Drug Case Sent To Higher Court

4 Will Be Arraigned March 4

A fourth area person charged with four drug-related complaints was bound over to District Court after preliminary hearing here Thursday.

CHARLES WEIBLE, 27, Winslow, was the only person whose hearing was held Thursday. Three others involved in an alleged drug buy Dec. 19 were bound over to District Court Thursday, Feb. 5, by County Judge James Duggan.

Weible now will face arraignment on the charges along with Dale Busskohl, 27, Winslow, Vernon Sahra, 30, Laurel, and Diane Coyle, 24, Winslow. Their cases will be heard at 10 a.m. Wednesday, March 4, in District Court here.

Weible was bound over on four counts of possession of cocaine and marijuana with the intent to deliver: Count I — possession of cocaine with the intent to deliver; Count II — possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver; Count III — possession of cocaine; and Count IV — possession of marijuana.

IN MAKING his decision, Judge Duggan denied a motion by Weible's attorney, Vince Kirby of Norfolk, to dismiss three of the four counts. Kirby wanted the charges of possession of cocaine with intent, possession of marijuana with intent and possession of marijuana dismissed.

However, Judge Duggan said that based on probable cause that the crimes were committed and that Weible might have been the person who committed the crimes, he would hand the case over to District Court.

During testimony by drug investigators for the Nebraska Highway Patrol, Drug Enforcement Division, it was revealed that Weible attempted to evade officers when he realized the drug buy was, instead, a police bust.

POLICE SGT. James Avary of Omaha said Weible bolted out the doorway past him and another officer who yelled "police." Weible did not stop but ran directly toward a uniformed officer who struck him with the butt of a shotgun. Weible began to run another direction but was caught and held by his upper arms as other officers reached the scene.

Avary said as Weible was being held, he (Weible) reached into his jacket pocket, pulled a bag of white powder out and threw it aside. That substance, later identified by state drug laboratories as cocaine, was confiscated and a pat-down search of Weible revealed another packet of substance, also later named as cocaine, and a "snorter" allegedly used to snort the cocaine.

After Weible threw the bag of cocaine aside, Avary said, he struggled and was wrestled to the ground, was handcuffed and arrested.

ATTORNEY KIRBY argued that during drug purchase negotiations at the Busskohl house between the drug investigators and Sahra and Busskohl, Weible was standing several feet away and was not involved.

Drug investigator Randy Brunckhorst admitted under cross examination by Kirby that he did not see Weible with any drugs at any time, nor did he hear Weible speak at any time during the evening. Brunckhorst agreed with Kirby that the cocaine was in the house long before Weible arrived. The only apparent connection between Weible and the drug conversations was the price Busskohl allegedly asked Weible if the price for one ounce of cocaine was still $2,400. Brunckhorst said Weible nodded his head in an affirmative manner, but said nothing.

THE HEARING began shortly after 11 a.m. and continued through the lunch hour to about 3:50 p.m. Officers Brunckhorst and Avary were the main witnesses.

Busskohl will be arraigned on four counts of possession of cocaine and marijuana and possession with the intent to deliver.

Sahra is facing arraignment on two counts of possession of marijuana of more than one pound with the intent to deliver.

Coyle is charged with possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver and a misdemeanor charge of possession of marijuana of less than one ounce.

All other charges against the four are felonies.

THE CHARGE of possession of more than one pound of marijuana carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison or a $10,000 fine or both, and a minimum penalty of nothing.

The charge of possession of cocaine with the intent to deliver carries a maximum penalty of 50 years in prison or a minimum of one year.

Possession of marijuana carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison or a fine of $10,000 or both.

And possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison or a fine of $25,000 or both.

Like Day And Night

ONLY TWO DAYS after the area suffered the first major winter storm of the season and near record sub-zero temperatures, youngsters were out taking advantage of above freezing weather for some fun. On Wednesday, the low was -23 degrees. But on Friday, the high reached 47 degrees, a difference of 70 degrees in 60 hours. The State National Bank temperature sign listed the temperature about 6:30 a.m. Wednesday as -19. Involved in a war of snowballs are from left: Kim Hankins, 10, daughter of Larry Hankins of Odessa, Texas, and Terri Hankins of Wayne; twin brothers Adam and Jason Mrsny, 9, sons of Steve Mrsny and Jill Mrsny of Wayne; and Eric Hankins, 9, Kim's brother.

Broken Pipes Give Several Extra Days

It was good news and it was bad news. For the Wayne Elementary School students, it was a chance to play and sleep. For school officials, it was a costly headache.

ELEMENTARY students were dismissed from classes early Wednesday morning and all day Thursday because water pipes in the school had frozen and then broken, leaving the building without heat.

Building principal Dave Lutt said that for unknown reasons, the recirculating pump at the school shut itself off Tuesday. Consequently, there was no warm water running through the pipes and the frigid sub-zero weather took its toll. Temperatures Wednesday morning fell to -23 degrees.

THE BROKEN pipes were discovered about 6:30 a.m. Wednesday and it was thought the problem was not too severe. But as children began to arrive for the day's classes, officials discovered several pipes had broken and the inside temperature was hovering in the 40's.

School was soon dismissed and three local plumbers spent Wednesday, Thursday and most of Friday repairing the damage.

Because some pipes were repaired by Friday, school reopened. The warmer outdoor temperatures also played an important role in the students' return to classes.

LUTT SAID a call went out Wednesday for area farmers to lend the school propane heaters to warm the building so the pipes could be thawed. It is largely because of this response that the repairs were made so quickly, he said.

The principal said the recirculating system was checked Tuesday afternoon and was working properly. This is the first time in many years that the elementary school was closed for reasons other than snow.

Academic Counseling 'Interesting'

"The job offers a lot of variety, is enjoyable and allows for a change to keep things interesting," stated Lin Brummels concerning her position as academic counselor at Wayne State College.

THE OFFICE, its second year, is located in Room 106 of the Hahn Administration building and is headed by Lin Brummels. Kirk Hutton filled the position last year.

During the fall term, the office underwent a "defining" process and the job now unifies responsibilities from academic affairs and student services to assist students through many phases in their academic careers as stated by the college.

According to Brummels, there are many areas covered by the office of which students are not always aware.

THE MAJOR focus of the office is to provide counseling for students from the academic standpoint, information on possibilities of majors/minors and potential careers, as well as aid in career planning.

For those students who have not declared a major, the academic counselor can help them choose a career in which they are interested. This is an important factor considering that as many as one quarter of the freshmen class has been undecided. They work in co-operation with the registrar's office in dealing with these students.

The Early Alert program also falls partially under the office of academic counselor. The program was founded by Dr. Bobby Lupack, assistant professor of English, along with Brummels, Mike Ganaway, assistant dean of students, and Kirk Hutton, admissions counselor, in 1980.

IT DEALS with faculty awareness of potential student problems and the referral of them to the proper sources. They detect students who are chronically absent or who are unable to handle their assigned course work. It also helps to improve communication among faculty, students and their advisors.

Early Alert is geared to general education courses presently. However, students who receive downsides in any class are invited to come in and see Brummels, Lupack, or any of the Early Alert staff.

Brummels did note that the number of people using the Early Alert program has increased considerably during the past term.

THE ACADEMIC COUNSELOR also can aid students in determining who their advisor is, or in changing their major. Brummels pointed out that it is necessary to fill out a "change of major" form when switching majors, so that the school recognizes the change being made. Many students are unaware of this.

Wayne School District's Roots Date to 1881

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles on the history of the Wayne Public School system. Supt. of Schools Francis Hahn prepared the historical sketch for use in the Wayne County History Book, a publication sponsored by the County Historical Society.)

Deadline for contributing to the book was Sunday, but the committee will be compiling contributions for several days. Persons still working on their information have time to submit their works.

Historical Sketch of Wayne Public Schools 1881-1981

by Supt. Francis Hahn
General Background
The Wayne Public School System is located in a Northeast Nebraska community of approximately 5,100 people.

WAYNE IS THE home of Wayne State College which, in 1980, had an enrollment of 2,100 students. The community is economically dependent upon the college, although the business community also serves a 400 square-mile agricultural trade territory. Industry in Wayne consists primarily of firms which produce agricultural and housing products.

The Wayne School District, since 1967, has been organized on the K-4-4 plan. The 1981 enrollment in grades K-4 is 314; the enrollment of the Middle School, grades 5-8, is 214; the High School enrollment, grades 9-12, is 336.

THREE BUILDINGS house the public school program in Wayne. There is an additional school building in the district located at Carroll, a community of 200 population, 12 miles west of Wayne. The elementary school building in Wayne was constructed in 1940. It has 13 classrooms, a central library, a remedial reading room, an area used jointly by the nurse and speech therapist and a multi-purpose room.

The Middle School is housed in the former high school building. This building has 22 teaching stations which include a central library, gymnasium and shop. A program for trainable, mentally handicapped students also is provided.

THE PRESENT high school was first occupied in September of 1967. It contains 25 teaching stations.

The three building complex in Wayne occupies a 40-acre site.

The K-4 school building in Carroll is 72 years old. Only two of its eight classrooms are used for teaching purposes.

School Origins

According to data compiled by Dorothy Nyberg and published in book form in 1938 as a "History of Wayne County," the Wayne School District was legally formed on Dec. 28, 1881, at the Morris and Steele Store on Main Street. Mrs. Nyberg reports that the first term of school was held in a building on Logan Street.

AFTER MOVING for two terms to a building on Main Street, classes were held in the Baptist Church, then a block east of Main Street. Classes were later moved to the Presbyterian Church for two years until 1885.

Financing for a school building was obtained in 1884 when bonds were issued in the amount of $5,000 for the purpose of constructing a new school.

Dr. R. B. Crawford and others wanted the new building located in the block east of the Courthouse. A new addition of town lots, just laid out by Taylor and Wachob west of the present site of the school, had some influence in locating the block for the building.

THE NEW school had two large rooms on the first floor and one on the second floor.

Additions were made later. In a few years, the structure became too small for local needs and the Ward School was built on the lot near the standpipe on north Main Street in 1891. The new brick building was erected on the lot in the west part of town in 1908 and the Ward School was torn down a few years afterward.

The late Dorothy Hughes Nyberg, local historian, notes that the schools were not carefully graded in the early years. Children in one room ranged several years apart. After a few months teachers started classifying students into grade levels based on their ability and grade level.

THE FIRST class to graduate from Wayne High School was the class of 1886 and consisted of three members. With the exception of 1891, records indicate that there has been a graduating class every year since that time.

A new high school was erected in 1909, at 412 Douglas St., at a cost of $45,000. J. H. Kemp, who served as Wayne school superintendent from 1909 to 1914, wrote in 1914 that the new high school "is one of the most beautiful schools in the state, strictly modern, large and ideally located."

SUPERINTENDENT Kemp also noted that Wayne High School was fully accredited as a first class school by the University of Nebraska. A total of 272 students had graduated from Wayne High School between the years of 1886 and 1914.

School district records show that the building constructed in 1909 remained substantially unchanged until 1938. On Sept. 23, 1938, voters approved a bond issue of $48,000 for the purpose of repairing, remodeling and enlarging the existing school building. In 1938, the building housed all of the public school students in Wayne. As a result of the 1938-39 construction, seven classrooms, a gymnasium and locker room were added to the building.

IN 1958, voters of the Carroll School district voted to merge with the Wayne School district. As a result of this election Carroll High School was closed. The Carroll Elementary school remained open but was managed by District No. 17 officials. In 1959, the Carroll District was changed to a K-4 school which it remains in 1980.

As a result of increasing enrollments and the impending closing of the Campus Schools, District No. 17 voters approved a $424,000 bond issue in December, 1959, for the construction of an elementary school. This building had 13 classrooms, a multi-purpose room and a central library. It housed public school students grades K-6 until 1967. In the fall of 1967, the school organization of the Wayne Schools was changed to a K-4-4 pattern.

It was at this time that the Wayne-Carroll School District dedicated a new high school constructed with money provided by an $867,000 bond issue passed by a 68 percent approval of the voters in April of 1965. The old high school building was converted to a new educational concept called "Middle School."

Next, a history of the Middle School.

THIS IS AN aerial view of the Wayne High School (now the Middle School) probably in the mid- to late 1950's. The view is looking north at the south side of the building. A dressing room area has since been added just west of the main wing of the school. When this picture was taken, it is believed all 12 grades were attending here, an estimated 640 students.

This is an important factor considering that as many as one quarter of the freshmen class has been undecided. They work in co-operation with the registrar's office in dealing with these students.

The Early Alert program also falls partially under the office of academic counselor. The program was founded by Dr. Bobby Lupack, assistant professor of English, along with Brummels, Mike Ganaway, assistant dean of students, and Kirk Hutton, admissions counselor, in 1980.

IT DEALS with faculty awareness of potential student problems and the referral of them to the proper sources. They detect students who are chronically absent or who are unable to handle their assigned course work. It also helps to "improve communication among faculty, students and their advisors.

Early Alert is geared to general education courses presently. However, students who receive downfalls in any class are invited to come in and see Brummels, Lupack, or any of the Early Alert staff.

Brummels did note that the number of people using the Early Alert program has increased considerably during the past term.

THE ACADEMIC COUNSELOR also can aid students in determining whether their advisor is or is changing their major. Brummels pointed out that it is necessary to fill out a change of major form when switching majors, so that the school recognizes the change being made. Many students are unaware of this.

Wayne School District's Roots Date to 1881

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles on the history of the Wayne Public School system. Supt. of Schools Francis Haun prepared the historical sketch for use in the Wayne County History Book, a publication sponsored by the County Historical Society.

Deadline for contributing to the book was Sunday, but the committee will be compiling contributions for several days. Persons still working on their information have time to submit their works.

Historical Sketch of Wayne Public Schools
1881-1981

By Supt. Francis Haun
General Background

The Wayne Public School System is located in a Northeast Nebraska community of approximately 5,700 people.

WAYNE IS the home of Wayne State College which, in 1980, had an enrollment of 2,100 students. The community is economically dependent upon the college, although the business community also serves a 400 square-mile agricultural trade territory. Industry in Wayne consists primarily of firms which produce agricultural and housing products.

The Wayne School District, since 1967, has been organized on the K-4-4 plan: The 1981 enrollment in grades K-4 is 314; the enrollment of the Middle School, grades 5-8, is 214; the High School enrollment, grades 9-12, is 336.

THREE BUILDINGS house the public school program in Wayne. There is an additional school building in the district located at Carroll, a community of 200 population, 12 miles west of Wayne. The elementary school building in Wayne was constructed in 1960. It has 13 classrooms, a central library, a remedial reading room, an area used jointly by the nurse and speech therapist and a multi-purpose room.

The Middle School is housed in the former high school building. This building has 22 teaching stations which include a central library, gymnasium and shop. A program for trainable mentally handicapped students also is provided.

THE PRESENT high school was first occupied in September of 1967. It contains 25 teaching stations.

The three building complex in Wayne occupies a 40-acre site.

The K-4 school building in Carroll is 72 years old. Only two of its eight classrooms are used for teaching purposes.

School Origins

According to data compiled by Dorothy Nyberg and published in book form in 1938 as a "History of Wayne County," the Wayne School District was legally formed on Dec. 28, 1881, at the Morris and Sloe's Store on Main Street. Mrs. Nyberg reports that the first term of school was held in a building on Logan Street.

AFTER MOVING for two terms to a building on Main Street, classes were held in the Baptist Church, then a block east of Main Street. Classes were later moved to the Presbyterian Church for two years until 1885.

Financing for a school building was obtained in 1884 when bonds were issued in the amount of $5,000 for the purpose of constructing a new school.

Dr. R.B. Crawford and others wanted the new building located in the block east of the Courthouse. A new addition of town lots, just laid out by Taylor and Wachob west of the present site of the school, had some influence in locating the block for the building.

THE NEW school had two large rooms on the first floor and one on the second floor.

Additions were made later. In a few years, the structure became too small for local needs and the Ward School was built on the lot near the standpipe on north Main Street in 1891. The new brick building was erected on the lot in the west part of town in 1909 and the Ward School was torn down a few years afterward.

The late Dorothy Hughes Nyberg, local historian, notes that the schools were not carefully graded in the early years. Children in one room ranged several years apart. After a few months teachers started classifying students into grade levels based on their ability and grade level.

THE FIRST class to graduate from Wayne High School was the class of 1886 and consisted of three members. With the exception of 1891, records indicate that there has been a graduating class every year since that time.

A new high school was erected in 1909, at 412 Douglas St., at a cost of $45,000. J.H. Kemp, who served as Wayne school superintendent from 1909 to 1914, wrote in 1914 that the new high school "is one of the most beautiful schools in the state, strictly modern, large and ideally located."

SUPERINTENDENT Kemp also noted that Wayne High School was fully accredited as a first-class school by the University of Nebraska. A total of 222 students had graduated from Wayne High School between the years of 1886 and 1914.

School district records show that the building constructed in 1909 remained substantially unchanged until 1938. On Sept. 23, 1938, voters approved a bond issue of $48,000 for the purpose of repairing, remodeling and enlarging the existing school building. In 1938, the building housed all of the public school students in Wayne. As a result of the 1938-39 construction, seven classrooms, a gymnasium and locker room were added to the building.

IN 1938, voters of the Carroll School district voted to merge with the Wayne School district. As a result of this election Carroll High School was closed. The Carroll Elementary school remained open but was managed by District No. 17 officials. In 1959, the Carroll District was changed to a K-4 school which it remains in 1980.

As a result of increasing enrollments and the impending closing of the Campus Schools, District No. 17 voters approved a $424,000 bond issue in December, 1958, for the construction of an elementary school. This building had 13 classrooms, a multi-purpose room and a central library. It housed public school students grades K-6 until 1967. In the fall of 1967, the school organization of the Wayne Schools was changed to a K-4-4 pattern.

It was at this time that the Wayne-Carroll School District dedicated a new high school constructed with money provided by an $867,000 bond issue passed by a 48 percent approval of the voters in April of 1965. The old high school building was converted to a new educational concept called "Middle School."

Next, a history of the Middle School.

THIS IS AN aerial view of the Wayne High School (now the Middle School) probably in the mid- to late 1950's. The view is looking north of the south side of the building. A dressing room area has since been added just west of the main wing of the school. When this picture was taken, it is believed all 12 grades were attending here, an estimated 640 students.

Police Activity in January Continues Trend of 1980

Police activity for the first month of 1981 continued a trend set the entire year of 1980.

THERE WERE fewer complaints, fewer parking tickets and warnings issued, fewer arrests made in January of 1981 compared to January of 1980 and expenditures to date are less, according to the monthly Wayne Police Department report. Some 40 arrests were made in January of this year, while 64 arrests were made in January of last year. Topping the list this year was speeding with 23 arrests. Five persons were arrested for expired inspection sticker, four for no valid registration, three for theft, two for minor in possession and one each for failure to dispose of parking tickets within 15 days, traffic signal violation and littering.

PARKING TICKETS issued totaled 106 this year compared to 146 in January of last year. There were 72 traffic warnings issued in January of 1981 compared to 77 in January of 1980, according to the report.

The total number of complaints for January of this year was 111 compared to 116 a year ago. Radio messages fell from 1,981 last year to 1,773 this year and emergency 911 calls dropped from 41 in 1980 to 28 in 1981.

Three police cruisers were driven a total of 3,978 miles in January of 1981 compared to 4,390 in the same month of 1980 and the vehicles used 408 gallons of fuel this year in January compared to 501 last year.

AS THE POLICE Department continued to work under an austere budget, expenditures for the first month of this year were $13,911 compared to $16,959 last year in January.

There were, however, a few areas that did show some increase. Telephone messages were up from 667 to 612, criminal complaints rose from 12 to 17 and traffic accidents on public streets increased from seven last year to nine this year in January.

Opinion

Capitalism Begins With Giving

Richard L. Leshner, President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

The new administration has arrived in town and is already preaching a truly radical (at least by local standards) brand of economics. Henceforth, policies must actually encourage individuals to take more risks, earn more money, and—heresy of heresies—allow them to keep their rewards. As if this were not enough, a new book called "Wealth and Poverty" by George Gilder is attracting wide attention by arguing that such capitalist ideas are not only superior to socialism from an economic point of view, but also from a moral and spiritual point of view.

In a word, Gilder believes the essence of capitalism is not greed, but altruism. By making this argument, which he does with such convincing force that his book is being hailed as "monumental", Gilder collides head on with the consensus of modern history. Indeed, from 18th century philosopher Adam Smith, who said merchants are guided by an invisible hand of self-interest, to 19th century writer Karl Marx, who complained about the exploitation of workers and who predicted class warfare, to 20th century president John F. Kennedy who once remarked: "Businessmen are bastards," to many modern journalists, the followers of the late Chairman Mao, and, lest we forget, Jane Fonda, few are those who have spoken well of businessmen.

Gilder does. His central point is that capitalism must begin with giving. A capitalist gives by making an investment, and like gift-giving, capitalist investments are made without a predetermined return. For the capitalist to succeed and eventually realize a return, he must be sensitive to the needs and wants of others. Contrast this form of behavior, which is essentially unselfish and always involves the risk of failure, with the attitude of those who are willing to settle, or even worse, demand a guaranteed annual income regardless of any personal effort.

In Gilder's eyes, the genius of the capitalist system is that to survive and grow it must constantly be nourished with human intelligence, initiative and love. It is a system based on the belief that the good fortune of others is also finally one's own. Seen in this light, businessmen, far from being a group of exploitive defecateds, are actually the heroes of the modern age whose impulses of creativity and generosity give hope to an ever more populous humanity in overcoming scarcity and conflict.

So why, you must be asking, do so many people believe capitalists are not givers but takers. Gilder cites many reasons, including envy, ignorance, and the corruption of certain businessmen. But the chief source of confusion, he says, lies in our mistaken belief that wealth consists chiefly not of human knowledge, creativity, generosity and love, but of limited fund of "natural resources"—oil or gold for example—that are always in danger of being exploited by capitalists, ultimately to the point of exhaustion. Thus, we have a logical need for experts who will manage and ration our dwindling treasures and teach us to live within our limits.

Nonsense, intones Gilder, for history proves that neither resources nor machines have any value without successful entrepreneurs and willing workers. Iran before its revolution was replete with oil and factories, but this "wealth" apparently mattered little because the country lacked entrepreneurial independence and leadership. All the oil in the Middle East remained covered with sand and plodded over by camels until a capitalist genius named Ford created the automobile. And today, places like Hong Kong, Taiwan, Japan and West Germany, which possess few natural resources, and which, in the case of the latter two, also saw their industrial base destroyed by war, have nevertheless all thrived by liberating enterprises.

Throughout history, most of mankind has lived in poverty because it was deprived of that form of wealth most crucial to human progress: the investments of brave men with hope for the future, trust in their fellow men and faith in providence.

Capitalism then, is essentially an act of the spirit and it can be summed up, says Gilder, in the language of scripture: "Give and you will be given unto, search and you shall find. . . Cast your bread upon the waters and it will return to you many fold." He cites the parable of talents, in which Jesus praises the man who invests and multiplies his money, and even the parable of the rich man who is told to give away, rather than hoard his wealth.

True wealth is based on the treasure of ideas and spirit, and a true capitalist is always more interested in giving than taking. The deepest truth of capitalism is faith, hope and love.

Dear Taxpayers:
You will be interested to know that the preliminary hearing held in County Court here Thursday for Charles Weible of Win-side was conducted in a formal, dignified and respectable manner.
Hearings involving three other defendants in related drug cases held Feb. 5 lacked the dignity that normally is accorded a Court-room, its witnesses and patrons.

Ye Faithful Watchdog

This week's If-At-First-You-Don't-Succeed-Try-Try-Try-Again award goes to some poor fellow in Winchester, England, who tried to kill his wife seven times — and failed.

The poor bloke took out a $300,000 life insurance policy on his 23-year-old wife and planned to kill her to become rich. Your classic case of money CAN buy happiness.
Well, folks, the sissy goes something like this, begging the permission of United Press International who carried the story:

No. 1 attempt — he put mercury in a strawberry dessert, but put too much in and it slithered out.

No. 2 attempt — not showing much conscience, he poisoned some cooked mackerel. His wife managed to survive that too.

Nos. 3 and 4 attempts — In Yugoslavia and again in England, he tried to get her to sit on the edge of a cliff, but she could not be persuaded. Smart girl, don't you think?

Nos. 5 and 6 attempts — then he tried to set the house on fire while she lay in bed with the chicken pox, but the blaze was discovered in time. He tried a second time with the same results.

No. 7 and final attempt — he tried to get her to stand in the middle of the road while he drove the car towards her, saying he was testing the suspension. Clever idea. He accelerated but lost his nerve and swerved away before impact.

His wife should get some award for her intelligence, but we wouldn't want to be sued for libel.

She later told officials that the final incident was the first time she knew her life had been in danger during their two-year marriage.

The husband, a computer programmer, pleaded guilty to arson and charges of endangering life and insurance fraud and was jailed for life.

And I thought this country bred some strange cats.

The West Elementary School has had its share of problems lately.

Placing insulation in the ceiling was a real problem for the local contractor because of steel girders that spanned the width of the building. Each girder was placed only a few feet from the next and the work space was limited.

Once the tenacious task was finished, building officials discovered that for some unexplained reason, some of the ceiling tile were falling out during the night.

Suspended ceiling tile are hard enough to remove with two pairs of hands, let alone at night when nobody is around. A real mystery, school officials say.

And finally, there was the case of the broken water pipes. Not just broken in one or two places, but broken in several places. Water in the pipes had frozen.

Students were sent home Wednesday after officials determined the problem could not be repaired in an hour or two. Temperatures hit 23 degrees and the building was chilly.

The problem? The school's water recirculating pump kicked off and left the water to stand unprotected in the pipes.

Elementary principal Dave Luft says he is indebted to area farmers who loaned out their propane heaters to help warm up the school building so the pipes could be thawed.

Heretofore follow a couple of items passed along by faithful readers.

This one from high school principal Don Zeiss:

The percentage (nationally) of dropouts is down from 1970 to 1977. At the start of the last decade, 17 percent of U.S. students 14 to 17 years old dropped out. By 1977, the percentage had dropped to 13.6 percent.

People today have completed more years of schooling (of those 25 years of age and older) — In 1910, the median number of schooling years was 8.1; in 1950, the number was 10.5 and in 1978, the number was 12.4 years.

Students today are more interested in class work: In 1900, 72 percent of 5 to 17 year olds were enrolled, but only 69 percent of those attended class. In 1976, 89 percent were enrolled and 92 percent attended.

More education leads to more voting, which is crucial to our democratic form of government. Only 44.1 percent of people with eight years or less of schooling vote; 59.4 percent of high school grads vote and 79.8 percent of persons with 16 or more years vote.

And now about your own state.
Nebraska's state capitol was built during the depression without debt-financing and has been called one of the architectural wonders of the world.

The largest American Legion Post in the United States is located in Lincoln.

By M.M. Van Kirk,
Director of Information

Before the 1981 session of the Nebraska Legislature ends, the senators probably will have approved and the governor will have signed into law, LB 11, adding sorghum grain to the list of Nebraska farm commodities subject to checkoff programs aimed at providing funds for research, development and promotion.

LB 11, introduced by Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan, is patterned after the corn and soybean checkoff programs of recent years. Other checkoff programs, some dating back more than 30 years, include potatoes, wheat, poultry and eggs.

Sorghum, more commonly referred to in the growing areas as milo, is a crop of ancient origins that caught on strong in Nebraska during the 1950's, and has done well ever since because of its drought resistant quality. In 1974, 1976 and again in 1980, sorghum in Nebraska demonstrated this amazing ability to survive a prolonged period of heat and dry weather during the critical July and early August stretch, then respond to moisture and cooler temperatures, head out and deliver relatively good yields.

That's why, to a sizable extent, it has been the choice over corn in the southeast, south-central and southwestern tier of counties where some stress will occur on dryland corn in most years. Sen. Maresh in plugging his bill, has said that with the drop in water tables in many areas, there will be more of a trend to use sorghum in place of corn even under irrigation.

In 1979, Nebraska sorghum producers harvested 144,500,000 bushels of sorghum grain to rate Nebraska as the third major sorghum producing state in the nation. In 1980, the crop was down 20 percent from the previous year because of drought but still produced 121.8 million bushels with an average yield of 60 bushels per acre as compared to 79 per acre in 1979. By comparison, Nebraska farmers harvested 603.5 million bushels of corn last year but 70 percent of the corn acreage was irrigated. Dryland corn produced 103.5 million bushels of the total and averaged 48.2 bushels per acre.

LB 11 proposes a Grain Sorghum Board of seven members, all active sorghum producers, to be appointed by the governor. The Director of Agriculture, Vice Chancellor of the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, and the president of the Nebraska Grain Sorghum Producers Association would be ex officio non-voting members.

Candidates for appointment to the initial board would be nominated by petitions from five districts. After a three-year trial period, there would be a referendum of the producers to determine whether the checkoff program would be continued and whether the board should be appointed by the governor or elected by the growers. If 10 percent of the growers indicated a desire to submit such questions to a vote, balloting would be done by mail and the results tabulated by the board with the board to carry out the election directives.

The checkoff fee is to be set by the board but is not to exceed one cent per hundred weight on all sorghum sold through commercial channels where the buyers are responsible for collection of the fees. The growers are expected to recommend that the initial fee be one-half cent per cwt. There is a refund provision in the act whereby a grower, unhappy with the program, may request his money back by submitting an application for a refund within 60 days after a deduction is made.

Dear Editor:
The following letter appeared in 5 recent issues of the South Sioux City Star.

We lived through these problems with our older children, and are just entering this time with our youngest daughter. We think the thoughts, so well written, in the letter are worthy of being shared in our community as well.

Merle and Donna Ring
Wayne

In our society, we periodically hear of the latest teenage craze. Here we are not talking of a new teenage craze. The latest as well as "sickest" craze involves a small number of teenage parents in several area communities. Their new craze involves nothing other than the sponsoring of teenage "keg" parties. These keg parties are usually birthday or holiday parties for sons, daughters, and all their friends.

This parent is not so blind as to recognize that many teenagers drink, that some utilize other forms of substance abuse, that students can find many means of securing alcoholic beverages and that teenage drinking cannot be curbed by waving a single magic wand.

The parent sponsored "kegger" is probably an ultimate example of the breakdown of family structure in our society. This total lack of parental judgment (by a small number of parents) makes parenting most difficult for the majority of sincere and "frying" parents. Most parents are first shocked and then depressed by such adult sponsorship.

To the parent who is planning the next teenage keg party, please stop to consider —
1. If I must have this party as a "cool" way of pleasing my teenager, I've probably lost his or her true respect long ago. 2. If a teenager is killed in an auto accident leaving his residence, how can I say I didn't contribute to a homicide. 3. Aren't you aware of the walling lists of area drug and alcohol treatment centers? At the same time you are encouraging large numbers of teenagers to initiate drinking which may lead to future addiction. 4. Have I lost the respect of my relatives, friends and neighbors by sponsoring the teenage

"kegger"? The answer is yes. The community knows who are the local sponsors.

This weekly newspaper constantly relates the many fine accomplishments of area youth. These include 4-H, scouting, athletics, music, drama and church activities. Our communities are proud of their teenagers. How sad when a few "trying to be cool" parents break down a teenager's positive value system. This type of negative activity can quickly neutralize the positive influences of friends, clergy, 4-H and Scout leaders, teachers and coaches.

The teenage parents who encouraged this letter plead that any future beer party sponsor think just once before initiating such an activity.

By promoting such teenage drinking, you might be thought of one who is existing on an expired parents license. Should your license be revoked or should you work to pass the test for positive renewal?

Dear Editor:

The time of year when many fund drives are conducted are at hand, I'd like to share a few thoughts.

Particularly in this time of shortages and inflation we feel the demand for our dollars is coming from numerous directions. Yet I can't help but feel that we must keep all the demands in perspective and never lose track of long-range good that we can accomplish. Since most of these worthwhile organizations that exist on our generosity are asking for funds at about the same time, we sometimes feel overwhelmed. My feeling is that we must make a conscious effort to help those causes that hold the most significance or importance to each of us personally.

However, if we look at the situation objectively, and were to donate $5 to each of perhaps five major drives, that $25 per year would be very little more than we might spend on one "night out." And the potential for good is enormous. It is not hard for me to see the advances that research and health education monies have promoted when I read of open-heart surgery, new cancer treatments and methods of detection, kidney transplants and so on.

Stop and think. How many more people do you know who are now living with, rather than dying from, heart disease or cancer? How can we value more years of productivity, of living and loving? I like to feel that my donation may be the one to help make a new discovery possible, or aid someone learning to live with a life-threatening disease to have a more full and meaningful life. It certainly seems like money well spent.

Dear Mr. Field:

I am responding to your February 2, 1981 column, The Pied Typer.

You seem to feel that the radio station "announces and renounces" and then renounces again, the impending weather, during a storm, almost joyously.

Well, I am joyous that the radio station does this for on my way home from Chadron, Neb. during these winter months, the radio station is like a best friend.

Maybe I am prejudice when it comes to radio, for my mother works at a radio station (KTCH). But I know that she, along with all the other devoted and concerned employees at KTCH, are recipients of calls all day long when a storm is brewing. Calls from Grandma's wanting to know if they can go visit grandchildren, from Mother's concerned about children coming home from school, and last but not least, from college students wanting to get home for a well-needed break to see family and friends.

Since you believe that radio has a "theater-like atmosphere," I would like to give KTCH a superior rating on their performances during winter storms.

Doctor Suggests Ways To Deal With Stress

Pretend that the blows in your life are strikes by a hammer. Do you stand up to the pressure like a china or a wooden doll?

This is how Hermann Witte, Ph.D., from the University of Nebraska Medical Center, described the effects of stress in life on thin-skinned and thick-skinned people. He spoke at a workshop I attended in January which was sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service and held at Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk.

I'VE SEEN many different people over the past few years react to stress in many different ways. I've wondered why some seem to "lose control" while others are able to cope.

Dr. Witte says thin-skinned people think or have "self-talks" which are different from the thoughts and "self-talks" of thick-skinned people. The difference between people who shatter from life's blows and those who merely dent is all in the way they talk to themselves.

I'd like to share with you some ideas I picked up that will help me become more thick-skinned in handling the stress of living.

BASICALLY, I learned that people or things don't upset us. "We" upset us. And of we're the ones who turn on emotional responses to people or happenings, we can also turn them off. Everyone can become thick-skinned if they work at it hard enough. We can learn to prevent, or at least minimize unnecessary and self-damaging emotional responses to life's blows.

Thin-skinned people, for example, may react to a troubling life event with mortification and shame. (They shatter). A thick-skinned person, on the other hand, would only dent with embarrassment and uncomfortableness.

A thick-skin is in control of his emotions and determines the intensity and duration of them. A thin-skin is out of control.

WHEN PEOPLE realize that it's not life events which upset them, but their inappropriate responses to them, they can get control. They can exchange those thin-skinned "self-talks" for more rational ones.

China-like people deny and repress reality when something happens they don't like. They say "there must be some mistake, this can't be happening to me." Wooden-like people accept what happens (begudgingly, of course), attempt to understand why, and continue on.

A very important insight to thin-skinned people is that they believe their assessments of situations are exactly the way it really is. They see no reason to ask for the opinion or advice of someone else. Thick-skinned people realize that situations aren't always the way they see them. In different and very important matters, they ask someone else, a friend or a professional, for their opinion.

by Linda Huinker
Wayne County Home Extension Agent

I ALWAYS thought it was the other way around — that thin-skinned went running for help at the slightest blow — while thick-skinned were firm and endured by themselves. I was wrong.

But being wrong doesn't upset me any longer. I know that I've been upsetting me when I've been wrong in the past. And I'm only going to be embarrassed instead of humiliated. And it will only last for a few minutes instead of a few days.

BESIDES, nothing should, must, or ought to be the way I expect it to be. I want to be right, but I'm prepared to be wrong. (I've admitted I was wrong, am attempting to understand why, and am going on with my life.)

However, because I may have been wrong about being wrong, I'm going to ask a friend for her opinion. I may have been right.

Late Free Throws Lift Bears Past Trojans

Kay Anderson hit two free throws with two seconds remaining to give the Laurel girls a slim 33-31 win over host Wakefield, Thursday night.

The game was tied 31-31 when Anderson was fouled in the act of shooting. After Wakefield coach Dennis Wilbur called a timeout, Anderson returned to the free throw line to connect on both attempts.

Both teams had at least one opportunity to score the go-ahead points in the final 25 seconds. The Trojans missed their chance with nine seconds left so Laurel brought the ball downcourt and scored the winning free throws.

A basket by Joan Miller had given Wakefield a 31-29 lead with 2:19 remaining but the Bears tied the score at 31-31 on a bucket by Anderson.

"We expected a tough battle and Wakefield played a pretty good game," Laurel coach Dwight Iverson said after the game. "Miller (Joan) was hard to contain and it hurt when we lost Anne Schults early (fouled out). Our timing needs some work, it was way off."

Trojans coach Wilbur seemed pleased with everything but the final score. "We played well but made a couple of hustle mistakes. All the girls played well," he said. "We cut our turnovers down and Rita (Wilson) did an exceptional job of rebounding."

The game was always close with Laurel leading by one point after the first quarter, Wakefield leading by one at the half and the two teams tied after three quarters.

The Trojans held a three point lead early in the fourth period when Coleen Neuhaus hit a 6 foot jumper making the score 27-24.

Kim Sherry and Anderson combined for three free throws within a five second span to knot the score at 27-27 with five minutes remaining.

Laurel hit about 31 percent from the floor. The Bears were led by Anderson with 17 points and 12 rebounds. Anne Schultz and Cyndi Jonas each had five rebounds.

Wakefield had the rebounding advantage 40 to 32. The Trojans were led by Miller with 14 points and 12 rebounds. Rita Wilson grabbed 13 rebounds. Neuhaus made eight and Connie Tullberg had five.

In junior varsity action, Laurel won 27-23. Laurel scoring: Dee Maxon, 10; Kelli Johnson, 8; Jean Lute, 5; Jill Hanson, 3; Brenda Rees, 1.

Wakefield scoring: Brenda Jones, 8; Kelly Greve, 8; Cristy Hingst, 4; Debi Meyer, 2; Teresa Biggerstaff, 1.

Both varsity squads from Wakefield and Laurel are scheduled to open district action this week. Wakefield will compete in Class C-7 districts at Wakefield High School. The Trojans are scheduled to meet top seeded Homer at 6:30 tonight (Monday) in first round action. Other first round games match Pender and Oakland-Craig, Emerson-Hubbard and Lyons, and Winnebago and Beemer.

Laurel will compete in Class C-9 districts at Hartington High School. The Bears are scheduled to meet Ponca at 5 p.m. today (Monday) in first round action. Other first round games match Randolph and Wausa, Hartington and Bloomfield, and Crofton and Wynot.

Devils Get 15th Win

Wayne made the first test of a pair of weekend home games by downing South Sioux City 67-55, Friday. The Blue Devils were scheduled to host Elkhorn Saturday.

The hosts had a lead of 28 points at one time but South Sioux whittled it down to the final margin in the fourth quarter against Wayne's substitutes.

"It was kind of like a feast or famine," Wayne coach Bill Sharpe said referring to his teams streak play. "We either played really well or bad in streaks. We had a pretty consistent first half, a good third quarter and a bad fourth quarter."

Mike Sladek led Wayne's offensive attack by scoring 22 points. Kevin Nissen and Perry Nelson scored 13 and 12 points respectively. Nelson pulled down 13 rebounds. The Cardinals were led by Ed May with 25 points.

The Blue Devils hit 48 percent of their shots from the floor and South Sioux hit 43 percent. The hosts outscored the Cards 40 to 21 and had an advantage of 15 to 6 on the offensive boards. The turnovers were about even.

Wayne led by eight points after one quarter, by 15 at the half and by 28 after three periods. Second and third team players took over in the fourth quarter.

In junior varsity action, Shaun Niemann burned the nets with 34 points to lead Wayne to a 60-59 triumph. Todd Schwartz and Mark Botenkamp added nine and eight points each.

The Blue Devils will hit the road this week for two tough tests prior to district action. Wayne will face Lyons Tuesday and Pierce on Friday.

Wayne State Ladies Avenge Briar Cliff

The Wayne State Lady Wildcats avenged an early season loss to Briar Cliff in Rice Auditorium Wednesday.

A well balanced attack saw the Lady Cats battle back from a 34-27 halftime deficit as they placed four players in double figures. Lisa Draper and Lori Koester led the way in the first half as they accounted for 18 first half points keeping the Cats within striking range.

The loss ended a six game winning streak for Briar Cliff which now stands 16-3.

Second half action saw Wayne State fight back several times from as many as eight points down. A basket by Deb Emanuel tied the game 57-57 with 6:06 remaining. The Lady Cats took the lead for good 61-59 at the four minute mark on two free throws by Julie Petronis. Free throws down the stretch were key factors in the game as the Wildcats hit on 14 of 19 second half attempts to preserve the final margin.

The win moved Wayne State's record to 9-12 on the season.

Leading scorers for Wayne State were Koester with 18 points, Emanuel and Petronis with 11 and Draper with 10.

The Lady Wildcats were scheduled to travel to Kearney State and Ft. Hays State for a pair of CSIC contest Friday and Saturday.

Peaking Laurel Upsets Rated Wausa

There is no better time for a basketball team to peak than at district time and Laurel coach Joel Parks hopes his team is doing just that.

The Bears took a giant step toward the upcoming district tournament by knocking off Class C's ninth ranked team Wausa in a 49-41 battle. Wausa entered Friday's game with a 13-2 record, losing only to powerful Bloomfield and Osmond. The Vikings had avenged their loss to Bloomfield.

It was the fifth consecutive win for Laurel which won the Ponca Invitational last week.

"We did a very good job of defending them. Offensively, we controlled the tempo. They're a fastbreaking, hotshooting team but we broke their press and controlled the tempo," Parks said. "It was a pretty good game and we had a pretty solid performance."

The Bears hit 45 percent of their shots and Wausa hit 43 percent from the floor. Matt Johnson led all scorers with 17 points and Joe Olson was right behind with 14. Wausa was led by Ned Blankenship with 13 points and Jeff Nelson with 12.

Laurel had a four point lead with two minutes remaining and went to its delay game. Wausa fouled and the Bears hit the free throws. "We hit our free throws and they missed theirs or it would have been a nailbiter to the end."

Laurel outscored the hosts 23-11 in the fourth quarter and Matt Johnson had 13 of those points. He was also the leading rebounder with eight.

Both teams were short one starter in the game. Laurel's Scott Norvell was out with a sprained ankle and Wausa's Randy Eldorado was out with the flu.

Kelly Robson played well off the bench and made two big baskets. Brian Buss started and played well at times," said Parks.

In the junior varsity game, Phil Martin scored 14 points in a balanced attack to lead Laurel to a 61-44 win. Other scorers: Jerry Kastrop, 6; Tod Heitman, 6; Dave Marquardt, 6; Brian Marquardt, 6; Kelly Robson, 6; Kraig Loquist, 6; Tim Bloom, 5; Scott Kardell, 2; Mike Jonas, 2.

The Bears played at Plainview Saturday, will host Walthill Friday and open Class C-9 districts at Laurel next Monday. Laurel is scheduled to play Hartington at 8 p.m. in first round action.

Frank Lanser led the winners with 27 points. Terry Brewer scored 17 and Rick Gotch scored 10.

The Eagles led by eight points at the end of the first quarter and extended their lead to 11 points at the half. However, Rosalie outscored the hosts 20-13 in the third period to close the gap.

"Offensively, we had a good performance but we were a little lax on defense," Allen coach Dan Loole said. "Rosalie shot well and their coach said it was their best game of the year."

Allen evened its record at 8-8 with the win. Leading rebounders for the Eagles were Gotch with eight and Lanser with seven. Allen hit 47 percent from the field while Rosalie made about 43 percent of its attempts.

Bereuter Says 1981 Pivotal for Farmers

This year will be a pivotal one for farmers, as Congress considers legislation to renew and revise federal farm programs, Congressman Doug Bereuter said Saturday.

"The farm bill pending will shape our farm programs for the next four years," Bereuter said. "Therefore, it is essential that farmers take an active role and have direct input as Congress drafts this legislation."

Bereuter made his remarks during an agriculture advisory committee meeting he held in Uteka, the first of five such meetings he plans for the first Congressional District. Farmers from York, Fillmore, Seward and Saline counties were invited to the Uteka meeting to voice their views regarding necessary legislative changes and the direction of American agricultural policy in general.

The new multi-year farm bill will address price supports, subsidized loans, agricultural research, rural development and many other matters vital to farmers and agri-business, according to Bereuter.

"A number of fundamental questions must be considered: What should be the basis for the price support program? Should increased emphasis be given to loans or target prices? Should we continue to use the grain reserve program to keep prices more stable?

"Who should own reserves? How should interest rates be determined? What about set-aside provisions? Payment limitations? These are only a few of the questions on which I will seek advice from farmers who have volunteered to assist me through agriculture advisory committees.

"At the same time, we need to look beyond the next four years and examine the long-range goals and interests of American agriculture and agricultural states like Nebraska."

"How can we increase access to international markets? What is the role of the United States in maintaining world food security?

What are the alternative policies for soil conservation?

"Furthermore, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has suggested that the impact and incentives of Federal tax policies be examined."

"With a new administration and a very different Congress, I am encouraged that we can formulate responsible, effective farm programs that are in the best interests of farmers and the nation."

Success Depends on Even Handed, Fair Approach

President Reagan must present a fair, comprehensive package of budget cuts that is not vulnerable to politics-as-usual, if his program is to succeed in Congress, Congressman Doug Bereuter said recently in Lincoln.

"The challenge before the President is to present to Congress a complete, compact economic package that includes a full range of spending cuts," Bereuter told the Lincoln Jaycees during a luncheon address. "If substantial changes in budget priorities and program eligibility requirements are to be made, it's crucial that cuts are fair and don't concentrate on programs for those who are disadvantaged through no fault of their own."

Bereuter said, "If the President succeeds in establishing a feeling in Capitol Hill that we are all in this together, that many popular programs and constituencies are affected, then I believe that a desirable peer pressure will be exerted within Congress. There might be then a self-imposed restraint against members reverting to a totally parochial defense of their favorite grant programs, agencies, or subsidies. Instead, Congress as a whole could focus greater attention on the national interest."

In Lincoln during a Congressional district work period, Bereuter said, "It is imperative that Congress abandon politics as usual and the typical piecemeal approach to budgeting that encourages everyone to concentrate too much attention on the interests of his or her own district."

I have received early assurances that the President's budget proposal is being prepared to contain substantial but even-handed budget cuts are balanced and fall on the wealthy, big business, and other powerful groups, too," Bereuter said.

"There is little doubt that the Administration will attempt radical surgery on some very popular and entrenched programs with powerful friends in Congress. No doubt the Washington hotel industry will flourish during the next few months when constituents and every special interest group comes to knock on our doors. That is the way our pluralistic society works," he said.

"But I believe that Nebraskans, after reflection, will be willing to make the kinds of sacrifices the President will propose, as long as those sacrifices are equitably shared. That is what they have been telling me for the last two years. Now the test is at hand."

Bereuter said, "At the moment, the post-election mood in Congress is favorable to the President. Maintaining that momentum and popular support for the next few months will be difficult, but essential."

Bereuter said, "Voters last November clearly rejected the status quo and demanded a change in national direction. Half-steps or moderate changes will not turn our economy around. Some bitter medicine is necessary in the form of substantial spending cuts. An even-handed approach is the key to acceptance of those cuts."

Pesticide Applicators Finish Recertification

Private pesticide applicators whose federal certification to buy and apply restricted use pesticides expires in 1981, must complete recertification training this winter, Wayne County Extension Agent Don C. Spitzke said.

Applicators whose federal certificates expire in 1981 must attend recertification training this winter in order to maintain a valid Nebraska and Federal certificate," Spitzke said. If recertification training isn't completed in the year prior to expiration of the certificate, the applicator must repeat the initial training to again obtain a certificate, he emphasized.

Recertification training is scheduled for Wayne City Auditorium on Feb. 20 and 24 and the USDA Service Center in Wayne on March 6 beginning at 1 p.m. The training is sponsored by the county and the Cooperative Extension Service, Spitzke said, and should last two hours. The program will use all new materials.

"The program will include an update on laws and regulations, proper storage procedures, safe disposal of pesticide containers, proper calibration of application equipment and integrated pest management," he said. An update on Nebraska pests and pesticides also will be on the program.

Employed Numbers Drop

At the end of January, there were 1,110 persons registered for employment with the Norfolk Job Service office, and 170 with the O'Neill office for a total of 1,280 registered applicants. This compares with 1,231 last month and 873 at the close of January, 1980. The 1,280 total includes 559 females and 169 veterans but does not include 186 individuals seeking only part time work. New applications filed during January totaled 393 compared with 318 last month and 421 for January of last year. Nonagricultural job openings received from employers numbered 168 compared with 205 in December and 323 for January, 1980. Job openings filled by our offices during January totaled 140. This compares with 200 last month and 258 during January of last year. As can be seen from these statistics, hiring activity was slow during January and is expected to continue this way for the next 30-60 days.

WSC Student Wacker Interns With Trustees

Wayne State College student Tom Wacker is spending this semester as an intern with the State College board of trustees of Lincoln.

Wacker feels that the program is interesting and will prove to be of value to him for his future. "It's good experience for me," he said.

THE INTERNSHIP comes from a program that is designed to give a student experience with administrative work and with legislation affecting the four state colleges.

It allows Wacker to earn 12 credit hours at Wayne State. He also receives a tuition waiver for those hours and a set salary.

According to Walker, his duties as an intern vary. They are usually outlined by board secretary Dr. Rick Pringleton who sets up the duties to suit his needs and activities. These duties usually consist of following legislation that affects the state colleges and doing any "go to" work that is needed.

ONCE A MONTH, the board of trustees holds its meeting. Wacker says that part of his job is to help gather material and get things ready for those meetings.

Wacker has two main projects that he must complete in order to fulfill the requirements of his internship. The first, worth nine credit hours at WSC, concerns general work in the office. Wacker keeps a daily journal of the day's happenings and of his activities.

The second project, worth three credit hours, is a type of research project. A number of bills on retirement have been introduced to the Unicameral. Wacker must analyze these bills and in general, "see what they're all about."

WACKER SAID he first learned of the internship program in one of his social science classes. He applied for it, met the requirements, and was awarded the position. His advisors on the project are Cliff Ginn, associate professor of political science at WSC, and Dr. Brington at the board office in Lincoln.

Wacker's internship will last the spring semester. Next fall he will return to WSC, where he is a public service/political science major.

Wacker admitted that he was at first "unsure" of what was expected of him. However, he now
