Stop Signs Procedure Review Set by Council

Once again, stop signs will be up for discussion during the regular meeting of the Wayne City Council when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in chambers at City Hall.

Council members are expected to discuss the process by which stop signs are to be re-established, according to Phil Kloster, city administrator.

Kloster said the Council has been re-establishing stop signs by resolution, but that legal advice indicates the city should be doing it by ordinance.

In other action, the Council is expected to act on a number of proposed ordinances, including proposals for the creation of street improvement districts, the creation of water system improvement districts and traffic regulation.

Kloster said Council members will open bids on the proposed city will to be dug east of Wayne. The Council is expected to award the contract for both the well and water transmission lines into the city.

Winsome Winside Boys Swing into Spring

SUNSHINE, climbing bars, and three second-grade boys — those are the things that make a spring day worthwhile in Winside. Brian Thompson, son of Mike and Margaret Thompson, Chad Carlson, son of Al and Esther Carlson, and Jeff Gallop, son of Warren and Jody Gallop, tried out the climbing bars in Winside Park after school last week.

Convent Special Session April 20

A special session of Wayne's City Planning Commission has been called to review plans for the proposed $150,000 Benedictine Sisters convent construction project.

According to Dan Sherry, commission chairman, the special session is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 20, in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

Sherry said the session is not a public hearing, but will be an informational meeting on the project. The public hearing — held last Monday — left both neighbors and commission members without much knowledge of the project.

AN APPARENT schedule mixup by the architectural firm, Charles Beardslee Inc. of Norfolk, left the project without a representative during the hearing. And, residents who did attend were unable to get a grasp of the project from the sketchy details provided to the city planner.

The project, which is being funded in its entirety by the Missionary Benedictine Sisters of Norfolk, requires commission approval of a conditional-use permit before construction can begin, according to city planner and building inspector James Holtgrewe.

Meanwhile, the Benedictine Sisters have awarded the construction contract to Wayne's Arnold J. Anderson, owner of Town and Country Builders, according to Sister Giseline Schaut, procurator of the Norfolk Priory and business manager for the project.

SHE SAID the project contract (about $150,000) was awarded for less than the amount budgeted, but that the remaining funds would be used to furnish the $150,000 convent.

Schaut expressed disappointment that the special session could not be scheduled "a week earlier." But, according to Sherry, law requires a full 10 days for public notice of the session.

The project business manager did say that despite the delay, "it seems to be taking shape." She said the contractor has promised to begin the building immediately. Schaut said if the commission approves the conditional-use permit on April 20, construction should still begin within the month.

ARCHITECT Charles Beardslee said his firm will represent the project during the April 20th special session. The meeting is open to the public.

Commission members tabled the conditional-use permit request last Monday for lack of information on the project, a proposed 3,700-square-foot building designed to

ESU Board Plans Top-to-Bottom Program Evaluation

Education Service Unit One, the umbrella vehicle that delivers special education services for handicapped students in a six county area of northeastern Nebraska, soon may face a top to bottom, board initiated evaluation.

The ESU board has appointed a two man committee to begin searching for a chairman for the proposed evaluation's steering committee.

However, a leading candidate for the post appears to be Wayne's Waldo Johnson, retired superintendent of Wausa School District.

ESU BOARD member William Norvell made a strong pitch for Johnson during last week's meeting at the Ohio Insurance Co. of fices in Laurel.

Norvell, a vocal proponent of the proposed evaluation, told board members and visiting school superintendents that he had "given a lot of thought" to who would best steer the evaluation committee.

One name keeps popping into my mind, the Laurel man said. "It's the name of Waldo Johnson." There were nods of agreement around the board's meeting table.

"Let's unload the hay from top to bottom," Norvell said as he urged board members to give the proposed evaluation their blessing.

BOARD MEMBER Randy Shaw of Wayne suggested the board appoint the two man committee to search for an evaluation steering committee chairman and to make further recommendations to the ESU board regarding the self evaluation.

William Wise, board chairman, appointed Shaw and board member Kenneth Olds of Wayne ESU administrator Harry Mills of Wakefield will be working closely with the search committee after board members ratified Shaw's suggestion.

Board members discussed the cost factor of an evaluation and solicited opinions from school superintendents. If there was a consensus, it seemed to be that the evaluation could be performed for about $5,000.

Several board members said they felt the evaluation's steering committee chairman should be paid for the job — a task that is expected to last a year.

IN OTHER action, the board authorized its new treasurer, John Portwood of the Wakefield National Bank, to make investments on behalf of the ESU.

Specifically, Portwood was authorized to use his discretion on investing $100,000 of ESU board money in 30-day certificates of deposit (CDs).

The treasurer, who serves at the pleasure of the board, also was authorized to use his discretion on any additional investments until a board-appointed committee could make recommendations on ESU investment procedures.

Portwood also was authorized to sign checks for the ESU.

Wise appointed former treasurer Bernad Gustafson of Wakefield and Cedar County board member Dave Hay to the investment committee.

MILLS EXPLAINED the annual state auditor's report and its recommendations to the board. The upshot of the report is that ESU will begin clearing its payroll account monthly instead of yearly.

Furthermore, according to Mills, the auditor's office has set up a format for the payroll to enable the ESU staff to handle the monthly schedule.

Mills said the report expressed concern over the ESU cash reserve. It recommended the board work toward maintaining a cash reserve that would meet ESU expenses for a full quarter since the participating schools are billing on a quarterly basis.

And, following the report's recommendations, ESU administrators have arranged to have co-op purchases placed on computer next year.

TERRY BRUGGEMAN, Hoskins, uses a steel brush to take excess charcoal from the surface of a cabinet he is making for one of his customers. Bruggeman, who manages Bruggeman Oil Co., Hoskins, builds custom furniture. He's been at it for about six years.

Hoskins Handyman Makes Flame-Stressed Furniture

By Randall Howell
Terry Bruggeman has a dream. His wife, Marliese, shares it. The dream: Building and living in their own home in the Colorado Rockies. When Bruggeman talks about building his own home, he means just that — everything from the frame to the furniture.

THE 21-YEAR-OLD Hoskins man is working toward the dream with a hobby that he has turned into a business. It's furniture building.

And, though it all started about six years ago as a hobby, the Bruggeman Oil Co. manager is a serious wood craftsman today. Bruggeman, the son of Gerald and Ruth Bruggeman of Hoskins, credits Kenny Elkins of Hoskins for getting him started.

"Kenny taught me the basics," explained the lanky, blonde-haired 1978 Norfolk Senior High School graduate. Bruggeman said Elkins was teaching him how to play the banjo a few years ago when they began to work together with wood.

Elkins is a glazer for Harding Glass in Norfolk and commutes from Hoskins. Bruggeman works for his father, owner of Bruggeman Oil Co., and commutes the seven miles from Norfolk.

When things get slow at Bruggeman Oil, a service station offering gasoline, fuel delivery and vehicle repair, Bruggeman can be found in the backshop working with wood.

IT WASN'T always so. He started in his own home using hand tools until the clutter was moved into his Norfolk garage.

Finally, Bruggeman moved the operation to a section of the service station backshop in the north end of town on Hoskins' Main Street.

There, where his wood work is interrupted by the bell at the gasoline pumps and the needs of customers seeking tire and engine repairs, Bruggeman, designs and custom builds furniture.

Only a small, yellow sign with black lettering on the front window of the service station offers notice of the activity within. But, back behind the second car stall — beyond the torn-down engines and mechanics' tools, sets lumber in the various stages of becoming furniture for customers' homes.

IT'S RUSTIC stuff...and rugged. Creations with a distinct, sturdy, western flavor. Bruggeman shapes the furniture from 2x6s and 2x12s.

Once Bruggeman and his customer agree on a design, he begins shaping the lumber, which is readily available from his uncle, Dwight Bruggeman, who runs the Hoskins Lumber Co. across the street.

After shaping and assembling — with screws and glue only — the piece of furniture, Bruggeman burns it with a torch. Actually, the surface of the wood is seared with flame to bring out the grain of the wood. But, before the process is completed, he must spend hours with a steel brush and steel wool to brush away the excessive charcoal.

UNDER BRUGGEMAN'S skilled hands, the flame-stressed wood grain begins to surface in natural patterns with light and dark gradations.

After a coat of varnish, he sands it and varnishes again. Brackets, hinges, knobs and handles add the finishing touches.

After years of experimenting with designs and building techniques, Bruggeman feels confident he can build almost any kind of furniture his customers may want. And, he doesn't always wait for a customer order to prove it.

He's already managed to furnish his Norfolk home with pieces that he feels were a challenge to build. His list of custom-built furniture includes mirrors, shelves, cabinets, beds (including waterbeds), dressers, work tables and end-tables, coffee tables, dining-room tables, chairs, rocking chairs, couches, bars, stools, clocks and stereo racks.

HE STILL works primarily with hand tools, although power tools, such as electric drills, have helped him speed up the work. And, after years of effort, the work is starting to come in. He's now building a set of bunkbeds and is eager to get started on another waterbed that's been ordered.

The contest began at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Student Center. This contest involved preliminary competition by area junior and senior high school students on papers, projects and performances related to history.

This year's theme was "Work and Leisure in History." District winners will travel to Lincoln for the state contest. Winners there will go to Washington, D.C. in June for the national finals.

Members of Pi Gamma Mu (Social Science Honorary) provided information, tours of campus and general assistance at the contest.

Frost Threat Still Real

Home gardeners may be tempted to plant warm season vegetables early this year because of above normal temperatures, but caution is in order according to the Nebraska Ag Climate Situation Committee.

"Frost risk is no less this year than any year," despite higher than normal temperatures for this time of year, warned Ralph Neid, extension climatologist in the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

"Tomatoes, beans and other warm season vegetables shouldn't be planted yet," Neid said, acknowledging that gardeners like farmers want to get the jump on their neighbors when it comes to planting their crops.

Where Have They Gone?

The State Game and Parks Commission is hoping to learn the whereabouts of five hunters whose names were drawn for spring turkey permits, but can't be found by postal authorities.

The five permits were mailed from Commission headquarters and then returned, apparently because of changes of address, or mistakes in the address on the envelope.

These people and the addresses they listed on their permit applications are: William A. Borm, Sidney 69162; Dennis D. Eucker, 439 Northwest 18th, Lincoln 68528; Orville R. Heine, P.O. Box 263, Verdigris 68783; Dennis C. Kallhoff, Norfolk 68701; and Paul D. Vincent, 1701 College Drive, Kearney 68847.

Anyone knowing where these people may be reached are asked to get in touch with Commission headquarters, P.O. Box 30370, Lincoln, NE 68501, so that the permits might be delivered in time for spring turkey hunting.

The second car, a 1978 Ford Fiesta driven by Raymond Butts, 45, Wayne, pulled left to pass, according to the Sheriff's Department report.

When Butts saw the Lowe car turning left, he hit the brakes but was unable to stop in time to avoid the collision, the report said.

Opinion

Let's Pass That Business Tax Cut

Richard L. Lesh, President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

I've often stated in this column that one of the U.S. Chamber's top priorities is to strengthen small business.

Obviously, we have a personal stake in assisting small business, because the overwhelming majority of our members fall into this category. More fundamentally, however, people who have studied our economy understand that small business is the most important source of new jobs, technology and more dynamic growth. Unfortunately, it is also clear that small business is more vulnerable and is being hurt the most by high inflation, taxation, interest rates and regulation.

So what's the answer? Aside from reducing the growth of spending and eliminating unnecessary regulation, which virtually everyone but Ted Kennedy and a few of his friends agree must be done, what specific changes in tax policy would be most beneficial to small business?

THIS VERY question was put to me recently when I testified for the chamber before the House Small Business Committee. My answer could not have been more direct: Pass the administration's total tax package, which consists of two major proposals: The first, the Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS), would enable businesses to accelerate their depreciation of plant and equipment, and the second would reduce all marginal individual income tax rates by 30 percent over the next three years.

Whenever I make this statement, people seem surprised. Indeed, I've come to the conclusion that although the administration has put together a tax package that seems tailor made for small business, this fact remains one of the best kept secrets in America. Nevertheless, the evidence is clear for all to see. Let's take a look.

depreciation of plant and equipment is to promote new capital investment, and thereby increase productivity and create new jobs. Still, whenever people talk about accelerated depreciation we are led to believe it will primarily benefit big business.

WRONG! We recently took the time to go back and study just who depreciates what. We discovered that in the latest year for which full records are available, 1975, small businesses claimed 40 percent of the total depreciation. In many industries — including agriculture, construction, wholesaling, retailing, real estate, and services — small businesses claimed over 60 percent. Clearly, then, small business will get a substantial share of the benefits from the Administration's ACRS proposal.

But ACRS will help small business in another very important way. The proposal will sweep away the agonizing complexities of the present tax code and replace them with a simple, uniform system understandable to all. This will put small business on a more equal footing with large firms, and it will free them from having to worry about hiring more staff to handle disputes with IRS.

Now consider the small business case for the administration's proposal to reduce marginal tax rates across the board by 30 percent. According to the 1977 IRS Statistics of Income, over 14,700,000 business tax returns were filed by corporations, including Subchapter S corporations filing as individuals, as well as partnerships and sole proprietorships. Of this total only 1,800,000, or less than 12.5 percent, were taxable as corporations. Thus, nearly 90 percent of U.S. businesses taxable in 1977 paid taxes at the steeply graduated personal rates. This represents a tremendous universe of small firms that stand to benefit directly from the proposed personal rate reductions.

AND ACROSS the board rate reductions would assist small business in at least three other ways. By automatically reducing the maximum tax on capital gains from the present 28 percent, and by eliminating the distinction between earned and unearned income, they would reverse the trend toward tax shelters by promoting new investment and venture capital. Second, past experience and our own recent surveys strongly suggest they would improve personal savings, our most vital but depleted source of capital.

Finally, they would do wonders for worker productivity. Today, working people are being taxed as unprecedented rates on extra earned income. The inevitable results of penalizing additional effort are high absenteeism, a refusal to work overtime and a surging underground economy.

Small business has everything to gain from passage of the Reagan tax proposal and a lot to lose if it does not. It's time to make your voices heard in Congress.

OUT OF OLD NEBRASKA

by the Nebraska State Historical Society

Arbor Day Still a Nebraska Institution
The Nebraska State Legislature in 1885 designated the April 22 birthday of J. Sterling Morton as Arbor Day in honor of the man who gave the idea to the world. The April 1, 1887, Nebraska Farmer, on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society, urged Nebraskans to observe the day:

April 22, is the day fixed by law as Arbor Day. Nebraska was the first to originate this tree planting and now most of the states observe it.

Missouri has Arbor Day and the State Horticultural Society recommends that every school district in the state plant trees in their yard on that day. Our State Board of Agriculture gives several large premiums for tree planting on that day and it would be a good idea to look after beautifying our school grounds, by planting and cultivating several valuable forest and ornamental trees. There is nothing that will enhance the value of property so much, at so small a cost as to grow trees of various kinds. It will result in a grateful (greater) rain fall, a source of pleasure and profit in more ways than one (A great incentive for tree planting in early Nebraska was the belief that trees would bring greater rainfall).

EVERY PERSON in the state of Nebraska who has one or more acres of ground ought to observe this day and plant out several varieties of forest and ornamental trees, not so much to get the reward of fered by the state board as to get the reward of increasing the value of their property at a very light expense of money and time. If every farmer in the state who owns land should plant ten trees on Arbor Day, there would be over 1,000,000 trees planted. Many will plant none, while others will put out themselves.

The Nebraska Farmer then took indignant aim at tree destroyers: "The meanest man I ever knew in my life was a foreigner who recently came west in this state, bought a timber claim that had 10 acres of trees, mostly Black Walnut all started nicely, who plowed out and dug up all the trees and seeded the ground to wheat-and-corn: The good people of that neighborhood, were so indignant at this man that they were about to tar and feather him and return him to the old country. Such a person will never prosper, nor go to heaven when he dies."

The April 22, 1899, Kearney Daily Hub was similarly critical of the scant attention paid to Arbor Day in Kearney in 1899:

"Arbor day was observed by the Kearney postoffice as a holiday. The balance of the business community, however, sawed wood as usual. There were a few flags at half mast in memory of the trees that died during the previous year, but there was no public demonstration of any kind. J.C. Knoll planted a few few trees, but these were the only trees planted during the day, except one by Mayor Hostetter, which he planted upside down, and never noticed it until the street commissioner called his attention to it."

BEFORE THE 1885 designation of April

22 as Arbor Day, the holiday had been celebrated the second Wednesday of April, Nebraska journalist and horticulturist Robert Furnas of Brownville, blamed the earlier date for the half-hearted observance of Arbor Day in 1874:

"The second Wednesday of April, the 8th day of the month this year, was Arbor Day, according to a resolution of the State Board of Agriculture. We think this Nebraska holiday was not extensively observed in 1874. The governor issued his proclamation requesting the people to observe the day in an appropriate manner — by planting forest, fruit and ornamental trees, but the people generally forgot there was such a day and the governor's proclamation was promulgated too late — March 31st — to be of general effect as a reminder, until it was too late. Then the weather has been so bad and the spring so backward that farmers are and will be crowded with indispensable spring work, planting wheat, etc., and tree planting will necessarily have to be deferred."

EVEN THE FIRM establishment of the April 22 date did not prevent the April, 1907, Gordon Journal in western Nebraska from mistaking the day:

The Journal got slightly mixed up on the date of Arbor Day last week. . . . But never mind, just go ahead and observe two Arbor Days, as we think it will do no harm in this part of Nebraska."

Arbor Day has remained a Nebraska institution from Morton's first call for its establishment in 1872 until the present day. Pat Gaster, Nebraska State Historical Society

News of Note around Northeast Nebraska

MULTIPLE births in beef cattle are quite rare, according to Jim Gosey of the Animal Science Department at the University of Nebraska, but a beef cow having four calves is extremely rare. However, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Strathman of rural Randolph had a stock cow that produced four heifer calves on March 29. According to Gosey, the chances of the four births are about one in 100,000. One of the four died shortly after birth, according to Strathman, because they were born during a heavy downpour of rain and hail storm.

Jorde Story Poignant

April 6, 1981

To the editor:
"You are the key to open doors" is the theme for the 1981 American Cancer Kickoff for education and crusade. Indeed, we must "open more doors," but we must "open more eyes" as well, to the importance of education and early diagnosis. Early detection is followed by a precise staging of the disease, and the use of more than one kind of therapy, often in combination. Yes, cancer is being more effectively controlled than in the past!

The poignant story of little Paul Jorde in the March 26 issue of The Wayne Herald is an example of courage and hope by Paul and his devoted parents, Rev. John and Carol Jorde. Cancer has no respect for age, as it is still the chief cause of death by disease in children between the ages of 3 and 14. Elderly people fall victims of cancer as well, often discovered at a time when their body is worn out and not equipped to cope with it. No age is exempt!

As you read this letter, I wonder how many families in our community have been touched by cancer this past year. Overall five-year survival rates have increased for most cancers, and leveled off for most cancers in the past 25 years. Thus, continued progress in early detection and treatment is assuring longer life for more cancer patients.

Newspaper and magazine articles, together with broadcast coverage, continue to reflect public concern about cancer. LaVon Beckman has done an exceptional job of making these "human interest" stories known, where the lives of local cancer patients are concerned. She has covered our "I Can Cope" and "CanSurmount" programs in a manner that is a credit to her newspaper. May I say, "Thank you, LaVon" and "Thank you" to the many volunteers in any aspect of the cause of Cancer? April is cancer month, so remember it with a "check-up" — and a check!

Thank you, Loreene Gilderleeve

Family Farms Need Chance to Compete With Bigger Units

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M.M. Van Kirk,
Director of Information

Farm program and tax decisions that will take place in the 1980's may well decide whether family farming survives in the United States.

That statement represents testimony submitted recently by Harold Breimyer, University of Missouri-Columbia agricultural economist, to members of a U.S. House agriculture subcommittee, and his remarks echo many of the points made by former Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland in his report on the structure of agriculture.

BREIMYER SAYS family farms can survive only under equal terms of competition. The current advantages given to large-scale operations has created a trend toward a dual agriculture of many small farm units and a few large ones. He told the subcommittee, "Unless firm action is taken (to preserve family farms) by 1990, the point of no return will have been passed."

The economist declared that tax advantages given to investors, who compete with family farmers, are one of the pressures hurting family farms. The present tax structure encourages the growth of large farms at the expense of smaller operations. And although tax breaks and loopholes may be available to all farmers, he said, the bigger investor (who may be a farmer or a non-farmer) gets the bigger tax advantage.

He explained that income tax deductions are given in proportion to a person's tax bracket. The money saved through these deductions then allows the farmer or investor to bid up the price of farm assets and, in most cases, he can also delay or avoid capital gains taxes. Young or small farmers then find assets, especially land, priced out of their reach.

Many people argue that big farms are more efficient than family-size ones. Yet studies show, Breimyer said, that except for some livestock and poultry operations, peak efficiency is reached at a two-man size.

Breimyer said this is true unless advantage is taken of substandard wages or tax subsidies.

THE MISSOURI ag economist was simply voicing many of the things that the average good farm or ranch operator in Nebraska knows. The recent announcement that Prudential Insurance Company has purchased 10,000 acres of sandy marginal ranch land in Lincoln County to tear up and install a concentration of center pivots for intensive cropping has shaken up the thinking of everyone who still retains a gut feeling that family owned and operated farms and ranches can and should survive.

There should be no phony statements that such things are happening because they represent more efficiency, that the world needs greater food production, etc.

The money to be made will not come from the sale of farm products but from tax writeoffs, savings on capital gains, investment credits, and all the other devices of modern business operations. When the land and the water are gone, they can pull up stakes and move into some other venture.

There will be those who will say that these same advantages are open to conventional farmers and ranch operators. True, but as Breimyer rightfully notes and as Bergland stated the case in his observations, not on the same scale. The tax laws and subsidy programs pop up and encourage these types of enterprises.

THIS WAS not always so. In the late 1800's, British and American investors moved into the West and developed the big cattle monopolies that flourished for a short period of time in Western Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and other western states.

The end of the "open range," impossible supervision on the part of the investors, and a few disastrous blizzards in the 1880's closed out most of them. There were no special tax advantages or disaster loans at low interest to help them. The individual ranchers moved in and survived when the "biggies" went broke. There is a lesson in there somewhere even if it is a century old.

Speaking of People

IN ADDITION TO TAKING PART in a variety of activities sponsored each year by the Prairie Hills Girl Scout Council, local Girl Scouts sponsor many community service projects. This month Girl Scouts in Wayne are making tray favors for patients in Providence Medical Center. Pictured pulling the finishing touches on her tray favor is Cindy Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brown. Cindy, who is a member of Girl Scout Troop 191, was among several girls from Wayne who attended Cadette Day Saturday in Blair.

Wayne Countian Sought

What Wayne Countian has lived the longest time at the same address?

The question is being posed to residents of the county by the committee working on the all new Wayne County History Book.

Mrs. Lucille Larson, a member of the committee, said to date three men have been located who have lived on the same farms for over 70 years.

Harvey Larsen was born on the Theodore Larsen farm southeast of Wayne in 1905 and resided there until 1977. 72 years. Ernest Spahr resided on the same farm for 74 years. The latest resident to be located who has lived on the same farms for over 75 years is Will Kay. He moved to the August Kay farm when he was two and a half years old and still resides there.

However, said Mrs. Larson, the search continues for someone who has resided at the same address more than 75 years. She said time spent in the armed forces will not count against the record.

Shower in Winside

Mrs. Gene Topp of Winside was honored during a baby shower March 28 at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Winside, with 20 guests attending.

Mrs. Topp was assisted in opening her gifts by her sister, Elaine Meyer. The Holly Hobby cake was cut and served by Mrs. Topp's mother, Mrs. Adolph Meyer.

Hostesses were Mrs. Mickey Topp, Jan Topp, Rhonda Topp, Mrs. Lucille Schnoor and Mrs. Mildred Dangberg and Lorree dy Bear bank.

Regional Arts Council Sets Date For Annual Spring Arts Festival

The Wayne Regional Arts Council is making preparations for its annual Spring Arts Festival.

The festival this year will be held on Saturday, May 2, in the City Auditorium, and outlining areas of downtown Wayne.

The Pied Pipers, a family entertainment group, have been contracted to perform that day at 1:30 p.m. In addition, many former participants in the festival have indicated that they will return this year.

Jane O'Leary, a member of the Arts Council, said anyone in the area who has formal art work, photography, or crafts to display and/or sell is invited to participate free of charge.

"Because one of the goals of the Spring Festival is to demonstrate the talents of our own region, a fee will be charged for participants from over 50 miles away from Wayne," said Mrs. O'Leary.

Singers, poets, drama groups and instrumentalists also are invited to participate.

Mrs. O'Leary said participation is not limited to any age, interest, or vocation. Amateur as well as professional artists are encouraged to attend.

School groups, she said, also are welcome.

'Oh, To Be a Kid Again'

Have you ever said this, with a romanticized picture in your mind of how simple life seemed when you were a youngster?

As I visited with a home extension club member after a lesson last week who was describing how her children were coping with the recent loss of a family pet, I realized that young life really isn't as carefree as I remember.

AS EXTENSION program planning committee members in March were asking the extension service to help parents and 4-H leaders prepare youth in our community to deal with alcohol and drug pressure. I realized that adults are not the only ones being "stressed."

The truth is that kids today face much of the same stress as adults face in their daily lives.

In fact, considering the greater number of choices and much less structure facing kids to day compared to earlier generations, many psychologists think today is among the most difficult times for kids to grow up.

It helps, however, if parents recognize stressful events and prepare their children for these things. Just as for adults, when many stresses come all at once, a very unhappy person can be the result!

Let children carry out their own coping mechanisms. One child may stay in her room all afternoon to recover from a disagreement with a friend. Another may need an energy release such as punching a bag or banging her music lesson on the piano.

If a parent notices that a child doesn't have a coping scheme or if the method isn't working, he may want to suggest other ways — but let the child make his own decisions.

If maybe that a youngster needs to cry. Allow it. Being forced to hold in tears may just make stress build up more.

by Linda Huinker
Wayne County Home Extension Agent

KIDS DON'T escape stress. We've all read alarming statistics on youth suicides and know that stress can greatly affect academic failure, alcohol and drug abuse, and juvenile delinquency.

So what's a parent to do when a child is under stress?

First realize that tension is catching. Kids feel stress when mom or dad is worried or upset. They also catch stress from classmates who are competing to achieve in school or from friends who want them to follow the crowd.

Like adults, youngsters can't always tell what it is that's bothering them. Keep lines of communication open at home for two reasons: to help kids decipher what's stressing them — and to be able to suggest ways to handle stress in their lives.

RECOGNIZE and accept that stress is a normal part of growing up. Shielding kids from all of life's worries is not a favor. Just help them learn that they can make decisions and can manage the stresses in their life.

Strengthen your children during times of stress by allowing them to do things they're good at. Encourage youngsters to acknowledge their strengths which can gather the confidence to handle difficult situations.

KIDS ARE often taught not to brag. But bragging is much different from feeling good about one's self and letting that help them through tough times.

Most experts agree that expectations from parents can help children succeed in life. Yet it's important to understand that childhood isn't as simple as we may remember it. Isn't it interesting the way time preserves all the pleasant memories and tempers the tribulations?

'Who Says School Isn't Fun?.... Especially Play School

LAUREL DuBOIS, at right, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Lon DuBois of Winside, listens attentively to a story during "play school" last week at Winside. Laurel was among 21 area preschoolers who visited Winside Public School as part of the Home Economics III Child Development Class. The 11 junior girls enrolled in the class outlined a program for the children each morning that they visited the school, April 3-8. In the photo at bottom, Kay Wiese captivates the youngsters with a story depicting the letters of the alphabet. Other activities included drama, art, music, and of course games. Sally Spieker, home economics instructor, said the purpose of the class is for the students to work with pre-school age children to study their development. Most of the preschoolers who took part will attend kindergarten next fall. Youngsters who visited the school, with parents' names in parenthesis, included Belinda Appel (Gary), Margaret Brugger (Harlin), Kent Damme (LeRoy), Laurel DuBois (Lon), Tammi Fork (Lonnice), Brady Frahm (Karmen), Scott Jacobsen (Ray), Kurt Jaeger (Kenneth), Jeremy Jenkins (Richard), Colby Jensen (Dean), Matthew Jensen (Norman), Marly Jorgensen (Gene), Jeremy Keenan (Robin), Tawnya Krueger (Dean), Kale Schwedhelm (Michael), Matthew Stufman (Stuart), Amy Thompson (Mike), Benjamin Wittler (Harold), Jason Wylie (Lynn), Dusty Puls (Dallas), and Jessie Munter (Terry).

Devilish Performance Nets Championship

A tired, smiling bunch of track and field athletes ran a victory lap Friday that issued a warning to the rest of the state that Wayne should be a strong Class B State confederer. The Wayne boys track squad reached the highest plateau of its season by extending its list of victims to include southeast Nebraska power Blair.

Competing in the Wayne State College Invitational the Blue Devils used sweeps of three events to rack up 145 points and pull away from track powers Wisner-Pilger, Blair and Pierce in a four-way team race that was expected to be much closer.

Final Class B standings: 1. Wayne 145, 2. Wisner 110, 3. Blair 104, 4. Pierce 96, 5. Gretna 24, 6. Hartington CC 23, 7. Madison 9, 8. South Sioux JV 7, 9. Randolph 7, 10. Stanton 2.

Tod Heier had to be the happiest—and most tired—member of the Wayne team. The senior won four gold medals by winning the 800 meter run, the 400 meter dash and running on the champion 4 x 400 and 4 x 800 meter relay teams.

But, it was the sweep of three events that turned the close team race into an easy win for Wayne.

The Devils claimed the top three places in the 3,200 meter run, the 1,600 meter run and the 800 meter run to run up 72 total points in those three events. Points are given on a 10-8-6-4-2-1 basis for the top six finishers in each event.

"If it wasn't for the 400, the 800, the 1,600 and the 3,200 we'd be bringing up the rear," Wayne coach Al Hansen joked. "I thought maybe we would place 1-2-3 in the 1,600 and 3,200 but I didn't think we would in the 800."

As a team, Wayne captured first place in seven events.

"These kids run and like it. That makes it easy," Hansen said. Our distance runners did a good job and Eric (Brink) did a good job in the hurdles. Our sprinters didn't do bad, it's just that some did better."

Hansen entered some individuals-in-four-events each for the WSC Invitational but pointed out that he won't do it again. In the Randolph Invitational next Tuesday (April 21), each team is limited to two entries per event.

Although Wayne had already wrapped up the team title entering the final event of the day, the Blue Devil 4 x 400 relay team added 10 extra points to its total by winning the final race.

With a winning time of 3:36.4, Wayne nipped Blair by half a second while Wisner placed third. Blair held the lead until near the third leg of the race when Joel Mosley caught the leader. Heier pulled in front on a good exchange and held the lead for the final lap. Other members of that team are Eric Brink and Steve Monson.

In the 800 meter run, Heier placed first in 2:03.7, Henric Olsson finished second in 2:05.5 and Doug Proett placed third in 2:06.3.

The 1,600 meter run saw Proett streak to the victory in 4:41.1, Olsson place second in 4:42.5 and Monson finish third in 4:44.7.

Proett won the 3,200 meter run in 9:52.3, Monson placed second in 10:03.0 and Olsson finished third in 10:05.3.

Brink had his best performance of the year, as he won the 300 meter intermediate hurdles in 42.2 and placed second in the 110 meter hurdles with a time of 16.0. The 42.2 mark in the 300 broke the Wayne High School record of 42.3 set by Rick Johnson last year.

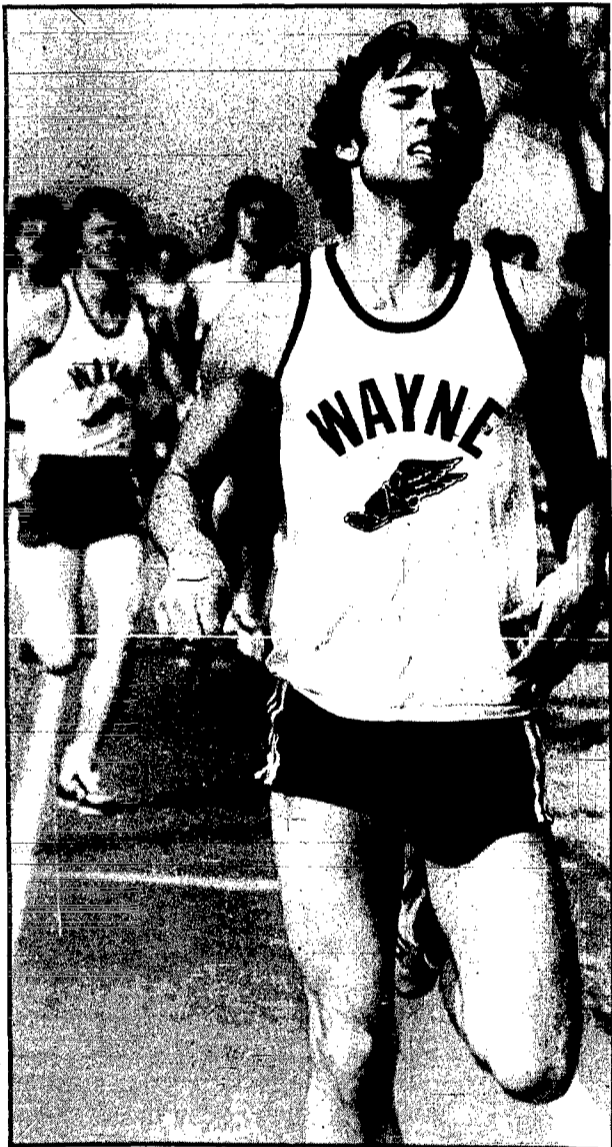

Wayne's relay teams won the 4 x 800 meter relay in 8:23.3 and placed second in the 4 x 100 with a time of 46.7. Pat McCright placed second in the long jump with a leap of 20' 1 1/2."

Wayne, which is not known as a power in the field events, scored five points on the performances of Mark Kubik and Steve Koff. Kubik cleared 11' 0 in the pole vault to place fourth and Koff placed sixth in the discus with a mark of 120' 10."

Al Lindsay and Jeff Allen scored the other points for the champions. Lindsay placed sixth in the 200 meter dash with a time of 23.8 and sixth in the 100 meter dash in 11.7. Allen finished fifth in the 100 with a time of 11.6.

Joe Olsen clubbed a two run triple in the bottom of the seventh inning and later scored the winning run on a wild pitch as the Laurel Bears rallied for a 7-6 win over Wayne, Wednesday in Laurel.

Wayne led 6-4 entering the final inning but the hosts comeback to gain the Northeast Nebraska Baseball league triumph.

Number nine batter Phil Martin led off the seventh with a walk. One out later Dave Marquardt drew another walk. Both runners advanced on a passed ball and scored when Olsen ripped his triple. A wild pitch let Olsen score the winning run.

Joe Olsen earned the win for Laurel after relieving Martin in the sixth inning. Tim Pfeiffer suffered the loss for Wayne. Pfeiffer, who went the distance, held the Bears to five hits and recorded 15 strikeouts.

However, four of Laurel's five hits were key ones.

Wayne scored the first four runs of the game in the top of the second. Brian Fleming, Todd Skokan and designated hitter Randy Gamble all scored on two Laurel errors. Fleming and Skokan reached base with walks. Jeff McCright scored the fourth run on an RBI single by Todd Pfeiffer.

Laurel came right back to tie the game in the bottom of the inning. Bryan Buss drew a walk and Scott Norvell reached base on an error. Then, Ron Hirschman smashed a three run homer. Martin singled and scored the tying run on a double by Brian Marquardt.

The Devils broke the tie with two runs in the sixth. McCright singled, moved to third on two passed balls and scored on a double by Tim Pfeiffer. Pfeiffer was walked in when Kevin Nissen, Brian Fleming and Jim Sperry drew bases on balls.

It's Spring Football Time

SPRING FOOTBALL workouts continue for Wayne State College in preparation for the season which begins next fall. Here, the offense tries to run a few plays against a solid defense. Workouts have been held daily at the practice field east of Memorial Field. Numerous recruits have been signed to join the team next fall.

Wakefield Baseball Season Gets Off to Rough Start

The past week has been tough on Wakefield baseball coach Joe Coble.

Coble's squad lost its season opener to Bancroft on the final cold, windy day of March. Since then, Coble has been ill and was forced to miss school. Assistant coach Larry Soderberg worked the team during Coble's absence.

The other bad news in Wakefield was the speculation that ace pitcher Mark Starzl may not have been able to pitch for Wakefield on Thursday or Friday.

Bancroft edged the Trojans 1-0 in the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League opener for both teams. The game was scoreless through six innings but Bancroft scored the needed run in the bottom of the seventh.

"They got their hit when they needed it; we didn't," Coble said. "I was really pleased with our pitching and defense. We have a totally new infield and the kids did a good job."

However, Coble wasn't pleased with his team's hitting. "Our hitting was anemic; we need work there. A lot of the trouble is inexperience and a lot is correctable. We have a long way to go offensively."

Starzl, who injured his back at work this past week, pitched 4 1/3 innings, gave up one hit, no runs, walked five and struck out six. Wakefield was scheduled to play at Bancroft last Thursday and at Laurel last Friday. The Trojans will play all games on the road due to field conditions.

Wayne Guy, younger brother of Wayne State pitcher Rick Guy, threw 1 2/3 innings, giving up one hit and one run.

Bancroft was hit by two hits but managed to score a run in the bottom of the seventh on a couple of walks and the hit. Guy and Mike Clay collected Wakefield's only hits. The Trojans will not play again until they travel to Wayne Wednesday, April 22.

Second Guessers Help Weight Room

THE WEIGHT ROOM at Wayne Carroll High School is finally starting to take shape thanks to some hard work and a donation by the Wayne Second Guessers. Here, Wayne football coach Lonnie Ehrhardt moves one of five mirrors which was purchased with the help of the Second Guessers, who donated $150 to the project. The used mirrors were purchased at a closeout sale at Brandels in Lincoln. The room, which is located adjoining to the boys locker room area, was painted by students Ross Powers and Steve Bowers. The primer was donated by Gerald's Decorating of Wayne and paint was purchased for the final coat. Ehrhardt said plans call for a power rack, two bench presses, a module machine, preacher's curl rack, leg extension machine, dumbbells, racks, a dip stand, incline bench and chalk boxes. The room should improve Wayne's weight program considerably, Ehrhardt said.

Wayne State Baseball Team Homers Its Way Past Chargers

By Clark Coco
Wayne State SID

The Wayne State baseball team continued on with its torrid hitting attack as the Cats traveled to Blair Cliff Thursday and swept a doubleheader from the Chargers by the scores of 7-5 and 13-5.

Once again it was the Wildcats hitting five home runs during the day that spurred them on to their 14th and 15th wins of the season.

In the first contest, first baseman Bill Schwartz blasted a three-run homer off of pitcher Jim Reuter to give the Cats a big lift in the game. Shortstop Chico Mason and second baseman Mark Glatter also hit the ball well as Mason went 2 for 3 and Glatter collected two hits in four times at bat.

Rick Guy picked up his third win of the season against two losses and Dan Hugenkamp came in late in the game to get the Wildcats' first save of the year.

In game two, Wayne State's head coach Ron Jones once again the Cats the home run signal as they unloaded on the Blair Cliff Pitching staff for four round-trippers.

Schwartz collected four hits in five times at bat with one of those hits being his 10th homer of the year. Other Wildcats rounding the bases with one swing of the bat were Glatter, Doug Starzl and Rick Murcek.

Dan Hugenkamp started the second game for the Cats and earned his third win of the year.

In the double hitter, one school record was broken as Schwartz collected seven RBI's on the day pushing this year's total to 49, erasing the old record of 45 set by Jack Shupe and Steve Heying in 1973. He is also closing in on Wayne State single season home run record of 11 as Schwartz has collected 10 homers thus far during the year.

Wayne State next plays at Peru State Saturday, April 11, in a District 11 matchup. Wayne State now is 15-11 on the season and the Wildcats have won 15 of their last 18 games.

WSC Men Third, Women Fourth

The Wayne State track team traveled to the Dordt Invitational Tuesday, where the men tied for third place in the final standings and the women finished in fourth place in their division.

The two highest finishes for the Wildcats were the 3,200 meter relay which ended up in second place with a time of 7:59.1 and Joe Ortmeyer's second place finish in the high jump. He went 6'6" in the competition.

The Lady Wildcats were paced by the first place finish of their 400 meter relay team as they ran a 5:12 to finish ahead of second place team of South Dakota University and Marian Borgman's second place finish in the 200 meter dash with a time of :26.2.

Wildcats Up Batting To .344 Mark

The cost of living and the Wayne State College baseball team's batting average have something in common. They are both continuing to rise.

The Wildcats are now hitting as a team .344, 12 points higher than last week's .331 average.

Leading Wayne State are Jeff Zeiss and Al Volighi who are hitting .467 and .460 respectively.

Bill Schwartz leads the squad in home runs with 10 and RBI's with 49.

Looking For Permit Holders

The State Game and Parks Commission is hoping to learn the whereabouts of five hunters whose names were drawn for spring turkey permits, but can't be found by postal authorities.

The five permits were mailed from commission headquarters and then returned, apparently because of changes of address or mistakes in the address on the envelope.

These people, and the addresses they listed on their permit applications, are: William A. Barr, Sidney, 69162; Dennis D. Eucker, 439 Northwest 18th, Lincoln, 68528; Orville R. Heine, P.O. Box 263, Verdigris, 68783; Dennis C. Kallhoff, Norfolk, 68701; and Paul D. Vinzant, 1701 College Drive, Kearney, 68847.

Anyone knowing where these people may be reached are asked to get in touch with Commission headquarters, P.O. Box 30370, Lincoln, NE, 68503, so that the permits might be delivered in time for spring turkey hunting.

The contest began at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Student Center. This contest involved preliminary competition by area junior and senior high school students on papers, projects and performances related to history.

This year's theme was "Work and Leisure in History." District winners will travel to Lincoln for the state contest. Winners there will go to Washington, D. C. in June for the national finals.

Shirley Carpenter and Charlotte Wylie.

Corsages also were presented to Minnie Graef of Winside, the woman with the most offspring, Judy Jacobsen of Winside, the youngest adult present, Alta Jaeger of Winside, the newest grandmother, Elaine Menke of Carroll, representing St. Paul's Lutheran Church, for sending the largest group, and to Esther Glasscock of Randolph, who celebrated a birthday that day.

Guest speaker was Addie Scheve of Battle Creek. She spoke and showed a film entitled "He Says It With Flowers."

Five cakes depicting signs of Easter were given away during the day. The cakes were baked by Helen Holtgrewe and decorated by Della Holtgrewe.

Pastor Carpenter closed the program with the benediction.

Truck Fire Near Wayne

WAYNE FIREMEN responded to a call just before midnight Wednesday, which involved a semi-trailer on Highway 35 about six miles west of Wayne. The fire did extensive damage to the rear of the truck but was contained before spreading to the rest of the truck or ditch nearby. Cause of the fire was not yet determined but firemen speculated that it may possibly have been caused by the rear brake.

changes we make and a close inventory of what we use," Allis told the board.

BOARD MEMBERS adjourned the regular meeting to go into executive session for a report from Gary Volpanski, director of ESU's speech and hearing program, on staff contract negotiations.

Negotiations have been underway since January and it was clear no contract settlement has been reached.

After the executive session, the board accepted a bid from Security National Inurance Co. for comprehensive coverage. The bid, however, had to be refigured during the course of the meeting because of a discrepancy in coverage for the ESU nursing staff.

Board members also agreed to continue studying ways to reduce ESU health insurance costs and accepted a bid from Pioneer Insurance Co., Wayne, for disability insurance that includes full maternity coverage. ESU coverage had been with Standard of America.

DR. SELMA Flatmoe, Wayne, appeared before the board to request reconsideration of its refusal to grant her full-family health insurance. The board turned down Flatmoe's request. Wiese told Flatmoe that she could return with the request when her contract came up for renegotiation.

ESU board policy has been to provide full-family health insurance coverage to administrators only.

The board also reviewed ESU's new contract with schools for special education needs.

Hoskins

After selling most of his furniture to family and friends around Hoskins, Bruggeman decided to expand the business business last November. He said he's working hard to break into the Norfolk market and has begun advertising there, where he had over $2,000 worth of hand-made furniture on inventory.

Bruggeman and his wife, the daughter of former Norfolk residents Ronald and Tia Svenson, Scotts Bluff, hope to build their home in the Colorado Rockies with money they make from the furniture. "Then, we'll be busy furnishing it with the furniture I can build," he said. "I like to work with wood and I like my own work. It's very satisfying to me."

Convent

house four sisters currently living at Wayne's Providence Medical Center.

The convent plans call for construction of the single-story, wood-frame structure just south of the hospital.

THE PROPOSED convent, designed primarily as a residential facility, was presented to the architects last September. Providence Medical Center funds will not be used for the project, although four more hospital rooms will be available for patients on completion of the convent. Sisters working at the hospital are currently housed there. The completed convent will be their new residence.

The finished structure will have a brick exterior and house a single-car garage, four main bedrooms, two extra bedrooms, a kitchen area, living room and chapel area.

It is to be just east of the hospital parking lot and about 120 feet west of Providence Road.

Discount Hearing Aids For Senior Citizens

The publication of a new Senior Citizens Discount Hearing Aid Catalog has been announced by American Health Service, Inc.

American Health Service, Inc. is an organization serving the hearing needs of the American public through the sale of brand name hearing aids at substantial savings direct by mail.

They specialize in the sale of replacement hearing aids to existing hearing aid users and focus their attention to senior citizen groups, clubs, organizations, associations and individuals according to Mrs. Julie A. Stastny, supervisor of customer service for American Health Service, Inc.

Unfortunately hearing aids do not last forever. In fact, according to "Facts About Hearing Aids" published by the Council of Better Business Bureaus, Inc., Washington, D.C. 20036, "It is estimated that the average life of a hearing aid in daily use is about three years."

Mrs. Stastny noted that the catalog contains over 400 models of hearing aids made by more than twenty of the leading manufacturers and that when buying a replacement aid direct through American Health Service, Inc., savings can amount to as much as 60 percent compared to retail prices.

With the limited income of most senior citizens, and the spiraling inflation in today's economy, this catalog can bring welcome relief to senior citizens on a limited budget and in need of a new hearing aid.

If you wear a hearing aid, or know someone who does, you can send for a free copy of the catalog by writing to American Health Service, Inc., 1206 Golf Road, Waukegan, Ill., 60085.

Grass Pasture or Weed Patch?

Banvel helps make every pasture acre count.

Stop problem thistle before it overruns your pasture. Broadleaf weeds can rapidly overrun pasture grasses and turn lush pastures into weedy wastelands. Cattle refuse to graze near thorny problem weeds like thistle. The grazing area of your pasture gets smaller... cattle compete for forage... daily weight gains decline and profits fall. Break the broadleaf hold with Banvel herbicide. Banvel effectively controls a whole label full of stubborn broadleaf weeds including thistles... field bindweed... leafy spurge... ragweed and many more.

Banvel can be used with fluid fertilizers as part of a Weed and Feed pasture program. With the weeds out of the way, grasses have a chance to bounce back... opening the way for greater cattle weight gains and more profit. Break the broadleaf hold on pasture profits. Let the Banvel pasture program help unlock your pasture's beef-making potential. VELSICOL. For the first time since the drawing began, more than one name was drawn Thursday night. Names of three persons were picked at random and delivered to the participating stores but none of the three was a winner. The tripeheader could have given away a total of $1,750. First, the name of Lowell Glassmeyer of rural Wayne was drawn for $250 in bonus bucks. Don Rohde of Laurel was the name called for the $500 prize and Adolph Korn of rural Wayne was the third and final name picked in the drawing for $1,000. The band members pictured above are just four of the 16 individuals who helped with the drawing by delivering the names to local businesses. In turn, merchants donated money to help the band pay for its scheduled trip to Kansas City in early May. Plans are underway to draw names next week until a winner is found. Communicating by Light

BLAINE JOHS, a freshman at Wayne-Carroll High School, displayed his science project at the State Junior Academy of Sciences Fair, Friday at Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln. The project entitled, "Light Wave Communication" was one of the top 15 winners among northeast Nebraska entrants in a regional science fair at Wayne State College. Competing in the junior division Johs demonstrated a method of communication through the air. Using basically a radio, amplifier and LED, Johs showed how sound can be sent by light waves. He first demonstrated his project using a red LED which caused sound waves to move a short distance by light. Then, by using an infrared LED, he demonstrated the method by communicating approximately five feet with no wires touching. The music on the radio was sent through the amplifier speaker by light-waves. Johs said he read about the light-wave technique in books and felt it was fairly practical and easy to build. The system is now being used to replace telephone wires by carrying numerous calls at lower costs. Johs stated, Past projects completed by the freshman include building a synthesizer, a digital clock and a computer.
