RURAL CARROLL'S Carl Swanson stops beside the robins nest that he photographed last spring. His photograph of the baby bird-filled nest atop a fencepost, near the north entrance to the barn, was in the May issue of "Farm Wife News."

Carroll Photographer Snaps into Ag Magazine

By Randall Howell

A national farm publication has focused some attention on a young Carroll photographer.

And, Carl Swanson has his first check from the publisher to prove it.

The 20-year-old, Saigon-born shutterbug's photograph of a fence-post-top bird's nest filled with baby robins has been published in the May 1981 issue of "Farm Wife News," a Milwaukee, Wisc.-based magazine with national circulation.

SWANSON, the son of John and Marilyn Swanson, took the photograph with his 35mm Cannon AE-1 a year ago this month.

He sent the photograph, along with four others, to "Farm Wife News" after admiring the quality of the photography in the agriculture magazine. The magazine is a sister publication to "Farm and Ranch Living," a modern-day agriculture publication that places a special emphasis on quality color photography.

Swanson submitted his photograph of the filled robin's nest — itself in an unusual location — for the magazine's farm-photo-of-the-month section — page 2 of the May 1981 issue.

"IT WAS SO long ago, I was sure they lost the photographs," Swanson, who's father retired from the Central Intelligence Agency in 1976, explained.

Swanson took the photograph in April of 1980 when he discovered a pair of robins had built the nest on a gate post near north door of the family farm's huge white barn.

The robins have long since grown, stretched their wings and departed, but the nest remains undisturbed and unused on top of the same gate post.

Earlier this month a letter arrived from the Milwaukee firm, which also publishes "Country People." Inside was a $10 check — the prize offered by the magazine for photo of the month — the color slide and a tear sheet.

SWANSON, who's been working with cameras since he was 10 years old, was born in Saigon, South Vietnam, during his father's tour of duty there with the CIA. His father's a Nebraska native.

In 1962, his parents were transferred to Washington D.C., where they remained for 10 years. In 1972, Swanson — then 11 — moved to Puerto Rico with his parents when his father was again transferred.

The family returned to Washington D.C. in 1973 and three years later (1976) his father retired to pursue a life-long dream of owning a farm in Nebraska.

They bought Don Davis' farm just 2 1/2 miles south of Carroll Swanson — then a sophomore — started school at Wayne High School, where he worked as a photographer for the yearbook.

BY THAT time he had graduated from Instamatics to 35mm cameras. He is still using the shiny, black-and-chrome 35mm Cannon his parents gave him for his 1979 high school graduation.

Attending Wayne State College last year, Swanson worked on the college newspaper, The Wayne Stater, during his second semester. And, he credits Richard Manley, WSC journalism instructor, with teaching him the ropes of news photography.

Swanson, who's older sister Martha, lives in Indianapolis, Ind., plans to major in journalism at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln. He begins the summer term there in June.

He's been working at Broyhill Manufacturing in Wayne to earn money for his college education.

WORKING EXCLUSIVELY in color photography now, Swanson has submitted photographs to other publications — a photo of the Pierce pig wrestling contest to the National Enquirer, for instance — with unsuccessful results.

He's not discouraged, though, in fact, the break in "Farm Wife News," has redoubled his determination to become a photographer on a daily newspaper.

He's not sure where he'd like to work, but expresses a fondness for northeastern Nebraska.

"I've traveled a lot because of my dad's work with the CIA, but this is the best country I've ever been in. I like it here, right here," he said.

Geneticist Trims Flock; City Wants Head Count

Former Wayne State College professor John H. Violette has trimmed his flock by nearly 30 percent.

But, it may not be enough for him to keep his chicken permit.

The 78-year-old mouse geneticist has given away two of the seven chickens he keeps on his property at 110 Douglas, Wayne.

That leaves five chickens — a rooster and four hens — in his backyard, two more than his three-chicken permit allows.

"I AWAIT the decision as to how many, if any, the City Council will let me keep," Violette said Tuesday.

The decision may come Tuesday, April 28, during a regular meeting of the Wayne City Council.

City Administrator Phil Kloster has been asked by the Council to verify the number of chickens being kept by Violette. He is to report to the Council Tuesday.

Several years ago, Violette applied for and obtained a permit to keep three chickens on his city property. "The three procreated," he said, which brought the number to more than double that specified in the permit.

THAT'S PART of what brought the Douglas Street problem to the attention of city officials and, eventually, the City Council.

Neighbors complained about the alleged chicken-permit violation, and told city officials that the Violette property was a potential health hazard. After city officials, including a police officer, visited the Violette home to urge that he clean up his backyard and trim the flock, the long-time city resident wrote the City Council.

The letter, which explained the "procreation" and asked for a decision from the Council regarding the legal size of his backyard flock, was read by Kloster at the April 14 meeting.

That's when Kloster was directed by the Council to get a count and present a full report on the matter at the upcoming April 28 session.

KLOSTER SAID Tuesday that he had not visited the Violette property, but expected to before the April 28 meeting.

"He (Violette) assured the Police Department he was going to comply with the permit," Kloster said. "I'm going to see if he has because the Council's attitude seemed to be that he's going to comply, or they're going to pull it (revoke the permit) on him."

"I'm going to inspect the flock and count heads," he explained. He said the Council would get the information and would be free to act on it Tuesday night.

Kloster said he expected the Council members to make some kind of decision regarding the permit during the session.

AFTER THE recent visit by city officials, Violette advertised in a local publication that he'd give the chickens away to anyone who would come to take them.

He got results on two, but acknowledges that five remain.

WSC Funding-Shift Bill On Unicameral Agenda

With some legislative luck, Wayne State College's effort to shift some $480,000 in renovation funds from the fiscal year 1982 budget to the current budget could be considered by Nebraska's Unicameral Thursday.

The technical amendment, which adjusts already appropriated funding for renovation of WSC's education and humanities buildings, has been presented to the state Legislature by the Appropriations Committee.

The amendment is on the agenda for consideration Thursday afternoon, according to Donna Nelson of the Nebraska College Board of Trustees office in Lincoln.

Nelson, a WSC graduate, said the amendment is up for consideration with two other funding bills involving state colleges.

THE WSC amendment to LB732, a governor's bill introduced in January, may not get consideration Thursday if the Legislature's agenda is over scheduled, according to Nelson.

However, she said she expected no problems with the technical amendment's passage even if its consideration is postponed as the result of a busy bill schedule.

The amendment, if passed, would enable the college to help keep the contractor, Beckenhauer Construction of Norfolk, on schedule with the $2.2 million renovation projects. Target date for completion of both projects is September — in time for fall occupancy.

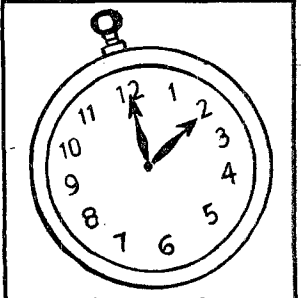

To date, the contractor is meeting the construction timetable, but funding to pay obligations for work to be performed between now and the end of fiscal year 1981, June 30, is earmarked for payment in the next fiscal year, which begins July 1.

"WE'RE VERY concerned about the progress of the building," Dr. Lyle Seymour, WSC president, said. "If (the progress) depends on passage of the technical amendment . . ."

Seymour said if the amendment is delayed or fails passage, it would be "detrimental to the project."

The WSC president expressed optimism about the passage of the technical amendment. "It simply means a transfer of funds," he said. "I can't imagine any problems. It's not necessarily tied to the other appropriations bills."

Time for a Real Change on Sunday

It's time for Wayne area residents to spring ahead to avoid being an hour behind the rest of the country.

Sunday, April 26, marks the start of Daylight Savings Time. Northeast Nebraska residents will lose an hour of sleep that won't be recaptured until Oct. 25, when clocks will return to Central Standard Time.

At 2 a.m. Sunday, your clock should read 3 a.m. Most people set their clocks ahead before going to bed — it avoids the embarrassment of being late for church on Sunday morning.

Festival Emphasizing 'Fun'

The Wayne Regional Arts Council encourages all regional artists, craftsmen, photographers and performers to participate in the third annual Spring Arts Festival.

The festival will be held in Wayne on Saturday, May 2, from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

EACH YEAR the festival has grown, and this year it will be even more exciting with a visit from The Pied Pipers, a family comedy troupe, as well as participation of many local artists and musicians.

Both amateur and professional artists are encouraged to attend. Items may be sold, if desired, or advertised at no cost to participants from within a 50 mile drive from Wayne.

AS IN PAST years, organizations, including home extension clubs, are welcome to participate as a group. Students also are invited to share their talents. Private music teachers may encourage their students to take part, whether they are beginners or advanced.

In addition to the wide variety of presentations from previous years, there is particular interest in featuring harmonica and accordion players and wood craftsmen. Jane O'Leary, a spokesman for the Wayne Regional Arts Council, said the council encourages participation of anyone who has a hobby, no matter how refined, from within the arts.

PRIMARY emphasis of the festival is to encourage everyone to share in the "fun" of the arts, particularly for those with artistic hobbies or pastimes.

The initial purpose of the festival continues to be the same — the sharing of interests and talents from within this region. It also provides people with an informal means of displaying their hobbies.

ANYONE WHO would like to participate, or who knows of someone who should be encouraged to participate, is asked to call Mrs. O'Leary, 375 2335, Pearl Hansen, 375 3507, or Maria McCue, 375 1986.

The festival is sponsored by the Wayne Regional Arts Council, with support from the Nebraska Arts Council.

History Book Committee Finds 83-Year Resident

Alfreda Schutt, who resides on a farm east of Sholes, has been tagged as the Wayne County resident who has lived at the same address the most years.

In its search for the resident who has lived at the same address the longest, the Wayne County History Book Committee discovered that Mrs. Schutt was born on the farm east of Sholes on Jan. 16, 1898, and continues to reside there.

Residents who have lived at the same place longer than that or know of anyone else who has is asked to contact the committee.

The committee met recently with co-chairman Lella Maynard to make further plans for the all-County History Book.

Lucile Larson, a spokesman for the group, said those who haven't submitted family histories are urged to continue writing them.

Mrs. Larson said memorial and tribute pages are to be included in the new book and are a "wonderful way to express your feelings about a loved one in both photos and copy."

"Usually," said Mrs. Larson, "family members put a marker at their loved one's grave with name, birth and death dates." Mrs. Larson said that now families can read about and see their loved ones for decades to come as these books are handed down through generations.

Mrs. Larson said tribute pages can be written about any living relative or friend and are an excellent way to surprise a mother, father, brother or sister, sharing how they have influenced your life.

Mrs. Larson pointed out that a tribute page also is an excellent way for a church congregation to pay tribute to their pastor, adding that the cost would be minimal with 50 or 60 persons contributing.

Persons interested in a memorial or tribute page are asked to contact Marian Jordan of Wayne for prices and tips on how to begin.

The history book committee said book sales are still needed to cover the cost of the publication.

Books are being sold on a pre-publication basis only and interested persons should contact Donna Shufelt.

Residents with questions regarding their family histories are asked to contact Eleanor Edwards, Marian Jordan is chairman of the business histories.

Another meeting of the book committee is planned Monday, May 4, at 9:30 a.m. at the county museum in Wayne.

Plans for Poppy Day and Memorial Day were made when the group met this month at the Wayne Vet's Club with president Helen Siefken. There were 16 members and two guests, Harold Thompson alternate national executive committee member of the Sons of the American Legion, and Roy Sommerfeld, local commander.

School in Wayne, with registration at 1 p.m.

Gold Star chairman Shirley Wagner announced that Gold Star members will be honored at next month's meeting.

Letters were received from Marjorie Taylor, department legislative chairman; Ila Anders, department poppy chairman; Wilma Harrison, department veterans affairs and rehabilitation chairman; and Jean Shores, department field service director.

Laura Tippery, District III president, reminded the group that April is Children and Youth Month. She also urged the auxiliary to send in its reports.

Duane Hodge sent a letter reminding the unit that April 27 through May 3 is National Volunteer Week and thanked the auxiliary for all the volunteer service it has performed.

A letter of thanks was received from the Nebraska Children's Home Society for the Easter donation they received. Thank you notes also were received from the Herman Sund family for the poppy cross and from the Emil Dion family for the memorial gift in memory of Emil.

It was announced the 38th annual Junior Conference will be held at Dorchester on May 30-31.

Mary Kruger reported on the Field Service Orientation Day held at Norfolk and announced they are in need of lap robes, bibs, and bingo parties.

The local auxiliary was to meet April 21 at the Vet's Club to work on wall mats. All veterans organizations met in the afternoon to work.

Women who attended a bingo party April 10 at the Norfolk Veterans Home were Eveline Thompson, Mary Kruger, Marie Brugger, Marguerite Hofeldt, Louise Kahler and Neva Lorenzen.

Several women met last month to make 45 tray favors and centerpieces. They included Marie Brugger, Mary Kruger, Louise Kahler, Linda Grubb, Eveline Thompson, Emma Soules, Lottie Longnecker, Alma Spillinger, Shirley Wagner and Helen Siefken.

Women planning to make cakes for the May 8 bingo party are Neva Lorenzen, Shirley Wagner, Julia Haas, Louise Kahler, Marguerite Hofeldt and Eveline Thompson.

The 60th anniversary of the American Legion Auxiliary will be observed on June 3 at 2 p.m. at the Wayne Vet's Club room. Honored during the day will be permanent members and those with continuous membership shields.

Eveline Thompson reported on the District III meeting held last month in South Sioux City. Wayne received first place for its publicity book and second place for its prayer book. Mrs. Thompson, membership chairman, received her airplane pin.

Mary Kruger conducted the memorial service and draping of the charter for Hazel Bressler, a Gold Star Sister and past president of the local unit. Others taking part in the service were Helen Siefken, Mary Kruger and Helen Thompson. The group sang "Jesus Savior Pilot Me" and "Abide With Me," accompanied by Eveline Carlson.

Chaplain Mary Kruger read the prayer for peace, followed with the singing of "America." President Siefken closed the meeting following the Little Red Schoolhouse March. Serving were LaVerna Hilton, Elsie Hailey and Vicki Skokan.

Next meeting will be at the Vet's Club on May 4 at 8 p.m.

In the nightcap, the Cats came back to defeat Bellevue 11-1 in five innings. Wayne spread 12 hits out over the five innings as Jeff Clark earned the win.

Monday's action was against Kearney State and the Wildcats pulled the first game out 4-3 in eight innings. The clinching blow was a solo home run by Rick Murcek in the bottom of the eighth which gave the Cats the win. Grady Hansen earned the win as he held Kearney State to only six hits over the eight innings.

In the second game, Kearney State scored six runs in the top of the seventh inning to beat the Wildcats 12-5. A Kearney State 15-hit attack and Wayne State's six errors were the deciding factors in the game. Dan Hilgenkamp was the losing pitcher.

WSC Alumni Football

The annual Wayne State College alumni football game will be held this Saturday, April 25, at 1 p.m. in the Wildcat's football stadium. The Wildcats have been working in spring drills for the past four weeks and the alumni game will be the final workout for the Wildcats before next fall.

Head coach Del Stollenberg has announced that the alumni will once again have an honorary coach, Henry Schmitz. Some of the players who will be returning for the contest are:

Doug Radtke who is originally from Pendler and played defensive back for the Wildcats from 1970-1974. Radtke now lives and coaches in Omaha.

Greg Walker a wingback for the Cats in 1974 will be returning from his home in Omaha.

Bob Barry from Battle Creek, who holds the Wayne State season and career rushing records.

And a pair of former quarterbacks, Dave Miller from Savanah, Ill. and Rick Benedetto from Chicago.

Following the game, there will be a banquet for the alumni and their wives as old times will be relived once again for these former Wildcats.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

WITH COMPETITION in the state track and field meet only a month away, it's time to think realistically about the chances of Wayne's boys and girls teams.

The two teams have been doing exceptionally well and will be heading into districts in only about three weeks. Barring injuries, illness and false starts, both teams should do real well in district action.

Several state qualifiers are expected on both squads and Wayne could be a state contender in boys and girls divisions if those qualifiers can place at the big event.

Last year, Albion won the Class B girls division with 42 points. Wayne's girls should be able to score at least 20 points. A couple of high finishes could push the Blue Devils up high in the team standings.

Aurora ran away with the Class B boys state title last year. This year, Aurora's talent is limited and the class is balanced. Wayne should place several individuals and relay teams in medal-winning positions. If things go their way, the Blue Devils should be able to place in the top five positions at state.

THE OAKLAND A'S are back! Last year Billy Martin gave the world a glance of things to come. This year, the A's are off on a torrid pace.

With pitching that may be unmatchable even by Houston and Baltimore, Oakland has rolled to a dozen wins in the first 13 games of the season. If the A's do even half as well as they have done so far, they will be World Series contenders.

Fans in Oakland who haven't seen a world champion team in their town for many years are beginning to get baseball fever.

Stolenberg, Proett Among State's Best

This track and field season may be the "year of the Blue Devil" according to indications made by the Wayne High boys and girls track teams during the first month of the season.

The two Wayne teams have been the dominant forces in invitational all year. The girls claimed team titles in the Lakeview Invitational and West Point Invitational while the boys won the Plainview Invitational, Wayne State Invitational and Randolph Invitational.

Track and field leaders according to Omaha World-Herald figures this week show several Wayne athletes near the top of the charts.

In the girls division, top athlete from Wayne is Missy Stollenberg. The sophomore is tied with two Omahans with the fastest 100-meter dash time this season. The leading time in the state is :12.1.

Stollenberg's time is fastest in Class B by

3. She also has run the 200-meter dash in :25.7, the fourth best time in all classes and the fastest time in Class B.

Another pleasant surprise on the Wayne team is the success of another sophomore, Jill Mosley. She has emerged as one of the leading long jumpers in the state.

Following in the footsteps of her sister, state champion Sidney Mosley, Jill has the second longest mark in Class B and the sixth longest in all classes at 17-5. Her time of 26-5 in the 200 is the third fastest time in Class B.

Senior Lisa Peters has posted the fifth fastest time in the Class B 400-meter dash, a time of 1:01.3. The Wayne 400-meter relay team is fourth in Class B with a time of :52.3.

The only other area girl ranked among the leaders in an event is Dawn Kluger of Allen, who is fourth in the Class D shot put with a mark of 114-3.

Area Boys Among Best
Doug Proett, a standout in the state cross country meet this last fall, is excelling in the distance races this spring.

His time of 9:47.2 in the 3,200 meter run is fourth fastest in all classes and fastest by nearly three seconds in Class B. Proett also ran the 1,600 meter race in 4:34.8.

Teammate Tod Heier has run Class B's fifth fastest time in the 400 with a mark of :51.2. Wayne's 3,200 meter relay team has the fourth best time in Class B at 8:23.3.

Several other area athletes are ranked with the state's leaders.

In the 100-meter dash, Jerry Roberts of Wakefield has the fifth fastest time of :11.3 in Class C. The Wakefield 1,600-meter relay team has a time of 3:35.4, fifth fastest in Class C.

Brian Foote of Winslow is tied for seventh in the Class D shot put after clearing 12-0.

Parents Visit Classrooms

TEACHERS AT WAYNE'S West Elementary and Middle Schools were on hand last week as parents, other relatives and friends of the students attended open house at both institutions. The turnout for this year's open houses was termed excellent, as principals at both schools estimated attendance by parents of the students at about 95 percent. The primary attraction at the middle school was The Science Fair in which all students participated. In the photo above, Marge McCright watches as students Craig Neisius, in foreground, and Dale Hansen, prepare for an eruption of a volcano they constructed. Jerry Heier also participated in the volcano project but was not present for the photo. At the elementary school, parents were able to visit each classroom (kindergarten through fourth grades), and become acquainted with the physical education and music programs, Title I, and library facilities. Six year old Michael Lindahl, bottom photo at left, proudly gives his mother and four year old brother Brian a tour of Mrs. Greg Bygland's first grade classroom. ### 800 Pine Trees for Planting

WSC Celebrates Arbor Day at Arboretum

More than 800 pine trees seedlings have found a home — a place to grow — in the Wayne area this week as part of an Arbor Day planting celebration organized by Wayne State College.

Wednesday, in honor of a Nebraska tradition that dates back to 1872, dozens of Wayne residents — many of them school children — helped plant a tree on the campus of Wayne State College.

And, as a bonus, those tree planters got a free tree of their own to plant anywhere they wanted. Some planted their second tree on campus in the Arboretum Nature Center north of Providence Medical Center.

Still others took their second tree home for a family planting to mark Arbor Day, April 22, 1981.

THE TWO-TREE bonus at WSC this year was designed by Dr. Charles R. Maler, acting curator of the Arboretum, in keeping with Gov. Charles Thone's "Plant Two Trees" program.

Wednesday marked the resumption of the two-trees program at WSC after a two-year hiatus. In 1978, some 900 trees were planted through the WSC program.

Beginning at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Wayne residents were afforded the opportunity to join campus groundskeepers at the Nature Center to plant a tree and earn their free tree. Campus groundskeepers Jim Scott, who commanded the tree-planting mission at the Arboretum, arranged to have tree-planting sites available as well as shovels.

The 800 trees, all donated to the cause of the tradition which was started by J. Sterling Morton over 100 years ago, had eager planters from fifth and sixth grade classes at Wayne's Middle School and St. Mary's Catholic School.

Wayne residents and a number of Wayne County Extension Club members also picked tree sites and started a seedling during the afternoon celebration, which featured refreshments for the youngsters.

HELPING the grounds crew were Don Spitzer, county extension agent, and Dr. Maler. Trees not planted in Wednesday's Arbor Day observance will be planted by the campus grounds crew at the Nature Center, according to Maler.

Maler said that area residents who missed the opportunity to plant a tree, but who want to support the program, may donate the cost of two trees — at least $10 — to the Wayne State Foundation earmarked for the WSC Arboretum.

The Arboretum is part of the Nebraska Statewide Arboretum headquartered in Lincoln, according to Maler. "Each one is dedicated to a different purpose," he said. "At Wayne State, the Arboretum is dedicated to teaching and community service."

AS PART OF the teaching and community service, Maler is planning a fall Arboretum workshop.

And, though trees have become a focal point at the Arboretum — particularly on Arbor Day, Maler said there are plans to plant wild flowers and native grasses on the Nature Center land.

Wednesday's observance was part of a state, and now national, tree-planting tradition that has become an ongoing program at WSC, Maler said, explaining that the campus now has 135 species of trees.

IN 1872, Morton proposed to the Nebraska Board of Agriculture an annual tree planting day to be called Arbor Day. The first Arbor Day was observed in Nebraska with the planting of 1 million trees.

Morton, who became President Grover Cleveland's Secretary of Agriculture, continued his campaign nationally. In 1887 he said: "Arbor Day...which has already transplanted itself to nearly every state in the American Union and has even been adopted in foreign lands...is not like other holidays. Each of those reposes on the past, while Arbor Day proposes for the future."

Gov. Thone's "Plant Two Trees" program came about when he determined that if every Nebraskan would plant two trees a year over the course of five years state residents would replace the more than 200,000 trees lost during the last 20 years.

Wayne Native is Hurt in Accident North of Fremont

Ginger (Hein) Nissen, Lincoln, was seriously injured in an Easter weekend one-car accident north of Fremont.

A Wayne native, Nissen, wife of National Bank of Commerce president Jim Nissen, Lincoln, is recovering at Bryan Memorial Hospital after being transferred there from the Fremont Hospital following the Easter Sunday accident.

According to the bank president, he and his wife were returning to their Lincoln home Sunday evening. About 5:20 p.m., his wife, who was driving, lost control of the car approximately 8 miles north of Fremont.

He said the car swerved into the opposite ditch and struck a tree. His wife, aunt of State National Bank of Wayne president David Ley, was taken to the Fremont Hospital by the Winslow-Hooper Rescue Unit.

Her injuries include a broken pelvis, lacerations of the face, hands and knees and a possible ankle fracture. She was air-ambulanced to Bryan Memorial Hospital Sunday night by the St. Joseph's Hospital Lifeline Unit out of Omaha.

She underwent surgery Sunday night and was recovering in the intensive care unit Monday. On Tuesday, Nissen said, his wife was moved out of intensive care, but remains hospitalized.

Nissen's wife is the daughter of Harold (Jim) and Joy (Ley) Hein, Wayne.

Douglas, said: "I don't mind the chickens, they never were the problem. It was the mice and wild cats. The cats don't stay home where they belong."

Several weeks ago, Sumner, who lives just south of the Violette property, contacted City Councilman Gary Vopalensky regarding the problem. At that time she complained about decaying mice droppings, the cats, flies and the smell.

NEIGHBORS across the street, the Bill Vahlkamps, 115 Douglas, also expressed their concern to Vopalensky, particularly regarding the flies. While Vahlkamp declined to comment on the matter Tuesday, last week he acknowledged the complaints.

Violette and his next-door neighbor to the north, David Headley, a state trooper, cleaned up the backyard last week. Both Sumner and Vahlkamp expressed encouragement and said they thought things were going to get better.

Vahlkamp, a retired Wayne farmer, said he felt some city residents believed he was picking on "an old man." Explaining that Violette was only three years older than he is, Vahlkamp said he was only trying to protect his property.

Sumner said the situation made it sound like Headley was "the only good neighbor" which, she said added, "is not true."

VIOLETTE, who retired from his position at Wayne State College 15 years ago, has pursued scientific research in his backyard laboratory. The experiments, he said, involve mouse genetics, the study of biological traits in mice.

Sumner, who used to help Violette care for the laboratory mice, said improper disposal of the mouse droppings created the smell.

Violette's wife, Helen, 61, said they were both saddened that the matter had reached this point, and hoped "things would get better."

Kloster said Violette is essentially asking to keep the five chickens. But, Violette insisted it is entirely up to the Council.

"They will have to make this decision," he said.

Bill

"I just don't anticipate any problems," he continued. "I hope we get quick action."

THE LEGISLATURE is being asked to approve a proposed amendment to LB232 that would advance a $480,000 renovation project payment schedule from fiscal year 1981-82 to fiscal year 1980-81 — the current fiscal year.

If the amendment is approved by the Legislature and signed by Gov. Charles Thone, the college will be able to meet its financial obligations to Beckenhauer Construction within the current fiscal year as they come due.

If the technical funding amendment is killed, contractor obligations coming due this month, and in May and June, could not be paid until after July 1 — a situation that could seriously delay the project, according to Seymour.

Of course, if the contractor delayed the work so that the obligations came due for payment after July 1, the current funding situation could be used. However, Seymour has explained that that seems to be an unworkable option since it would delay the construction timetable and penalize a contractor that has been able to keep the renovation project on schedule.

RENOVATION is being rapidly completed in both buildings and the $771,000 budgeted for work during the current fiscal year has been spent, according to Seymour.

The $480,000, initially earmarked for contractor obligations that were expected to fall due after July 1 is now needed for those same obligations, only its needed several months earlier than planned.

Earlier this spring, Seymour said, "We simply have a time crunch on cash flow." The requested change will not affect the total cost of the project, Seymour said.

Approval of the technical amendment will allow the Nebraska College Board of Trustees to shift funds already earmarked for the renovation projects to meet the payment needs of an on-time construction schedule.

Women Adopt Local Woman's Resolution

Mrs. Janice Predoehl, chairman of the state resolutions committee of the Nebraska Federation of Womens Clubs, wrote a cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) resolution which was adopted at the state convention this month in Grand Island.

Mrs. Predoehl said the resolution, which was adopted earlier at local and district Womens Club meetings, concerns CPR classes in all parochial, private and public schools throughout Nebraska.

The resolution, if adopted by the legislature, would make CPR instruction mandatory in the school curriculum for all 7-12 grade students.

Mrs. Predoehl said the purpose of the resolution is to insure that all students receive CPR training sometime during their school years.

The resolution will be presented at the international convention of Womens Clubs at Cedar Rapids, Iowa in June.

According to Mrs. Predoehl, some 100 Womens Clubs throughout Nebraska have undertaken CPR projects which coincide with the state's efforts to have every third person in Nebraska trained in CPR.

Wayne's Newest Bridge

EARTHMOVING equipment begins to cover the concrete culvert for Logan Creek on state Highway 15 just north of Wayne. Tuesday night rain made the turn-up earth around the project slick as grease Wednesday morning, but work crews continued to bury the structure that will serve as a bridge across the creek. The roadway has been blocked for over a month, while crews took out the old bridge and built the new one. Local traffic was rerouted along the eastern side of the construction project, but most followed the Main Street detour around the project. Computer traffic from Muhs Acres and points north of Wayne often detoured, but going-to-work traffic did build up at the site before 8 a.m. and after 3 p.m. weekdays. One local car was observed mired in the mud at the construction site early Wednesday morning.

$150,000 Benedictine Sisters Project
Planning Commission Approves Request
For Convent's Conditional-Use Permit

The Benedictine Sisters' $150,000 convent construction project has been given the green light by Wayne's City Planning Commission.

On a 7-1 vote Monday night, the commission approved the requested conditional-use permit for the single-story residential project.

Only commission member Orville Brandstetter objected to the project.

BRANDSTETTER expressed concern over whether conditions of an agreement between the Nebraska College Board of Trustees and the Wayne Hospital Foundation had been adhered to regarding use of the land.

Land to be used for the convent site was deeded to the Benedictine Sisters by the board for hospital use, or use supportive to the Providence Medical Center.

Brandstetter argued that since the proposed convent is to be a residence, it could be in conflict with conditions of the covenant.

Dan Sherry, commission chairman, openly disagreed with Brandstetter, as did Richard Keidel, the commission member who introduced the motion to approve the conditional use permit.

COMMISSION approval places the conditional use permit before the Wayne City Council for final action — most likely at its Tuesday, April 28, meeting.

Sherry asked if there were any objections to the proposed convent. Hearing none, he introduced and read a letter of support for the project from the Wayne Hospital Foundation's Board of Directors.

Signed by Robert A. Carhart, board president, the letter said, in part: "At its meeting of April 17, the Wayne Hospital Foundation Board of Directors expressed its intention of notifying the Planning Commission of its support of the Benedictine Sisters' request for a conditional use permit to allow construction of the convent."

"WE BELIEVE the structure, as planned, is consistent with the character and appearance of the area in which it will be located and in no way detracts from the value of the surrounding property."

The board asked to be placed on record in support of the project.

A discussion on whether Dr. Lyle Seymour, president of Wayne State College, had been properly notified regarding the April 6 public hearing on the project and Monday night's meeting brought a response from Jim Holtgrewe, city planner and building inspector.

"His office has received a letter, but whether he has personally seen it, I do not know," Holtgrewe told the commission. The land adjoins Wayne State College property and was deeded to the hospital through the college by the Nebraska College Board of Trustees.

Seymour, it was determined, had been out of town over the weekend, but had been notified in advance of the April 6 public hearing.

AT THAT HEARING, details of the proposed project were so sketchy that commission members tabled the conditional-use permit until its representatives could appear before the board.

Sherry called Monday night's special session to consider the Benedictine Sisters' request. This time the project was not only represented by the architect Charles Beardstee of Norfolk, but also by Sister Gisellinde Schaut, project business manager, and Sister Kevin Hermesen, a hospital X-Ray technologist.

Though neither Schaut, nor Hermesen spoke on behalf of the project, Beardstee did appear before the commission, offering to answer any questions regarding the project and the Benedictine Sisters' request for the permit.

Beardstee apologized to the commission for not showing up at the April 6 public hearing. He explained that it was a scheduling mixup.

"WE BELIEVE we have sited it (the project) in a reasonable place on the hospital grounds," Beardstee said in his introductory remarks. "It's going to be very usable as far as the sisters are concerned."

Gary Van Meter, attending his second meeting as a newly appointed member of the commission, asked if construction on that site would prohibit future construction for the hospital.

"It would be possible to put another building at the extreme south end of the parking lot, between the parking lot and the hospital's property line," Beardstee said.

"We took that into consideration," Keidel asked for a clarification on the definition of the word convent. Schaut, who is procurator of the Norfolk Priory, said that sisters' residence could be used interchangeably with convent.

THE CONVENT is designed to provide living quarters for four sisters who work and live at the hospital. Their moving into the convent, which is designed for four bedrooms, two spare bedrooms, a living room area, a kitchen and chapel, is expected to free much needed hospital bed space for patients.

Funded in its entirety by the Missionary Benedictine Sisters of Norfolk, the 3,700-square-foot convent will be of wood frame construction with a brick veneer. Sited just south of the hospital, the structure also will house a one-stall garage.

Wayne's Arnold J. Anderson, owner of Town and Country Builders, has been awarded the $130,000 construction contract. According to Schaut, the additional $20,000 will be used to furnish the convent.

Construction is expected to start within this month.

BRANDSTETTER asked Beardstee if he had consulted with attorneys regarding "how the land was deeded."

Beardstee said he had not. "I had no reason to believe it was anyone else's," he said.

Brandstetter persisted, asking Beardstee if he knew what was set up for the property (the proposed convent site).

Beardstee explained he had no reason to believe anyone but the Benedictine Sisters owned it and that he was unaware of any special conditions in the deed.

Brandstetter maintained that there is a difference between a hospital and a residence and questioned whether the convent met the requirements of a hospital service facility, an apparent reference to conditions in the covenant.

KEIDEL SAID that the city attorney's advice indicated the commission had no control over terms of the covenant. "The city has no control, we can only rule on the conditional-use permit," Keidel explained.

"It's a matter of...whether it was deeded for the purpose of a hospital," Brandstetter continued.

"I disagree," Sherry interrupted.

"That's your prerogative," Brandstetter shot back.

"Is it (adherence to the terms of the covenant) for the board to decide?" Keidel added, rhetorically. "I move we approve this thing as requested."

Simultaneous seconds came from Van Meter and Dr. Sid Hillier, who was attending his first meeting as a newly appointed commission member.

IN THE FOLLOWING roll call vote — with Dr. Ken Liska, commission member and Wayne area veterinarian, absent — Brandstetter recorded the only no-vote on the permit question.

"Our approval does not make it 100 percent binding," Sherry explained, indicating the City Council would make the final decision.

The project is scheduled for completion this summer.

It's Back to the Drawing Board for State Lawmakers

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

It looks like it's back to the drawing board time again for Nebraska lawmakers. The same state attorney general's office that successfully attacked the constitutionality of Nebraska's 1980 distribution formula for $70 million in aid to local governments has found flaws in the 1981 disbursement plan that lawmakers were almost ready to take a final vote on.

The latest attorney general's opinion no doubt will be criticized by some who think the distribution formula contained in LB284 is valid. But anyone who has watched the debate over the issue for several years must concede the new opinion makes sense.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY General Ralph Gillan, the tax expert in the state Justice Department, believes the 1981 plan would be difficult to defend in court. In fact, he indicated the 1980 plan that was struck down was better than the formula pending in the Legislature this year.

A key problem in the distribution formula debate seems to be the perpetuation of the premise that the $70 million fund was created to reimburse local governments for revenue lost when the Legislature exempted farm equipment, livestock and business inventory from personal property taxes. That is in fact why the fund was created. But that basis for distribution causes problems.

If the specified property is no longer on the tax rolls, how can the Legislature equitably figure out how much tax revenue is being lost by a government? It can't, and therein lies the problem.

"The actual losses are unascertainable, and we can see no possible relationship between such losses and assessed valuations of taxable property," Gillan told the lawmakers.

The 1981 distribution plan that had advanced to the final stage of consideration would distribute the $70 million for three years on the basis of total valuation of property in a county. Counties would receive the money, then distribute it to such local taxing districts as schools, cities and the like.

"DISTRIBUTING THE fund on the straight basis of assessed valuations tends to give more money to those who need it least," Gillan says.

So what is the Legislature to do? And what about the local governments that had planned on getting the first of seven payments last December?

State Sen. Loran Schmitt of Bellwood, the man who was instrumental in exempting the property that led to last year's law and ultimate court test, has come up with one plan. Other lawmakers no doubt will offer their suggestions.

The Legislature appears determined to settle the matter expeditiously, despite the urban-rural split over whether the distribution formula should be based solely on property values or whether it should consider population and other factors.

But there could be several delays brought about by the Legislature's procedures. If an entirely different formula is introduced — one that differs from any that has been before the lawmakers before — senators could suggest it be aired before another public hearing.

The Legislature, however, has considered publicly numerous options and might be able to avoid another public hearing on a new formula by reasoning that citizens already have had an opportunity to comment on virtually every option available.

The key to quick legislative action will be to get an early consensus on a compromise plan, one that apparently will have to get away from the concept of reimbursing local governments for revenue lost by virtue of the personal property tax exemptions.

IN OTHER WORDS, lawmakers very well might have to simply call this new plan a state aid to local government measure, not just a personal property tax relief law.

And if lawmakers come to grips with that premise, they'll have to answer the tough question of how long the state continue to provide $70 million or more in state aid to local governments.

But, clearly, the immediate question is how to get the money that was promised out to local governments this year. Five of the seven promised payments already would have been distributed by now if the 1980 law had been valid.

It's a good bet that some local governments can't wait much longer. And that, if for no other reason, is why the distribution formula problem has been called one of the most pressing issues — if not the most pressing issue — of the 1981 legislative session.

INSPECTIONS LOSE GROUND — A majority of Nebraska's lawmakers have now set the stage for a final vote on a bill that would do away with the state's 12-year-old motor vehicle inspection program.

The recent 26-14 vote to send LB35 to the final stage of legislative consideration came only after determined efforts by some senators to convince their colleagues that the program can be revised to make it better.

The legislative majority, however, appears determined to do away with the program that some have called a sham and a ripoff.

Gov. Charles Thone has not committed himself on whether he would veto the bill if passed. But he has said he would be concerned about repealing the safety inspection program.

With nine senators not participating in the 26-14 second-round vote, it appears LB35 supporters might be able to round up enough ballots for a 30-vote veto override. But the strong opposition to the bill very likely could, in the final analysis, present such a move.

Nebraskans very well might know before the month is over whether the inspection program is up or down.

One Viewpoint

Good Fences, Neighbors

Robert Frost, a New England poet, said "Good fences make good neighbors." And, Nebraskans, certainly understanding what he meant, could well have turned the line of his poem around to read "Good neighbors make good fences."

It's not that Frost was wrong. Heavens, no. It's just that wherever you are, you see a problem from a different point of view.

That's part of the neighborhood problems on Wayne's Douglas Street, around the John H. Violette home at 110 Douglas in particular.

Much has been said about fences throughout history and much will continue to be said. Fences keep something in or they keep something out. And, in some cases they do both.

Interestingly enough, fences range from barbed wire to barbed tongues and from stone barriers to stony silence.

By their own admission, the parties involved in the problem — and it is a real problem — along the 100 Block of Douglas have talked to each other and not to the neighbors they are complaining about. John and Helen Violette.

One neighbor even exclaimed, "What good would it do?" The only real answer involves what little good not talking to them has done.

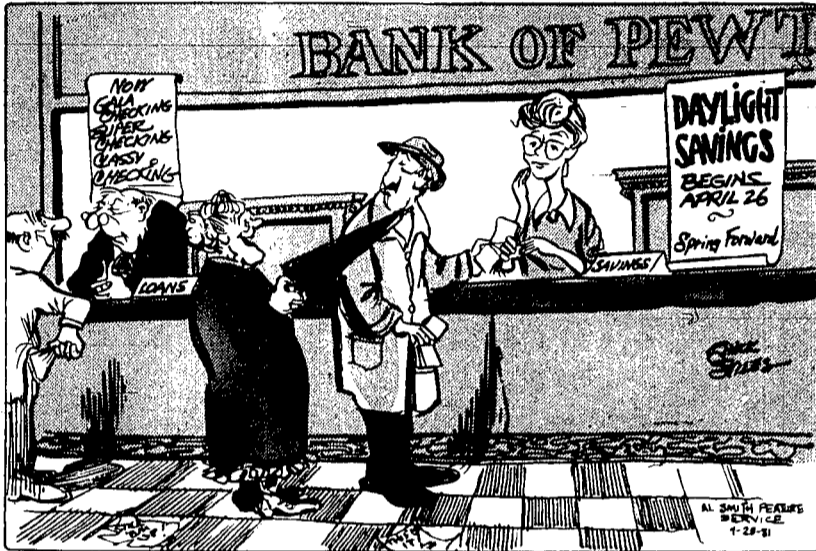

It has made the Violette's no matter what wrongs have or have not been done — ideal in personal targets for gossip and whispered complaints.

It has also made the Violette's neighbors — no matter how justified or unjustified the complaints — feel awkward and uncomfortable about dealing with their problem through a third party.

Something has been lost in the symbolic fence building — the gate. When a neighbor builds a fence without a gate, that neighbor doesn't fence things out. No, that neighbor fences himself in.

Keep your fences, but build your gates.

Farmers Tax Soil Feeding Everyone

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M.M. Van Kirk,
Director of Information

Even though export sales of farm commodities are highly important to the U.S. farm economy, American farmers and ranchers have no obligation to bankrupt their soil and water resources in an impossible attempt to keep up with the food needs of the world's runaway population growth.

The productive capacity of this nation's farmers is astounding but they cannot cope with the projected doubling and tripling of the world's population. A large percentage of the world's 4 billion inhabitants are on short rations now. What will the situation be when the total reaches a projected 6 billion at the turn of the century and perhaps 12 billion within another 100 years?

Another Viewpoint

1 Reg — 122,000 Words

The cost of federal regulations and paperwork to the public is over $100 billion a year. But it is not possible to count the hours of grief, frustration and hard work that go into the daily grind of keeping up with government reports and rules.

Fortunately, Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. (D-Va.) recently gave a report on a controversial new noise regulation issued by the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration, which offers some insight. The regulation now under review by the Reagan Administration is opposed by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and industry groups which complain it is too costly, impractical and likely to do little good. In its simplest form, the new standard would require thousands of plants with millions of workers to measure noise levels in the plants and to test and retest the hearing of employees on a regular basis if they are exposed to allegedly excessive levels.

Calling the rule "one of the most complex final rules ever to come out of the bureaucracy," Sen. Byrd said.

The new noise rule itself begins on page 4708 of the January 16 Federal Register. It is 102 pages in length, an estimated 122,000 words, and this is without charts. Is it any wonder the public is not interested in federal rulemaking?

"Were I to bore the Senate with a recitation of this rule, it would take me 22 1/2 hours to read it at 90 words a minute. Were I to ask the taxpayers for printing of the rule in the Congressional Record, it would cost approximately $35,760 for a 7 1/2 page reprint, just for this rule. I shall not call on the taxpayers to foot such a bill."

As taxpayers, we are grateful, Senator, on both counts.

Nebraskans Seek Industry

"About a hundred Nebraska leaders went at their own expense with me on a trip to recruit more and better jobs for our state."

"Actually, those volunteers spent three days in Chicago calling on industrial prospects, while I was there only the final day for a visit with about 70 area executives who have authority over new plant locations for their corporations."

University of Nebraska Athletic Director Bob Devaney made the trip, and obtained new industry is much like recruiting football players for the Big Red. You must be well organized, enthusiastic and emphasize your competitive advantages, while being aware of your disadvantages.

"The Nebraska volunteers called on 164 Chicago based industrial corporations and had 106 interviews with corporate executives. That's about 25 percent better success in obtaining interviews at the corporate level than the standard for such industrial recruiting."

"Six companies were discovered that indicated a definite interest in locating new plants in Nebraska. In addition, 11 corporations said that our state would be given serious consideration if those firms decide to build additional plants.

"A major goal of this state administration is to help existing industry to prosper and expand and to attract new business from other parts of the country."

"Nebraska has only one major disadvantage in industrial recruiting. We're not close to major population centers."

"Here are our most important advantages as I see them:

1. Nebraskans still have the work ethic — we're not looking for high wages for low effort.
2. State and local taxes are low compared with other states, and Nebraska by lowering its income taxes in 1980 is a rarity.
3. Electricity and natural gas rates in Nebraska are lower than most states, and
4. In Nebraska, state government encourages business and works with it, while some state governments treat industry as if it were an enemy.

"If our industrial recruiting efforts pay off, and I'm confident we'll have some success, the results will be better jobs for many Nebraskans whose present positions don't use their full capabilities and home-state opportunities for the young Nebraskans who are going to be entering the job market in the next several years. I'm enthused about those goals and dedicated to them."

QUENTIN WEST, director of International Cooperation and Development for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, recently warned that about all of the world's available fertile land is already being used for agriculture and that this means many nations will have to rely more heavily on the United States to meet the food needs of their expanding populations.

He said that by 1985 foreign nations will depend on the United States for about 15 percent of their agricultural supplies, up from 11 percent in the late 1970s and only 2 percent in the 1950s. West said that U.S. exports will have to increase 6 to 8 percent annually through 1985 to keep up with anticipated demand.

At the same time, he noted, demand is rising and available farmland here and abroad will be shrinking. Less fertile, semi-arid land with lower yield potential and greater susceptibility to erosion will be increasingly pressed into production. He estimated that by 1985, 30 percent of the land in world agricultural production will be semi-arid and "rainfall dependent," meaning droughts and dry spells will put crops in jeopardy nearly every year.

West said technological breakthroughs to increase production in the United States are needed to supply the growing food demands in the world in the coming two decades, and he said U.S. technology and technological assistance should be provided to developing nations, which are having the hardest time feeding their domestic populations.

State Revenue Sharing Faces A Constitutionality Question

The Legislature was informed by Attorney General Paul Douglas this week that LB 284, a bill to redistribute 70 million dollars in state funds to local governments was constitutionally questionable.

The proposed distribution formula was based upon property valuation. The Douglas opinion argued that the distribution needed to reflect the relative population concentrations.

THIS ISSUE IS perhaps one of the most important facing the Legislature. Local governments have budgeted for these dollars and are more and more placed in a dangerous position the longer the funds are withheld.

Prompted by this need, some senators have indicated interest in an amendment that would distribute the fund on a valuation based formula for two years, followed by a valuation population factor in the third year. The attorney general has already said he believes that kind of a plan to be defensible in court if it is used as a transitional device.

I am also very happy to report that a bill I co-sponsored has advanced to the final stage of the legislative process. LB 35 will put an end to the state's vehicle inspection program.

I believe the program is an unreasonable and unworkable intrusion of government into our private lives. We know that it has cost

Merle's Message
by Sen. VanMinden

millions of dollars to the state's taxpayers just for the cost of the inspection sticker. But that is not where it ends.

WE KNOW THAT there are a few unscrupulous inspection stations that insist upon needless repairs in order to certify the vehicle as being safe. Nobody has argued that unsafe vehicles may cause accidents. Rather, it has been argued that the inspection program has been ineffective and hence, by itself, has not eliminated unsafe vehicles.

The bill is now on final reading and needs to survive yet one more test. There is the possibility that other senators will try to amend it or otherwise alter it to lessen the impact of an entire elimination of this program.

But I shall work hard to ensure its passage, because I feel wherever possible, it is necessary to make government as responsive to people as possible, but not to interfere in citizens' lives unless the end truly is justified.

WAY BACK WHEN

30 years ago
April 26, 1951: Wayne County school children collected a total of 8,000 pounds of clothing for Europe and other handicapped areas in a recent drive. Bob Johnson, Bemidji, Minn., and formerly managing editor of the Danison, Iowa Review joins The Wayne Herald staff as news editor and manager. Members of Wayne's Redeemer Lutheran Church will burn the church mortgage at special services Sunday. The ceremony climaxes a five year building project by the church and its congregation. Jack Miller took over the management last week of the local Safety Store. He replaces Milo Dier, who left to accept a position at York. Verna Mae Bartels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Bartels, Wakefield, received her cap at a capping service last Sunday evening. Wayne County's 1951 Red Cross drive has surged ahead to go over its original $1,800 goal by $350 with more districts to report.

25 years ago
April 26, 1956: Ervin Hageman Jr., Wayne, won the third annual Teen-Age Road-E-O Sunday sponsored by Wayne Jaycees. Howard Floer, placed second in the contest. Pvt. Robert Koll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Koll, Winside, was selected an outstanding trainee with Co. B, Special Training Battalion, Ft. Knox, Ky. Janice McCord, daughter of Mrs. Ivalie McCord, Wayne, won the annual Wayne County spelling contest Saturday at the city auditorium. An estimated 700 persons attended 75th anniversary services Sunday at Wayne's First Methodist Church. Guest speaker Weldon Crossland, Rochester, N.Y. Mary Schroeder received the "Miss FHA" award at Wayne High this week for her outstanding work in the local FHA Chapter.

20 years ago
April 27, 1961: Firemen were called to the Ivan Nixon farm Saturday morning to put out a tractor fire. The blaze was apparently caused by a short in the wiring. About 1,100 rural school children, teachers and parents gathered at the Wayne city auditorium Monday for the annual conservation day and music festival. Some 100 NE Nebraska Homemakers gathered in Wayne Friday for the annual Wayne Chamber of Commerce sponsored Rural Homemakers Day. All 11 counties in NE Nebraska were represented. More than 150 kids clambered aboard two buses and three stations wagons Saturday for a trip to the circus in Sioux City. As guests of the Shriners, the kids enjoyed a specially reserved section of seats to watch the circus. Mary Wright, Wayne, was a member of one of three ensembles to present an evening of music in the Western State College auditorium, Gunnison, Colo., Saturday.

15 years ago
April 21, 1966: Wayne Woman's Club won several honors the past week, the principal one being $300 cash from Shell Oil Co. for its program of educational assistance. Tons of debris littered the Lyle Maazoy yard, Hoskins, following an early Monday explosion that leveled a barn. The big half-ton compressor was blown out the roof and over the milking barn. For the second year in a row, Winfield High School has won the Nebraska High School Press Association sweepstakes trophy for Class C schools. A new heating system and an auxiliary electric power unit are going to be installed in the Wayne Hospital. The Wayne Herald was named last week as one of four newspapers in Nebraska receiving Ak-Sar-Ben Community Service Awards for 1965.

10 years ago
April 22, 1971: Dave Thopillius and Ray Ash were presented lapel pins by Masonic Grand Master John H. Brown of Omaha in recognition of their 50 years membership in the lodge. J. Alan Cramet, publisher of The Wayne Herald, was named last week to serve as secretary-treasurer of the Nebraska Press Association. Cletus Sharer has been elected to serve as president of the Wayne Lions Club for the next year. Dr. Gene Bigelow of the Wayne State education faculty will be president of the Wayne State Education Association for the coming year. Mike Rethwisch, Lori Greunke and Linda Baier were named winners in their divisions during the annual Wayne County 4-H speech contest held Saturday at the county courthouse in Wayne.

HERE IN NEBRASKA and throughout the nation, farmers in the last 10 years have relaxed soil and water conservation concerns and have put into production a sizable amount of marginal land highly subject to severe erosion. To be candid, they would have to say that their motives were economic. . . . to keep up with inflation that is increasing their production costs, and to make a profit. Concentrations of center pivot systems in the Nebraska Sandhills are there to make money, not to feed hungry people.

Another factor to consider — developing nations, faced with sky-rocketing costs of oil, already have a difficult time paying for increased food imports. U.S. taxpayers cannot over an extended period subsidize farmers to cover their inflated costs of production while at the same time giving farm commodities away to a hungry world.

In 1972, this nation was exporting 2.3 billion bushels of grain annually. This total climbed in the 1970s to an estimated 5 billion bushels, yet according to world food experts, there are more hungry, starving people today than there were in 1972 and substantially more than there were at the time of the first World Food Conference in the mid-1970s.

All of which says that if the problems of world hunger and poverty are to be relieved, control of the rampant population growth must take top priority in the developing nations and be coupled with improved technological self-help production methods and incentives. World religious and governmental leaders should recognize the obvious and speak out accordingly.

Hoskins Bridge

CONSTRUCTION is expected to start this summer on the new Spring Branch Creek bridge at the north end of Hoskins' Main Street. The bridge being replaced is over 50 years old and in a dilapidated condition. Guard rails have weakened with age, and in one case have fallen to the roadway. Holes in the road surface over the bridge expose support timbers. Bids will be opened for the new bridge expected to cost an estimated $120,000 on May 14 by the state Department of Roads. The project which involves a 65 foot, three span bridge will include a 4 foot pedestrian walkway along the 36 foot roadway. The new bridge will be a continuous concrete slab supported by a double set of pillars, according to Consolidated Engineers, Norfolk, the firm handling the project for the state. Wayne County and Hoskins. Cost of the project will be shared with 80 percent from the Department of Roads, 10 percent from Wayne County and 10 percent from Hoskins.

Simple Steps Help Combat Nitrate Exposure

Nitrates, nitrites and N-Nitroso compounds. Although these words sound scientific and dangerous, the average person can take a few simple steps to combat nitrate exposure.

Why are nitrates so bad? It's really not the nitrates, which are widespread in food and sometimes water, that are harmful. However, Dr. Constance Kies, professor in the Department of Human Nutrition and Food Service Management at the University of Nebraska, says nitrates can be reduced under certain conditions to nitrites, either in food before being consumed or within the human body. High levels of nitrites, regardless of the source, can cause the blood abnormally known as methemoglobinemia.

Infants, especially those under four months old, are the most susceptible to methemoglobinemia. This may be related to the lack of acidity in the gastric juices of newborns which allows nitrate-reducing bacteria to flourish in the upper GI tract.

Because of the reported cases of infant methemoglobinemia due to contaminated water, the U.S. Public Health Service will only permit concentrations of nitrate-nitrogen in drinking water up to 10 milligrams per liter in Nebraska, an average of 10 percent of the water wells have a nitrate-nitrogen concentration at that level or above.

Due to this concern with infant methemoglobinemia, pregnant women are encouraged to check the nitrate-nitrogen level in their water supply with the State Department of Health. If it is over the recommended amount, these women should consider purchasing bottled water or a water purification system, Kies advised.

Nitrates in water consumed by nursing mothers seemingly does not appear in their milk, Kies said. Therefore, babies who are breastfed or who receive premixed bottle formulas are given a measure of protection in comparison to infants fed formula diets including high nitrate water.

"However, women who are breastfeeding probably should not take the chance that this protection will hold true for their babies," she said.

Kies said that vegetables are the chief source of nitrates. Certain vegetables, such as celery, lettuce, radishes, collard greens, kale, mustard greens, spinach, turnip greens and beets seem to have particular ability to accumulate nitrates. Nitrates or nitrites are found in food products may be changed to nitrites through microbiological action.

"This can occur in fresh or cooked vegetables which are allowed to stand at room temperatures for extended periods of time or during storage or improperly processed foods," she noted. Several incidents of methemoglobinemia have occurred in young infants fed spinach which was unrefrigerated.

Kies explained that fresh vegetables in the grocery store usually have a higher nitrite level than their frozen or canned counterparts because of standing at room temperature. She said good conventional home canning and freezing practices will minimize nitrate-nitrite conversion by eliminating or limiting microbial action, which is responsible for the change.

Nitrates and nitrites which are not absorbed or which are recycled back into the gastrointestinal tract may undergo further transformation with amines or amides to form nitrosamines or nitrosamides (N nitroso compounds). A high proportion of these compounds have been shown to be carcinogens, Kies said.

But implications of the importance of N-nitros compounds in human cancer has not been fully defined. In animal studies designed to determine whether, or not a substance can cause cancer, proportionally much higher levels of the test substance are fed than are realistically found in human diets. Kies said this is done in part because certain persons within a human population may be far more susceptible to cancer triggering agents than are others. While this technique is very useful and scientifically sound, it sometimes causes another problem, that of over concern.

Ascorbic acid (Vitamin C) holds the greatest promise as a nitrate-nitrite-nitrosamine detoxifier, Kies noted. The production of carcinogenic N nitroso compounds have been blocked in many tests with ascorbate and dietary ascorbic acid has been found to sometimes be associated with the reduction of methemoglobin in guinea pigs.

"These results imply that the common practice of addition of ascorbic acid to cured meats for color enhancement might have unforeseen beneficial effects relative to the nitrate-nitrite problem," Kies said. "It also implies that individuals consuming marginal or inadequate amounts of ascorbic acid might be particularly susceptible to nitrate-nitrite hazards."

But if you live with a high water nitrate problem, don't expect proper nutrition to completely overcome the difficult situation, Kies said.

She concludes that consumers should be aware of the hazards associated with high nitrogen fertilization in home gardens, use of high nitrate nitrite foods or possible conversion of nitrates to nitrites in high nitrate containing vegetables due to improper food handling.

A June-bearing raspberry patch should have had the old fruiting wood taken out as soon as harvest was over last year. If this wasn't done, take out the two-year-old fruiting wood now. You can recognize the older branches without waiting for them to leaf out because they will have side branches.

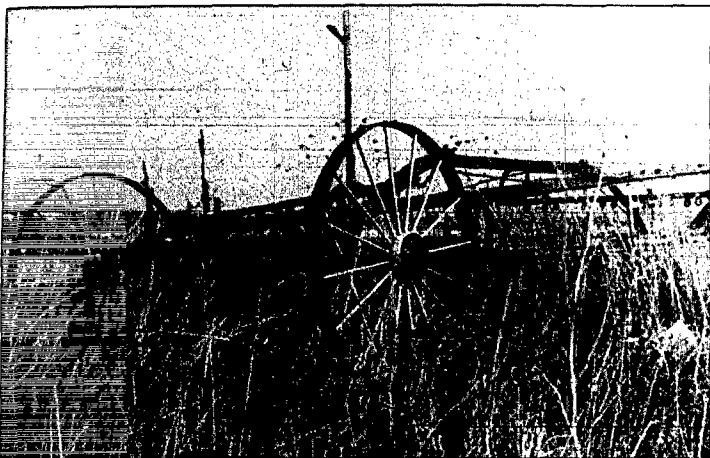

While you're at it, it will probably be necessary to narrow the rows if the patch hasn't been pruned for a couple of years. Eighteen-inch rows are recommended—you need air movement through the patch or you could have a lot of disease problems. Within the row, space the canes about 4 inches apart by taking out the weaker, smaller-diameter ones.

LEFTOVER GARDEN SEED—Every once in a while I get asked about the usefulness of leftover garden seed. Don't throw it away! In most cases it's still good. The approximate storage life of vegetables varies, but onions, parsnips and corn will last two years. Peas, beans and parsley usually will keep three years, while seeds of most other vegetables will last four or five years. If properly stored, lettuce will lose their viability quickly and should be used the following year.

TIPS ON ORNAMENTAL PLANTS—Plant when the soil isn't too wet. Dig holes again half as deep and wide as the plant roots. Prune back the plant often as much as a third to a half. Set the plant the depth it grew originally.

It's desirable to stake trees that are more than 5 feet high. Use a soft cord or a wire, threaded through a garden hose, to tie your tree to the stake.

Wrap the trunk if the trees are more than about 6 feet high, to give more protection from insects. You may use either burlap strips or special waterproof paper for this purpose.

Resting from All That Raking

THIS SIDE DELIVERY hay rake rests in a patch of dry grass on a hill just west of Wayne. The knobbed steel wheels wait to be called on for another crop of hay. But, scant rainfall in northeast Nebraska this spring may keep the tractor drawn rake idle. Knobs on the wheels are worn smooth from acres and acres traveled while turning the windrows from other seasons.

Sheep Producers Will Receive $36 Million in Support Prices

Sheep producers will receive about $36 million in federal incentive payments on the wool they sold in 1980, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture official. This compares with $32 million paid last year on 1979 marketings.

Edward Hews, acting administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the current shorn wool support price is $1.23 per pound but the 1980 national average market price for shorn wool was 88.1 cents a pound, a difference of 34.9 cents.

Dividing the difference (34.9 cents) by the average market price (88.1 cents) results in a 1980 payment rate of 39.6 percent, compared with a payment rate of 33.3 percent in 1979. Hews said the payment rate is the amount required to bring the average market price up to the support price. HEWS SAID THE wool program encourages the production of higher quality wool because the more producers receive from sales the more they receive in government incentive payments. Producer payments are determined by multiplying the payment rate (39.6 percent) times the net dollar return received from wool sales.

Hews also said producers will receive $1.40 per hundredweight in federal payments for unshorn lambs they sold or slaughtered in 1980. This payment is to compensate growers for wool on live lambs they marketed, he said.

The payment is based on the shorn wool payment rate, the average weight of wool per hundredweight of lambs and the price of lamb's wool relative to the national average price for shorn wool.

Incentive payment checks are prepared by USDA's Kansas City commodity office. When payments are computed, the office withholds 2.5 cents a pound from wool payments and 12.5 cents per hundredweight from lamb payments. This money later is forwarded to the American Sheep Producers Council to finance advertising, sales promotion and related market development activities.

THESE DEDUCTIONS were approved by a 75.3 percent favorable vote by sheep producers voting in an August 1978 referendum.

Hews said payments will be made soon through county offices of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Wayne County issued incentive payments for wool and unshorn lambs in the amount of $6347.00 to 36 producers.

Nebraska's Farmers Can Pick From Big Variety of Soybeans

With soybeans the second most valuable crop in Nebraska, and indicators pointing to more acres being planted to beans, farmers can feel good about the information on varieties available in Nebraska according to August Dreier.

Dreier, extension crops specialist at the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, predicts that more land will be planted in soybeans if chinch bugs and dry soil are more of a problem than normal.

Unfavorable weather during the corn planting season always increases soybean acreages, he says, and high costs involved in raising other crops could make soybeans more attractive.

Commercial Banks Facing Credit Demand Squeeze

Commercial banks, which have supplied much of farmers' credit needs for decades, may not be able to adequately service agricultural credit demands in the future because of the changing regulatory environment and the increasing demand for credit generally.

Recognizing the importance of this issue, especially for smaller, community-oriented banks, the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City sponsored a symposium on the topic last year. An article summarizing the symposium proceedings is published in the March issue of the Kansas City Fed's Economic Review.

ACCORDING TO the authors of the article, Dr. Martin Durkin, assistant vice president and economist, and Ann Laing Aitkin, a research associate both with the Reserve Bank, growing demand may not be accommodated in the future by correspondent relationships, government sources and the Federal Reserve's seasonal borrowing privilege.

Instead, agricultural banks may wish to seek funds from the Farm Credit System through Production Credit Associations and Federal Intermediate Credit Banks.

Or they may wish to consider forming their own institutions to gather funds from national money markets and perhaps development liability and asset instruments for sale in secondary markets.

Wayne County Meatcutters Win Awards

Two Wayne County meatcutters have won prizes for their entries in the Nebraska Association of Meat Processors' statewide competition.

Ray Jacobsen, owner operator of Ray's Lockers, Winside, and Larry Johnson, owner operator of Johnson's Frozen Foods, Wayne, won awards during the early April competition in Columbus.

Jacobsen took third place in the dried beef competition. He competed with 18 entries from butchers throughout the state.

Johnson won fourth place in the cooked sausage contest. He also competed with 18 entries from across the state.

Nebraska Fat Cattle Up 4%

Nebraska cattle feeders had 1,450,000 cattle on feed April 1. This was 4 percent above last year but 9 percent below April 1, 1979.

During the January-March quarter, Nebraska feeders marketed 1.1 million fed cattle, about the same as the corresponding period last year. Placements during the quarter totaled 980,000 head, up 10 percent from 1980.

The April 1 weight breakdown showed steers and heifers on feed weighing 900 pounds or more totaled 434,000, up 1 percent from April 1, 1980. Those in the 700-899 pound group numbered 525,000, 14 percent above last year. The under 700 pound category totaled 288,000, down 6 percent from a year ago.

Nebraska feeders intend to market 1 million head of cattle for slaughter during the April-June 1981 quarter. This would be 8 percent above the same quarter in 1980.

Other States Show Beef Drop

Cattle and calves on feed April 1 for slaughter market in 23 states totaled 9.76 million head, down 4 percent from a year ago and 12 percent less than two years ago. This is the lowest April 1 number on feed since 1975.

Placements of cattle and calves on feed during the January-March quarter were 5.15 million, 1 percent fewer than in the corresponding quarter in 1980 and 12 percent less than the first quarter of 1979. Other disappearance of 507 thousand head leaves net placements of 4.65 million. Marketings of fed cattle for slaughter during January-March totaled 6.00 million, down 2 percent from the same period in 1980, and down 11 percent from January-March 1979. Both marketings and placements for the 23 states during the January-March quarter were the smallest since 1975.

The April 1, 1981 cattle on feed inventory included 6.58 million steers and steer calves, down 3 percent from a year ago and 10 percent from two years ago. Steers and steer calves represented 67 percent of the April 1 total in both 1981 and 1980. Heifers and heifer calves totaled 3.13 million, 6 percent below April 1, 1980 and off 15 percent from April 1, 1979.

Cattle feeders expect to market 5.54 million head during the April-June quarter of 1981. This would be 2 percent less than second quarter marketings in 1980 and 10 percent below the same period in 1979.

Animal Scientists to Meet

Approximately 500 animal scientists from 12 Midwestern states are expected at the University of Nebraska East Campus here June 9-10 for the 14th annual meeting of the Midwestern Section of the American Society of Animal Science.

Scientists from Nebraska, Indiana, Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri, Ohio, North and South Dakota and Kansas represent the Midwestern Section of the national professional association of animal agriculture. In addition, researchers from Ontario and Manitoba, Canada, are expected to attend the scientific meeting, held annually to exchange research information on projects completed or in progress.

Dr. Dwane Zimmerman, NU professor of animal science and immediate past president of the Midwest Section, said participants will report on 139 different animal and meat research projects.

Honey Crop Loan Rates Up

Loan and purchase rates for the 1981 crop of honey will average 57.4 cents per pound, 7.1 cents more than in 1980, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture official.

Edward Hews, acting administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the 1981 level represents 60 percent of the April, 1981, adjusted parity price of 95.6 cents per pound.

Loans and purchases will be offered on 1981-crop honey stored in bulk and other eligible containers, on or off farms, he said. Producers have until March 31, 1982, to request loans that will mature June 30, 1982.

Hews said eligible producers wishing to sell honey to USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation should contact their ASCS county office before June 30, 1982. Producers must specify the approximate quantity they desire to sell.

The 1981-crop loan and purchase rates for extracted honey in 60-pound or larger containers, by color and class, are as follows: White or lighter, 58.2; Extra light amber, 57.2; Light amber, 56.2; Other table and non-table honey, 54.2.

Honey delivered to CCC by beekeepers to satisfy loans will be used for domestic food donation programs.

Stealing the Stage

Chicks Shine with Sun

Chicks can be raised successfully in brooding houses heated by solar energy, according to a researcher for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. One type of solar heating system saved 90 percent of fuel costs over conventional heating methods.

The construction and use of the system is described in an illustrated, 12-page brochure, "Solar Heating for Brooding Chickens," written by Floyd N. Reece, poultry mechanization research engineer with USDA's Science and Education Administration at the South Central Poultry Research Laboratory at Mississippi State, Miss.

THE BROCHURE shows Reece's system of conversion of a conventional system to solar heating. Reece says farmers who are interested in building a solar brooder may want to obtain more information from their country Extension offices.

The new publication describes temperature requirements for chicks, types of insulation for the system, ventilation methods, heat storage, and the design of the heat collector. It also describes and shows a movable partition for reducing or enlarging the floor space of the poultry house to reduce heating costs.

The solar collector uses both air and water as heat exchangers. Warmed air is used during the day and warmed water is stored in the system for use at night. Cost and efficiency comparisons are made between solar power and the use of liquefied petroleum gas, the most common energy source for chicken brooders. ## New Soybean Variety Developed For Farm Distribution in 1982

A new soybean variety developed in and for Nebraska has been released to certified seed growers and will be ready for general distribution in 1982.

"We think Mead will do well in dryland or irrigated land," said Jim Williams, professor of agronomy in the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The Mead soybean variety has shown a 5 percent yield increase and a 1 percent protein increase over varieties commonly grown in Nebraska.

brown pods at maturity and shiny yellow seeds. It has field tolerance to phytophthora rot and has some resistance to races 1 and 11 of Phytophthora megasperma.

Mead is the product of about 10 years of research and testing conducted jointly by the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Williams said.

USDA scientists made the cross at the Purdue Agricultural Experiment Station and generations were advanced at the NU Field-Laboratory near Mead, where the final variety was selected.

The new variety was evaluated in nursery trials in Nebraska from 1974 through 1977, then evaluated in 40 tests in northern soybean-producing states. It was grown in irrigated nurseries in Nebraska and has demonstrated superior performance in irrigated and non-irrigated tests here.

BREEDER SEED was increased by the Nebraska Foundation Seed Division in 1980 and was released to certified seed growers March 15. They are growing seed for general distribution in 1982. The Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station will maintain its genetic purity.

Other IANR researchers who helped develop and evaluate Mead are: J.E. Specht, soybean physiologist, Lincoln; A.G. Dreier, agronomist, Lincoln; and R.S. Moomaw, agronomist, Concord.
