.

In addition to the clinic, the students will be given tours, take part in a parade, and attend a big name concert which in past years has featured such stars as Doc Severinsen and Henry Mancini.

The latest money making effort by the students is a pancake breakfast this Sunday, Feb. 8. Students and their parents will be serving pancakes, eggs, sausage, juice and coffee from 8 a. m. to 1 p. m. in the school gym.

Tickets for the breakfast may be purchased in advance from any band student. Cost, for all you can eat, is $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children under 10 years of age. Pre-school youngsters can eat free.

Door prizes, including two boxes of groceries, will be given away during the breakfast and winners need not be present to win.

Past events sponsored by the band members have been a Turkey Shoot last November and a Saddle Hawkins dance featuring "Mogen's Heroes," a band comprised of Allen's band director and her family.

Ongoing projects include the collection of aluminum cans and candy bar wrappers, and drawings for homemade cakes during halftime activities at each home basketball game.

Miss Mogen said persons having aluminum cans are asked to take them to the school band room. Candy bar wrappers, which are sent in to the company for refunds, include Snickers, Three Musketeers, Mars and Milk Ways. Those should be sent to the school.

The students also are sponsoring a drawing for four beer quarters to be held April 11 during a "Gong Show" in the school gymnasium. All proceeds from the drawing and show will go towards the trip to Dakota City.

Winners of the drawing need not be present to win. The beef, which has been donated by the Dixon County Feedlot, will be slaughtered by Johnson's Frozen Foods of Wayne and processed by the Cash Store in Allen. Both businesses have donated their services.

All residents of the community are invited to take part in the Gong Show and should contact Sandy Chase if they wish to take part or would like more information.

Miss Mogen said more activities may be planned, adding she appreciates the support residents of the community have already shown.

"The whole project has been great," said school superintendent Robert Heckathorn, adding that the students and community are united in a common effort to succeed with the undertaking. "It has been a great morale lifter for all of us," he noted.

Baptized Sunday

Kayla Kuhnhehn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Kuhnhehn of Carroll, was baptized Sunday at the Methodist Church in Norfolk.

A baptismal dinner was served afterward in the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Kuhnhehn of Carroll.

Dinner guests included Mrs. Ellie Rees, Brenda, Rick and Jeff and Glenda Smith, all of Concord, Mr. and Mrs. James Rees and son of Wayne and Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Pearson.

Meeting Focusing on 'Infertility'

Ann O'Donnell, director of Northeast Nebraska Family Health, announces a public meeting for persons interested in the problems of infertility.

Ron and Jane Olds of Lincoln, who are involved in an infertility support group called Resolve, will conduct the meeting Friday, Feb. 6, at 7 p. m. at 802 Lincoln St., in Wayne.

The Resolve organization originates out of Boston by Barbara EckMenning, RN, who after four years of tests and treatment was diagnosed as absolutely infertile.

Resolve provides counseling, referrals for medical help or alternatives (such as adoption), and support groups for those who wish to meet others in similar circumstances.

Mrs. O'Donnell said in Nebraska there are Resolve groups in Lincoln and Omaha.

It is estimated by Resolve that 10 million persons are involuntarily childless at any time, representing one in every six couples of childbearing age.

Most doctors define infertility as an inability to conceive after one year of trying, or inability to carry pregnancies to a live birth, said Mrs. O'Donnell.

The causes of infertility involve the female in 35 percent of the cases, is a male problem in about 35 percent of the cases, and a combined problem about 30 percent of the time. At least 10 percent of infertile couples have no known cause.

Mrs. O'Donnell went on to say that infertility can be treated successfully in almost 50 percent of all cases, adding that it is vital to get medical attention and have a proper investigation.

"Infertility often is unexpected and difficult to accept," said Mrs. O'Donnell, adding that it can be very frustrating and has been described by couples as an emptiness that can't be filled.

Mr. and Mrs. Olds will bring brochures and literature and will be willing to talk with couples, individually, during the meeting in Wayne.

Mrs. O'Donnell said if interest is shown the Lincoln Resolve Group will help sponsor a group in this area.

For more information contact Ann O'Donnell, 375-1449.

'Lion in Winter' Next WSC Play

Early England, when kings were kings, is the setting for Wayne State College's next theater production, "Lion in Winter."

Rehearsals for the production have been underway for two and a half weeks and, according to a Wayne State theater student, indications are that the play will rank among the best productions presented by Wayne State's theater department.

The play is under the watchful eye of Arthur Dirks, who not only is directing the production but also is overseeing the construction of the set to ensure that the play is not only pleasing from the dramatic standpoint, but is also beautiful to observe.

Assistant to the director is Pat Miles, and stage manager is Jed Friedrichson. Crew heads are Karen Achor, publicity, Michele Brockmoller, properties, and Kathy Riedmann, lights.

Single and group rate tickets are available by contacting the Wayne State Theater Department, Wayne State College, Wayne, Neb., 68787, or by calling 375-2200, ext. 234.

The motto "In God We Trust" first appeared on the 1884 two-cent piece.

Deadline Nears for Submitting Family Stories for New Wayne County History

Wayne County residents have less than two weeks to submit their family histories for publication in an all-new Wayne County History.

The history book committee met at the museum Monday afternoon to explore ways of stimulating progress on the history book.

Mrs. Lucile Larson, a member of the Wayne County Historical Society, which is sponsoring the publication, reminds residents that Feb. 15 is the deadline for submitting family histories and encourages everyone to write their own and mail it along with pictures to Donna Shuffelt of Wayne.

Families who cannot be ready by the deadline are asked to continue to work on their histories as the committee will be compiling and arranging stories and pictures for several days.

Mrs. Larson said many families have their stories prepared but are waiting for portraits of pictures to submit with their history. Others, she said, have contacted relatives and friends out-of-state and are expecting responses from them.

History books should be ordered and paid for by the Feb. 15 deadline, as the Historical Society does not plan to have any books for sale at a later date.

Delivery of the 9 x 12 book, which is beautifully bound in hardback leatherette with a gold stamped cover, is expected in the late fall of 1981.

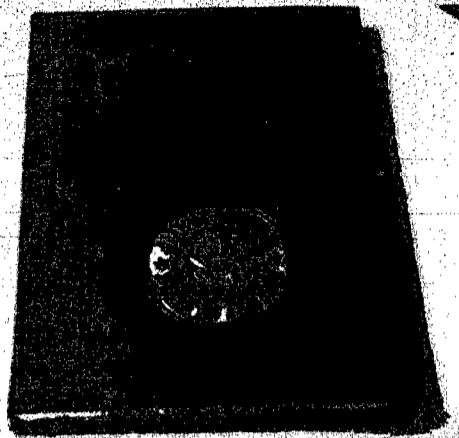

The book will contain between 300 and 500 pages and will be published by Taylor Publishing Co. of Texas. Publication consultant Bob Jonson is assisting county residents throughout the project.

The gold stamped emblem which will appear on the publication's cover has been designed by Ted Blenderman, art instructor at Wayne-Carroll High School.

The emblem is representative of Wayne County — depicting agriculture in the form of a windmill, plow and livestock; education in a pioneer school; and religion as shown in a small country church.

Families who have not yet written their history are reminded that the stories should be 500 words or less and may include one picture. Although every effort will be made to return original photographs, it would be best to send copies of any valuable or irreplaceable photos.

Persons who have questions regarding the publication are asked to contact Marlan Jordan, 375-2611, Mrs. Clifford Johnson, 375-1137, Eleanor Edwards, 375-2337, Donna Shuffelt, 375-1670, or Lucile Larson, 375-1861.

PICTURED IS AN EXAMPLE of what the new Wayne County History Book will look like when it is delivered this fall. The book will measure 9 x 12 inches and will be attractively bound in hardback leatherette with a gold stamped emblem on the cover depicting Wayne County agriculture, education and religion. The emblem was designed by Ted Blenderman, art instructor at Wayne-Carroll High School.

Stalking the Salad Bar

Persons watching their waistlines should watch themselves at salad bars — it's easy to forget how fast calories add up.

Teresa Shaffer, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, noted that most salad bars contain a variety of macaroni, bean and potato salads to tempt the palate.

"These kinds of salads contain 120 to 180 calories per half-cup serving," she said. Gelatin-type fruit salads are added to salad carts for color; these contain 120 to 130 calories per half-cup.

"Some salad bars have applesauce, fruit cocktail or other varieties of canned fruits," Shaffer noted, adding that each half cup of these provides around 50 calories.

Kidney or garbanzo beans add 120 calories per half cup, she said. "However, these beans complement the nutritional quality of salads by adding protein, B vitamins and iron," Shaffer noted.

The extension specialist said that cottage cheese is a lower calorie source than hard cheeses, providing 120 calories per half cup compared with approximately 225 calories per half cup of shredded cheddar or Swiss cheese. Grated Parmesan cheese contains about 20 calories per tablespoon.

"The real clincher at the salad bar is the dressing," Shaffer emphasized. The six to seven containers of dressings contain about 240 calories per three-tablespoon scoop, whether it's Roquefort, Italian, Russian or Thousand Island you choose, she said.

French dressing contains about 200 calories per scoop, and mayonnaise contains about 300 calories per scoop, she said.

"If you regard one scoop as a mere dip in the bucket and drizzle two or three over your salad, the calories — most of which are from fat — add up fast," the extension food specialist said.

A final touch of croutons, bacon bits or other toppings provides considerable calories and each package of crackers adds another 40 to 60 calories.

"Some items on a salad bar are low in calories," Shaffer explained. "However, these are not usually the items that people load up on, she said.

At five to 10 calories per cup, lettuce probably is the least caloric choice. Shredded cabbage — at 15 calories per cup — is another good choice.

"Most other plain, raw vegetables also are low in calories," she said. "For example, there are only five calories in six to eight cucumber or celery slices; five calories each in cherry tomatoes and green onions; 10 calories in each half cup of cauliflower buds; green pepper strips or raw, sliced mushrooms; and about 15 calories in a half cup of carrot slices or bean sprouts."

The foods specialist said that not only are these vegetables low in calories, but they also are rich sources of vitamins A and C.

"If you filled a four-cup salad bowl with a combination of these low-calorie ingredients, your entire dish would be well under 100 total calories," she pointed out.

A salad bar can have a low-calorie image, Shaffer noted, but only if you go heavy on the lettuce and vegetables and easy on the creamy salads, salad dressings and condiments.

Food Stamp Changes Cut College Students

A new U.S. Department of Agriculture report shows that recent changes in the Food Stamp Act have eliminated most college students from the food stamp program.

The Food Stamp Program Amendments of 1980, enacted by Congress last year, made students ineligible for food stamps unless they have dependents, are elderly or disabled, or already work.

At one time, over 200,000 students received food stamps. Students now comprise only two-tenths of one percent of the food stamp case load.

Over half of all students remaining on the program are heads of households who support dependents. Most of those are single mothers supporting children with the help of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) while they attend school to gain skills that may enable them to get off welfare and into regular employment.

More than one-sixth of all students receiving food stamps are elderly or disabled. One-tenth are working; more than three-fourths of them work full-time in addition to attending school.

Allen Falls in Finals

The Clark Division girls champions from Wynot edged Lewis Division champion Allen 40-35 in overtime to win the Lewis and Clark Conference Tournament at Wayne State College, Saturday night.

It was a battle of two undefeated teams. Allen had reached the finals by downing Homer and Ponca while Wynot reached the championship game with wins over Osmond and Hartington.

Allen is ranked fifth in Class D's ratings by The World Herald and entered the game with a 13-0 record. Wynot, under consideration by The World Herald for a position in Class C's rankings, entered the game with a 14-0 mark.

The two teams could meet again later this week in the Ponca Invitational. Allen plays host Ponca at 6:30 tonight (Thursday) and Wynot plays Laurel at 8:30 p.m. The winners will battle at 7:30 p.m. Saturday while the losers meet at 6 p.m. Friday.

Both teams had opportunities to win Saturday's finale. The Eagles led throughout the first half but lost the advantage to Wynot in the third quarter. Allen had last possession in regulation play but missed three shots in the last seven seconds.

The overtime period was all Wynot as Allen's Des Williams fouled out and the Eagles went to a lineup of one senior, one junior and three freshmen.

Janet Becker scored the first field goal in overtime and Wynot added three more points in the final 30 seconds. Karen Wieseler hit the first end of a two-shot foul and grabbed an important rebound. Carmen added a follow-up basket for the final 40-35 margin.

Both teams appeared tense in the early going and nearly two minutes elapsed before anyone scored. Rebounds and inside shooting by Janet Peterson provided an early threat for Allen which led 8-5 at the end of the first quarter.

With a couple of quick baskets in the second period, the Eagles led 12-7 in the battle of the unbeatens and held on for a half-time lead of 22-15.

Wynot used accurate shooting and an effective press to put together a strong rally in the second half. The Blue Devils took the lead 27-26 with 2:10 remaining in the third period and held on to a 31-26 advantage with one quarter remaining.

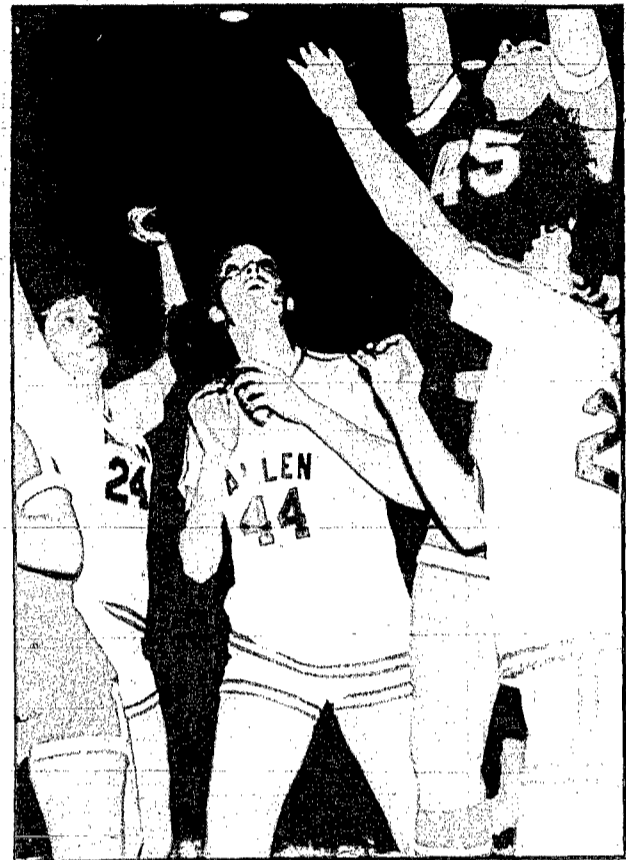

Baskets by Lisa Erwin, Peterson and Des Williams allowed Allen to gain the lead 33-32 early in the fourth quarter. Wynot regained the lead at 35-33 but two free throws by Des Williams with :58 left tied the score at 35-all.

Allen had an opportunity to win the game but tried for the last shot and came up short. The Eagles rebounded and put up two final attempts to no avail.

Leading scorers for Allen were Erwin with 14 points and Des Williams with 10. Peterson added seven points. Wynot was led by Deb Stratman with 14 points, Carmen Wieseler with 13 and Janet Becker with 12.

Madison Eliminates Wayne Girls

The Wayne Blue Devils shooting was as cold as the weather and Madison's was warm enough to melt the snow as the Wayne girls were eliminated 52-31 from West Husker Tournament play, Monday night in Wayne.

The hosts were seeking revenge from an opening season loss to the Dragons but the ninth annual West Husker Tourney wasn't to be the place and Monday wasn't to be the time.

The Devils fell behind 10-4 in the early going but a basket by Missy Stoltenberg and three consecutive buckets by Lynn Surber forged a 12-12 tie late in the first quarter. Surber's heads-up defense resulted in steals and the senior drove in for three quick field goals.

Madison led 14-12 at the end of the first period and pulled away with nood outside shooting in the second quarter. Wayne fell behind 29-19 at the half.

The Dragons hit 11 of 17 shots for 64.7 percent accuracy in the third quarter to build up a 48-25 lead. The final period was played between both squad's reserves. Wayne played four sophomores and one freshman throughout most of the final eight minutes.

Wayne was led in scoring by Lynn Surber with 10 points. Deb Prenger scored five and Jenni DeTurk, Missy Stoltenberg and Jill Mostley added four points each.

The Blue Devils hit only 18 percent of their shots, grabbed 42 rebounds and committed 28 turnovers. Stoltenberg pulled down 13 rebounds, Surber grabbed eight and Prenger had seven.

Madison, which advances into second round tourney action against Columbus Lakeview, was led by Krystal Rotherham with 15 points, Kathy Koenig with 11, Darla Signor with 10 and Anitha Scheer with 8.

Trojan Girls Lose Heartbreaker

Wakefield's season-long search for a victory nearly came to an end Tuesday but the Trojan girls came up one point short, losing a 40-39 decision to Coleridge.

Joan Miller dumped in 21 points to lead the Trojans to leads of 14-4 after the first quarter and 28-13 at the half. A cold third quarter was the turning point in Coleridge's comeback.

The hosts outscored Wakefield 11-2 in the third quarter and 16-9 in the fourth. Terri Schwarzen scored eight points, Rita Wilson scored six and Coleen Neuhaus added five.

Leading rebounders were Miller with 12, Neuhaus with 9 and Wilson with 5. Wakefield hit 44 percent of its shots in the first half but cooled down to 21 percent in the second half.

Coleridge, on the other hand, made 16 percent of its first half shots but hit 31 percent in the second half. Penny Smith led the winners with 23 points.

Wakefield coach Dennis Wilbur said that his team had Coleridge on the ropes but turned the ball over against the press in the second half. "We were aggressive in the first half and they were aggressive in the second," he added.

Wilbur credited Miller with "one heck of a game" and said that his team played well overall, except for the third quarter.

The Trojans are scheduled to host Allen Tuesday and Laurel Thursday as the regular season comes to a close.

Coleridge won the junior varsity game 25-22. Brenda Jones scored 10 points for Wakefield.

Wakefield defeated Osmond 52-45 in second round action and then lost 71-61 to Hartington in the finals of the Lewis Division bracket.

Against Osmond, Vaughn Nixon had his best performance of the season. He scored 17 points and pulled down 12 rebounds. Rod Nixon scored 15 points and Jeff Hallstrom made 10. Osmond was led by Mike Kumm with 17 points.

Card of Thanks

IN MEMORY of Pearl Berteloth: God looked around his garden and saw an empty space. He then looked down from Heaven and saw your tired face. He put his arms around you and took you in his care. To make up for all you suffered, He wanted you up there. It broke our hearts to see you go. But you didn't go alone. For part of us went with you, the day God called you home. WE WISH to extend our heartfelt appreciation for the many deeds of kindness and expressions of sympathy during the death of our loved one. The concern shown us by our relatives, friends and neighbors will never be forgotten. A special thank you to those who sent flowers, memorials and food, to Rev. Mote for his concern, prayers and many hours of being with us, to the women of the United Methodist Church who served the lunch, to Dr. Wiseman, dear Sister Gertrude, and all the people at Providence Medical Center. We also want to thank Marcia Halseg and the staff at Hillcrest Care Center for your loving care and concern. May God bless all of you. ERA introduces the first risk-free way to buy or sell your home.

When you buy a new house before you sell your old one a lot of things can happen. Most of them are bad. You might end up with double mortgage payments. You might lose a lot of money when you have to sell at a distressed price. You might even be forced to move and be separated from your family. The problem is there's never been any other way to do it. Until now.

Until ERA introduced the unique new Sellers Security Plan. Now you can use your home's equity before you sell. And you can avoid double house payments. And you can be sure your house will sell at a price you can live with. Now there's the Sellers Security Plan. The first risk-free way to buy before you sell. Tax Savvy Should Be Goal Of 'Mom and Pop' Business Things have changed since the days when the Mom and Pop retail store epitomized small business in America. Mom usually worked for Pop, the sole proprietor; she usually worked without pay and wasn't eligible for social security benefits.

Today's Mom and Pop are more likely to be officers of their own corporation, both receiving salaries and other fringe benefits. According to the Nebraska Society of Certified Public Accountants, a primary concern of today's savvy husband and wife business owners should be taxes. If you and your spouse operate a business and file a joint federal income tax return, there are many things to consider.

Are you paid a salary or dividends? Do you know which offers the greatest tax advantage? Are your personal assets — like home and car — protected from liability from business losses? Do you have the most tax beneficial fringe benefits?

Is your business a partnership, corporation or subchapter S? If there is little risk involved in your business, a partnership may suit you best. This is similar to a sole proprietorship. You and your spouse provide all the capital, you receive all the profits, and you assume all the risks. Your profits and losses are included on your personal income tax return. You may be able to reduce taxes by forming a family partnership and dividing income with your children, who are in lower tax brackets. If they contribute labor or capital to the business.

If you have a corporation, you have more personal protection. That property which you own personally such as your house and car, could not be seized to pay corporate debts if your business failed. Also, the corporate tax rate may be lower than the rate on personal income tax, depending on the bracket into which you fall. However, corporate profits may be taxed a second time when they come out of the corporation as dividends. If you and your spouse collect those dividends you pay income tax on them.

Determine your salary — or dividend income — by figuring out the best tax advantage. Ask your tax advisor how this works. Remember, the salary which generally has the greatest tax advantage for you and your spouse is one that won't cost you more in personal income tax than it saves the company in corporate tax.

As employees of a corporation, you can take advantage of corporate fringe benefit plans which are deductible by the corporation but not taxable to the employees. For instance, the corporation may be able to deduct as much as 25 percent of total compensation paid during the year, or possibly even more, through corporate profit sharing and pension plans. That money is not taxable to you until you collect it at retirement when you will probably be in a lower tax bracket.

The subchapter S corporation offers many of the advantages of a regular corporation while avoiding the double tax. Profits are taxed to you in the year they are earned by the corporation and you report them as income on your tax return. CPAs say that you may find a subchapter S corporation especially beneficial in the early years of a business — the years with most risk and the biggest losses. You can take the business losses as deductions on your personal income tax return, but they are limited to the amount you have put into the company.

No matter what structure your business assumes, the IRS has specific regulations regarding the operation of a business from your home. Stringent requirements must be met, but you may be able to claim certain deductions.

The "home office" deduction is not a single deduction, but an assortment of expenses. You prorate the amount of space used by the business, a share of the heat, water, utilities, telephone, trash collection, maintenance, depreciation, or the amount of your rent. Remember too, that when you sell your home and have been depreciating a part of it as a business expense, you must adjust the basis when computing any gain from its sale. Say you are over 55 and are able to avoid tax on up to $100,000 in profits from the sale of your home. The actual gain would have to be prorated to reflect the part of your house you used for business. In that case, you must pay tax on that portion of the gain.

It's very likely that our vintage Mom and Pop did not own the building their store was in. They may have rented it as well as the apartment upstairs. Today's Mom and Pop, CPAs say, should consider the possible tax advantages of buying the building and leasing it to their business. Consider the same approach with the company car.

Do your kids work in your business? If so, there may be more tax breaks available. Let's say you and your spouse operate an electrical supply business as a family partnership. You and your spouse have a combined taxable income of $36,000 and are in the 43 percent tax bracket. Your two teenagers work for you during the summer and each earns $2,000. Neither of your children will owe any federal income tax on their earnings. (They can file a W-4 when you hire them so that you won't need to deduct taxes.) The $4,000 will be deducted from your income tax as a business expense and reduce your own taxes. It will also provide your children with money toward their college expenses. Generally, children may earn as much as $3,300 before they must pay taxes on their salaries.

A child under 21 who works for a partnership operated by only his parents is not required to pay social security taxes, no matter what the salary. In this case, the parent is not required to contribute the employer's share

Land, Water Grant Applications Due in June

Land and Water Conservation Fund Grant Applications must be received in Game and Parks Commission headquarters by 5 p.m., June 30 to be considered for funding in fiscal year 1982, according to Eugene T. Mahoney, director.

Any political subdivision of the state — cities, villages, counties, school districts, natural resources districts, etc. — may sponsor a proposed project and apply for the assistance.

The projects proposed for funding may include the acquisition of land for permanent use for outdoor recreation or development of facilities for public outdoor recreation on land owned or controlled by the sponsor.

The LWCF program provides for assistance up to 50 percent of project costs in federal funds with an additional 25 percent provided from state funds. Federal funds are made available from a tax on marine fuel, the sale of surplus property, entrance fees at federal parks and recreation areas and off shore oil revenues. The state funds have been made available by a general fund appropriation.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund is administered at the federal level by the Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service, Department of Interior and the state level by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

Mahoney did not provide an estimate on how much money would be made available, but stressed the June 30 deadline for receiving applications.

Social Security Takes Bigger Bite of Checks

The social security tax deducted from workers' paychecks will be higher in 1981 than it was in 1980, Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk, said recently.

This is due, first of all, Branch said, to the fact that the tax rate increased from 6.13 percent for 1980 to 6.65 percent for 1981. In addition, the wage base, the maximum amount of annual earnings on which social security taxes are paid, increases to $29,700 for 1981 from $25,900, the 1980 figure.

These increases are the result of legislation enacted in 1977 intended to restore the social security system to financial stability.

The increases will not be substantial, for most workers, Branch said.

Workers earning about $10,000 in both 1980 and 1981 will pay about $1 more a week in social security taxes. Workers whose earnings amount to about $25,900 for both years will pay about $2.59 more a week in 1981 than in 1980, a total of $134.68 more in social security taxes.

Workers earning more than $25,900 in 1981 will see a greater increase in total social security taxes for the year. A worker earning $29,700 in both years will pay $387.33 more in social security tax for 1981 than for 1980.

Employers will also pay more in social security taxes in 1981 since they match employee taxes dollar for dollar, Branch said.

Workers should remember that the social security taxes they pay are building lifetime protection for themselves and their families. In addition to retirement benefits, they are also earning important protection if they should become disabled and for their survivors should they die.

Social security taxes also pay for Medicare hospital insurance for people 65 and over and for people who have been getting social security disability checks for 2 years or more.

More information about social security benefits and taxes can be obtained at the Norfolk social security office, located at 1310 Norfolk Ave., Norfolk. The telephone number is 1-800-642-8310.

Chambers Moves Again to Force Fed's Hands

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

If state Sen. Ernest Chambers had his way, Nebraska will force the federal government to follow through on its pledge to withhold federal highway dollars for non-compliance with the national speed limit.

The Omaha lawmaker once again has sponsored legislation to raise the Interstate speed limit from the nationally imposed 55 mph to 65 mph.

Chambers' proposal always generates debate, and roads officials continually feel obligated to remind lawmakers that federal law threatens the cutoff of federal highway funds if the 55 mph speed limit isn't enforced.

This year, however, there's been a turn of events that may enable Chambers to force the feds into deciding whether to follow through on their mandate to cut off highway funds, which are estimated at more than $70 million.

During the first full week of legislative hearings on new bills, Chambers' LB143 was also before the Public Works Committee.

There weren't enough votes in committee that day to advance the measure to the full Legislature. But the hearing was unlike committee sessions of past years.

Normally, state energy officials, law enforcement representatives and roads department personnel can be expected to testify against such a measure. But not this time. Neither state Energy Chief Bill Palmer nor state patrol Superintendent Elmer Kohmetscher attended.

Chambers told those who did attend that the federal government would risk creating a pot-hole ridden interstate system in Nebraska if it did in fact withhold highway funds. He wants to force the issue, especially since he thinks the energy savings from the 55 mph speed limit are minor.

In past sessions, people who have supported raising the speed limit said a higher driving speed makes sense because in most areas of Nebraska, people have to drive many miles to get from one town to another. The higher speed, they have argued, doesn't really pose major problems on stretches of interstate that are not heavily traveled.

But Roger Kotelson of the Independent Insurance Agents of Nebraska reiterated a concern that has been heard before. Higher speeds, he complained, cause more accidents and therefore are costly.

But Kotelson stood alone in opposing Chambers' bill, which indirectly appears to have the backing of Gov. Charles Thone. The governor recently told reporters he wouldn't veto a measure that only proposed a speed limit increase on interstate highways.

Chambers, an Independent, might have another thing going for him this year. Republican President Ronald Reagan has indicated support for giving states control over speed limits.

So Chambers has more going for him this year than he has in past sessions, and in the end Nebraska might go ahead and force the feds to decide whether to cut back the state's highway funds.

It's still too early, however, to predict the fate of Chambers' legislation. What is known, though, is that the issue stands a good chance of being tossed around for many months to come.

Even if the Public Works Committee kills the bill, there are enough legislative maneuvers, and enough LB143 supporters, to keep the issue alive throughout the 1981 session and possibly into the 1982 meeting.

Guest statute debated
Lawmakers in Nebraska and other states for several years at least have been wrestling with the question of whether a motor vehicle operator is liable to his guest passengers.

The debate centers around what is commonly referred to as a guest statute, which limits liability for bodily injury to passengers who are guests in a motor vehicle. The injured passenger can sue and recover only if the driver is found to be grossly negligent.

The Nebraska Legislature this year is taking a close look at the state's guest statute, which Neill Sen. John DeCamp would like to amend. DeCamp wants to limit the guest provisions to relatives of the driver by blood or marriage.

DeCamp's bill would enable other guest riders to sue under provisions of ordinary negligence for car accident injuries.

One woman testified during a recent legislative hearing on DeCamp's bill that guest passengers "literally put ourselves in the driver's hands."

The Legislature's Judiciary Committee now is reviewing the merits of DeCamp's proposal to partially repeal Nebraska's 49-year-old guest statute. Following its recent public hearing, the panel voted to hold LB54 in committee.

The measure, which many people have said is vitally important to all Nebraska drivers and their passengers, could follow several routes through the legislative machinery. Observers expect the issue to remain alive for some time.

The bill could be amended by committee, killed by the panel, advanced to the full Legislature or held indefinitely.

Regardless of what the committee does, however, some observers are predicting the bill will be debated by the full Legislature. DeCamp, they note, is a master at legislative maneuvering and almost certainly can be expected to make an effort to place the issue before all 49 lawmakers.

ESU Board Acts Wisely

The Educational Service Unit No. 1 board of directors made the proper decision Tuesday night in appointing Wayne's Randy Shaw as its newest board member.

Despite the split vote, the board has pledged its cooperation with Shaw who is associate professor of industrial education at Wayne State College. He has been in education for 12 years and has shown concern for the emotionally and physically handicapped children of the ESU area.

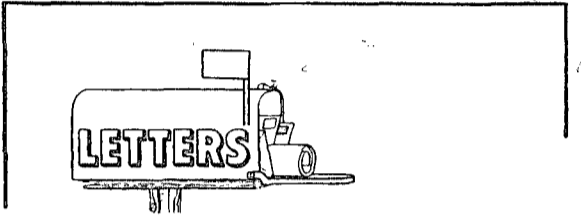

Unfortunately, the controversy surrounding Shaw's appointment may cause undue harm to his ability to function as a qualified board member. Initially, Wayne's Sharon Boeckenhauer was elected as the Wayne County representative on the ESU board. However, due to a filing error that was not discovered until after the election was held, she was declared ineligible. That logically left the door open for Shaw to be named her replacement since he received nearly the same mandate as Mrs. Boeckenhauer from Wayne County voters.

But some members of the ESU board felt otherwise, apparently, since Dave Hay voted against a motion to appoint Shaw and board members Kenneth Olds, Bill Wiese and Claire Hansen passed when it came turn for them to vote. The argument was that a committee should be formed to solicit applicants for the board position, interview these applicants and make recommendations to the board.

Shaw was assured there were to be no hard feelings after his appointment and that his presence on the board would be welcome. But we find that a 4-1-3 vote is hardly a vote of confidence.

The idea of a committee to seek applicants is plausible, but only under different circumstances. Voters of Wayne County clearly showed their confidence in Shaw by giving him just 111 votes fewer than winner Boeckenhauer in the General Election. Mrs. Boeckenhauer, in personal statements to the board and in letters, has pledged her total support and her votes to Shaw, stating that he "has already demonstrated his willingness to meet with parents of handicapped children in order to better understand their concerns."

The ESU board has made an obvious, rational and well-educated decision. The members have had ample time to consider the alternatives since Mrs. Boeckenhauer was declared ineligible to serve in early November. Their decisions seem to serve the best interests of the district and the wishes of Wayne County voters. Dan Field, Editor

Dear Editor:

I've never written a letter to this paper or for that matter to any other paper either, but a recent letter which began this same way has stirred some thoughts.

I did not hang any yellow ribbons nor did I expect the ex-hostages to return as heroes. I'm not even convinced that the news media has intended to make heroes out of them. When the eyes of America focus on a single ordeal which lasts for 444 days, then obviously there will be considerable press coverage upon the ending, happy or unhappy.

Unlike free-lance photographers, students or even vacationers who venture into a previously known unsafe area of the world, these people had a national purpose in addition to their own. What difference does it make if they were volunteers? There were volunteers who were captured and/or killed in Vietnam. They knew it was unsafe before they went there. Are they lesser heroes than the non-volunteers? If anything, they should be greater heroes because they did willingly what others had to be told to do. If all Americans feel this way about volunteering then maybe I'm sorry I have.

Oh, and by the way, I think Mr. Carter was an outstanding president. Certainly he is not a weak man, most certainly a very intelligent one.

Just another opinion by another American taxpayer

Kim Kline
Waukegan, Ill.

Senator Finds Sessions, Work Hours Lengthy

With committee hearings in full swing, this has been my busiest week so far. The Legislature convenes at 9 a.m. and adjourns at 10:30 a.m. in order to hold committee hearings, both in the morning and afternoon. However, my day begins at 6 a.m. and usually finds me still up at 11 p.m. or later.

Most of the bills have now been assigned to committees and public hearings have been scheduled. If there is a particular bill that interests you, I urge you to attend the hearing and voice your feelings.

Two bills, LB's 523 and 406, brought cries of partisanship when they were referred to the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee. Both bills deal with reapportionment. This committee has no Lincoln members and the opposition stated that Lincoln will have no voice in its redistricting. The committee does have two members from each of the four geographical regions which gives it representation across the state. A motion to re-refer the bills to the Government Committee, failed and the bills will remain with the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee.

LB 143, a bill to raise the speed limit on Nebraska's Interstate from 55 to 65 mph, was advanced after considerable debate and a series of votes. However, the committee added an amendment raising the speed limit by only five miles per hour. The measure also will carry to the floor a provision giving the Governor authority to cut the limit back to 55 mph if the increase should threaten the state's federal road funds. That threat has long blocked attempts to raise the speed limit.

A bill before Judiciary Committee this week, LB 27, would name a state mammal. It was introduced by Senator Shirley Marsh. Sixth graders from an elementary school in Lincoln told state senators why the odocoileus virginianus, commonly known as the white-tail deer, should be named the official Nebraska mammal. While making preparations for a unit on mammals, teachers discovered that Nebraska was one of the few states without a state mammal. The official designation would not take the deer off the list of game animals for hunting. It was pointed out that hunting is necessary to keep the deer from overbreeding.

The children's presentation won the hearts and votes of the committee, which sent the bill to general file after a short executive session.

I was pleased to have so many individuals from Wayne and South Sioux City visit my office this week. I also had the opportunity to visit over dinner with friends from Carroll, Wayne, Dixon and Wakefield. Always good to see you and hear the news and always from home.

Farm Credit Vise Spars Bond Proposal: Thone

"As dependent as Nebraska's economy is on agriculture, we've got to take steps to ease the terrible credit squeeze being put on farmers and ranchers."

"With inflation causing production costs to rise so dramatically, it's difficult for a farmer to pay for this year's production costs out of last year's profits, let alone buy more land, livestock or better equipment to make his operation more efficient."

"And the young people who want to begin farming find it almost impossible to borrow money to get started."

"Now, when farmers need to borrow more money than ever before, there's less available. The high interest rates are a reflection of the fact that there are more people wanting to borrow money than there is money available for lending."

"Therefore, I proposed establishment of a Nebraska agricultural revenue bond fund to make farm loans. Senator Loran Schmit, chairman of the legislature's agricultural committee, has introduced a bill to create such a fund."

"If enacted by the legislature the program would require no state funds and the state would not have any liability for the bonds. The revenue from farm loan repayments would pay off the bonds, which would be attractive to investors because the bonds would not be subject to federal taxes."

"Local lenders — including banks, production credit associations and land banks — would make the loans to farmers and service them. The agricultural revenue bond fund would buy the notes and mortgages from the local lenders."

"Last year, similar agricultural bond funds were established in Louisiana, Oklahoma and Alabama. They were able to make loans to farmers at rates ranging from 8 to 9.75 percent. Interest rates have increased a lot since the first of these kinds of bonds were issued in June, 1980, so a bond issue today might make loans available to farmers with an interest rate something like 12.5 percent. That's still considerably better than most commercial rates."

"The task of feeding the world is going to become increasingly important for Nebraska year-by-year. We must make certain we have a farm credit system where a young person who has the knowledge and drive to be a success in agriculture can get the financing to get a foothold in the business."

"We must make certain we have an agricultural credit system that makes it possible for family farms to continue to exist and to become more profitable."

"When my grandparents came to Nebraska, it was possible for a person without capital of his own to become a farmer if he was willing to work very hard and do without many of the comforts of city life. An agricultural revenue bond fund will help keep Nebraska a place where there will be farming prospects for families who know what they're doing and are willing to sweat and sacrifice."

Hearts and Flowers
Popular theme for Nebraska parties

Feb. 14, St. Valentine's Day, has long been to Nebraskans an occasion for parties, greeting cards and gifts of candy, flowers and small mementos to friends and loved ones. Early newspapers on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society report the parties given by young women for their gentlemen friends. The Feb. 17, 1907, "Nebraska State Journal" contains an account of "one of the most elaborate social events which has occurred in University Place (Lincoln) for some time... when the Phi Delta Psi (sorority members) entertained eight of their gentlemen friends. The rooms were very tastefully and beautifully decorated in red and white; appropriate for the occasion, while beautiful vases of huge carnations adorned various nooks and corners. As the gentlemen approach they were greeted with sweet strains of music, which was furnished by talented musicians."

"All having assembled, they joined in a very enthusiastic game, the blowing of soap bubbles through prettily decorated hearts, which were suspended between the parlors, and which when blown described the future fate of the blower. The party was next divided into equal sides and each side given a number of hearts which were to be thrown into a heart basket, which was placed half way between the sides. The hearts had a tantalizing way of landing on the floor, but finally, all hearts having been disposed of, those of each side were counted and the side having the most in the basket was then presented with a most delicious box of bonbons."

"In the next entertainment the guests were blindfolded and displayed their artistic skill by drawing a heart upon a blackboard and then placing their names in the center, the one making the most correct guess being awarded a large cream heart, tied with the Phi Delta Psi colors. The gentlemen then proceeded to find their partners for supper, which was done in a very novel manner. They were given slips of paper which directed them to a certain place, and when reaching there were directed to a very remote part of the house, here to meet with a similar experience, but finally arrived at their destination, and instead of finding the name of the lady to be escorted, found instead her baby picture.

"A great deal of amusement was thus created, but the gentlemen finally secured their partners and escorted them to the beautifully decorated dining room, where they were served a delicious luncheon. During the evening the punch bowl was presided over by two small boys. Lunch being served, the gentlemen were allowed to try their skill with the bow and arrow, and after succeeding were given carnations as favors."

Eleven years later St. Valentine's Day festivities were far more subdued. The Feb. 17, 1918, "Lincoln Sunday Star" under the headline "Few Cupids on Day of St. Valentine," reported:

"The fourteenth of February — the day of fancy, frizzed paper valentines with cupids and red hearts pierced with arrows — was this year a day of celebration for the kiddies only. If we could erase the past few years and go back to the days before the war (World War I) when we were mentally at ease and everything was not a problem — to the day when St. Valentine's day meant anxiously watching for the postman, who is sure to be late or speculating as to whether it will be violets or a box of one's favorite candies."

"But this year Fate played the pranks of a shabby trick and the valentines were few and far between while the khaki clad men were the fortunate ones. Many a soldier boy was remembered with a box of valentine sweets and many a 'smileage' book found its way to an army camp."

"The few parties of the week carried out the valentine ideas and a number of the clubs which met the past week overstepped just a little bit and added a few flowers and hearts and cupids for decorations. And why not have those frivolous fads and fancies while we can, for one never knows what will happen on the morrow."

The "frivolous fads and fancies" spoken of by the "Lincoln Star" were revived after World War I and continue to be popular with present-day Nebraskans.

Workshops Aid Students

"The workshops are aimed at the college students, to aid them in dealing with various college situations," said Wayne State College Academic Counselor Lin Brummels, as she explained the idea behind the three academic workshops to be conducted during February.

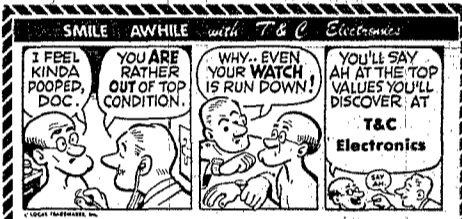

The workshops will be headed by Brummels, and will take place in Room 28 of the library basement near the Teaching-Learning Center. All will run from 3:30-5 p.m.

The first entitled "Assertiveness Training," was held Tuesday and dealt with common college situations, such as how to talk to instructors, and feeling more confident.

"Test Anxiety and Stress Management," the second workshop planned, will be held on Tuesday. It will center on the pressures felt before mid-term and final exams, and how to handle them. These periods often culminate into various stressful situations, said Brummels, and it is important that students learn ways of dealing with them and the places they can get help.

The final workshop, "Academic Success," set for Tuesday, Feb. 17, will deal with the topics of general education and graduation requirements. These workshops have had a good response in the past, and are open to all students, with no limit on the number who can attend.

Agriculture

Farm Real Estate Diverse

Nebraska's farm real estate situation in 1980 could be compared to riding a rodeo bull — many speeds, directions and movements, according to Bruce Johnson, assistant professor of agricultural economics in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The January, 1980, Russian grain embargo, followed by jumps in producer input costs in the planting season, and adding the drought conditions over much of the state, brought further uncertainty to the situation. The market for farm real estate reflected these factors in the first half of the year as little sales activity occurred and land values stabilized.

For the last five months of 1980, market activity and buyer interest forestalled. This, coupled with expected farm income improvement in 1981, has resulted in the land market entering 1981 on a somewhat stronger note.

The turning point occurred, he said, when the magnitude of the drought caused substantial commodity price increases. Renewed activity in the land market soon followed. Land values in some areas reportedly increased about 1 to 1.5 percent per month in the last four to five months.

"The value changes which did occur in Nebraska during 1980 were reportedly much more variable from one region to another than in past years," Johnson noted. As a whole, a generally stronger market prevailed in the western half of the state. In southwestern Nebraska, for instance, farm real estate values apparently increased 10 to 15 percent in 1980, due to generally good yields with favorable commodity prices. The liquidation of grains stored from earlier years could also have influenced land market participation in the western areas.

In contrast, irrigated and dryland cropland values in southern and eastern Nebraska remained relatively stable throughout much of the year. The drought resulted in a short crop year for farmers and, consequently, gains of no more than 2 to 7 percent in value for the year were relatively common.

"Pasture and grazing land appeared to experience the largest percentage gains in value during 1980. Increases of 7 to 10 percent were general," he said. Range land is selling $20 to $25 per acre above a year earlier. Much smaller percentage changes showed up for irrigated land.

The availability and cost of long term credit remains an important consideration in the farm real estate market. Presently, a high incidence of farmland transfers — about half — involve seller financing. At this time, Johnson added, the going interest rate on seller-financed land contracts is 11 to 12 percent, fully 1 to 2 percent above a year earlier. If the nation's prime interest rate continues to climb during 1981, Johnson foresees a climb in the interest rates sellers are willing to accept on such contracts.

"Conceivably, the dampening impact of the high cost of borrowed money could be substantial," he said. "But also, the nature of the buyer side of the market may change — cash flow limitations may restrict some active farmers, while wealthier investors could become more prominent in the market for farmland."

Calf scours

The high incidence of calf diarrhea has made it the number one problem for the newborn calves.

Scours causes rapid dehydration from fluid loss. Poisons may be picked up from the inflamed intestine and cause the weakened calf to have secondary problems. Scours occur shortly after birth and during the next three to four weeks. As the calf grows older, its resistance to scours increases.

These management procedures can help reduce the incidence of calf scours.

1. Dry and clean bedding for calving area.
2. Make sure the calf gets clostridium during the first few hours following birth.

3. Rota and corona viral scours can be prevented with vaccinations for either the calf or the cow, but these are the only types for which vaccines have been very effective. Calves should immediately receive the oral vaccine at birth, and cows should receive two shots a month apart, prior to calving, to build immunity which is then transferred to the calf in the colostrum.

Consult your veterinarian for further information concerning calf scours, its treatment and control.

Vitamin "A" for beef cows

Do beef cows wintered on cornstalks need a vitamin A supplement in their feed or a vitamin A injection beginning about 60-70 days before calving? The hay that will normally be fed just before and after calving will carry some vitamin A value but should not be depended upon to provide the vitamin A needs.

It is suggested that cows and heifers be fed approximately 20,000 IU of vitamin A daily before calving and about 50,000 IU of vitamin A after calving until grass is available. Or if an injection is used, inject about 2 1/2 million units.

Stabilized vitamin A supplement can be added to a protein supplement feed to provide the recommended level or stabilized vitamin A can be added to a salt or salt-mineral mixture to furnish about one million units of vitamin A per pound of salt before calving or 2 1/2 million units per pound of salt after calving. Keep the vitamin A-salt-mineral mixture dry until it's fed and place about a week's supply before the cattle at a time.

Swine Breeding Problems Top at Swine Days

Sows that lose condition during lactation may be contributing to swine producers' breeding problems. That was part of the message delivered during the Area Swine Days at Emerson last Thursday.

Dr. Bobby Messer, swine nutritionist from the University of Nebraska, told the audience that sows that are not full-fed during lactation have a higher incidence of anaestrus. Ninety-eight percent of full-fed sows return to heat within eight days of weaning, while only 60 percent of limit fed sows can be bred during this same interval.

The results are a longer farrowing interval and fewer pigs per sow per year. Breeding problems are amplified, and cash return from sows is decreased.

Dr. Austin Lewis, University swine nutritionist, encouraged producers to look beyond the crude protein level of rations. "The amino acid balance of the complete ration must also be considered," according to Lewis.

The audience also heard presentations from Dan Williams, a producer from Villisca, Iowa, and Fremont banker Jack Paulson, who predicted a stabilization in interest rates and a positive outlook for farmers during the next four years.

Feeder pig research was reported by Mike Brumm, swine specialist from the Northeast Station. Brumm recommended feeding feeder pigs on the floor during the first week to allow the pigs to adjust and be observed for illness.

The "ideal feeder pig," says Brumm, is "35-40 lbs. at eight weeks, is castrated and healed, has the tail docked, is free of parasites, has been vaccinated and is healthy, vigorous and alert."

The program concluded with Dr. Jerry Bodman, Extension agricultural engineer, reporting on the University work with solar energy hog houses. Bodman said he was aware of claims on heating value of solar collectors. The state BTU value is often a maximum under ideal conditions, while realistic values are much less. Research indicates that the best possibilities for economic use of solar energy in swine enterprises are with farrowing and nursery units. Bodman cautioned producers to avoid complicated systems. The "2" rule said Bodman, is a rule of thumb to remember. Move two cubic feet of air per minute and have two cubic feet of storage for each square foot of collector.

Farmers Faced With Grim Reality

Farmers are faced with the grim reality that inflation and other factors are pushing the costs of most farm production inputs to higher and higher levels, according to Dr. Les Sheffield, extension farm management specialist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

In fact, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic and Statistics Service predicts that U.S. farm production expenses in 1981 are likely to increase from 10 to 13 percent above 1980 costs. Overall crop prices in 1981 could average 12 to 16 percent higher than in 1980, with a 16 to 20 percent boost in overall livestock product prices.

On the energy scene, mid November USDA predictions indicated a 20 to 25 percent increase for 1981 compared to 1980. Since then, Sheffield said, OPEC has met and announced a 10 percent hike in prices charged for crude oil. This, combined with the uncertain effects of the Iran-Iraq war on OPEC production and export capabilities, paints a picture of concern about what might happen to Middle East crude oil exports and prices in 1981.

Another energy uncertainty is the effect on prices for various energy sources as price decontrols on petroleum-based products take effect. One projection is that price decontrols alone could result in a 10 cent per gallon increase in gasoline prices in 1981. A spokesman for a major oil company was quoted recently as predicting $1.65 per gallon gasoline and equivalent price increases for diesel fuel by the summer of 1981.

Electric rates are predicted to increase substantially in 1981, caused by the costs of bringing new coal-fired plants into the Nebraska Public Power System, as well as other higher costs and inflation. The increases will vary from one REA to another in Nebraska, keeping in mind that the western third of Nebraska purchases electric power from Tri State Generation and Transmission Association of Denver, Sheffield said.

Natural gas is still the lowest cost energy for heating farm homes or for grain drying or irrigation power units. Existing irrigation rate structures are almost certain to be increased in 1981 but no final determination has been made by the major natural gas supplier for irrigation in Nebraska.

Fertilizer prices paid by farmers could average from 8 to 12 percent higher in the spring of 1981 as compared with a year earlier. Nitrogen fertilizer prices could rise 10 to 15 percent with ammonia and urea prices showing the greatest increases.

Phosphate prices are expected to advance from 5 to 10 percent above spring, 1980 levels, while potash prices are expected to go up 10 to 15 percent. Generally, stocks of phosphate and potash are above year ago levels due to reduced exports and lower rates of application due to the cost price squeeze which faced farmers in 1980.

Sheffield said the USDA has forecast an average of 10 to 12 percent increases in pesticide and herbicide prices as compared to year earlier prices.

As a response to inflationary impacts and the competition to retain farm laborers, farm wage rates will rise by 10 to 12 percent in 1981, Sheffield said. Generally speaking, it also takes a substantial fringe benefit package to help compensate for longer hours, distance from towns and other amenities available to city workers.

Farmland real estate valuations and total taxes paid by owners have increased substantially in most Nebraska counties in the past two years, Sheffield said, reflecting the combination of higher local government costs and the phasing out of personal property taxes on farm machinery in 1978, business inventories in 1979 and livestock inventories in 1980. Thus, a sharply increased real estate tax on a per acre basis has resulted.

Credit needs for production agriculture continue to increase substantially as production input prices rise. Interest rates will remain at high levels, currently ranging from 15 to 20 percent, Sheffield said, and may rise higher than farmers paid in 1980.

Free Income Tax Help Offered

Free income tax assistance is being offered to many of Nebraska's taxpayers through a program called Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA).

The VITA program is sponsored by the Internal Revenue Service to provide free income tax assistance to Nebraska's low income, elderly, handicapped and non-English speaking people.

Volunteers are trained by the Internal Revenue Service and the Nebraska Department of Revenue to prepare the basic 1040, 1040A federal and state tax returns. They include members of various civic and social action organizations, religious groups, college students, retired professionals and bi-lingual persons.

Many taxpayers will use the VITA centers because of convenient locations and hours of operation. Centers are set up in neighborhoods at churches, schools, libraries, civic centers and at private business locations.

Taxpayers seeking help in preparing their Federal or state income tax return, should call the Internal Revenue Service for the name and the location of an assistance site nearest to them.

Two special permits are needed for young tractor drivers to meet Nebraska state law and the Federal Department of Labor Standards.

Department of Labor Standards require boys and girls from 14 to 16 to have a special exemption permit if they are to operate a tractor or other farm implements for someone other than their parents. This permit can be obtained by completing a 22 hour course in tractor operation and safety.

The county extension agents in Dakota, Cedar, Thurston, Dixon and Wayne Counties are providing a special training for this purpose to be held on Saturdays — Feb. 28, March 4 and 21 — at the Northeast Station near Concord from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day. This is part of their 4-H Youth Development Program and is open to all youths without regard to race, color or national origin.

There is a $5 registration fee for this training payable in advance. Those interested in receiving this training should register with their county extension agent prior to Feb. 23.

This training would be excellent for all youths who are driving tractors, as the main emphasis is safe tractor operation and maintenance.

Nebraska state law requires a special permit for all tractor operators 13 to 16 to enable them to drive a tractor or other farm equipment on any Nebraska roadway. This permit can be obtained in two ways.

A temporary permit is available from the Department of Motor Vehicles for a $1 charge. It is good for only six months and no test is required. It is especially good for those youths who will be 16 in six months.

A permanent permit is available for a cost of $2. It is good until the age of 16. A written test, an eye exam and a tractor-driving test administered by the Department of Motor Vehicles examiners is required. A special test day to obtain this permit has been scheduled for March 14 at the Northeast Station near Concord from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

Special application blanks can be obtained from the local county extension agent.

Youth Workers Get Sponsor

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission is again sponsoring the Nebraska Youth Conservation Corps (YCC). This is part of a nationwide summer work-and-learn program established by congress.

On the Federal level YCC is sponsored by the Department of Interior and Department of Agriculture - Forest Service. The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission coordinates YCC on the state level and handles recruiting and selection of Corps members for all projects.

The YCC is designed to develop and maintain the nation's natural resources by employing young men and women to work on conservation related projects.

There are two types of camps. Five-day, non-residential - where the enrollees live at home and provide their own room, board and transportation to and from the camp project. These are located at Beatrice, Crawford, Gretna, Kearney, Lexington, Lincoln, Louisville, North Platte, Omaha, Blair, Valley and Fort Niobrara. If the applicant's zip code falls within a 30 mile radius of any of the cities listed they will be considered for that camp.

The seven-day, residential camp - where the enrollees will live at the camp seven days a week, are located at Halsey, McCook and Scotts Bluff. Applicants in all zip code areas will be considered for positions in these camps if they desire.

All Nebraska YCC Camps and Projects try to maintain a 50-50 coeducational ratio.

To be eligible all applicants must: be age 15, but not yet 19 years of age; be a permanent resident of the United States; have no history of criminal or anti-social behavior; be able to provide a medical certificate; provide parental or guardian consent; provide a work permit if age 15; have a social security card; be a resident of the State of Nebraska.

The YCC Program is open to everyone without regard to race, creed, color, sex or national origin. Those who have participated in past years are, however, not eligible except as youth leaders.

All applications and other information will be sent out about Feb. 1 to all high schools, Nebraska Job Service, minority organizations and offices of the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission. The completed applications must be returned to Falls Church, Va., postmarked by March 14. Selection will then be made by centralized computer systems.

If additional applications or other information is needed, please contact the YCC State Program Agent or Recruiter, Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, P.O. Box 30370, Lincoln, Neb. 68503; 402-464-0641.

Auto-Owners for Car Insurance
If your brand new car is totaled, will your insurance company pay you for a brand new car?
Auto-Owners will when you have comprehensive and collision coverage. If you have an accident anytime within 90 days and your new car is a total loss, we'll pay you the total cost of your new car. And with Auto-Owners, your new car is covered immediately, automatically, under your policy.
So if your present policy doesn't give you this kind of total coverage, maybe you better scrap it.

We want you to know about electric costs

We want you to have an understanding of the factors which affect today's electric rates. As a supplier of electricity in 85 Nebraska counties, our revenues come from two sources: (1) from sales at wholesale to other districts, rural cooperatives and municipalities; and (2) from sales direct to retail customers primarily through lease agreements. The charts here project how each dollar in revenue will be spent in 1981. As you can see, the major costs are for fuel, power plant operation and maintenance and environmental requirements. We have little or no control over these costs, nor do we have control over more than 85% of our costs. On the negative side, we cannot foresee any levelling off of the effects of inflation in these areas in the near future. On the positive side, we feel that we are doing everything we can to hold costs to a minimum. This is principally because our generating system is designed to make maximum use of coal, a low-cost and available fuel source. Another near-term saving will come from the deferment of construction on new generation and transmission facilities which our research indicates will not now be needed as soon as originally planned.

A dependable supply of electricity is one of Nebraska's most vital resources. Keeping it that way is our responsibility.
