Street Project to Be Reassessed After City Attorney Gives Opinion

Controversial assessments involving a street in Sunnyview Subdivision, swimming pool rates for the coming season and a large step forward for the municipal water system were prime topics at the City Council meeting Tuesday.

AFTER HEARING a legal opinion from its lawyer and discussion from the audience, the Council voted to hold another public hearing regarding the assessment schedule for Hillside Drive in Sunnyview Subdivision. The move came after a legal opinion from City Attorney Kent Swartz that the Council would be within its legal rights in asking for a change in the assessment schedule.

Through a series of unusual events, property owners on the east and west sides of Hillside Drive discovered recently that assessments for construction of the street would be about $28,000, much more than either could afford. Parishioners of the Church of Christ on the west and employees of Region IV Office of Developmental Disabilities on the east protested the assessments at the Feb. 24 meeting.

HOWEVER, CITY officials pointed out that "we followed all of our legal obligations" in informing property owners of a public hearing on the assessments. The notice of hearing did not include how much the assessments would be, and were in accordance with law.

Representatives of the church said they were informed by Wayne's former city administrator that the assessment would be about $10,000. At no time, they maintain, were they told they would be assessed for construction of a box culvert or for paving which connects Hillside Drive to U.S. 35.

Representatives of Region IV say they were not aware of any assessment until receiving a bill in the mail for $28,000. Under their lease agreement with Bud Wacker, owner of the property, Region IV is responsible for any assessment fees. However, due to a mixup, Wacker failed to inform Region IV of the assessment figure.

ATTORNEY SWARTZ said there is a provision in state statutes which allows a city to go back and reassess construction. However, he said, before doing so a city must determine that some type of omission, mistake or irregularity had occurred during the construction or assessment process.

Chuck Carhart, speaking on behalf of the church, said "the thing that got us into this mess was a change in administration. . . . From our standpoint, we were operating on the basis of what we had been told."

ONE COUNCIL member felt the irregularity involved comments by the former city administrator and failure to inform the property owners they would be held financially responsible for the box culvert and additional paving. Based on this misinformation, property owners were misled into believing the assessments would be lower than they actually were.

Because of the legal opinion and because of the Council's action, taxpayers will be picking up part of the tab for construction of the box culvert and additional paving connecting Hillside Drive with U.S. 35.

Public hearing on the revised assessment schedule will be held at the March 31 meeting.

IN A RELATED matter, the Council tabled action on a board of equalization hearing making assessments for Thorman Street, also connected to U.S. 35. Attorney Swartz said the two paving districts are identical because they are connected to the highway in a similar manner.

After an executive session to discuss negotiations regarding purchase of real estate for construction of a new well, the Council offered property owners Hank and Glenda Overin a flat $2,000 for one-tenth of an acre.

As an option, the city would pay less for the land but would agree to construct a service line from the well to the Overin house whenever the Overins desired. The Overins will continue to discuss the purchase agreement with the administration.

IN A RELATED matter, the Council approved plans and specifications for construction of a new well and a service line from the well to the existing main. Total project cost is estimated at $84,700.

Bids on the two projects will be let at the regular March 31 Council meeting.

The Overin property is located east of the Municipal Golf Course near the intersection of two county roads.

After some discussion, the Council let stand last year's rate schedule for the Municipal Swimming Pool. City Clerk Norm Melton suggested that the rates remain the same and that cost cutting measures be taken elsewhere in the pool's operation this summer.

The rates were raised last year to help offset a deficit. For the first time in recent history, rural residents using the pool were charged a higher rate than in-town residents who pay property taxes.

A MILD STIR among rural pool users resulted, but the rates stayed in effect. Melton said the additional charges brought the city 15 percent more revenue and did help offset the deficit.

In other action, the Council voted to instruct the city attorney to draw up an ordinance replacing stop signs to protect Pearl Street, Logan Street and the intersection of Sherman Street and Fairacres Road.

In a wide-ranging campaign last summer, the Council approved the removal of scores of stop signs at the recommendation of the Chief of Police. A thorough study of traffic patterns indicated traffic flow would be smoother if the signs were removed, but the Council has ordered the reinstallation of several stop signs over the last few months.

THE COUNCIL also approved an ordinance allowing for a zoning change in Sunnyview Subdivision. The change will be from residential to business and involves Lot 1, Blk. 6. Developer John Vakoc says he plans to construct a mini-grocery store for the convenience of Sunnyview residents.

Bill Corbit was the only bidder on the rental of 32 acres of agriculture land near the airport and seven acres near the industrial park. His bid of $90 per acre was approved. Corbit was low bidder last year at $85 per acre.

There was some discussion about providing long-term lease of the land rather than yearly leases.

A CLASS C liquor license for Donald and Beverly Stoltenberg was approved. They recently bought the Gem Cafe from Frank Wochler.

Low bid of $25,050 on a front-end loader from Case Power and Equipment Co. of Omaha was approved. Six bids were opened at the Feb. 24 meeting and Public Works Director Vern Schultz made a thorough review of each for his report Tuesday night to the Council.

In other action, the Council: — Approved a lot split and variances on property east of the city baseball park owned by Mrs. Paul Wohrer. The Planning Commission March 2 approved a motion recommending approval.

— APPROVED variances and the final plat for Jones Subdivision located three miles north of Seventh and Main Streets. This also was approved by the Planning Commission.

— Approved an application by Clay Ellingson to the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department.

— Heard a report from fiscal agent Phil Lorenzen of First Mid America on the financial aspects of some upcoming projects.

All Council members were present except Keith Mosley and all actions were unanimous.

Plowing in Early March

HARD TO BELIEVE, Isn't it. February gave us little in the way of winter and March failed to come in like a lion. Consequently, after one of the mildest and driest winters in history, area farmers are taking advantage of warm weather to do spring plowing several weeks early. There is no frost in the ground in most unprotected areas and farmers such as Jerry Dorcey (above) are moving quickly to prepare their fields for planting. Dorcey says this is the earliest he can recall preparing his fields for planting and the earliest that frost has gone out of the ground.

Drug Defendants Face Proceedings

Two persons arrested on drug charges in the last few months will be arraigned at 8:30 a.m. Thursday in District Court here.

VERNON SARHA, 30, Laurel, and Charles Weible, 27, Winside, are expected to enter pleas to various counts of possession of marijuana and cocaine before Judge Richard P. Garden. Their arraignments were continued from March 5.

Sarha faces charges of possession of marijuana of more than one pound and with possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver.

Weible faces three counts of drug possession: possession of cocaine with the intent to deliver; possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver; and possession of cocaine. A charge of possession of marijuana was dropped recently by Prosecuting Attorney Thomas DeLay of Norfolk.

TWO OTHER persons arrested in connection with the same drug incident were arraigned in District Court March 5. Set for jury trial May 18 were Dale Busskohl, 27, Winside, and Diane Coyle, 25, Winside.

In the latest legal maneuver, Busskohl's attorney Robert Enz of Wayne filed a motion asking for a reduction in Busskohl's appearance bond. At the end of the arraignment last week, Judge Garden set bond of $50,000 for Busskohl who has been unable to raise the 10 percent and remains in Wayne County Jail. Busskohl's bond had been $7,500.

Enz cited three reasons for the reduction request: one, Busskohl's family lives in Nebraska; two, he has no record of prior felony convictions; and three, he has appeared at every prior court proceeding.

BUSSKOHL ALSO faces District Court proceedings in Madison County for possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver.

Originally, Busskohl was charged with four drug-related counts. However, two of these — possession of cocaine and possession of marijuana — were dismissed by Prosecuting Attorney DeLay.

Weible's arraignment was continued because his attorney — Vince Kirby of Norfolk — was in jury trial in another county and because the transcript of prior court proceedings was not completed.

Sarha's court date was postponed because his attorney — Kirk Naylor of Lincoln — was unable to attend because of poor weather and road conditions near Lincoln.

WEIBLE, SARHA and Busskohl were arrested Dec. 19 at Busskohl's home in Winside after an extensive investigation by drug enforcement officials. Coyle was arrested several weeks later in Winside in connection with the same drug bust.

Wayne Economy Exhibits Improvement

The local economy improved nearly 9 percentage points from October to November of last year, but remains significantly behind levels of a year earlier.

ACCORDING TO the latest net taxable retail sales report from Lincoln, Wayne's economy for November was 11 percent behind the same month of 1979. This compares to October net taxable sales 19.8 percent behind the same month of 1979.

Bureau of Business Research figures show that Wayne was not at the bottom of the heap in November as it has been for so many months. In fact, Wayne was 13th from the bottom of 32 reporting communities.

Statewide, November was another month of little change in the economy although Wayne's prospects improved by nearly twice.

The nonagricultural component of the state's economy increased 3 percent from October to November of last year. Caution is advised in interpreting this statistic, the business bureau suggested, for the agriculture cash receipt data were not available.

THE INCREASE in the nonagricultural component of the state's economy was led by construction and manufacturing. The November construction index was 2.7 percent above the October level. This component has increased since June, but remains below year-previous levels.

Nebraska's manufacturing sector recorded a gain of 1.7 percent in November, compared with October. This segment of the Nebraska economy has moved up 2.6 percent since June, 1980, lows but also remains below year-previous (November, 1979) levels.

The November increases in the manufacturing and construction sectors were the first substantial gains recorded by these components of the state's economy since the sharp rebound in July, according to the report.

AN IMPROVEMENT in the state's agriculture sector could boost the Nebraska economy near the pre-1980 recession highs and perhaps to new highs in 1981.

Retail sales continued a lackluster performance in November of 1980. On a dollar volume basis, nonmotor vehicle net taxable retail sales were up 5.6 percent. Motor vehicle sales were down 6.2 percent on a dollar volume basis between November, 1979, and November, 1980.

The commodity component of the Consumer Price Index increased 11.3 percent over the same interval which indicates that real sales were down approximately 4 percent.

GEOGRAPHIC AREAS of notable strength include Broken Bow, where a 5.3 percent increase in real retail sales was recorded, and Sidney where a 3.3 percent increase was recorded on a year-to-year basis. Lincoln and Kearney recorded real retail sales nearly the same as those of the previous year.

Board Hears About Gifted

An agenda of routine items helped the Wayne-Carroll School District board of education adjourn in about an hour Monday night.

AMONG THE topics were preliminary reports on gifted children programs, a report on LB 318 which would alter the formulas for free high school tuition and vocational education funding and action regarding a new van for the school district.

Charlene Rasmussen, representative of the Wayne Community Council Special Talents Subcommittee, provided the board with details of a study the council has undertaken regarding programs for gifted children in the school district.

The council recently completed a survey of Wayne-Carroll teachers regarding several aspects of gifted children instruction. The council said it is interested in how students with special talents are accommodated in the classroom.

AREAS OF special talents surveyed included general intellectual ability, specific academic aptitude, creative thinking ability, visual and performing arts and leadership.

Board member Becky Keldel, who is a member of the Community Council, told the board that a recent education publication noted that Nebraska serves the greatest percentage of gifted children of any state in the nation.

Supl. Francis Haun informed the board he testified before the Senate Education Committee recently on behalf of the Nebraska State School Boards Association regarding LB 318.

The law, if approved in its present form, would provide that the first 25 percent of a school's state aid entitlement be paid in September and one-twelfth of the total entitlement each of the next nine months.

THE BILL ALSO would provide a pupil-weighted formula in state aid for vocational education students and those with limited English proficiency. According to NSSBA report, this would reduce the amount of state aid for academic programs unless the state-aid appropriations were increased.

Dr. Haun said vocational education programs would deteriorate if schools do not get additional state aid.

The bill also would limit nonresident high school tuition rates to 1.25 times the actual cost. However, the allowance for plant depreciation would be increased to 15 percent. Superintendent Haun said currently there are no limits.

SUPERINTENDENT Haun reported on costs involving renovation of the West Elementary School's heating system last month after pipes froze and broke.

Because of the broken pipes, there was no heat in the building and school was called off for two days. Haun said the cost of replumbing the system was $2,188.87. Total cost of the two days of lost school would include lost teacher salaries.

After some thorough thought, the board approved the low bid of Chrysler Center of Wayne for a new 10-passenger van. The approval is subject to review of bids by Superintendent Haun.

THE VAN WILL be used for activities rather than a bus. The van will get considerably better gas mileage, board members believe, and will prolong the life of buses by reducing the number of hours the buses will be used.

The district was scheduled to buy a bus this year before purchase was delayed from the year before because of budget considerations. By buying the van, the district will have two vans for use on activity trips and on some of the shorter bus routes.

Cost of a new bus is about $24,000, and one will be needed in 1982.

AFTER THE REGULAR meeting, the board entered into executive session to discuss salary negotiations involving certified personnel. No action was taken after returning to regular session.

All members were present except Wilbur Giese and all actions were unanimous.

New Chamber Manager To Start Duties Monday

A new Chamber of Commerce manager will be on the job Monday, according to Chamber President Pat Gross.

ROGER J. TOOMEY, 28, Humboldt, has been in sales with Harvestore and with O.A. Cooper Feed Co. in Humboldt for the past few years. Prior to that, he was a graduate assistant in the library and in the speech department at Kearney State College from 1975-77.

Gross said Toomey fills the requirements of the local Chamber manager position and selected Wayne because of a strong desire to work and live in a medium sized college town. Gross said Toomey found the education environment attractive to him.

The 1971 Humboldt High School graduate received a degree in broadcasting from KSC and later received a masters degree in speech. He belongs to the Elks Lodge and Rotary in Humboldt and enjoys photography, fishing, hunting and camping.

"I FOUND HIM to be warm and pleasant and am confident he will continue to solidify the community. I feel he will enhance the good working relationship between agriculture, education and industry that currently exists in Wayne," Chamber President Gross said.

His work in promotion will help develop the business community, Gross added. Toomey fills the position vacated by former Chamber manager Gary Van Meier who resigned several months ago to enter private business.

'On Golden Pond' Auditions Slated

Auditions for the Wayne Community Theatre's spring play, "On Golden Pond," will be held at Wayne-Carroll High School this Saturday, March 14, from 7 to 9 p.m., Sunday, March 15, from 3 to 5 p.m., and Monday, March 16, from 7 to 9 p.m.

"On Golden Pond" is a tender exploration of love between aging couples, between parents and grown children, and between the elderly and the young.

The play begins with the return of Norman and Ethel Thayer to their summer home on Golden Pond in Maine, a place full of memories and fleeting shadows of the past.

Norman is a sharp-tongued, spry, churlish gentleman who is approaching his 80th birthday. His wife, Ethel, who is 10 years his junior, is a match for him in every respect.

To celebrate Norman's birthday, the couple are joined by their 42-year-old daughter, Chelsea, her new fiancé, Bill Ray, and his son, Billy. Billy, a modern, sassy "California kid" of 13 brings Norman to a new relationship with his own life and with his family.

Another visitor to the cottage is Charlie Martin, a native of the area.

"On Golden Pond," under the direction of Kathy Von Ehwegen, will be presented in the Wayne-Carroll High School lecture hall the evenings of May 15 and 16. Ted Blenderman will design the set.

Auditions are open to the public. Anyone wishing to read the script before auditioning may check out a copy of the play by contacting Helen Russell, 375-3494.

Fletcher-Dickey Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fletcher of Lincoln announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Deb Fletcher, to Bill Dickey, son of Mrs. Marguerite Dickey of Laurel.

Miss Fletcher, a 1970 graduate of Lincoln East High School and a 1974 graduate of Hastings College, is employed at IBM in Lincoln. Her fiancé was graduated from Laurel Public School in 1967 and from Westmar College in LeMars, Iowa in 1971. He is executive vice president of the First National Bank of Wayne.

Plans are underway for a June 13 wedding in Lincoln.

Histories Continue to Come in

Members of the Wayne County Historical Society and the Wayne Area Retired Teachers Association were at the County Museum in Wayne last Monday afternoon and evening to assist persons having difficulty writing their family histories for inclusion in the new Wayne County History Book.

Members of the two groups visited with several persons during the day and took time out to read some of the stories which have arrived regarding the history of the county, its residents and industry.

Historical Society members and retired teachers will be at the museum again this Monday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 8 p.m. to assist families with their histories.

Lucile Larson, a member of the Historical Society, said stories received to date have been well written and contain material revealing facts and information which many families should be proud of.

"Some families really had rough times in earlier years," said Mrs. Larson. "While more fortunate ones had it easier." "It seems," she added, "that most of us are more fascinated by the tales of hard times than those of prosperous ones."

Mrs. Larson said there are some very good wedding pictures which have accompanied many of the family histories.

She said it is particularly interesting to note the beautiful detail of early wedding gowns. "It's hard to believe that stores sold dresses such as those," she said, adding that although the pattern styles are extremely varied and beautiful, many of the gowns may have been made on crude sewing machines owned by some families.

Ruffles, laces, narrow pleats, eyelet embroidered insertions and edgings, scallops, puffs, and stiffly starched collars, both narrow and wide, were high fashion in those days, said Mrs. Larson. "And women," she added, "didn't edge out the men," noting that some men's high stiff collars looked very uncomfortable.

"No wonder so few marriages dissolved in those days," laughed Mrs. Larson. "Who would want to face such torture a second time?"

"And whatever happened to those tiny waistlines?" she smiled. And although few brides allowed their feet to be photographed those that are pictured are very dainty.

'On Golden Pond' Auditions Slated

Auditions for the Wayne Community Theatre's spring play, "On Golden Pond," will be held at Wayne-Carroll High School this Saturday, March 14, from 7 to 9 p.m.; Sunday, March 15, from 3 to 5 p.m., and Monday, March 16, from 7 to 9 p.m.

"On Golden Pond" is a tender exploration of love between aging couples, between parents and grown children, and between the elderly and the young.

The play begins with the return of Norman and Ethel Thayer to their summer home on Golden Pond in Maine, a place full of memories and fleeting shadows of the past.

Norman is a sharp-tongued, spry, churlish gentleman who is approaching his 80th birthday. His wife, Ethel, who is 10 years his junior, is a match for him in every respect.

To celebrate Norman's birthday, the couple are joined by their 42-year-old daughter, Chelsea, her new fiancé, Bill Ray, and his son, Billy. Billy, a modern, sassy "California kid" of 13 brings Norman to a new relationship with his own life and with his family.

Another visitor to the cottage is Charlie Marlin, a native of the area. "On Golden Pond," under the direction of Kathy Von Ehwegen, will be presented in the Wayne-Carroll High School lecture hall the evenings of May 15 and 16. Ted Blenderman will design the set.

Auditions are open to the public. Anyone wishing to read the script before auditioning may check out a copy of the play by contacting Helen Russell, 375-3494.

Fletcher-Dickey Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fletcher of Lincoln announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Deb Fletcher, to Bill Dickey, son of Mrs. Marguerite Dickey of Laurel.

Miss Fletcher, a 1970 graduate of Lincoln East High School and a 1974 graduate of Hastings College, is employed at IBM in Lincoln. Her fiancé was graduated from Laurel Public School in 1967 and from Westmar College in LeMars, Iowa in 1971. He is executive vice president of the First National Bank of Wayne. Plans are underway for a June 13 wedding in Lincoln.

Wedding Plans Told

Loryn Dodge of Schaumburg, Ill. and Donald Ankeny of Des Plaines, Ill. are making plans for an April 4 wedding. The couple's engagement was recently announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dodge of Arlington Heights, Ill. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Ankeny of Dixon.

Miss Dodge, a 1968 graduate of Upper Arlington High School, Columbus, Ohio, and a 1972 graduate of Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio, is employed by Mobil Oil Corp. Ankeny was graduated from Allen High School in 1967 and from Wayne State College in 1971. He is employed as a design engineer for Zenith Radio.

Members of the Wayne County Historical Society and the Wayne Area Retired Teachers Association were at the County Museum in Wayne last Monday afternoon and evening to assist persons having difficulty writing their family histories for inclusion in the new Wayne County History Book.

Members of the two groups visited with several persons during the day and took time out to read some of the stories which have arrived regarding the history of the county, its residents and industry.

Historical Society members and retired teachers will be at the museum again this Monday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 8 p.m. to assist families with their histories.

Lucile Larson, a member of the Historical Society, said stories received to date have been well written and contain material revealing facts and information which many families should be proud of.

"Some families really had rough times in earlier years," said Mrs. Larson, "while more fortunate ones had it easier." "It seems," she added, "that most of us are more fascinated by the tales of hard times than those of prosperous ones."

Mrs. Larson said there are some very good wedding pictures which have accompanied many of the family histories.

She said it is particularly interesting to note the beautiful detail of early wedding gowns. "It's hard to believe that stores sold dresses such as those," she said, adding that although the pattern styles are extremely varied and beautiful, many of the gowns may have been made on crude sewing machines owned by some families.

Ruffles, laces, narrow pleats, eyelet embroidered insertions and edgings, scallops, puffs, and stiffly starched collars, both narrow and wide, were high fashion in those days, said Mrs. Larson. "And women," she added, "didn't edge out the men," noting that some men's high stiff collars looked very uncomfortable.

"No wonder so few marriages dissolved in those days," laughed Mrs. Larson. "Who would want to face such torture a second time?"

"And whatever happened to those tiny waistlines?" she smiled. And although few brides allowed their feet to be photographed those that are pictured are very dainty.

Carroll Couple Honored

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Jensen of Carroll was observed during an open house reception Sunday afternoon at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Winslow.

Hosting the event were their children, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Lage of Pilger and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jensen of Winslow.

Lori Jensen of Lincoln and Kim Lage of Curtis registered the 320 guests, who attended from Sioux City and Harlan, Iowa; Yankton, S. D.; Madison, Hoskins, Norfolk, Wayne, Newman Grove, Pierce, McClean, Winslow, Omaha, Bellevue, Stanton and Pilger.

Gifts were arranged by Clara Petersen of Norfolk and Arlene Petersen and Johanna Jensen, both of Winslow.

Robert Jensen was master of ceremonies for the afternoon program, which included vocal solos by Mary Alice Swanson of Sioux City.

The Rev. Lon DuBois of Winslow spoke briefly, followed with a selection by the honored couple's grandchildren. Poems were read by Kim Lage and Lisa Jensen, and everyone joined in the singing of favorite old songs.

The anniversary cake, baked by Mrs. Russell Prince of Winslow, was cut and served by Joan Jensen of Winslow and Mary Alice Swanson of Sioux City. Dorothy Warnemunde of Winslow and Anna Johnson of Carroll poured, and Lisa Jensen and Leah Jensen, both of Winslow, served punch assisted by Adaline Malmberg of Norfolk. Waitresses were Vernell Krueger of Winslow and Marilyn Prince of Yankton.

Women assisting in the kitchen included Mrs. Alice Jenkins of Norfolk and Mrs. Leora Imel, Mrs. Marlan Iversen, Mrs. Dorothy Jo Andersen, Mrs. Lella Hansen and Mrs. Ann Behmer, all of Winslow.

Mr. and Mrs. Jensen were married at the Baptist Parsonage in Wayne on March 6, 1931, and have resided five miles north of Winslow since that time.

They are the parents of two children, Robert Jensen and Mary Lea Lage, and six grandchildren.

Wildcats Lose First Four Games But See Bright Spots in Future

by Clark Coco
Wayne State SID

With a little rescheduling, the Wayne State Wildcat baseball team was able to open its 1981 season at Southeastern Oklahoma State College in Durant, Okla., Monday, where the Cats dropped a doubleheader by the scores of 8-2 and 7-5.

Wayne State had originally scheduled two games at Central Oklahoma State and two more games with Oklahoma Baptist but these four games had to be cancelled because of wet grounds.

The Wildcats then decided to move farther south a day early where they scheduled four games with Southeastern.

The season opener saw Wayne State fall behind early as Southeastern scored two runs in the third inning and they added one more run in the fifth off of starting pitcher Grady Hansen.

Wayne State then came back to narrow the gap to 3-2 as Chico Mason singled and Bill Schwartz ripped the Wildcats' first home run of the season. Wayne State gave up five runs in the bottom of the sixth as Southeastern opened the lead to 8-2.

In the second contest, the Wildcats gave up four runs in the first two innings and added one more in the fourth inning before battling back to close Southeastern's lead to 5-4

Southeastern added two more runs in the bottom of the sixth to open up a three-run lead. Wayne State came back with a run in the top half of the seventh to close the margin to 7-5 before being retired.

Wayne State's center fielder Ken Murcek carried a big bat in the second game for the Wildcats as he made three trips to the plate and hit two solo home runs. Bill Schwartz also had a good day at the plate as he went 3 for 7 with one home run.

Wayne State now stands 0-2 on the season while Southeastern moves to 7-0.

The Wildcats lost another doubleheader to Southeastern on Tuesday but received some fine individual performance and nearly earned win number one.
Southeastern was ranked number one in the NAIA last season.

Wayne State lost the first game 11-8 and the second one 2-1. Freshman Randy Frink made his pitching debut in style by firing a two-hitter over seven innings in the nightcap.

Unfortunately, WSC managed only two hits and one run. All three runs were scored in the first inning.

In the opening game, catcher Mike Meyer collected two hits in four plate appearances to the Wildcat attack.

WSC scored four runs in the first inning but gave up 10 runs in the second and third innings. Relief pitcher Al Voigt held Southeastern scoreless in the final three innings and Wayne scored four runs in the fifth and sixth but couldn't overcome the deficit.

The Wildcats were scheduled to play a doubleheader against Midwestern Oklahoma on Wednesday. Chuck Jones and Greg Dostal were scheduled pitchers for those two games.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascell

THE TOWN OF WAYNE

got some mention on television Sunday night. I don't normally watch All Star Wrestling since I'm not an avid fan but I happened to run across the show while turning channels.

I watched most of the exhibitions that evening to see if any of the rasslers would mention Wayne. Sure enough, several of they reported to the home audience that they would be wrestling in Wayne next week.

Anyone who enjoys this type of entertainment should have a good time next Wednesday (March 18) when four bouts are held at Rice Auditorium.

Nick Bockwinkel and Tito Santana wrestle in the main event. Jim Brunzell faces Jesse "The Body" Ventura and Bill Howard meets Big John Stud in the other match. One tag team bout pairs Bobby "The Brain" Heenan and Steve Regal against Buck "Rock and Roll" Zumhove and Brad Rheingens.

Tickets are being sold at The Rusty Nail and State National Bank in Wayne and at Nebraska Sports in Norfolk's Sunset Plaza.

NEBRASKA STATE BASKETBALL

action opens today (Thursday) in Lincoln. Finals and all Class A games will be played in the Bob Devaney Sports Center. Other games are scheduled at Lincoln High School and Pershing Auditorium.

Picking winners in each class I'll take Creighton Prep in Class A, Crete in Class B, Grant in Class C and Filley in Class D.

Anyone who watched the Wayne-Scotus district finals about a week ago will be interested to know that Glen Kucera of Scotus is averaging 20.3 points and 11.1 rebounds entering the state tourney. Kucera, who played real well against Wayne, is ranked seventh in scoring and 11th in rebounding among all the state tournament players.

Wayne resident and Wayne State College professor Jim Paige will be one of 16 tournament officials at the boys state tourney.

The NCAA basketball tournament also opens soon so I'll try to predict which teams will be in the final four. Instead of taking all of the favorites, I'll go with DePaul, North Carolina, Iowa and Notre Dame. Top seeded teams are DePaul, Oregon State, Virginia and LSU. I hope Virginia can come through.

And in other national championships, I think Iowa University will run away with the wrestling title and Nebraska will edge Oklahoma for the gymnastics title.

FINAL RANKINGS

for girls basketball were released this week. The Allen Eagles were rated eighth in The Lincoln Journal and ninth in The Omaha World Herald.

Good ole' neighboring Randolph, which had been pretty well overlooked by the prep raters, was ranked first in Class C after proving itself by winning the state title.

Crete and Clearwater have an opportunity to perform a rare and honorable feat. Those two schools can brag of having champions in the girls state tournament and may soon be able to extend that boast to include the boys tournament.

Crete is top seeded in Class B and Clearwater is top seeded in Class D. However, both teams have a tough road ahead with Filley in Class D and Scotus in Class B.

LAST BUT CERTAINLY not least this week is a challenge that the community of Wayne can issue.

A couple of weeks back, Ron Dalton brought it to my attention that Wayne has a heck of a lot of basketball teams.

Counting recreation teams, school teams and Wayne State College intramural teams, I count between 95 and 100 basketball teams in this community. That may well be the highest per capita ratio in the state and could hold up well nationwide.

Hank Overin's popular Men's Recreation League alone has 21 teams and the outstanding WSC intramural program operated by Frank Teach can boast of 36 men's teams and 17 women's squads.

Wayne County Credit Official Named

Fred W. Schellpeper is the new Wayne County representative for Norfolk Production Credit Association.

He was hired to take over this area about four months ago. He was with the Federal Land Bank in Red Oak, Iowa, prior to that.

The Norfolk PCA serves six counties in Northeast Nebraska including Wayne, Stanton, Cuming, Pierce, Madison and Antelope. They have branch offices in Norfolk, West Point and Neligh. Wayne County normally is served out of the Norfolk office.

NPCA currently has more than $51,000,000 in loans outstanding to around 570 members. In 1980, the association loaned more than $168,000,000 to area farmers. In the past 10 years, the association has grown in volume almost three times from $18,000,000 in the early 1970's to the present $51,000,000.

The local office has authority to approve loans up to $1,250,000. Any amount larger than that requires FICB approval. Sizes of Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of one of the smallest Beltone aids of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

Send for this model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. While many people with a hearing loss will not receive any significant benefit from any hearing aid, this free model will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It is not a real hearing aid, and it's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a fourth of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 82912, Beltone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, Illinois 60646.

loans vary from a few thousand to multi-million dollar accounts to various farmers. Loan size is determined by a number of items including needs and repayment capacity.

PCA's are private lending institutions owned by their member borrowers and are not government agencies. They are governed by a board of directors comprised of local farmers and ranchers. PCA's were set up in the early 1900's to provide credit to farmers and ranchers for short- and intermediate-term credit needs.

They differ from their sister organization—the Federal Land Bank—in that PCA provides credit for machinery, livestock and operating expenses while the land banks loan for long term credit needs.

Cattlemen Support Cuts in the Budget

Nebraska cattlemen joined representatives from across the U.S. this past week to strongly support current efforts to cut federal spending, reduce tax rates and ease the costly regulatory burden on American agriculture and business.

That was the message being taken to Congress by directors of the National Cattlemen's Association, including the eight-man delegation from Nebraska.

Nebraskans included: Larry Schram, Papillion; Eugene Krael, Hastings; Tom Gustafson, Wakefield; Max Kellough, Friend; and Dick Mercer, Kearney. All are leaders in the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association (NLFA) elected to serve on the National Board representing all livestock producers.

Other NLFA leaders in Washington, D.C., included: Jim Dickinson, Omaha, Chairman of the NCA Private Lands committee; John Klosterman, David City, Chairman of NCA's Membership and Revenue Development Committee; and Paul Johnston, Lincoln, Executive Vice President of NLFA.

The group joined more than 100 NCA board members from across the nation, in connection with a meeting in the Nation's Capital. They fanned out across Capitol Hill to urge legislators to support fiscal policies which will help bring inflation under control, according to Schram, who is President of NLFA.

The cattlemen urged lawmakers to support:

1. Total federal budget cuts at least as large as proposed by the administration.

2. Individual and business tax rate reductions and acceleration of depreciation, plus tax reforms, including indexing the tax system for inflation and amending estate tax provisions.

3. Legislative and administrative changes which will ease the current burden of excessive government regulation.

Schram joined NCA President, J.W. (Bill) Swan. "We believe that the only game in town right now is reducing government spending and adopting tax programs which will promote, not stifle, savings and capital investment."

They noted that cattlemen currently are in a devastating cost price squeeze. However, they said, the only sound answer to this problem lies not in more government programs, but in less government—bringing less inflation and a rebuilding of the private economy.

"We believe in the free enterprise system," Swan and Schram said. "Like the general public, we will benefit most from the government's standing up and saying 'no' to all those who ask for exceptions to general tax and budget cuts. The record of the critics who want to change the current proposals doesn't speak well for the changes they want to make."

"Past policies, which found every group asking for and getting its own special appropriations or subsidies, obviously added up to deficit spending, burdensome government and raging inflation. It's time to call a halt to irresponsible budgeting. That's why we are focusing, not on cattlemen's special problems, but on over-all economic problems."

Schram reports that the group found a favorable response to President Reagan's Federal spending cuts, tax rate reductions and regulatory cutbacks by the entire Nebraska Congressional Delegation.

"Actually, this approach is in our own 'special' interest. We cannot stay in business if costs keep rising faster than cattle prices. And demand for beef cannot improve unless people's real incomes improve. We simply must have a more productive growing economy."

The NCA spokesmen pointed out that agriculture is in a particularly vulnerable position because of inflation. For one thing, farmers and ranchers, selling commodities as opposed to branded products and services, cannot immediately pass on cost increases. They have no control over the prices they receive.

Unless the economy becomes more stable and unless some of the regulatory and tax burdens are eased, cattlemen said, still more producers will be squeezed out and meat supplies will be reduced.

Citing the adverse effects of excessive government and counterproductive tax policies, the NCA directors compared the U.S. economy in recent years with the economies of other industrial countries. During the past 12 years, the U.S. has had: (1) the lowest growth in real wages; (2) the highest rate of unemployment, except for Canada; and (3) the poorest rate of economic growth, except for the United Kingdom. Real wages (after adjusting for inflation) have risen 251 percent in Japan and only 15 percent in the U.S.

Tree Seeds Available

In an effort to promote interest in rural and urban plantings of nut and fruit producing trees and shrubs, the Game and Parks Commission, in cooperation with several other groups, is sponsoring a seed distribution program, according to Commission horticulturist Kirk Nelson.

He said the Commission is joint sponsoring the program along with the Nebraska Nut Growers Association, Nebraska State and Extension Forestry, the University of Nebraska Horticulture Department and the Nebraska Statewide Arboretum Systems.

Individuals may purchase packets containing 30 seeds from at least six available species, including the American chestnut, heart nut, pecan, butternut, English walnut and hazelnut, Nelson said. Packets have to be purchased before April 1.

Interested persons may obtain further information and application forms by contacting their local County Extension Office, SCS, ASCS, or NRD office, or by writing directly to the Nebraska Nut Growers Association, P.O. Box 4644, Lincoln, Neb. 68504.

Trees and Shrubs Available For Farmers and Ranchers

Landowners who want to purchase trees through the Clarke-McNary program should get their orders in immediately, said Dick Gavitt, district forester for the University of Nebraska Department of Forestry.

Many species of trees are already gone, he said. Only cedar and jackpine remain. Of the shrubs, cotoneaster, honeysuckle, chokecherry and nanking cherry are left.

Any farmer or rancher who has some corner or odd area that doesn't lend itself to tillage, or any marginal cropland that is subject to erosion can use a small planting of trees, Gavitt said. Trees and shrubs help stop soil erosion; they break the wind.

Trees planted near the homestead help protect the house and cut fuel consumption for heating. They're attractive. They add value to the farmstead, and they help attract and protect wildlife, he went on.

According to Gavitt, the cost of trees and shrubs bought from Clarke-McNary is $19.50 per hundred for six to eight inch seedlings; delivered to the farm. For those who don't want the species still remaining in the program but still want to plant trees and shrubs can go to the commercial nurseries, Gavitt said, but they must expect higher prices— for larger plants in general. The smaller seedlings are not normally available from commercial nurseries.

Gavitt said that interested landowners should contact their local Soil Conservation Service office, or county agent. Those offices will help plan tree plantings, and also help make out the orders.

Gavitt remarked that the unseasonably warm weather this winter and spring could cause the trees to be delivered ahead of time. They may be in the landowners hands by early April, rather than the usual middle or end of the month.

He said that soil that has been devoted to crop production should be disced before the trees go in. In those areas where grass or over heavy cover has been, the landowner should plow, then disc. If the trees arrive before their spot is ready, Gavitt advised keeping them in the shipping box and adding a little water to the roots if it's only going to be a couple of days.

For longer periods, he suggested opening the box and reading the instructions. The trees should be heeled in to a spot that is convenient until their destined place is ready for them. With good care, Gavitt said, Clarke-McNary trees normally have an 80 percent survival rate. He recommended treating the tree row with a pre-emergent chemical in a three-or-four foot band on either side of the row.

That treatment should be repeated annually for three or four years, until the trees and shrubs get a good start. Farmers or ranchers should mow or cultivate between the rows two or three times yearly.

Normal rainfall is usually enough to keep the trees alive, but during dry years, the landowner might consider watering until the trees are three or four years old and well established.

Trees and shrubs require very little attention, but the benefits to be had from them far outweigh the work, Gavitt concluded.

Veterans Take A Look at School Reorganization

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Several years ago, some young members of the Nebraska Legislature's freshman class were talking about sponsoring legislation to reduce the number of school districts in the state.

But some senior legislators advised against such a move, and probably told the younger senators, "Not now." "The timing's all wrong." "It'll never fly."

It's 1981 now, the composition of the Legislature has certainly changed, there's a new freshman class roaming the Capitol halls, and some of the elder statesmen have apparently decided it's time to look at school district reorganization.

Affected by the bill would be residents in Class 1 districts, which serve students in kindergarten through eighth grade only. And those residents don't like the bill.

Gov. Charles Thone also has said he has problems with the bill, even if it included Farnam Sen. Tom Vickers' amendment to give residents in Class 1 districts the right to vote on whether their schools would be closed.

Thone and residents in Class 1 districts list local control as being among their major concerns. But the bill's backers say the reorganization plan must be implemented for reasons involving dollars and cents.

Despite the strong showing of opposition, it must be noted that there probably are as many supporters, maybe more, who didn't show up at the public hearing. Their contact with senators and Thone could play an important role in deciding the fate of LB319.

But at this stage of the game, the things that likely will weigh heavily during legislative deliberations are Thone's position on the issue and the fact that opponents have made it clear they won't remain silent.

What is known at this writing is that the opponents haven't gone unnoticed, and their continued campaign against the bill will, at a minimum, cause rural lawmakers especially to do some deep soul-searching before they push a green button in support of LB319.

The intense debate over which personal property tax relief bill the full Legislature should consider this year caused a sharp urban-rural split that got a lot of ink in the press.

But the split should have come as a surprise to no one. The same thing happened last year when lawmakers passed the rural-backed bill to provide counties with $70 million to reimburse local governments for revenue lost because of state-approved personal property tax exemptions.

It also should have come as no surprise that the rurals prevailed during a recent legislative vote on the issue. The composition of the Legislature gives them the numbers needed to prevail.

At issue during the recent vote was whether a bill more suitable to urban senators should be advanced to the full Legislature for consideration by all 49 lawmakers. Already before the senators was a rural-backed distribution formula.

Lawmakers voted 20-26 against advancing to the floor a bill that would include population as a consideration in the distribution formula. LB390's formula considers both real estate valuations and population, the latter provision being the one supported most by urban lawmakers.

Already advanced to the floor by the rural-dominated Revenue Committee was LB284, which would base the distribution on real estate valuations alone.

The same division and same issues were raised during the 1980 session when lawmakers had before them the same basic options. The rurals, during the waning days of the session, prevailed and their bill was passed.

But the Nebraska Supreme Court in December agreed with the State Justice Department that the 1980 distribution formula was flawed. That ruling, which blocked disbursement of the $70 million, sent lawmakers back to the drawing board.

The problem with the rural-urban split that has surfaced again this year is approval of a new distribution formula might be delayed, much to the concern of local governments which had budgeted in anticipation of receiving the money.

Even if the rurals have enough votes to pass the bill they prefer — and it appears they do — they might not have enough support to guarantee immediate implementation of the new formula. That poses another problem for local governments.

Constitutional pressure could lead to the give-and-take that appears necessary for a quick resolution of the issue, but even that might not guarantee speedy resolution of the problem.

Perhaps, considering the conservative nature of the Republican-dominated Legislature, Gov. Charles Thone could speed things up by indicating which approach he supports.

The GOP leader has said he considers the issue to be among the top three of the session. His input on the issue might alleviate a logjam that easily could occur when lawmakers actually start voting on a new formula.

WAY BACK WHEN

St. Patrick's Day: "Wearing of the green" still popular in Nebraska

St. Patrick, generally credited with spreading Christianity and the beginnings of European culture across fifth century Ireland, is still favored across the state by March 17 celebrations featuring shamrocks, green beer, parades and special musical entertainments. Newspapers on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society report similar observances in early Nebraska.

The March 19, 1906, "Omaha Daily Bee" noted: "The annual celebration, in honor of St. Patrick's Day by the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Omaha and Ladies' auxiliary was observed Saturday evening at Croighton College of Law hall before a large audience of men and women. M.P. O'Connor acted as chairman of the evening. He gave a brief opening address giving an outline of the purposes of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and urged all men of Irish blood and faith to become members of the order."

"The principal address of the evening was that of Mr. John Rush of Omaha, who gave a brief outline of Irish history and the reverence in which St. Patrick is held throughout the world. Mr. Rush spoke of his forty years residence in Nebraska and deplored the disappearance of the early Irish farmers who settled this region, saying their farms and homes are now in the hands of strangers, their former owners having gone one who knew where." Speaker Rush then discussed the history of the Irish people for the last 100 years and expressed his hope to "see the day when the Irish language should be restored and spoke throughout Ireland. (so) that when an American should in future years visit Ireland he would have to employ an interpreter."

Irish music and poetry were also stressed. Colonel John O'Keefe of Clinton, Iowa, told the audience, "Ireland is the only nation of all the earth that has a musical instrument (the harp) as its national emblem." Included was "a musical program. Including a quartet of Irish melodies on the harp and violin... and bagpipe selection of Irish airs by Mr. McDougall."

St. Patrick's Day was not neglected in the more sparsely settled areas of western Nebraska. The March 20, 1890, "Chadron Democrat" reported: "The anniversary of the birth of the Patron Saint of Ireland was observed (in Chadron) in a marked and patriotic manner. The day was generally set apart as a holiday, and a large number of representatives from our sister cities swelled the throng. A parade of Irish Americans, headed by the Chadron Cornet band, took place in the afternoon, but the main exercises and all-absorbing attraction took place in the evening at the Rink. The hall was elaborately and beautifully decorated with the Irish emblems, supported by the stars and stripes, evergreens and flowers. The gathering was a large one, every portion of the building being occupied by an intelligent and fashionable audience, and the frequent encores evidenced the listeners were appreciative." The program consisted largely of music, poetry and dramatic readings.

The March 29, 1907, Gordon Journal commented: "The St. Louis Post Dispatch says 'green is a good color.' It is the only safe color on the 17th of March." The March 21, 1907, Valentine Democrat had a few days earlier reprinted P.H. O'Rourke's article on "St. Patrick's Day and the Shamrock," excerpts from which follow:

"More than thirty years ago in the flush, prime and early manhood, I crossed these plains of Nebraska as a newspaper reporter when on my way to Australia. Hence I was on these plains when the only sign of living people was the smoke that curled from the pipe of the Sioux Indians. Since then I find myself living in a county by the name of Sheridan. The Sheridan (General Phillip H.) the hero of Winchester Heights (1864 Civil War battle in Virginia), an Irishman by descent who loved the Shamrock and his faith, who said after he passed through that bloody page of our history, when dying 'I want no display, all I want is my wife, children and the sisters of charity about me and to be buried with the honors of the American army.'"

March 15, 1951: Six draftees from Wayne County left Monday for military service. They were Ernest Swanson, James Spahr, Eddie Baler, Donald Cauwe, Wayne: Jack Brockman, Winslow; and Harlan Korth, Wakefield. William R. Ellis, Wayne, was presented the Jordan medal by Wayne Masons in a ceremony here Thursday. A weekend storm blocked roads and caused delayed action throughout the county. The Wayne High Blue Devils and the Wayne Prep Panthers won trips to the state tournament. Complete poll returns from the county totaled $4,680. Contributions were high from rural areas. Wayne High School and Wayne State College presented their choirs in a combined concert at the city auditorium Palm Sunday.

March 15, 1956: John Addison, Wayne, is a member of a freshman team which will compete this week in moot court competition at the University of Nebraska law college. Jane Jeffrey and Mary Schroeder will be Wayne FHA chapter delegates to the ninth annual state convention Saturday at Lincoln. Wayne High's Blue Devils ended a 14-year drought Saturday morning by winning the Nebraska Class B basketball tournament with a 61-56 victory over Hebron in the finals. It was Wayne's first championship since 1942. Next week will be "Bundle Week" at Wayne city schools. Supt. E.W. Wilbert said Tuesday. During Bundle Week, clean usable clothing is collected and prepared for shipping to needy children in America and throughout the world.

20 years ago
March 16, 1961: Paul G. Koester and Axel Ostrand were re-elected directors of the Federal Land Bank Association of Wakefield at their annual meeting Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Merton Hilton, Mr. and Mrs. Al Morris and Judge and Mrs. Dave Hamer were asked to take part in the annual Hobby Show in Norfolk March 25. The couples are members of the NE Nebraska Rock and Mineral Society and their display will be made up of polished stone. Several appliances were damaged in Wakefield Sunday when a mix-up in the power lines sent an extra heavy charge of electricity through the wires. Three television sets were damaged, a number of light bulbs and seven solenoids on washers at a laundromat were blown out.

15 years ago
March 10, 1966: A prominent Wayne and Nebraska banking official, Henry Ley, 62, will resign Friday as state director of banking to seek the Democratic nomination for governor of Nebraska. Two big projects were approved Tuesday night at the Wayne

City Council meeting and bids are being asked already. One calls for a new generating unit costing from $500,000 to $550,000 and the other sets up paving for an extended runway at the Municipal Airport. Pierce came up with one of the better signs on the walls of the tournament in Wayne when the Bluejays were playing the Plainview Pirates. It said: "Show me a bluejay that can lick a pirate and I'll eat this sign." Bites had been taken out of the sign. (The painter didn't have to eat the rest — Plainview won). Wayne American Legion choose Mark Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Johnson, Carroll, to represent this area at Boys State.

10 years ago
March 11, 1971: Two hogs, each weighing around 250 pounds and valued at approximately $60, were killed on Highway 116 at Dixon around 7:30 p.m. Saturday when hit by two cars. Governor J.J. Exon has appointed Dave Theophilus of Wayne to serve on the nutrition task force for the 1971 Governor's Conference on Aging. Bill Davie, owner of Bill's Cafe in Wayne, received a progress award from the Wayne Chamber of Commerce in recognition of the improvement he has made in the downtown business district. Teachers in the Wayne-Carroll school system will receive a base salary of $6,500 during the 1971-72 school year.

'Crusader' Questions Letter Policy

Dear Editor: A couple of years ago, when my children were grown and on their own, I retired my "crusader" uniform and sat back to quietly watch and applaud the efforts of anyone else who had enough guts to stand up, publicly, for whatever they believed in.

The fact that anyone can write a letter to their local editor and have their opinions published with no fear of any sort of retribution is liberty at the highest level and should be greatly appreciated.

But, "Dear Editor," one of your practices absolutely stinks! I refer to your arbitrary way of deciding who is required to have their name published and who is allowed to have "name withheld by request."

Any letter I ever wrote in the past was required to have my signature at the end in order to be published. When I inquired as to the reason, I was told that if the letter was a complaint against a specific person it was only fair that my name be made public also. Fine! So be it!

Now, in your March 9 issue there is a nice long complaint directed at Dan Field, signed by "name withheld by request."

Mr. Editor, you are making different rules for different people, and I resent it. If some of us have to then let's all have to.

To whoever wrote that letter, I wholeheartedly agree with you, but if you believe so strongly in your opinion you ought to have enough backbone to let the public know who you are.

Signed willingly and proudly,
Pat Dale
Wayne

Editor's Note: The current letter policy has been in effect for at least two years. The editor has not deviated from this policy since May 1979, and will not make exceptions during his tenure as editor. The current policy is as follows and has been followed for some time, and has been run periodically on the opinion page:

"Letters from our readers are welcome. They should be timely, brief and must contain no libelous statements. We reserve the right to edit or reject any letter."

Letters may be published with a pseudonym or with the author's name omitted if so desired. However, the writer's signature must be a part of the original letter. Unsigned letters will not be printed."

Letter to the editor:
I recently attended some Wayne High School basketball games and was amazed at what I had seen and heard.

The amazing thing was "SPIRIT." Fans dressed in royal blue attire, hands clapping, people cheering and signs flying everywhere. A sight I had forgotten.

Six years ago I was a freshman cheerleader at Wayne. I was also a member of the past Pep Club. As a B-Team cheerleader they (the Pep Club) were a dying breed. Then as a varsity cheerleader the spirit at Wayne had almost completely fizzled out. The only time I saw real spirit was at pep rallies.

The only reason for that was all students were required to go and they got out of class 10 minutes early. Then, at games our squad of about 10 girls yelled their lungs out only to be out voiced by other towns at least a hundred to one. Sure we had a little help from the fans but it wasn't what it could have been.

This year it seems that the old flame of true SPIRIT has been rekindled. The fans of the Wayne High Basketball team are standing up to the other towns and doing a ...really fine job. I think it is great the way they are backing their teams.

It really does give added life to the cheerleaders and to the guys playing the game. Sometimes that extra bit of encouragement can be the difference between winning and losing. (Sure it is a lot easier to back a winning team but the losing teams need help too.)

I would personally like to extend my congratulations to the Wayne High School basketball team on a great season, but let us not forget the FANS! (A rebirth of a dying breed.) Keep it up WAYNE.

Sherry Murray
Wayne
March 5, 1981

To Blue Devil Supporters:
The Wayne High basketball team would like to thank all of the fans for the outstanding support during the year. Everywhere the team played this year, there was always a large number of fans rooting on the team, whether in victory or in a rare defeat.

During the West-Husker Conference tournament, record numbers of fans helped inspire us to the conference championship. More recently, though, at the district tournament, fan support was even more evident. So many fans were there that some even had to stand the entire game. It was almost as disappointing as not making it to state as it was in disappointing all the fans who had come to watch us win.

Playing before a partisan crowd helped our team to achieve the best record Wayne High has had in many years. We hope that the community will support other sports as well as basketball in the future.

Inheritance Tax Topic Of Legislative Session: Changes in Bill Possible

There was heard testimony this week on LB 480 which would repeal the inheritance tax in Nebraska.

According to Peter Hoagland, the bill's sponsor, the inheritance tax is payable directly to the counties in Nebraska by the persons who receive the funds from the estate of the deceased person. Currently, the amount of tax paid varies according to how closely a person is related to the deceased.

In testimony, it was said that the tax, first enacted in 1901, has outlived its usefulness. It does not fit with our modern system of estate, income and sales taxation. The tax does not generate significant revenue to merit its retention, particularly in light of the attorney fees it imposes on estates containing real property, and the administrative costs it imposes on the counties in collecting and policing the tax.

This bill will create a loss in revenue to counties of about 7.5 million dollars. But there are compensation provisions that increase the county's share of the state governmental subdivision fund by the same amount. This loss of revenue to the counties has been one of the primary objections to the bill, LB 480 was presented to the Revenue Committee on March 5 and has not yet been advanced out of committee. Should it come to the floor, you can be assured I will work hard to ensure its passage.

In other legislative matters, a motion by Sen. Cal Carsten of Avoca to bring LB 390 to the floor, was defeated. LB 390 is a bill that would set up a constitutionally acceptable distribution of the 70 million dollars appropriated for local political subdivisions by last year's legislature. This motion generated much controversy. I opposed bringing LB 390 out of committee to the floor, in the hope that a bill that will be more favorable to our area of the state will soon be advanced.

What About the Gifted Students in School?

For years, children with learning disorders have been given special attention in the classroom. Through an increasing concern for the underprivileged student, programs specifically designed for learning disabled students were developed.

In fact, major portions of federal funds are appropriated annually for these types of students. They have needs that should be met and programs on every level are helping meet the problems.

But what about students at the other end of the spectrum? Gradually, students with special talents are being recognized as needing special training just as the learning deficient students need special guidance.

The Wayne Community Council, a citizen extension of the board of education, is spearheading an effort to improve local programs for the gifted. Areas of special talents that need to be acknowledged include general intellectual ability, specific academic aptitude, creative thinking ability, visual and performing arts and leadership.

It is a pleasure to find that the high achievers are at long last being recognized. The Wayne School District has had gifted-oriented instruction since 1968, but has been unable to expand such programs due to a lack of funds.

Now, the board of education, with support from the Community Council, is planning next fall's teacher workshops with an emphasis on gifted and special talent children. A shifting national emphasis from LD students to gifted students is resulting in more research into the types of gifted students. Funding for gifted programs is forthcoming, we hope.

The road ahead will be difficult, and we hope the local board and Community Council do not become discouraged and abandoned their dreams. Dan Field, Editor.

Merle's Message

by Sen. VonMinden

I would particularly like to express my appreciation to the many people who stopped by my office this week. It is very helpful to me, as your senator, to meet with you face to face and have an opportunity to discuss ideas that are important to you.

Spring Readings Given at Welfare Club

The Concord Womens Welfare Club met March 4 with Mrs. Kenneth Olson. The meeting opened with the Club Creed.

Energy Tax Credit Available

Taxpayers who take certain steps to save energy in their homes can cut their income tax bills up to $4,300, the Internal Revenue Service said.

The law provides for a tax credit of up to $300 for energy conservation for materials installed in the home, with a separate credit of as much as $4,000 for taxpayers who install "renewable" energy source items such as solar or wind equipment.

The credit for energy conservation materials is figured at 15 percent of the first $2,000 spent on such items as storm or thermal windows and doors, insulation, weather-stripping and caulking. Also qualifying are furnace replacement burners, flueopening modifications, electrical or mechanical ignition systems to replace gas pilot lights and clock thermostats. Only materials installed in homes that were substantially completed before April 20, 1977, are eligible for this energy credit.

The "renewable" energy source credit is 40 percent of the first $10,000 invested in qualifying solar, wind or geothermal equipment used to heat, cool or provide hot water for use in the home according to the IRS. After 1979, the credit also applies to solar energy equipment that provides electricity for use in the home.

Both credits are available for items purchased and installed on a taxpayer's principal residence on or after April 20, 1977 and before Jan. 1, 1986. The "renewable" energy credit is available for both existing and newly constructed homes. Renters as well as homeowners are eligible for the credit.

Most Hog Producers Caught In Serious Price-Cost Spot

Rising prices of grain and protein have placed most hog producers in a serious price-cost squeeze, a University of Nebraska animal scientist said recently.

Dr. Donald B. Hudman, district extension swine specialist at the NU Panhandle Station, pointed out that "market hog prices have not increased with the increased feed costs. Therefore, all segments of the hog industry are affected."

Hudman, who works with producers in the Panhandle and west-central Nebraska, noted that feed costs represent more than 50 percent of the cost of swine production but are the most likely possibility to be reduced.

"The fact that there is a large variation in feed required per pound of gain between farms and groups of pigs on the same farm shows that improvement can be made in feed management," Hudman said.

Swine producers should check feed formulations carefully for adequacy in protein (amino acids), energy, minerals and vitamins, he advised.

The ratio of calcium to phosphorus should be about 1.3:1. The correct level of protein should be fed and the level of amino acids, especially lysine, should be checked. Other energy sources should be considered in formulation. Milo, oats, alfalfa hay and other grains and grain products need to be evaluated for availability and cost, Hudman continued.

Crystalline lysine combined with corn at a rate of 3.5 pounds of crystalline lysine and 96.5 pounds of corn can replace 100 pounds of 44 percent protein soybean meal in a ton of feed — if corn and lysine can be purchased at a lower price than soybean meal. This substitution should be limited to 100 pounds per ton, the specialist stated.

"A major management factor affecting feed cost is feed waste," Hudman said. "It can occur during storage, mixing, transporting or from self feeders. The latter source is the most serious and can be controlled with proper equipment and daily management," he reported.

Research from West Virginia has revealed feed waste from self feeders up to 12 percent. More recently, a North Carolina swine specialist has estimated that the average farm feed loss due to poorly adjusted self feeders was 8 percent, Hudman stated.

Using this 8 percent loss and an average feed conversion of 3.3 for pigs from 40 to 220 pounds, the increase in feed costs per pig due to wasted feed would amount to $3.50 per pig, or about $1.60 per hundredweight.

"With this increased food cost it is extremely important to check the setting of feeders daily and control the feed flow into the mouth of the feeder. Feed waste is best controlled if pigs have to work to get feed into the mouth of the feeder," Hudman said.

Other feed losses may occur when filling feeders. This loss may include spillage due to carelessness and poorly managed augering systems. Feed wastage can be reduced in many cases if downspouts from the auger protrude lower in the feeder, reducing the chance for feeders to be overfilled. Also, less feed weight due to lower amounts of feed in a self feeder can reduce the amount of feed forced into the mouth of the feeder.

Feed waste can go undetected in pens that have pigs with poor dunging patterns or totally slotted floors, Hudman noted. This feed loss may be detected by cleaning the floor around the feeder and checking under the slotted floor.

"Feed additives usually have resulted in improved pig gains and feed efficiency, especially in young pigs. However, the elimination of feed additives from swine feed is one of the first alternatives considered in times of higher feed prices," the animal scientist recommended.

"The young pig under 100 pounds responds more favorably to feed additives than older pigs and additives in the diet of younger pigs usually can be justified. Feed additives for older pigs should be utilized, based on a grain or feed conversion response, Hudman said, and the response(s) must justify their cost. "Feed additives used routinely for disease and parasite control should continue to be fed," he said.

Finally, Hudman advised orderly marketing of pigs at lower weights.

"Your hog buyer should be contacted to determine the lowest weight that market pigs can be sold without price dockage. This is likely the optimum weight to market pigs since feed required per pound of gain increases as pigs become heavier. Further, the lower market weight will help reduce the pork supply and could assist in preventing a more depressed hog market.

"At present hog and feed prices, attention to detailed management procedures is necessary to survive our present price-cost squeeze in pork production," Hudman concluded.

Prune fruit trees now
Before bud break this spring, fruit trees need their annual pruning. Annual maintenance pruning of trees in the home fruit garden keeps trees healthy and productive. Usually it is necessary to remove only a small amount of wood each year if the trees have been annually pruned.

Trees that have not been pruned for a number of years require more drastic pruning. True height can be lowered five feet each year. Always cut immediately above an outward growing lateral limb. In addition, two or three large limbs may be removed each year to open up the tree.

Remove water sprouts and damaged or diseased wood first. Keep in mind the overall structure of the tree and develop main structural branches on all sides of the tree. Looking down on top of the tree, branches radiate out like spokes on a wheel with the main trunk as the hub. Narrow branches are weak and should be eliminated during the pruning process. Main structural branches on dwarf trees should be spaced five to six inches vertically on the main trunk. Tie a strip of cloth around branches to be saved to aid you in pruning.

Fertilizer recommendations
Here are some comments from George Rehm, Extension Agronomist. "It's no secret that farmers are very concerned about costs this year. Several farmers have asked me to make UN-L fertilizer recommendations from results from commercial soil-testing laboratories. This is no problem. So, if farmers bring results from other laboratories to the Extension office, I will be happy to provide UN-L fertilizer recommendations if you or the farmer want to send me a copy of the soil test results.

Fertilizer recommendations from commercial soil testing laboratories continue to include relatively high amounts of sulfur. We all recognize that sulfur is important for some sandy soils. Throughout the Great Plains, research has shown that the application of sulfur has not increased crop production on the soils which are not sandy. There is no research to justify the use of sulfur fertilizer as a plant nutrient on our non-sandy soils in northeast Nebraska.

Lutgen also discussed the difference between a hedger and a speculator, explaining that a speculator does not actually have the commodity he is speculating in. The hedger does have the grain or a crop in the field and is using the market to set a price.

Audience members suggested that speculators be barred from the market, but Lutgen said they are a necessary part of the market because they are willing to take a risk. "A speculator makes his money on price movement — he doesn't want your corn," he explained. Eight out of 10 speculators on the Chicago Board of Trade lose money, he said.

Effects of Futures Market Needs to be Understood

The futures market isn't for everybody, but whether we like it or not, we have to understand it, a University of Nebraska agricultural economist told women and men attending a Ladies Grain Marketing Seminar in Lincoln recently.

The futures market sets today's cash prices, explained Lynn Lutgen, extension economist in the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. Lutgen discussed how the futures market affects agricultural producers at a meeting sponsored by the Lancaster County Extension Service.

Lutgen likened the futures market to government reports. "We may not like them, but we need to know what they mean" to be competitive with other segments of the market.

The economist said the futures market is an alternative to taking the cash price offered by the local elevator. But he cautioned, "You never want to deliver against a futures contract for grain. It's a way to price your grain, not sell it."

Sometimes livestock are delivered, he said, but he reminded the audience that the Chicago futures price is for a commodity delivered to Chicago. "The futures price isn't what you're going to get" because of transportation costs between Nebraska and Chicago.

to remain hedgers in the market. "Lots of people don't do enough homework. They have one successful experience marketing grain, and the next thing you know they're dealing in pork bellies. You can lose a lot of money in the market," he said.

Occasionally, people who don't mind their marketing get stuck with delivering on a contract, he said. "You don't actually ship grain from Nebraska. You buy it from some guy in Chicago. But he knows why you need it so you pay through the nose."

Lutgen also cautioned the audience not to think in terms of "locking in" a price on the futures market. "That's not true. But you can get close," he said. Absolute price prediction isn't possible because of the basis which he explained is the difference between the futures price on a given day and the local elevator's price. The basis for each commodity will fluctuate through the year, he said. An unusually wide basis may indicate that the local elevator simply doesn't want to handle a commodity at a given time. "It may have cash customers coming in with their corn and he doesn't want to take your beans. So he may offer a price that's really out of line to discourage you."

The economist also cautioned the audience to "get used to wild changes in prices. We're on the world market and world events affect us."

Helping Hands
The Helping Hands 4-H Club met Feb. 14 in the Dennis Greunke home.

Members answered roll call with a homemade Valentine. The group made Valentines for their adopted grandparents.

Mrs. Greunke spoke on "Rockets," and Mrs. Don Leighton had a question and answer session for those having "Food" as their project.

Lunch was served by Darrin Greunke, Brian and Rhonda Suehl.

Next meeting will be March 14 in the Norris Janke home. The club is planning to meet the second Saturday of each month.

Concordettes Club
The Concordettes 4-H Club held their monthly meeting Feb. 24 at the Northeast Station, near Concord.

Six members and two leaders were present. Bree Bebee was welcomed as a new member and selected an adopted grand mother.

Members received their project books and met in groups to discuss plans for the fair. Mary Lehman gave demonstrations

"How to Plant Alyssum" and "How to Separate a Burn Plant." Members filled out their year books and Jill Hanson served lunch.

Next meeting was to be held March 10 at the Northeast Station.

Has tight money put a squeeze on your confinement plans?

If it has, then you haven't talked to us. We're the Production Credit Association—agricultural lenders whose only business is agriculture. Our funds are virtually unlimited when it comes to financing a sound production idea—even in times of tight money.

At PCA we bring in outside, privately invested money and then loan it out on a local basis, all on the best of terms. When it comes to agricultural credit, tight money doesn't put a squeeze on the confinement plans of a PCA borrower.

We're agriculture's leading lending hand.

Burning Ban in Effect

BURNING TRASH was blamed for a grass fire behind 1418 Claycomb Court about 2:29 p.m. Saturday. Wayne Fire Chief Dick Korn reminds area residents that State Fire Marshall Wally Barnett is reminding people across the state that citations are being issued for violation of the statewide burning ban. Persons wishing to burn should apply to Korn for a waiver of the ban.

Organic Farming A Philosophy

Organic farming is philosophy more than a method, a Missouri agricultural economist told those attending a meeting on non-chemical farming at Midland College in Fremont recently.

A panel of four organic farmers asked to define the term really hadn't done so, said Professor Harold Breimyer of the University of Missouri-Columbia, before offering his own explanation to a crowd of about 160.

Two definitions of "organic" given were farming in such a way as to keep nutrients and microorganisms in soil, and keeping carbon content high in the soil.

The meeting was held to raise questions about the effects of "conventional" farming methods and the possibilities of organic farming, according to David Vetter, president of the sponsoring Nebraska Organic Agriculture Association. Meeting organizers were surprised at the attendance, which had been anticipated to be around 75.

One issue raised several times during the session was the stereotyping of conventional or chemical-using farmers and seeing them as adversaries to organic farmers.

Breimyer warned the audience not to pit organic against farming which uses chemicals, urging listeners instead to see organic agriculture as an evolving new way of farming.

John Doran, USDA soil scientist from Lincoln, sounded a similar note. Reports that are unfavorable to organic farming must be interpreted very carefully, without stereotyping the authors of the report, he said.

Doran mentioned a report, "Organic and Conventional Farming Compared," which was strongly criticized by some participants at the meeting.

Breimyer said he did not approve of the report, prepared by the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology, (CAST), but stressed that not all members of CAST condemn organic farming.

However, the Missouri economist said the organic farming movement has to some extent invited criticism, through extremist near-religious fervor with which some advocates have taken up the cudgel against traditional farming.

Some observers at the meeting cited lack of test data on organic products and methods as a hindrance to improving organic farming operations. Panelists and speakers agreed that data are needed on types of non-chemical fertilizers, tillage methods and grading and marketing organic products, as well as other aspects of organic agriculture production.

Dr. Dale Flowerday, University of Nebraska agronomist, said NU researchers have several organic farming-related research studies underway. He said he would welcome learning about results of tests farmers have conducted.

Flowerday, Doran and William Reinsch, Soil Conservation Service agronomist, Lincoln, were panel members; with moderator Ron Krupicka of the Small Farm Energy Project.

Dr. Warren Sals, assistant director of the Agricultural Experiment Station, NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, reported on organic farming research carried out at the NU Field Laboratory near Mead. One of the studies is comparing yield performance of corn in a rotation scheme with continuous corn cropping. Another experiment is evaluating the use of punch manure with a drying agent to improve soils.

Sals discussed the USDA Publication, "Report and Recommendations on Organic Farming." Co-panelists with Sals were Fern Norris, who operates an organic farm near Wallhill; Lincoln economist Larry Swanson, and Marty Strange, director of the Center for Rural Affairs at Wallhill. Swanson presented a newly completed report, which had been commissioned by the Center for Rural Affairs, on the transition from chemical-based or organic farming.

Another panel of four organic farmers answered questions on how their operations were started and their current status. The panelists described their diverse organic farming operations.

Del Akerlund, Valley, raises alfalfa, corn and soybeans on good bottomland. He said he is able to command premium prices for his crops because his buyers recognize a superior product.

Gerald Koch, Newcastle, said although he farms all his 1,500 acres through organic methods, he sells his grain to the local elevator at the going prices, because he does not have a ready special market.

"It takes a certain degree of religion to sell a high-quality product for regular prices," he told a chuckling crowd. Marvin Ruenhoff, Syracuse, farms 240 acres on rolling hills. He cited severe erosion problems present when he started farming the site a few years ago.

Moderator Marvin Kurgewelt, Madison, said he farms 1,640 acres organically.

Good Neighbor Honors Listed

The Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben announced recently that 155 individuals and seven groups have been selected to receive its annual Good Neighbor Awards. Included among this elite group are the following area persons and organizations:

Florence McTaggart, Emerson — She runs somewhat of a taxi service for those who cannot drive and in the summer shares the produce from her garden.

Ardyce Mayberry, Emerson — When a neighbor had surgery last summer, this lady took care of the mother, seeing that she had food and taking her to the hospital to visit. She also helped with the housework, etc.

Sally Arens, Hartington — At Christmas, she bakes goodies for needy families, provides rides for the elderly, etc.

Ed Gaden, Laurel — Has helped a new, young couple by helping them remodel their farmhouse, helped the wife with

"Characters must be kept bright as well as clean," Lord Chastorfield chores and helped her round up the hogs when they got out while her husband was away.

Fred and Lori Bentjan, Pender — When a neighbor's husband was hospitalized in Sioux City, they took her to visit him and, when he died, they were the first to help.

Laura Jaeger, Winside — Recently, a young man died leaving a young family. Another young man has multiple sclerosis and a family also. This lady organized and promoted a fund drive to help both.

Leonard Adams, Wisner — He is always willing to help a neighbor on his farm, even though he and his son have a farm of their own.

Pleasant Dale 4 H Club, Hartington — When a 15-year-old member was in a car accident which resulted in her becoming a quadriplegic, the club got together and took bids on her calf and also opened a fund for her. They also gave her a tape recorder for use in school work.

These recipients will receive a framed citation and a gold lapel pin. Nominations were made by friends and neighbors through Ak-Sar-Ben.

Janke 18th in Pull

Randy Janke, Winside, was on hand to compete in the $90,000 purse Super Bowl of tractor pulling, the eighth annual Indy Super Pull in February.

The Super Pull is sanctioned by the National Tractor Pullers Association and is co-sponsored by Kendall Refining Company, makers of Kendall Oil.

Puller Janke, traveled with his tractor from Winside to Indianapolis, Ind., speed capital of the world, to compete against more than 100 other pullers. He finished 18th in the 12,000 pound Super Stock Class event, pulling the weighted sled 66 feet down the 300 foot clay track.

The Super Pull is the annual climax of Grand National Competition and the largest pull, drawing a crowd of more than 33,000 spectators for the three-day event. Janke had to pull in a series of regional competitions in 1980 to qualify. All competitors in the Super Pull are NTPA Regional Champions and come from all parts of the country.

Super-powered tractors like Janke's International Harvester 966 have gone through extensive evolution since the first recorded tractor pulls with farm machinery in 1929, the year after Kendall offered the first 2,000 mile oil. Kendall Oil has continued to sponsor pulling since the early days of NTPA.

Changes to Affect Some Fed Housing

Restructuring of federal assistance programs, including those affecting housing, will have significant impact on both consumers and industry beyond immediate budget cutbacks, Congressman Doug Bereuter said Monday.

In an address before the Lincoln Homebuilders, Bereuter said, "Public attention is now focused on budget cutbacks. But there are other matters at hand that will have at least as much impact: restructuring of federal assistance programs and changes in how funds are distributed. Housing is one area to be affected."

The congressman said, "These changes may involve funding levels or spending cutbacks. But, more importantly, they involve reshaping of the programs themselves."

Bereuter cited an example. "Many critics believe that various federal programs designed for low and moderate income families overlap, are too costly and provide no flexibility. A single housing block grant program is advocated as an alternative to the multitude of separate programs. Advocates of the block grant approach argue that it would allow more flexibility and control to local jurisdictions, which, in turn, would mean local needs are better met and housing activities are better coordinated with community development efforts."

He said, "A number of related questions arise: Who would be eligible for assistance? Would Congress or local officials make that determination? Should other federal requirements, such as those dealing with the environment and social goals, remain intact?"

According to Bereuter, other major issues are due for consideration. "Last year, Congress placed emphasis on providing low-income housing assistance by allocating less contract authority to new construction and greater use of existing units. At the same time, Congress has to decide whether to provide assistance to rental development and housing construction by subsidizing builders for financing costs of rental units designed for middle income households. While the controversial effort to provide such subsidies was defeated, proponents of the plan are likely to make their case on Capitol Hill again this year," Bereuter said.

"Some other ideas are floating around Washington. It's expected that legislation will be reintroduced to create what is called Individual Housing Accounts. An Individual Housing Account would be a special type of savings account to encourage people to save for a downpayment on their first home. People using these savings accounts would receive either a federal tax credit or deduction," Bereuter said.

"Another emerging issue is whether changes should be made in tax deductions allowed for home mortgage interest payments. Critics suggest that the deduction for mortgage interest payments promotes increases in the cost of buying a home and discourages people from investing in productive capital. Debate on this question undoubtedly will be lively," he predicted.

"Of course, upcoming changes in federal assistance programs will not be limited to housing. Among programs due for reauthorization are those that deal with sewer construction, airport development and highway maintenance and construction. Working for fair distribution formulas may mean more money for Nebraska without increasing overall spending."

You got a good thing going, America in that's natural gas.

C'mon America!
By installing a new natural gas water heater, you could save up to 24% a year over the operation of an older model.

And since natural gas is the most efficient energy system, by starting with gas your savings could be even more.

Gas water heaters are built to last longer, with longer warranties. There's no waste, and faster recovery means more hot water for the entire family.

And there's more.
Because natural gas is a product of the United States, by buying a gas appliance you'll be helping your country become less dependent on foreign energy sources. And since America has reserves well into the next century, gas makes sense in the future.

Whether the problem is saving money or helping solve America's energy problem, the solution becomes the same.

There are two sides to every outlet.

COAL	45%
WATER	29%
URANIUM	16%
GAS/OIL DIESEL	10%

This is ours.

Actually, when it comes to electricity, you should only have to be concerned about using it efficiently. It is our concern to be sure that the power comes out of an electric outlet when you need it. However, all of us share the concern of keeping energy costs as low as practical.

So we're trying to take good care of the power on our side, generating it with the fuel mix that's currently most economical, reliable and available. And as conditions change, so does the "mix".

Today, for instance, we are continuing to reduce our dependence on such costly and unreliable sources as gas and oil, setting them aside primarily to meet reserve requirements and high summer peaks. We are utilizing more of the plentiful supplies of coal, and are continuing to rely on nuclear (uranium) and hydro (water) power.

It's our job to make sure you get the power you must have on your side of the outlet. It's your job to use it efficiently.

Earned Income Credit Available to Taxpayers

The earned income credit is a refundable tax credit available to certain working parents who earned less than $10,000 in 1980, the Internal Revenue Service said.

The credit will be paid to taxpayers who qualify even if it exceeds tax liability or the taxpayer owes no taxes. Some taxpayers could receive a credit of as much as $500.

To be eligible for the earned income credit, taxpayers must: Have an "Adjusted Gross Income" and "Earned Income" (including that of spouse) of less than $10,000; and

File as married filing jointly, head of household, or qualifying widow or widower; and Not have any income earned in a foreign country or a U.S. possession, if the income is eligible for exclusion from gross income; and

Live in a home with a dependent child for the whole year or qualify as a head of household because a married child can be claimed as a dependent. If the taxpayer qualifies as a head of household because of an unmarried child, that child does not have to be claimed as a dependent.

Taxpayers may elect to receive their credit in one or two ways. If they are eligible, they can receive it when they file their return, or they may choose to have their employer include advance payments in their paychecks throughout the year, the IRS noted.

In order to receive advance payments during 1981, the taxpayer should expect to meet the above conditions for all of 1981. To apply for the credit, the taxpayer must file Form W-5, "Earned Income Credit Advance Payment Certificate," with his or her employer.

Additional information on the Earned Income Credit and advance payment is available by calling the IRS Forms/Tax Information number listed in the telephone directory.
