Council Accepts Assessments, Denies Liquor License Request

The Wayne City Council accepted two alternate assessment plans and denied a request for a liquor license at its regular meeting Tuesday night at the City Hall.

THE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION voted unanimously to accept alternate assessments in street improvement district No. 80-2 and No. 80-3.

The measure in District No. 80-2 will now assess the First Church of Christ $10,198.63 and Donald and Dottie Wacker $10,140.91 for street construction adjoining Highway 35 east of Wayne.

The original plan called for original assessments of $28,765.47 by each property owner. Now, the general obligation to the city of Wayne will assume an assessment cost of $38,924.60 to cover cost of a box culvert, storm sewer system, earth work, some paving and a proportionate cost of engineering and other expenses.

IN A CONTINUATION of a hearing on District 80-3, the Board voted unanimously to assess each property owner $9,298.80. This measure covers construction done near the new Wayne Veterinarians Clinic.

Total cost of this project is $31,668.28. General obligation will absorb $9,597.28 while property owners including the city of Wayne will be assessed a total of $22,071.00. The Board had to wait on results of the first resolution before continuing the second one.

BY A VOTE of 6-1, the City Council denied recommendation of a liquor license for 619 Windom Street. The request for a recommendation was made by Casey's General Store, which will reportedly be located at the Windom Street location.

Casey's is described as a combination convenience store which will sell food and retail products and dispense gasoline.

Councilman James Craun voted against the motion to deny the license to Casey's.

IN A PUBLIC hearing, Elton Lutt represented 8 of the 10 Wayne businesses with Class B liquor licenses in speaking against a liquor license for Casey's.

She brought it to the Council's attention that there are presently 14 liquor licenses in Wayne and figures show 340 persons per license.

Al Mohlfeld addressed the Council and pointed out that this is not a good time to grant another liquor license in Wayne.

APPOINTMENTS of Gary Van Meter and Dr. Sidney Hiller to the Planning Commission were unanimously approved.

IN OTHER ACTION, the Council: —Adopted a 1981 National Electrical Code.

—Adopted energy conservation guidelines.

—Continued until the next meeting, a decision on stop sign replacement.

—Adopted a notice of weed control.

—Accepted an offer for purchase of real estate.

—Discussed complaints on a special animal permit.

Howell Accepts Position

Dakota Native Named Editor

RANDALL HOWELL

Randall Howell, 34, a veteran newsman with over 15 years in daily and weekly newspapers, has been appointed editor of The Wayne Herald, according to Jim Marsh, business manager.

A South Dakota native, Howell was co-publisher of the Roseau Times-Region, a weekly newspaper serving Roseau County in northern Minnesota.

FORMERLY weekend editor of the Grand Forks Herald, Grand Forks, N. D., Howell also worked as managing editor of The Dickinson Press, Dickinson, N. D. Howell interrupted his newspaper career for a stint in South Dakota politics during the 1978 primary and general elections. He served as campaign manager for South Dakota's senior senator, Larry Pressler. He also was press secretary for the late LeRoy Hoffman in the South Dakota rancher's unsuccessful bid for the Republican nomination for governor. Hoffman lost the primary election to South Dakota Gov. William Janklow.

BEFORE entering politics Howell was business manager for three weekly newspapers in north central South Dakota. In addition, his journalism career includes a managing editorship with a business publishing house in New York City and the editorship of a small daily in Port Chester, N. Y. He also served as city editor for The Knickerbocker News, a daily newspaper in Albany, N. Y.

HOWELL began his newspaper career in his hometown as a part-time sports reporter for the Aberdeen American News, Aberdeen, S. D.

Howell and his wife, Randy, have moved to Wayne with their two children, Cassidy, 5, and Danielle, 3.

Bridge Footing Under Construction

CONSTRUCTION ON Highway 15 north of Wayne continues as workers begin construction on various areas of the stretch. Here, several workers tie steel reinforcement together to help strengthen a concrete base that will be poured at the bottom of a bridge. The site is just northwest of Rice Auditorium. The workers were hampered somewhat by the rain which was received in the Wayne area Saturday. Muddy conditions still existed at the location, Tuesday. It was reported that several cars got stuck while attempting to drive around the construction site Saturday night and Sunday.

Contamination in Allen Water Supply

Nitrate contamination has been confirmed in the drinking water supply serving the village of Allen.

The nitrate level in Allen is 11.6 milligrams per liter of water. The limit according to health department standards is 10 milligrams per liter.

The State Department of Health issued an exemption to the village of Allen so they can correct the problem by taking action to seek another water supply. Allen has until Jan. 1, 1984 to correct the matter.

According to a representative of the Department of Environmental Engineering, the nitrate level problem is nothing serious but needs to be corrected to meet state standards. Allen is one of 12 communities in which nitrate contamination has been reported.

The Health Department warns however that infants six months of age or younger should not drink the water in Allen. All physicians in the area have been notified by mail of the nitrate level.

The Village Board of Trustees at Allen is currently in the process of correcting the problem.

Little Paul is Bright, Quick to Smile, and He Has Cancer

THREE-YEAR-OLD PAUL JORDE and his mother share a precious moment together on the day of Paul's birthday. It's been less than a year since the Jordes discovered Paul is a victim of cancer.

By LaVon Beckman

A very special three year-old celebrated his birthday this week.

There were games and presents, a birthday cake, and of course, the traditional singing of the birthday song as his playmates, gathered around the table, eyes sparkling, watched.

"Make a wish, Paul!"

Little Pauley pauses for a second, turns up his bright blue eyes as if to wish on a star, inflates his cheeks until they resemble a chipmunk's, stretches up on his tiptoes, bends across the table, and, with one long gush of air extinguishes the three flickering flames.

WHAT DID he wish for? Maybe a bright red bicycle or a scruffy little kitten with long, tickle whiskers.

What were his parents silently wishing? Maybe for a miracle.

OTHER THAN a slight limp when he walks and the almost total loss of his once long, butter gold hair, there is little indication that Pauley has cancer. Terminal cancer.

It's called neuroblastoma. Until about a year ago, Pauley's parents, the Rev. John and Carol Jorde, had never heard the word.

The Jordes had moved to Wayne just two years earlier. John was, and still is, campus minister at Wayne State College. Carol was a teacher and the family, including sons Paul and Brian, who will be five in June, were beginning to feel comfortable in their new home and with their new found friends and neighbors.

He seemed to drag his foot

PAULEY was starting to walk when his parents noticed that he seemed to drag his left foot. Although concerned they were not overly alarmed. The problem, they thought, would be overcome with corrective shoes.

On April 10 of last year the family decided that Pauley should visit his local doctor, Jim Lindau. Maybe, they thought, one leg was slightly longer than the other.

An X-ray revealed a cloudy mass in the area of Pauley's pelvis and he was referred to a specialist in Omaha.

WHEN JOHN took Pauley to Omaha on April 12 for what he thought would be just a day of testing he was still not alarmed.

"I became apprehensive," he says, "when I found not one but four doctors waiting for me in the hospital's reception room." "How's your major-medical insurance?" asked the nurse, who then directed him to the admitting area.

'Something was wrong'

John said it was at that point his knew something was terribly wrong. "The word cancer had not been used yet," said John, "however specialists said there definitely was a destructive bone process."

The rest of the day was a blur of tests.

JOHN immediately called Carol, who was teaching in Norfolk at the time, to get her classes in order and come down to Omaha immediately. Pauley had been admitted to the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha and further tests were to be conducted.

"I was there alone," says Carol, "and I watched as they subjected my son to a long series of extensive, often extremely painful, tests."

Dr. Al-Rashid, head pediatric hematologist/oncologist, called Carol into his office. "It doesn't look good," he said. "It looks very bad." Dr. Al-Rashid showed Carol slides they had taken of Pauley, hugged her, and told her it was terminal.

ON APRIL 18 Pauley underwent surgery. Results of the surgery showed he had neuroblastoma with bone involvement. Doctors were able to remove 90 percent of the tumorous growth. His survival odds — 1 in 100.

Neuroblastoma is rarely seen in children over the age of two years. The disease strikes the undifferentiated cells of the embryonic nervous system.

Neuroblastoma strikes about four children in every 100,000. Only four or five children in the world diagnosed as having neuroblastoma with bone involvement have lived beyond their projected times.

The cancerous cells in Pauley had attached themselves to his left pelvis, destroying from inside the bone out.

"FROM THE time Pauley was admitted into the Omaha hospital until the time he underwent surgery, just six days, Pauley's limp became more pronounced," says Carol. "By Thursday, the day before surgery, he could only crawl on his stomach."

"He got very angry," said John. "He was leaning against the wall and was extremely frustrated because he couldn't get to his toys in the room."

THE DAY before surgery Pauley was released from the hospital for a short time to have his picture taken. "We didn't know," explains Carol, "doctors said his chances of surviving surgery were 50-50."

The picture taken that day shows a bright little boy with long, flaxen hair and a radiant smile. Today, Pauley is still quick to smile, however he has lost almost all of his hair because of weekly chemotherapy treatments he must undergo.

'I was singing and weeping'

CAROL is certain that Pauley sensed the pain she was going through. "I remember sitting in the hospital room rocking Pauley before putting him to bed. I was singing to him and at the same time weeping. Pauley stood up on my knees and looked me straight in the eyes. "I'm O.K.," he said softly. "I love you."

PAULEY was released from the hospital at the end of April but continued to receive treatment there as an out patient throughout the month of May. During that time he underwent radiation therapy on both sides of his pelvis so that as he grew the pelvis would remain uniform on both sides.

Although the radiation was given in hopes of destroying what was left of the tumor following Pauley's surgery, its side effects can be grave.

"For young persons who undergo radiation there is a much higher risk of cancer as an adult. Pauley also is sterile because of the amount of radiation he has received."

THE family sub-rented a home in Omaha while Pauley was undergoing treatment there. Son Brian had gone to stay with John's sister in North Dakota.

"At one point in the hospital Pauley took a definite turn for the worse," Carol had a

No Marriage is Absolutely Divorce-Proof

No marriage can be made absolutely divorce-proof. This country's high rate of divorce — 40 percent of all first marriages will end in divorce — is one of the most common criticisms of contemporary society.

"Honest marriage partners recognize that strong relationships result from the real tests of living," says Dr. Herbert G. Lingren, extension family life specialist at the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

"Intimacy may be built on surviving crises, pain and suffering as much as it is built on happiness, romance and sexual ecstasy."

ACCORDING to Dr. James E. Kilgore, president of the International Family Association, the following seven steps could be called "seven stones in the altar of marriage" and may be helpful in avoiding divorce.

1) BUILD each other up — others will do the tearing down.

Practice complimenting your spouse. Nobody ever gets too much genuine praise. Some people feel obligated to keep their mates "humble." They don't want them to get "big-headed." So, they withhold praise but pour on the criticism.

One husband said, "Everybody tells her how wonderful she is. Somebody needs to keep her head small." Unfortunately, this criticism and antagonism drove her out of the marriage.

A woman tends to be as beautiful as she is told she is. A man will do almost anything to live up to the compliments and pride of a woman.

Never make your mate the object of jokes. Sarcasm is the cancer of marital communication. Everyone may laugh, but the tears fall on the inside. Behind most jokes which are humorous at the expense of your partner, is the spirit of malice and bitterness. Don't put each other down; build each other up.

"Death and life are in the power of the tongue."

2) SHARE honestly with each other — the world is a lonely place. When God created woman, He said, "It is not good for man to be alone."

What makes marriage unique is the special intimacy involved. How tragic to be shut out by the one you love. Yet so many husbands and wives brutally hurt each other by shutting the other out when they face conflict. Keep your heart's door open to the one you love.

True, sharing is risky business. There are no guarantees, but in marriage we commit ourselves to seek each other's welfare. Practice listening to each other, observing behavior, clarifying what you hear and responding with your own feelings.

"Avoid walking out or 'clamming up' as a way of controlling arguments. Certainly we need to discipline our own thoughts toward understanding before trying to share them."

"He that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city that is broken down, and without walls." But don't let that become a pattern of avoidance with your partner. It becomes a method of defrauding your mate just as much as withholding sex or love.

Recognize the meaning of intimacy. We need each other.

3) USE CONFLICT realistically — disagreement is not a sign of weakness in marriage.

Marriage mixes together two different lives. "Becoming as one" does not mean dominance of one over the other. It involves a series of compromises. Here are six ways to manage conflict:

- Handle the conflict as it arises
 - Confront each other courteously
 - Stick to the issue
 - Seek compromise
 - Listen as much as you talk
 - Look forward to reconciliation.
- Life involves conflict. The mature couple learns to manage it and respond in appropriate ways. Husbands and wives need time for settling differences and to work together to diminish the negative effects of conflict. Intimacy can be created by sharing the same goals — we together can handle our problems.

There is one caution, however. No argument should be severe enough to threaten each other with the word "divorce." Too many couples wind up in the divorce court because of "pride." Having challenged each other, they are too proud to back down.

"Pride ends in a fall, while humility brings honor." Once the seed is planted, it grows as tenaciously as weeds in a garden.

4) LEARN how to say "Forgive me." The five most important words you can learn in a human relationship are: "I'm sorry, please forgive me."

The oft-quoted line from the movie, Love Story, "Love is never having to say you're sorry," is inappropriate as far as marital relations is concerned. Love is being able to confess and forgive as well as to hear and be forgiving. Forgiving means accepting what has happened, accepting the apology and pledging yourself to live in the present and the future, not the past. To forgive means to forget.

The husband or wife who recalls an incident and exacts "a pound of flesh" has not forgiven the spouse. The difficulty really lies with the offending party.

A wise man once said "It is harder to win back the friendship of an offended person than to capture a fortified city. His anger shuts you out like iron bars."

5) LOVING BREAKS the limits in our lives — don't be jealous.

Consider these two scenarios: Jerry, married 35 years, said "I think that my major life assignment is to create a home in which my wife can become all that is within her to become. When she reaches her potential, I too, will be fulfilled."

Allison, with her marriage of 10 years in trouble because of her jealousy said, "I should be the most important in his life. I want most, if not all, of his attention and time. Isn't that what I am entitled to as his wife?"

Here, she communicates her demands rather than her support. Her husband felt restricted and not appreciated. He could not be free to give because anything he offered was expected. His incentive therefore was crippled and her demands increased.

If you really love, give your love — set it free and it will return many times over.

6) DISCOVER how to have fun with each other. Good marriages involve having more fun with each other than with other people. This is a relationship built on friendship. Learn to enjoy each other by sharing the important things, and the trivial things in life.

Too many relationships become dull and routine because couples allow themselves too few opportunities to play. Children may be important, but poor parenting is done by unhappy people.

Practice the discipline of scheduling time to be alone with each other to enjoy activities. If you don't find the happy moments will be shared in other relationships. Sometimes these situations can temporarily become more meaningful than the marriage. On occasion this leads to sharing affection and even adultery.

7) SHARE your faith positively.

Research on what are the characteristics of "strong" families indicate that families that share religious experiences and faith together are more likely to be satisfying than families that do not. There is no more positive force than a common commitment and faith together. It seems that they also have one additional resource in coping with life's problems.

"To be loved, really loved, and know it, is the greatest gift we can receive," says Lingren.

Television Series Features Workshop Postponed Hoskins Farm Family

A Hoskins farm family, Mike and Pat Meierhenry, will be featured on a new four part 4 H television series, entitled "Close to Home — The Energy Challenge."

Other farm families from Omaha, Lincoln and Raymond are being featured in the program which focuses on energy conservation and use in industry and the home.

Glen Krohn, extension 4 H youth development specialist at the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said the programs are being aired on the Nebraska Educational Television network each Thursday April 2, 9, 16 and 23 at 7:30 p.m.

The second program, on April 9, will include the Meierhenrys of Hoskins and the V. T. Miller family of Lincoln, who will give their response to the energy shortage and demonstrate the variety of ways energy is used in the home.

The "Energy Challenge" television program was produced by University of Nebraska television and was filmed on location at sites in Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and Colorado.

Local county extension agents can assist school classes or 4 H groups enroll in the "Energy Challenge" project and can provide printed project materials.

The workshop, which will run for five consecutive Wednesday evenings, is being sponsored by the Wayne Regional Arts Council. Instructor is Dennis Linster.

A workshop in intermediate photography techniques scheduled to begin Wednesday, April 1, has been postponed until Wednesday, April 8.

The course is designed for anyone who knows the basic techniques of using a 35 mm or larger adjustable camera. Classes will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Room 103 in Bentback Hall on the Wayne State College campus.

The off-quoted line from the movie, Love Story, "Love is never having to say you're sorry," is inappropriate as far as marital relations is concerned. Love is being able to confess and forgive as well as to hear and be forgiving. History Book Committee Assembling Material

Members of the various committees working on the new History of Wayne County are busy reviewing and assembling materials which they have received from several hundred families, businesses and organizations.

Lucile Larson, a member of the committee, said many stories and book orders are still coming in. Workers, she said, will be busy for the next several weeks compiling all the information that will go into the new history book.

Mrs. Larson said families who have not sent in their histories, or persons who have not yet placed their order for a book(s) may continue to do so for some time.

Cost of the new history book, which is beautifully hardbound in leatherette with a gold stamped cover, is $30.90, plus an extra charge of $2.75 for mailing.

Members of all committees will meet at the museum Monday, April 6, at 9:30 a.m.

Wakefield Opens Season Today in Laurel Relays

Seven returning lettermen will be top contenders for the Wakefield track team this year.

Seniors Kendall Paulsen and Brent Kahl will be the team leaders.

Paulsen, a three-year letterman, will compete in the mile and two-mile. He is still not 100 percent recovered from a case of mononucleosis but should be ready to perform as the Trojans open their season today in the Laurel-Concord Relays.

Paulsen placed third in districts last year and is the leading performer who returns from that squad. Kahl will run the 400 and 800 meter races. According to coach Dennis Wilbur, several individuals can run the 400 well.

Two-year lettermen are juniors Vaughn Nixon and Jerry Roberts. Nixon will run the 400 and 800 and throw the discus. Roberts may be the fastest 400 meter sprinter on the team.

Other lettermen are Doug Verplank, Dirk Carlson and Brent VanderVeen. Carlson will run the 200 and 400; Verplank will run the 400, 800 and probably the 1,600, and VanderVeen will run the 200, 400 and 800.

Five other individuals, who are out for track for the first time, will compose the remainder of the squad.

Senior Scott Obermeyer will compete in the long jump. Juniors Duane Witt and Steve Warren will add some depth in the field events. Witt will throw the shot and discus and Warren will compete in the polevault as well as sprints.

Sophomore Rod Nixon played baseball last year but will add some speed to the track team this season as he competes in the sprints and 400. Freshman Brian Obermeyer will run the 800, 1,600 and possibly the 3,200.

Assistant coach this year is Mark Kober. "We will have a heck of a mile team," Wilbur said while looking toward today's competition in the Laurel-Concord Relays. "Our two-mile team could be pretty tough and we should do alright in a couple of open events."

Season schedule: April 2—Laurel-Concord Relays; April 6—at Wisner; April 10—Wayne State Invitational; April 15—Wakefield Invitational; April 27—Triangular at Wisner; April 30—Winside Invitational; May 7—Lewis and Clark Meet at Wayne State; May 12—Districts; May 22-23—State Meet.

THE TRACK sees plenty of action these days as Wakefield's boys track team prepares for its season opener.

Trojans Hope Underclassmen Will Fill Shoes of Graduates

Wakefield girls track coach Ellie Studer is looking for good things from her squad despite the graduation of several strong individuals from last year's successful team.

The Trojans are scheduled to open their season today (Thursday) in the Laurel-Concord Relays.

Of the 10 girls out for track, four are lettermen. With only two seniors on the squad, underclassmen are expected to help out.

Returning lettermen are seniors Joan Miller and Shelley Paul, junior Teresa Biggerstaff and sophomore Kris Fredrickson.

Miller will compete in the 400 meter run, the 4x100 relay and the long jump. Paul will compete in the 200 meter dash, the 4x100 relay and the long jump. Both girls may compete in the 4x400 relay.

Biggerstaff will run the hurdles and Fredrickson, the lone sophomore, will run in the 800 and 4x800 relay.

Juniors on the team are Mary Henderson in the shot put and Amy Neuhaus in the 1,600 and possibly the 4x800 meter relay.

The rest of the team is made up of freshmen. Michele Meyer is expected to help the team in the 4x100, 4x400 and 4x800 relays. Susan Rouse will run the 100 and 200 meter sprints. Trisha Willers will compete in the 4x800 relay and Kandy Kinney will run the 400.

"I'm looking for a good team. We hope to do fairly well in the Laurel Relays and hope to get down to Burke (State track meet)," Studer said. "It will be interesting to see how districts and state are with boys and girls combined."

"Half of last year's state qualifying relay team is gone but Studer is planning for a good 4x100 team this year. The team also should be strong in sprints," she said.

"We lost five individuals from last year's team but we have some good freshmen and hopefully we'll be able to replace the graduates," Studer stated. "I look for our two seniors to give us a lot of points, and good leadership."

The Trojans have a tough road to follow as they are defending champions in the Laurel Relays. Lewis and Clark Conference Meet and Wayne State Invitational. Wakefield also finished in the runnerup spot at districts last spring.

"Last year's accomplishments will be hard to follow but we'll give it a try. If everyone gives a good effort, we should have a good season," Studer said. "We are working toward state and I have hopes to qualify in quite a few events."

When asked in which events she thought her team would have the best chance to qualify for state, Studer replied, one or two relays and possibly four or five individual events.

Miller said she hopes that the 400 meter relay team will qualify for state. The senior pointed out that the team lost several key individuals to graduation but added that the freshmen and sophomores should help out. Assistant coach this year is Lori Koester, a Wayne State student.

"We have good quality but not enough quantity," Studer stated.

Season schedule: April 2—Laurel-Concord Relays; April 6—dual at Wisner; April 9—Wayne State Invitational; April 15—Wakefield Invitational at WSC; April 27—dual at Wisner; April 30—Winside Invitational; May 7—Lewis and Clark Conference at WSC; May 12—Districts at Lyons; May 22-23—State Meet at Omaha.

Body of Connie Kunzman Recovered from River

The body of Nebraska Wrangler professional basketball player Connie Kunzman was recovered Saturday from the Missouri River according to reports from Omaha.

Kunzman reportedly was killed on Feb. 7. Lance E. Tibke, 25 of Omaha, has been ordered to stand trial on a charge of second-degree murder in connection with her death.

Kunzman was a Wayne State standout in basketball and softball before becoming a pro basketball player. She played with the now defunct Iowa Cornets before joining the Wranglers.

According to reports, her body was discovered by two brothers who were walking along the riverbank, nearly a mile south of Dodge Park. The boys reportedly saw the body clothed in jeans, boots and a red plaid shirt snagged on a fallen tree limb about 15 feet from the west bank.

Earlier searches conducted by the police department and sheriff's patrol were futile because of cold and ice.

MEMBERS OF THE Wakefield girls track team work out during a warm afternoon in preparation for today's relays.

Hutchinson Awarded A.D. Scholarship

Wayne State basketball co-captain Doug Hutchinson from Council Grove, Kan., has been awarded a 1981 NAIA Athletic Director Association Scholarship Award for the 1981-82 school year.

Hutchinson will use the $500 scholarship towards tuition and fees to pursue a graduate degree in athletic administration. He is the third recipient to be honored as he was chosen from nominations from all over the United States. Along with the scholarship Hutchinson received a NAIA

Certificate of Recognition for being chosen.

Hutchinson served as the Wildcats point guard this year leading them to a District 11 playoff position. His leadership on the floor contributed to many fine plays this season as the Wayne State basketball squad thrilled the area fans with an exciting brand of play.

Doug is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.C. Hutchinson of Council Grove, Kan.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

THE BODY of Connie Kunzman was recovered from the Missouri River this past Saturday. To her family and friends it has to be somewhat comforting to know that her body has finally been found after a long unsuccessful search.

Kunzman will be remembered at Wayne State for the contributions she made during her college career and her professional basketball career. Her death was one of many tragedies in today's world of increasing crime and murder.

HOOSIER FANS can cheer. After numerous upsets in the NCAA playoffs, basketball fans were tabbing Indiana the favorite to win the NCAA title. And the way the Hoosiers were playing, who could argue.

Being a backer of the Atlantic Coast Conference, I was disappointed when both of my teams were knocked out of the playoffs. North Carolina made it to the finals while Virginia had to settle for third place by winning the consolation finals.

Iowa basketball fans also can make a claim that their team is one of the best in the country since the Hawkeyes defeated Indiana twice this past season.

IF THE WEATHER holds up, it appears that conditions will be near ideal for the annual Laurel-Concord Relays today (Thursday) at the Wayne State College track.

The field has been expanded to include 22 teams and this early meet is a test which gives a good idea which teams will be contenders this season.

The Laurel meet has been plagued by dismal weather for years. Rain, cold, sleet, hail, snow and strong winds have not been uncommon in past years. Cross your fingers that this year will be different.

With the beautiful weather thus far this spring, I have to believe that good things are around the corner for the sport of track and field in Nebraska.

Track squads have had an opportunity to work outside much earlier this year because of the weather. Therefore, team members should be in better shape and more prepared for this season's meets.

And if the weather holds up throughout the spring, times and distances should be improved. Records in various high schools will fall and marks at the state meet in May should be record breakers if the weather continues to cooperate at that time.

The 1981 season should be interesting for yet another reason. This is the first year that girls and boys district and state meets will be combined.

I hope that the combined meets work out well at the district and state sites but have my doubts about how smoothly they will run.

WAYNE STATE'S BASEBALL team has hit the magic .500 mark. The Wildcats, who suffer record-wise each spring on their southern tour, have now evened their record.

That may not sound like much of an accomplishment but it really is. Usually, WSC gets beat around by the big buffies on the southern trip and it takes half of the season to get back near the .500 mark.

Overall records don't actually mean much because key games will decide the future for WSC. However, it has to be encouraging to the players to have nine wins under their belt toward their goal of 30 victories.

People have to be happy with the performances that Bill Schwartz has had already this season. He has been knocking homers left and right and driving in lots of runs for the Cats. If the Wayne native keeps up his pace, he may be in contention for All-American honors.

Laurel Baseball Team Will Shoot for the Top

Good pitching depth and strong defense up the middle should be two of the pluses for the Laurel baseball team as the season opens today in a doubleheader at Boys Town.

The Laurels will be led by seven lettermen who will make up the nucleus of the squad. Joe Olsen, an all-conference pitcher and center fielder, should be one of the team's assets. Honorable mention candidate Bryan Bess will return at second base and is expected to be Laurel's leading RBI man.

Phil Martin will pitch and play in center field when Olsen is in the other position. Dave and Brian Marquardt will play third base and catcher respectively.

Scott Norvell will be first baseman and Kelly Robson will be shortstop for the Laurels. Those are the returning lettermen.

Other probable starters are Ron Hirschman in right field and Dennis Martin in left field. Infielder John Chace and outfielders Mark Hermann and Jim Casey make up the remainder of the team.

Veteran coach Bob Weisenberg said he expects good pitching depth with Olsen and Martin filling the top two spots. Olsen should have a good season according to Weisenberg and Martin compiled a 12-5 record in Midget baseball last summer.

The big hole which is left after last year's graduation is that of catcher. All-state player Shannon Hopkins is gone and Brian Marquardt, a Midget catcher, has been looking good according to Weisenberg.

"I expect our defense up the middle to be good. Offensively, we have a number of people who should be able to hit," Weisenberg stated. "Our hitting will probably depend on the pitching we face. A good person on the mound can minimize good hitting."

Weisenberg said that his team speed would be "average at best" and predicted that Wayne and Wakefield would be tough with their ace pitchers Pfeiffer and Starzl on the mound.

"Those two teams have good tradition. We must overcome the tradition of losing to them. Bancroft has a good team but lacks the dominating type of pitcher," Weisenberg said.

There are a lot of variables in high school. We could have a very good season and are looking forward to a good season," said Weisenberg. "We plan to work as hard as we can and let things go where they go. This team is full of hard workers. It's a good bunch of people to be around."

Season schedule: April 2—at Boys Town; April 8—Wayne at Laurel; April 10—Wakefield at Laurel; April 13—at East Butler; April 15—at Wayne; April 24—at Wakefield; April 28—Bancroft at Laurel; April 30—at Bancroft and Lincoln Plus; May 7—Bancroft at Laurel (dbl.).

Lady Cats Extend Wins

The Wayne State Lady Wildcats have extended their modest winning streak to four games as they swept two doubleheaders in this past weekend.

The Lady Wildcats traveled to Omaha Friday where they defeated St. Marys 12-4 and 6-1. Cindy Stella picked up the win for the Lady Cats and Marilyn Strate gave the Wildcats the offensive punch they needed with a double and a triple, knocking in five runs.

Lynne Larson pitched a three hitter in the second contest as she limited St. Marys to only one run in seven innings. Lynne Brandt had four hits in four at bats to lead Wayne State in the second game.

The Lady Wildcats then moved farther south where they defeated Tarkio College at Peru

State 11-1 and Peru State in the second game by the score of 10-3.

Larson again was the winning pitcher in the first game for the Lady Wildcats as she threw a one-hitter and limited the Bobcats to just one run.

The second game was shortened by rain as Maggie Alberts picked up her first win of the season. Wayne State now stands 5-1 on the year.

SOMEDAY, MAYBE YOUR LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY WILL OFFER THESE SAME BREAKS.

MAYBE.

Recently, Northwestern Mutual Life developed a program called "GET MORE OUT OF LIFE". This program provides a 14% average increase in coverage to owners of permanent policies, with no increase in the policy premium.* So while future dividends will be slightly lower than they would have been, future cash values on these policies will actually be higher!

All this results in tax savings being channeled back to policyowners, the true owners of the company. Imagine - a 14% average increase in coverage per policy. This adds up to 4 billion dollars nationwide!

Other life insurance companies can make such a program available. But The Northwestern is actually doing it! If you want to be a Northwestern policyowner call.

Call Northwestern Agent Janice Ellis, 375-4701, 108 W. 3rd, Wayne, NE, 68787

You Do What You Have to Do, And You Do It the Best You Can'

 slight kidney infection and received medication which gave a faulty mononucleosis diagnosis. She was unable to visit Pauley for several days.
 "He seemed to lose his spirit," said John. He refused to eat and doctors gave the family permission to take him home during the weekend in an attempt to lift his spirits and restore his appetite.
 Pauley had gone from 31 pounds down to 17.

TODAY Pauley has regained much of his weight. He visits Dr. Lindau in Wayne each Wednesday for chemotherapy injections. Wednesdays have become known as "poke day" smiles Carol.
 Injections of cytosin and vincristin, two drugs used in chemotherapy, are given alternately each Wednesday during Pauley's visit to his local doctor.

At the end of every 12 weeks he is admitted to the hospital in Omaha for three days, where he receives injections of adriamycin. It is during this time his immunity level is particularly low and the hospital stay secures him from contacting any virus which would interfere with the chemotherapy he receives.
 The drug adriamycin also produces serious side effects. It kills the good cells as well as the bad and destroys the heart muscle.

WHAT ARE Pauley's chances of long term survival? Doctors predicted he would live six months following his surgery last April. On Tuesday, March 30, Paul Jonathan Ewald Jorde celebrated his third birthday, nearly one year following his surgery.
 "As long as Paul continues to respond to the chemotherapy treatments we have hope," said the Jordes. Most children die after their system becomes immune to the drugs they are receiving. So far this hasn't been the case with Pauley.

However, the longer Paul continues to undergo chemotherapy the more likely his chances of becoming immune to the drugs he receives.

'You do the best you can'
 HOW HAVE the Jordes adjusted to Pauley's illness? "You don't," says Carol.

"You just try to live with the crisis. You do what you have to do and do it the best you can."

Both Carol and John feel their Christian faith has helped them cope with the dramatic changes which have taken place in their lives during the past year.

"It's been particularly hard for Brian," explains Carol. He couldn't understand why all the attention and presents were focused on brother Paul. He felt, and was, being neglected.

"If I took a very special friend with a very special understanding to turn me around," says Carol. "She reminded me that I had two sons and they each needed my special attention."
 "Brian was so confused. One day he asked me point blank if Pauley was going underground? "Is he going to die and be with God?" asked Brian. "Yes, Brian, he is," Carol softly replied.

"THERE'S BEEN a big change in Brian during the past year," says his mother. "He prays for his brother every night and affectionately refers to him as Kojack," she smiles.

PAULEY, who bounces gaily around the room, taking time out to munch an apple, seems as loveable and ornery as any other little three-year old. "There are days," says Carol, "when I don't even think about the cancer eating away on Pauley."
 Carol says she tries to let Pauley lead as normal a life as possible. About the only thing she restricts at times is his exposure to large groups of youngsters and their diseases. During chemotherapy, a patient's resistance to other diseases is very low. Chicken pox, for example, can be a killer.

'Paul lives a full day'
 "Paul lives a full day," says his father. "Although because of the circumstances we may just perceive that he does." (Pauley was tested a gifted child by doctors in the Omaha hospital where he underwent surgery).

THE SWEET sound of laughter and the presence of a lot of love are evident to visitors in the Jorde household.

Carol smiles as she tells how the family uses projection techniques to "scare" Pauley's cancer away.

"One time we sent the cancer away in a balloon. Other times we each have drawn on a piece of paper what we perceived the cancer to look like, crumpled the drawings, and proceeded to burn them in the fire place." A favorite is when the family gathers around the table screaming at the top of their lungs for the cancer to leave.

Carol laughs as she tells how Brian, one day while the two of them were riding alone in the car, asked his mother to someday explain to him how "scaring gets the cancer out."

"I THINK everyone has a dream of what they want to do when they learn someone close to them might die soon," says Carol.

Her dream was to take Paul to Disneyland, and in February that dream came true.
 The whole family packed up for several days and headed for California. Pauley said he especially liked the haunted house and the ghost that seemed to occupy the seat next to him. But he says next time he plans to take along a flashlight.

EVERY DAY is a special day for the four Jordes no matter where they are. "I remember one day Pauley and I were shopping at an Omaha mall," says John. "Because of the loss of his hair and slight limp I saw passersby look twice at Pauley, and I wondered if they thought he was retarded. I was feeling a little low when all at once Pauley looked up and stretched out his hand. 'Hey dad, give me a big 5. Boy do I love you. How about an ice cream cone?'" "I laughed," said John, "and thought to myself that those same passersby would never know the tremendous amount of love that was exchanged that day between me and my son."

ALTHOUGH Carol's smile seems to come much easier now, she says there are still days when all she wants to do is be alone and cry.

"I went through all the stages one is supposed to feel when they learn that someone they love is dying." There was first denial, then anger, bargaining and depression. She says, however, it will take a long time before the final stage is completed, that of acceptance.

"I only remember bargaining once," said Carol. "I wanted Pauley to see Christmas come and go."

"It can be terribly lonely at times," she explains. "I remember walking out of a department store one day and seeing people scolding or being rude to their children. I was angry because they seemed to be taking their nice, normal children for granted. I wanted to scream. My son is dying of cancer."

CAROL says she doesn't dwell on the prospect of her son's death. "Last August I planned Pauley's funeral and then I mentally filed away the thought of it."

"I've zeroed in on my values since learning of Pauley's illness," says Carol. The house John and I built three years ago said who we were... but it's not who we are anymore."

CAROL SAYS Pauley's illness has had a profound effect. "I'm better at living day to day, although I've never lost my future orientation. John and I planned to spend Christmas with Pauley and Brian, and we're looking forward to Easter."

Carol said her friends have been an enormous help during the past year. The kindest words she says she could hope for a friend to say are "I really care and am confused, what can I do?"

ARE THE Jordes still hoping for a miracle? "Pauley says Carol is a miracle."
 "Life's full of land mines, and we just hit one."

'You Do What You Have to Do, And You Do It the Best You Can'

slight kidney infection and received medication which gave a faulty mononucleosis diagnosis. She was unable to visit Pauley for several days.
"He seemed to lose his spirit," said John. He refused to eat and doctors gave the family permission to take him home during the weekend in an attempt to lift his spirits and restore his appetite.
Pauley had gone from 31 pounds down to 17.

TODAY Pauley has regained much of his weight. He visits Dr. Lindau in Wayne each Wednesday for chemotherapy injections. Wednesdays have become known as "poke day" smiles Carol.
Injections of cytoxan and vincristin, two drugs used in chemotherapy, are given alternately each Wednesday during Pauley's visit to his local doctor.
At the end of every 12 weeks he is admitted to the hospital in Omaha for three days, where he receives injections of adriamycin. It is during this time his immunity level is particularly low and the hospital stay secures him from contacting any virus which would interfere with the chemotherapy he receives.
The drug adriamycin also produces serious side effects. It kills the good cells as well as the bad and destroys the heart muscle.

WHAT ARE Pauley's chances of long term survival? Doctors predicted he would live six months following his surgery last April. On Tuesday, March 30, Paul Jonathan Ewald Jorde celebrated his third birthday nearly one year following his surgery.
"As long as Paul continues to respond to the chemotherapy treatments we have hope," said the Jordes. Most children die after their system becomes immune to the drugs they are receiving. So far this hasn't been the case with Pauley.

However, the longer Paul continues to undergo chemotherapy the more likely his chances of becoming immune to the drugs he receives.

'You do the best you can'

HOW HAVE the Jordes adjusted to Pauley's illness? You don't, says Carol.

"you just try to live with the crisis. You do what you have to do and do it the best you can."

Both Carol and John feel their Christian faith has helped them cope with the dramatic changes which have taken place in their lives during the past year.

"It's been particularly hard for Brian," explains Carol. He couldn't understand why all the attention and presents were focused on brother Paul. He felt, and was, being neglected.

"I took a very special friend with a very special understanding to turn me around," says Carol. "She reminded me that I had two sons and they each needed my special attention."

"Brian was so confused. One day he asked me point blank if Pauley was going underground." "Is he going to die and be with God?" asked Brian. "Yes, Brian, he is," Carol softly replied.

"THERE'S BEEN a big change in Brian during the past year," says his mother. "He prays for his brother every night and affectionately refers to him as Kojack," she smiles.

PAULEY, who bounces gaily around the room, taking time out to munch an apple, seems as loveable and ornery as any other little three year old. "There are days," says Carol, "when I don't even think about the cancer eating away on Pauley."

Carol says she tries to let Pauley lead as normal a life as possible. About the only thing she restricts at times is his exposure to large groups of youngsters and their diseases. During chemotherapy, a patient's resistance to other diseases is very low. Chicken pox, for example, can be a killer.

'Paul lives a full day'

Paul lives a full day, says his father, although because of the circumstances he may just perceive that he does. (Pauley was tested a gifted child by doctors in the Omaha hospital where he underwent surgery.)

THE SWEET sound of laughter, and the presence of a lot of love are evident to visitors in the Jorde household.

Carol smiles as she tells how the family uses projection techniques to scare Pauley's cancer away.

"One time we sent the cancer away in a balloon. Other times we each have drawn on a piece of paper what we perceived the cancer to look like, crumpled the drawings and proceeded to burn them in the fire place. A favorite is when the family gathers around the table screaming at the top of their lungs for the cancer to leave."

Carol laughs as she tells how Brian, one day while the two of them were riding alone in the car, asked his mother to someday explain to him how "scaring gets the cancer out."

"I THINK everyone has a dream of what they want to do when they learn someone close to them might die soon," says Carol.

Her dream was to take Paul to Disneyland, and in February that dream came true.

The whole family packed up for several days and headed for California. Pauley said he especially liked the haunted house and the ghost that seemed to occupy the seat next to him. But he says next time he plans to take along a flashlight.

EVERY DAY is a special day for the four Jordes no matter where they are. "I remember one day Pauley and I were shopping at an Omaha mall," says John. "Because of the loss of his hair and slight limp I saw passersby look twice at Pauley, and I wondered if they thought he was retarded. I was feeling a little low when all at once Pauley looked up and stretched out his hand. 'Hey dad, give me a big 5. Boy do I love you. How about an ice cream cone?'" "I laughed," said John, "and thought to myself that those same passersby would never know the tremendous amount of love that was exchanged that day between me and my son."

ALTHOUGH Carol's smile seems to come much easier now, she says there are still days when all she wants to do is be alone and cry.

"I went through all the stages one is supposed to feel when they learn that someone they love is dying." There was first denial, then anger, bargaining and depression. She says, however, it will take a long time before the final stage is completed, that of acceptance.

"I only remember bargaining once," said Carol. "I wanted Pauley to see Christmas come and go."

"It can be terribly lonely at times," she explains. "I remember walking out of a department store one day and seeing people scolding or being rude to their children. I was angry because they seemed to be taking their nice normal children for granted. I wanted to scream. My son is dying of cancer."

CAROL says she doesn't dwell on the prospect of her son's death. Last August 11 she planned Pauley's funeral and then it mentally filed away the thought of it.

"I've reared in on my values since learning of Pauley's illness," says Carol. "The house John and I built three years ago said who we were... but it's not who we are anymore."

CAROL SAYS Pauley's illness has had a profound effect. "I'm better at living day to day, although I've never lost my future orientation. John and I planned to spend Christmas with Pauley and Brian and we're looking forward to Easter."

Carol said her friends have been an enormous help during the past year. The kindest words she says she could hope for a friend to say are, "I really care and am confused what can I do?"

ARE THE Jordes still hoping for a miracle? Pauley says Carol is a miracle.

"Life's full of land mines, and we just hit one."

Legislature Ready To Pass Bill on Coal-Train Traffic

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

The Nebraska Legislature appears ready and willing to pass a railroad-backed bill that senators say addresses the problem of increased coal-train traffic in the state.

The measure, known as the train-mile tax bill, would raise money to help pay for overpasses in Nebraska communities that may be feeling the brunt of the increased coal-train traffic.

This isn't the first time Nebraska lawmakers have tackled the issue, but it apparently is the first time senators are working on a bill that the railroads can live with. Reason? The railroads helped draft this legislation.

The 1980 Legislature addressed the same issue and passed what is known as a ton-mile tax, a device that charges railroads ac-ording to the weight of the freight carried. The railroads don't like the ton-mile tax, and have pledged a court fight if the tax goes into effect July 1 as planned.

Probably the only thing short of a court injunction that could stop the ton-mile tax from going into effect this summer is passage of the railroad's preferred train-mile tax, the guts of LB190.

Lawmakers recently sent LB190 to the final stage of consideration on a strong 35-1 vote, with only Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood balking at the railroads' bill.

The revenue-raising mechanism in LB190 would impose a tax of 67 cents on each mile that a train travels in the state, thus the name train-mile tax.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh, sponsor of LB190, says Nebraska is the first state on railroads. Estimates are that either tax would raise about $15 million a year.

Schmit says he has trouble with the legislation, especially in light of the much talked about federal budget cuts. He also contends the railroads have made the Legislature cower by threatening a court battle if the ton-mile tax is allowed to go into effect.

The veteran and respected senator from Bellwood has tried — but failed — in attempts to kill DeCamp's and the railroads' bill. Schmit reasons that overpass and underpass projects just might be scrapped if federal funds are cut.

Schmit, in fact, is predicting the demise of the federal aid, which pays 80 percent of the cost of such projects. If that does happen and all Nebraska has to work with is $15 million, the state won't even have enough money to pay for one major project, Schmit says.

DeCamp, however, isn't as worried as his sometimes ally, sometimes foe in the first place. DeCamp asserts, the federal financing is assured at least through fiscal 1982. In the second place, he says, other financing schemes are being considered by Congress for rail projects.

Schmit would like to be as sure, but he's not. About the only thing that is certain right now is that the Legislature probably will pass the train-mile tax and, for better or worse, avoid a court challenge of the ton-mile tax.

Was Bolin Fired?

What really happened to State Corrections Director Jerry Bolin?

That question was being asked in many quarters immediately after the recent announcement that Bolin, by "mutual consent" with Gov. Charles Thone, had resigned.

No one publicly said Bolin was fired, was forced to resign or simply got fed up and quit. Not even Thone's new aide, former newsman Jack Hart, would shed any light on exactly what happened to bring about the resignation.

The man who was named acting director, Donald Best, was about the only "insider" who was willing at least initially to say more than the resignation was by "mutual consent." Best even returned reporters' phone calls.

According to Best, Bolin for some time had been thinking about moving on. Bolin later said "it is a matter of a number of things that have been going on here," but he wouldn't be specific. No one would.

What is known, however, is that Bolin's department has been involved in controversy and is being investigated.

Both Thone and the Legislature's Judiciary Committee have been investigating a disturbance at the trusty dorm last August. The punishment that was meted out to inmates who were involved and a subsequent hunger strike by punished inmates. The state Ombudsman's office also has done some digging.

Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff, chairman of the Legislature's Judiciary Committee, said Bolin's resignation would hamper somewhat his committee's investigation. But he said it would continue.

Nichol also revealed that rumors have been circulating about Bolin's pending resignation, but he didn't believe them. "I really don't think the handling of the situation was bad enough to require his resignation," Nichol said, adding he was surprised when Bolin quit.

But if the handling of the disturbance-punishment-hunger strike wasn't bad enough to prompt Bolin's resignation, what was? That question remains to be answered, although it's questionable whether more light will ever be shed on Bolin's departure.

Hot Water New Resource

Hot water can be a great new energy resource for Nebraska.

Studies by University of Nebraska geologists indicate that water hot enough to supply all the heating needs of communities exists beneath the western two-thirds of Nebraska.

The water, ranging from 150 to 200 degrees Fahrenheit, is generally from 1,000 to 5,000 feet deep. We're already drilling wells that deep in the state.

A district system to provide space heating for an entire town or a subdivision would require a large well to withdraw water. Using that water to heat a community would lower the water temperature only 10 to 15 degrees, after which the water would be returned to its original level by another well.

Use of this water from such deep sources would have no effect on the quantity or quality of the water we now use for domestic, agricultural and industrial purposes.

Using hot water as a source for space heating would be an entirely different type of operation. The energy itself would be free and all of the costs would be in paying for an expensive system to extract the hot water and to put it back where it had been obtained.

A study by the New Mexico Energy Institute for the U.S. Department of Energy predicts that hot water could provide competitive space heating for 100,000 Nebraska residents just nine years from now. The estimate is that 300 Nebraska communities with a population of about 485,000 people could have district heating systems at competitive prices by the year 2000, 19 years from now.

Help in examining the feasibility of any hot water district heating system for a city or a private development may be obtained by contacting the Nebraska Energy Office, Box 95085, Lincoln, Neb. 68509.

Thomas Huxley said. The great end of life is not knowledge but action. It will be my aim to increase both knowledge and action so that Nebraskans can turn to alternative forms of energy.

Buying Votes with Whiskey

Dear Voters of N.E. Nebraska

Recently a Lincoln newspaper in their editorial section had this title: "A bad bill passed and signed." This newspaper regrets that the Legislature passed and Gov. Thone signed bill LB 217 allowing the dispensation of liquor on election day.

The only motivating power behind LB 217 came from sellers of liquor, not any legions of drinkers. The possibility of buying votes with promises of whiskey has been restored in Nebraska.

We cannot see how allowing the sale and dispensation of liquor on election day does anything to enhance the desired element of responsibility. Quite the contrary.

Let us thank those senators who voted against LB 217 on final reading — Barrett Beyer, Burrows, Chambers, Cope, Cullin, Haberman, Kahle, Kilgarrin, Peterson, Lamb, Maresh, Marvel, Risbard, Peterson, Pirsch, Rumery, Sleck, Stoney, Vickers and Wesley.

Let us also remember those who did sign and give them the axe at their next election. In other words "scratch my back and I'll scratch yours." must be their motto.

Bankruptcy in Grain Elevator Stirs Considerable Controversy

A great deal of controversy has recently been generated by a court case in Missouri regarding a grain elevator bankruptcy.

Two bills pending in the Nebraska Legislature, LB 105, introduced by Senator Sleck, and LB 529, introduced by the Agriculture Committee, deal with some of the elements that were present in the Missouri difficulties. Although there has not yet been a situation in Nebraska similar to the one that developed in Missouri, the possibility for this kind of problem to develop does exist.

The questions posed in Missouri are far from answered at this point. That situation developed when owners of a grain facility went bankrupt and the Bankruptcy Court was asked to liquidate the estate of the bankrupts by disposing of the grain and other physical facilities.

As a part of this, the court would have been asked to determine ownership of the grain. Some individuals disagreed with this, contending that the warehouse receipts should simply be honored, ignoring the fact that if this were done, there were far more warehouse receipts than grain, but other individuals took the position that a decision by the court was the fair thing to do. Meanwhile, this dispute has halted the sale of grain in these facilities, and you know what has happened to the prices between last fall and today.

It is not clear at this point if any creditors will suffer from this liquidation. There has been a legal opinion offered that adequate bonding and financial reporting to licensed authorities would have prevented many of these problems from ever arising. Additionally, it was clear that the disputes prevented farmers from selling their products at a time when prices were more favorable. And most certainly, everybody would have been better off if rather than the assets simply being held, they were liquidated and the funds placed where they would be earning interest.

These are just some of the difficulties that arose from these disputes in Missouri. As I mentioned, two bills pending in the Nebraska Legislature deal with some of these elements. LB 105 would among other things, prohibit the granting of a renewal interest bearing trust account. The proceeds from this interest would then be distributed with the proceeds of the other assets, on a pro rata basis. The bill also provides that payment for grain purchased by a warehouseman for resale, shall be made within 10 days of receipt of such grain, or charges may be pressed. Another bill that addresses some of these same difficulties is LB 529.

Some of the provisions of LB 529 are that a corporate surety bond for liability insurance be established by the people applying for a warehouse license. The bill also provides that the Commission secure an "indemnity bond" in addition to the regular bond.

This will be levied by a fee of not more than one tenth of one cent per bushel upon all grain purchased by any licensed grain warehouseman. This fee is only paid by the first purchaser of the grain.

The Public Service Commission would administer this program and it is empowered to collect this fee up to the point where they have aggregated ten million dollars. LB 529 also establishes the Grain Trade Commission that acts in an advisory role to the Public Service Commission. This would be an elective commission.

Both of these bills seek to reduce a harm that causes many of us farmers difficulties at some point in our operations. I continue to feel that the most important thing our laws should do, is to hold the line on spending where possible, but continue to do that in a way that ensures the greatest amount of freedom from government intervention for all of us.

Merle's Message
by Sen. VonMinden

license or a transfer of license unless the person applying shows that the amount of grain in storage is equal to the amount he owes in warehouse receipts.

These licenses are renewed once a year. LB 105 would also provide that should a grain warehouse be put into administrative receivership, the proceeds of the sale of the grain held in storage at the time the receivership is created, should be held in an

Information Gap Causes Some Conflicts

By Rep. Doug Bearer

An information gap exists within Congress with respect to agricultural and urban affairs. Conflicts often arise between rural and urban interests. Many times we find Easterners at odds with Westerners and Midwesterners.

One reason why parochial and regional interests tend to dominate Congress is because many of its members lack an understanding of day-to-day life in areas of the country unlike their own. To remedy this situation, I've initiated an exchange program with three of my colleagues from the coasts.

Congressman Bill Thomas, of Bakersfield, Calif., was my first guest to experience our state's agriculture and way-of-life. We deliberately avoided a conference-room approach in favor of getting our shoes dusty on the farm. Our day-long tour this past Monday began at the Plant Science Building at the University of Nebraska-

Lincoln and included stops at a typical grain operation near Ceresco, the Mead Field Lab and a feedlot near Yutan.

The visit was particularly timely because, as a member of the House Agriculture Committee, Congressman Thomas in the next few months will help draft a new multi-year farm bill. Eventually, I hope to return a visit to the fertile farm country of his district in the Central Valley of California, where the aerospace and oil industries are also major employers.

On a number of occasions I've said that it's crucial for members of Congress from rural areas to reach out to their urban colleagues. It's especially important that representatives from the Plains states reach out to their colleagues from the coasts. We must make a sincere effort to investigate and sympathize with the concerns of West and East Coast constituencies. In exchange, we can help them understand our concerns.

Fewer and fewer representatives in the House are from predominantly agricultural districts. That means fewer voices in Congress for people in the Plains states like Nebraska. Votes are increasingly concentrated in coastal areas. California alone has 10 percent of the House membership.

This exchange of visits fulfills a commitment I made earlier to my constituents to be a more effective representative by building bridges within Congress. In the Congress of today, it takes more than knowing agriculture to represent the agricultural interests of constituents.

One can talk a great game and be very knowledgeable on agricultural issues, but it's votes that count. I believe this effort to reach out to urban colleagues to exchange visits and information on the scene, is clearly in the best interests of Nebraska farmers and agri-business.

UNICAMERAL REVIEW
By Sen. Elroy M. Heffner

An estimated 300 people, most of them opposed to the closing of the Norfolk Regional Center, crowded into the committee hearing room to hear witnesses testify or to speak themselves on the issue. The hearing had been moved to a larger room, but chairs still had to be placed in the hallway to accommodate the huge crowd. The emotional hearing lasted nearly six hours.

During this time two bills affecting the administration of mental health in Nebraska and the closing of the Norfolk Regional Center, were heard by the Public Health and Welfare Committee.

LB 269, sponsored by myself and three other northeast Nebraska Senators, would require the Director of Public Institutions to prepare a comprehensive three-year plan for mental health care in Nebraska. This plan would have to be approved by the Legislature and the Governor by July 1, 1982. The Norfolk Regional Center would remain in operation while this plan was being prepared.

The other bill, LB 415, was introduced by the Public Health and Welfare Committee. It would abolish the state's six regional mental health governing boards and replace them with advisory boards and regional administrators. The State's eleven community health programs and the State's regional hospitals administration would be centralized in a new mental health division of the State Department of Institutions. One section of the bill authorizes the closing of the Norfolk Regional Center.

Many witnesses spoke in favor of keeping the facility open. They said that the savings would be minimal. There would also be extra costs of driving to and from Lincoln and Hastings by relatives and friends of the patients. Some county officials remarked that their costs would increase because of the extra mileage that would be driven. Other witnesses said that the need is great, not only in north-east Nebraska, but all of Nebraska. It is the only Regional Center north of the Platte River.

Proponents of LB 415, the bill to close the Norfolk Regional Center, said the state does not need three Regional Centers because the population has decreased the past 25 years. Also that approximately $2 1/2 million could be saved annually if it is closed.

Governor Thone attended the last half hour of the meeting and visited with some of the group after the hearing. I am confident that the Norfolk Regional Center will remain open, but on a scaled down operation. The Community based programs will also be moved back to the Center. I am working along with other senators, the committee and the Governor, to accomplish this.

Ikes Recycle for Wildlife

IZAIAK WALTON members are busy collecting recyclables as part of the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission's "Recycle for Wildlife" campaign. The local Izaak Walton branch collects and sells aluminum cans and turns the money over to the Game and Parks Commission. Wayne Izaak Walton Director Merton Hillton said the local group has been successful picking up cans in area ditches. The dollars will be used toward the Commission's wildlife habitat program which buys and leases lands for the development and maintenance of shelter, food and water sources for wild animals of all kinds. The Ikes also raise pheasants, Hillton added. From left in above photo, Craig Olson, Jason Barbee and Shane Olson smash some aluminum cans.

Spanish Tour, Study Are Offered

The culture and history of Spain will come to life for participants in the Spanish Institute sponsored by Wayne State College. One of four international programs offered by WSC, the Spanish Institute will include classroom instruction and tours of the country.

The Spanish Institute runs from June 1 to July 6 and costs $1,295, according to Fiorella Garlick, one of the WSC coordinators of the trip. The price includes tuition, airfare and accommodations, most meals and other costs such as tips and service charges. Garlick says student loans are available through Wayne State to pay the low interest rate.

From the moment you leave Wayne until the time you come back, Spain becomes your classroom and the simplest and most common action, as for example ordering a coke, becomes an exotic and challenging experience, says Fiorella Garlick.

Courses will be taught by qualified professors from Spain and the United States at the University of Valencia. History and culture courses are offered in both English and Spanish and language instruction is offered at various levels beginning with a basic course, according to Garlick.

Participants can earn from three to six credit hours in various combinations of subjects such as Spanish general studies, history, art, etc. Those not needing the credit are welcome to attend the scheduled courses.

After the academic program participants will visit the southern part of Spain including the cities of Madrid, Sevilla, Granada and Cordoba. Garlick and Dr. Maria Grovas, the other WSC coordinator, will be on Spanish history and civilization during the tour.

The Spanish Institute is open to all interested high school seniors, college students and adults. However, the number of participants is limited to 30. Wayne State College will operate a bus between Wayne and Chicago O'Hare International Airport.

Garlick encouraged interested individuals to seriously consider participating in the program.

You don't have to know Spanish to enjoy the beaches of Valencia, the cosmopolitan atmosphere of Madrid, or the festive air of a discoteque in Sevilla," she said.

Those interested in enrolling or wanting more information may contact Dr. Maria Grovas or Fiorella Garlick at the WSC Spanish Department, or Chuck Kay, director of international education. Reservations must be in as soon as possible.

Meyer Repeats in Beef Expo

History repeated itself at Atokad Park Saturday, as Debi Meyer walked away with the honors for Grand Champion Steer at the Northeast Nebraska Beef Expo. Debi, 14 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Meyer of Wakefield, has shown the Grand Champion Steer two consecutive years in this three year old event.

Roger Bell, the show judge of South Sioux City, presented the purple ribbon and trophy to Miss Meyer, courtesy of First National Bank of Walthill.

Brad Slaughter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Slaughter of Rosalie, was also a repeat winner with his Champion Market Heifer. Brad added Champion Breeding Heifer to his winnings this year. Trophies were donated by Farmers Union Coop of Pender and First National Bank of Wakefield.

The Beef Expo is a 4-H event hosted by Dakota County 4-H and county agent Frank Morse. Morse initiated the event in 1979 as a learning experience for 4-H'ers.

The show has grown each year in number of entries and quality. For Morse, the contrast between years has been remarkable.

The first year the cattle were raw. This year all entries look good and the competition is tough," said Morse. Judge Bell also complimented the exhibitors for their fine showmanship.

Tim Ahlers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Ahlers of Rosalie, was a repeat winner of Senior Showmanship. The trophy was presented by Heese Produce of Pender. Sara Adkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Adkins of Laurel captured the Intermediate Showmanship trophy offered by Pender Veterinary Clinic. The Junior Showmanship trophy was won by Jami Ahlers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Ahlers of Rosalie. August Pape, Jr. of Moorman's Feed of Rosalie was on hand to present the trophy.

Weeds are a major problem in lawns so I'd like to pass along this information from our Extension Weed Specialist in Lincoln

Dandelions
Scattered dandelion plants are effectively controlled by digging. Use a butter knife or special dandelion digger. Cut the root four to five inches below the ground. Deep cutting is necessary to prevent regrowth from the root. Kill Kanes that dispense a quart of herbicide on the center of individual plants work on scattered plants.

Heavy broadleaf weed infestations are best controlled with 2,4-D and available as granular formulations as well as liquids for spray application. Granular forms are often combined with fertilizer for a one-over weed and feed treatment.

Liquid formulations for broadleaf weed control are applied with pressure sprayers and zero pressure jug applicators. When using pressure sprayers, keep the pressure as low as possible. This produces a coarse spray that is less likely to drift. Treat when there is little or no wind movement. Nozzle applicators that fit on gallon jugs are effective, safe to use and low in cost.

Amine formulations of lawn herbicides are safest to use. Ester formulations give off damaging fumes at temperatures above 80°F. This includes so called low volatile esters. If spray accidentally gets on a desirable plant immediately hose it down with plenty of water.

Besides dandelions, other spring weeds including common chickweed, shepherdspurse, pennygrass and mustards are also controlled with herbicides.

Camping Fees Unchanged

Charges remain the same this year for campers using the Missouri River lake projects operated by the Omaha District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, said Col. V.D. Stipp, Omaha district engineer.

This user fees report applies only to the camping and recreational areas operated by the Corps at the six mainstem dams on the Missouri River. Other agencies that operate fee use camping areas set their own charges.

The family camp fee at all Corps operated Missouri River user fee areas, with two exceptions, is $4 and $5 with electrical hookup.

The two exceptions are the Fort Peck, Mont. dam, where the fees are $3 and $4 in the downstream vicinity, and $2 and $1 in the Fort Peck area.

Effective May 20, the fees are applicable at user fee areas at Lewis and Clark Lake near Yankton, S.D., Lake Francis Case near Pickstown, S.D., Lake Sharpe near Chamberlain, S.D., Lake Oahe near Pierre, S.D., Lake Sakakawea near Riverdale, N.D., and at Fort Peck Lake near Glasgow, Mont.

The fees, designated family camp with electrical hookup and group camp, extend into September, with the exception of Lake Sakakawea near Riverdale, N.D., which terminates in October.

There is also a no charge campground at each Corps lake project, which includes camp sites, sanitary facilities and vehicular access.

The fees are on a per day basis, with check out time at noon following a night's stay.

No reservations are accepted. Use is on a first come, first serve basis. Col. Stipp said.

Group camping is available at two Corps lake projects, Lewis and Clark Lake near Yankton, S.D., and at Fort Peck Lake near Glasgow, Mont.

Group camping refers to the occupancy of more than one campsite by a group generally united under one common organization or for such as family reunions, youth groups, church groups or other groups of a charitable or character building nature.

1981 is Year of Cicada According to Entomologist

THE PERIODICAL CICADA (left) is shown in comparison to the annual cicada, known for its song in late July and August. The periodical cicada or 17 year locust is expected to appear along the southeast Nebraska border this spring after spending 17 years underground. When the tea kettle screeches, it's time for tea. When the wheat turns golden, it's time for harvest, and when 17 years have passed, the periodical cicada knows it's time to emerge.

For part of Nebraska, 1981 is the year of the cicada, according to David Keith, extension entomologist in the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

"The Indians thought they were evil and the early American colonists called the cicada's periodic appearance the 'locust plague.' But for apple growers and homeowners along the southeast Nebraska border, they're the source of noise and some damage."

Some Nebraska cities likely to be affected this year include Omaha, Gretna, Elkhorn, Syracuse and Falls City.

Most Nebraskans recognize common cicadas, called harvest flies and dog day cicadas, by their "song" sung in late July and August.

"They make all the racket in the trees during summer evenings," Keith said.

The adult periodical cicada is closely related to the common annual cicada, but is a "special one" because of its long life cycle, he added.

"Damage to plant life by the periodical cicada, sometimes known as the 17 year locust, isn't caused by feeding. The female cicada damages twigs and branches by cutting into the bark to lay her eggs. Each female will cut as many as 20 pockets to lay a total of 400 to 600 eggs."

Ornamentals, Fruit Trees Endangered

Commercial apple growers using a spraying program to control other insects probably will be protected, but ornamental shrubs and backyard fruit trees are in some danger.

"This year's wood produces next year's fruit," Keith said, "and the female cicadas can destroy a larger percentage of the terminals." Seventy or 80 species of trees and ornamentals harbor the eggs, but the female seems to prefer oak, hickory, apple, peach, pear and grape.

The insecticide Sevin can be used for cicada control on most ornamental shrubs and trees, Keith said. Young trees and valuable fruit trees may be covered with netting or cloth during the period when the adult cicadas are on the wing.

Several weeks before their emergence, the immature insects or nymphs start burrowing upward from their underground homes. When the proper night comes in April or May, the nymphs leave the ground in vast numbers and head for upright objects.

A tree is the ideal goal if it can be attained, Keith said, but the transformation from nymph to adult cannot be delayed. So if a tree isn't within range, a bush, weed or blade of grass will do.

The nymph works about an hour shedding its skin, then develops into an adult a few hours later. Periodical cicadas mate within a week after becoming adults and a few days later, the females lay eggs.

Short Adult Life

The adults will live only five or six weeks and the eggs will hatch in six or seven weeks, Keith said. The newly hatched nymphs fall to the ground and burrow until they find suitable roots to feed on. Most will burrow 18 to 24 inches beneath the surface where they will live the next 17 years.

There are several cicada broods, Keith said, which explains why the insects emerge somewhere almost every year. Cicadas that emerge in a given year comprise a brood and those emerging in another year comprise another brood. Most broods are separated geographically, but some overlap.

The periodical cicada's range covers nearly all the United States east of the Missouri Valley, including Arkansas and Louisiana. Seventeen year cicadas are common in the North, while another race, 13 year cicadas, prevails in the South, Keith said.

It was 40 years old this past spring, but the University of Nebraska Tractor Test Laboratory celebrated with business as usual in 1980. Forty-three domestic and foreign tractors made the trip around the test track, hauling heavy loads, to determine drawbar power, fuel use and sound levels, all with the goal of winning approval for their sale in Nebraska.

1980 was a good year. Those 43 tractor tests were 10 above the average of the past 10 years, thanks to an increase in staff and acquisition of new equipment that allowed Chief Engineer Louis I. Leviticus to keep on schedule.

Test results are made available to the public, according to Leviticus, who's also a professor of agricultural engineering in the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. Interested persons can request a summary of the 43 tractors tested in 1980, or an extensive report on any model.

The testing is required by a 1919 state law designed to protect Nebraska farmers, but the Nebraska test is highly respected nationally and internationally as well. Leviticus notes, in 1980, 26 of the tractors were manufactured in foreign countries, though many carry U.S. brand names. And although tested here, some are not even destined to be marketed in the state.

Very Good, Very Bad

All but two of the models tested in 1980 had power take-offs. Fuel consumption varied from very good to very bad, Leviticus notes, with horsepower ranging from less than 20 to more than 200.

Prices of the 1980 test tractors were up, too. Farmers should expect to spend about $300 per horsepower for a tractor with a power take-off, Leviticus says.

Eight of the machines tested were articulated, 4-wheel-drive tractors, with a pivot point between the front and back halves. Conventional tractors "steer" by changes in the angle of the wheels with respect to the axle, Leviticus explains. But the articulated tractors steer by changing the angle between the front and rear sections.

"One, an International Harvester row crop model, differed from other 4-wheel-drive tractors in that the driver sits on the rear end of the vehicle and the pivot point between the two parts is further forward."

"This results in less sideways movement of the implement at the rear, because there is more movement in the front where it matters less," the engineer explains.

Future Features

Looking to the future, Leviticus says American tractor designers can take a lesson or two from their European counterparts.

"Foreign manufacturers have done much more work on front wheel drive assist, because of their smaller fields and narrower roads and more congested traffic. They can't use dual tires, while here we can use triples and take up three-fourths of the road and let the other traffic wait."

European tractors must get the same power out of a smaller, narrower package, he says, and the only way to do this is with a well-designed front wheel drive assist.

This feature can be useful in the U.S. as well, because front wheel drive assist makes such tasks as using a front loader much easier. Many of the smaller 20 to 30 horsepower foreign tractors come complete with this feature and can be steered easily in small areas.

Americans More Sound Conscient

In contrast, Leviticus notes that European farmers are not as sound conscient as American farmers. "Sound for many farmers is one of the more important features. Sometimes farmers will call to ask about different models and all they want to know is how the sound is. Many older farmers have lost part of their hearing and they don't want to lose any more of it so they can still hear their grandchildren," he says.

"Soundproofing is not as good in the European tractor, but bystander sound is much more strictly regulated there than in the U.S.," the engineer adds.

"So many of these tractors move through villages of narrow streets with two-story houses on each side, early in the morning," he explains. He expects that American laws regulating bystander sound levels are just a matter of time. Laws setting standards for vibrations sustained by the tractor operator are just over the horizon, too.

If such laws are enacted, new testing procedures might have to be added at the Tractor Test Lab, Leviticus notes.

The annual summary booklet and the extensive reports on single tractor models are available for a fee. Both kinds of reports can be obtained from the UNL Tractor Test Laboratory, East Campus, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb. 68583.
